2 So then Ezra the priest brought the law, before the convocation of both men and women, and all that had understanding to hearken,—on the first day of the seventh month; and read therein, before the broad place which was before the water-gate, from the time it was light, until the noon of the day, in presence of the men and the women, and such as had understanding,—and the ears of all the people were unto the book of the law: 4 And Ezra the scribe stood upon a lofty platform of wood, which they had made for the purpose, and there stood, beside him, Mattithiah and Shema and Ananiah and Uriah and Hilkiah and Maaseiah, on his right hand,—and <on his left> Pedaiah and Mishael and Malchijah and Hashum and Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, Meshullam.

5 And Ezra the scribe opened the book before the eyes of all the people, for above all the people was he,—and when he opened it all the people stood up. 6 And Ezra blessed Yahweh the great God,—and all the people responded 'Amen ! Amen ! with the lifting up of their hands,—and they bented their heads and bowed themselves down unto Yahweh, with their faces to the ground. 7 And Joshua and Bani and Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiyah, and the Levites did cause the people to understand the law, and the people remaining in their places. 8 So they read in the book of the law of God distinctly,—and, giving the sense, caused them to understand the reading.

9 Then Nehemiah — he was the governor—and Ezra the priest the scribe, and the Levites who were causing the people to understand, said unto all the people,—

'To-day is [holy] unto Yahweh your God, do not mourn, nor weep,—for weeping were all the people, when they heard the words of the law. 10 So he said unto them—

Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared, for holy is the day, unto our Lord,—and be not grieved, for [the joy of Yahweh] is your strength.*

11 And the Levites were quieting all the people, saying—

Hush ! for [the day] is holy,—and be not grieved.

12 And all the people went their way, to eat and to drink, and to send portions, and to make great rejoicing,—because they had understood the words which were made known unto them.

§ 11. The Reading of the Second Day leads to a Revival of Dwelling in Booths, neglected since the days of Joshua.

13 And <on the second day> were gathered together—the ancestral heads of all the people, the priests and the Levites, unto Ezra the scribe,—even to give attention unto the words of the law. 14 And they found written in the law, —that Yahweh gave command through Moses, that the sons of Israel should dwell in booths, during the festival of the seventh month; and that they should publish and send along a proclamation throughout all their cities and throughout Jerusalem, saying, Forth to the mountain, and bring in branches of olive, and branches of oleaster, and branches of myrtle, and branches of palms, and branches of thick trees,—to make booths, as it is written.

16 So the people went forth, and brought in, and made themselves booths, every one upon his roof, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the broad place of the water-gate, and in the broad place of the gate of Ephraim. 17 And all the convocation of them who had returned out of the captivity made booths, and dwelt in booths, for, since the days of Joshua son of Nun, had not the sons of Israel done so, unto that day,—and there was very great rejoicing. 18 So he read in the book of the law of God, day by day, from the first day unto the last day, and they kept the festival seven days, and <on the eighth day> a closing feast, according to the regulation.

And and statutes and a law> didst thou command them, through Moses thy servant.

And <broad out of the heavens> didst thou give them, for their hunger, and <waters out of the cliff> didst thou bring them, for their thirst,—and bastest them go in to take possession of the land, which thou hadst lifted thy hand to give them.

But <they and our fathers> dealt proudly,— and hardened their neck, and hearkened not unto thy commandments; 37 but refrused to hearken, neither kept in mind thy wonders which thou hadst done with them, but they hardened their neck, and appointed a head that they might return to their servitude, in their perverseness.

But <thou> art a God of forgivenesses, gracious and full of compassion, slow to anger and abounding in lovingkindness; 38 and didst not forsake them.

Yea <although they made them a molten calf, and said, This is thy God, that brought thee up out of Egypt>—

And <wrought great insults> yet <thou> <in thine abounding compassions> didst not forsake them in the desert,— <the pillar of cloud departed not from over them> by day, to lead them in the way, nor the pillar of fire by night, to light up for them the way <wherein> they should go.

And <thy Good Spirit> thou gavest, to instruct them,— and <thy manna> thou withheldest not from their mouth, and <water> thou gavest them, for their thirst.

Yea <forty years> didst thou sustain them in the desert, they lacked nothing,— <their mantles waxed not old and their feet swelled not.>

And thou gavest them kingdoms, and peoples, and allotted to each of them a corner,— and they took possession of the land of Sihon, and the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og king of Bashan.

<Their children also> didst thou multiply, like the stars of the heavens,— and didst bring them into the land which thou hadst promised their fathers they should enter to possess; 24 so the children entered and possessed the land, and thou subduedst before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and deliveredst them into their hand,— with their kings, and the peoples of the land, to do with them accord—

Yea thou sawest the affliction* of our fathers, in Egypt, and <their outcry> thou hearest, by the Red Sea; 19 and didst grant signs and wonders against Pharaoh, and against all his servants, and against all the people of his land, for thou hadst taken note, that they ruled proudly over them,— and so thou didst make thee a name, as at this day.

And <the sea> didst thou cleave asunder before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea, on dry ground,— whereas <their pursuers> thou didst cast into the depths like a stone, into the mighty waters; 1

And <in a pillar of cloud> didst thou lead them, by day,— and in a pillar of fire, by night, to light up for them the way where in they should go.

And <upon Mount Sinai> camest thou down, and spakest with them out of the heavens,— and gavest them just regulations, and faithful laws, good statutes and commandments.

And <thy holy sabbath> didst thou make known to them, — and <commandments> ing to their pleasure; 26 and they captured fortified cities, and a fat soil, and took possession of houses full of every good thing, wells digged, vineyards and olive-yards and fruit-trees, in abundance,— so they did eat and were filled and became fat, and luxuriated in thy great goodness.

27 But they murmured and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their back, and <thy prophets> they slew, who testified against them* that they might turn them back unto thee,—and they wrought great insult.

28 But <as soon as they had rest> they again’ wrought wickedness before thee,—and thou didst leave them in the hand of their enemies, who bare rule over them, yet <when they again’ made outcry unto thee> ||thou|| <from the heavens> didst hear and <according to b thine abounding compassions> gavest them saviours, that they might save* them out of the hand of their adversaries.

29 But <in the time of their distress> they made outcry unto thee, and <thy compassion> didst not come unto them—nor didst thou send any one to save them, nor didst thou deliver them from the hand of their enemies.

30 Therefore didst thou deliver them into the hand of their adversaries, who distressed them,— and <in the time of their distress> they made outcry unto thee, and ||thou|| <from the heavens> didst hear and <according to thy abounding compassions> gavest them saviours, that they might save* them out of the hand of their adversaries.

31 ||Now|| therefore, O our God— the God great, mighty, and fearful—keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness,* let not all the trouble seem little before thee, which hath come upon us—on our kings, on our rulers, and <on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people,— from the days of the kings of Assyria, until this day.

32 But thou art righteous, as to all that hath fallen upon us,—for <faithfulness> hast thou wrought, whereas ||we|| have been lawless; 34 and *our kings, our rulers, our priests, and our fathers|| have not kept thy law,—nor given heed unto thy commandments, or unto thy testimonies, wherewith thou hast testified against them.

33 But ||they|| <in their kingdom, and in thine abundant goodness which thou gavest them, and in the broad and fat land which thou didst set before them> did not serve thee, neither turned they from their wicked doings.

34 Lo! ||we|| to-day— are bondmen—in even upon the land which thou gavest our fathers to eat the fruit thereof and the good thereof. 37 ||we|| are bondmen; and ||the increase thereof> abounded unto the kings whom thou hast set over us, for our sins,—and <over our bodies> are they bearing rule, and over our cattle, at their pleasure, and <in great distress> we are'.

the Levites, the doorkeepers, the singers, the Nethinim, and all who had separated themselves from the peoples of the lands unto the law of God, their wives, their sons and their daughters,—every one having knowledge and understanding; were holding fast unto their distinguished brethren, and were entering into a curse and into an oath, to walk in the law of God, which was given through Moses the servant of God,—and to observe and do all the commandments of Yahweh our Lord, and his regulations, and his statutes; and that we would not give our daughters unto the peoples of the land—and their daughters—would we not take for our sons; and if the peoples of the land should be bringing in wares, or any corn on the sabbath day, to sell, we would not buy of them on the sabbath, or on a holy day,—and that we would remit the seventh year, and the loan of every hand. And we laid on ourselves charges, appointing for ourselves the third of a shekel, yearly,—for the service of the house of our God; for the bread to set in array, and the continual meal-offering, and for the ascending-sacrifice, of the Sabbaths, of the new moons, of the appointed feasts, and for things hallowed, and for victims bearing sin, to put a propitiatory-covering over Israel,—and for all the work of the house of our God. Also did we cast, concerning the offering of wood among the priests, the Levites, and the people, to bring it unto the house of our God, by our ancestral houses, at times arranged, year by year,—to burn upon the altar of Yahweh our God, as it is written in the law. And that we would bring in the firstfruits of all fruit of all trees, yearly,—unto the house of Yahweh; also that the firstborn of our sons; and of our cattle, as it is written in the law: and that we would bring in the heave-offering of the sons of Levi, unto the house of our God; also that the heave-offering of the tithe of the tithe, unto the house of Yahweh ; also that the cloth for the priest, for things hallowed, and for victims bearing sin, to put a propitiatory-covering over Israel,—and for all the work of the house of our God.

§ 14. A Record of those who dwell in Jerusalem of the Chiefs of Judah and Benjamin, and of the Priests and Levites; also of the Villages in which men of Judah and Benjamin dwell.

1 And the rulers of the people dwelt in Jerusalem,—and the rest of the people cast lots, to bring in one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem the holy city, and nine parts in [other] cities. And the people bestowed a blessing on all the men, who willingly offered themselves to dwell in Jerusalem.

2 Now these are the chiefs of the province, who dwelt in Jerusalem, but in the cities of Judah dwelt every man in his possession throughout their cities, Israel, the priests, and the Levites and the Nethinim, and the Sons of the Servants of Solomon. And in Jerusalem dwelt certain of the sons of Judah and of the sons of Benjamin,—

3 Of the sons of Judah Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalleel, of the sons of Perez; and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozei, son of Hazaiah, son of Adaiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, son of the Shilonite. All the sons of Perez who were dwelling in Jerusalem four hundred and sixty-eight, men of ability.

4 And these are the sons of Benjamin, Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joel, son of Pedahzur, son of Kolah, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Josiah; and after him Gabbai, Sallai,—nine hundred and twenty-eight. And Joel son of Zichri was in charge over them,—and Judah son of Hassenuh was over the city, as second.

5 Of the priests Jedaiah son of Joiarib, Jachin; Seraijah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, chief ruler of the house of God; and their brethren who were doing the work of the house, eight hundred and twenty-two,—and Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pelahiah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah; and his brethren, ancestral chiefs, two hundred and forty-two,—and Amashai son of Azarel, son of Ahazai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer; and their brethren, strong men of ability, a hundred and twenty-eight,—and he who was in charge of them, Zabdiel, son of Hagedolim.

6 And of the Levites Shemaiah son of Haarsub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; and Shabbethai and Jozaab, over the outside business of the house of God, of the chiefs of the Levites; and Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, leader of the praise who giveth thanks, in prayer, and Bakukiah the second among his brethren,—and Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred and eighty-four.

And the doorkeepers—Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren who were keeping watch in the gates were a hundred and seventy-two.

But the residue of Israel, the priests, the Levites were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance.

Howbeit the Nethinim were dwelling in Ophel, and Ziha and Gishpah were over them, in wards. 10 And the overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzziah, son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Asaph, the singers.

And the priests were Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua, sons of Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra; Amariah, Malluch, Hattush; Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth; Iddo, Ginnetho, Abijah; Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah; Shemaiah, and Jozabad, Jeshua, Seraiah, Elnathan, Meshullam, Balla, and the priests.

The Levites were written in the book of Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, son of Eliashib.

And the chiefs of the Levites were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Johanan, sons of Leon, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks, by the commandment of David the man of God, toward joining toward.

And Bakbukiah and Unno their brethren were over against them, in wards. And Jeshua begat Joakim, and Joakim begat Eliashib, and Eliashib begat Joiada; and Joiada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Jaddua.

And in the days of Joiakim were priests, ancestral chiefs, of Seraiah, Merar, of Jeremiah, Hananiah; of Ezra, Meshullam, of Amariah, Jehohanan; of Malluch, Jonathan, of Shecaniah; of Joseph; of Harim, Adna, of Meraioth, Helkia; of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; of Abijah, Zichri; of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai; of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemariah, Jehohanan; and of Joiarib, Mattenai, of Jedaiah, Uzzi; of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; of Hilkiah, Hashabiah; of Jedaiah, Nethanel.

The Levites in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, and Johanan, and Jaddua were recorded as ancestral chiefs, also the priests unto the reign of Darius the Persian. The sons of Levi, ancestral heads were written in the book of Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, son of Eliashib. And the chiefs of the Levites were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Johanan, sons of Kadmiel, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks, by the commandment of David the man of God, ward joined to ward. The Levites were written in the book of Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, son of Eliashib. And the chiefs of the Levites were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Johanan, sons of Kadmiel, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks, by the commandment of David the man of God, ward joined to ward. The Levites were written in the book of Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, son of Eliashib.

The priests and the Levites, who came up with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua, son of Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra; Amariah, Malluch, Hattush; Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth; Iddo, Ginnetho, Abijah; Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah; Shemaiah, and Jozabad, Jeshua, Seraiah, Elnathan, Meshullam, Balla, and the priests.

The Levites were written in the book of Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, son of Eliashib.

The priests and the Levites purified themselves, and purified the people, and the gates, and the wall. Then brought...
I appointed two large choirs, even to go in procession to the right, upon the wall, towards the dung-gate; and after them went Hoshaiah, and half the rulers of Judah; then Azariah, Ezra, and Meehullam; Judah, and Benjamin, and Shemaiah, and Jeremiah; and of the sons of the priests, with trumpets, Zechariah— son of Jonathan— son of Shemaiah— son of Mattaniah, son of Micahiah, son of Zaceur, son of Asaph; and his brethren— Shemaiah and Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maasi, Nethanel, and Judah Hanani, with the instruments of music of David; the man of God, with Ezra the scribe before them; and over the fountain gate and straight before them they went up by the stairs of the city of David, at the going up of the wall, above the house of David, even as far as the water-gate, eastward. And the second choir was going over against them, following it, with the half of the people upon the wall, above the tower of the ovens, even as far as the broad wall; and above the gate of Ephraim, and upon the old gate, and upon the fish-gate, and the tower of Hananel, and the tower of the watchmen, even as far as the sheep-gate, and they came to a stand, at the gate of the guard. So the two choirs came to a stand at the house of God, and I, and half the deputies with me; and the priests— Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah— with trumpets; and Maaseiah and Shemaiah and Eleazar and Azariah and Shecaniah, and Shemaiah, and Jeiel, and Unan, and Hazael, and Shaphat, and Jeralmeel; and the musicians sounded aloud, with the chief of the music, Jezrahiah who was not over them.

And they sacrificed, on that day, great sacrifices, and rejoiced, for, God had caused them to rejoice with great joy, moreover also the women and children rejoiced, so that the rejoicing of Jerusalem was heard afar off. And there were set in charge, on that day, certain men, over the chambers for the treasures, for the heave-offerings, for the firstfruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them out of the fields of the cities, the portions appointed by the law, for the priests, and for the Levites, for the joy of Judah was over the priests and over the Levites, who were remaining. So they kept the charge of their God, and the charge of the purification, and [so did] the singers and the doorkeepers, according to the commandment of David and of Solomon his son. For in the days of David and Asaph, of old there were chiefs of the singers, and songs of praise and thanksgiving unto God. Now all Israel— in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah— used to give the portions of the singers and the doorkeepers, the need of a day upon its day, and they hallowed them unto the Levites, and the Levites hallowed them unto the sons of Aaron.

§ 17. The Day of Dedication further distinguished by a Reading in the Law which led to the Expulsion of Tobiah the Ammonite out of the Temple Chambers.

<On that day> a portion was read in the book of Moses, in the ears of the people, and it was found written therein, that the Ammonite and the Moabite should not enter into the convocation of God, unto times age-abiding; because they met not the sons of Israel, with bread and with water, but hired against them Balaam, to curse them, although our God turned the curse into a blessing.

So it came to pass, when they had heard the law, that they separated all the mixed multitude from Israel. Now before this, Eliashib the priest, who was set over a chamber of the house of God, was allied unto Tobiah; so he prepared him a large chamber, where aforetime they used to lay the meal-offering, the frankincense, and the vitals, and the tithes of the horn, the new wine and the oil, in charge of the Levites, and the singers, and the doorkeepers, and the heave-offerings for the priests. But throughout all this time was I not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon I came unto the king, and at the end of certain days obtained I leave of the king; and came to Jerusalem, and had intelligence of the wickedness which Eliashib had committed for Tobiah, in preparing for him a chamber, in the courts of the house of God; and it grieved me exceedingly, and I cast forth all the household utensils of Tobiah, outside of the chamber. Then commanded I, and they purified the chambers, and I put back there, the utensils of the house of God, the meal-offering and the frankincense.

§ 18. Neglected Levites, recalled and provided for.

Then came I to know, that the portions of the Levites had not been given [them], so that the Levites and the singers, who had been doing the work, had fled every one to his field. Therefore contended I with the deputies, and said, Wherefore is the house of God forsaken? So I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then [all Judah] brought in the tithe of corn, and new wine, and oil, unto the treasuries; and I made treasurers over the treasuries—Shelahiah the priest, and Zadok the scribe, and Pedahzur from among the Levites, and next unto them Hanan son of Zaccur.
son of Mattaniah,—for faithful were they accounted, and it was [laid] upon them, to distribute unto their brethren.

14 Remember me, O my God, concerning this,— and do not wipe out my lovingkindnesses, which I have done for the house of my God, and for those keeping charge thereof.

15 <In those days> saw I in Judah—some treading winepresses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves and lading asses, moreover also wine, grapes, and figs, and every kind of burden, which they were bringing into Jerusalem on the sabbath day,—so I protested against it, as a day for them to sell provisions. 16 And [men of Tyre] dwelt therein, who were bringing in fish,—and every kind of ware for sale,—and were selling, on the sabbath, to the sons of Judah, and* in Jerusalem; 17 so I contended with the nobles of Judah,—and said unto them, What is this wicked thing which ye are doing, and profaning the sabbath day?

18 Was it not thus your fathers did, and our God brought up upon us all this calamity, and upon this city?—and ye would add indignation against Israel, by profaning the sabbath?

19 And it came to pass <when the gates of Jerusalem made a shadow before the sabbath> then gave I word, and they shut the doors, and I gave word, that they should not open them, until after the sabbath,—and <some of my young men> set I near the gates, so that no burden should be brought in, on the sabbath day. 20 But the traders and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside Jerusalem, once or twice. 21 Therefore I testified against them, and said unto them, Wherefore are ye lodging against the wall! if ye do it again |a hand| will I thrust upon you,—

22 From that time they came not on the sabbath. 23 And I gave word to the Levites, that they should be purifying themselves and coming in, as keepers of the gates, to hallow the sabbath day.

§ 20. Mixed Marriages denounced and punished.

24 Moreover <in those days> saw I the Jews who had married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, of Moab; 24 and ||their children|| were one-half speaking the language of Ashdod, and understood not how to speak the language of the Jews,—but after the tongue of both people.

25 So I contended with them, and laid a curse upon them, and I smote, from among them, certain men, and pulled out their hair,—and I put them on oath by God,

Ye shall not give your daughters unto their sons, nor take of their daughters, for your sons nor for yourselves.

26 Was it not <over these things> that Solomon king of Israel sinned,—though <among many nations> there was no king such as he, and he was beloved by his God; and so God gave him to be king over all Israel,— 27 Unto you then, shall we hearken, to do all this great wickedness, to act unfaithfully with our God,—by marry ing foreign wives?

28 And ||one of the sons of Joia da, son of Elia shib the high priest|| was son-in-law to Sanballat the Horonite,—therefore I chased him from me.

29 Remember them, O my God,—on account of the Defilements of the Priesthood, and the Covenant of the Priesthood, and of the Levites.

30 So I purified them from everything foreign,—and appointed charges unto the priests and unto the Levites, every one in his work; 31 also for the offering of wood, at times appointed, and for the firstfruits.

Remember me, O my God, for good!

§ 1. The Disobedience and Fall of Queen Vashti.

1 And it came to pass in the days of Ahasuerus, (the same Ahasuerus that reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces: <in those days,—when King Ahasuerus was sitting on the throne of his kingdom, which was in Shusen the palace; in the third year of his reign> he made a banquet unto all his rulers, and his servants,—the power of Persia and Media, the nobles and the rulers being before him; when he showed the riches of the glory of his kingdom, and the splendour of his excellent majesty,—many days, a hundred and eighty days; that <when these days were fulfilled> the king made — for all the people that were present in Shusen the palace, both for great and small— a banquet, seven days,— in the court of the garden of the palace of the king: white stuff, cotton and blue, being held fast with cords of fine linen and purple, upon rods of silver, and pillars of white marble,—the couches being of gold and silver, upon a pavement of alabaster and white marble, and pearl and black marble. And they gave them drink in vessels of gold, vessels, from vessels being diverse,—even the wine of the kingdom in abundance, by the bounty of the king. And the drinking was according to the law, no one compelling,— for [so] had the king appointed unto every chief of his household, that every man [should do according to his pleasure].

9 Also Vashti the queen made a banquet for the women, in the royal house which belonged to King Ahasuerus.

10 <On the seventh day> when merry was the heart of the king with wine> he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar and Carcas, the seven eunuchs who were waiting before King Ahasuerus,— to bring in Vashti the queen, with the royal crown,—to show the peoples and the rulers her beauty, for <of pleasing appearance> was she. But Queen Vashti refused to come in at the command of the king, which was given through the eunuchs,—and the king was exceeding wroth, and [his anger] burned within him.

13 Then said the king unto the wise men having knowledge of the times,—<for [so] was the manner of the king before all having knowledge of law and judgment; and [near unto him] were Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Mares, Marsena, Memucan,—the seven rulers of Persia and Media, who used to behold the face of the king, who sat first, in the kingdom>—

15 <According to law> what ought to be done, with Queen Vashti,—for that she hath not performed the command of King Ahasuerus, through the eunuchs?

16 Then said Memucan before the king and the rulers,

<Not against the king alone> hath Vashti the queen acted perversely,—but against all the rulers, and against all the peoples, who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. "For the report of the queen will go forth unto all women, so putting contempt upon their lords, in their eyes,—when it is reported to them.

18 King Ahasuerus commanded Vashti the queen to be brought in before him, but she came not. And this day shall the ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard the report of the queen, tell it, unto all the lords of the king.—with enough of contempt and wrath.

19 <If unto the king it seem good> let there go forth a royal declaration from before him, and let it be written among the laws of Persia and Media, so that it shall not pass away,—That Vashti [is not to come in] before King Ahasuerus, and <her royal estate> let the king give unto her neighbour, who is better than she.

20 <When the edict of the king which he shall make, is published' throughout all his kingdom, for [great] it is' then [all wives] will give honour unto their lords, both great and small.

21 And the thing seemed good' in the eyes of the king, and the rulers,—and the king did' according to the word of Memucan. So he sent letters, into all the provinces of the king, into every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people according to their tongue,— That every man should be ruler in his own house, and issue his commands, according to the tongue of his people.

§ 2. The Selection of Esther, a Jewess, to be Queen instead of Vashti.

2 After these things, when the wrath of King Ahasuerus was appeased, he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her. Then said the young men of the king, who waited upon him,—Let them seek out for the king young virgins, of pleasing appearance; and let the king appoint officers throughout all the provinces of his kingdom, and let them gather together every young virgin of pleasing appearance unto Shusan the palace, unto the house of the women, into the custody of Hegai eunuch of the king, keeper of the women, and let there be given them the things needed for their purification; and let the maiden that is pleasing in the eyes of the king, let her be queen instead of Vashti. And the thing seemed good in the eyes of the king, and he did so.

5 A certain Jew was in Shusan the palace, whose name was Mordecai, son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, a man of Benjamin; who had been exiled from Jerusalem, with the exiles who were carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah,—whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon exiled. And it came to pass, that he was bringing up Hadassah, the same was Esther, his uncle's daughter, for she had neither father nor mother,—and the maiden was of beautiful form and pleasing appearance, and when her father and mother died, Mordecai took her for his own daughter. So it came to pass, when the king's command and decree was heard, and there had been gathered together many maidens unto Shusan the palace, unto the custody of Hegai, that Esther was taken into the house of the king, unto the custody of Hegai, keeper of the women; and the maiden was pleasing in his eyes, and she received lovingkindness before him, and he hardened to give her the things needed for her purification, and things apportioned her, and to give her seven select maidens out of the house of the king,—and he removed her and her maidens to the best place in the house of the women. Esther had not told of her kindred, nor of her people, as Mordecai had laid charge upon her,—and the command of Mordecai, Esther performed, like as when she was being brought up with him. So it came to pass, when virgins were gathered together a second time, then Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king. Esther had not told of her kindred, nor her people, as Mordecai had laid charge upon her,—and the command of Mordecai, Esther performed, like as when she was being brought up with him. Now when virgins were gathered together a second time, then Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king. Esther had not told of her kindred, nor her people, as Mordecai had laid charge upon her,—and the command of Mordecai, Esther performed, like as when she was being brought up with him.

§ 3. Mordecai, the Queen's Foster-father, saves the Life of King Ahasuerus.

19 Now when virgins were gathered together a second time, then Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king. Esther had not told of her kindred, nor her people, as Mordecai had laid charge upon her,—and the command of Mordecai, Esther performed, like as when she was being brought up with him. In those days, when Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the eunuchs of the king who guarded the threshold, were wroth, and sought to thrust a hand upon King Ahasuerus; but the thing became known to Mordecai, who told it unto Esther the queen,—and Esther told it unto the king, in the name of Mordecai. And when the thing was searched into and found true—then were they two hanged upon the gallows, and it was written, in the book of the chronicles, before the king.

§ 4. Haman made Chief Minister; but, Mordecai refusing to bow down to him, Haman plots to destroy the whole Jewish People.

1 After these things did King Ahasuerus promote to power Haman son of Hammedatha filled the days of their purification,—six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with perfumes, and with things for the purification of the women. Then indeed, the maiden came in unto the king,—whatevery she might mention, was given her, to go with her, out of the house of the women up to the house of the king: in the evening she went in, and in the morning she returned unto the second house of the women, unto the custody of Shashgaz the king's eunuch, who kept the concubines,—she went not in again unto the king, except the king delighted in her, and she were called by name. But when the turn came for Esther daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai—who had taken her as his own daughter—to go in unto the king, she requested nothing, save what Hegai the king's eunuch who kept the women might direct,—but so it was, that Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all who beheld her. So then Esther was taken unto King Ahasuerus, into his royal house, in the tenth month, (the same) was the month Tebeth,—in the seventh year of his reign. And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained favour and lovingkindness before him, above all the virgins,—so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen, instead of Vashti. Then the king made a great banquet, for all his rulers and his servants, the banquet of Esther,—and a remission for all the provinces made he, and gave a present, according to the bounty of a king.
So then the king took his signet-ring from his hand, and gave it unto Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and exalted him, and placed his seat above all the rulers who were with him. And all the king's servants who were in the king's gate used to bend and bow themselves down unto Haman, for the king had given command concerning him, but not unto Mordecai. 2 Then said the king's servants who were in the king's gate unto Mordecai,—

And it came to pass when they had spoken unto him day by day, and he had not hearkened unto them, that they told Haman, to see whether the account of Mordecai would stand, for he had told them, that he was a Jew. 3 And when Haman saw that Mordecai did not bow nor bow down unto him> then was Haman filled with wrath; 4 but <it was contemptible in his eyes> to thrust forth a hand on Mordecai alone, for they had told him of the people of Mordecai,—and Haman sought to destroy all the Jews who were throughout all the kingdom of Ahasuerus, the people of Mordecai. 5 In the first month—the same was the month Nisan, in the twelfth month of king Ahasuerus—was Pur cast—the same is the Lot, before Haman, from day to day, and from month to month,—and the lot fell on the thirteenth day* of the twelfth month, the same is the month Adar. 6 Then said Haman unto King Ahasuerus, There is a certain people, scattered abroad and dispersed among the peoples, throughout all the provinces of thy kingdom,—whose laws are diverse from every people, and the laws of the king they observe not, for the king therefore, it is not fit to suffer them. 7 If unto the king it seem good, let it be written, to destroy, to slay and to perish, and to cause to perish all Jews, both young and old, little ones and women, in one day, on the thirteenth of the twelfth month, the same is the month Adar,—and the spoil of them to be a prey. 8 A copy of the writing, to be delivered as an edict throughout every province, was published to all the peoples,—that they should be ready against this day. 9 The runners went forth, urged on by the word of the king, and the edict was given in Shushan the palace,—and the king and Haman sat down to drink, but the city of Shushan was perplexed.

§ 5. Mordecai and Esther defeat the Schemes of Haman, who is hung on the Gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai, the latter being honoured in his Adversary's stead, and the Jews being permitted to stand for their Lives, and so are delivered.

1 When Mordecai came to know all that had been done, Mordecai rent his garments, and put on sackcloth, and ashes,—and went forth into the midst of the city, and cried out with an outcry loud and bitter; 2 and went in as far as before the gate of the king,—for none might enter into the gate of the king, clothed with sackcloth. 3 And throughout every province, whithersoever the word of the king and his edict came—was great mourning amongst the Jews, and fasting and weeping, and lamentation,—sackcloth and ashes were spread out for many.

4 So the maidens of Esther and her eunuchs went in and told her, and the queen writhed in great anguish,—and sent garments to clothe Mordecai, and to remove his sackcloth from off him, but he accepted them not. 5 Then called Esther for Hathach, one of the eunuchs of the king whom he had stationed before her, and charged him, concerning Mordecai,—to get to know what this was, and why this was. 6 So Hathach went forth unto Mordecai,—in the broadway of the city, which was before the gate of the king. 7 And Mordecai told him all that had befallen him,—and an exact statement* of the silver, that Haman had promised to weigh out unto the treasuries of the king, for the Jews, to destroy them. 8 Also  gave he unto him, to shew unto Esther, and to tell her,—and to lay charge upon her, to go in unto the king—to make supplication unto him, and to make request before him, for her people. 9 And Hathach came in and told Esther, the words of Mordecai.

Then spake Esther unto Hathach,—and gave him charge, unto Mordecai:—

All the servants of the king, and the people of the provinces of the king do know, that whatsoever man or woman shall go in unto the king—into the inter-court—who hath not been called> is his law, to put him to death, saving any to whom the king may hold out the golden sceptre, who then shall live,—but have not been called to go in unto the king, these thirty days.

And they told Mordecai, the words of Esther. Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther,—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews.

But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Esther commanded, to answer Mordecai:—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews. But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Mordecai departed,—and did according to the words of Esther.

Then Esther commanded, to answer Mordecai:—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews. But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther,—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews. But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Esther commanded, to answer Mordecai:—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews. But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Esther commanded, to answer Mordecai:—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews. But if thou do indeed hold thy peace at this time—respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish,—and who knoweth whether thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Mordecai departed,—and did according to the words of Esther.

So the king with Haman came in, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared. Then said the king unto Esther, during the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, that it may be granted thee?—and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

Then answered Esther, and said,—As touching my petition and my request>

If I have found favour in the eyes of the king, and if unto the king it seem good, to grant my petition, and to perform my request> let the king with Haman come in unto the banquet which I will prepare for them, and [to-morrow] I will do, according to the word of the king.

Then went Haman forth on that day, joyful and of a merry heart,—but when Haman saw Mordecai in the gate of the king, that he rose not up nor moved because of him> then was Haman filled with wrath against Mordecai.

Nevertheless Haman restrained himself, and came into his own house,—and sent and brought in his friends, and Zeresh his wife; and Haman recounted unto them the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children,—and all the things wherein the king had promoted him to power, and how he had advanced him, above the rulers and the servants of the king.

And Haman said,

Moreover Esther the queen did bring in no one with the king into the banquet which she had prepared, saving myself,—yea moreover [even for to-morrow] I am invited unto her, with the king.

Yet [all this] sufficed me not,—so long as I see Mordecai the Jew, sitting in the gate of the king.

Then said Zeresh his wife and all his friends unto him.

Let them make ready a gallows, of the height of fifty cubits, and [in the morning] speak thou unto the king, that they hang Mordecai thereon, then go with the king into the banquet joyfully.

And the thing seemed good before Haman, and he made ready the gallows.

<During that night> the sleep of the king fled,—and he commanded to bring in the book of remembrance, the chronicles, and they were read before the king. And it was found written, how that Mordecai had told concerning Bigthana and Teresh, the two eunuchs of the king guarding the threshold,—who had sought to thrust forth a hand upon King Ahasuerus. Then said the king,

What honour and dignity hath been done unto Mordecai, for this?

Then said the king's young men, who were ministering unto him,

Nothing hath been done for him.

Then said the king,

Who is in the court?

Now Haman had come into the outer court of the king’s house, to speak unto the king, to hang Mordecai upon the gallows which he had prepared for him. So the king’s young men said unto him, Lo! Haman standing in the court. And the king said, Let him come in.

So Haman came in, and the king said unto him, What shall be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth? Then said Haman in his own heart, Unto whom will the king delight to do honour, more than unto me?

So Haman said unto the king,—

<As touching the man in whose honour the king delighteth> let them bring in royal apparel wherewith the king hath clothed himself,—and the horse whereon the king hath ridden, and the royal crown which hath been set upon his own head; and let the apparel and the horse be delivered unto the hand of one of the king’s rulers, one of the nobles, and so let them array the man, in whose honour the king delighteth,—and cause him to ride upon the horse through the broadway of the city, and let them proclaim before him,

<Thus and thus> shall it be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth!

Then said the king unto Haman, Haste, take the apparel and the horse, just as thou hast said, and do even so unto Mordecai the Jew, who is sitting in the king’s gate,—do not let fail a thing, of all which thou hast spoken!

So Haman took the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai,—and caused him to ride through the broadway of the city, and proclaimed before him, <Thus and thus> shall it be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth!

Then Mordecai returned unto the gate of the king,—but Haman hurried unto his own house, mourning, and with covered head. And Haman recounted unto Zeresh his wife, and unto all his friends, everything that had befallen him. Then said his wise men, and Haman’s wife, unto him,

<If of the seed of the Jews is Mordecai before whom thou hast begun to fall> thou shalt not prevail against him, but shalt utterly fall before him.

<While yet they were speaking with him> the eunuchs of the king had come,—and they hastened to bring Haman, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared.

1 So the king and Haman came in, to banquet with Esther the queen. Then said the king unto Esther, on the second day also, during the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, Queen Esther, that it may be granted thee? and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

Then answered Esther the queen, and said,

<If I have found favour in thine eyes, O king, and if unto the king> it seem good, let my life be granted me, as my petition, and my people, as my request;

For we are sold, and my people, to be destroyed, to be slain and to be caused to perish. <If indeed for bondmen and for bondwomen we had been sold> I had held my peace, although the adversary could not have made good the damage to the king.

Then spake King Ahasuerus, and said unto Esther the queen,— Who is he now, and where is he, whose heart is set to act thus?

And Esther said, A man who is an adversary and enemy, this wicked Haman.

And Haman was terrified, before the king and the queen. <Now the king> arising in his wrath from the banquet of wine, and going into the palace garden> Haman stood to make request for his life from Esther the queen, for he saw that ruin was determined against him by the king. When the king returned out of the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine> Haman was lying prostrate upon the couch whereon Esther was. Then said the king, Will he (even dare to force the queen) while I am in the house?

<No sooner had the word gone forth out of the mouth of the king> than <the face of Haman> they had covered.

Then said Harbonah,—one of the eunuchs before the king,— Yea lo! the gallows that Haman made ready for Mordecai, who had spoken well for the king, is standing in Haman’s house, of a height of fifty cubits.

Then said the king, Hang him thereon.

So they hanged Haman on the gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai,—and the wrath of the king was appeased.

1 <On that day> did King Ahasuerus give unto Esther the queen, the house of Haman, the adversary of the Jews,—and Mordecai came in before the king, for Esther had told, what he was to her. And the king took off his signet-ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai,—and Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

2 <Yet again> spake Esther before the king, and fell down at his feet,—and wept and made supplication unto him, to cause the mischief of Haman the Agagite to pass away, even the plot which he had plotted against the Jews. And the king held out unto Esther, the golden sceptre,—so Esther arose, and stood before the king; and said—

<If unto the king> it seem good, and if I have found favour before him, and the thing be approved before the king, and if I myself be pleasing in his eyes, let it be written, to reverse the letters plotted by Hammedatha, the Agagite, which he wrote to destroy the Jews, who are in all the provinces of the king.

6 For how can I endure to see the ruin that shall overtake my people? or how can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred?

7 Then said King Ahasuerus unto Esther the queen, and unto Mordeca the Jew,— Lo! the house of Haman have I given unto Esther, and <him> have they hanged upon the gallows, because he thrust forth his hand against the Jews.

8 Ye therefore, write concerning the Jews as may seem good in your own eyes, in the name of the king, and seal it with the king’s signet-ring,— for a writing which hath been written in the king’s name, and sealed with the king’s signet-ring none can reverse.

9 Then were called the king’s scribes at that time—in the third month, [the same] is the month Siwan,— on the twenty-third thereof, and it was written according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and unto the satraps and pashas and rulers of the provinces, which are from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, every province according to the writing thereof, and every people according to their tongue; and he wrote in the name of King Ahasuerus, and sealed it with the king’s signet-ring, and sent letters by the hand of runners on horses, riding the swift steeds used in the king’s service, bred of the stud: 11 That the king had granted unto the Jews who were in every city, to gather them together, and to stand for their life, 12 upon one day through all the provinces of King Ahasuerus,— upon the thirteenth of the twelfth month, [the same] is the month Adar; 13 A copy of the writing to be given, as an edict, throughout every province; was published to all the peoples,— and that the Jews be ready against that day, to avenge themselves on their enemies. 14 The runners that rode on the swift steeds used in the king’s service went forth, being urged forward and pressed on, by the word of the king,— and [the edict] was given in Shusan the palace.

15 And Mordecai went forth from the presence of the king, in royal apparel, of blue and white, with a large diadem of gold, and a mantle of fine linen and purple,— and the city Shusan was bright and joyful.

3 And in every province, and in every city, whithersoever the word of the king and his edict did reach, joy and gladness had the Jews,— a banquet and a happy day,— and many from among the peoples of the land became Jews, for the dread of the Jews had fallen upon them.

1 And in the twelfth month, [the same] is the month Adar, on the thirteenth day thereof, when the word of the king and his edict arrived to be put in execution,— on the day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, though it was changed so that the Jews themselves should have power over them who hated them; 2 the Jews assembled themselves together in their cities, throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, to thrust forth a hand against them who were seeking their hurt, and no man stood before them, for the dread of them had fallen upon all the peoples.

3 And all the rulers of the provinces, and the satraps and the pashas, and the doors of business that pertained to the king, were extolling the Jews,— for the dread of Mordecai had fallen upon them; 4 since great was Mordecai, in the house of the king, and his fame was going forth throughout all the provinces,— for the man Mordecai went on waxing great.

5 So then the Jews smote all their enemies, with the smiting of the sword and slaughter, and destruction,— and they dealt with them according to their pleasure. 6 Yea in Shusan the palace did the Jews slay and destroy five-hundred men. 7 And

<Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Parshandatha and Aridatha; Par>
So the Jews who were in Shusan assembled themselves together, on the fourteenth day also, of the month Adar, and slew in Shusan three hundred men,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand.

And [the remainder of the Jews who were in the provinces of the king] assembled themselves together and stood for their life,* and then had rest from their enemies, having slain of them that hated them seventy-five thousand,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand; on the thirteenth day of the month Adar,—and then had rest on the fourteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. But [the Jews who were in Shusan] assembled themselves together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth day thereof,—and then had rest on the fifteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. <For this cause> | the country Jews, who dwelt in the country towns, were making the fourteenth day of the month Adar one of rejoicing and banqueting, and a day of happiness,—and of sending portions every one to his neighbour.

And Mordecai wrote these things,—and sent letters unto all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, near, and far off; to establish for them, that they should continue to observe the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day thereof,—always year by year; according to the days wherein the Jews found rest from their enemies, and the month which was turned for them, from sorrow to joy, and from mourning to a happy day,—that they should make them days of banqueting and rejoicing, and of sending portions, every one to his neighbour, and gifts unto the needy. And the Jews took upon them that which they had begun to do,—and that which Mordecai had written unto them; because Haman, son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the adversary of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews, to cause them to perish,—and had cast Pur, [the same] is the Lot, to terrify them, and to destroy them; but <by [Esther's] going in* before the king> he commanded by letter, that his wicked plot which he had plotted against the Jews, [should return] upon his own head,—and that he and his sons should be hanged upon the gallows. <For this cause> called they these days Purim, after the name Pur, <for this cause>—for all the words of this epistle,—and what they had seen concerning such a matter, and what had reached unto them. The Jews established' and took upon themselves—and upon their seed, and upon all who should join themselves unto them, that it might not pass away, that they would continue to keep these two days, according to the writing concerning them and at their set time,—always year by year. And [these days] were to be remembered and to be kept, always from generation to generation, by every family, every province, and every city,—that [these days of Purim] should not pass away, out of the midst of the Jews, and the memorial of them not cease from their seed.

Then wrote Esther the queen daughter of Abihail and Mordecai the Jew, with all authority,—to confirm this second epistle concerning the Purim; and he sent letters unto all the Jews, throughout the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus,—words of peace and stability: to establish these days of the Purim, in their set times, according as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had enjoined upon them, and according as they had enjoined upon their own soul, and upon their seed,—the story of the fastings and of their outcry. And the command of Esther confirmed the story of these Purim,—and it was written in a book.

And King Ahasuerus laid tribute upon the 10 land, and upon the shores of the sea. But <all the acts of his authority, and his might, and the clear story of the promotion of Mordecai, wherewith the king promoted him> are <they> not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia? For [Mordecai the Jew] was next unto King Ahasuerus, and became great among the Jews, and accepted by the multitude of his brethren,—seeking happiness for his people, and speaking peace to all his* seed.
THE BOOK OF

JO B.

A Narrative Introduction to the Book of Job.

1 There was in the land of Uz a man named Job who was just and upright; and there was none like him among the patriots of the East. He was the owner of seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred ass-yams, and a hundred servants. Job was the richest man in the land.

2 Now there came a certain day, when Job was sitting under a tree, and his three eldest sons were sitting by him, and his eldest daughter was sitting under a large tree near by.

3 And suddenly a messenger came in, and said to Job: "The oxen were plowing, and the ass-yams were feeding beside them; and the Sabeans swooped down and took them, and the young men smote them with the edge of the sword, and escaped only I alone to tell thee."

4 And Job arose, and rent his robe, and shaved his head, and fell to the earth and worshipped:

5 "Naked came I forth from the womb of my mother, and naked must I return thither. The name of Yahweh be blessed!"

But in very deed I put forth, I pray thee, thy hand, and smite all that he hath,— verily <unto thy face> will he curse thee.

12 And Yahweh said unto the accuser:

Lo! all that he hath is in thy hand, only <against himself> do not put forth thy hand.

So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh.

13 And there came a certain day,—when his sons and his daughters were eating, and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother. And  came in unto Job, and said,—

14 A fire of God fell out of the heavens, and burned up the sheep and the young men, and consumed them; and escaped am I alone to tell thee.

15 Yet was this one speaking when another came in and said,—

16 Then Job arose, and rent his robe, and shaved his head, and fell to the earth and worshipped; and said—

Naked came I forth from the womb of my mother, and naked must I return thither. The name of Yahweh be blessed!

11 Or: "straightforward." Mt.: "straight."

b Sep. adds: "and one bullock for a sin-offering, for their souls"—G.n.

c It holds the Heb. here was originally mišlo, properly "to curse": but that the Sopherim deliberately altered it euphemistically to marat, properly "to bless"—G.n. and G. Intro. 385-7.

JOB I. 22; II. 1—13; III. 1—15.

In all this Job sinned not,* nor imputed folly unto God.

And there came a certain day when the sons of God entered in, to present themselves unto Yahweh,—so the accuser also entered in their midst, to present himself unto Yahweh. And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Whence comest thou? And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from wandering about therein.

And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Hast thou applied thy heart unto my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a man blameless and upright, one who revereth God, and avoideth evil; and still he is holding fast his integrity, although thou movest me against him, to swallow him up without cause.

Then the accuser answered Yahweh, and said, Skin for skin, and so all that a man hath will he give for his life.*

7 |In very deed| put forth. I pray thee, thy hand, and smite unto his bone, and unto his flesh,— verily unto thy face will he curse thee.

And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Behold him! in thy hand,—only his life preserve thou!

So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh, — and smote Job with a sore boil, from the sole of his foot, unto his crown. And he took him a potsherd, to scrape himself there with; he being seated in the midst of ashes. Then said his wife unto him, Art thou still holding fast thine integrity? Curse God, and die!

And he said unto her, As one of the base women speakest thou? Speakest thou? |Blessing| shall we accept from God, and |misfortune| shall we not accept?

But in all this Job sinned not with his lips.

Now when the three friends of Job heard of all this misfortune which had befallen him,—they came, every man from his own place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite,—for they had by appointment met together to come to shew sympathy with him, and to comfort him. And when they lifted up their eyes afar off, and knew him not> they lifted up their voice, and wept, — and rent, every one his robe, and sprinkled dust upon their heads, toward the heavens. And they sat with him upon the ground, seven days and seven nights,—and none was speaking unto him a word, for they saw that |exceeding great| was the stinging pain.

Job curses the Day on which he was Born.

1 |After this| opened Job his mouth, and cursed his day. So then Job began,* and said:—

2 |Perish| the day wherein I was born, And the night it was said, Lo! a manchild! b

4 |That day| be it darkness,— Let not enquire after it from above, May there shine upon it no clear beam: Let darkness and death-shade buy it back; May there settle down upon it a cloud, Let a day's dark eclipse cause it terror:

6 |That night| darkness take it,— May it not rejoice among the days of the year, <Into the number of months> let it not enter.

7 Lo! <that night> be it barren, Let no joyous shouting enter therein:

8 Let day-cursers denounce it, Those skilled in rousing the dragon of the sky:

9 Darkened be the stars of its twilight,— Let it not see the eyelashes of the dawn:—

10 Because it closed not the doors of the womb wherein I was,— And so hid trouble from mine eyes.

11 Wherefore in the womb was I not die? From the womb come forth and cease to breathe?

12 For what reason were there prepared for me— knees? And why—breasts, that I might suck?

13 Surely at once had I lain down, and been quiet,

14 With kings, and counsellors of the earth,

15 Or with rulers possessing |gold|,—

Who had filled their houses with silver:
16 Or that <like an untimely birth hidden away> I had not come into being. Like infants that never saw light:

There' the lawless cease from raging, and there' the toil-worn are at rest:

At once' are prisoners at peace, they hear not the voice of a driver:
19 <Small and great> are they, and <life> is free from his master.

Wherefore' give, to the wretched, light? or life to the embittered in soul?

Who long for death, and it is not, and have digged for it, beyond hid treasures:

Who rejoice unto exultation, are glad, when they can find the grave:

To a man, whose way is concealed, and <life> hath strictly enclosed him!

For <in the face of my food> is my sighing cometh in, and <poured out like water> are my groans:

For  I breathed, and it hath come upon me, and <that from which I shrank> hath overtaken me.

I was not careless, nor was I secure, nor had I settled down,—when there came—consternation!

Job's Three Friends, essaying to comfort him, assume his Guilt as the Cause of his Chastisement, and provoke bitter Replies from the Sufferer.

Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—

If one attempt a word unto thee wilt thou be impatient?

But <to restrain speech> who can endure?

Lo! thou hast admonished many, and <slack hands> hast thou been wont to uphold:

Him that was stumbling have thy words raised up, and <sinking knees> hast thou strengthened.

But <now> it cometh upon thee, and thou despairrest, it smiteth even thee, and thou art dismayed.

Is not thy reverence thy confidence? and is not thy hope the very integrity of thy ways?

Remember, I pray thee, who hath perished,

Or when' <the upright> have been cut off.

So far as I have seen

They who plow for iniquity
And sow misery, reap the same:

By the blast of <God> they perish, and <by the breath of his nostrils> are they consumed:

<Notwithstanding> the roaring of the lion, and the noise of the howling lion:

Yet <the teeth of the fierce lions> are broken:

The strong lion perishing for lack of prey: even the whelps of the lioness are scattered.

But <unto me> something was brought by stealth,—and mine ear caught a whispering of the same:

When there were thoughts, from visions of the night,—When deep sleep falleth upon men>

Dread came upon me, and trembling,

The multitude of my bones it put in dread:

Then  floated along over my face, the hair of my flesh bristled up:

I looked, but there was no form before mine eyes.

A whispering voice I heard:—

Shall <mortal man> be more just than <God>?

Or a man be more pure than <his Maker>?

Lo! <in his own servants> he trusteth not, and <his own messengers> lie charged with error:

How much more' the dwellers in houses of clay; which <in the dust> have their foundation, which are crushed sooner than a moth:

Betwixt morning and evening are they broken in pieces, with none to save they utterly perish:

Is not their tent-peg within them torn away?

They die, disrob'd of wisdom!

Call, I pray thee—is there one to answer thee? Or to which of the holy ones wilt thou turn?

For <to the foolish man> death is caused by vexation, and <the simple one> is slain by jealousy.

Is my strength the strength of stones? Or is my flesh of bronze? Is there any help at all in me? Is not [my abiding success] driven from me? The despairing [from his friend] should have lovingkindness, Or <the reverence of the Almighty> he may forswake. Mine own brethren have proved treacherous like a torrent, Like a channel of torrents which disappear: Which darken by reason of the cold, <Over them> is a covering made by the snow: <By the time they begin to thaw> they are dried up, <As soon as it is warm> they have vanished out of their place. Caravans turn aside by their course, They go up into a waste, and are lost: The caravans of Tema looked about, The travelling companies of Sheba hoped for them: They are ashamed that they had trusted, They have come up to one of them, and are confounded. For ||now|| ye have come to him, Ye see something fearful, and fear: Is it that I said, Make me a gift, Or <out of your abundance> offer a bribe on my behalf; And deliver me from the hand of the adversary? And <out of the hand of tyrants> ransom me! Shew me, and I will hold my peace, And <wherein I have erred> cause me to understand. How pleasant are the sayings that are right! But what can a decision from you decide? To decide words do ye intend, When <to the wind> are spoken the sayings of one in despair? Surely <the fatherless> ye would assail, And make merchandise of your friend! But now I will be pleased to turn to me, That it may be <to your faces> if I speak falsehood. Reply, I pray you, let there be no perversity, Yea speak even yet, my vindication is in it!
That thou shouldst inspect him morning by morning,
How long wilt thou not look away from me?
Wilt thou not let me alone, till I can swallow my spittle?
I have sinned.
What can I do for thee, thou watcher of men?
Wherefore hast thou set me as thine object of attack?
Or have I become, unto thee, a burden?
And why wilt thou not remove my transgression. And take away mine iniquity?
For now || in the dust | should I lie down, And thou shouldst seek me diligently, and I should not be. a

Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—
How long wilt thou speak these things? Or <as a mighty wind> shall be the sayings of thy mouth?
Should ||God|| pervert justice? Or ||the Almighty|| pervert righteousness?
<Though thy children|| sinned against him, And he delivered them into the hand of their transgression>
Yet || thou thyself || wilt diligently seek unto || God,|| And unto the Almighty> wilt make supplication;
If <pure and upright> || thou thyself || art> Surely || now || will he answer thy prayer, c And will prosper thy righteous habitation:
So shall thy beginning appear small,— When <thy latter end> he shall greatly increase!
For inquire, I pray thee, of a former generation, And prepare thyself for the research of their fathers;—
For <of yesterday> are we, and cannot know, For  are our days upon earth:
Shall || they || not teach thee—tell thee,— And <out of their memory> || bring forth words?
Can the paper-reed grow up, without a marsh? Or the rush grow up, without water?
<Though while still || in its freshness|| it be not plucked off> Yet <before any kind of grass> it doth wither:

So shall be the latter end* of all who forget || God, And ||the hope of the impious|| shall perish: Whose trust shall be contemptible, b 14 And  his confidence: He leaneth upon his house, and it will not stand, He holdeth it fast, and it will not remain erect.
Full of moisture' he is', before the sun, And <over his garden> his shoot goeth forth:
<Over a heap> his roots are entwined, <A place of stones> he descrieth; f <If one destroy him out of his place> Then will it disown him [saying]— I have not seen thee.
Lo! || that; is the joy of his way,— And <out of the dust> shall others spring up.
Lo! ||God|| will not reject a blameless man, d Neither will he grasp the hand of evil-doers:
At length he shall fill with laughter thy mouth, And thy lips, with a shout of triumph:
||They who hate thee|| shall be clothed with shame, * But ||the tent of the lawless|| shall not be!

Then responded Job, and said—
||Of a truth|| I know that so' it is, But how can a mortal be just with || God?
||If he choose to contend with him> He cannot answer him, one of a thousand:
||Wise in heart, and alert in vigour> What man hath hardened himself against him, and prospered !
Who removeth mountains, unawares, Who overturneth them in his anger;
Who shaketh the earth, out of its place, And ||the pillars thereof|| shudder;
Who commandeth the sun, and it breaketh not forth, g And ||about the stars> he putteth a seal;
Who spreadeth out the heavens, by himself alone! And marcheth along, on the heights of the sea;
Who made the Bear, b the Giant, and the Cluster, k And the chambers of the south;
Who doeth great things, past finding out, And marvels, beyond number.

Yea he passeth on, yet can I not discern him.
Lo! he snatcheth away, who can bring it back?
Who shall say unto him, What wouldst thou do?

As for God if he withdraw not his anger
Under him will have submitted themselves—the proud helpers.

How much less that [I] should answer him,
Should choose my words with him?

Whom though I were righteous yet would I not answer;
To be absolved I would make supplication.

Though I had called, and he had answered me
I could not believe that he would lend an ear to my voice.

For with a tempest would he fall upon me,
And would multiply my wounds without need;
He would not suffer me to recover my breath,
For he is not a man like myself, whom I might answer,
Nor could we come together into judgment:

There is not between us, a mediator,
Who might lay his hand upon us both.

Let him take from off me his rod,
And his terror let it not startle me:

I could speak, and not be afraid of him,
Although not so am I in myself!

My soul doth lose the my life,—
I let loose my complaint,
I speak, in the bitterness of my soul.

I say unto God,
Do not hold me guilty,
Let me know, on what account thou contendest with me!

Is it seemly in thee, that thou shouldest oppress?
That thou shouldest despise the labour of thine own hand,
When upon the counsel of the lawless thou hast abone?

Eyes of flesh hast thou!
Or as a mortal seest thou?
Or [thy years] as the days of a man?

That thou shouldest seek for mine iniquity,
And for my sin shouldst make search:

Though it is within thine own knowledge that I would not be lawless,
And [none] out of thy hand can deliver!

Thine own hands shaped me, and made me,
All in unison round about, and yet thou hast confounded me.

Remember, I pray thee, that as clay thou didst make me,
And un to dust thou wilt cause me to return.

Dost thou not, like milk, pour me forth?
And as cheese curdle me?

With skin and flesh clothe me?
And with bones and sinews interweave me?

Life and lovingkindness thou didst bestow upon me,—
And thy watchful care preserved my breath.

Yet these things thou didst hide in thy heart,
Know, that [this] hath been with thee!

If I have sinned then couldst thou watch me,
And from mine iniquity thou wouldst not acquit me:

If I have been lawless alas for me!

And dost increase thy vexation with me,
<Relays—yes an army> is with me.

Wherefore then <from the womb> didst thou bring me forth?
I might have breathed my last, and ||no eye|| have seen me.

<As though I had not been> should I have become,—
From the womb to the grave might I have been borne.

Are not my days ||few||—then forbear,° And set me aside, that I may brighten up for a little;
Before I go, and not return,
Unto a land of darkness and death-shade:
A land of obscurity, like thick darkness, Of death-shade and disorder,
And which shineth like thick darkness.

Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—

1 Should ||the multitude of words| not be answered?
Or should ||a man full of talk|| be justified?
Shall ||thy prating§|| cause men to hold their peace?
When thou hast mocked> shall there be none' to put thee to shame?
Since thou hast said, Right' is my doctrine, And pure' am I in his° eyes.
But <in very deed> oh that God would speak, That he would open his lips with thee:
He that would declare to thee the secrets of wisdom,
For they are double to that which actually is,—
Know then that God could bring into forgetfulness for thee, a portion of thine iniquity.

The hidden depth of God canst thou discover?
Or <unto the furthest limit of the Almighty> canst thou attain?

The heights of the heavens> what canst thou do?
<Depths deeper than hades> what canst thou know?
<Longer than the earth> is the measure thereof, And broader than the sea.

If he sweep over, or shut up, or call together>
Who then shall hinder him?
For ||he knoweth men of falsity, And seeth iniquity, and him that doth not diligently consider.
But ||an empty person will get sense,° When ||a wild ass's colt is born a man !b

<If thou hast prepared thy heart, And wilt spread forth, unto him, thy hands—
<If iniquity> be in thy hand, Put it far away, And let there not dwell in thy tent§ perversity>

Surely ||then shall thou lift up thy face free from blemish, And shalt be established, and not fear.
For <now|d shalt thou forget ||sorrow>, Like waters passed away> shalt thou remember it.

<Above high noon> shall rise life's continuance, |<like a morning> shall appear, And thou shalt be confident, that there is' hope, And <when thou hast searched>* securely' shalt thou lie down;
And shalt rest, with none' to put thee in terror,—
And many shall entreat thy favour.

But ||the eyes of the lawless> shall fail,— And ||place of refuge> shall have vanished from them, And ||their hope|| be a breathing out of life.°

Then responded Job, and said:—

Of a truth> ||are the people, And <with you> wisdom | will die.|| I also|| have a mind## like you, ||I|| fall not short ||of you, But who' hath not' such things as these?
A laughing-stock—to one's neighbour> do I become, One who hath called upon God and he hath answered him! A laughing-stock—a righteous man without blame!

<For ruin> there is contempt, in the thought of the man at ease,— Ready, for such as are of faltering foot!
At peace' are the tents that belong to the spoilers, And there is security to them who provoke God, To him who bringeth a sword in his hand.
But ||in very deed|| ask, I pray thee, the beasts, and they will teach thee, And the bird of the heavens, and it will tell thee;

Or address the earth, and it will teach thee,
And the fishes of the sea will recount it to thee:
Who knoweth not, among all these,
That the hand of Yahweh hath done this?
In whose hand is the soul of every living thing,
And the spirit of all the flesh of men.
Dost not the ear try words?
Even as [the palate] tasteth for itself: food?
In the Ancient is wisdom,
And [in Length of Days] understanding:
With Him are wisdom and strength,
To Him pertain counsel and understanding.
Lo! He pulleth down, and it cannot be built,
He closeth up over a man, and it cannot be opened:
Lo! He holdeth back the waters, and they dry up,
Or sendeth them out, and they transform the earth:
With Him is strength and effective wisdom,
To Him belong he that erreth, and he that causeth to err.
Who leadeth away counsellors [as] a spoil,
And [judges] He befooleth:—
Who leadeth away priests [as] a spoil,
And [men firmly seated] He overturneth:
Setting aside the speech [of the trusty],
And [the discernment of elders] He taketh away:
Pouring contempt upon nobles,
And [the girdle of the mighty] hath He loosed:
Laying open deep things, out of darkness,
And bringing out to light, the death-shade:
Who giveth greatness to nations, or destroyeth them,
Who spreadeth out nations, or leadeth them into exile:
Who taketh away the sense [of the chiefs of the people of the earth],
And hath caused them to wander in a pathless waste:
They grope about in the dark, having no light,
And He hath made them to reel, like a drunken man.

Lo! <all [this]> hath mine own eye seen,—
Mine ear hath heard and understood it:
But indeed I unto the Almighty would speak,
And <unto direct my argument unto God> would I be well pleased.
For [in truth] ye do besmear with falsehood,
Worthless physicians, all of you!
Oh that ye would altogether hold your peace,
And it should serve you for wisdom!
Hear, I pray you, the argument of my mouth,
And <to the pleadings of my lips> give heed:—
Is it <for God> ye would speak perversely?
And <for him> would ye speak deceit:
Even <for him> would ye be partial?
Or <for God> would ye [so] plead?
Would it be well, when he searched you out?
Or <as one might jest with a mortal> would ye jest [with him]?
He will severely rebuke you,
If ye are secretly partial.
Shall not his majesty overwhelm you?
And [the dread of him] fall upon you?
Are not your memorable sayings, proverbs of ashes?
<Breastworks of clay> your breastworks?
Quietly let me alone, that I may speak out,
Then let come on me what may:
In any case I will put in my hand:
Lo! he may slay me, [yet] will I wait,—
Nevertheless <unto my ways—unto his face> will I shew to be right:
Even he will be on my side—unto salvation,
For <not before his face> shall any impious person come.
Hear ye patiently my speech,
And be my declaration in your ears.
Lo! I pray you, I have set forth in order a plea,
I know that I shall be found right.
Who is it that shall contend with me?
For now: <if I should hold my peace> why! I should breathe my last!
Only <two things> do thou not with me,
Then; <from thy face> will I not hide me:
Thy hand—from off me—take thou far away,
And <thy terror> let it not startle me!
Then call thou, and I will answer,
Or I will speak, and reply thou unto me.

How many' are mine iniquities and sins?
<My transgression and my sin> let me know!

Wherefore' <thy face> shouldst thou hide?
Or count me, as an enemy to thee?

<A driven leaf> wilt thou cause to tremble?
Or <dry stubble> wilt thou pursue?

For thou writest against me, bitter things,
And dost make me inherit the iniquities of my youth;

And thou dost put—in the stocks—my feet,
<Against the roots of my feet> thou dost cut out a bound;

And [a man himself;] <as a rotten thing> weareth out,
As a garment which the moth' hath eaten.

14 1 Man that is born of a woman;
Is of few days, and full of trouble:

2 <As a flower> he cometh forth—and fadeth,
He flieth also as a shadow, and continueth not.

3 <And yet upon such a one as this> hast thou opened thine eye?*

And <him> wouldst thou bring into judgment with thee?

4 Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?
Not one!

5 <If determined' are his days> [the number of his months] is with thee,

6 <Fixed times> for him thou hast appointed and he cannot go beyond.

7 Look away from him,* that he may rest,
Till he shall pay off, as a hireling, his day.

8 <Though there is— for a tree—hope,—
If it should be cut down> that it will grow,

And [the tender branch thereof] will not cease;

9 If its root [should become old in the earth],
And [in the dust] its stock should die':

9 <Through the scent of water> it may break forth,
And produce branches like a sapling>

10 Yet [man] dieth, and is prostrate,*

Ye a the son of earth doth cease to breathe, and where is he?

11 <Waters> have failed from |the sea|,

And [a river] may waste and dry up;

12 So [a man] hath lain down, and shall not arise,—

<Until there are no heavens> they shall not awake,
Nor be roused up out of their sleep.

13 Oh that [in hades] thou wouldest hide me!
That thou wouldest keep me secret, until the turn of thine anger,
Or canst thou attain* for thyself unto wisdom?

What knowest thou that we know not?
[What] understandest thou and the same* is not with us?!

Both hoary and venerable are among us,
One mightier than thy father in days!

<Too small for thee> are the consolations of God?

Or a word spoken gently with thee?

How doth thine own heart carry thee away, And how thine eyes do roll!

For thy spirit replieth against God, And thou bringest forth—out of thy mouth—words!

What is a mortal, that he should be pure?
Or that righteous' should be one born of a woman!

Lo! <in his holy ones> e he putteth not confidence,
And ||the heavens|| are not pure in his eyes:

How much less when one is detected and corrupt,
A man who drinketh in—like water—perversity.

I will tell thee—hear me,
<Since this I have seen> e I must needs declare it.

Which wise men tell,
And deny not [that which is] from their fathers.

<To them alone> was the earth given,

And no alien passed through their midst:

<All the days of the lawless man> he doth writhe with pain,

And <the number of years> is hidden from the tyrant;

A noise of dreadful things is in his ears,
<In prosperity> the destroyer cometh upon him;

He hath no confidence to come back out of darkness,
||He being destined' to the power of the sword;

A wanderer, for bread, [saying]
Where [is it]?

He knoweth that <prepared by his own hand> is the day of darkness;

Distress and anguish shall startle him,

It shall overpower him, like a king ready for the onset;

Because he had stretched out—against God—his hand,
And <against the Almighty> had been wont to behave himself proudly;

He used to run against him with uplifted neck.

With the stout bosses of his bucklers;

For he had covered his face with his fatness,

And had gathered a superabundance on his loins;

And had inhabited demolished cities,

Houses wherein men would not dwell,

That were destined to become heaps.

He shall not be rich, nor shall his substance continue,

Neither shall their shadow's stretch along on the earth;

He shall not depart out of darkness,

<His young branch> shall the flame' dry up,

And he shall depart, by the breath of his own mouth!

Let no one trust in him that—by vanity—is deceived,

For <vain> shall be his recompense;

<Before his day> shall it be accomplished,
With <his palm-top> not covered with leaves;

He shall wrong—like a vine—his sour grapes. b

And shall cast off—as an olive-tree—his blossom.

For the family of the impious is unfruitful,

And  hath devoured the tents of bribery;

Conceiving mischief, and bringing forth iniquity,

Yea their inmost soul prepareth deceit.

Then responded Job, and said:—

I have heard many such things,
<Wearisome comforters> are ye all!

Is there to be an end to windy words?
Or what so strongly exciteth thee, that thou must respond?

<If your soul were in the place of my soul> I could string together words' against you,

And could therewith shake over you my head.

I could make you determined, by my mouth,

And then my lip-solaces should restrain you.*

Though I do speak unassuaged is my stinging pain,—

And if I forbear of what am I relieved?

But now hath he wearied me,

Thou hast destroyed all my family;

And <having captured me> it hath served [as a witness];

And so my wasting away hath risen up against me,

<In my face> it answereth.

His anger hath torn and persecuted me. He hath gnashed upon me with his teeth, Mine adversary hath sharpened his eyes for me. They have gaped upon me with their mouth, with reproach have they smitten my cheek, Together, against me, have they closed their ranks. God doth abandon me to him that is perverse. And the hands of the lawless he throweth me headlong. At ease was I when he shattered me. Yea he seized me by my neck, and dashed me in pieces.

Then set me up for himself as a mark: His archers came round against me. He clave asunder my reins, and spared not, He poured out, on the earth, my gall: He made a breach in me, breach upon breach. He ran upon me, like a mighty man.

Sackcloth sewed I on my skin, and rolled— in the dust— my horn: My face is reddened from weeping, and upon mine eyelashes is the death-shade:— Though no violence was in my hands, and ||my prayer|| was pure. O earth! do not cover my blood, and let there be no place for mine outcry.

Even now I lo! in the heavens is my witness, and ||my purposes|| are broken off, the possession of my heart! Night for day they appoint, Light is near, by reason of darkness! If I wait for hades as my house, In darkness have spread out my couch; To corruption have exclaimed, My father thou!

My mother! And my sister! to the worm>

Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—

How long will ye make a perversion of words? Ye should understand, and afterwards we could speak. Wherefore are we accounted like beasts? Or appear stupid, in thine* eyes?

One tearing in pieces his own soul in his anger— For thy sake shall the earth be forsaken.

Or the rock be moved out of its place? Even the light of the lawless shall go out,— Neither shall shine the flame of his fire; The light hath darkened in his tent, Yes his lamp above him goeth out; The stepplings of his strength are hemmed in, And his own counsel casteth him down; For he is thrust into a net by his own feet, And <upon a trap> he marcheth;

Some suggest that friends had by this time rallied to Job’s side.
There catcheth him—by the heel—a gin,
There holdeth him fast—a noose:
Concealed in the ground is a cord for him,—
And a snare on the path.
	Round about terrors have startled him,
And have driven him to his feet.
Let his strength be famished,
And calamity be ready at his side;
Let it devour the members of his body,
Let the firstborn of death devour his members;
Uprooted, out of his tent, be his confidence,
And let it drive him down to the king of terrors;
There shall dwell in his tent, what is naught-of-his,*
Let brimstone be strewn over his dwelling;
Beneath let his roots be dried up,
And be cut off his branch;
His memorial have perished out of the land,
And let him have no name over the face of the open field;
Let them thrust him out of light into darkness,
Yes out of the world let them chase him;
Let him have neither scion nor seed among his people,
Neither any survivor in his place of sojourn:
Over his day have they been astounded who come behind,
And who are in advance a shudder hath seized.
Surely these are the dwellings of him that is perverse,
And this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

19 Then responded Job, and said:
How long will ye grieve my soul?
Or crush me with words?
These ten times have ye reviled me,
Shameless, ye wrong me.*
And even if indeed I have erred
With myself I lodgeth mine error.
If indeed against me ye must needs magnify yourselves,
And plead against me, my reproach>
Know then, that hath overthrown me,
And within his net enclosed me.
Lo! I cry—out Violence! but receive no answer,
I cry aloud but there is no vindication;
My way hath he walled up, that I cannot pass,
And upon my paths hath he made darkness rest;
My glory—from off me hath he stripped,
And hath removed the crown of my head;

10 He hath ruined me on every side, and I am gone,
And he hath taken away—like a tree—my hope;
Yes he hath kindled against me his anger,
And accounted me towards him like unto his adversaries:
Together enter his troops,
And have cast up, against me, their mound,
And have encompassed all around my tent;
My brethren—from beside me—hath he moved far away,
And mine acquaintance are wholly estranged from me;
Failed me have my near of kin,
And mine intimate acquaintances have forgotten me;
Ye guests of my house and my maidens:
A stranger have ye accounted me,
An alien have I become in their eyes;
To mine own servant I called, and he would not answer,
With mine own mouth I called, and he would not answer,
My breath is strange to my wife,
And I am loathsome to the sons of my own mother;
Even young children despise me,
I rise up, and they speak against me;
All the men of mine intimate circle abhor me,
And whom I loved I have turned against me;
Unto my skin and unto my flesh have my bones’ cleaved,
And I have escaped with the skin of my teeth.
Pity me! pity me! ye, my friends:
For the hand of hath stricken me!
Wherefore should ye persecute me as God?
And with my flesh should not be satisfied?
Oh, then, that my words could be written,
That with a stylus of iron and with lead>
For all time—in the rock—they could be graven!
But I know that my redeemer liveth,
And as the dust over [my] dust will he arise;
And though after my skin is struck off this [followeth]>
Yet apart from my flesh shall I see God:
JOB XIX. 27—29 ; XX. 1—29 ; XXI. 1—5.

27 Whom [I myself] shall see, on my side, And [mine own eyes] [shall] have looked upon, and not [those of] a stranger.

Exhausted are my deepest desires in my bosom!

28 Surely ye should say— Why should we persecute him? Seeing [the root of the matter] is found in me.

29 Be ye afraid—on your part—of the face of the sword. Because [wrath] [bringeth] the punishments of the sword, To the end ye may know the Almighty.

20 Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—

1 Not so! do my thoughts answer me, And to this end, is my haste within me:

2 <The correction meant to confound me> I must hear, But [the spirit—out of my understanding] will give me a reply.

3 Knowest thou [this]—from antiquity, From the placing of man upon earth:—

4 [If] [the joy-about of the lawless] is short, And [the rejoicing of the impious] for a moment?

5 Though his elevation mount up to the heavens, And [his head] <to the clouds> doth reach>

6 [Like his own stubble] shall he utterly perish, [They who had seen him] shall say, Where is he?

7 [Like a dream] shall he fly away, and they shall not find him, Yea he shall be chased away, as a vision of the night.

8 [The eye that hath scanned him] shall not do it again, Neither [any more] shall his place' behold him:

9 [His children] shall seek the favour back of the poor, And [his own hand] shall give back his wealth.

10 [His bones] are full of youthful vigour, Yet <with him—in the dust> shall it lie down.

11 [Though [a sweet taste in his mouth] be given by vice, Though he hide it under his tongue;

12 Though he spare it, and will not let it go, But retain it in the midst of his mouth>

13 [His food] [in his stomach] is changed, The gall of adders, within him!

14 [Wealth] hath he swallowed, and hath vomited the same,

15 <Out of his belly> shall [Gom] drive it forth:

16 <The poison of adders> shall he suck, The tongue of the viper' shall slay him;

17 Let him not see in the channels

The flowings of torrents of honey and milk.

18 <In vain> he toiled, he shall not swallow, <Like wealth to be restored> in which he cannot exult!

19 For he hath oppressed—hath forsaken the poor, <A house> hath he seized, which he cannot rebuild.

20 Surely he hath known no peace in his inmost mind,— <With his dearest thing> shall he not get away:

21 Nothing escaped his devouring greed,— <For this cause> shall his prosperity' not continue:

22 <When his abundance is gone> he shall be in straits, [All the power of distress] shall come upon him.

23 It shall be that <to fill his belly> he will thrust at him the glow of his anger, And rain [it] upon him for his punishment.?

24 He shall flee from the armour of iron,— There shall pierce him, a bow of bronze!

25 He hath drawn it out, and it hath come forth out of his back,—

26 Yea the flashing arrow-head, out of his gall, There shall march on him—[terrors]:

27 [Every misfortune] is laid up for his treasures,— There shall consume, a fire [not blown up];— It shall destroy what remaineth in his tent:

28 The heavens shall reveal' his iniquity, And [the earth] be rising up against him:

29 The increase of his house shall vanish, Melting away* in the day of his anger.

30 [This] is the portion of the lawless man, [from God], And the inheritance decreed him from the Mighty One.*

1 Then responded Job, and said:—

2 Hear ye patiently my words, And let this be your consolation:

3 Suffer me, that I may speak, And <after I have spoken> thou canst mock!

4 Did I <unto man> make my complaint? Wherefore', then, should my spirit not be impatient?

5 Turn round to me, and be astonished, And lay hand on mouth!

514 JOB XXI. 6—34; XXII. 1—8.

6 |When I call to mind> then am I dismayed, And there seizeth my flesh a shuddering:—
7 Wherefore do |lawless men| live, Advance in years, [even wax mighty in power]|?
8 ||Their seed|| is established in their sight |[along with them]|, Yes their offspring, before their eyes;
9 ||Their houses|| are at peace, without dread, Neither is ||the rod of God|| upon them;
10 ||His bull|| covereth,* and causeth not averse-
11 sion, His cow safely calveth, and casteth not her young;
12 They send forth—like a flock—their young ones, And |their children| skip about for joy;
13 They rejoice aloud as with timbrel and lyre, And make merry to the sound of the pipe;*
14 They complete, in prosperity, their days, And <in a moment to hades> they sink down.
15 Yet they said unto God, Depart from us, and <In the knowledge of thy ways> find we no pleasure.
16 What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? Or what shall we profit, that we should urge him?
17 Lo! <not in their own hand> is their welfare, The counsel of lawless men is far from me!
18 ||How oft*| the lamp of the lawless| goeth out, And their calamity |cometh upon them|, <Sorrows> apportioneth he in his anger;
19 They become as straw before the wind, And as chaff, which the storm stealeth away. Shall God ||reserve|| for his children| his sorrow?
20 Let him recompense him' so that he may know it;
21 ||His own eyes'| shall see his misfortune, And <the wrath of the Almighty> shall he drink.
22 For what shall be his pleasure in his house after him, When ||the number of his months|| is cut in twain?
23 Is it <to God> one can teach knowledge, Seeing that ||he|| shall judge |them who are on high|?
24 ||This man dieth, in the very perfection of his prosperity, Wholly' tranquil and secure;
25 ||His veins| are filled with nourishment,* And ||the marrow of his bones| is fresh;
26 Whereas ||this other man|| dieth, in bitterness of soul, And hath never tasted good fortune:
27 ||Together|| in [the dust] they lie down, And ||the worm| spreadeth a covering over them.
28 Lo! I know your plans, And the devices, wherewith ye would do me violence!
29 For ye say, Where is the house of the noble-minded? And where the dwelling'-tent of the law-30 less?
31 Have ye not asked' the powers-by in the way? And <their signs> can ye not recognise?
32 That <to the day of calamity> is the wicked reserved, <To the day of indignant visitation> are they led.
33 Who can declare—to his face—his way? And <what ||he|| hath done> who shall recompense him?
34 Yet ||he|| <to the graves> is borne, And <cover the tomb> one keepeth watch; Pleasant to him are the mounds* of the torrent-bed,— And <after him> doth every man march, As <before him> there were, without' number.
35 How then should ye comfort me with vanity, Since <as for your replies> there lurketh [in them] treachery?

Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and 29 said:—
2 <Unto God> can a man act as friend? Surely a discreet' man befriendedth himself!
3 Is it a pleasure to the Almighty, that thou sin(midst her righteous? Or any profit, that thou shouldst be blameless in thy ways?
4 Is it <for thy reverence> that he will accuse thee? will enter with thee into judgment?
5 Is not thy wickedness* great? And <without end> [are not] thine iniquities?
6 Surely thou hast been wont to put thy brother in pledge [for nothing], And <the garments of the ill-clad> hast thou stripped off:
7 <No water—to the weary> hast thou given to drink, And <from the hungry> thou hast withheld bread:
8 <A man of might> ||to him|| pertaineth the land,

"Impregnate"—O.G. 6 So (kethaph) many Mss., and 3 ear. edns.; but some cod. (w. 8 ear. pr. edns.): (kethaph) [simply] "with timbrel"—O.G. (555g). 7 Written: "eye"; read: "eyes." In some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "eyes" (pl.) is both written and read.—G.n. 8 Or: "reed," "flute." 9 Written: "wear out"; but read: "complete." Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "eyes" (pl.) is both written and read.—G.n. 24 Or: "His sides are full of fat"—T.G. 35 Or: "[No] for"—O.G. 47t. c.
And the favourite dwelleth therein:

9 <Widows> thou hast sent away empty,
And the arms of the fatherless thou dost crush.

10 <For thy cause> 'round about thee are snares,
And a dread startleth thee suddenly;
Or darkness—thou canst not see,
And ||a flood of waters|| covereth thee.

11 <For thin cause> round about thee are snares.
And a dread startleth thee suddenly;
Or <the vault of the heavens> doth he walk?

15 <The path of the ancient time> wilt thou mark,
Which the men of iniquity* trod?
Who were snatched away before the time,
And ||a stream|| washed away their foundation?

17 Who had been saying unto God,
Depart from us! and—
What can the Almighty do for himself?
Yet ||had filled their houses with good!
||The counsel of the lawless|| then, is far from me:

19 The righteous shall see and rejoice,
And <the innocent> shall laugh them to scorn:
If our assailants' do not vanish>
Then <their abundance> a fire' consumeth!

21 Thou shalt make entreaty unto <him>, and he will hear thee,
And thy vows shalt thou pay;

26 And thou shalt decree a purpose, and it shall be fulfilled unto thee,
And <upon thy ways> shall have shone a light;

29 <When men cast themselves down> then shalt thou say Up!
And <him that is of downcast eyes> shall he save;
He shall deliver the innocent,*
And thou shalt escape by the purrence of thy hands.

Then responded Job, and said:—

1 <Even to-day> is my complaint rebellion?* ||His hand|| is heavier than my groaning.

2 Oh that I knew where I might find him!
I would come even unto his dwelling-place;
I would set out, before him, a plea,
And <my mouth> would I fill with arguments;

3 I would note the words wherewith he would respond to me,
And would mark what he would say to me.

6 Would he <with fulness of might> contend with me?
Nay, surely ||he|| would give heed to me!
||There' an upright man|| might reason with him,
So should I deliver myself completely from my judge.
Behold <eastward> I go, but he is not there,
And <westward> but I perceive him not;
On the north, where he worketh but I get no vision,
He hideth himself on the south that I cannot see him.

10 But ||he|| knoweth the way that I choose, O having tried me as gold I shall come forth.

11 <Of his steps> my foot taketh hold,
And <his way> have I kept, and not swerved;
And <in my bosom>' have I treasured the words of his lips.

13 But ||he|| is one, * and who can turn him?
||What his soul desired|| he hath done.

14 Surely he will accomplish what is decreed for me,
And <many such things> hath he in store.

15 ||For this cause|| <from his presence> am I driven in dread:

Flocks they seize and consume; The asso of the fatherless they drive off, They take in pledge the ox of the widow; They turn aside the needy out of the way, And these are the humbled of the land made to hide themselves. Lo! wild asses in the wilderness they go forth with their work, Eager seekers for prey,
The waste plain yieldeth them food for their young; In the field—a man's fodder they cut down, And the vineyard of the lawless they strip of its late berries;

With the sweeping rain of the mountains they are wet, And through having no shelter they embrace a rock. Men tear, from the breast, the fatherless, And over the poor they take a pledge; Naked they go about without clothing, And have no covering in the cold; With the sweeping rain of the mountains they are wet, And through having no shelter they embrace a rock.

And there is no covering to destruction;
7 Who stretcheth out the north over emptiness,*
Hangeth the earth upon nothingness;
8 Who bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds,
And the cloud is not rent beneath them;
9 Who shutteth in the face of the throne,
He spreadeth over it his cloud;
10 A boundary hath he circled on the face of the waters,
As far as where light ends in darkness;
11 The pillars of the heavens are shaken,
And are terrified at his rebuke:
12 <By his strength> hath he excited the sea,
And <by his skill> hath he shatted the Crocodile;
13 <By his spirit> hath he arched the heavens,*
His hand hath pierced the fleeing serpent.*
14 Lo! these are the fringes of his way,*
And what a whisper of a word hath been heard of him!
But <the thunder of his might> who could understand?*

27 And Job again took up his measure, and said:—
1 <As God liveth' who hath taken away my right,
Even the Almighty, who hath embittered my soul;
2 All the while my inspiration is in me,
And the spirit of God is in my nostrils>
4 Verily my lips shall not speak perversity,
Nor shall my tongue utter deceit.
5 Far be it from me that I should justify you,— <Even until I breathe my last> will I not let go mine integrity from me:
8 On my righteousness have I taken fast hold, and will not give it up,
My heart shall not reproach any of my days.
9 Let mine enemy lie a veritably lawless one!
And he that lifteth him up against me I!
one veritably perverse!
11 <That which is with the Almighty> will I not conceal.
12 Lo! <ye> have |all of you| seen,
Wherefore, then, is't <that ye are utterly without purpose>?
13 [This] is the portion of a lawless man with God,
That <the heritage of tyrants—from the Almighty> he shall receive.
14 <If his children be multiplied> [for them]
[there is] the sword,
And [his offspring] shall not be filled with bread;
15 <His survivors> <by pestilence> shall come to the grave,
And [his widows] shall not weep;
16 <Though he heap up silver' like dust,>
And [like a pile] he prepare clothing>
17 He may prepare, but <the righteous> shall put on,
And <the silver> shall the innocent appor- tion.*
18 He hath built, like a moth, his house,—
Like a hut, which a watcher' hath made.
19 <If his children be multiplied>,; for them shall
[there is] the sword,
12 <Out of his hand> shall he* <swiftly flee;
He shall clap over him his hands,
And shall hiss him forth out of his place.
23 <Though there is>' <for silver> a vein,
And a place for the gold they refine;
25 And [stone] poureth out copper;
28 <An end> hath one set to the darkness,
And <into every extremity> is || he|| making search,

2 Unto the end of (= boundary between) <light and darkness> — O.-G.
3 So O.-G. "Comprehend" > — Davia.
4 Or: "breath."
6 Cp. Dan. vii. 15. But <it> that, by regrouping the letters, it shall be: "When he lifteath up God to his soul"; or, "When God demandeth his soul (life)."—G.-n.
7 Or: "Though he call on God continually."
Ravenous beasts have not made a track thereof,
Neither hath the lion marched thereon:
He hath turned up mountains by the roots;
And <every precious thing> hath his eye seen:
Yet where can <Wisdom> be found?
And where is the place of understanding?
Mortal knoweth not the way thereof.

And <pure gold> cannot be given in its stead,
Neither can silver be weighed as the value thereof;
It cannot be put into the scales against the gold of Ophir,
With costly onyx, or sapphire;
Neither gold nor crystal can compare with it,
Nor can the exchange thereof be a vessel of pure gold,
Yea  is wisdom, above red coral;
The topaz of Ethiopia cannot compare with it,
Whence then cometh <Wisdom>?
And where is the place of understanding?

And said to the son of earth,
Lo! <the reverence of the Lord> is wisdom,
And <to avoid evil> is understanding.

And <Round about me> were my young men;
When my steps were bathed in milk,
And <the rock> poured out beside me, riuvels of oil:
When <I went out to the gate unto the city,>
In the open place, made ready beside me, riuvels of oil:
Young men saw me, and hid themselves,
And <the aged> arose—they stood;
<Rule> restrained speech,
And  laid they on their mouth;
<Rule> the voice of nobles; was hushed,
And <the tongue> did cleave;
When <I heard>, then it pronounced me happy,
When <I saw> then it bare rot witness;
Because I used to deliver the oppressed who was crying out for aid,
The fatherless also, and him that had no helper;
<Righteousness> I put on, and it clothed me.
Like a robe and turban was my justice,
<Like a stem> shall I grow old.'

Then said I,

<Like a stem> shall I grow old.'

Yea <as the sand> shall I multiply day:
My root is laid open to the waters,
became incarnate in me.
And the dew shall lodge for the night in my boughs;
And my bowels be renewed.

To me men hearkened, and waited, and kept silence for my counsel;
And they waited as for rain; and their mouths opened wide for the spring-rain;
I laughed at them—they lost confidence, and the light of my countenance they suffered not to fail;
I chose out their way, and sat chief,—And abode, as king, in an army, as one who, to mourners, giveth comfort.

But now they who are of fewer days than I, have poured derision upon me; Whose fathers I refused— To set with the dogs of my flock.

Even the strength of their hands wherefore was it mine? Upon them vigour was lost;* In want and hunger they were lean,—Who used to gnaw the dry ground,* A dark night of desolation! Who used to pluck off the mallow* by the bushes, With the root of the broom for their food;
Out of the midst were they driven, Men shouted after them, as after a thief;
In the fissures of the ravines* had they to dwell, In holes of dust and crag;
Among the bushes used they to shriek,† Under the bramble were they huddled together:
Sons of the base, ye sons of the nameless—They were scourged out of the land.
But now their song* have I become, Yea I serve them for a byword; They abhor me—have put themselves far from me, And from my face have not witheld—spittle!
Because my girdle† he had loosened and had humbled me Therefore the bridle— in my presence— cast they off;
On my right hand the young brood rose up,—<My feet they thrust aside, And cast up against me their earthworks of destruction;
They brake up my path,—

Only against a heap of ruins will one not thrust a hand! Surely when one is in calamity—for that very reason is there an outcry for help.
Verily I wept, for him whose lot was hard, Grieved was my soul, for the needy.
Surely for good I looked, but there came in evil, And I waited for light, but there came in darkness;
I boiled within me,* and rested not, There confronted me— days of affliction; In gloom I walked along, without sun, I arose— in the convocation I cried out for help;
A brother became to me the brutes that howl, And a companion* to the birds that screech:
My skin turned black, and peeled off me, And my bones burned with heat:
Thus is attuned to mourning— my lyre, And my flute, to the noise of them who weep.

31 "A covenant did I solemnise for mine eyes,—
How then could I gaze upon a virgin;
Or what would have been my portion of God from above?
Or what inheritance of the Almighty from on high?
Is there not calamity, for the perverse?
And misfortune, for the workers of iniquity?
Would not my voice rise above?
Or what inheritance of the Almighty from on high?

3 Is there not calamity, for the perverse?
And misfortune, for the workers of iniquity?
Would he see my ways?
And of all my steps take account?

4 Verily I walked not in falsity,
Nor did my foot haste unto deceit:
Let him weigh me in balances of righteousness,
And let God take note of mine integrity!
If my goings have swerved from the way,
And after my eyes hath gone my heart,
And to my hands hath adhered any stain.

7 If my heart hath been enticed unto a woman,
Or by the door of my neighbour I have lain in wait,
Let my wife grind to another,
And over her let others bend!
Surely that hath been a shameful thing!
And that an iniquity for the judges!
Surely a fire had that been, which unto destruction would have consumed,
And of all mine increase had it torn up the root.

10 If I refused the right of my servant, or my handmaid,
When they contended with me,
What then could I have done when God rose up?
And when he visited, what could I have answered him?
Did not he who, in the womb, made me make him?
And is not he who formed us in the body one?
If I withheld— from pleasure— the poor,
Or the eyes of the widow I dimmed;
Or used to eat my morsel alone, so that the fatherless did not eat thereof;
Surely from my youth he grew up to me, as to a father,
And from my birth I acted as guide to her:

19 If I saw one perishing for lack of clothing,
Or that the needy had no covering;
If his loins did not bless me,
Or if with the fleece of my lambs he did not warm himself;
If I shook against the fatherless— my hand,
When I saw, in the gate, his need of my help,
Let my shoulder from the shoulder-blade fall,
And my arm from the upper bone be broken;
For a dread unto me was calamity from God,
And from his majesty I could not escape.
If I made gold my stay,
And to precious metal said, My confidence!
If I rejoiced because great was my substance,
And an abundance my hand had discovered:
If I looked at the sun, when it flashed forth light,
Or at the moon, majestically marching along;
And befooled secretly was my heart,
So that my hand kissed my mouth:
That too had been a judicial iniquity.
For I should have been false to God above.
If I rejoiced in the misfortune of him that hated me,
Or exulted when calamity found him:
Neither did I suffer my palate to sin.
By asking, with a curse, for his life:
If the men of my household had not said,
Oh for some of his flesh— we cannot get filled,
Outside the sojourner lodged not for the night,
My doors— to the weary— I threw open.
If I covered, like Adam, my transgressions,
By hiding in my bosom mine iniquity:
Then let me be made to tremble at a great throng,
Yea let the contempt of families terrify me,
So that, keeping silence, I shall not go out of the door!
Oh that I had one to hear me.
Lo! my crossmark.
May the Almighty answer me!
And would that a book mine opponent had written!

without payment,
And <the soul of the holders thereof> I made groan>;
<Instead of wheat> let there come forth bramble,
And <instead of barley> a bad-smelling weed!

Lo! I waited for your words,
I kept giving ear for your reasons,
Until ye should search out what to say;
Yea <unto you> gave I diligent heed,—
But lo! there was, for Job, nothing to convince,
Nor could one of you answer his speeches.
<Lo ye should say> We have found out wisdom >.
(God) must put him to flight, not man.
Since he directed not to me discourse>
Therefore <with your speechess> will I not reply to him.
They were dismayed, they responded no more,
They suffered speech to forsake them;
<Though I waited> yet could they not speak,
Surely they came to a stand, they responded no more.

32 So these three men ceased to respond to Job, because [he] was righteous in their eyes.
Then was kindled the anger of Elihu, son of Barachel the Buzite of the family of Ram,— <against Job> was kindled his anger, because he justified his own soul rather than God;
and <against his three friends> was kindled his anger,—because that they found not a response, and condemned God.
But <Elihu> had waited for Job with words, because the others were older than he.
Howbeit <when Elihu saw that there was no response in the mouth of the three men> then was kindled his anger.
So then Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, responded and said:—

[Young] am I; whereas [ye] are aged,
<For this cause> I faltered, and feared—
To show my knowledge unto you:

I said,
[Days] should speak,—
And [the multitude of years] should make known wisdom.
Yet surely there is a spirit in men,
And [the inspiration of the Almighty] giveth them understanding;
[Great men] may not be wise,
Nor [elders] understand justice.

Therefore [I said],
Hearken unto me,
I will show my knowledge— [even I].

Elihu, a Young Man, perceiving the Failure of Job's Three Friends to answer the Afflicted One, thinks to succeed where they have failed, and makes a Series of Eloquent Speeches.

1 So these three men ceased to respond to Job, because [he] was righteous in their eyes.
Then was kindled the anger of Elihu, son of Barachel the Buzite of the family of Ram,— <against Job> was kindled his anger, because he justified his own soul rather than God;
and <against his three friends> was kindled his anger,—because that they found not a response, and condemned God.
But <Elihu> had waited for Job with words, because the others were older than he.
Howbeit <when Elihu saw that there was no response in the mouth of the three men> then was kindled his anger.
So then Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, responded and said:—

Young am I; whereas ye are aged,
<For this cause> I faltered, and feared—
To show my knowledge unto you:

I said,
[Days] should speak,—
And [the multitude of years] should make known wisdom.
Yet surely there is a spirit in men,
And [the inspiration of the Almighty] giveth them understanding;
[Great men] may not be wise,

[Days] should speak,—
And [the multitude of years] should make known wisdom.
Yet surely there is a spirit in men,
And [the inspiration of the Almighty] giveth them understanding;
[Great men] may not be wise,
Nor [elders] understand justice.

Therefore [I said],
Hearken unto me,
I will show my knowledge— [even I].

11 Lo! I waited for your words,
I kept giving ear for your reasons,
Until ye should search out what to say;
Yea <unto you> gave I diligent heed,—
But lo! there was, for Job, nothing to convince,
Nor could one of you answer his speeches.
<Lo ye should say> We have found out wisdom >.
(God) must put him to flight, not man.
Since he directed not to me discourse>
Therefore <with your speeches> will I not reply to him.
They were dismayed, they responded no more,
They suffered speech to forsake them;
<Though I waited> yet could they not speak,
Surely they came to a stand, they responded no more.

17 I will respond [even I]—on my part,
I will show my knowledge, [even I]!
For I am full of discourse,
The spirit in my bosom presseth me on,
Lo! [my bosom] is like wine not opened,
Like new wine-skins it will burst.

33 But <in very deed> hear, I pray thee, Job,
my discourse,
And <to all my words> give thou ear.

4 Lo! I pray thee, I have opened my mouth,
My tongue, with my palate, hath spoken,
Mine utterances come straight from mine own heart,
And <what I know> my lips have truly spoken;

8 [The spirit of God] hath made me,
And [the inspiration of the Almighty] giveth me life.

5 [If thou art able to answer me]
Set in order before me—take thy stand!
Lo! I am like thyself toward God,
<From clay> have I been nipped off [even I],
Lo! [my terror] will not startle thee,
Nor [my hand] upon thee be heavy.

9 But thou hast spoken in mine ear,
And <the sound of words> I heard:

5 [If thou art able to answer me]
Set in order before me—take thy stand!
Lo! I am like thyself toward God,
<From clay> have I been nipped off [even I],
Lo! [my terror] will not startle thee,
Nor [my hand] upon thee be heavy.

9 But thou hast spoken in mine ear,
And <the sound of words> I heard:

10 Pure am I, without transgression,—
Clean am I, and have no iniquity;
Lo! <occasions of hostility> would he find against me,
He counteth me an enemy to him;
He putteth—in the stocks—my feet,
He watcheth all my paths.

Lo! <in this> thou hast not been right—let me answer thee,
For [God] is greater than <man>.

Wherefore <against him> hast thou contended?
For <with none of his reasons> will he respond.

For <in one way> God may speak,—
And <in a second way> one may not heed it—
In a dream, a vision of the night.
When a deep sleep falleth upon men,
In slumberings upon the bed>
[Then] uncovereth he the ear of men,
And <on their correction> afflieth a seal;
To turn a son of earth from his< deed,
His flesh wasteth away out of sight,
And bared are the bones once unseen;
Sodoth his soul'draw near to thepit,
And hit life'to the inltictersof death:
If there hath been near him a messenger who could interpret—
One of a thousand,
To declare to the son of earth His uprightness—
Then hath he showed him favour, and said,
Set him free from going down to the pit,
I have found a price of redemption!
Hi.- flesh hath been made fresher than a child's,
He hath returned to the days of his youth;
He made supplication unto (Roll who hath accepted him.
And he hath beheld his face with a shout of triumph,
Thus hath he given back to man his righteousness.
He sang before men, and said,
I sinned, and <uprightness> I perverted.
Yet he required me not;
He hath ransomed my< soul from passing away into the pit,>
And <my life> <in the light> shall have vision.

Lo! <all these things> doth God work,
Two ways, three, with a man;
To bring back his soul from the pit,
To enlighten with the light of the living.

Mark well, O Job, and hearken to me,
Be silent, and <if I> will speak:
If there is anything to say> reply to me,
Speak, for I desire to justify thee;
If not do <thou> hearken unto me,
Be silent, that I may teach thee wisdom.

Furthermore Elihu responded, and said:—
Hear, ye wise men, my words,
And [eye who know] give ear unto me;
For <if the ear> trieth words,
As <the palate> tasteth in eating.
What is right> let us choose for ourselves,
Let us know, among ourselves, what is good;
For Job hath said—
I am righteous,
But <God> hath turned away my right;
Concerning mine own right> shall I tell a falsehood?
Incurable is my disease—not for any transgression.

What man is like Job?
He drinketh in scoffing like water;
And is on the way to keep company with the workers of iniquity,
And to walk with lawless men.
For he hath said,
It profiteth not a man,
When [his good pleasure] is with God.
Wherefore, ye men of mind, hearken unto me,—
Far be it, that [God] should be lawless,
Or [the Almighty] be perverse!
For <what any son of earth doeth> lie repayeth him,
And <according to every man's course> be causeth him to find.
Nay, verily [God] will not condemn unjustly,—
Nor [the Almighty] pervert justice.
Who set him in charge of the earth?''
Or who appointed [him] the whole world?
If he should set against him his heart,
<His spirit and his inspiration> |unto him self| he should withdraw >
All flesh together |would cease to breathe,
And |the earth-bornunto dust I would return.11
If then [thou hast] understanding hear this,
Give thou ear to the teaching of my words:—
Shall |the very hater of right!| control?
Or <the just—the mighty one> wilt thou condemn?

Job xxxiv. 18—37; xxxv. 1—16; xxxvi. 1—4.

18 Doth one say to a king, Abandoned one!*
   Or Lawless one! unto nobles?
   Neither hath he recognised the rich rather than the poor!
   For <the work of his hands> are they all.
   <In a moment> they die, even in the middle of the night,—
   A mighty one is removed without hand; ||
   For ||his eyes are on the ways of a man,
   And <all his footsteps> he beholdeth,—
   No' darkness, and no' death-shade.
   Where the workers of iniquity may hide.
   For <unto no man> doth he appoint a repetition,—
   In going unto God, in judgment;
   He shattereth mighty ones unsearchably,
   And setteth up others in their stead:
   Therefore he observeth their works,
   And overturneth [them] in a night, and they are crushed;
   In the place of lawless men hath he chastised them.
   In presence of beholders,
   Forasmuch as they turned from following him.
   And <none of his ways> did they teach;
   Causing to reach him the outcry of the poor,
   Yea <the outcry of the oppressed> he heareth.
   <When hell giveth quiet> who then shall condemn?
   <If thou art righteous> what canst thou give unto him.
   Or what <at thy hand> can he accept?
   <Unto a man like thyself> might thy lawlessness [reach],
   And <unto a son of the earth-born> thy righteousness.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> [men] make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> men make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> [men] make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> [men] make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> [men] make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.

Moreover Elihu responded, and said:—

2 <This> dost thou think to be right?
   Thou hast said—
   My righteousness is more than God's.
   For thou dost say,
   How can one profit by thee?
   How can I benefit, more than by my sin?
   I will answer thee plainly,*
   And thy friendsb with thee.
   Look at the heavens and see,—
   And survey the skies—they are higher than thou.
   <If thou simnest> what canst thou work against him?
   Or <if thy transgressions be multiplied> what canst thou do unto him?
   <If thou art righteous> what canst thou give unto him?
   Or what <at thy hand> can he accept?
   <Unto a man like thyself> might thy lawlessness [reach],
   And <unto a son of the earth-born> thy righteousness.
   <By reason of the multitude of oppressions> [men] make outcry,
   They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; c
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker, Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth.
   But now <because it is not so> thou sayest thou wilt not regard him!
   His anger hath punished,
   And yet hath he not at all known of transgression;
   Thus [Job] vainly openeth his mouth,
   <Without knowledge> he multiplieth words.

1 And Elihu added and said:—

2 Restrain thyself for me a little, and I will shew thee,
   That <yet—for God> there is justification.*
   I will bring my knowledge from afar,
   And <to my Maker> will I attribute righteousness.
   For <of a truth—not false> are my words,
   One of competent knowledge; is with thee.
   The cause is before him, and thou must wait for him.
   Thus [Job] vainly openeth his mouth,
   <Without knowledge> he multiplieth words.
Lo! [God] is mighty, yet will he not despise,
Mighty in vigour of mind;*
He will not keep alive one who is lawless,
But <the right of oppressed ones> will he grant;
He will not withdraw—from a righteous one his eyes,—
But <with kings on the throne>
He hath seated men triumphantly, and and they have been exalted.
But <if, bound in fetters,>
They have been captured with cords of affliction >
Then hath he declared to them their deed,
And their transgressions—that they were worthy to behave themselves proudly;
Thus hath he uncovered their ear to a warning,
And said—that they should turn from iniquity.
If they would hearken, and serve>
They should complete their days, in prosperity,
And their years, in pleasantness;
But <if they would not hearken>
By a weapon should they pass away,
And breathe their last, no one knowing;
Yea ||the impious in heart|| should store up anger;
They should not cry for help, when he bound them.
Their soul should die in youth,
And their life, among the unclean.
He would deliver the humbled in his humiliation,
And would uncover—in oppression—their ear.
Yea he might even have allured thee—
Out of the mouth of straitness,
[Into a wide space—no narrowness there,—
And the food set down on thy table] should have been full of fatness.
But <with the plea of a lawless one> thou art full,
Plea and sentence will take fast hold.
Because there is wrath
[Beware] lest he take thee away with a stroke,
Then let not [a great ransom] mislead thee.
Will he value thy riches?
Nay not precious ore,
Nor all the forces of strength.
Do not pant for the night,
When peoples disappear from their place.
Beware, do not turn unto iniquity,
For <this> thou hast chosen rather than affliction.
Lo [God] exalteth himself by his strength,
Who' like him' doth teach?
Who' enjoined on him' his way?
And who' ever said,
Thou hast wrought perversity?

Remember, that thou extol his work,
Of which men have sung;
Every son of earth] hath viewed it,
Mortal man! looketh at it afar.
Lo [God] is greater than we can know,
The number of his years] even past finding out!
For he draweth up drops of water,
They trickle as rain through his mist;
With which the clouds flow down,
They drop on man in abundance.
But surely none can understand the burstings* of the cloud,
The crashing of his pavilion!
Lo! he hath spread out over it, his lightning,
The bed of the sea] hath he covered.
For <by those things> he executeth judgment on peoples,
He giveth food in abundance:
Upon both hands> he putteth a covering of lighting,
And layeth command upon it against an assailant:
His rolling thunder telleth concerning him,—
The cattle, even, concerning him that is coming up.
Yea <at this> my heart quaketh,
And starteth up out of its place.
Hear! oh hear! the raging of his voice,
[A growling sound also] <out of his mouth> goeth forth;
Under the whole heavens he letteth it loose,
[His lightning also] unto the wings* of the earth;
After it roareth a voice,
He thundereth with his voice of majesty,
Nor will he hold them back, when his voice is heard.
God thundereth with his voice, wonderfully,
Doing great things, which we cannot know;
For <to the snow> he saith, Fall earthwards,—
Also to the downpour of rain, yea the downpour of his mighty rains.
On the hand of every man> he setteth a seal,
That all men may take note of his doing.
So then the wild-beast hath gone into covert,
And <in its lairs> doth it remain.
Out of a chamber cometh a storm-wind,
And <out of the north>* cold.
By the breath of God] is given—frost,
And <the breadth of waters> is congealed;*
With moisture burdeneth he the thick cloud,
He disperseth his lightning'cloud;

JOB XXXVII. 12—24; XXXVIII. 1—26.

12 Yea [the same] <in circles> turneth itself to and fro, by his steering them to their work, Whithersoever he commandeth them, over the face of the world, towards the earth.*

13 Whether <as a rod, or for his earth,
Or in lovingkindness> he causeth it to come.

14 Give thou ear unto this, O Job,
Stay, and consider well the wonders of
God —

15 Canst thou get to know of God’s giving charge over them,
Or of the causing of the lightning of his cloud to shine forth?

16 Canst thou get to know concerningb the poisingsc of the thick cloud,
The wonders of one who is perfect in knowledge?

17 That thy garments should be hot when he quieteth the earth from the south?

18 Didst thou spread out, with him, the skies,
Strong as a molten mirror?

19 Let usa know what we shall say to him,
We cannot set in order, by reason of darkness.

20 Shall it be declared to him — that I would speak?

21 Yet men see not the light.
Bright’though it is’in the skies,
When a wind hath passed over, and cleansed them.

22 Out of the north a golden light’ cometh,
Upon the isle is fearful splendour:
The Almighty, whom we have not fully found out, isgreat in vigour,— Neither <justice nor abounding righteousness> will he weaken.'

23 Therefore do men revere him,
He will not regard any who are wise in heart.\n
A Divine Voice Interposes.

38 Then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:—

2 Who’ is’ itthat darkeneth counsel.
By words, without knowledge?

3 Who, I pray thee — like a strong man — thy loins,
That I may ask thee, and inform thou me:

4 Where wast thou, when I founded the earth?
Tell, if thou knowest understanding!

5 Who set the measurements thereof, if thou knowest?\n
---G.n.

6 Whereon' were the pedestals thereof sunk?
Or who laid the corner stone thereof?

7 When the morning stars sang together,
And all the sons of God shouted for joy?

8 When [who] shut in, with double doors, the sea,
When, bursting out of the womb, it came forth;
When I put a cloud as the garment thereof,
And a thick cloud as the swaddling-band thereof;

9 And brake off for it my boundary,
And fixed a bar and double doors;

10 And said —

<If hitherto> shalt thou come, and no further,—
And <here> shalt thou set a limit to the majesty of thy waves? .

11 Since thy days [began] hast thou commanded the morning;
Or caused the dawn to know its place;
That it might lay hold of the wingsd of the earth,
And the lawless be shaken out of it?

12 It transformeth itself like the clay of a seal,
So that things stand forth, like one arrayed;
That their light may be withdrawn from the lawless,
And the lofty arm || be shivered.

13 Hast thou entered as far as the springs of the sea?
Or <through the secret recesses of the resounding deep> hast thou wandered?

14 Have the gates of death been disclosed to thee?
And <the gates of the death-shade> couldst thou desery?

15 Hast thou well considered, even the breadths of the earth?
Tell — if thou knowest it all!

16 Where then is the way, the light shall abide?''
And <the darkness > where then is its place?

17 Tell, if thou knowest understanding!
And that thou mayest perceive the paths to its house.

18 Thou knowest, for then hadst thou been born!
And <in number> thy days are many!

19 Hast thou entered into the treasuries of the snow?
And <the treasuries of the hail> couldst thou see?

20 Which I have reserved for a time of distress.
For the day of conflict and of war?

21 Where then is the way the lightning is parted?
The east wind spreadeth itself abroad over the earth.

22 Who’ hath cloven— for the torrent— a channel?
Or a way for the lightning of thunders;
To give rain over the no-man’s land.

The desert, where no son of earth is;
To satisfy the wild and the wilderness,
To cause to spring forth the meadow of young grass?

Hath the rain a father?
Or who hath begotten the drops of dew?

<Out of whose womb> came forth the ice?
And <the hoar-frost of the heavens> who hath given it birth?

<Like a stone> are the waters congealed,
And [the face of the roaring deep] becometh firm!

Canst thou bind the fetters of the Pleiades?
Or <the bands of Orion> canst thou unloose?
Canst thou bring forth the signs of the Zodiac each in its season?
Or <the Bear> and her Young canst thou lead?

Knowest thou, the statutes of the heavens?
Or didst thou appoint his dominion over the earth?
Canst thou lift up, to the thick cloud, thy voice,
And the overflowing of waters cover thee?
Canst thou send forth the lightnings,
So that they go, and say to thee, Behold us?

Who hath put—into cloud-forms—wisdom?
Or who hath given—to the meteor—understanding?

Who can count the thin clouds, in wisdom?
And <the bottles of the heavens> who can empty out;
When the dust is cast into a clod,
And the lumps are bound together?

Wilt thou hunt—for the Lioness—prey?
Or <the craving> of the Strong Lion wilt thou satisfy;
When they settle down in dens, abide in covert, for lying in wait?

Wilt thou prepare for the Raven his nourishment?
When his young ones—unto God—cry out,
[When] they wander for lack of food?

Knowest thou the season when the Wild Goats of the crags beget?
<The bringing forth of the hinds> canst thou observe?

Canst thou count the months they fulfil?
Or knowest thou the time when they give birth?
They kneel down, <their young> they bring forth,
<Against him> whiz [the arrows of] the quiver,
The flashing head of spear and javelin;
With stamping and rage he drinketh up
the ground,—
He will not stand still when the horn soundeth;
As oft as the horn soundeth he saith,
Aha!
And from afar he scenteth the battle,—
The thunder of commanders and the war-cry.
Is it by thine understanding that the Bird of Passage betaketh him to his pinions?
Spreadeth out his wings to the south?
Or at thy bidding that the Eagle mounteth,
And that he setteth on high his nest?
The crag he inhabiteth, and so lodgeth himself.
On the tooth of the crag, and high fort;
From thence he searcheth out food,
Far away his eyes do pierce:
And his young brood suck up blood,
And where the slain are there is he!

The Divine Voice again speaks.

And Yahweh responded to Job, and said:

Shall a reprover contend with the Almighty?
He that disputeth with thee let him answer it!

Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:
Lo! I am of no account, what shall I reply to thee?
My hand have I laid on my mouth: Once have I spoken, but I will not proceed,* Yea twice, but I will not add.

The Divine Voice resumes.

So then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:

Gird, I pray thee, as a strongman—thy loins,
I will ask thee, and inform thou me.
Wilt thou even frustrate my justice?
Wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest appear right?
But if an arm like God thou hast,
And with a voice like his thou canst thunder,
Deuk thyself, I pray thee, with majesty and grandeur,
[Job XXXIX. 23—30; XL. 1—24; XLI. 1—7. 52*]

Yea with dignity and splendour thou shalt clothe thyself;
Pour out thy transports of anger,
And look on every one who is high, and lay him low;
Look on every one who is high, and humble him,
Yea tread down the lawless, on the spot;
Hide them in the dust all together,
Their faces: bind thou in darkness;
And even I myself will praise thee,
In that thine own right hand can bring thee salvation.

Behold, I pray thee, the Hippopotamus, which I made with thee,
Grease—like the ox he eateth;
Behold, I pray thee, his strength in his loins, And his force, in the muscles of his belly;
He bendeth down his tail like a cedar,
The sinews of his thighs are twisted together;
His bones are barrels of bronze,
His frame is like hammered bars of iron:
He is the beginning of the ways of God,
Let his maker present him his sword:
Surely the mountains bring produce to him,
Where all the wild beasts of the field do play;
Under the lotus-trees he lieth down,
In a covert of reed and swamp;
The lotus-trees cover him with their shade.
The willows of the torrent-bed compass him about;
Lo! the river becometh insolent—he is not alarmed!
He is confident, though a Jordan burst forth to his mouth:
Before his eyes shall he be caught?
With a hook can one pierce his nose?

Canst thou draw out the Crocodile with a fish-hook?
Or with a cord canst thou fasten down his tongue?
Wilt thou put a rush-cord on his nose?
Or with a thorn wilt thou pierce his jaw?
Will he multiply unto thee supplications,
Or will he speak unto thee softly?
Will he solemnise a covenant with thee?
Wilt thou take him for a life-long servant?
Wilt thou sport with him, as with a little bird?
Or wilt thou bind him, for thy maidens?
Shall the companions bargain over him?
Or will they part him among the traders?
Wilt thou fill, with darts his skin?
Or, with fish-spears, his head?

Lay thou upon him thy hand,
Remember the battle—no more!
Lo! [any hope of him] hath been found deceptive,
<Even at the sight of him> shall not one be overwhelmed?
None so bold] that he will rouse him!
Who' then is he' that <before me> can stand?*
Who' hath forestalled me, that I may repay him!
Under all the heavens> mine' it is!
I will not pass by in silence his parts,
Or the matter of strength, or the grace of his armour.b
Who' hath removed his outer garment,
<Through his double row of teeth> who' would enter?
The doors of his face > who' hath opened?
The circles of his teeth] are a terror!
||A pride]] are his arched sides,
Closed up, with a firm seal;
<One to another> they join,
And [air]] cannot enter between them;
Each to its fellow > they cleave,
They grasp each other, and cannot be parted;
His sneezings]] flash forth light,
And [air]] eyes]] are like the eyelashes of the dawn;
||Out of his mouth > torches dart forth,
||Sparks of fire]] escape;
||Out of his nostrils > proceedeth smoke,
Like a blown pot and rushes;
His breath]] setteth coals ablaze,
And [a flame]] out of his mouth] proceedeth;
<In his neck > lodgeth strength,
And <before him> danceth dismay;
The dewlaps of his flesh]] cleave together,
<Hardened upon him> they cannot be moved;
His heart]] is hardened like a stone,
Yes hardened, [like the nether millstone];
<At his rising up> mighty men are afraid,
<By reason of terror> they are beside themselves:
As for him that assaileth him > the sword availeth not,*
Spear, dart, or coat of mail :
He counteth iron' as broken straw,
And bronze' as rotten' wood';
The arrow > [will not make him flce],
<Into chaff> are sting-stones' changed by him:
<As a straw > is a club' accounted,
And he laugheth at the whir of the javelin;
<His underparts]] are points of potsherd,
A pointed threshing roller spreadeth out upon the slime:
He causeth to boil, as a cauldron, the raging deep,
<The sea > he maketh like a brewing vessel:*
<After him > he lighteth up a path,
One might think the resounding deep to be hoary!
There is not—upon the dust—his like,
That hath been made to be without fear;
<Every thing lofty > he beholdeth,
||He]] is king over all ravenous beasts.c

Job again humbles himself.

Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:— 49
I know* that <all things> thou canst do,
And that no purpose can be withheld from thee.
Who' is' it that hideth* counsel without knowledge?
Therefore have I declared, but not understood,
Things too wonderful for me, which I could not know.
Hear thou, I pray thee, and ] I ]] will speak,
I will ask thee, and inform thou me.
<By the hearing of the ear > had I heard thee,
But [[now]] mine own eye] hath seen thee.
<For this cause > I tremble* and repent,
On dust and ashes.

A Divine Adjustment between Job and his Three Friends.

And it came to pass <after Yahweh had spoken these words unto Job> that Yahweh said unto Eliphaz the Temanite,
Kindled is mine anger against thee and against thy two friends, for ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.
Now therefore, take unto you seven bullocks and seven rams, and go unto my servant Job, and ye shall offer up an ascending-sacrifice in your own behalf, and ] Job my servant]] shall pray over you,—for <him> will I accept,* that I may not deal out to you disgrace, because ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.
So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite [and]b Zophar the Naamathite went, and did' according to that which Yahweh hath commanded.

Job restored to Prosperity.

10 And Yahweh himself turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed in behalf of his friends, and Yahweh increased all that Job had possessed, unto twice as much.

11 Then came unto him all his brethren and all his sisters, and all his foremen acquaintances, and they did eat bread with him in his house, and shewed sympathy with him and comforted him, over all the calamity which Yahweh had brought upon him, and they gave him, every one a weight of money, and every one, a ring of gold.

12 And Yahweh blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning, and so he came to have fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses. And he came to have seven sons, and three daughters;

13 And he called the name of the first Jemima, and the name of the second Kezia, and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

14 And there were found no women so fair as the daughters of Job, in all the land, and their father gave them an inheritance, in the midst of their brethren. And Job lived, after this, a hundred and forty years; and saw his sons and his sons' sons, four generations.

17 So Job died, old and satisfied with days.

The Psalms.

BOOK THE FIRST.

PSALM 1.

1 How happy the man* Who hath not walked in the counsel of the lawless,— And <in the way of sinners> hath not stood, And <in the seat of scoffers> hath not sat; 2 But <in the law of Yahweh> is his delight,— And <in his law> doth he talk with himself day and night.*

3 So doth he become like a tree planted by streams of waters,— That yieldeth its fruit in its season, Whose leaf also doth not wither, And whatsoever he doeth prospereth.

4 Not so the lawless,— But as chaff which is driven about by the wind:

5 <For this cause> shall the lawless not stand in the judgment,— Nor sinners' in the assembly of the righteous.

6 For Yahweh doth acknowledge the way of the righteous; But (the way of the lawless) shall vanish.

PSALM 2.

1 Wherefore have nations assembled in tumult? Or should <peoples> mutter an empty thing?

2 The kings of earth take their station, And <grave men> have met by appointment together,— Against Yahweh And against his Anointed One [saying]:

3 Let us break asunder their bonds,— And cast from us their cords:

4 He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh,— My Lord will mock at them:

5 Then will he speak unto them in his anger, And <in his wrath> confound them:

6 Yet I have installed my king,— On Zion my holy mountain.

7 Let me tell of a decree,— Yahweh hath said unto me, <My son thou art';

8 Ask of me, and let me give Nations' as thine inheritance, And <as thy possession> the ends of the earth:

9 Thou shalt shepherd them* with a sceptre of iron,— As a potter's vessel shalt thou dash them in pieces.
PSALMS II. 10—12; III.; IV.; V. 1—11.

10 || Now therefore, ye kings, shew your prudence,
   Be admonished, ye judges of earth:
11 Serve Yahweh with reverence,
   And exult with trembling:
12 Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish by the way,
   For soon might be kindled his anger,—
   How happy are all who seek refuge in him!

PSALM 3.

A Melody of David, when he fled from before Absalom his son.  ¹
1 Yahweh! how have mine adversaries multiplied,
   Multitudes are rising against me;
   Multitudes are saying of my soul,—
   No' salvation for him in God.  [Selah. ²
3 But thou, Yahweh art a shield about me,
   My glory, and the lifter up of my head.  [Selah.
4 With my voice—unto Yahweh do I cry,
   And he hath answered me out of his holy' mountain. [Selah.
5 || laid me down and slept,— I awoke,
   Surely [Yahweh] sustaineth me!
6 I will not be afraid of myriads of people,
   Who round about have set themselves against me.
7 Rise! Yahweh, Save' me, my God.
   Surely thou hast smitten all my foes on the cheekbone,
   The teeth of the lawless hast thou broken.
8 To Yahweh belongeth Salvation!
   Upon the people be thy blessing.  [Selah.

PSALM 4.

To the Chief Musician: with stringed instruments.  A Melody of David.
1 When I cry> answer me, O mine own righteous' God,f
   In a strait place> thou hast made room for me,
   Shew me favour, and hear my prayer.
2 Ye sons of the great! how long, turning my glory to contempt,
   Will ye love emptiness, will ye seek falsehood?  [Selah.
3 Know ye, then, that Yahweh hath set apartx
   the man of lovingkindness for himself:
   || Yahweh! will hear, when I cry to him.
4 Be deeply moved, but do not sin,— Ponder in your own heart upon your bed, and be silent.  [Selah.
5 Sacrifice the sacrifices of righteousness;
   And put your trust in Yahweh.
6 || Multitudes are saying,
   Who will shew us prosperity?
   Lift thou upon us the light of thy countenance,
   O Yahweh.
7 Thou hast put gladness in my heart,— Beyond the season when [their corn and their new wine] have increased.
   In peace> will I lay me down and at once
   sleep;
   For thou, Yahweh alone, wilt cause me <in security> to dwell.

PSALM 5.

To the Chief Musician. For the Flutes.*
   A Melody of David.
1 To my words> give ear, O Yahweh,
   Understand thou my softly murmured prayer:
2 Attend to the voice of my cry, my King and my God,
   For unto thee> do I pray.
3 O Yahweh! in the morning> shalt thou hear my voice,
   In the morning> will I set in order unto thee,
   and keep watch;
4 For not a God finding pleasure in awleness—art thou',
   And wrong' can be no guest of thine:
5 Boasters shall not station' themselves [before thine eyes],—
   Thouatest all workers of iniquity:
6 Thou wilt destroy' them who speak falsehood,—
   The man of bloodshed and of deceit> Yahweh abhorreth.
7 But || in the abounding of thy lovingkind-
   ness> will enter thy house,
   I will bow down towards thy holy temple, in reverence of thee.
8 O Yahweh! lead me in thy righteousness,
   because of mine adversaries,
   Make even, before me, thy way:
9 For in his mouth is nothing worthy of trust, ²
   Their inward purpose is engulphing ruim,—
   An opened sepulchre> is their throat,
   With their tongue> speak they smooth things.
10 Declare them guilty, O God,
   Let them fall by their own counsels,—
   Into the throng of their own transgressions> thrust them down,
   For they have rebelled against thee:—
11 That all may rejoice> who seek refuge in thee,
   To times age-abiding> may shout in triumph,
   that thou wilt protect them,
   And they' may leap for joy in thee who are lovers of thy Name.

For Ithoii, wilt bless the righteous man, O Yahweh,
As with an all-covering shield*— with good pleasure wilt thou encompass him.

PSALM 6.
To the Chief Musician, with stringed Instruments upon the eighth. A Melody of David.
O Yahweh! do not in thine anger correct me,
Nor in thy wrath chastise me.
Show me favour, O Yahweh, for languishing am I:
Heal me, O Yahweh,— for dismayed are my bones:
Return, O Yahweh, deliver my soul, Save me, for the sake of thy lovingkindness;
For in death is no remembrance of thee,—In hades who shall give thanks unto thee?
I am weary with my sighing: I flood, through the whole night, my couch,—With my tears I cause my bed to dissolve:
My face is all sunken with sorrow; It hath aged, because of all mine adversaries.
Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity, For Yahweh hath heard the voice of my weeping:
Yahweh hath heard my supplication, Yahweh will receive [my prayer].
Let all my foes turn pale and be greatly dismayed, Again let them turn pale in a moment.

PSALM 7.
An Ode of David: which he sang unto Yahweh, on account of the words of Cush the Benjamite.
O Yahweh my God, in thee have I sought refuge,—Save me from all my pursuers, and deliver me:
Lost one tear, as a lion, my soul,—And there be no deliverer* to rescue.
O Yahweh my God If I have done this, If there hath been perversity in my hands:
If I have required my friend with wrong,—Or have oppressed* mine adversary without need>
Let an enemy pursue my soul, and overtake it,
That he may tread down, to the earth, my life,—And mine honour—in the dust> he may cause to dwell.

Rise! Yahweh! in thine anger, Lift thyself up, because of the haughty outbursts of mine adversaries,
Stir up for me the justice* thou hast commanded:
Then above it—on high> do thou return!
Yahweh will judge the peoples,—Do me justice, O Yahweh, According to my righteousness,
And according to mine integrity upon me,
Let the wrong of the lawless, I pray thee, come to an end,
And establish thou him that is righteous,—
For [a trier of hearts and reins] is God the righteous one.
My shield* is held by God,* Who is ready to save the upright in heart:
A God to vindicate the righteous,—And yet a God to be indignant throughout every day.

If he turn not* <his sword> will he whet,—<His bow> hath he bent, and made ready:
But <for himself> hath he made ready the weapons so deadly,
<His arrows> he so fiery would make:
<His word> will he hew them<His bow> hath he bent; and made ready:
<His sword> will he hew them:
<His weapon> so deadly was prepared:
<His arrows> he so fiery would make:
Lo! he gendereth trouble, And conceiveth mischief,
But giveth birth to a disappointment:
<As a pit> he cut out and digged it, And then fell into the ditch he had made:
His mischief turneth back on his own head, —And <on his own crown> <his violence> descendeth.
I will praise Yahweh according to his righteousness,— And will praise in song the Name of Yahweh Most High.

PSALM 8.
To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." A Melody of David.
O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth, Who hast set* thy splendour upon the heavens.
<Out of the mouth of children and sucklings> hast thou laid a foundation of strength,—Because of thine adversaries, To make foe and avenger be still.

532 PSALMS VIII. 3—9 ; IX. ; X. 1—3.

When I view thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, Moon and stars, which thou hast established;
What was weak man, that thou shouldst make mention of him? Or the son of the earthborn, that thou shouldst set him in charge?
That thou shouldst make him little less than messengers of God, with glory and honour shouldst crown him?
Shouldst give him dominion over the works of thy hands,— All things shouldst have put under his feet:
The bird of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea,— The passer-by on the paths of the seas?

O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth.

PSALM 9.

To the Chief Musician. On “ Muth-labben.” A Melody of David.

1 I will praise Yahweh with all my heart, I will recount all thy wonderful doings:
2 I will rejoice and exult in thee, I will praise in song, thy Name, O most High.
3 <When mine enemies turned back> They stumbled and perished from before thee;
4 For thou hast executed my right and my cause, Thou hast sat on the throne, judging righteously:
5 Thou hast rebuked the nations Thou hast destroyed the lawless one, Their name hast thou wiped out, to times age-abiding and beyond.

O enemy! complete are the desolations, evermore,—
Even cities hast thou uprooted, The memory of [them] hath perished.

7 But [Yahweh] <unto times age-abiding> will sit,*<Ready for judgment> is his throne; And he will judge the world in righteousness, He who is put confidence in thee,
Thus be Yahweh a refuge for the crushed one. A refuge for times of destitution:*b
Thus let them who know thy Name put confidence in thee,
That thou hast not forsaken the searchers for thee, O Yahweh.

Sing ye praise to Yahweh, who is seated in Zion, Tell among the peoples his doings.

2 <When he was making inquisition for blood> Of them [had he remembrance, He forgot not the outcry of the oppressed.>

Shew me favour, O Yahweh! Behold my humiliation due to them who hate me, Lift me on high out of the gates of death;
That I may recount all thy praises,*<In the gates of the daughter of Zion> may exult in thy salvation.

The nations have sunk in the pit they had made, <In the net which they had hidden> is caught their own foot.
To be known is Yahweh, by the sentence he hath executed, <By the doing of his own hands> is he about to strike down the lawless one.
[Resounding music. Selah.

The lawless shall return to hades, All nations forgetful of God!
For [not always] shall the needy be forgotten, — [Nor] the hope of the oppressed perish for ever.
Rise! Yahweh! let man not prevail, Let the nations be judged before thee.
Appoint, O Yahweh, a terror for them,— Let the nations know [That] they are men. [Selah.

PSALM 10.

Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou stand afar off? Wherefore [hast thou hid thyself, in times of destitution? 2 <In the pride of the lawless one> he hotly pursueth the poor, Let them be caught in the plots which they have devised !
For the lawless one hath boasted over the longing of his soul, And the robber hath blasphemed Yahweh.*

PSALMS X. 4—18; XI.; XII. 1—5. 533

*iiThe lawlessone; Anthe loftinessof his countenance; will not enquire, God is not in any of his plots: s His ways are firm at all times, <On high> are thy righteous regulations, out of his sight, <As for all his adversaries> he puffeth at them: 6 He hath said in his heart, I shall not be shaken,— <From generation to generation> shall I be in no misfortune. 7 <With curving> his mouth is full, and with deceptions and oppression, <Under his tongue> are trouble and mischief: 8 He abideth in the lurking-place of villages, <In the hiding-places> he murdereth the innocent,— His eyes <for the unfortunate> are on the watch: 9 He lieth in wait in a hiding-place, like a lion in his covert, e He lieth in wait to catch the humbled, He catcheth the humbled, by drawing him into his net: 10 He croucheth, he lieth down, Then falleth he with his strong claws upon the unfortunate. 11 He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten,— He hath veiled his face. Oh he hath never seen!

12 Arise! Yahweh! O God! raiseth thy hand, 0— Do not forget the patient! 13 Wherefore hath the lawless one blasphemed God? He hath said in his heart, Thou wilt not require [it]!

14 Thou hast seen! For [thou] <mischief and misery> dost discern, To requite with thine own hand, 1 <Unto thee> doth [the unfortunate one] give himself up, To the fatherless> thou thyself hast become a helper. 15 Shatter thou the arm of the lawless one, And <as for the wrongfui> wilt thou not enquire for his lawlessness—wilt thou not find [it]? 16 Yahweh is king, to times age-abiding and beyond, The nations have perished’ out of his land. 17 <The longing of the patient> thou hast heard, O Yahweh, Thou wilt establish their heart, Thou wilt make attentive thine ear:

PSALM 11.

To the Chief Musician * David’s.

1 <In Yahweh> have I sought refuge, How can ye say to my soul, Flee to a mountain, like b a little bird ; 2 For lo! ||the lawless|| bend the bow, They have fixed their arrow upon the string, To shoot, in the darkness, at the upright in heart:

3 When <the pillars> are overthrown What could ||a righteous man|| do?

4 ||Yahweh|| is in his holy temple, ||As for Yahweh|| <in the heavens> is his throne, ||His eyes|| behold— ||His eyelashes|| test’ the sons of men.

5 ||Yahweh|| puttest [the righteous] to the test,— But <the lawless one and the lover of violence> his soul’ doth hate. 6 He will rain, upon the lawless, live-coals,— ||Fire and brimstone, and a burning wind|| are the portion of their cup.

7 For righteous’ is Yahweh, ||Righteousness|| he loveth,— ||The upright|| shall behold his face.

PSALM 12.

To the Chief Musician. On the Octave.* A Melody of David.

1 O save, Yahweh, For the man of lovingkindness |is no more|,* For the faithful |have vanished| from among the sons of men.

2 <Deception> speak they, every one with *his neighbour,— With lips utterings smooth things—with a heart and a heart> do they speak.

3 May Yahweh cut off All the lips that utter smooth things,— The tongue that speaketh swelling words;

4 Them who say— <With our tongue> will we prevail Our lips: are our own, Who is our master?

5 <Because of violence done to the poor, Because of the crying of the needy> ||Now! will I arise! O may Yahweh say,— I will place [him] in safety—let him puff at him!:

* Or: “afflicted.”

Cp. 1 Ch. xii. 33. 3 A sp. v.r. (april): “Y. hath said”—G.n. 4 Or: “he pantheth for it,” Cp. O.G. 906.
The words of Yahweh are words, that are pure.
Silver refined in a crucible of earth.
Purified seven times!
Thou wilt keep them, from this generation unto times age-abiding.
On very side the lawless march about,—When worthlessness is exalted by the sons of men.

Thou wilt guard him, from this generation unto times age-abiding.
When worthlessness is exalted by the sons of men.

How long wilt thou wholly forget me?
How long wilt thou hide thy face from me?
How long shall I lay up cares within my soul,
Sorrow in my heart, day by day?
How long shall mine enemy lift himself up over me?
Have regard! answer me, O Yahweh my God,—Light up mine eyes, lest I sleep on into death:
Lest mine enemy say I have prevailed over him!
And mine adversaries exult, that I totter.
But in thy lovingkindness have put my trust.
My heart shall exult in thy salvation:
I will sing to Yahweh,
For he hath dealt bountifully with me.

The impious hath said in his heart—There is no God!
They have acted corruptly.
They have done an abominable deed,
There is none that doeth good.
Yahweh looked down over the sons of men,—To see whether there was one that shewed wisdom,
Enquiring after God:
The whole have turned aside,
Together have they become tainted,—There is none that doeth good,
Not so much as one!
Are all the workers of iniquity without knowledge?
Devouring my people, [as] they devour food!
Upon Yahweh have they not called.
There be none that doeth good,
Not even one!

The righteous shall be establisht in the earth;
The meek shall possess it.
The poor that are of pure heart shall inherit it.
The meek that doeth nothing amiss.
The meek that stand in awe of his God.
The meek that seek his will.
The meek that doeth nothing amiss.
The meek that stand in awe of his God.
The meek that seek his will.

Preserve me, O Goi,
For I have sought refuge in thee.
Thou hast said unto Yahweh, My Lord art thou!
And the poor that is of pure heart shall possess it.
In whom is all his delight.
They multiply their idols,—another have they purchased!
I will not pour out their drink-offerings of blood,
Nor will I take up their names' on my lips.
PSALMS XVI. 5—11; XVII.; XVIII. 1—7.

5 Yahweh is mine allotted portion and my cup;
Thou art maintaining my lot.

6 The lines have fallen unto me, in pleasant places,
Verily an inheritance that delighteth me.

7 I will bless Yahweh, who hath counselled me,—
Surely by night shall mine impulses admonish me.

8 I have set Yahweh before me continually,
<Because he is on my right hand> I shall not be shaken!

9 Therefore hath my heart rejoiced,
And mine honour exulted.
Yea my flesh shall settledown securely;
Forthou wilt not abandon my soul to hades,
Neither wilt thou suffer thy man of loving-kindness,
to see corruption:
Thou wilt cause me to know, the path of life,—
Fulness of joys before thee,
Pleasures at thy right hand evermore.

PSALM 17.
A Prayer of David.

1 Hear, 0 Yahweh, the right,
Attend to my loud cry.
Give ear unto my prayer,
On lips that would not deceive:
Thine eyes behold with equity.

2 <From before thee> let my sentence come forth,
<Thine eyes> behold with equity.

3 Thou hast tested my heart.
Hast made inspection by night.
Hast refined me until thou couldst find nothing,
<Had I devised evil> my mouth should not have transgressed:

4 <As for the workings of men>
<By the word of thy lips> have I taken heed of the paths of the violent one.

5 Thou hast held fast my goings on thy ways;
My footsteps have not been shaken:
I have called upon thee, for thou wilt answer me, 0 God,—
Incline thine ear unto me, hear thine speech:
Let thy loving-kindness be distinguished; thou Saviour of such as seek refuge
From them who lift themselves up against thy righthand.

6 Guard me, as the pupil of the eye,—
<Under the shadow of thy wings> wilt thou hide me:

7 "As for the working of men against the word of thy lips."
Or: "tracks," "ruts."
Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edns.). read in the singular—G. n.
Lit.: "the munnikin of the daughter of the eye."
From the face of lawless ones who have treated me with violence,
The foes of my soul, who came round against me:
<Their own fat [heart]> have they shut up,—
<With their mouth> have they spoken proudly.
<As for our own goings> now: have they surrounded us,—
<Their eyes> they fix, bending to the earth:
<His likeness> is as a lion, that longeth to rend,
And as a young lion, lurking in secret places.

B Rise, Yahweh!
Confront his face,
Bring him down,
Deliver my soul from the lawless one [who is] thy sword:
From men [who are] thy hand, 0 Yahweh.
From the men of this age,
<Whose portion> is O Yahweh,
<With thy treasure> thou hind their bosom,—
They must be satisfied with sons,
And must leave their abundance to their children:—
<In righteousness> shall behold thy face,
Shall be satisfied when awakened by a vision of thee.

PSALM 18.
To the chief Musician. Of the servant of Yahweh, of David,—who spake unto Yahweh the words of this song,—in the day when Yahweh had rescued him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul; and he said:—

1 I will love thee, 0 Yahweh my strength!
2 Yahweh was my mountain crag and my stronghold, and my deliverer:
My God was my rock,
Sought refuge in him,
My shield, and my horn of salvation, my high tower.

3 <As one worthy to be praised> called I on Yahweh,—
And <from my foes> was I saved.

4 The meshes of death encompassed me,
The torrents of perdition made me afraid;
The meshes of hades had surrounded me,
The snares of death had confronted me,
<In my distress> called I on Yahweh,
And <unto my God> made outcry for help,
He heard, out of his temple, my voice,
And my outcry for help came before him—entered into his ears!

7 Then did the earth shake and quake,
PSALM XVIII. 8—46.

Even the foundations of the mountains were deeply moved,
Yea they did shake, because he was angry.

8 There went up a smoke in his nostrils,
And a fire out of his mouth did devour,
||Live coals were kindled from it:
9 Then he stretched out the heavens, and came down,—
And ||thick gloom was under his feet;
10 Then he rode on a cherub, and flew,
And darted on the wings of the wind;
11 Made darkness his hiding-place,
Round about him—his pavilion,
Darkness of waters, clouds of vapours.
12 <Out of the brightness before him> his clouds rolled along;
Hail* and live coals of fire.
13 Then did Yahweh thunder in the heavens,
And the Highest uttered his voice,—
Hail* and live coals of fire.
14 And he sent forth his arrows and scattered them,
Yea lightnings he shot out, and confused them.
15 Then appeared the channels of waters,*
Were uncovered the foundations of the world,—
At thy rebuke, O Yahweh,
At the blast of thy nostrils.
16 He sent from on high, he took me,—
He drew me out of many waters.
17 He rescued me from my foe, in his might,
And from them who hated me, because they were too strong for me:
18 They confronted me, in the day of my necessity,
Then became Yahweh my stay:
19 And brought me out, into a large place,
He delivered me, because he delighted in me.
20 Yahweh rewarded me according to my righteousness,
According to the cleanness of my hands he repaid me;
21 For I had kept the ways of Yahweh,
And not broken away from my God;
22 For all his regulations were before me,
And his statutes did I not put from me:
23 So became I blameless with him,
And kept myself from mine iniquity.
24 Yahweh therefore repaid me according to my righteousness,
According to the pureness of my hands, before his eyes.
25 <With the loving> thou didst shew thyself loving,—
<With the blameless man> thou didst shew thyself blameless;
26 <With the pure> thou didst shew thyself pure,
But <with the perverse> thou didst shew thyself ready to contend.

For <as for thee> <an oppressed people> thou didst save;
But <looks that were lofty> layedst thou low;
For <thou> didst light up my lamp,
||Yahweh my God enlightened my darkness;
For <by thee> I ran through a troop,*
And <by my God> I leapt over a wall.

<As for God> blameless is his way,
The speech of Yahweh hath been proved,
<A shield> he is to all who seek refuge in him.

For who is a God, save Yahweh?
And who is a Rock, save our God?
I w The God who girded me with strength,
I And set forth, as blameless, my way:
33 Planting my feet like hinds' feet,
Yea on my high places he caused me to stand:
34 Teaching my hands to war,—
So that a bow of bronze was bent by mine arms.

Thus didst thou grant me, as a shield, thy salvation,—
And thy right hand sustained me,
And thy condescension made me great.
Pursued my foes, and overtook them,
And returned not, till they were consumed:
I crushed them, and they were unable to rise,
They fell under my feet.
Thus didst thou gird me with strength, for the battle,
Thou subduedst mine assailants under me.
(As for my foes thou didst give me their neck,
And as for them who hated me I destroyed them.
They cried out,
But there was none to save,
Unto Yahweh.
But he answered them not.
Then did I beat them in pieces, likedust on the face of the wind.
Like the mire in the lanes did I scatter them.
Thus didst thou rescue me from the contents of a people,—
Didst appoint me to be the head of nations.
A people had not known I served me:
At the hearing of the ear they submitted to me,
The sons of the foreigner came cringing unto me:
The sons of the foreigner lost heart,
And came quaking out of their fortresses.
Yahweh liveth and blessed be my Rock.
Yea exalted be the God of my salvation:

PSALMS XVIII. 47—50; XIX.; XX.; XXI. 1.

47 The God, who hath avenged me,*—
   And subdued peoples under me:
   Who hath delivered me from my foes,—
   From the man of violence hath thou rescued me.
48 [For this cause] will I praise thee among the nations, O Yahweh,
   And <to thy Name> will I sweep the strings:—
   Who hath made great the victories of his King,
   And shewn lovingkindness to his Anointed
   One.
   To David and to his Seed,
   Unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 19.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 The heavens are telling the glory of God,
   And <the work of his hands> the expanse¹ is declaring ;
2 Day unto day doth pour forth speech,
   And [night] unto night doth breathe out
   knowledge.
3 There is no speech, and there are no'words,—
   Unheard is their voice !
4 Yet through all the earth hath gone forth their voice,—
   And to the end of the world their sayings,—
   For the sun hath set up a tent therein ;
5 And he is like a bridegroom coming out of his chamber,
   He rejoiceth as a hero to run a race ;
6 From one end of the heavens is his going forth,
   And his circuit to the other end thereof,—
   And nothing is hid from his glowing heat.
7 The law of Yahweh is complete.
   Bringing back the soul,
   The testimony of Yahweh is confirmed.
   Making wise the simple ;
8 The precepts of Yahweh are right,¹
   Rejoicing the heart,
   The commandment of Yahweh is pure.
   Enlightening the eyes ;
9 The reverence of Yahweh is clean,
   Enduring evermore,—
   The decisions of Yahweh are faithful,
   They are righteous altogether :
10 More desirable than gold,
   Yea than much fine gold,
   [Sweeter] also than honey.
   Or than droppings from the comb.²

PSALM 20.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 Yahweh answer thee, in the day of distress,
   The Name of the God of Jacob' give thee safety ;
2 Send thy help out of the sanctuary,
   And [out of Zion] sustain thee ;
3 Remember every present of thine,
   And <thine ascending-sacrifice> esteem:¹
   Give thee according to thy heart,
   And <all thy purposes> fulfil.
4 We will shout aloud in thy salvation.
   And <in the Name of our God> shall we become great,'
   Yahweh fulfil all thy petitions.
5 Now do I know that Yahweh hath saved his Anointed One,—
   He answereth him out of his holy heavens,
   By the mighty saving deeds of his own right hand.
6 These by chariots.
   And those by horses,
   But we <by the Name of Yahweh our God>
   Will prevail.¹
7 They have bowed down and fallen,
   But we have arisen, and stand upright.
8 [Yahweh] hath saved the king.'
   Answer us, then, on the day when we call.

PSALM 21.

David.

   rejoice.
   And <in thy salvation> how greatly will he exult !

PSALM 22.
1 My God, my God, why' hast thou forsaken me! Far from saving me.
The words of my loud lamentation? My God! I keep crying— By day and thou dost not answer, and By night and there is no rest for me.
3 But thou art holy, Who inhabitest the praises of Israel.
4 <In thee> trusted our fathers, They trusted, and thou didst deliver them ;
5 <Unto thee> made they outcry, and escaped, <In thee> they trusted, and had not turned pale.
6 But I am a worm and no one, A reproach of men, and despised of a people ;
7 All that see me laugh at me,— They open wide the mouth,* They shake the head :—
8 He should trust in Yahweh—let him deliver him,— Let him rescue him, seeing he delighteth in him.
9 For <thou art he that severed me> from the womb, He that caused me to trust, upon the breasts of my mother ;
10 <Upon thee> was I cast from the time I was born, <From the womb of my mother> <my God> hast thou been.
11 Be not far from me, for <[distress]> is near, For there is none' to help.
12 Many bulls have surrounded me, <Strong oxen of Bashan> have enclosed me ;
13 They have opened wide against me their mouth, A lion' rending and roaring .
14 <Like water> am I poured out, And <put out of joint> are all my bones,— [My heart] hath become like wax, It is melted in the midst of my body ;
15 <Dried as a potsherd> is my strength, And <my tongue> is made to cleave to my gums, And <in the dust of death> wilt thou lay me.
16 For dogs have surrounded me,— An assembly of evil doers! have encircled me, They have pierced my hands and my feet, I may tell all my bones, They'll look for—they behold me !
17 They part my garments among them, And <for my vesture> they cast lots.
18 But <thou> O Yahweh! be not far off, O my help! <to aid me> make haste ;
19 Rescue <from the sword> my life," <From the power of the dog> my solitary self;:
20 <From the power of the lion> shall I praise thee.
21 Save me from the mouth of the lion,— Yea <from the horns of wild beasts> hast thou delivered me.

PSALM 23.
A Melody of David.

Yahweh is my shepherd—I shall not want:
In pastures of tender grass he maketh me lie down,
Unto restful waters he leadeth me;
My life he restored, he guideth me in right paths for the sake of his Name.
Yea, though I walk through a valley death-shadowed
I will fear no harm, for thou art with me,
Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou spreadest before me a table, in face of mine adversaries,
Thou hast anointed, with oil, my head,
My cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and lovingkindness will pursue me, all the days of my life;
And I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh, evermore.

David's. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

Unto thee, O Yahweh, <my soul> would I lift:
O my God, in thee have I put my trust,
Let me not be put to shame,
Let not my foe exult over me:
Yes, none who wait for thee be put to shame,
Let them be put to shame who act covertly without cause!
Thy ways, O Yahweh, let me know,
Thy paths teach thou me:
Guide me into thy truth and teach me,
For thou art my delivering God.

PSALMS XXV. 6—22; XXVI.; XXVII. 1—6.

<For thee> have I waited all the day;*

6 Remember thy compassions, O Yahweh, and thy lovingkindnesses,
For <from age-past times> have they been.

7 <The sins of my youth, and my transgressions> do not thou call to mind,—
<According to thine own lovingkindness> remember [thou] me,
For the sake of thine own goodness, O Yahweh.

8 <Good and upright> is Yahweh,
<For this cause> will he direct sinners into the way.

9 May he guide patient wronged-ones to be righted,
And teach such oppressed-ones <his way>.

10 All the paths of Yahweh are lovingkindness and faithfulness,
To such as keep his covenant, and his testimonies.

11 <For the sake of thy Name> O Yahweh, Therefore wilt thou pardon mine iniquity,
For great is it.

12 Who then is the man that revereth Yahweh?
Let him direct him into the way he should choose.

13 His soul <with prosperity> shall tarry,
And <his seed> shall possess the land.

14 <Intimacy with Yahweh> have they who revere him,
<His covenant also> he letteth them know.

15 Mine eyes <are continually unto Yahweh>—
For he will bring me forth into the way he should choose.

16 Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour,
<For alone and oppressed> I am.

17 <The distresses of my heart> hath he relieved,
And <out of my straits> brought me forth.

18 Behold my humiliation and my pain,
And take away all my sins.

19 Behold my foes, for they abound,—
And <with the hatred of violence> do they hate me.

20 Oh keep my soul, and rescue me,
Let me not be put to shame, for I have sought refuge in thee.

21 Let <blamelessness and uprightness> watch over me,
Because I have waited for thee.

22 Redeem Israel, O God,—
Out of all his distresses.

PSALM 27.
David's.

1 ||Yahweh|| is my light and my salvation.
Of whom shall I be afraid?

2 <When there drew near against me evil-doers to devour my flesh>
My heart shall not fear,—Though there come up against me— a battle>
I, Still, am confident.

3 <One thing> have I asked of Yahweh.
<That> will I seek to secure,
To view the delightfulness of Yahweh,
And to contemplate in his temple.

4 For he will hide me in his pavilion,* in the day of calamity,—
He will conceal me, in the secrecy of his tent,
<Within a rock> will he set me on high.

5 ||Yahweh|| is the refuge of my life.
Of whom shall I be in dread?

6 ||Now therefore, shall my head be raised high* above my foes round about me.

a Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) prefix to this line the Heb. letter waw (= "And")—G.n. [Thereby helping out the initial alphabet. PSALM 26.
David's.

1 Do me justice, O Yahweh,
For ||in my blamelessness|| have walked,

2 Try me, O Yahweh, and prove me,
Test my reins and my heart:*

3 For <thy lovingkindness> hath been before mine eyes,
And I have walked to and fro in thy faithfulness;

4 I have not sat with men of doceit,
Nor <with dissemblers> would I enter;

5 I have hated the convocation of evil-doers,
And <with lawless men> would I not sit;

6 I will bathe, in pureness, my hands,—
So will I go in procession around thine altar, O Yahweh;

7 To sound aloud a song,
And to recount all thy wonderful doings.

8 O Yahweh, I have loved the asylum of thy house,
Even the place of the habitation of thy glory!

9 Do not remove, with sinners, my soul,
Nor with men of bloodshed, my life;

10 In whose hands is a plot,
And [their right hand] is filled with a bribe.

11 But <in my blamelessness> will walk,
Redeem me and shew me favour.

12 My foot standeth in a level place,
<In the convocations> will I bless Yahweh.

And I will sacrifice in his tent the sacrifices of triumphant joy.
I will sing and touch the strings, to Yahweh.

7 Hear, O Yahweh, With my voice do I cry,
Oh then shew me favour and answer me.
8 To thee said my heart— When thou saidst Seek ye my face—
Thy face O Yahweh, will I seek!

9 Do not hide thy face from me,
Do not repulse, in thine anger, thine own servant,—
My help thou hast been,
O my saving God!

10 When my own father and mother had forsaken me
Then Yahweh took me up!

11 Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way,—
And guide me in a level path,
Because of mine adversaries.
Do not give me up unto the desire of mine adversaries,
For there have risen up against me Witnesses that are false,
And he that fanneth up violence.

12 I believe that I shall see—
The goodness of Yahweh in the land of the living.

14 Wait thou for Yahweh,—
Be strong, and let thy heart be bold,
Wait, then, for Yahweh!

PSALM 28.

A Melody of David.

1 Unto thee, O Yahweh do I cry.
My Rock! do not turn in silence from me,—
Lest if thou turn from me in silence
I be like them who go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplication,
When I cry to thee for help,
When I lift up my hands toward thy holy shrine.

3 Do not drag me away—
With the lawless,
Or with the workers of iniquity,—
Who speak peaceably with their neighbours,
But wrong is in their heart.

4 Give them
According to their deed, and
According to the wrong of their practices,—

5 According to the work of their own hands
Give thou unto them,
Bring back their own dealing to themselves.

5 Because they heed not
The Deeds of Yahweh,
Or the Work of his hands
He will pull them down, and not build them.

6 Blessed be Yahweh,
Because he hath heard the voice of my supplication.

7 Yahweh is my strength and my shield,
In him hath trusted my heart, and I have found help,—
Therefore hath my heart danced for joy,
And with my song do I praise him.

8 Yahweh is strength to his people,
And <the all-saving refuge of his Anointed One> is he!

9 Oh save thy people,
And bless thine inheritance,
Tend them also, and carry them,
Unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 29.

Give to Yahweh, ye sons of the mighty,—
Give to Yahweh, [both] glory and strength:
Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name,
Bow down to Yahweh, in the adoration of holiness.

The voice of Yahweh is upon the waters,—
The God of glory hath thundered,
Yahweh is upon mighty waters;
The voice of Yahweh is with power,
The voice of Yahweh is with majesty;
The voice of Yahweh is breaking cedars,
Now hath Yahweh broken down the cedars of Lebanon!
And hath made them leap like a calf, Lebanon and Sirion, like the bull-calf of wild-oxen;

The voice of Yahweh is cleaving out flames of fire;
The voice of Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness;
Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness of Kadesh!
The voice of Yahweh causeth the gazelles to bring forth,
And hath strait forests;
And in his own temple he saith Glory!

Yahweh, at the Flood was seated,
And Yahweh hath taken his seat, as king, unto times age-abiding.

11 [Yahweh] will give [strength to his people]; — Yahweh will bless his people with prosperity.

PSALM 30.

1 I will extol thee, O Yahweh, For thou hast drawn me up,— And not suffered my foes to rejoice over me.

2 O Yahweh, my God, I cried for help unto thee, And thou hast healed me.

3 O Yahweh! thou hast lifted, out of hades, my soul, Thou hast brought me back to life, from among those who were going down to the pit.

4 Sweep the strings to Yahweh, Ye his men of loving-kindness, And give ye praise at the mention of his holiness.

5 For there is a Moment in his anger, A Life-time in his good-pleasure,

6 But I said, in my tranquillity, I shall not be shaken to times age-abiding!

7 O Yahweh! in thy good-pleasure hast thou caused my mountain to stand [strong];— Thou didst hide thy face—I was dismayed!

8 Unto thee, O Yahweh <do I cry,— And unto My Lord> do I make supplication:

9 What profit in my blood? In my going down into the pit? Can dust praise thee? Can it declare thy faithfulness?

10 Hear, O Yahweh, and shew me favour, O Yahweh! become thou a helper unto me.

11 Thou hast turned my lamentation, into a dance for me,— Thou hast torn off my sackcloth, And girded me with gladness: To the end that mine honour should make melody unto thee, and not be silent.

O Yahweh, my God! <Unto times age-abiding> will I praise thee.

PSALM 31.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 <In thee> O Yahweh, have I sought refuge, Let me not be ashamed, to times age-abiding,

2 In thy righteousness> deliver me:

3 <Because my mountain crag and my stronghold thou art> Therefore <for the sake of thine own Name> wilt thou lead me and guide me?

4 Wilt thou bring me forth, out of the net which they have hidden for me?

5 <Into thy hand> do I commit my spirit — Thou hast ransomed me, O Yahweh, GOD most faithful.

6 I hate such as give heed to false' vanities, <[II] then, in Yahweh> have set my hope.

7 I will indeed exult and rejoice, in thy loving-kindness,— In that thou hast looked upon my humiliation, Thou hast taken note that in distress' was my life;

8 And hast not shut me up in the hand of the foe, Thou hast given standing, in a roomy place, unto my feet.

9 Show me favour, O Yahweh, for in distress am I,— <Wasted with vexation> is mine eye— my soul and my body;

10 For <consumed with sorrow> is my life, And my years with sighing,— My strength' hath staggered with my humiliation, 11 <Unto thy hand> do I commit my spirit— And my bones are without marrow.

12 <By reason of all mine adversaries> have I become a reproach, Even to my neighbours altogether, And a dread to mine acquaintances,— They who have seen me abroad: have fled from me:

13 I have been forgotten, like one dead—out of mind, I have been as a missing vessel.

14 For I have heard the whispering of many— A terror round about me: <When they have sat in conclave together against me> <To take away my life> have they intrigued.

8 [So written; but read]: "that I shd not go down." In some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) : "from among," etc., both written and read; in others w. ear. pr. edn.: "that I shd not," etc., both written and read.—G.n.

9 [Reb.; for <dibhat'ag (in others w. 1 ear. pr. edn.): a Yahweh,"—G.n., Ml.; "opened" = "torn open."

So it shd be w. Sep., Syr., Cp. Ps. cviii. 1—G.n.

[Or: "make music."

In Sep., Syr., Vul.: "my majesty." But G.t.: "didst set firm cause to stand the mountains of strength = strongmountains;" and so Aram.

10 <Hear, O Yahweh, and shew me favour, O Yahweh! become thou a helper unto me.

11 Thou hast turned my lamentation, into a dance for me,— Thou hast torn off my sackcloth, And girded me with gladness: To the end that mine honour should make melody unto thee, and not be silent.

O Yahweh, my God! <Unto times age-abiding> will I praise thee.

Cp. Ps. cviii. 3.—G.n.

[9 Cp. Ps. bxxi. 3. Cp. Ps. ver. 13:

[11 Cp. Jer. xx. 10. <To take away my life> have they intrigued.
PSALMS XXXI. 14—24: XXXII.; XXXIII. 1—9.

14 Therefore have put my trust, O Jehovah;
I have said, "My God! thou art!"
15 In thy hand are my times,
Rescue me from the hand of my foes and from my pursuers!

16 Cause thy face to shine upon thy servant,
Save me in thy lovingkindness.
17 O Jehovah! let me not be ashamed,
For I have called upon thee,
Let the lawless be ashamed,
Go down in silence to hades!
18 False lips be made dumb,—
Which are speaking—against a righteous one arrogantly.

19 How great is thy goodness, which thou hast hidden away for them who revere thee,—
Thou hast wrought for them who seek refuge in thee,
In sight of the sons of men.

20 Thou wilt conceal them, in the secrecy of thine own presence, from the conspiracies of men,—
Thou wilt hide them in a pavilion, from the strife of tongues.

21 Blessed be Jehovah,
For he hath made wonderful his lovingkindness for me, in a fortified city.

22 But I did say in mine alarm, 'I am cut off from before thine eyes,—
But, indeed, thou didst hear the voice of my supplication,'
When I cried for help unto thee.

23 Love Jehovah, all ye his men of lovingkindness,— <Faithfulness> doth Jehovah observe,
But repayeth abundantly him that worketh proudly.

24 Be strong, and let your heart be bold,
All ye who are waiting for Jehovah.

PSALM 32.
David's. An Instructive Psalm.

1 How happy is he
Whose transgression is forgiven!—
Whose sin is pardoned!—
2 How happy the son of earth,
To whom Jehovah will not reckon iniquity!
And in whose spirit is no guile!

3 When I kept silence my bones became worn out,
Through my groaning all the day;
For <day and night> heavy upon me was thy hand,—
Changed was my life-sap into* the drought of summer.

4 <My sin> would I own unto thee,
And <mine iniquity> not hide,
I said, 'I will confess my transgressions unto Jehovah,
And thou didst forgive the iniquity of my sin.' [Selah.

5 <For this cause> will every man of lovingkindness pray unto thee, in time to obtain,— Surely <in the overflow of many waters>
Unto him shall they not reach.

6 Thou art a hiding-place for me,<From distress> wilt thou preserve me,—
<With shouts of deliverance> wilt thou compass me about. [Selah.

7 I will make thee discreet,
I will point out to thee the way which thou must go,
I will fix upon thee mine eye.

8 Do not ye become like a horse, like a mule, without' discernment,—
With the bit and bridle of his mouth;—
He will not come near unto thee.

9 Many pains hath the lawless one,—
But <he that trusteth in Jehovah> Lovingkindness shall compass him about.

10 Rejoice in Jehovah and exult, O ye righteous.
Yes, shout in triumph, all ye upright in heart!

PSALM 33.

1 Shout for joy, ye righteous, in Jehovah,
<To the upright> seemly is praise.
2 Give ye thanks unto Jehovah with the lyre,
<With a harp of ten strings> make ye music unto him.

3 Sing unto him, a song that is new,
<With skill> sweep the strings, with loud noise.

4 For right' is the word of Jehovah,
And all his work is in faithfulness:
Who loveth righteousness and justice,
<With the lovingkindness of Jehovah> the earth is full.

5 By the word of Jehovah the heavens were made,
Delivering, into treasuries, the roaring deeps.

6 Let all the earth stand in awe of Jehovah;—
Of him be in dread, all ye inhabitants of the world;
In dread, all ye peoples of the earth;

7 For <he spake, and it was,> He commanded, and it stood forth.

8 Some cod. (w. Sep., Vul.) add: "O Jehovah"

9 For <he spake, and it was,>
He commanded, and it stood forth.

10 So it shall be "w. Aram., transgression "sing." Sep., Syr.,—G.n. and G.n.

16 Or: "his trappings." Or: "lute"—G.n.
PSALMS XXXIII. 10—22; XXXIV.; XXXV. 1—5.

10 Yahweh hath frustrated the counsel of nations, hath brought to nothing the devices of peoples.
11 The counsel of Yahweh shall stand, the devices of his heart from generation to generation.
12 How happy the nation whose God is Yahweh, the people he hath chosen as his own inheritance!
13 Out of the heavens hath Yahweh looked, He hath seen all the sons of men:
14 Out of his settled place of abode hath he fixed his gaze
On all the inhabitants of the earth:
15 Who fashioneth their heart all together, Who understandeth all their doings.
16 Not taking can be saved by greatness of force,
Nor her deliver himself by greatness of strength:
17 A deception is the horse, for victory,
And by his great strength shall he not deliver.
18 Lo! the eye of Yahweh is toward them who revere him,
Unto such as are waiting for his lovingkindness:
19 To rescue, from death, their soul,
And to keep them alive in famine.
20 Our own soul hath waited for Yahweh,
Our help and our shield is he!
21 For shall our heart rejoice,
For have we trusted.
22 Be thy lovingkindness, O Yahweh, upon us,
According as we have waited for thee.

PSALM 34.
David's. When he disguised his sanity before Abimulech,—who dismissed him, and he departed. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]
1 Let me bless Yahweh at all times,
Continually be his praise in my mouth.
2 In Yahweh boasteth my soul,
The patient oppressed ones shall hear and be glad.
3 Ascribe ye greatness unto Yahweh with me,
And let us exalt his Name together.
4 I enquired of Yahweh, and he answered me,
And out of all my terrors hath he rescued me.
5 They looked unto him and were radiant,
And let them not be abashed.
6 This oppressed one cried, and Yahweh heard,—
And out of all his distresses saved him.
7 The messenger of Yahweh encampeth around them who revere him,
Thus hath he delivered them.
8 Oh taste and see, that good is Yahweh,—
How happy the man who seeketh refuge in him!
9 Revere Yahweh, ye his holy ones,
For there is no want to them who revere him.
10 Young lions have come short, and suffered hunger,
But they who seek Yahweh shall not lack any good thing.
11 Come, ye children! hearken unto me,
The reverence of Yahweh will I teach you.
12 Who is he that desireth life, Loving days, that he may see good?
Keep thy tongue from wickedness,
And thy lips from speaking deceit:
Depart from wickedness and do good,
Aim' at well-being, and pursue' it.

PSALM 35.
David's.
1 Contend, O Yahweh, with them who contend with me,
Make war upon them who make war upon me.
2 Grasp buckler and shield, And arise in my help;
Then draw the spear, and close up against my pursuers,
Say to my soul: Thy salvation I am'!
4 Let them' be ashamed and confounded,
Who are seeking my life,—
Let them turn back and be put to the blush,
Who are devising my hurt:
5 Let them be as chaff before the wind,
With the messenger of Yahweh pressing them a on:
6 Some cod.: "to".—G.n.
7 U. : "soul."
8 Some render: "And a So it shd be (w. Sep.)— battle-axe." Cp. Fuerst.
9 Cp. Ps. xxv. 8, n.
6 Let their way become dark and slippery,
With the messenger of Yahweh pursuing them.
7 For have they hid for me in a ditch, their net,—
Without cause have they digged [a pit] for my life.
8 There shall reach him a ruin he could not know,—
Yea his own net which he hath hidden shall capture him,
Into that ruin shall he fall!
9 But my soul shall exult in Yahweh,— shall be glad in his salvation:
10 All my bones shall say—
O Yahweh, who is like unto thee?
Rescuing the oppressed from one stronger than he,
Yea the oppressed and the needy, from their spoiler.
11 There rise up witnesses helping forward violence and wrong.
<What I know not> they demand of me:
12 They repay me evil for good,
Bereaving my soul.
13 But <as for me> when they were sick my clothing was sackcloth,
I humbled, with fasting, my soul,
Though <my prayer> <unto mine own bosom> might return:
14 Like as for a friend, like as for a brother of mine own>
I walked to and fro,
<As though mourning for a mother> I gloomily bowed myself down.
15 But <in mine overthrow> have they rejoiced,
And gathered themselves together,—
There gathered themselves together against me foolish men,
And I knew it not,
They have torn in pieces, and not been silent;
16 <Amidst profane praters of perversion>
Have they gnashed upon me with their teeth.
17 My Lord! how long wilt thou look on?
Bring back my soul out of their raging,
<From among lions> my solitary self.
18 I will thank thee, in the midst of a great congregation,—
In the midst of a mighty people will I praise thee.
19 Let not them who are falsely my foes rejoice over me,
And thy just decrees are a great sounding deep,—<Man and beast> thou savest. O Yahweh!

7 How precious thy lovingkindness, O God,—Therefore (the sons of men) <under the shadow of thy wings> seek refuge:

8 They abundantly relish the fatness of thy house,
And <out of the full stream> of thine own pleasures thou givest them to drink.

9 For <with thee> is the fountain of life, <in thy light> we see light.

Prolong thy lovingkindness unto them who know thee,—
And thy righteousness, to the upright in heart.

11 Let not the foot of pride reach me,
Nor (the hand of the lawless) scare me away.

12 There did the workers of iniquity fall,—Thrust down, and not able to rise!

PSALM 37.

David's. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

1 Burn not with vexation (because of evil-doers,
Be not envious of the workers of perversity;
For <like grass> shall they wither,
And <like green herbage> shall they fade.

2 Trust in Yahweh, and do good,
Dwell in the land, and feed on fidelity;
Yea, rest thy delight on Yahweh,
That he may give thee the requests of thy heart.

3 Roll on Yahweh thy way, Trust also in him, and he will effectually work:
So will he bring forth, as the light, thy righteousness,
And thy vindication as the noonday.

7 Be resigned to Yahweh, ye await with longing
For him who prospereth in his way,—At the man who doeth wickedness.

8 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath,
Burn not with vexation—[it would be] only to do evil;
For (evil-doers) shall be cut off,
But <as for them who wait for Yahweh> [they] shall inherit the earth.

Yet a little therefore,
And the lawless one shall not be,
Yea thou shalt look about, over his place—
And he shall have vanished!

But the patient oppressed-ones shall inherit the earth,*
And shall delight themselves over the abundance of prosperity.

12 Plotting* is the lawless one, against the just,
And gnashing upon him with his teeth.

13: My Lord shall laugh at him,
For he seeth, that his day' [will come].

14 <A sword have the lawless drawn out>
And have trodden their bow,—
To bring down the oppressed and the needy,
To slaughter the upright in life:*

15 Their sword shall enter into their own heart,
And [their bow] shall be broken.

Better the little of the righteous man
Than the abundance of the lawless who are mighty;
For the arms of the lawless shall be broken,
But Yahweh is upholding the righteous.

Yahweh knoweth the days of the blameless,
That [their inheritance] shall continue.

16 They shall not be ashamed in the time of calamity,
And <in the days of famine> shall they be filled.

20 For the lawless shall perish,
And the foes of Yahweh be like the glory of the meadows,
They have vanished!
<In smoke> have they vanished!

21 A lawless man borroweth, and will not repay,
But a righteous man shall shew favour and giveth;
For such as are blessed of him shall inherit the earth,*
But [the accursed of him] shall be cut off.

23 <From Yahweh> are the steps of a man made firm,
When <with his way> he is well pleased:

24 <Though he fall> he shall not be hurled headlong,
For Yahweh is holding his hand.

25 <Young> have I been, moreover am old,—
Yet have I not seen
A righteous man forsaken,
Nor his seed begging bread;

26 <All day long> is he shewing favour and lending,
His seed therefore, shall have a blessing.

27 Turn from evil, and do good,
And so settle down, unto times age-abiding.
For Yahweh loveth justice,
And will not forsake his men of lovingkindness,
Unto times age-abiding have the perverse [27] been destroyed,—
And [the seed of the lawless] been cut off.

PSALMS XXXVII. 29—40; XXXVIII.; XXXIX. 1.

29 The righteous shall inherit the earth,*
That they may settle down, to futurity, thereon.

30 The mouth of a righteous man, softly uttereth wisdom,
And his tongue speaketh justice:
31 The law of his God is in his heart,
His steps shall not swerve.

32 The lawless man lieth in wait for the just,
And seeketh to put him to death:
33 Yahweh will not leave him in his hand,
Nor condemn him, when he is judged.

34 Wait for Yahweh, and observe thou his path.
That he may exalt thee, to inherit the earth, *
(On the cutting off of the lawless) shalt thou look.

35 I have seen a lawless man, a tyrant,*
And spreading himself out, like a cedar in Lebanon ;
36 Then I passed by, and lo! he had vanished!
Yea I sought him, but he could not be found.

37 Mark the blameless man,
And behold the upright,
For there is a hereafter for the man of peace;*
38 But transgressors are to be destroyed together,*
The hereafter of lawless men is to be cut off.

39 But the deliverance of the righteous is from Yahweh,
Their refuge in a time of distress: *
Thus hath Yahweh helped them,
Thus hath he delivered them,—
He will deliver them from the lawless, and will save them,
Because they have sought refuge in him.

PSALM 38.
A Melody of David. To bring to Remembrance.

1 O Yahweh, do not in thine anger correct me,
Nor in thy wrath chastise me;
2 For thine arrows have sunk down into me,
And thy hand presseth heavily upon me:*
3 There is no soundness in my flesh.
By reason of thy indignation,
There is no peace in my bones,
By reason of my sin;*
4 For mine iniquities have passed over my head,
Like a heavy burden they have festered,
By reason of my folly:
5 My wounds are of bad odour—they are too heavy for me:
6 I am bent, I am bowed down very low.
<All the day> have I gloomily walked;
7 For [my loins] are filled with inflammation,
And there is no soundness in my flesh:
8 I am benumbed and crushed exceedingly,—
I have cried aloud because of the gouging of my heart.*

9 O My Lord! (before thee) is all my longing,
And [my sighing] hath not been hid:
10 My heart fluttereth, my strength hath forsaken me,
And <as for the light of mine eyes> [even they] are not with me:
11 [my lovers, and my friends] <from before my stroke> stand aloof,—
And [my near ones] <far away> do stand:
12 Yea they who are seeking my life [have laid snares],
And they who are asking my harm  have threatened engulfing ruin,
And <deceitful things—all day long> do they mutter.

13 But <as one dead> will not hear,—
And as one dumb, who will not open his mouth:
Thus have I become as a man who cannot hear,
In whose mouth are no arguments:
14 Because <for thee> O Yahweh, have I waited,
Thou wilt answer, O Adonay, my God!
15 For I said Lest they rejoice over me!
<When my feet were tottering> against me have they magnified themselves:
16 For <to halt> am ready,
And my pain is before me continually;
17 For <mine iniquity> will I declare,
I shall be anxious because of my sin;
18 And <my foes> are alive—have become strong,—
And multiplied' are they who hate me for false cause:

19 Even they who are repaying evil for good accuse me because I pursue the good.
20 Do not forsake me, O Yahweh!
My God! be not far from me:
21 Make haste to help me,
My Lord, my deliverance!

PSALM 39.
To the Chief Musician. For Jeduthun.*
A Melody of David.

1 I said [to myself]
I will take heed to my ways,
That I sin not with my tongue,—

* GL: "beyond the growling of a lion"—G.n.
* Cp. Eze. xxiv. 16.
* Heb: "iniquities. Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.) have: "O Yahweh"—G.n.
* "Beyond error for in upon the manner of the choir of Jeduthun — O. G.
* Written: "Jedithun"; read: "Jeduthun." in some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns.): "Jeduthun," both written and read— G.n.
I will put a muzzle on my mouth. So long as the lawless is before me.

I was dumb with silence. I held my peace, afar from happiness. But my pain had been stirred:

Hot was my heart within me. While I was musing there was kindled a fire. I spake with my tongue!

Let me know, O Yahweh, mine end. And the measure of my days — what it is, I would know how short-lived I am.

Lo! as hand-breath's hast thou granted my days. And my life-time is as nothing before thee: Surely a mere breath are all men, [even] such as stand firm. [Selah.]

Surely as a shadow doth every man wander. Surely in vain do they bustle about. He heareth things up, and knoweth not who shall gather them in.

Surely as a shadow do the very man wander. Surely in vain do they bustle about. He heapeth things up, and knoweth not who shall gather them in.

Kow therefore, for what have I waited, O My Lord? My hope is in thee. From all my transgressions rescue thou me. Lo! hast thou granted my days. And my life-time! is as nothing before thee — even such as stand firm. A mere breath are all men. Selah.

Hear my prayer, O Yahweh. And unto my cry for help give ear. At my tears do not be silent. For a sojourner am I with thee. A stranger, like all my fathers. When by rebukes for iniquity thou hast corrected a man. Then hast thou consumed, as a moth, all that was delightful within him.

I waited patiently for Yahweh. And he inclined unto me, and heard my cry for help;

So he brought me up Out of the destroying pit. Out of the swamps' mire,— And set, upon a cliff, my feet, Making firm my steps:

Then put he into my mouth, a new song. Praise to our God,— Many shall see and revere, And shall trust in Yahweh.

How happy the man Who hath made Yahweh his confidence, Who hath not turned unto the haughty. Nor gone aside unto falsehood.

| Mighty things | hast thou done— || Thou, Yahweh my God. |
| Thy wonderful doings and thy purposes towards us | There is no setting them in order unto thee— |

I would tell, and would speak!— They are too great to rehearse.

Sacrifice and meal-offering thou didst not delight in. <Kam> didst thou pierce for me,— Ascending-sacrifice and sin-bearer thou didst not ask:

Then said I— Lo! I am come, In the written scroll is it prescribed for me; To do thy good-pleasure, O my God is my delight. And thy law is in the midst of mine inward parts:

I have told the good-tidings of righteousness in a great convocation. Lo! <my lips> do I not restrain, O Yahweh, thou knowest: Sacrifice and meal-offering thou didst not delight in. Ears didst thou pierce for me. Ascending-sacrifice and sin-bearer thou didst not ask:

Thy righteousness have I not hid in the midst of my heart. Thy faithfulness and thy salvation have I spoken, I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truthfulness from the great convocation.

Thou, O Yahweh wilt not restrain thy compassions from me. Thy lovingkindness and thy truthfulness shall continually watch over me.

For there have closed in upon me, misfortunes beyond number. Mine iniquities have overtaken me, and I cannot see, They have become more than the hairs of my head, And my courage hath forsaken me!

Be pleased, O Yahweh, to rescue me! O Yahweh! <to help me> make haste!

Aha! Let all them* be glad and rejoice in thee, Who are seekers of thee, Let* them say continually— Yahweh be magnified! Who are lovers of thy salvation.*

15 Who are seeking my life to snatch it away, — Let them* draw back, and be confounded, Who are taking pleasure in my calamity; Let* them say continually— Yahweh be magnified! Who are lovers of thy salvation.

16 But *I being oppressed and needy> May My Lord devise for me,— My help and my deliverer thou art! O my God, do not tarry!

PSALM 41.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 How happy is he that is attentive to the poor, In the day of calamity will Yahweh deliver him: II Yahweh will preserve him and keep him alive, And he shall* be pronounced happy in the land, Do not then give him up at the desire* of his enemies!

2 II Yahweh will sustain him upon the bed of sickness, And ho shall* be transformed in his disease. O.G. 2458.

4 Writers: " He shall* ; " read: " And he shall* or " Therefore shall he." In some cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns.) written and read: " He shall* ;" in others (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.) written and read: " And he shall* — G.n. Or: " soul." O.G. 2458.

5 II Yahweh shew me favour, Heal thou my soul. For I have sinned against thee:

6 Mine enemies* speak ill of me, When will he die, and his name perish?

7 And <if he have come to see me> <Falsehood> doth he speak, His own heart gathereth iniquity to itself, He goeth forth, abroad* he telleth it.

8 Against me* devise they hurt for me. An infliction of the Abandoned One* hath been fixed upon* him, And <now that he hath lien down> he will not again* rise.

9 Even the man whom I used to salute, In whom I put confidence, Who used to eat my bread! — Hath magnified his heel against me!

10 But < thou, O Yahweh*> shew me favour and raise me up, That I may repay them. II Hereby do I know that thou delightest in me, In that mine enemy shall not raise a shout over me.

11 But <as for me ]] In my blamelessness hast thou held me fast, And hast caused me to stand before thee unto times age-abiding.

12 Blessed be Yahweh, the God of Israel, From the age that is past, even unto the age yet to come: * Amen and Amen !

13 These things I keep calling to mind, and pouring out, over me, my own soul, For I used to cross over with a crowd, Lead them in procession up to the house of God, With the voice of shouting and praise,— a throng keeping festival.

3 Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul? And [why]* shouldst thou morn over me! Wait thou for God, for yet* shall I praise him, As the triumph of my* presence. *

My God! my soul is cast down,—
For this cause will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, And the Hermons, from the hill Mizhar.
<For this cause> will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, And the Hermons, from the hill Mizhar.
All thy breakers and thy rolling waves have passed.
By day will Yahweh command his loving-kindness, And in the night shall His song be with me, My prayer be to the God of my life.
I will say unto God—my rock.
Wherefore hast thou forgotten me? Wherefore should I go because of oppression by the enemy?
With a crushing of my bones have my adversaries reproached me,— While they keep saying unto me all the day.
Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul? And why shouldst thou moan over me?
Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him, As the triumph of my presence, and my God.

PSALM 48

Vindicateme, O God, and plead my cause, Against a nation without lovingkindness, <From the man of deceit and perversity> wilt thou deliver me?
For thou art my defending God,— Wherefore hast thou rejected me? Wherefore in gloom should I wander, because of the oppression of an enemy?
Send forth thy light and thy faithfulness, Let them lead me into thy holy mountain, and into thy habitations:
That I may go unto the altar of God, Unto God, mine exultant joy,— That I may praise thee with the lyre,
O God—mine own God!
Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul? And why shouldst thou moan over me?
Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him, As the triumph of my presence, and my God.

PSALM 44

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. An Instructive Psalm.
O God! <with our own ear> have we heard, Our fathers have recounted to us,— The work thou didst work In their days,
In the days of aforesight:
Thou thyself, with thine own hand,— Didst dispossess nations,
And didst plant them;
Didst break peoples in pieces, And didst spread them out:
For <not by their own sword> gat they possession of the land, Nor did [their own arm] win victory for them,— But thine own right hand, and thine own arm, and the light of thy face. Because thou hadst accepted them.
Thou thyself; art my king, O God, Command thou the victories of Jacob.
In thy Name will we thrust at [our adversaries], In God have we boasted all the day, And <thy Name—unto times age-abiding> will we praise. [Selah.
But nay* thou hast rejected, and confounded us, And wilt not go forth with our hosts;
Thou sufferest us to turn back from the adversary, And 'they who hate us' have plundered at will:
Thou dost give us up like sheep to be devoured, And <amongst the nations> hast thou scattered us.
Thou dost sell thy people for no-value, And hast not made increase by their price.
Thou dost make us A reproach to our neighbours, A mockery and a derision' to them who are round about us:
Thou dost make us A by-word among the nations,— A shaking of the head among the peoples.
<All the day> is my confusion before me, And the shame of my face hath covered me:

Or: (O.G.) "water-splashes."
Some cod. (w. Syr. and Vul.) the word "God" is brought back from next ver., thus: "The victory of my presence and my God.
Over," etc. Cp. ver. 11 and Ps. xiii. 5—G.n.
See previous note.

PSALMS XLII. 6—11; XLIII.; XLIV. 1—15.
At the voice of him who reproacheth and revileth,
At the face of the foe and avenger.

Yet had we not forgotten thee,
Neither had we dealt falsely with thy covenant;
Our heart had not drawn back,
Nor had our going* swerved from thy path;
That thou shouldst have crushed us down in the place of wild dogs,
And covered us over with a deadly shadow.

Would not [God] have searched into this,
Seeing that [he] knoweth the secrets of the heart?

Surely <for thy sake> have we been slain all the day,
We have been accounted as sheep for slaughter.

Awake thou! wherefore shouldest thou sleep,
O Lord?* Restir thee! do not reject us altogether!
Wherefore shouldest thou hide thy face?
Shouldst forget our humiliation and our oppression?
For our soul [sinketh down to the dust],
Our body [cleaveth to the earth].

Arise to our help,
And ransom us, because of thine own loving-kindness.

PSALM 45.

To the Chief Musician. On* Shoshannim.*
For the Sons of Korah. A Psalm of Instruction. A Song of Love.

Overflowed hath my heart, with an excellent theme,
I will recite my poem concerning the king,
Be my tongue [like] the pen of a scribe who is skilled.

Most beautiful thou art, beyond the sons of men,
Graciousness hath been poured forth by thy lips,
<For this cause> hath God blessed thee, to times age-abiding.

Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O mighty one,
'Tis thine honour and thy majesty;
And in thy majesty be successful! ride forth!
On behalf of faithfulness, and humility—righteousness,
And let thine own right hand shew thee wonderful things.

Thine arrows are sharp—
Peoples <under thee> fall!
In the heart of the foes of the king.

Thy throne, O God || is to times age-abiding and beyond,
<A sceptre of equity> is the sceptre of thy kingdom.
Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated lawlessness—
<For this cause> hath God, thine own God, anointed thee
With the oil of gladness, beyond thy partners.*

Myrrh and aloes, causias, *all thy garments,—
<Out of the palaces of ivory> [the tones of strings] have rejoiced thee.
Daughters of kings are among thine honourable women,*
Stationed is the bride at thy right hand, in gold of Ophir.

Hearken, O daughter, and observe,
Incline also thine ear,
Forget, then, thine own people,
And the house of thy father;
When the king shall desire thy beauty,
Surely [he] is thy lord, then bow down to him.
Also [the daughter of Tyre] [cometh in] with a present!
 Thy face shall the rich of the people appease.

All glorious—the daughter of a king [sitteth] within,
Brocades, wrought with gold> [are] her clothing!
In embroidered raiment shall she be brought unto the king,—
The virgins that follow her, her companions, are to be conducted unto thee:
They shall be brought, with rejoicings and exultation,—
They shall enter into the palace of the king!

|Instead of thy b fathers| be thy sons,
Thou shalt make them rulers in all the earth.

I will keep in remembrance thy Name, through each succeeding generation,
<For this cause> peoples shall praise thee, to times age-abiding and beyond.
PSALM 46.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah, on Alamoth. A Song.

1 God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.

2 Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carrying into the sea;

3 Though the waters thereof roar and be tumultuous, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof.

4 If I were a bashful person, I would not fear.

5 The city of God is in the midst of her; she shall not be removed:

6 Nations have roared, kingdoms have been moved: he hath swallowed them up as the waters.

7 All the princes of the earth shall worship before him: all they shall obey his voice.

8 He will establish his kingdom for ever, and from the beginning he will establish it.

9 Be prudent, all ye who dwell in the earth, to the end that thy name be not cut off forever.

10 The Lord is King, let the earth rejoice; let the remotest parts thereof remember.

PSALM 47.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 All ye peoples, shout to the Lord; give praise with a loud voice.

2 For he is a King, even to the King of glory; the voice of the Lord is mighty in praise.

3 The voice of the Lord is full of power; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

4 The voice of the Lord is a voice of the strong; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

5 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

6 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

7 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

8 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

9 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

10 The voice of the Lord is full of majesty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

PSALM 48.

A Melodious Song. For the Sons of Korah.

1 The head of Jacob, which the Lord hath chosen,

2 Is called the pasture of his shepherds for ever:

3 The shepherds shall feed in judgment, and seek knowledge and understanding.

4 He will come down from on high, he will come down from the mountain.

5 The Lord will love the earth, and the house of Jacob his city.

6 The Lord will establish his people for ever, and his servants the house of Jacob for ever.

7 They are the people of the Lord, and he is their protector.

8 They shall possess him, because he is their God.
PSALMS XLVIII. 11—14; XLIX.; L, 1—3.

11 Let Mount Zion rejoice,
   Let the daughters of Judah exult,
   Because of thy judgments.

12 Go round Zion, and compass her about,
   Reckon up her towers;

13 Apply your mind* to her rampart,
   Pass between her palaces,
   That ye may recount them to an after generation;

14 For this is our God, to times age-abiding and beyond,
   He himself will conduct us till death.

PSALM 49.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

Hear ye this, all ye peoples,
Give ear, all ye inhabitants of this passing world;
Both sons of the low And sons of the high,—
Together both rich and needy:
My mouth shall speak forth Wisdom,
And the soft utterance of my heart be Understanding:
I will bend, to a by-word, mine ear,
I will open, on the lyre, mine enigma.

Wherefore should I fear in the days of calamity,
Though the iniquity of them who lie in wait for me should enclose me?

As for them who are trusting in their wealth,—
And in the abundance of their riches do boast themselves
A brother can none of them redeem,
He cannot give unto God a ransom for himself:
So costly is the redemption of their soul,
That it faileth unto times age-abiding:
That he should yet live on continually,
Should not see corruption.

For it is seen that the wise die,
Together with the dullard and the brutish do they perish,
And leave, to others, their wealth:
Their inward thought is that their houses are for times age-abiding.

Their habitations, for generation after generation,—
They give their own names unto lands!

But a son of earth, though wealthy cannot tarry
He hath made himself a by-word—
<Beasts> they resemble!

This, their way; is a folly to them,
And yet their followers< with their mouth > approve.
[Selah.]

Like sheep—into Hades > are they driven.
Death shall shepherd them,—
And the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning.
Even their form is to decay
Hades is all that remaineth of a habitation for him.

But God will redeem my soul, out of the hand of Hades,
For he will take me. [Selah.]

Do not fear
When a man becometh rich,
When the glory of his house increaseth;
For <when he dieth> he shall take nothing,
His glory shall not descend after him;
For <though his own self>—while he lived—
he used to bless,
And they will praise thee, when thou dost well to thyself>
He shall enter as far as the circles of his fathers,
Nevermore shall they see the light.

A son of earth though wealthy, who discerneth not:
Hath made himself a by-word.
<Beasts> they resemble!

PSALM 61.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. When Nathan the Prophet had come to him, after he had gone in unto Bath-sheba.

1 Be favourable unto me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness, And <in the multitude of thy compassions> blot out my transgressions; |
| 2 | Thoroughly' wash me from mine iniquity, And <from my sin> make me pure; |
| 3 | For <my transgressions> do ||I|| acknowledge, And ||my sin|| is before me continually: |
| 4 | Against thee— against thee alone have I sinned, And <wickedness—in thine eyes> have I done,— That thou mayest Be justified when thou speakest,— b Be clear when thou judgest. |
| 5 | Lo! <in iniquity> was I brought forth, And <in sin> did my mother' conceive me. |
| 6 | Lo! <faithfulness> hast thou desired in the inward parts, Yea <in the hidden part> wilt thou cause me to know |wisdom|. |
| 7 | Wilt thou cleanse me from sin* with hyssop, That I may be pure? Wilt thou wash me, That I may be whiter |than snow|? |
| 8 | Wilt thou cause me to hear| joy and gladness? The bones thou hast crushed |would exult|. |
| 9 | Hide thy face from my sins,— And <all mine iniquities> blot out; |
| 10 | A pure heart> create for me, O God, And  renew within me. |
| 11 | Do not cast me away from thy presence, And <thy Holy Spirit> do not take from me: |
| 12 | Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, Some cod. (w. ear. pr. edns., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "And there will be a way by which," etc. But ut: "And him who is blameless in his way will I shew the salvation of God"—G.n. |
| 13 | Some cod. (w. ear. pr. edns., 1 Rebk., Sep. and Vul.): "in thy words" |(pl.)—G.n. |

And with a willing spirit wilt thou uphold me:
13 I would teach transgressors thy ways, And [sinner] unto thee should return.
14 Rescue me from shed-blood, O God, the God of my salvation,
My tongue should shout thy righteousness;
15 O My Lord! <my lips> wilt thou open,
And my mouth shall declare thy praise.
16 For thou wilt not desire sacrifice—that I should give it,
Ascending-offering will not please;
17 The sacrifices of God are a spirit that is broken,—
<A heart—broken and crushed> O God, thou wilt not despise.
18 Do good, in thy good-pleasure, unto Zion,
Wilt thou build the walls of Jerusalem!
19 ||Then shall thou desire the sacrifices of righteousness,
Ascending-sacrifice and whole burnt-offering,
Then shall ascend upon thine altar, young bulls.

PSALM 52.
To the Chief Musician. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When Doeth the Edomite went, and told Saul; and said to him,—David hath entered the house of Ahimelech.

1 Why dost thou boast thyself of wickedness, O mighty man? The lovingkindness of God [lasteth] all the day. I—Engulfing ruin doth thy tongue devise, Like a whetted razor, working deceit;
3 Thou lovest Evil more than good, Falsehood, more than speaking righteousness. [Selah.]
4 Thou lovest all devouring words, O deceitful tongue!
5 God also will break thee down utterly,— He will snatch thee up and tear thee away tawless, And uproot thee, out of the land of the living. [Selah.]
6 The righteous shall behold fear, And over him shall laugh:
7 Lo! the man who made not God's his refuge,— But trusted in the abundance of his riches, Emboldened himself in his wealth!
8 But I am like a flourishing' olive-tree, in the house of God,
I have put confidence in the lovingkindness of God, for times age-abiding and beyond.
9 I will praise thee to times age-abiding. Because thou didst effectually work,—

And I will wait on *thy Name, Because it is good, In the presence of thy men b of lovingkindness.

PSALM 53.
To the Chief Musician. On “Mahalath.” A Psalm of Instruction, of David.
1 The impious hath said in his heart, There is no God! They have acted corruptly. They have wrought abominable perversity, There is none' that doeth good:
2 ||God <out of the heavens> looked down upon the sons of men,— To see whether there was one that shewed wisdom, Enquiring after God.
3 ||They all have turned back, Together have they become tainted,— There is none' that doeth good, Not so much as ||one!!
4 Are the workers d of iniquity |without knowledge|?
5 Devouring my people, [as] they devour food? <Upon God> have they not called.
6 There' have they been in great dread! where no dread was, Because ||God|| hath scattered the bones of thy besieger,— Thou hast put [him] to shame, Because ||God|| had |rejected| them.
7 Oh that <out of Zion> were granted the salvationb of Israel! <When God> bringeth back the captivesb of his people> Jacob' shall exult, Israel' shall be glad.

PSALM 54.
To the Chief Musician: with Stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When the Ziphites came and said unto Saul, Is not ||David|| hiding himself |with us|?

* Ml.: "dreaded a dread."
* In some MSS. is found the verse:— "The purpose of the poor ye would put to shame, Because Yahweh is his refuge."—Cp. Ps. xiv. 6—G.n.
O God! Hear my prayer,
Give ear to the sayings of my mouth;
For insolent men have risen up against me,
And men of violence have sought my life.
They have not set God before them. [Selah.

Lo! [God] is bringing me help,
My Lord is with the upholders of my life;
Let him turn back the mischief upon mine adversaries,
In thy faithfulness destroy them!

With a freewill-offering* will I sacrifice unto thee,
I will praise thy Name, O Yahweh, for it is good;
For out of all distress hath he rescued me,—
And upon my foes hath my own eye looked.

PSALM 55.
To the Chief Musician: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David.

1 Give ear, O God, to my prayer,
And do not hide thyself from my supplication:
2 Attend unto me, and answer me,
I may ramble in my complaining
And be driven to and fro—
Because of the noise of the enemy.
By reason of the oppression of the lawless one,
For they would let trouble drop upon me,
And in anger would they entrap me.

3 My heart would writhe within me.
And the terrors of Death have fallen upon me:
Fear and trembling would enter me,
And there would have overwhelmed me—a horror!

Then I said—
Oh that there were given me a pinion, like a dove,
I would fly away and be at rest:

Lo! I would take a distant flight,
I would tarry in the wilderness.
[Selah.

I would hasten mine escape,
From rushing wind, from storm.

Confuse, O My Lord, divide their speech,
For I have seen violence and contention in the city;
Day and night they go round her, upon her walls,
And trouble and misery are in her midst;

PSALM 66.
To the Chief Musician. Upon "The Dove of God from the distant Sea."* David's. A precious Psalm. b When the Philistines seized him in Gath.

1 Shew me favour, O God,
For weak man hath panted for me,
All the day a fighter oppresseth me:
My adversaries have panted all the day,
Unto thee will I direct my confidence.
1I will praise, his cause,—
What can flesh do unto me?

2 <What day I am afraid>
III unto thee' will direct my confidence.
4 </h Ood> I will praise, his cause,—
In the light of life.
1:1 For thou hast rescued my soul from death.
Wilt thou not [rescue] my feet from stumbling?
That I may walk to and fro
Before God, in the light of life.

PSALM 57.
To the Chief Musician. "Do not destroy." A precious Psalm | | of David [I. When he fled from the face of Saul into the Cave.

1 Shew me favour, O God,
Shew me favour,
For in thee hath my soul sought refuge,
And <in the shadow of thy wings> will I seek refuge
Until the storm of ruin pass by.
2 I will cry unto God Most High,
Unto God, who accomplisheth on my behalf:
3 He will send out of heaven, that he may save me.
He who is panting for me hath reproached me.
[Selah.
God will send out his lovingkindness and his faithfulness.
4 :My soul is in the midst of lions,
I lie down amidst flames,—
Their teeth are spear and arrows,
And their tongue is a sharp sword.
5 Be exalted Above the Heavens, O God,
Above all the earth, thy glory!
6 <A net> did they fix for my steps,
My soul was bowed down,—
They fell into the midst thereof! [Selah.

7 Fixed' is my heart, O God,
Fixed' is my heart,
I will sing, and touch the strings.
8 Awake, mine honour,
Awake, harp* and lyre.
I will awaken the dawn;
I will praise thee in song, among the races of men.
9 For <great, unto the heavens> is thy loving-kindness,
And <unto the skies> thy faithfulness.
10 For <great, unto the heavens> is thy loving-kindness,
And <unto the skies> thy faithfulness.
11 Be exalted Above the Heavens, O God,
Above all the earth, thy glory!

PSALM 58.
To the Chief Musician. "Do not destroy." A precious Psalm || of David||.

1 Are ye indeed silent [when] righteousness ye should speak?
When <with equity> ye should judge, O ye sons of men?
2 Aye ! ye all4 do work |perversity|,—
<Throughout the land> |your hands| weigh out ||violence|.*
Lawless men have been estranged’ from birth,
They have gone astray’ from their nativity,’ speaking falsehood;
3 Or: "lute"—O.G.
4 Heb.: adonay.
5 Or: "that." [That is, Gt. kim shd be read for kum]. Cp. Exo. xv.
11—O.n.
6 So according to some authorities. "Meaning unknown"—O.G.
7 Or: "praise because of him." 4 U: "soul."
8 "strangely: contr. civii.
9 "—O.O. 529.
Their poison is like unto the poison of a serpent,
Like the deaf adder, that stoppeth his ear;
That will not hearken to the voice of whisperers,
Though the wise one try to bind him with spells.
O God! break away their teeth in their mouth,
<The biters of the young lions> knock thou out, O Yahweh!
Let such men flow away like waters that disparate themselves:
He prepareth his arrow,
Like [grass]b let them be cut down:
Like a snail, which melteth away as it goeth,
An untimely birth of a woman, which hath not seen the sun:
<Before your kettles can perceive the [kindled] bramble>
Be he green or be he withered he shall be swept away.
The righteous man will rejoice when he hath seen an avenging,
<His feet> will be bathe in the blood of the lawless one:—
So that a son of earth may say—
Surely' there is fruit for the righteous man!
Surely' there are' gods who judge in the earth!

PSALM 59.
To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy."
A precious Psalm of David. When Saul sent, and they watched the house, to kill him.

Rescue me from my foes, O my God,
<From them who lift themselves up against me> wilt thou set me on high:
Rescue me, from the workers of iniquity,
And <from the men of bloodshed> save me.
For lo! they have lain in wait for my life.
Mighty ones stir up strife against me,
Without transgression of mine, and without sin of mine, O Yahweh;
<For no iniquity> do they run that they may take their stand,
Rouse thyself to meet me, and see.
Thou, therefore, O Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel

Awake, to visit all the nations,
Do not shew favour to any iniquitous traitors.

They return at evening,
They grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

Lo! they belch forth with their mouth,
[Swords] are in their lips.
For [say they] Who doth hear?
Thou, therefore, O Yahweh, wilt laugh at them,
Thou wilt mock at all nations.
O my Strength unto thee will I make melody,
For [God] is my high tower.
My God of lovingkindness will come to meet me,
[God] will let me look on mine adversaries.
Do not slay them, lest my people' forget.
Cause them to wander by thy strength, and prostrate them,
[Thou] our shield, O Lord!
<The sin of their mouth,
The word of their lips>
Let them then be captured in their pride,
Both for the oath and for the deception they record.
Bring to a full end in wrath,
Bring to a full end, that they be no' more,—
That men may know that [God] is ruling in Jacob,
Unto the ends of the earth.

Let them return, then, at evening,
Let them grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

They may prowl about for food,—
And <if they are not satisfied> then let them whine!
But I will sing thy power,
And will shout aloud, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,—
For thou hast become a refuge for me,
And a place to flee to in the day of my distress.
O my Strength, unto thee will I make melody,
For [God] is my high tower, my God of lovingkindness.

Let them return then at evening,
Let them grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

They may prowl about for food,—
And <if they are not satisfied> then let them whine!

The sin of their mouth,
The word of their lips>
Let them then be captured in their pride,
Both for the oath and for the deception they record.
Bring to a full end in wrath,
Bring to a full end, that they be no' more,—
That men may know that [God] is ruling in Jacob,
Unto the ends of the earth. [Selah.]

Let them return then at evening,
Let them grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

They may prowl about for food,—
And <if they are not satisfied> then let them whine!
But I will sing thy power,
And will shout aloud, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,—
For thou hast become a refuge for me,
And a place to flee to in the day of my distress.
O my Strength, unto thee will I make melody,
For [God] is my high tower, my God of lovingkindness.
PSALM 60.

To the Chief Musician. Upon "The Lily of Testimony." A precious Psalm of David, to instruct. When he waged war with Aram-naharaim, and with Aram-zobah, and then Joab returned and smote of Edom in the Valley of Salt, twelve thousand.

1 O God, thou hast rejected us—hast scattered us, Thou hast been angry, Wilt thou restore us?
2 Thou hast shaken the land—hast rent it, Heal thou the fractures thereof—for it hath tottered:
3 Thou hast suffered thy people to see hardship, Thou hast let them drink the wine of confusion.
4 Thou hast given—to them that revere thee—a banner, to float aloft,* Because of [thy] faithfulness.* [Selah.]
5 "That thy beloved ones may be delivered— Save thou with thine own right hand—and answer us."
6 [God] hath spoken in his holiness— I will exult! I will apportion Shechem, And <the Vale of Succoth> will I measure out; Thou hadst given—to them that revere thee—a banner, to float aloft, Because of [thy] faithfulness.* [Selah.]
7 *"Days—unto the days of the king" wilt thou add. *"My high tower"—I shall not be greatly shaken!
8 *Surely <towards God> is mine expectation:
   "With his mouth" they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile. [Selah.]

PSALM 61.

To the Chief Musician. Upon a Stringed Instrument.* David's.

1 Hear, O God, my loud cry, Attend unto my prayer:
2 <From the end of the earth> unto thee do I cry, When my heart fainteth away,
3 For thou hast been A Refuge to me. A Tower of Strength, from the face of the foe. I would be a guest in thy tent to the ages, I would seek refuge in the concealment* of thy wings.
4 [Selah.]
5 For [thou, O God] hast hearkened to my vows, Thou hast granted a possession* unto them who revere thy Name.
6 <Days—unto the days of the king> wilt thou add. <His years> as of generation after generation:
7 Let him retain his seat of age-abidingly* before God, Appoint that lovingkindness and faithfulness may watch over him!
8 *So will I sing thy Name unto futurity, Paying my vows, day by day.

PSALM 62.

To the Chief Musician. On* Jeduthun— A Melody of David.

1 Surely toward God> silence (becometh) my soul, From him is my salvation: Surely he is my rock and my salvation, My high tower— I shall not be greatly shaken!
2 How long wilt thou shout at a man? Ye shall be crushed all of you,—Lik a wall that bulgeth,—a fence pushed in!
3 *Surely <from his elevation> they have taken counsel to thrust him down. They accept falsehood,—<With his mouth> they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile. [Selah.]
4 *Surely <towards God> is mine expectation:
   "With his mouth" they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile. [Selah.]
5 *Surely <towards God> is mine expectation:
   "With his mouth" they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile. [Selah.]

7 Upon God [depend] my salvation and mine honour, ||My rock of strength, my refuge: are in God.
8 Trust ye in him all ye assembly of the people;* Pour out, before him, your heart, ||God is a refuge for us. [Selah.
9 Surely <vanity> are men of low degree, <Deception> men of high degree,— <In the balances> they go up, ||They are [made] of vanity [altogether].
10 Do not trust in extortion, Nor <with robbery> become vain,— <As for wealth> <when it beareth fruit> Do not set [thereon] your heart.
11 One thing> hath God spoken, <Two things> [there are] which I have heard, b That ||power| belongeth unto God;
12 And <thine>, O My Lord, is lovingkindness,— For ||thou|| wilt pay back unto every man— according to his deed.

PSALM 63.
A Melody of David. When he was in the Wilderness of Judah.
1 O God, <in my God> thou art', Earnestly do I desire thee,— My soul thirsteth for thee, My flesh fainteth for thee, In* a land—dry, and weary for want of water,—
2 <In like manner> as [in the sanctuary] I have had vision of thee To behold thy power and thy glory.
3 <Because better' is thy lovingkindness than life> ||My lips|| aloud shall praise thee!
4 ||Thus|| will I bless thee while I live, <In thy Name> will I lift up mine outspread hands:
5 <As with fatness and richness> shall my soul be satisfied, And <with joyfully shouting lips> shall my mouth utter praise.
6 <Should I call thee to mind upon my couch> <In the watches of the night> would I breathe soft speech of thee.
7 For thou hast become a help unto me,— And <in the shadow of thy wings> will I shout for joy.
8 My soul hath run clinging to thee, <On me> hath thy right hand laid hold.
9 <When ||they|| to crush it] would seek my life> They shall go into the lower parts of the earth:
10 Every one shall be given up into the power of the sword, <The portion of jackals> shall they become.

PSALM 64.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.
1 Hear, O God, my voice when I complain, <From dread peril by the foe> wilt thou guard my life.
2 Wilt thou hide me From the conclave of evil-doers, From the crowd of workers of iniquity.
3 Who have sharpened, like a sword, their tongue, Have made ready their arrow—a bitter word;
4 To shoot, in secret places, at the blameless one, Suddenly' they shoot at him, and fear not.
5 They strengthen for them a wicked' word. They talk of hiding snares, They have said, Who can see them?
6 They devise perverse things, They have completed the device well devised, Both the intent of each one, and the mind are unsearchable.

PSALM 65.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David—a Song.
1 Thine <silence> [and] praise, O God,in Zion.— And <to thee> shall be paidthe vow. Thou hearer of prayer!
2 Unto thee> shall all flesh come.
3 Iniquitous things|| have been too strong for me, <As for our transgressions> wilt thou by propitiation remove them.
4 How happy the man thou shalt choose and bring near! He shall abide in thy courts, —

We shall be satisfied with
The blessing of thy house,
The holiness of thy temple.

5 By things reverend in righteousness wilt thou answer us,
O God of our salvation,
The confidence of all the ends of the earth,
And of the sea far away:

6 Who setteth fast the mountains by his strength,
Being girded with might;

7 Who stilleth
The noise of the seas,
The noise of their rolling waves, and
The tumult of races of men?

8 Yea the dwellers in the uttermost parts have feared at thy tokens,
The goings forth of morning and evening thou causest to shout for joy.

9 Thou hast visited the earth, and made it abound,
Abundantly dost thou enrich it—
The channel of God is full of waters,
Thou preparest their corn,
Yea [thus] dost thou prepare it:

10 <The ridgethereof> drenching,
Settling the furrows thereof,
<With myriad drops> dost thou soften it,
<The sprouting thereof> dost thou bless.

11 Thou hast set a crown upon thy year of bounty,
And thy tracks drop fatness;

12 Fruitful 'are the pastures of the wilderness,
And <with exultation> the hills do gird themselves.

13 Clothed 'are the pastures with flocks,
The valleys also cover themselves with corn,
They shout for joy, yea 'they sing.

PSALM 66.

To the Chief Musician. A Melodious Song.

1 Make a joyful noise unto God, all the earth;
2 Praise ye in song the glory of his Name,
3 Say unto God—
How fearfulin thy doings,
<Through the abounding of thy power> shall thy foes come cringing unto thee;
4 All the earth shall bow themselves down to thee,
And sing praises unto thee.
Shall praise in song thy Name. [Selah.

5 Come and see the doings of God,—
Fearful' in deed toward the sons of men:
6 He turned these saintodry land.
<Through the stream> crossed they over on foot,
There' did we rejoice in him:

7 Who ruleth, in his might, unto times age-abiding,
His eyes [over the nations] keep watch,
<The rebellious> let them not exalt themselves.
[Selah.

8 Bless our God. O ye peoples,
And cause to be heard, the sound of his praise);

9 Who hath set our soul among the living,
And hath not suffered [our foot] to slip.

10 For thou didst prove us, O God,
Thou didst refine us, according to the refining of silver:

11 Thou didst bring us into the hunter's net,
Thou didst lay a load upon our loins;

12 Thou didst let men ride at our head;
We went into fire and into water,
But thou didst bring us forth into freedom.

13 I will enter thy house with ascending-sacrifices,
I will pay unto thee my vows,

14 Which my lips uttered,
My mouth spake, in my distress.

15 With the perfume of rams,
I will offer bulls, with he-goats. [Selah.

PSALM 67.

To the Chief Musician. With stringed Instruments. A Melody, 'a Song.

1 God will be favourable to us and bless us,
Cause his face to shine upon us. [Selah.

2 That thy way' may be known throughout the earth,
<Throughout all nations> thy saving help!

PSALM 68.

To the Chief Musician. David's. A
Melody, a Song.

1 Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered',
Yes let them that hate him flee before him: —
As smoke is driven out>
Let them be driven out, —
As wax is melted before a fire>
Let the lawless perish before God.
2 But let the righteous be glad, let them exult before God,
Yes let them rejoice with gladness.
3 Sing ye to God
Make music of his Name,—
Lift up (a song),* to him that rideth through the waste plains,—
Since Yah is his name> exult ye before
   him.

4 <The father of the fatherless,
And the advocate of widows>
Is God, in his holy habitation.
5 God] is he that causeth the solitary to dwell in a home,!
That bringeth out prisoners into prosperity,
But the rebellious! have made their habitation
   in a sunburnt land.
6 O God! <When thou camest forth before thy people,
When thou didst stride through the wilderness>
   [Selah.

Earth] trembled,
Yea the heavens] dripped at the presence of
   God,—
This Sinai]—at the presence of God, the God of Israel.
7 <A bounteous rain| dost thou shed abroad.
   O God, upon thine inheritance,°
   The living host.'h have remained therein.
Thou dost provide, in thy bounty, for the humbled one—O God!
8 <Let ]My Lord|| but give the word>
   The herald bands! will be a mighty host : —
   Kings of armies! they flee! they flee!
And she that stayeth at home]| shall share
   the spoil. !
9 Though ye rest between the folds>
   The wings of the dove| shall be covered with silver,
And her pinions° with green-shimmering gold.
10 When the Almighty scattereth kings therein>
It will gleam like snow in the gloom.*
11 <A mighty'mountain| is the mountain
   of Bashan,
<A mountain of peaks| is the mountain
   of Bashan>—
12 Wherefore' start ye up,* ye mountains, ye peaks? —
The mountain God hath coveted for his habitation>
Surely, ||Yahweh| will inhabit it evermore !
13 The chariots of God| are two myriads —
thousands repeated,
My Lord! is among them,
Sinai] is in the sanctuary !
14 Thou hast ascended on high,
Thou hast led in procession! a body of captives
Thou hast received gifts consisting of men,
Ye even the rebellious,
That ||Yah, Elohim| might settle down to rest.°
15 Blessed' be My Lord !
Day by day| he beareth our burden for us,
God himself! is our salvation.° [Selah.
16 The God we have| is a God of saving deeds,°
And <due to Yahweh, My Lord> are escapes from death,°
17 You ||God himself| will smite through the head of his foes,—
The hairy crown' of him that is marching on in his guilty deeds.
22 Said My Lord,
<From Bashan> will I bring back,—
I will bring back from the depths of the sea:

1 I have sunk in a deep swamp.
Where there is no place to stand,
I have come into abysses of waters.
Where a flood hath overflowed me;

2 I am weary with mine outcry.
Parched is my throat,—
Mine eyes have become dim, through waiting for my God.

3 <More than the hairs of my head>
Are they who hate me without cause,—
<Fierner than my bones>★
Are they who are my foes for false cause,—
<What I had not plundered> [then]★ had I to restore.

4 O God, thou hast known my folly,
And my wrong-doings [from thee] have not been hid.

5 Let them not be ashamed, through me.
Who have waited for thee, O My Lord.
Ye kings of the earth; sing unto God,
Praise in song Adonay. [Selah.

6 Unto him that rideth upon the most ancient heavens,
Lo! he uttereth his voice, a voice of strength.
Assiye strength unto God,—
Over Israel is his majesty.
And his strength, in the skies.
To be revered is God, for his sanctuary;—
As for the God of Israel [he] is giving strength and abundant might to the people.
Blessed be God!

PSALM 69.

To the Chief Musician. On “The Lilies.”
David’s.

1 Save me, O God,
For waters have entered as far as the life;

2 I have sunk in a deep swamp.
Where there is no place to stand,
I have come into abysses of waters.
Where a flood hath overflowed me;

3 I am weary with mine outcry.
Parched is my throat,—
Mine eyes have become dim, through waiting for my God.

4 <More than the hairs of my head>
Are they who hate me without cause,—
<Fierner than my bones>★
Are they who are my foes for false cause,—
<What I had not plundered> [then]★ had I to restore.

5 O God, thou hast known my folly,
And my wrong-doings [from thee] have not been hid.

6 Let them not be ashamed, through me.
Who have waited for thee, O My Lord.
Ye kings of the earth; sing unto God,
Praise in song Adonay. [Selah.

7 Because of thy temple above Jerusalem>
Unto thee shall kings bear along a gift—
Rebuke thou
The wild beast of the reeds.
The herd of mighty oxen among the calves of the peoples—
Each one bowing down★ with bars of silver,—
Scatter thou★ the peoples, who in wars' take delight.

8 <Because of thy temple above Jerusalem>
<Te Ethipian eager> stretcheth out★ his hands, unto God.

9 Ye kingdoms of the earth: sing unto God,
Praise in song Adonay. [Selah.

10 Unto him that rideth upon the most ancient heavens.
Lo! he uttereth his voice, a voice of strength.
Assiye strength unto God,—
Over Israel is his majesty.
And his strength, in the skies.
To be revered is God, for his sanctuary;—
As for the God of Israel [he] is giving strength and abundant might to the people.
Blessed be God!

11 When I have humbled my soul with fasting★
Then hath it turned to my reproach;
12 <When I have made my clothing of sackcloth>★
Then have I served them for a by-word;
13 They who sit in the gate talk against me,—
And [against me are] the songs★ of them who imbibe strong drink.
14 But [as for me] my prayer shall be unto thee,
O Yahweh, in a time of acceptance.
O God [in the abounding of thy loving-kindness] answer me with thy saving faithfulness.

15 Rescue me out of the mire, lest I sink,
Let me be rescued From my haters, and From abysses of waters:
16 Let not a flood of waters overflow me,
And let not the depth swallow me up, ★
Neither let the well close, over me, her mouth.

17 Answer me, O Yahweh, for good' is thy loving-kindness,
<According to the abounding of thy compassions> turn thou toward me:
17 Then do not hide thy face from thy servant,
<Because I am in distress> haste thee—answer me!

18 Then answer me, O Yahweh, for good is thy loving-kindness,

23 Let them not be ashamed, through me.
Who have waited for thee, O My Lord.

24 Yahweh of hosts,★
Let them not be confounded, through me.
Who are seeking thee, O God of Israel:

25 Because <for thy sake> have I borne reproach,
Confusion hath covered my face;
26 One estranged have I become, to my own brethren,
Yea an alien to the sons of mine own mother;

27 Because [zeal] for thy house] hath eaten me up,
And [the reproaches of them who have reproached thee]★ have fallen upon me.

28 When I have humbled my soul with fasting★
Then hath it turned to my reproach;
29 When I have made my clothing of sackcloth★
Then have I served them for a by-word;
30 They who sit in the gate talk against me,—

Let them' draw back, and be confounded,
Who are taking pleasure in my misfortune;
21 For my mountain crag and my stronghold
thou art. O Yahweh, dost attend me
For my mountain crag and my stronghold
thou art. O Yahweh, dost attend me.
22 The humble have seen—they rejoice!
Ye seekers of God, let your heart, then, revive!
23 For a Hearkener to the needy is Yahweh,
And <his prisoners> hath he not despised.
24 Let the heavens and the earth praise him,
These seas, and everything that creepeth therein.

PSALM 70.

To the Chief Musician. David's. To call to Remembrance.*
1 <In thee, O Yahweh> have I sought refuge,
May I not be ashamed unto times age-abiding:
2 <In thy righteousness> wilt thou rescue me
and deliver me,
Incline unto me thine ear, and save me:
3 Be thou unto me a Rock to dwell in,
A Place of Security.
To save me,
For <my mountain crag and my stronghold>
thou art.
4 Oh my God, deliver me
From the hand of the lawless one,
From the clutch of the perverse and ruthless one;
5 For thou art my hope, My Lord, Yahweh,
My confidence from my youthful days:
6 <Upon thee> have I stayed myself from birth.
Thou' art that severed me from the body
Of my mother!
7 A very wonder have I seen unto many,
Seeing that thou hast been my strong refuge;
8 My mouth shall be filled with thy praise,
All the day > with thy splendour.
PSALM 72.
Solomon's.

1 O God! thy justice > give unto the king, And thy righteousness unto the son of a king;
2 May he judge Thy people with righteousness; And thine oppressed ones with justice; May the mountains bring peace to the people, And the hills [be laden] with righteousness; May he vindicate the oppressed of the people, Bring deliverance to the children of the needy, and Crush the oppressor.

3 Let men reverence thee With the sun, And in presence of the moon, Unto the remotest generation.
4 Let him come down Like rain on fields to be mown, Like myriad drops on land to be reaped.
5 May righteousness * in his days, blossom forth, And abundance of peace, till there be no moon.
6 So let him have dominion From sea to sea, And from the River [= "Euphrates"] unto the ends of the earth; Before him let the men of the desert kneel. But * as for his foes! * the dust * let them lick;
7 The kings of Tarshish and of the Coastlands * A gift * let them render, The kings of Sheba and Seba * A present * let them bring; Yea let all kings bow down unto him, Let all nations serve him; Because he Rescuethe needy from the rich,' The oppressed, who hath no' helper;
8 He Pitieth the weak and the needy, And * the lives * of the needy he Saveth: From extortion and violence he Re deemeth their life, * And precious' is their blood in his sight.
9 Let him live, then ! And be there given unto him of the gold of Sheba,—
10 [A reading followed above on the strength of the parallelism.]

PSALMS LXXI. 9—24; LXXII. 1—15.

9 Do not cast me off in the time of old age, When my vigour faileth > do not forsake me;
10 For mine enemies have spoken of me, And they who watch for my life > have taken counsel together;
11 Saying God hath forsaken him, Pursue and take him, For there is none to rescue.
12 O God, be not far from me, O my God, <to help me> make haste!
13 Who are assailing my life,— Let them be covered with reproach and confusion Who are seeking my hurt.
14 But continually will hope, And will add to all thy praise;
15 My mouth shall relate thy righteousness, <All the day> thy deliverance, For I know not the numbers.
16 I will enter into the mighty doings of My Lord— Yahweh, I will make mention of thy righteousness— thine alone.
17 O God, thou hast taught me from my youthful days, And have I been wont to tell of thy wonders;
18 <Even now, therefore, that I am old and grey-headed> O God, do not forsake me,— Until I tell of thine arm unto a [new] generation,
19 And <as for thy righteousness, O God, up on high, Wherein thou hast wrought great things> O God! who is like unto thee? * Or: "just decisions." The word here is in the plural; which, however, may be "the plural of quality." Or: "prosperity." Some cod. (* w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) * righteousness * U.: "soul."
PSALMS LXXII. 16—20 ; LXXIII. 1—20.

Let prayer also be offered for him continually.
<All the day> let him be blessed.
16 May there be an abundance of corn in the earth,
in the top of the mountains,—
Let the fruit thereof wave like Lebanon,
And they of the city bloom like the fresh shoots of the earth.
17 May his Name be age-abiding,
<In the presence of the sun> let his Name flourish,—
Or: “have increase,” “be spread” — O.G. 630.
Some cod. (w. Aram.,
And may all the families of the ground* bless themselves in him,
[All nations] pronounce him happy!
18 Blessed be Yahweh God b the God of Israel,—
Who doeth wonderful things by himself alone;
19 And blessed be his glorious Name, unto times age-abiding,—
And filled with his glory be all the earth.
Amen and Amen!
20 Ended are the prayers of David, son of Jesse.*

BOOK THE THIRD.

PSALM 73.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 Nothing but good is God
Unto Israel,
Unto the pure in heart.
2 But <as for me>—
My feet had almost stumbled;*
My steps had well-nigh slipped;*
3 For I was envious of the boasters,
<At the prosperity of the lawless> used I to look.
4 For they have no pangs in their death,
And vigorous is their body;*
5 Of the toil of weak mortals have they none,*
Nor <with the sons of earth> are they hard smitten.
6 <For this cause> doth arrogance deck them
as a neck-chain,
And a garment of wrong is their attire;
Their iniquity hash proceeded from fatness|
They have surpassed the imaginations of the heart;
8 They mock, and wickedly command oppression,
<From on high> they command;
9 They have set, in the heavens, their mouth,
And ||their tongue doth marcheth through the earth.
10 Therefore must his people return* thither,;
And ||the waters of abundance are drained* by them;
* Or: “such.”
b Or: “for a life-time.”
c “The text is untranslated... prob. ma'ath has dropped out before the following kibusch; for...‘the like of these things’” — O.G. 456*.
d “Their semblance” — O.G.
11 And they say—
How' doth God know’?
And is there knowledge in the Most High?
12 Lo! {these} are the lawless,
Who are secure for an age,*
They have attained unto wealth.
13 <Altogether in vain>
Have I cleansed my heart,
And bathed in pureness, my hands:
14 And yet been smitten all the day,
And been rebuked morning by morning!
15 <If I had thought I will relate it thus>:
Lo! <the circle of thy some> had I betrayed.
16 <When I reasoned, that I might understand this>
||A vexation it was in mine eyes:
17 Until I could enter the holy places of God,—
Could give heed to their hereafter:—
Surely <in slippery places> dost thou set them,—
Thou hast suffered them to fall into places of danger.
18 How have they become desolate, as in a moment!
They have ceased—come to an end, by reason of calamities.
19 How have they become desolate, as in a moment!
They have ceased—come to an end, by reason of calamities.
20 <As the dream of him that waketh>
O My Lord! <when rousing thyself up>
Their shadowy being* wilt thou despise.

But my heart had grown embittered, *
And <in my reins> had I received wounds; **
But ||I|| was brutish, and could not perceive,
<Like the beasts> had I become before thee. ||
Nevertheless ||I|| am continually before thee.
Thou hast taken hold of my right hand;
<By thy counsel> wilt thou guide me,
And ||afterwards|| <unto glory> wilt thou take me. ^
Whom have I in the heavens?
And <compared with thee> there is nothing I desire on earth.
Failed have my flesh and my heart,
The rock of my heart—and my portion is God unto times age-abiding.
For lo! they who are far from thee shall perish,
Thou hast put an end to every one who wandered unchastely from thee.
But <as for me> the drawing near of God is my blessedness,— I have made, of My Lord Yahweh, my refuge,— That I may recount all thy works. *
An Instructive Psalm. Asaph’s.
Wherefore, O God, hast thou cast off utterly? Shall thine anger smoke against the flock of thine own pasturing?
Remember thine own assembly thou didst acquire aforetime. Thou didst redeem the tribe of thine own inheritance, Mount Zion,* wherein thou didst take up thy habitation. ^
Lift up thy steps unto the places utterly unsafe, All the mischief! — the foe in the sanctuary!
Thine adversaries have roared in the midst of thy appointed meeting, They have set their signs as tokens! One used to be known according as he carried up high— Into the thicket of trees— the axes; But [now] <the doors thereof all together> [with axes and hammers] they batter down. \ They have cast, into the fire, thy sanctuary, *<To the ground> have they profaned the habitation of thy Name.
They have said in their heart, Let us suppress them altogether,* They have burned up all the meeting-places of God in the land.
<Our own signs> have we not seen,— There is no longer a prophet,— Neither is there with us, one who knoweth— How long!
How long, O God, shall the adversary’ [proach]? Shall the enemy revile thy Name perpetually? Wherefore’ shouldst thou withdraw thy hand— thy right’ hand? [Bring it] out of the midst of thy bosom! [Selah.]*
But [God] hath been my king from aforetime, Working Deliverances in the midst of the earth.
Thou didst cleave asunder, in thy might, the sea, Thou didst break in pieces the heads of the Crocodiles, [till they floated] on the waters; [Thou] didst crush the heads of the Sea-Monster. Thou didst give him to be food, for the people of the deserts; [Thou] didst cleave open fountain and torrent, [Thou] didst dry up rivers of steady flow: <Thine> is the day. Yea <thine> the night, [Thou] didst establish moon and sun; [Thou] didst set up all the bounds of the earth, ' <As for summer and winter> thou didst form them!
Remember this, [An enemy] hath reproached Yahweh, Yea [an impious people] have reviled thy Name. Do not deliver up to a wild beast, the life of thy turtle-dove, <The living host> of thine oppressed ones do not forget perpetually. Have respect to thy covenant, For the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of violence. ^
May the crushed one not again be confounded, <As for the oppressed and the needy> let them praise thy Name. Arise! 0 God. plead thine own cause, Remember the reproach of thee, from the impious one, all the day: Do not forget the voice of thine adversaries, The noise of thine assailants ascending continually.

PSALM 75.
To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A Melody of Asaph, a Song.

1 We have given thanks unto thee, O God, we have given thanks,
And in calling upon thy Name men have recounted thy wonders.

2 Surely I will take a set time,— [Selah.] I will judge:
3 Earth was melting away with all its inhabitants;
[Selah.] I have fixed the pillars thereof.

4 I have said to the boasters. Do not boast,
And to the lawless. Do not liftup a horn;
5 'Do not liftup on high your horn,
Nor speak of the Rock with arrogance;
6 For neither from east nor west,
Nor from the wilderness of the mountains cometh exaltation;
7 For God himself is at salvation,
One he will cast down.

8 But I will exult unto times age-abiding,
I will sing praises unto the God of Jacob;
9 But all the horns of the lawless will I hew off,—
Exalted shall be the horns of the Righteous One.

PSALM 76.
To the Chief Musician. With Stringed Instruments. A Melody of Asaph, a Song.

1 God is known in Judah,
<In Israel> great is his Name;
2 |Now hath come into Salem | his pavilion,
And his dwelling-place into Zion.

3 ||There| hath he broken in pieces the arrows' of the bow,
Shield and sword, and battle.
[Selah.

4 Enveloped in light thou art more majestic than the mountains of prey.
0 The valiant of heart have become a spoil. They have slumbered their sleep,
And none of the men of might have found their hands.
6 <At thy rebuke> O God of Jacob,
Stunned' are the horsemen.
7 <As for thee> to be feared thou art!
Who then shall stand before thee, because of the power of thine anger?
8 <Out of the heavens> didst thou cause judgment to be heard,
Earth feared and was still:
9 When God' rose up to judgment,
To save all the oppressed of the earth. |Selah.

10 For the multitude of mankind shall give thanks unto thee,
||The remainder of the multitude shall keep Holy festival unto thee.|d
11 Vow and pay, unto Yahweh your God,—
Let all who are round about him||
Bear along a gift unto him who is to be revered.
12 He extinguished the spirit of nobles. He is of reverend majesty to the kings of the earth.

PSALM 77.
To the Chief Musician. On "Jeduthun." Asaph's, a Melody.

1 <With my voice—unto God> will I make outcry,
With my voice unto God, and he will give ear unto me;
2 <In the day of my distress—unto My Lord> will I seek,
My hand habe been outstretched,
And never once became slack,
My soul hath refused to be consoled;
3 I remember my song in the night,—
<With my own heart> I commune,
And my spirit maketh search:
4 Thou hast held, watching, mine eyes,
I was driven to and fro, and could not speak;
5 I reasoned Of the days of aforetime,
Of the years of by-gone ages;
0 I remember my song in the night,—
<With my own heart> I commune,
And my spirit maketh search:
7 <For ages> will My Lord reject?
And not again grant acceptance any more?
8 Hath his lovingkindness come to a perpetual end!
Hath his word failed to generation after generation?

9 Hath his word failed to generation after generation?

10 For the multitude of mankind shall give thanks unto thee,

PSALMS LXXVII. 9—20; LXXVIII. 1—23. 569

9 Hath God forgotten to shew favour? Or hath he shut up, in anger, his compassion? [Selah.]

10 Then said I—
   <An affliction to me> it is,
   The changing of the right hand of the Most High.

11 I will remember the doings of Yah,
   Surely I will remember, out of a foretime, thy wonderful way;
   And <of thy doings> will I muse:

12 Then said I—
   The changing of the right hand of the Most High.

11 I will remember the doings of Yah,
   Surely I will remember, out of a foretime, thy wonderful way;
   And <of thy doings> will I muse:

13 O God, <in the sanctuary> is thy way,—
   Who is a great God like Elohim? 4

14 Thou art God, doing wonderfully,—
   Thou hast made known, among the peoples, thy might:

15 Thou didst redeem, with thine arm—
   Thy people,
   Thy sons of Jacob and Joseph. [Selah.]

16 The waters saw thee, O God,—
   The waters saw thee,
   They were in birth-throes,
   Yea the resounding deeps were stirred;

17 The clouds poured down waters,
   The skies uttered a voice,
   Yea [thine arrows] flew hither and thither;

18 The voice of thy thunder was in the whirlwind,
   Thy lightnings illumined the world,
   The earth [trembled and quaked];

19 <In the sea> was thy way,
   And [thy path] in the mighty waters,
   And [thy footsteps] could not be known:

20 Thou didst lead, like a flock, thy people,
   By the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM 78.

An Instructive Psalm. Asaph's.

1 Give ear, O my people, to mine instruction;
   Bend your ear  b to the sayings of my mouth;

2 I will open, in a parable, my mouth,
   I will pour forth enigmas out of antiquity;

3 Which we have heard, and come to know,
   And our fathers have recounted to us;

4 We will not withhold [them] from their children;
   <To a later generation> recounting the praises of Yahweh,
   Even his might and his wonders which he wrought;

5 When he set up a testimony in Jacob,
And  appointed in Israel,—
Which he commanded our fathers,
That they might make them known to their children;

6 To the end
   A later generation might come to know,
   Children who should be born,
   Who should arise, and recount [them] to their children;

7 That they might set in Elohim, their confidence,—
And not forget the doings of El,
But <his commandments> might observe;

8 And not become, like their fathers, a generation stubborn and rebellious,—
   A generation that fixed not their heart.

9 Neither was their spirit [faithful with] Elohim;

10 They kept not the covenant of God,
And <in his law> refused to walk;

11 And forgot His doings,
And his wonders which he had shewed them:

12 <In presence of their fathers> wrought he wondrously;—
   In the land of Egypt—the field of Zoan:

13 He clave the sea, and caused them to pass through,
   And reared up the waters like a mound;

14 And led them, by a cloud, in the daytime,
   And all the night, by a light of fire;

15 He used to cleave rocks in the desert,
   And let them drink as out of mighty deeps;

16 And he brought forth streams out of the cliff,
   And caused waters to flow down, like rivers.

17 But again, once more sinned they against him,
   Resisting the Most High in a land of drought:

18 They put God to the proof in their heart,
   By asking food to their mind:

19 Yea they spake against Elohim,—
   They said,
   Can God prepare a table in the desert?

20. Lo! he hath smitten a rock,
   And waters have gushed out;
   Yea torrents have rushed along,—
   <Food also> can he give?
   Or provide flesh for his people?

21 Therefore Yahweh hearkened, and became wroth,—
   And a fire was kindled against Jacob,
   Moreover also anger mounted against Israel;

22 Because they believed not in God,
   Nor trusted in his salvation;

23 Though he had commanded the skies above,
   And <the doors of the heavens> had opened;

*a Some cod. (w. Aram., Syr.): "wonders" (pl.)—G.n.
And had rained on them manna to eat,  And <the corn of the heavens> had given to them:
29 <The food of the mighty > each' one did eat,  <Nourishment> sent him to the full;
30 He let loose an east wind in the heavens,  Then guided him, in his might, a south wind;
31 And rained upon them flesh as the dust,  And <like the sand of the seas> birds of wing;
32 And let them fall in the midst of their camp,—  Round about their habitations.
33 So they did eat and were abundantly filled,  When <what they longed for> he had brought them:
34 <They had not turned away from what they had longed for,  Yet was their food in their mouth>
35 When ||the anger of God|| mounted against them,  And he slew of their vigorous youths,  And <the choice young men of Israel> caused him to bow down in death.
36 <For all this> sinned they still,  And believed not in his wonders;
37 So he ended, in a breath, their days,  And their years, in a sudden terror!
38 <If he slew [of them]> then they sought him,  Yea they turned, and did earnestly seek God;
39 And remembered that ||Elohim|| was their rock,  Yea ||El Most High|| their Redeemer:
40 So they spake him fair with their mouth,  And <with their tongue> did promise him falsely;
41 But ||their heart|| was not fixed with him,  Nor were they trusty' in his covenant:
42 Yet ||full of compassion|| would put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity, and  not destroy,—  Yea <many a time> turned he back his anger,  And would not stir up all his wrath.
43 So then he remembered That <Flesh> they were, c  A Wind departing, that returneth not.
44 How often they Resisted him in the desert,  Vexed him, in the waste:
45 Yea they again put God to the test,  And <to the Holy One of Israel> caused they sorrow:  And <theirs> these were the ways of their heart,  And <with their images> did use to move him to jealousy.
46 God heard' and was wrath,  And greatly abhorred Israel;
47 So he gave up the habitation of Shiloh, b  The tent he had set up among Men;
48 Yea he gave up, into captivity, his strength,  And his beauty' into the hand of an adversary;
49 And delivered up, to the sword, his people,  And <with his own inheritance> was he wrath;  ||His young men|| were devoured by fire,  And ||his virgins|| were not praised in song;
50 Then awoke, as one that had slept, Adonay,  As a warrior exulting with wine!  So he smote his adversaries in the rear, b  <Reproach age-abiding> laid he upon them.

See Joel i. 4, notes.
Howbeit he rejected the tent of Joseph,
And <the tribe of Ephraim> did not choose:
But made choice of the tribe of Judah,
The mountain of Zion, which he loved;
And built, like the heights, his sanctuary,
<Like the earth> he founded it to times age-abiding.

And made choice of David his servant,
And took him from among the folds of the sheep:
<From after the suckling ewes> he brought him in,—
To be shepherd to Jacob his people,
And to Israel, his inheritance.

So he did shepherd them, according to the singleness of his heart,
And <with the discernment of his hands> used he to guide them.

PSALM 78.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 O God, nations
Have entered thy inheritance,
Have profaned thy holy temple,—
Have laid Jerusalem in heaps:

2 They have given
The dead bodies of thy servants,
As food for the birds of the heavens,
The flesh of thy men of lovingkindness,
Unto the wild beast of the earth:

3 They have poured out their blood like water
Round about Jerusalem,
With none to bury.

4 We have become
A reproach to our neighbours,—
A mockery and a derision, to them who are round about us.

5 How long, O Yahweh, wilt thou be angry utterly?
Shall thy jealousy |burn like fire|?

6 Pour out thy wrath
Upon the nations that have not known thee,—
And Upon the kingdoms that <on thy Name> have not called.

7 For he hath *devoured Jacob,—
And <his dwelling-place> have they laid waste.

8 Do not remember against us former iniquities,—
Haste thee, let thy compassions |come to meet us|.

9 For we have been brought very low!
Help us, O God of our salvation.

On account of the glory of thy Name,—
Rescue us then, and put a propitiatory-covering over our sins,
For the sake of thy Name.

10 Wherefore should the nations' say—
Where is their God?

Let him be known among the nations before our eyes!

[Yes! by] the avenging of the blood of thy servants which hath been shed!

11 Let the groaning of the prisoner |come in before thee|,—
<According to the greatness of thine arm>
Set free* them who are appointed to death.*

12 Return, therefore, unto our neighbours—
Sevenfold, into their own bosom,
The reproach wherein they have reproached thee, O Adonay!
*So [[we, thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture]],
will give thanks unto thee, to times age-abiding,—
<To generation after generation> will we recount thy praise.

PSALM 80.
To the Chief Musician. For the Lilies of Testimony. Asaph's. A Melody.

1 O Shepherd of Israel, give ear.
Thou who leddest forth Joseph like a flock,
Thou who art seated on the cherubim, appear!

2 <Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh> stir up thy strength,
And come! to ours salvation.

3 O God, bring us back,
And light up thy face.
That we may be saved.

4 O Yahweh, God of hosts!
How long hast thou been wroth with the prayer of thy people?

5 Thou hast fed them with the food of tears,
And hast caused them to drink the water of weeping in threefold abundance.

6 Thou hast made us an object of contention to our neighbours,
And <our foes> find mockery for themselves.

7 A vine out of Egypt thou didst remove,
Thou didst cast out nations, and plant it;
Thou didst make a clear space for it,
So it rooted well its roots, and filled up the land:

8 Covered' were the mountains with its shade,
And <with its boughs> the mighty' cedars.*

9 Wherefore should the nations' say—
Where is their God?

Let him be known among the nations before our eyes!

[Yes! by] the avenging of the blood of thy servants which hath been shed!

10 Let the groaning of the prisoner |come in before thee|,—
<According to the greatness of thine arm>
Set free* them who are appointed to death.*

12 Return, therefore, unto our neighbours—
Sevenfold, into their own bosom,
The reproach wherein they have reproached thee, O Adonay!
*So [[we, thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture]],
will give thanks unto thee, to times age-abiding,—
<To generation after generation> will we recount thy praise.
PSALMS LXXX. 11—19; LXXXI.; LXXXII.

11 It thrust forth its branches as far as the sea,—
And unto the River its shoots.

12 Wherefore hast thou broken down its fences,
So that all who pass along the way [pluck its fruit]?

13 The boar out of the forest [browseth upon it],
And the wild beast of the field [pastureth thereon.

14 O God of hosts, return, we pray thee,—
Look down out of the heavens, and see,
And inspect this vine:

15 Yes the stock which thy right hand planted,
Even upon the son thou didst secure for thyself.

16 <To be burned with fire> it is cut down,—
<At the rebuke of thy countenance> they will perish.

17 Let thy hand be
Upon the Man of thy right hand,
Upon the Son of Man thou didst secure for thyself;

18 So will we not draw back from thee,
Thou wilt bring us to life,
And <unto the Name> will we call.

19 0 Yahweh, God of hosts! bring us back,
Light up thy face,
That we may be saved.

PSALM 81.

To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." Asaph's.

1 Shout ye for joy, unto God our strength,
Sound the note of triumph, to the God of Jacob:
2 Raise a melody, and strike the timbrel,
The lyre so sweet, with the harp; blow, at the new moon, the horn.
3 At the full moon, for the day of our sacred festival:
4 For [a statute to Israel] it is,
A regulation, by the God of Jacob;
5 [A testimony in Joseph] he appointed it,
When he went forth over the land of Egypt:
6 <In a language I liked not> used I to hear;
I took away, from the burden, his shoulder,
His hands [from the clay] were set free.

7 <In distress> thou didst cry, and I delivered thee,—
I answered thee, within a hiding-place of thunder,
I proved thee, by the waters of Moribah.

[Selah.

PSALM 82.

A Melody of Asaph.

1 [God] hath taken his place in the august assembly,
<In the midst of the gods> will he judge.
2 How long will ye judge perversely
And [the countenances of the lawless] uplift?

[Selah.

3 Vindicatetheweakandthefatherless,
The oppressed and the poor see righteous;
4 Deliver the weak and the needy,
[Out of the hand of the lawless] make rescue.
5 They know not, neither can they perceive,
[In darkness] they wander,
All the foundations of the earth do shake
6 [<If I said>
<Gods> ye are,]
Yes [sons of the Highest] are ye all;
7 But indeed, [like the earth-born] shall ye die!
And [like one of the princes] shall ye fall!

* Arise! 0 God, judge thou the earth,
For [thou wilt inherit all the nations.

PSALM 83.

A Song, a Melody of Asaph.

10 God, do not keep quiet.
Do not hold thy peace.
Neither be thou still, God!
For lo! thy enemies are tumultuous,
And they who hate thee have lifted up the head;
<Against thy people> they craftily devise a secret plot,
And conspire against thy treasured ones.

They have said—
Come, and let us wipe them out from being a nation,
That the name of Israel may be remembered no more.

For they have taken counsel with one heart,
<Against thee—a covenant would they solemnise—
The tents of Edom, and the Ishmaelites,
Of Moab and the Hagarenes;
Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek,
The Philistines, with the dwellers in Tyre;
<Even Assyria> hath joined herself with them,
They go from strength to strength,
Each one appeareth before God in Zion.

9 Make them like Midian,
Like Sisera, like Jabin, by the torrent of Kishon;
They perished at En-dor,
They became manure for the soil!

10 They shall be like Oreb and like Zeeb,
Like Zebah and like Zalmunna all their princes:
Who said—
Let us take a possession for ourselves
The pastures of God I
My God, make them as whirling dust.
As chaff before a wind;
<As a fire burneth a forest,—
And as a flame seteth mountains ablaze>
Wilt thou pursue them with thy tempest,
And with thy storm-wind wilt terrify them:
Fill thou their faces with dishonour,
That men may see thy Name, O Yahweh;
Let them turn pale, and be terrified to futurity,
Yea let them blush, and perish.
That men may know that
<Whose Name alone is Yahweh>
Art Most High over all the earth.

11 O my God, make them as a fire burneth a forest,
As chaff before a wind;
<As a fire burneth a forest,—
And as a flame seteth mountains ablaze>

12 So wilt thou pursue them with thy tempest,
And with thy storm-wind wilt terrify them:
Fill thou their faces with dishonour,
That men may see thy Name, O Yahweh;
Let them turn pale, and be terrified to futurity,
Yea let them blush, and perish:
That men may know that
<Whose Name alone is Yahweh>
Art Most High over all the earth.

PSALM 84.

To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 How lovely are thy habitations, O Yahweh of hosts!
2 My soul longeth—yea even languisheth—for the courts of Yahweh,—
My heart and my flesh shout aloud for a Living God.
3 <Even the sparrow> hath found a home,
And [the swallow] a nest for herself, where she hath laid her young,
Thine altars, O Yahweh of hosts,
My king and my God!
4 How happy are they who abide in thy house,—Still are they praising thee.

5 How happy the men whose strength is in thee,
Festive processions are in their heart.
<Passing through the balsam-vaIe>
<A place of fountains> they make it,
Yea <with blessings> is it covered by the early rain.

7 They go from strength to strength,*
Each one appeareth before God in Zion.
9 O Yahweh, God of hosts, hear thou my prayer,—Give hear, thou God of Jacob.
<Our Shield> behold thou, O God,
And look upon the face of thine Anointed One.
10 For better is a day in thy courts, than a thousand,
I choose rather to stand at the threshold,
in the house of my God,
Than to dwell in the tents of lawlessness.
11 For  is Yahweh God,—<Grace and glory> will Yahweh give,
He will not withhold what is good, from them who walk without blame.
12 O Yahweh of hosts!
How happy the man who trusteth in thee!

PSALM 85.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 Thou hast accepted, O Yahweh, thy land,
Thou hast brought back the captives of Jacob;
2 Thou hast taken away the iniquity of thy people,
Thou hast covered all their sin.
3 Thou hast withdrawn all thine indignation,
Thou hast ceased from the glow of thine anger.

Restore us, O God of our salvation,
And take away thy vexation towards us.

* Or simply: "bird."
* Ml.: "Higivays."—P.B.
"They fondly think of the roads leading to Jerusalem"—Davies
* Or: "homes."
* Ml.: "buckler."
5. To times age-abiding wilt thou be angry with us?
Wilt thou prolong thine anger, from generation to generation?

6. Wilt not thou thyself again give us life, That thy people may rejoice in thee. Show us, O Yahweh, thy lovingkindness, And <thy salvation> wilt thou grant us.

7. I will hear what God—Yahweh—will speak,— For he will bestow prosperity to his people, And to his men of lovingkindness, And to them who return with their heart unto him.

Surely <near unto them who revere him> is his salvation, That the Glory may settle down in our land.

8. [Lovingkindness and faithfulness] have met together, [Righteousness and prosperity] have kissed each other; [Faithfulness] <out of the earth> doth spring forth, And [righteousness] <out of the heavens> hath looked down. Yahweh himself too will give us the blessing, And <unto thee> shall yield her increase.

9. Righteousness <before him> shall march along,— That he may make, into a way, the steps of its feet.

PSALM 86.
A Prayer. David's.

1. Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—answer me, For  am I; Guard my life, For <thou> have compassion, and are compassionate, O My Lord, a soul to me; Save thy servant, O My God, 4 [Thy servant] who trusteth in thee; Shew me favour, For <unto thee> do I cry, all the day; Rejoice the soul of thy servant, For <unto thee> O My Lord <my soul> do I lift.

2. For <thou, O My Lord> art good and forgiving, And abundant in lovingkindness! to all who call upon thee. Give ear, O Yahweh, unto my prayer, And attend unto the voice of my supplications. In the day of my distress will I call upon thee, For thou wilt answer me. There is none like unto thee, among the gods, O My Lord, And nothing like worketh.

4. So it shd be (w. Sep. and Vul.)—G.n. 5 ear. pr. (w. 5 ear. pr.) Cp. Exo. xxxiv. 6.

9. All nations whom thou hast made Shall come in and bow down before thee, O My Lord, That they may glorify thy Name.a

10. For great' thou art, and dost wondrous things, Thou, O God, of thyself alone.b Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way, I will walk steadfastly in thy truth, My heart will rejoice to revere thy Name. I will give thee thanks, Adonay, my God, with all my heart, And will glorify thy Name unto times age-abiding. For <thy lovingkindness> is great towards me, And thou hast rescued my soul from Hades beneath.c

11. O God, ||[the insolent] have arisen against me, And [the assembly of tyrants] have sought my life; And have not set thee before them. But [thou, O My Lord] art A God of compassion and favour, Slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness and faithfulness! For great' thou art, and dost wondrous things, Thou, O God, of thyself alone.

12. Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour,— Give thy strength to thy servant, And save the son of thy handmaid. Perform with me a token for good,— That they who hate me may see' and be ashamed, In that [thou, Yahweh] hast helped me and comforted me.

PSALM 87.
For the Sons of Korah. A Melody, a Song.

1. His foundation is in the holy' mountains:
Yahweh loveth' the gates of Zion,
More than all the dwellings of Jacob.

2. I will mention Rahab and Babylon, to them who know me,— Lo! Philistia and Tyre with Ethiopia, This' one was born there.
But <of Zion> it shall be said— This' man and that' were born in her, And the Highest himself' shall establish her. [Selah.

3. Yahweh will record, when he enrolleth the peoples, This' one was born there. [Selah.

PSALM 88.

A Song, a Melody. For the Sons of Korah. To the Chief Musician. On “Mahalath.”

For alternate Song, an Instructive Psalm. By Heman the Ezrahite.

1 O Yahweh, God of my salvation,*
2 By day have I made outcry,
3 In the night also before thee.
4 Let my prayer come into thy presence,
5 Bow down thine ear to my loud cry.
6 For my soul is sated with misfortunes,
7 And <my life—unto Hades> hath drawn near;
8 I am counted with them that descend into the pit,
9 I have become as a man that is without help;
10 Like the slain that lie in the grave,
11 Where thou rememberest them no more.
12 The alarmsof thee have put an end to me;

17 They have surrounded me like waters, all the day,
18 Thou hast far removed from me, lover and friend,
19 Mine acquaintances are in darkness.

PSALM 89.

An Instructive Psalm, by Ethan the Ezrahite.

1 The lovingkindnesses of Yahweh age-abidingly will I sing,
2 To generation after generation >d will I make known thy faithfulness with my mouth.
3 For I said,*
4 To times age-abiding shall lovingkindness be built up,
5 At the heavens thou wilt establish thy faithfulness therein.
6 I have solemnised a covenant, for my chosen one,
7 I have sworn unto David my servant:
8 Unto times age-abiding will I establish thy seed,
9 And will build up unto generation after generation, thy throne.
10 For whom, in the skies, can one compare unto Yahweh?
11 Who, like thee, is mighty, O Yah!
12 With thy faithfulness roundabout thee:
13 Thou rulest over the swelling of the sea,
14 When the rolling waves thereof lift themselves.
15 Thou didst bid them be still:
16 Thou hast crushed— as one slain—Rahab,
17 With thy strong arm hast thou scattered thy foes.
18 The heavens Yea the earth,
19 The world and the fulness thereof
20 Thou didst found them;
21 Thine are the heavens and the earth,
22 The north and the south,

PSALMS LXXXIX. 50-52; XC.; XCI. 1-6.

1 Remember, O My Lord, the reproach of thy servants,*
I have carried in my bosom the insult b of the peoples:

b Some cod. (w. Syr.): "servant" (sing.)—G.n.

In that thy foes have reproached, O Yahweh,
In that they have reproached the footsteps* of thine Anointed One!

Blessed be Yahweh to times age-abiding,
Amen, and Amen !

BOOK THE FOURTH.

PSALM 90.
A Prayer by* Moses, the Man of God.

1 Lord! a dwelling-place hast thou become to us.
From generation to generation:
Or thou hadst brought forth d the earth
Even <from age unto age> thou wast God.
Thou causest man to return unto dust,
And hast said—
Return, ye sons of Adam !
For a thousand years, in thine eyes are as yesterday,
Or [as] a watch in the night.
Thou hast snatched them away.
<A sleep> do they become,
In the morning are like grass that shooteth up,
<A sleep> do they become,
In the morning it shooteth and shooteth up,
By the evening it is cut down and withered.
For we are consumed in thine anger,
And <in thy wrath> are we dismayed ;
Thou hast set
Our iniquities before thee,
Our secret near the luminary of thy face.
For || all our days! decline in thy wrath,—
Thou hast set our years like a sigh.
The days of our years have, in them, three score years and ten,
And <if by reason of strength> they have four-score years:
Yet [their boast]b is labour and sorrow,
For it hath passed quickly, and we have flown away.

10 Who knoweth* the strength of thine anger?
Even <according to the fear of thee> is thy wrath!

* Or: "belonging to "—G.n.

In which case, in next line render: "doth he dwell?"
G.): "How happy he that dwelleth"—G.n.

12 <How to number our days> so grant us to know,
That we may win us a heart that hath wisdom.

13 Return, Yahweh, oh how long?
And have compassion upon thy servants ;
Satisfy us, in the morning, with thy loving-kindness,
That we may shout aloud and be glad.
Throughout all our days.
Make us glad, according to the days thou hast humbled us,
The years' we have seen misfortune:
Let thy work* appear unto thy servants,
And thy majesty upon their children;
And <the work of our hands> establish thou upon us,
Yea <the work of our hands> establish thou it.

PSALM 91.

1 He that dwelleth* in the secret place of the Most High
Under the shadow of the Almighty will tarry,
Saying of Yahweh—
My refuge and my fortress,
My God, in whom I will trust.
For || he will rescue thee From the snare of the fowler,
From the destructive'pestilence.
With his pinion > will he cover thee.
And <under his wings> shalt thou seek refuge,
A shield and buckler is his faithfulness.
Thou shalt not be afraid
Of the dread of the night,
Of the arrow' that flieth by day;
Of the pestilence' that, in darkness, doth walk,
Of the plague' that layeth waste at noontide.

* Or: " hast ||thou|| become to us.
Or: "< the mountains > were Ixirn,
Or thou hast brought forth' thine earth >
Even <from age unto" ago thou [wast] God.

So it shd be (w. Sep.):—G.n.

37
7 There shall fall, at thy side, a thousand,
Yea [myriads]* at thy right hand,
<Unto thee> shall it not come nigh;
8 Save only* with thine own eyes shall thou discern,
And <the recompense of the lawless> shalt thou see thee.
9 Because [thou] hast made Yahweh, my refuge,—
<The Most High> thou hast made thy dwelling-place>
10 There shall not be sent unto thee misfortune,
Nor shall plague come near into thy tent;—
11 For <his messengers> will he charge concerning thee,
To keep thee, in all thy ways;
12 <On hands> will they bear thee up,
Lest thou strike, against a stone, thy foot;
13 <On the lion* and adder> shalt thou tread,
Shalt trample on young lion and crocodile.*
14 <Because on me> he hath set firm his love>
Therefore will I deliver him,
I will set him on high,
Because he hath known my Name;
15 <He shall call me, and I will answer him,>
<With him> will I be, in distress,
I will rescue him, and will honour him;
16 <With length of days> will I satisfy him,
And will show him* my salvation.

PSALM 92.
A Melody, a Song, For the Sabbath-day.
1 It is good* to give thanks to Yahweh,
And to sing praises* unto thy Name,
O Most High;
2 To declare, in the morning, thy lovingkind-
ness,
And thy faithfulness* at night;—
Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon a harp,*
With resounding music on the lyre.
4 For thou hast made glad, O Yahweh, in thy doing,*
<In the works of thy hands> will I shout for joy.
5 How great* have grown thy works, Yahweh,
<How very> deep are laid thy plans!
6 A man that is brutish* cannot know,
And a dullard* cannot discern this:—
7 <When the lawless do thrive like grass,
And all the workers of iniquity have blossomed>
It is that they may be destroyed for ever.*

But [thou] shalt be on high age-abidingly, O
Yahweh.
9 For lo! [thine enemies] Yahweh,
For lo! [thine enemies] shall perish,*
They shall be scattered—all the workers of iniquity;
10 But thou wilt exalt, as [those of] the buffalo,*
my horn,
I have been anointed, with fresh oil.
11 So hath mine eye descried them who were lying in wait for me,—
<Of my wicked assailants> mine ears* shall hear;'
12 The righteous* <like the palm-tree> shall thrive,
<Like the cedar in Lebanon> shall he grow;
13 They who are planted in the house of Yahweh
<In the courts of our God> shall flourish;
14 Still* shall they bear fruit in old age,
<Vigorous and fresh*> shall they be:
15 To declare that upright* is Yahweh,
My Rock, and no perversity* in him.

PSALM 93.
1 ||Yahweh|| hath become king,
<With majesty> is he clothed,—
Clothed* is Yahweh,
<With strength*> hath he girded himself,
Surely he hath fixed* the world,
It shall not be shaken.
2 Established* hath been thy throne from of old,*
<From age-past times> thou art.
3 The floods have lifted up, O Yahweh,
The floods have lifted up—their voice,
The floods have lifted up—their dashing waves.
*With the sounds of many waters>
Majestic are the breakers of the sea,*
<Majestic on high> is Yahweh.
4 Thy testimonies* are strongly confirmed;<To thy house> befitting is holiness,
O Yahweh—to length of days.

PSALM 94.
1 O God of avenging—Yahweh,
God of avenging, shine forth:—
2 Lift up thyself, O judge of the earth,
Render a recompense unto the proud.
3 How long* shall the lawless, O Yahweh,
<How long*> shall the lawless' exult?
They pour forth [words], they speak arrogantly,
All the workers of iniquity do boast:
<Thy people> O Yahweh, they will crush,
And <thine inheritance> tread down;
The widow and sojourner they will slay,
And <the fatherless> murder.
Yet have they said—
Yah doth not see,
The God of Jacob doth not understand!
Understand, ye brutish among the people,
And <ye dullards> when will ye show discretion?
How happy the man whom thou correctest, O Yah!
And whom <out of thy law> thou instructest! That thou mayest give him rest from the days of misfortune, Until there be digged—for the lawless one—a pit.
For Yahweh will not abandon his people, And <his inheritance> will he not forsake; For <unto righteousness> shall the judicial sentence return, Then shall follow it—all the upright in heart.
Who will rise up for me against the evildoers? Who will make a stand for me, against the workers of iniquity? If Yahweh had not been a help to me Soon had sunk into silence—my soul! If I say My foot hath slipped> Thy lovingkindness O Yahweh, supporteth me.
In the multitude of my cares within me, Thy consolations delight my soul.
Shall the throne that inflicteth ruin have fellowship with thee? That frameth oppression by statute? They make an attack on the life of the righteous one, And <innocent blood> they condemn. But Yahweh hath become for me a high tower, And my God, my rock of refuge. Thus hath he brought back on them their iniquity, And <by their own wickedness> will he destroy them, Destroy them will Yahweh our God.

PSALM 95.
1 Come, let us make a joyful noise to Yahweh, Let us shout in triumph, to the rock of our salvation!
2 O let us come before his face with thanksgiving, <With the sounds of strings> let us shout aloud to him.
For  is Yahweh, And a great king, above all gods.
In whose hand are the hidden recesses* of the earth, And <the peaks of the mountains> are his; Whose is the sea, for he made it, And <the dry land> did form.
Enter! let us bow down, and bend low, Let us kneel, before Yahweh our maker; For <he> is our God, And <we> are the people of his pasture, and the flock of his hand.
To-day: <if | to his voice> ye will hearken>
Do not harden your heart as at Meribah, As on the day of Massah, in the desert; When your fathers tested me, They proved me, yes they also saw what I could do.
Forty years> loathed I that* generation, So I said—
<One people going astray in heart> they are’, Even they <have not known my ways!
And I awoke in mine anger, Verily they shall not enter into my rest.

PSALM 96.
1 Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new, Sing to Yahweh, all the earth; Sing to Yahweh, bless ye his Name,— Tell the tidings, from day to day, of his salvation:
3 Recount Among the nations, his glory, Among all the peoples, his wonders.
4 For great’ is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily praised, To be revered’ is he above all gods; For <all the gods of the peoples> are things of nought,— But <Yahweh> made <the heavens.> Praise and majesty are in his sanctuary.
7 Give to Yahweh, ye families of the peoples, Give to Yahweh, glory and strength; Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name, Bring a present, and enter his courts.

37—2
9 Bow down to Yahweh, in the adornment of holiness,
   Be in anguish at his presence, all the earth!

10 Say among the nations,
   Yahweh hath become King,
   Surely he hath fixed the world,
   It shall not be shaken,
   He will judge the peoples with equity.

11 Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth exult,
   Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof;
12 Let the field leap for joy, and all that is therein,
   Then shall all the trees of the forest shout in triumph.

13 Before Yahweh, for he is coming,
   For he is coming to judge the earth,—
   He will judge the world, in righteousness,
   And the peoples, in his faithfulness.

PSALM 97.

1 Yahweh hath become king.
   Let the earth exult,
   Let the multitude of coastlands rejoice.'

2 Clouds and thick darkness are round about him,
   Righteousness and justice are the establishing of his throne.
3 Fire <before him> proceedeth,
   That it may consume, round about, his adversaries.
4 His lightnings have illumined the world,
   The earth hath seen, and hath trembled;
5 The mountains <like wax> have melted,
   At the presence of Yahweh.
   At the presence, of the Lord of all the earth.
6 The heavens have declared his righteousness,—
   And all the peoples have seen his glory.

7 Let all who serve an image <be ashamed>.
   They who boast themselves in things of nought,
   Bow down unto him, all ye gods.
8 Zion hath heard and rejoiced,
   And the daughters of Judah have exulted,
   Because of thy righteous deciisions.
9 For thou, Yahweh art Most High over all the earth,
   Greatly hast thou exalted thyself above all gods.

10 Ye lovers of Yahweh! be haters of wrong,—
   He preserveth the lives of his men of loving-kindness,
   <From the hand of the worthless> will be rescue them.
11 Light is sown for the righteous one,
   And <for the upright in heart> rejoicing:

12 Rejoice, ye righteous, in Yahweh,
   And give ye thanks, at the mention of his holiness.

PSALM 98.

A Melody.

1 Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new.
   For <wonderful things> hath he done,
   His own right hand and his holy arm have brought him salvation.

2 Yahweh hath made known his salvation,
   <Before the eyes of the nations> hath he revealed his righteousness:

3 He hath remembered his lovingkindness and his faithfulness towards the house of Israel,—
   All the ends of the earth <have seen> the salvation of our God.

4 Shout aloud to Yahweh, all the earth,
   Break forth and make a joyful noise and sweep the strings;
5 Sweep the strings to Yahweh
   With the lyre,
   With the lyre, and the voice of melody;

6 <With trumpets and the sound of a horn> Shout aloud, before the king—Yahweh.

7 Let the sea <roar>, and the fulness thereof,
   The world, and they who dwell therein;
8 Let <the floods> clap their hands,
   Together let <the mountains> make a joyful noise
   Before Yahweh, for he is coming—to judge the earth,—
   He will judge the world, in righteousness,
   And the peoples, with equity.

PSALM 99.

1 Yahweh hath become king.
   Let the peoples tremble,
   He is enthroned on the cherubim.
   Let the earth shake;

2 Yahweh <in Zion> is great,
   And high is he over all the peoples.
   Let them thank his Name—great and reverend,
   Holy is he!

3 Yea <with the strength of a king—justice> he loveth,—
   Thou hast established equity,
   <Justice and righteousness in Jacob> thou hast wrought.

4 Exalt Yahweh our God,
   And bow down at his footstool,
   Holy is he!

5 Moses and Aaron <were> among his priests,
   And <Samuel> among them who were calling upon his Name,
   Who were calling upon Yahweh, and <he> used to answer them:

7 <In the pillar of cloud> used he to speak unto them,
They kept his testimonies, and the statute he gave them.
8 O Yahweh our God! thou answeredst them,—
<A pardoning God> thou becamest to them,
Yet one bringing vengeance on their deeds.*
9 Exalt Yahweh our God,
And bow down towards his holy mountain,
For [holy] is Yahweh our God.

PSALM 100.
A Melody for Thanksgiving.
1 Make a joyful noise to Yahweh, all the earth:
2 Serve Yahweh with rejoicing,
Enter before him, with shouts of triumph.
3 Know that Yahweh he is God,—
He made us, and not [we ourselves],
His people, and the flock of his pasture.
4 Enter ye his gates, with thanksgiving,
his courts, with praise,
Give ye thanks to him, bless ye his Name;
5 For good is Yahweh,
Age-abiding is his lovingkindness,
And [unto generation after generation] his faithfulness.

PSALM 101.
David's. A Melody.
1 <Of lovingkindness and of justice> will I sing!
2 Unto thee, O Yahweh, will I touch the strings!
3 I will behave myself wisely in a blameless way,
When wilt thou come in unto me?
4 I will walk to and fro in the blamelessness of my heart,—in the midst of my house:
I will not set before mine eyes, a vile thing;—
5 <A perverse heart> shall depart from me,
<A maker of mischief> will I not acknowledge;
6 <He that uttereth slander in secret against his friend>
Him will I root out;
7 One of lofty eyes, and of an ambitious heart>
Him shall I not be able to endure.
8 Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land.
That they may dwell with me,—
9 He that walketh in a blameless way
He shall attend me.

That the nations may reverence thy Name, O Yahweh,
And all the kings of the earth, thy glory.

When Yahweh hath built up Zion,
Hath appeared in his glory;
And not despised their prayer.

This shall be written for a later generation,
And a people to be created shall give praise unto Yah—
That he looked down, out of his holy height,
<From the heavens unto the earth> directed his gaze—
To hear the groaning of the prisoner,
To set free, them who were appointed to death.

To the end the Name of Yahweh might be celebrated in Zion;
And his praise in Jerusalem:

He hath prostrated, in the way, my strength,—
He hath shortened my days.

I said,
O my God, do not remove me in the midst of my days,
Throughout the generation of generations are thy years;

Of old—the earth thou didst found,
<With the work of thy hands> are the heavens;

[They] shall perish, But thou wilt abide;
And they all, like a garment shall fall in pieces,

But art the same, And their seed shall be established.

PSALM 103.

Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,*—
And all that is within me, his holy Name:

Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,
And forget not all his dealings:—

Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, *
Who healeth all thy diseases;
Who redeemeth from destruction, thy life,
Who crowneth thee, with lovingkindness and compassion;

Who satisfieth, with good, thine age,
Thy youth’ reneweth itself like an eagle.

Yahweh is one who executeth righteousness,
Yes vindication for all the oppressed.

Who made known his ways unto Moses,
Unto the sons of Israel> his doings.

<Compassionate and gracious> is Yahweh,—
Slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness.

<Not perpetually> will he contend,
<Nor age-abidingly> retain anger;
<Not according to our sins> hath he dealt with us,
<Nor according to our iniquities> hath he treated us.

For as the heavens are exalted over the earth,
His lovingkindness hath prevailed over them who reverence him;

As far East from West
Hath he put far from us, our transgressions;

Like the compassion of a father for his children:

To such as keep his covenant,
And remember his precepts, to do them.

Yahweh in the heavens hath established his throne,
And his kingdom over all hath dominion.

Bless Yahweh, ye messengers of his,—
Heroes of vigour, doing his word,
To hearken to the voice of his word;

Bless Yahweh, all ye his hosts,
Attendants of his, doing his pleasure;

Bless Yahweh, all ye his works,
In all places of his dominion,
Bless, O my soul, Yahweh.

Chap. IV. II. B. 3, anter. p. 25.

Dealing is not only more exact than "benefite," but is here the more expressive word; since, in the enthusiasm of his gratitude, the Psalmist may have felt that all the divine "dealings" formed a fitting subject for praise.

Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,—
Yahweh, my God, thou art exceedingly great,
With honour and majesty hast thou clothed thyself,
Putting on light, as a robe,
Stretching out the heavens, as a curtain;
Building* in the waters, his upper chambers,—
Who makest clouds his chariot,
Who passeth along on the wings of the wind;
Making His messengers, winds,
His attendants, a flaming fire;
He hath fixed the earth on its foundations,
It is not to be shaken, to times age-abiding and beyond.
With the resounding deep—as a garment—
Hast thou covered it,
Above the mountains stand the waters;
At thy rebuke they flee,
At the voice of thy thunder they hurry away;
Mountains rise', Valleys sink'
Unto the place which thou hast fixed for them;
 Bounds hast thou set, which they are not to pass over,
They are not to return to cover the earth.
Who sent forth springs, through the torrent-beds,
Between the mountains they flow along;
They give drink, to every wild beast of the field,
The wildasses do break' their thirst.
Over them> the bird of the heavens setteth down,
From amidst the foliage they utter a voice.
Who watereth the mountains out of his upper chambers,
Out of the fruit of thy works thou satisfiest the earth.
Who causeth the grass to shoot forth for the cattle,
And the herb, for the service of man,
That he may bring forth food out of the earth;
And wine shall make the heart of man:
Making radiant his well-nourished face,—
And food may < the heart of man > sustain.
Satisfied' are
The trees of Yahweh,
The cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted;
Where the birds build their nests,
The stork! in the fir-trees hath her house;
The high mountains are for the chamois,
The crags are a refuge for the conies.
He hath made the moon' for seasons,
And the sun] knoweth his place for entering in.

20 Thou causest darkness, and it becometh night,
<Therein> creepeth forth
Every wild beast of the forest;
21 ||The young lions|| roaring for prey,
And seeking, from God, their food.
The sun ariseth, they withdraw themselves,
And <in their lairs> lay them down.
Man' goeth forth to his work'
And to his labour, until evening.
How thy works abound', O Yahweh!
<All of them—in wisdom> hast thou made,
The earth is full' of thy possession;—*
This sea here is great and broad on both hands,—
Wherein are creeping things, even without' number,
Living things small with great;
This sea-monster, thou hast formed to sport therein;
All of them <for thee> do wait,
That thou mayest give them their food in its season;
Thou givest unto them, they gather,
Openest thy hand, they are satisfied with good.
Thou hidest thy face, they are dismayed,*
Thou withdrawest their spirit,
They cease to breathe,
And <unto their own dust> do they return:
Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created,
And thou renewest the face of the ground.
Be thy glory, O Yahweh, to times age-abiding.
Let Yahweh rejoice in his own works:
Who looketh at the earth, and it trembleth,
He toucheth the mountains, and they smoke.
I will sing to Yahweh, as long as I live!
Yea I will touch the strings to my God, while I continue;
Pleasing unto him be my meditation,
Will rejoice in Yahweh.

Or, as one word: "Halleluyah!" and so the Masoretic text. But Ginsburg concludes: "There can hardly be any doubt that this" [resolution of the phrase into two words, translated as three] "exhibits the primitive reading."

PSALM 105.

1 Give ye thanks to Yahweh. Call upon his Name,
2 Make known, among the peoples, his doings;
3 Speak ye of all his wonders,
4 Joyful be the heart of them who are seeking Yahweh,
5 Search out Yahweh and his strength, Seek diligently his face at all times.
6 Remember his wonders which he hath done,
7 O ye Seed of Abraham—for his servants,
8 Sons of Jacob—for his chosen ones:
9 Yahweh himself is our God, <Throughout all the land> are his just decisions.
10 And his oath, to Isaac;
11 Saying, <To thee> will I give the land of Canaan,
12 As your inherited portion;
13 While ye yet were men easily counted,— A very few. and sojourners therein;
14 And they wandered from nation to nation, From a kingdom, to another people.
15 He suffered no son of earth to oppress them, And reproved—for their sakes—[even] kings!
16 Ye may not touch mine Anointed ones, And <to my Prophets> may ye do no wrong.
17 Then called he a famine over the land, <All the staff of bread> he brake;
18 He sent before them a man, <For a slave> was he sold—[even] Joseph;
19 They forced, into a fetter, his foot, <Into the iron> entered his soul;
20 Until the time when his word came to pass, [Speech 1 of Yahweh] proved him;
21 The king sent, and set him free, <One having dominion over peoples> yet loosed his bonds;
22 He appointed him lord to his household, And one having dominion over all he possessed;
23 That he might bind his rulers as he pleased,* And <his elders> he might embue with wisdom.
24 So Israel came' into Egypt, And [Israel] sojourned in the land of Ham;
25 And he made his people exceeding fruitful,— And caused them to become stronger than their adversaries.
26 He let them turn* their heart— To hate his people, To deal treacherously with his servants;
27 He sent Moses his servant, Aaron, whom he had chosen.
28 He set among them his threatening signs, And his wonders, in the land of Ham;
29 He sent darkness, and made it dark, But they rebelled* against his words;
30 He turned their waters into blood, And so caused their fish to die;
31 Their land swarmed' with frogs, In' the chambers of their kings!
32 He spake, and there came in the gad-fly, Gnats,* in all their bounds;
33 He made their showers—hail, A fire flaming throughout their land;
34 And he smote their vines, and their fig-trees, And brake in pieces the trees of their bounds;
35 He spake—then came the swarming locust,— The devouring locust, and that without number;
36 And devoured all the herbage in their land, And devoured the fruit of their ground.
37 Then smote he every firstborn in their land, The beginning of all their strength;
38 Thus brought he them forth, with silver and gold, Nor was there, throughout his tribes, one that faltered;
39 Egypt rejoiced' when they went out, For the dread of them had fallen' upon them.
40 He spread out a cloud as a covering, And fire, to give light by night, They asked, and he brought in the quail,— And <with the bread of the heavens> he satisfied them;
He opened the rock, and there gushed forth waters,
They flowed along, through parched places, as a river;
For he remembered his holy word,
With Abraham his servant.

Thus brought he forth his people with gladness,—
With shouts of triumph his chosen ones;
And gave them, the lands of the nations,
And took they possession:
In order that they might observe his statutes.
And might keep watch,
Praise ye Yah.*

PRAISE YE YAH.

Giveth thanks to Yah, —
For he is good,
For age-abiding is his lovingkindness.b

Who can relate the mighty deeds of Yahweh?
Can cause to be heard, all his praise?
How happy! They who observe justice,
He that executeth righteousness at all times.

Remember me, O Yahweh, when thou acceptest thy people, —
Visit me, with thy salvation;
That I may look upon the welfare of thy chosen ones.
That I may rejoice in the joy of thy nation,
That I may glory, with thine inheritance.

We have sinned — with our fathers.
We have acted perversely, we have committed lawlessness;
Our fathers, in Egypt understood not thy wonders.
They remembered not the abounding of thy lovingkindnesses,
But rebelled by the sea—at the Red Sea.®
Yet he saved them, for the sake of his Name,
To make known his mighty power;
So he gave them their request,
But sent leanness into their soul.
And they became jealous
Of Moses in the camp,—
Of Aaron, the holy one of Yahweh;
The earth opened and engulfed Dathan,
And covered up the assembly of Abiram; —
Then was kindled a fire in their assembly,—
A flame consumed the lawless ones.
They made a calf in Horeb,—
And bowed down to a molten image;
Thus changed they my glory, b
For the similitude of an ox that esteth grass.
They forgot God their saviour,
Who had done great things in Egypt:
Wonders in the land of Ham,
Terrible things by the Red Sea.
Then would he have bidden to destroy them,—
Had not Moses his chosen, stood in the breach before him,
To turn back his wrath from destroying.
And they refused the delightful land,
They believed not his word;
But murmured in their tents,—
They hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh.
So he lifted up his hand unto them,
That he would let them fall in the desert;
And would disperse their seed among the nations,
And would scatter them throughout the lands.
Yet they let themselves be bound to Baal-peor,—
And did eat sacrifices to the dead:
So they provoked anger by their doings,
And a plague made a breach among them:
Then stood up Phinehas, and interposed,
And stayed was the plague:
So it was counted unto him, for righteousness,
To generation after generation, unto times age-abiding.
And they provoked by the waters of Meribah,—
And it fared ill with Moses, for their sakes;
For they embittered his spirit, and he spake rashly with his lips.
They destroyed not the peoples of which Yahweh had spoken to them;
But had fellowship with the nations,
And learned their doings;
Yet they served their idols,
And they became to them a snare:
Or: "licked up."®
M.C.T.: "their glory."® One of the alterations of the Sopherim [editorial scribes]. The original reading was, "They changed (kehoddhi) my glory," but it was altered because the statement that the Israelites changed God's visible Shechinah for the image of an ox was deemed derogatory to the Divine Being."—G. Yea they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to mischievous demons;* And poured out innocent blood, The blood of their sons and their daughters, Whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan, And the land was polluted with blood-shed; And they became unclean by their works, And became unchaste in their doings. Then was kindled the anger of Yahweh with his people, And he abhorred his own inheritance. So he delivered them up into the hand of the nations, And they who hated them had dominion over them; And their enemies oppressed them, And they were bowed down under their hand. Many times did he rescue them, But they rebelled by their counsel, And sank low in their iniquity.

Then looked he on the distress which befell them,— When he heard their loud cry; Then remembered he, for them, his covenant, And was moved to pity, according to the abounding of his lovingkindnesses;* And granted them compassion before all their captors.

Save us, O Yahweh our God, And gather us from among the nations,— That we may give thanks unto thy holy Name, That we may triumph aloud in thy praise. Blessed be Yahweh, God of Israel, from one age even unto another, And all the people shall say Amen! Praise ye Yah!

O give thanks to Yahweh— For he is good, For his lovingkindness.*

Let the redeemed of Yahweh say, Whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the adversary; And hath gathered them,— From the east and from the west, From the north and from the south. They wandered about in the desert—in a waste, to a city to dwell in found they none; Hungry—yea thirsty— Their soul, within them, fainted: Then made they outcry to Yahweh, in their peril, Out of their distresses he rescued them; And led them by a straight road, That they might journey to a city to dwell in. Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men;* For he hath satisfied the longing soul, And the famished soul he filled with good.

The dwellers in darkness and death-shade, Bound with oppression* and iron; Because they had rebelled against the sayings of God,— And the counsel of the Most High they had spurned; And he bowed down, with labour, their heart, They staggered, with no one to help> Then made they outcry to Yahweh in their peril, Out of their distresses he saved them; He brought them forth out of darkness and death-shade, And their fetters he tare off. Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men! For he brake in pieces the doors of bronze, And the bars of iron he hewed asunder.

Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men;* This line is preceded in Sep. and Vul. by the public reader's invitation: "Praise ye Yah." —G.n. Cp. Ps. civ. 35, n. I.e.: "from the sea," as O.G. 446; = "south, because when facing east the right hand is towards the south"—O.G.

So read; but written: but in others (w. Aram. lovingkindness(sing.). in some cod. (w. Sep., Syr.) the singular is both written and read; —G.n. Cp. Ps. civ. 36, n.

The perverse by reason of their transgression, And on account of their iniquities are afflicted;* Or: "humiliation."
Psalms Cvii. 18—43 ; Cviii. 1—9.

12 All manner of food their soul abhorreth, And so they draw near unto the gates of death,

13 Then make they outcry to Yahweh in their peril, And <out of their distresses> he saveth them.

14 He sendeth his word, and healeth them, And delivereth them from their graves.

15 Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men!

16 Yea let them sacrifice the sacrifice of thanksgiving, And recount his works with a shout.

17 Men who go down to the sea, in ships, Doing business through mighty waters;

18 They see the works of Yahweh, And his wonders in the deep;

19 And he speaketh, and there ariseth a tempestuous wind, Which lifteth on high its rolling waves;

20 Their soul by trouble dissolveth; They mount the heavens. They descend the roaring deeps, 21 Then make they outcry to Yahweh, in their peril, And <out of their distresses> he bringeth them forth.

22 He calmeth the storm to a whisper, And silent are their rolling waves:

23 Then are they glad, because they are hushed, And he guideth them unto their desired haven.

24 Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men!

25 Yea let them extoll him in the convocation of the people, And in the seated company of elders let them praise him.

26 He turneth Rivers into a desert, and Springs of Water, into thirsty ground,

27 And hath caused the famished to dwell there, And they have built them a city to dwell in;

28 fixed is my heart. O God, I will sing and touch the strings, even mine honour.

29 Awake, O harp and lyre, I will awaken the dawn!

30 I will thank thee among the peoples, O Yahweh, And will sing praise unto thee, among the tribes of men.

31 For great above the heavens is thy lovingkindness, And as far as the skies thy faithfulness.

32 Be thou exalted above the heavens, O God, And above all the earth be thy glory.

33 To the end thy beloved ones may be delivered, Oh save thou with thy right hand and answer me!

34 God hath spoken in his holiness, I will exult!

35 I will apportion Shechem! And the Vale of Succoth will I measure cut;

36 Mine is Gilead — my commander’s staff;

37 The upright seeth and is glad, And all perverseness hath closed her mouth.

Who is wise? then let him observe these things! And diligently consider the lovingkindness of Yahweh.

PSALM 108.

To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody.

1 O God of my praise, do not be silent;
2 For the mouth of the lawless one and the mouth of the deceiver are open,
They have spoken to me with a false tongue;
3 And with words of hatred have they surrounded me,
And have made war upon me without cause:
4 For my love they have been accusing me,
While I was at prayer.
5 Yes they have returned unto me—
Evil for good'; and
Hatred for my love.
6 Set in charge over him, one who is lawless,
And let an accuser stand at his right hand;
7 When he is judged let him go out condemned,
And let his own petition become a sin;
8 Let his days become few,
<His overseership> let another take;
9 Let his children become fatherless,
And his wife a widow;
10 Let his children wander about and beg,
Let them be driven out of their ruins;
11 Let the creditor take aim at all that he hath,
And let strangers prey on the fruit of his till;
12 Let him have no one to continue lovingkindness,
And there be none to favour his fatherless children;
13 Let his posterity be for cutting off,
<In another generation> let their name be wiped out;
14 Remembered be the iniquity of his fathers against Yahweh;
And <the sin of his mother> let it not be wiped out;
15 Let them be before Yahweh continually,
And let the memory of them be cut off out of the earth.
16 Because that he remembered not to shew loving-kindness,
But pursued the man that was oppressed and needy,
17 That <the downhearted> he might slay.
PSALMS CX. 2-7; CXL.; CXL.; CXIII. 1—8.

1. Praise ye Yah! How happy is the man who revereth Yahweh,
   In his commandments delighteth he greatly;
2. Mighty in the earth shall be his seed,
   The generation of the upright shall be blessed;
3. Wealth and riches shall be in his house,
   And his righteousness standeth for aye.
4. Risen—in darkness—is light to the upright,
   The gracious and compassionate and righteous.
5. Well for a man shewing favour and lending!
   He shall sustain his affairs with justice.
6. Surely, unto times age-abiding shall he not be shaken,
   In remembrance age-abiding shall he not be afraid,
   Established is his heart, led to trust in Yahweh;
   His heart is established, he shall not be afraid,
   Until that he gazeth on his foes.
7. He hath scattered abroad, he hath given to the needy,
   His righteousness standeth for aye,
   His horn shall be exalted in honour.
8. The lawless one shall see, and be indignant,
   The craving of the lawless shall vanish.

PSALM 113.

1. Praise ye Yah!
   Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh,
Praiseth Name of Yahweh;
Bless the Name of Yahweh:
Henceforth, even to times age-abiding.
2. From the rising of the sun unto the going in thereof:
Worthy to be praised is the Name of Yahweh:
3. Who is like Yahweh our God?
That goeth on high to dwell,
That cometh down low to look,
Through the heavens and through the earth;
4. That raiseth, out of the dust, the poor,
   From the dunghill uplifteth the needy;
5. To give a seat with nobles,
   With the nobles of his people!

PSALM 114.

1. How happy is the man who revereth Yahweh,
   In his commandments delighteth he greatly;
2. Mighty in the earth shall be his seed,
   The generation of the upright shall be blessed;
3. Wealth and riches shall be in his house,

8. The lawless one shall see, and be indignant,
   The craving of the lawless shall vanish.

PSALM 115.

1. Praise ye Yah!
   I will give thanks unto Yahweh, with a whole heart,
   In the circle of the upright and the assembly.
2. Great are the works of Yahweh,
   Sought out by all who find pleasure therein.
3. Honourable and majestic is his doing,
   And his righteousness standeth for aye.
4. A memorial hath he made by his wonders,
   Gracious and compassionate is Yahweh.
5. Hath he given to them who reverence him,
   He will remember, age-abidingly, his covenant.
6. The mighty of his works hath he declared to his people,
   That he may give them the inheritance of the nations.
7. The works of his hands are faithful and just,
   Firm are all his precepts,
   Upheld to futurity, to times age-abiding,
   Done in faithfulness and equity.
8. Ransom hath he sent to his people,
   He hath commanded, to times age-abiding, his covenant,
   Holy and reverend is his Name.

PSALM 114.
1 When Israel came forth out of Egypt,
The house of Jacob from among a people of strange tongue.
2 Judah became his sanctuary,
Israel his realm:
3 The sea beheld, and fled,
. The Jordan turned back;
4 The mountains started like rams,
The hills like the young of the flock?
5 What aileth thee, O sea, that thou fleest?
O Jordan, that thou turnest back?
6 Ye mountains, that ye start like rams?
Ye hills, like the young of the flock?
7 Before the Lord be in anguish.
O earth, Before the God of Jacob:
8 Who turneth The Rock into a stone of water,
The Flint into springs of water.

PSALM 115.
1 Not unto us > O Yahweh, < not unto us >,—
But unto thine own Name give glory, concerning thy lovingkindness, concerning* thy faithfulness.
2 Wherefore' should the nations'say,
Pray where is their God?
3 When our God is in the heavens,
< Whatever he pleased > hath he done.
4 Their idols are silver and gold,
The work of the hands of men,—
5 < A mouth > have they, but they speak not,
< Eyes > have they, but they see not;
6 < Ears > have they, but they hear not,
< A nose > have they, but they smell not:
7 Their hands! but they feel not,
Their feet! but they walk not,
No sound make they in their throat.
8 < Like unto them > shall be they who make them,
Every one who trusteth in them.
9 O Israel! trust thou in Yahweh,
< Their help and their shield > is he!
10 House of Aaron! trust ye in Yahweh,
< Their help and their shield > is he!

11 Ye that revere Yahweh! trust in Yahweh,
< Their help and their shield > is he!
12 Yahweh hath remembered us, he will bless—
He will bless the house of Israel,
He will bless the house of Aaron;
13 He will bless them who revere Yahweh,
< The small with the great >.
14 Yahweh multiply' you,

15 <Costly'in the eyes of Yahweh>
In ||death|| for his men of lovingkindness.
16 I beseech thee, O Yahweh—
For ||I|| am thy servant;—
I ||am thy servant, the son of thy handmaid,
Thou hast loosed my bonds.
17 <To thee> will I sacrifice a sacrifice of thanksgiving,
And <on the Name of Yahweh> will I call:
18 <My vows—to Yahweh> will I pay,
Might it be in the presence of all his people;—
In the courts of the house of Yahweh,
In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem.
Praise ye Yah !

PSALM 117.
1 Praise Yahweh, all ye nations, Land him, all ye tribes of men;" For his lovingkindness hath prevailed over us! And the faithfulness of Yahweh is to times age-abiding.
Praise ye Yah !

PSALM 118.
1 Give ye thanks to Yahweh—
For he is good,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness." 2 I pray you! let Israel [say],
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness." 3 I pray you! let the house of Aaron [say],
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness." 4 I pray you! let them who reverence Yahweh [say],
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness." 5 Out of a strait > called I on Yah,
He answered me with enlargement." 6 [Yahweh] is on my side, I will not fear,' 'What can man' [do unto me]? [Yahweh] is on my side," with them who help me,
I therefore shall gaze upon them who hate me. 8 It is <better to seek refuge in Yahweh>
Than to put confidence in man; 9 It is <better to seek refuge in Yahweh>
Than to put confidence in nobles. 10 All nations have compassed me about,
<In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised;" 11 They have compassed me about—yea compassed me about,
<In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised;" 12 They have compassed me about like wax been," They have blazed up, like the fire of thorns, <In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised.e
13 Thou didst <thrust sore' at me that I might fall, But Yahweh hath helped me.
14 <My might and melody> is Yah,
And he hath become mine' by salvation.f
15 <The voice of shouting and salvation; is in the tents of the righteous, The right hand of Yahweh> is doing valiantly:
16 <The right hand of Yahweh> is exalted,
The right hand of Yahweh, is doing valiantly. 17 I shall not die, but' live, That I may recount the doings' of Yah. 18 Yah' [chastened me sore'], But <unto death> did not deliver me.
19 Open to me the gates of righteousness, I will enter therein, I will give thanks unto Yah.
20 [[This]] is the gate for Yahweh, Such as are righteous shall enter therein.
21 I will thank thee, because thou hast answered me, And hast become mine, by salvation.f
22 A stone the builders' refused]
Hath become the head of the corner:
23 <From Yahweh> hath this' come to pass,
The same' is marvellous in our eyes.
24 This' is the day, which Yahweh' hath made, We will exult, and be glad therein.f
25 Ah now, Yahweh, do save, we beseech thee, Ah now, Yahweh, do send success, we beseech thee! 26 Blessed' be he that entereth,
In the Name of Yahweh,
We have blessed you, Out of the house of Yahweh. 27 Yahweh is God', And hath shed on us light,— Bind ye the festal sacrifice with cords, Up to the horns of the altar. 28 <My God> thou art', and I will thank thee,— My Elohim, I will exalt thee.
29 Give ye thanks to Yahweh—
For he is good,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness. 30 So it shd be (w. Sep.)—

PSALM CXIX. 1—42.

How happy the men of blameless life,
Who walk in the law of Yahweh.

Yea, they have not wrought perversity,
In his ways have they walked.

Thou hast commanded thy precepts.
That they should be diligently kept.

Oh would that my ways' might be settled!
That I might keep thy statutes.

Then shall I not be ashamed,
When I have respect unto all thy commandments.

I will thank thee with uprightness of heart,
When I have learned thy righteous regulations.

Thou hast commandment thy precepts.
That they should be diligently kept.

Oh would that my ways' might be settled!
That I might keep thy statutes.

Even rulers have taken their seat, against me have talked,
Thy servant will still meditate in thy statutes.

Yea, thy testimonies are my dear delight,
My counsellors.

My soul weepeth itself away, for grief,
Confirm thou me, according to thy word.

The way of falsehood take thou from me,
And with thy law O favour me.

The way of faithfulness have I chosen,
Thy regulations have I deemed right.

I have kept close to thy testimonies,
O Yahweh! do not put me to shame.

The way of thy commandments will I run,
For thou wilt enlarge my heart.

Point out to me, O Yahweh, the way of thy statutes,
That I may observe it unto the end.

Give me understanding, that I may observe thy law,
That I may keep it with a whole heart.

Guide me in the path of thy commandments,
For therein do I find pleasure.

Incline my heart unto thy testimonies,
And not unto unjust gain.

Turn away mine eyes, from beholding vanity,
In thy way give me life.

Establish unto thy servant, thy word,
Which pertaineth to the reverence of thee.

Cause to pass away my reproach, that I have feared,
For thy regulations are good.

Lo! I have longed for thy precepts,
In thy righteousness give me life.

And let thy lovingkindness reach me,
O Yahweh,
Thy salvation, according to thy word.
So shall I have something to answer him that reproacheth me,
That I have trusted in thy word.

And do not snatch away from my mouth the word of truth in any wise,*
Because <for thy regulation>° have I waited.
That I may keep thy law continually.
To times age-abiding and beyond.
That I may speak of thy testimonies before kings,
And not be ashamed.
That I may find dear delight in thy commandments,
Which I have loved.
That I may lift up my hands* unto thy commandments, which I have loved,
And may meditate in thy statutes.

Remember the word unto thy servant.
Upon which thou hast caused me to hope,
This is my comfort in mine affliction.
That thy word hath given me life.
Insolent men have derided me exceedingly,
From thy law have I not swerved.
I have remembered thy regulations which have come down from age-past times, O Yahweh,
And have consolled myself.
A raging beast hath seized me, by reason of the lawless,
Who forsake thy law.
<Songs> have thy statutes become to me, in my house* of sojourn.
I have remembered, in the night, thy Name, O Yahweh,
And have kept thy law.
This> have I had, because< thy precepts> have I observed.
My portion is Yahweh,
I have promised that I would keep thy words.*
I have sought the smile of thy face with all my heart;
Shew me favour, according to thy word.4
I have thought upon my ways,
And have turned my feet unto thy testimonies.
I have hastened, and not delayed,
To keep thy commandments.
'The meshes of the lawless have surrounded me,
<Thy law> have I not forgotten.
<At midnight> I arise to give thanks unto thee,
For thy righteous regulations.
<Companion> am I, to all who revere thee,
And to them who keep thy precepts.

O of thy lovingkindness> O Yahweh, the earth is full.
<Thy statutes> teach thou me.
Thy statutes teach thou me.
Well> hast thou dealt with thy servant, O Yahweh, according to thy word.
<Good judgment and knowledge> teach thou me,
For <in thy commandments> have I trusted.
Before I was afflicted> I myself was going astray,
But now< thy word> have I kept.
<Good> thou art, and doing good,
Teach me thy statutes.
Insolent men have plastered falsehood over me,
<With a whole heart> will observe thy precepts.
Gross. like fat> is their heart.
<In thy law> have I found dear delight.
Better to me> is the law of thy mouth,
Than thousands of gold and silver.
Thine own hands have made me, and formed me.
Teach me thy statutes.
They who revere thee shall see me and rejoice
That< for thy word> I waited.
I know, O Yahweh, that righteous are thy regulations.
And in faithfulness didst thou afflict me.
Let thy lovingkindness, I beseech thee, serve to comfort me,
According to thy word* to thy servant.
Let thy compassions reach me, that I may live,
For I! thy low is my dear delight.
Let insolent men be ashamed,
Because< by means of falsehood> they have dealt with me perversely,
Even they who know thy testimonies.
Let my heart be thorough in thy statutes,
That I may not be ashamed.
My soul hath languished for thy salvation,
<For thy word> have I hoped.
Mine eyes have failed* for thy word,*
Saying, When wilt thou comfort me?
Though I have been like a wine-skin in the smoke>
<Thy statutes> have I not forgotten.
How few are the days of thy servant!
When wilt thou execute sentence on my persecutors?
Insolent men dugged for me pits,
Men who are not according to thy law.
PSALM CXIX. 86—128.

3 All thy commandments are faithful, With falsehood have they persecuted me, O help me!
4 A little more and they had consumed me in the earth, But I forsook not thy precepts.
5 According to thy lovingkindness give thou me life, So will I keep the testimonies of thy mouth.

LAMED.
6 Age-abidingly O Yahweh, Hath thy word been set up in the heavens, To generation after generation is thy faithfulness, Thou hast established the earth, and it standeth.
7 By thy regulations do they stand to-day, For all are thy servants.
8 Had not thy law been my dear delight, Then had I perished in mine affliction.
9 Unto times age-abiding will I not forget thy precepts, For by them hast thou given me life.
10 Thine am I—oh save me! For thy precepts have I sought.
11 Have the lawless waited, to destroy me, Thy testimonies will I diligently consider.
12 To all perfection have I seen an end, Broad is thy commandment exceedingly.

MEM.
13 Oh how I love thy law! All the day is it my meditation.
14 Beyond mine enemies will thy commandment make me wise, For age-abidingly shall it be mine.
15 Beyond all my teachers have I shewn discretion, For thy testimonies are my meditation.
16 Beyond the elders will I shew understanding, For thy precepts have I observed.
17 From every way of wickedness have I withheld my feet, That I might keep thy word.
18 From thy regulations have I not turned aside, For thou hast directed me.
19 How smooth to my palate is thy speech, More than honey to my mouth.
20 Out of thy precepts will I get understanding, For this cause do I hate every false way.

NUN.
21 A lamp to my feet is thy word, And a light to my path.
22 I awake, and have fulfilled, To keep thy righteous regulations.

PSALM CXIX. 129—170. 595

129 Wonderful are thy testimonies, For this cause hath my soul observed them.

130 The opening of thy words sheddeth light, Giving understanding to the simple.

131 My mouth have I opened wide, and panted, Because for thy commandments have I longed.

132 Turn thyself unto me, and shew me favour, As is befitting, to the lovers of thy Name.

133 My steps direct thou by thy word, And let no iniquity have dominion over me.

134 Set me free from the oppression of man, So will I keep thy precepts.

135 Light thou up on thy servant, And teach me thy statutes.

136 Thou hast righteously commanded thy testimonies, Yea in great faithfulness.

137 My zeal hath put an end to me, For mine adversaries have forgotten thy words.

138 Refined is thy word, to the uttermost, And [thy servant] loveth it.

139 Thy righteousness is righteous to times age-abiding, And [thy law] is truth.

140 Straitness and distress have befallen me, [Thy commandments] are my dear delights.

141 Righteous' are thy testimonies, unto times age-abiding, Give me understanding, that I may live.

142 Righteous' art thou, O Yahweh,—And [equitable] are thy regulations.

143 Thou hast righteously commanded thy testimonies, Yea in great faithfulness.

144 My zeal have I opened wide, and panted, Because for thy commandments have I longed.

145 Turn thyself unto me, and shew me favour,—As is befitting, to the lovers of thy Name.

146 My steps direct thou by thy word, And let no iniquity have dominion over me.

147 Set me free from the oppression of man, So will I keep thy precepts.

148 Light thou up on thy servant, And teach me thy statutes.

149 Straitness and distress have befallen me, [Thy commandments] are my dear delights.

150 They have drawn near, who pursue villainy, *<From thy law> have they gone far away.

151 Near art thou', O Yahweh, And all thy commandments are truth.

152 Long have I known, from thy testimonies, That <to times age-abiding> thou didst establish them.

153 Behold mine affliction, and rescue me, For <thy law> have I not forgotten.

154 Plead my cause, and redeem me, <By thy word> give me life.

155 Far from the lawless is salvation, For <thy statutes> have they not sought.

156 [Thy compassions] are great, O Yahweh, <According to thy regulations> give me life.

157 Many are my persecutors and mine adversaries, <From thy testimonies> have I not svered.

158 I have seen traitors, and felt loathing, Because <thy word> they kept not.

159 See thou that <thy precepts> I have loved, O Yahweh <according to thy lovingkindness> give me life.

160 [The sum of thy word] is truth,*<Thy face> light thou upon thy servant, And teach me thy statutes.

161 Joyful am I over thy word, Like the finder of spoil in abundance.

162 Falsehood I hate and abhor, <Thy law> do I love.

163 Seven times in the day> have I praised thee, For thy righteous regulations.

164 Blessing in abundance have the lovers of thy law, And nothing to make them's tumble.

165 I have looked for thy salvation, O Yahweh, And [thy commandments] have I done.

166 My soul hath kept thy testimonies, Yea I have loved them greatly.

167 I have kept thy precepts, and thy testimonies, For all my ways are before thee.

168 Let my shouting come near before thee. O Yahweh, <According to thy word> give me understanding.

169 Let my supplication come in' before thee, <According to thy word> deliver me.

5. If it had not been for Yahweh who was on our side,
When men rose up against us,
Then would they have swallowed us up,
In the glow of their anger against us;
Then the waters would have whelmed us,
The torrent gone over our soul;
Then had gone over our soul
The waters so proud!

Blessed be Yahweh, who gave us not as prey to their teeth.

Our soul as a bird hath escaped from the snare of the fowlers,
The snare is broken, and we are escaped:
Our help is in the Name of Yahweh,
Who made heaven and earth.

PSALM 125.
A Song of Ascents.

They who trust in Yahweh are like Mount Zion,
Which shall not be shaken,
Age-abidingly shall it remain.
Jerusalem's mountains are round about her;
And Yahweh is round about his people,
From henceforth even unto times age-abiding.

For the sceptre of lawlessness shall not remain over the allotment of the righteous,—Lest the righteous put forth unto perversity— their hands.

Do good, O Yahweh, unto such as are good,
Even unto such as are upright in their hearts.

As for them who turn aside unto their crooked ways,
Yahweh will lead them forth with the workers of iniquity,
Prosperity on Israel!

PSALM 126.
A Song of Ascents.

When Yahweh brought back the captives of Zion,
We were like those who dream:
Then was our mouth filled with laughter,
And our tongue with a shout of triumph,—
Then said they among the nations,
Yahweh hath done great things with these!
Yahweh hath done great things with us,
We are full of joy!

Bring thou back, O Yahweh, our captives,
Like channels in the South.

They who are sowing with tears
With shouting shall reap:
Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr.)
Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr.,

He that doth indeed go forth and weep,
Bearing seed enough to trail along,*
Doth suddenly come in with shouting,
Bringing his sheaves.

PSALM 127.
A Song of Ascents. Solomon's.

If Yahweh build not the house
In vain have the builders of it toiled thereon,
If Yahweh watch not the city
In vain hath the watchman kept awake:
To be early in rising,
To be late in lying down,
To be eating the bread of wearisome toil,
Would he give his beloved one sleep.

Lo! An inheritance from Yahweh are children,
As the fruit of the womb:
As arrows in the hand of a warrior,
Are the children of young men.

How happy the man who hath filled his quiver with them!
They will not be ashamed,
But will speak with enemies in the gate.

PSALM 128.
A Song of Ascents.

If Yahweh build not the house
In vain have the builders of it toiled thereon,
If Yahweh watch not the city
In vain hath the watchman kept awake:
To be early in rising,
To be late in lying down,
To be eating the bread of wearisome toil,
Would he give his beloved one sleep.

PSALM 129.
A Song of Ascents.

Many a time have they harassed me from my youth,
Well may Israel say:
PSALMS CXXIX. 2—8; CXXX.: CXXXI.; CXXXII. 1—17.

2 <Many a time> have they harassed me from youth, Yet have they not prevailed against me.
3 <Upon my back> have ploughmen ploughed, They have lengthened their furrow!
4 ||Yahweh|| is righteous, He hath cut asunder the cords of the lawless.
5 Let all who hate Zion be ashamed and shrink back:
6 Let them become like the grass of housetops, Which before it is pulled up hath withered;
7 Wherewith no reaper hath filled his hand, Nor binder [his bosom]:
8 Neither have the passers-by ever said, "The blessing of Yahweh be unto you,—We have blessed you in the Name of Yahweh.

PSALM 130.
A Song of Ascents.
1 <Out of the depths> have I cried unto thee, O Yahweh.
2 O My Lord! hearken thou unto my voice,—Let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications
3 <If iniquities> thou shouldst mark, O Yah>
O My Lord,* who could stand?
4 But <with thee> is forgiveness, That thou mayest be revered.
5 I have waited for Yahweh My soul hath waited for his word;°
6 I have hoped, O my soul, for My Lord,* More than they Who watch for the morning, Who [watch for the morning].°
7 Wait, O Israel, for Yahweh,—For <with Yahweh> is lovingkindness, And there aboundeth with him—redemption.
8 Therefore, will redeem Israel From all his iniquities.

PSALM 131.
A Song of Ascents.
1 O Yahweh, my heart is not haughty. Nor are mine eyes lofty, Neither have I moved among great matters. Or among affairs too wonderful for me.°
2 Surely I have soothed and silenced* my soul,—Like a weaned child, concerning his mother, Like a weaned child, concerning myself—mine own soul.
3 Wait, O Israel, for Yahweh, From this time forth, even to times age-abiding.

PSALM 132.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Remember, O Yahweh, unto David, All his humiliations!
2 What he Swore to Yahweh,—Vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob:
3 Surely I will not enter the home of my own house, Nor ascend my curtained couch;
4 I will not give sleep to mine eyes, Nor <to mine eye-lashes> slumber:
5 Until I find A place for Yahweh, Habitations' for the Mighty One of Jacob.
6 Lo! we heard of it at Ephrathah, We found it in the fields of the wood.
7 We would enter his habitations, We would bow down at his footsteps.
8 Arise! O Yahweh, unto thy place of rest, [Thou, || and the ark of thy strength.°

Psalm 183

A Song of Ascents. David’s.

1 Lo! <how good and how delightful> For brethren || to dwell together even as one.

2 Like the precious oil upon the head; Descending upon the beard; The beard of Aaron,— Which descended unto the opening of his robe:

3 Like the dew of Hermon, which descended upon the mountains of Zion,— For || there || did Yahweh command the blessing, || Life || unto times age-abiding.

Psalm 184

A Song of Ascents.

1 Lo! bless Yahweh, all ye servants of Yahweh, Who stand in the house of Yahweh | by night: |

2 Lift up your hand in holiness, And bless Yahweh.

3 May Yahweh | bless thee | out of Zion, Even he that made heaven and earth.

Psalm 185

Praise ye Yah; Praise ye the Name of Yahweh, Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh; Who stand in the house of Yahweh, In the courts of the house of our God.

5 For || I || know that great’ is Yahweh, Yea our Lord, 4 is beyond all gods.

6 <Whosoever Yahweh hath pleased> he hath done,— In the heavens and on the earth, In the seas, and all resounding deeps:

7 Causing vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,— <Lightnings for the rain> hath he made, Bringing forth wind out of his treasuries.

8 Who smote the firstborn of Egypt, Both of man, and of beast; Sent signs and wonders into thy midst, O Egypt, Upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants.

10 Who smote great nations, And slew mighty kings: 11 Sihon, king of the Amorites, And Og, king of Bashan, And all the kingdoms of Canaan;

12 And gave their land as an inheritance, An inheritance to Israel his people.

13 O Yahweh! || thy Name || is age-abiding,— O Yahweh! || thy memorial || is to generation after generation.

14 For Yahweh will vindicate’ his people,— And <on his servants> have compassion.

15 || The idols of the nations || are silver and gold, The work 4 of the hands of men: || A mouth || have they, but they speak not, || Eyes || have they, but they see not; || Ears || have they, but they hear not, || Nose || —there is no’ breath in their mouth.

18 <Like unto them> shall be they who make them, Every one who trusteth in them.

19 O house of Israel! bless Yahweh, O house of Aaron! bless Yahweh; O house of Levi! bless Yahweh, Ye that revere Yahweh! bless Yahweh.

21 Blessed be Yahweh out of Zion, Who inhabiteth Jerusalem, Praise ye Yah !

Psalm 186

Give ye thanks to Yahweh For he is good,

For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness. 1

2 Give ye thanks to the God of gods, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

3 Give ye thanks to the Lord of lords, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

4 To him that doeth great wonders | by himself alone|, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

5 To him that made the heavens with understanding, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

6 To him that stretched out the earth above the waters, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

7 To him that made great lights, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

8 The sun to rule the day, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

9 The moon and stars to rule the night, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

10 To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

11 And brought forth Israel out of their midst, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

12 With a firm hand, and a stretched-out arm, For || age-abiding || is his lovingkindness.

To him that divided the Red Sea into divisions,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
13 And caused Israel to pass through the midst thereof,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
14 And shook off Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
15 To him that led his people through the desert,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
16 To him that smote great kings,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
17 Even Sihon, king of the Amorites,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
18 Also Og, king of Bashan,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
19 Who remembered us,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
20 And gave their land for an inheritance,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
21 And gave it to Israel their servant,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
22 And gaveth food to all flesh,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
23 Who gave thes thereof us words of song,
And our plunderers— gladness,—
Sing us of the songs of Zion!
24 How shall we sing the song of Yahweh,
On a foreign soil?
25 Who giveth food to all flesh,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
26 Give ye thanks unto the God of the heavens,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

PSALM 138.
1 I will give thee thanks with all my heart,
Before the messengers of God will I praise thee in song:
2 I will bow down towards thy holy temple,
And thank thy Name, for thy lovingkindness and for thy faithfulness,
For thou hast magnified, [above all thy Name],
your word.
3 <In the day I cried unto thee>
Then didst thou answer me,
And didst excite me, in my soul, mightily.
4 All the kings of the earth [will thank thee, O Yahweh],
When they have heard the sayings of thy mouth;
5 And they will sing of the ways of Yahweh,
That great' is the glory of Yahweh:
6 <Though lofty' is Yahweh> yet <the lowly> heregardeth,
But <the haughty— afar off> doth he acknowledge.
7 <Though I walk in the midst of distress> thou wilt give me life,—
Because of the anger of my foes' thou wilt thrust forth thy hand,
And thy right' hand |will save me|:
8 <Yahweh> will carry through my cause,—
O Yahweh! [thy lovingkindness] is age-abiding,
The works of thine own hands> do not thou desert.

PSALM 139.
To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody.
1 O Yahweh! thou hast searched me, and observed;
Thou hast observed my downsitting and mine uprising,
Thou hast given heed to my desire, from afar:
2 <My path and my couch> hast thou examined,
And <all my ways> thou wilt knowest.

PSALM 140.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1. Rescue me, O Yahweh, from the men of mischief,
   <From the men of violence> wilt thou preserve me:
2. Who have devised mischiefs in [their] heart,
   <Every day> do they stir up wars:
3. They have sharpened their tongue like a serpent,—
   The poison of the asp! is under their lips.

4. Keep me, O Yahweh, from the hands of the lawless one,
   <From the man of violence> wilt thou preserve me:
   Who have devised to thrust at my steps:
   The proud have hidden a snare for me,
   And <cords> have they spread as a net beside the track,
   <Snares> have they set for me.

5. I have said unto Yahweh, [My God] thou art!
   Give ear, O Yahweh, unto the voice of my supplications.
6. O Yahweh, My Lord, my saving strength,
   Thou hast screened my head in the day of battle.
7. Do not grant, O Yahweh, the desires of the lawless one,
   <His device> do not promote,
   They would exalt themselves.

8. <As for the head of them who surround me>
   Let the mischief of their lips cover them:
9. <May there be dropped on them live coals,—
   Into the fire> may they be let fall,
   Into watery pits [from which] they shall not rise.
10. <As for the slanderer> let him not be established in the earth,—
    <As for the man of wrongful violence> let misfortune hunt him with thrust upon thrust.

11. I know that Yahweh will execute
    The right of the oppressed one,
    The vindication of the needy.
12. Surely [[the righteous]] shall give thanks to thy Name,
    The upright shall dwell' in thy presence.

PSALM 141.
A Melody of David.
1 O Yahweh, I have cried unto thee.
   Make haste to me, Give ear unto my voice, when I cry to thee.
2 Let my prayer be set in order like incense before thee,—
   The lifting up of my hands* as the evening gift.
3 Set thou, O Yahweh, a watch at my mouth,
   Keep thou guard over the door of my lips.
4 Let not my heart incline to a matter of wrong.
   That I should busy myself with practices in lawlessness, with men working iniquity,
   And let me not eat of their dainties.
5 Let a righteous man smite me—
   <A lovingkindness> that he should correct me.
   An oil for the head [which] let not my head refuse!
   For [yet]; [even my prayer] shall be in their calamities.
6 Their judges have been hurled down by a crag, [b]
   Now have men heard my sayings, for they have become sweet.
7 <As when one plougheth and furroweth the earth>
   [Scattered about] are our bones at the mouth of hades!
8 Surely <unto thee, O Yahweh, My Lord> are mine eyes,
   <In thee> have I sought refuge,
   Do not pour out my life.
   Keep me out of The clutches of the trap they have set for me, and
   The snares of the workers of iniquity.
10 They who are lawless shall fall into the nooses thereof,
   While [I, at the same time] pass on.

PSALM 142.
An Instructive Psalm of David. When he was in the Cave. A Prayer.
1 <With my voice—to Yahweh> make I outcry,
   <With my voice—to Yahweh> make I supplication:
2 I pour out before him my complaint,
   <My distress—before him> I tell.
3 <When my spirit fainted concerning myself>
   Then thou didst take note of my path, —
   <In the course which I was about to take>
   They had hidden a snare for me.

PSALM 143.
A Melody of David.
10 Yahweh, hear my prayer.
   Give ear to my supplications,
   <In thy faithfulness> answer me, |in thy righteousness|.
2 Do not then enter into judgment with thy servant,
   For no one living can appear just before thee.
3 For an enemy Hath pursued my soul,
   Hath crushed, to the earth, my life,
   Hath made me dwell in dark places, like the ancient dead.
4 Therefore hath my spirit ’fainted concerning myself,
   <Within me> hath my heart been confounded.
5 I have remembered the days of aforetime,
   I have talked with myself of every deed of thine,
   <Of the work of thy hands> I would speak:
   I have spread out my hands unto thee,
   Thy soul is as a thirsty land, for thee. [Selah.
7 Speedily answer me, O Yahweh,
   My spirit faileth,—
   Do not hide thy face from me,
   Or I shall be made like unto them who go down into the pit.
8 Let me hear, in the morning, thy lovingkindness.
   For in thee have I waited.” (or “hoped”).
9 Rescue me from my foes, O Yahweh,
   Unto thee have I come seeking refuge.

10 Teach me to do thy good pleasure,
For thou art my God, —
Thy spirit is good,
Wilt thou set me down to rest in a level land?*
11 <For the sake of thy Name>, O Yahweh, wilt thou give unto me life, <In thy righteousness> wilt thou bring forth, out of distress, my soul;
And <in thy lovingkindness> wilt thou exterminate my foes,—
And destroy all the adversaries of my soul, Because || I || am thy servant.

PSALM 144.
David's.
1 Blessed be Yahweh, my Rock, Who teacheth my hands to war, my fingers to fight:
2 My lovingkindness and my stronghold,
My high tower and my deliverer—mine!!
My buckler, and he in whom I have sought refuge,—
He that subdueth my people under me.c
3 O Yahweh! what is the earthborn. And yet thou hast acknowledged him,—The son of a mortal, And yet thou hast taken account of him:*
| The earthborn | resembleth | [a vapour; | His days | are like a passing' shadow. |

3 O Yahweh! bow thy heavens and come down, Touch the mountains, that they smoke:
Flash forth lightning, that thou mayest scatter them, Send out thine arrows, that thou mayest confound them:
Put forth thy hands from on high:—
Snatch me away and rescue me Out of mighty waters,
Out of the hand of the sons of the alien,
Whose mouth hath spoken deceit, And whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

11 Snatch me away and rescue me Out of the hand of the sons of the alien,— Whose mouth hath spoken deceit, And whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood:—
12 That || our sons || may be like plants well grown while yet young,—
|| Our daughters || like corner pillars, —
| carvcd, in the construction of a palace:
| Our flocksl multiplying by thousands—by myriads, in our open fields:

12 That our sons may be like plants well grown while yet young,—
| Our daughters like corner pillars, —
| carved, in the construction of a palace:
13 Our garnerst full, pouring out from one kind to another;
14 Our oxen well-laden;
No breaking in and no departing,—
And no loud lament in our places of concourse: —
15 How happy the people that is in such' a case!
How happy the people that hath Yahweh for its God!

PSALM 145.
A Psalm of Praise. David's.
1 I will exalt thee, my God, O King, And will bless thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond:
2 Every day will I bless thee, And praise thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond.b
3 Great' is Yahweh—and worthy to be heartily praised, And || his greatness|| is unsearchable.b
4 <Generation unto generation> shall celebrate thy works, And <thy mighty deeds> shall they tell:
5 <The splendour of the glory of thy majesty>> shall they speak, And <thy wonders> will I utter.e
6 And <the might of thy terrible acts> shall men speak, And <as for thy greatness> I will recount it.
7 <The memory of thy great goodness> shall men pourforth, And <thy righteousness> shall they shout aloud.
8 Good' is Yahweh to all, And his tender compassions are over all his works.
9 Good' is Yahweh to all, And his tender compassions are over all his works.

10 All thy works, O Yahweh, [will give thanks unto thee;— And thy men of lovingkindness] will bless thee:

11 <The glory of thy kingdom> will they tell,— And <thy power> will they speak.

12 To make known to the sons of men, his mighty deeds, And the splendid glory of his kingdom.

13 Thy kingdom is a kingdom of all ages,— And thy dominion is over generation after generation.*

14 Yahweh is ready to uphold all who are falling, And to raise all who are laid prostrate.

15 <The eyes of all> <for thee> do wait, And <thee> givest them their food in its season.

16 <Thou> openest thy hand, And fillest every living thing with gladness.

17 Righteous is Yahweh in all his ways, And kind in all his works.

18 Near is Yahweh to all who call upon him,— To all them who call upon him in faithfulness.

19 <The desire of them who revere him> will he fulfil, And <their cry> will he hear, and will save them.

20 Yahweh preserveth all who love him, But <all the lawless> will he destroy.

21 <The praise of Yahweh> my mouth shall speak, That all flesh may bless his holy Name, Unto times age-abiding and beyond.

PSALM 146.

1 Praise ye Yah, Praise, O my soul, Yahweh, 2 I will praise Yahweh while I live! I will make melody to my God while I continue! 3 Do not ye trust in nobles, In a son of man’s who hath no deliverance: His spirit goeth forth], he returneth to his ground, <In that very day> his thoughts perish. 5 How happy is he that hath the God of Jacob as his help, Whose hope is on Yahweh his God:—

* Here some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) add:— "Faithful is Yahweh in all his words, And kind in all his works"—G.n.
[So putting the missing main (»r»r»a = "Faithful") and making 22 verses—one for each letter in the alphabet. Cp. "Special Note," I. 5, post, p. 697.]
* Or "Adam," * Or "Adam,"

6 Who made The heavens and the earth, The sea and all that is therein, Who keepeth faithfulness to times age-abiding:

7 Who executeth justice for the oppressed, Who giveth food to the famishing, [Yahweh who liberath prisoners;]
[Yahweh who opened the eyes of the blind, Yahweh who raiseth the prostrate, Yahweh who loveth the righteous;]
[Yahweh who preserveth sojourners, <The fatherless and widowers> he relieveth,— But <the way of the lawless> he overturneth.

8 Yahweh will reign, to times age-abiding, Thy God, O Zion, To generation after generation.

Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 147.

1 Praise ye Yah. For it is good, to make melody to our God,*— For it is delightful, seemly’ is praise! 2 Yahweh is building Jerusalem, <The outcasts of Israel> will he gather together. 3 He is healing the broken in heart,— And binding up their hurts. 4 Counting the number of the stars, <To all of them—names> he giveth. 5 Greatest is our Lord, and of abounding strength, And [his knowledge] cannot be expressed. 6 Yahweh [releiveth the humbled! ’] Casting the lawless down to the earth. 7 Respond to Yahweh with thanksgiving, Make melody to our God with the lyre. 8 Who covereth the heavens with clouds, Preparing rain’ for the earth, Who causeth the mountains to sprout grass: Giving, to the beast, its food, To the young ravens, when they cry. 10 <Not in the strength of the horse> doth he delight, <Not> in the legs of a man hast he pleasure: 11 Yahweh hath pleasure in them who revere him, In them who wait for his lovingkindness.

12 Laud thou, O Jerusalem, Yahweh, Praise thy God, O Zion: For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates, He hath blessed thy children in thy midst: 14 Who maketh thy boundaries to be peace, <With the marrow of wad> doth he satisfy thee:

15 Who sendeth his utterance* to the earth, <How swiftly> runneth his word!

* Or: "oppressed." * Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.): "Nor" (»= "And not")—G.n.

17 Who made The heavens and the earth, The sea and all that is therein, Who keepeth faithfulness to times age-abiding:

18 Who executeth justice for the oppressed, Who giveth food to the famishing, [Yahweh who liberath prisoners;]
[Yahweh who opened the eyes of the blind, Yahweh who raiseth the prostrate, Yahweh who loveth the righteous;]
[Yahweh who preserveth sojourners, <The fatherless and widowers> he relieveth,— But <the way of the lawless> he overturneth.

19 Yahweh will reign, to times age-abiding, Thy God, O Zion, To generation after generation.

Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 147.

1 Praise ye Yah. For it is good, to make melody to our God,*— For it is delightful, seemly’ is praise! 2 Yahweh is building Jerusalem, <The outcasts of Israel> will he gather together. 3 He is healing the broken in heart,— And binding up their hurts. 4 Counting the number of the stars, <To all of them—names> he giveth. 5 Greatest is our Lord, and of abounding strength, And [his knowledge] cannot be expressed. 6 Yahweh [releiveth the humbled! ’] Casting the lawless down to the earth. 7 Respond to Yahweh with thanksgiving, Make melody to our God with the lyre. 8 Who covereth the heavens with clouds, Preparing rain’ for the earth, Who causeth the mountains to sprout grass: Giving, to the beast, its food, To the young ravens, when they cry. 10 <Not in the strength of the horse> doth he delight, <Not> in the legs of a man hast he pleasure: 11 Yahweh hath pleasure in them who revere him, In them who wait for his lovingkindness.

12 Laud thou, O Jerusalem, Yahweh, Praise thy God, O Zion: For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates, He hath blessed thy children in thy midst: 14 Who maketh thy boundaries to be peace, <With the marrow of wad> doth he satisfy thee:

15 Who sendeth his utterance* to the earth, <How swiftly> runneth his word!

* Or: "oppressed." * Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.): "Nor" (»= "And not")—G.n.

17 Who made The heavens and the earth, The sea and all that is therein, Who keepeth faithfulness to times age-abiding:

18 Who executeth justice for the oppressed, Who giveth food to the famishing, [Yahweh who liberath prisoners;]
[Yahweh who opened the eyes of the blind, Yahweh who raiseth the prostrate, Yahweh who loveth the righteous;]
[Yahweh who preserveth sojourners, <The fatherless and widowers> he relieveth,— But <the way of the lawless> he overturneth.

19 Yahweh will reign, to times age-abiding, Thy God, O Zion, To generation after generation.

Praise ye Yah!
Who giveth snow like wool,
<Hoar-frost—like ashes> he scattereth:
Casting forth his ice like crumbs,
<Before his cold> who can stand?
He sendeth forth his word and melteth them,
He causeth his wind to blow, the waters’ stream along:
Declaring his word unto Jacob,
His statutes and his regulations, unto Israel.
He hath not dealt so with any nation
And <his regulations> he maketh not known to them.

Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 148.

Praise ye Yah.
Praise Yahweh, out of the heavens.
Praise him in the heights;
Praise him, all his messengers.
Praise him, all his host;
Praise him, sun and moon,
Praise him, all ye stars of light;
Praise him, O ye heavens of heavens,
And ye waters’ that are above the heavens;
Let them praise the Name of Yahweh,
For [he] commanded, and they were created;
So caused he them to stand perpetually—age-abidingly,
<A decree> hath he given, and it passeth not beyond.

Praise Yahweh, out of the earth,
Sea monsters, and all resounding deeps;
Fire and hail, snow and vapour,
Stormy wind, fulfilling his word;
Ye mountains, and all hills,
Fruit trees, and all cedars;
Thou wild-beast, and all ye cattle,
Crawling creature, and bird of wing;
Kings of earth, and all peoples,
Rulers, and all judges of earth;
Young men, yea even virgins,
Elders, and children.

Let them praise the Name of Yahweh,
For lofty is his Name alone,
His splendour is over earth and heavens.
Therefore hath he exalted a horn for his people,
A praise’ for all his men of lovingkindness,
For the sons of Israel—a people near him,
Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 149.

Praise ye Yah;
Sing to Yahweh a song that is new,
His praise in the convocation of the men of lovingkindness.
Let Israel rejoice in him that made him,
Let the sons of Zion exult in their king;
Let them praise his Name in the dance,
<With timbrel and lyre> let them make music to him.
For Yahweh is taking pleasure in his people,
He will beautify humbled ones with victory.
Let the men of lovingkindness exult as they glory,
Let them shout aloud upon their beds:
The high songs of God be in their throat,
And a two-edged sword in their hand:
To execute An avenging among the nations,
Rebukes among the peoples:
To bind Their kings with fetters, and
Their honoured ones with iron bands;
To execute upon them the sentence written,
Shall it be to all his men of lovingkindness.
Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 150.

Praise ye Yah,
Praise ye God in his sanctuary,
Praise him, in his strong expanse;
Praise him, for his mighty deeds,
Praise him, according to his exceeding greatness:
Praise him, with the blast of a horn,
Praise him, with the harp and lyre:
Praise him, with timbrel and dance,
Praise him, with stringed instrument and flute;
Praise him, with cymbals of clear tone,
Praise him, with cymbals of loud clang;
Let ||every breathing thing|| praise Yah,
Praise ye Yah!

88 Or: "oppressed ones."
89 Or: "exult with ascriptions of Glory!"—O. G.
90 Or: "lute"—O. G.
91 Or: "wind instrument."
92 Or: "a more broadly: wind instrument."

SPECIAL NOTE

ON

THE PSALMS.

The exigencies of space in relation to the varying forms in which this Bible is issued afford a welcome opportunity for inserting here a Special Note on the Psalms, rather than reserve such note for the Old Testament Appendix. It will be necessary to restrict this further outgrowth from the original design of The Emphasised Bible to subjects which are in some measure peculiar to the work, leaving the student to seek elsewhere for fuller information on related topics. It will be convenient to treat, first, of some external features which are observable in the foregoing presentation of the Psalms; and, secondly, to touch upon some more essential characteristics of those precious compositions, especially in regard to certain grave questions of interpretation.

I. External Features.

1. The division of the Psalms into Books, having now been familiarised by means of the Revised Version, claims no further notice here than merely to say that the ancient issue of the Psalms in successive and enlarging collections, relieves us from all embarrassment and impulse to prejudgment, when we first find it stated at the end of the Second Book (Psalm lxxii.) that the prayers of David the son of Jesse are "ended," and yet discover others, later on, attributed to the same author. Just as, in the Book of Proverbs, the first collection (x. to xxiv.) is supplemented by another which, at a later date, "Hezekiah and his men copied out" (xxv. 1), so later editions of the Psalms may very well contain compositions from David's own pen which at an earlier time had not been brought to light, or had not been suitably edited for insertion among the hymns employed in the Temple service.

2. The titles of the Psalms need cause us no anxiety. That they are very ancient is evident from their appearance as translated in the Septuagint Version,* but further than this we need not go; and if any Psalms, by the application of sound principles of exegesis, remonstrate against the occasion ascribed to them, we need do no more than pay respectful regard to a venerable tradition, and pass on in quest of more conclusive evidence. In particular it should be understood that the preposition generally rendered "of" in the phrase "Psalm of David," may easily and naturally be rendered "to," "for," "of," or "by," and so may be taken as the "to" of dedication, the "for" of desired use, the "of" of subject-matter, or finally the "by" of authorship—which last can itself scarcely preclude editorial preparation for liturgical use, to say nothing of perils of transcription and transmission, to guard us from which the labours of the textual critic are of such priceless worth. A Psalm "of" Asaph may have been "for" Asaph's use, or one composed "by" him. We should scarcely think of a Psalm composed "by" the Sons of Korah: much rather "for" their use. And yet one and the same preposition serves in these several applications. An effort has been made in the foregoing version to keep the reader in the enjoyment of his legitimate freedom.

3. The word Selah has long been proof against all endeavours to resolve it. That it literally means "to lift up" has been generally admitted. But "lift up" what?—instruments or voices? And why and how lift up? And so despair has relinquished the inquiry: it was some musical note or sign—precise nature unknown. Others settled down in the conclusion that it simply or chiefly meant "Pause." And "pause" was nearly successful; save that, to say "pause" at the end of a Psalm, seemed needless. To the Oxford Gesenius belongs the merit of suggesting a more adequate explanation, the substance of which is cited in note [*] to Ps. iii. p. 530, ante. As a call upon the people to lift up their voices in praise of Yahweh, a pleasing pause for a practical purpose would be thereby constituted, and one which would suit equally the close of a strophe or the end of a Psalm; and at the same time not be wholly out of place even when it was used to mark a movement of musical rhetoric—interrupting a sentence—a movement akin to the pause for effect familiar in oratory. If the latter part of this explanation be borne in mine, the otherwise unwelcome letting in of a little extra space in connection with some of the occurrences of "Selah" in the foregoing pages, will be explained.

4. We are thus prepared for the more graphic setting of the word Hallelujah (= Hallelu Yah = "Praise ye Yah") than was previously familiar to us; and for which we are indebted to Dr. Ginsburg. Hallelu Yah becomes the more general invitation to the people to join: Selah the more precise intimation of the points at which the loud acclaim should come in. That the two words are seldom or never found in company, may merely show that, after all, we have only glimpse of the ancient temple worship. At first it may seem a little amusing that by the simple process of resolving the word "hallelujah" into its elements and then translating it in harmony with its force and intent we actually get rid of the word (as one compound word) altogether! That is so; but consider the gain. We not only catch a fresh sight of the ancient worship as a living thing, but we gain an accession to the instances in which the thrice holy Divine Name (in its abbreviated form of "Jah"—"Yah") occurs in the Old Testament; and, so condescending upon the minor matter of pronunciation, it seems peculiarly becoming that the same translation that ventures upon the spelling "Yahweh" should set free from its almost meaningless combination (often flippantly ejaculated, and sometimes lightly used as a badge) the august syllable Yah. The relation of "Yah" to "Yahweh" is so generally admitted, that to accept the obvious pronunciation of the former and refuse the proposed pronunciation of the latter, would appear to be rather inconsistent.

5.—The Alphabetical Psalms claim notice, if only because—the fact that there are such Psalms has in this Bible been forced into prominence by the exhibit in the margin of the Hebrew letters which form this characteristic. It will readily be understood that in some cases these letters have been placed in the right-hand margin merely for convenience, and that they still refer to the first Hebrew word in the line. There are seven such Alphabetical Psalms—namely, xxv., xxxiv., xxxvii., exi., cxxi., cxxiv., and cxiv. To these, some scholars add Psalms ix. and x., which were perhaps originally one Psalm, and in which fragments of the alphabetical arrangement are still discernible. The 119th is the most conspicuous of these singular compositions, both owing to the number of verses headed by each Hebrew letter in succession (eight to each), and to the circumstance that the names of the Hebrew letters are preserved as paragraph headings by the Bibles in common use. The device under consideration may be described as an abecedarian acrostic. Eight verses in succession begin (in the original) with words commencing with aleph; then eight verses start with words beginning with bet; and so on to the end of the alphabet of 22 letters, making 176 verses in all. On the other alphabetical Psalms the arrangement is less formidable; a stanza only, or a distich, or even a single line being headed by each Hebrew letter as the initial of the original word employed. This initialling device makes a singularly striking and beautiful appearance in the Book of Lamentations, in which book of five chapters four are alphabetical: Chapters i. and ii. having each a single alphabet, hence twenty-two verses each; Chapter iii., a triple alphabet—three alephs, three beths, etc.—hence sixty-six verses in all; Chapter iv., a single alphabet and twenty-two verses; Chapter v., still twenty-two verses, but, strange to say, no alphabet. In settling the rendering of Chapter iii., it was found easily possible to conform some four or five triplettes to the same style, so far as to begin three verses in succession with the same English letter. Ordinarily, as might be anticipated, the imitation has to be given up; but this small measure of success impressed the present translator's mind with the conviction that here we have to do with something more than a literary curiosity. There must have been patient dealing on the part of the author; and there must have resulted an aid to memory so effective as scarcely to have been outside the original composer's intention. Truly, a fruitful consideration, bearing on the advantages even now of memorising Holy Scripture, and on the debt of gratitude we owe to paraphrasts and hymn-writers who, by alliteration, rhythm, and rhyme, render aid to the memories of the illiterate, the sick, the blind, and the bookless—aid which tends to keep Divine truth alive in the hearts of men when they most need its influence. Incidentally, the Alphabetical Psalms may yield a valuable lesson in textual criticism. Whoever the author of any one of these Psalms may have been, the intuition comes to us with unanswerable force that if the initial alphabet is nearly unbroken, it must have been originally intended to make it perfect. Hence, when an expert like Dr. Ginsburg says, on Psalm xxv. 2, that he thinks that instead of "O my God, in thee," it should rather be "In thee, O my God," it needs only that we notice that whereas the former in Hebrew is Elohay, bekh, the latter is Beks, Elohay, thus perfecting the sequence of the initials by bringing the letter beth next after aleph, to feel almost certain that he is right. In like manner, when we observe that, while the nineteenth letter (koph) is absent, the twentieth letter (resh) starts two verses in succession, we cannot avoid the conclusion that a disturbance has at some time or other crept in, even though we cannot now set the matter right; and perhaps just here it may be of no practical consequence, as some nearly synonymous word to that rendered "Behold" in verse 18, but beginning with a k, may have originally commenced that sentence. Where, however, the alphabet is complete, we rest content in the assurance that copyists have had a double safeguard against error.

6.—Something has been done in this translation to resolve the individual Psalms into groups of lines, commonly called strophes, thereby marking sub-divisions likely to be of practical service, both as indicating changes of tone, topic, speaker, and drift, and as letting in glimpses of that mighty afflatus by which the psalmists were suddenly or gradually carried away into realms of thought and feeling wholly beyond their actual circumstances. It is probable that more might have been done in this direction, even by one individual, had unlimited time and space been at command; but it may in the end be better that studious readers should help themselves by grafting personal labour upon that which here and elsewhere has been prepared to their hand. Where the interjection of "Selah" has occasioned a division which cannot be justified even by a musical imagination, let some small "closing-up" sign be inserted by the student's own hand in the margin. Where, on the other hand, smaller strophes are seen to group themselves into larger divisions, let extra space, at the larger divisions, be in like manner suggested by some appropriate token.

II.—ESSENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS.

It is impossible here to treat of many of the most obvious of these—the adaptation of the Psalms, by reason of their direct address to Deity, to lift up man's spirit to his Maker; their powerful hold on men's deepest sympathies, in that they are sensitively in touch with a wide range of human sin and sorrow; their prevailing tendency to carry the reader onward out of darkness into light, so that although many of them commence in deepest depths of despair, their ending is mostly on the mountain top of exuberant joy; and, not to go further, the happy blending of personal interests with national and world-wide affairs, so that the piety that begins at home in the privacy of the closet and, it may be, the agonies of a broken heart, is speedily borne on eagle wings to survey the glorious majesty of the Divine Kingdom. On these and other grounds, here left untouched, the lasting popularity of the Psalms securely rests.

A few points, however, not overmuch observed, claim brief remark.

1.—The dramatic structure of a good many Psalms makes special demand on interpretative inquiry. Take the Second Psalm as an example. In reading this we listen to no fewer than four distinct voices. There is first (and last) the voice of the Psalmist himself, speaking in his own person, however truly he was led of the Spirit in what he uttered; secondly, the language attributed to the lawless conspirators against Yahweh and his Anointed One; thirdly, the counter declaration of the Most High; fourthly, the record of the Son of God, who in turn cites the terms in which he had been addressed by the Divine Father, counselling him (the Son) to ask for and obtain worldwide dominion; the whole being then concluded, as named above, by the resuming voice of the Psalmist, as timely adviser, counselling the kings and rulers of the earth to act with prudence. It is little to say that the Psalm cannot be expounded in the absence of dramatic feeling and insight: it cannot even be read with fitting expression. Perhaps the most difficult of all the dramatic Psalms is the sixty-eighth, which severely taxes, not the expositor alone, but the translator, who has to determine how to render his descriptive tenses, whether as applying to past, present, or future; and, to decide this, he seems bound to apprehend, as best he may, what is the ideal key-note of the whole of this magnificent composition. The ground-thought being almost certainly the bringing up of the ark to Jerusalem, yet manifestly this concept shrinks into a mere point of departure for a flight into Messiah's coming kingdom, for which the Ascension of the Anointed One into heavenly glory is a stepping-stone—unless indeed our own beloved Apostle Paul is wholly at fault in Ephesians Four.

2.—This feature of dramatic structure naturally leads forward to a deeper question—that of inspirational prophetic flight into the future. Were Psalms and Prophets divinely gifted seers into futurity, or were they not? Were they—as the Apostle Peter affirms they were—taken hold of and borne along or carried away out of the present into the future? It may be conceded that to be sent back to the historical starting-points of the prophetic word is well; but to get set fast there is ill indeed. The eagle of prophecy had its nest on the rock of accomplished fact; but to that rock it was not chained. It had a pinion strong enough to bear it up towards the sun, to an elevation from which it could descry things then distant, yea, and things yet to come.

3.—This step emboldens us to take another, landing us in the midst of the problem of dispensation. What spirit are we of?—what dispensation are we in? For instance, can we, may we, dare we curse as the old Hebrews cursed—as we might almost say—they were trained to curse? Take Psalm cix. as an example, if you wish to see how whole-heartedly and with what poetry and passion they could execute their foes. Can we curse like that? or are we in duty bound and in spirit empowered to abstain? We know well we must not curse at all. But how is that? It is because we have heard a Voice saying, "Bless and curse not"; because we have seen an Example which would put us to shame if we, even on the strongest provocation, dared to "breathe out threatenings and slaughter"; and, finally, because we can never think the command to abstain from cursing arbitrary so long as we realise that we are at present only followers of the Messiah in his humiliation. In this the whole question of dispensation is involved. But the sword of truth is two-edged. The Church—the called-out assembly—of the Messiah cannot curse; but there is another thing she cannot do—at least if rightly guided. She cannot confound herself with the manifested, world-dominating Kingdom of God. The life of the kingdom is in her by faith—that is all; she sees the kingdom at present only from afar. By faith she brings it nigh, it is true; and that is precisely the angle of vision from which she can say and sing the songs of the kingdom which she finds in the Book of Psalms. She leaps over the intervening "strange work" of overthrowing and breaking in pieces. That belongs not to her—least of all at present. That commission is safe in immortal and unerring hands. If we are ever to join in its execution, it can only be when we have "overcome"; and we cannot overcome if we fail meantime to let patience have her perfect work. If it might be said without presumption: When Biblical Criticism knows how to make the reasonable distinction—that what is impossible now may be possible hereafter—it may cease torturing humble souls by seeming to say that there are no Predictions of a Personal Messiah in the Old Testament. In any case, it may safely be said: That in proportion as Christians can see their way to judge simply and clearly as to what in the Psalms they may legitimately decline as inapplicable to them; and what in the Psalms they may simply defer, as unfurnished at present; and so cease to stretch and strain the Word in order to make it suit our intermediate dispensation, to which in the main it does not belong;—so in proportion will they enjoy these admirable lyrics with a refined delight which, probably, they have not hitherto known.

THE PROVERBS.

General Introduction, in Praise of Wisdom, as the Source whence Proverbs are derived (Chapters I. to IX).

1. The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, King of Israel:

2. For the knowledge of wisdom and correction, For discerning the sayings of intelligence;
3. For receiving the correction of prudence, Righteousness and justice, and equity;
4. For giving "to the simple shrewdness, " to the young man, knowledge and discretion.

5. A wise man will hear, and will increase learning, And a discreet man will acquire, By gaining discernment of proverb, and satire, The words of the wise, and their dark sayings.

6. The reverence of Yahweh is the beginning of knowledge, Wisdom and correction the foolish have despised.

7. Hear, my son, the correction of thy father, And do not reject the instruction of thy mother; For a wreath of beauty shall they be to thy head, And chains of ornament, to thy neck.

8. My son, if sinners entice thee do not consent. If they say—
   Come with us,— Let us lie in wait for blood, Let us watch in secret for him who is needlessly innocent;
   Let us engulf them, like hades, [alive], While in health like them who are going down to the pit;
   All costly substance shall we find, We shall fill our houses with spoil;
   Thy lot shall thou cast into our midst, One purse shall there be [for us all].

9. My son, do not walk in the way with them, Withhold thy foot from their path. For their feet to mischief do run, And haste to the shedding of blood.

10. Surely in vain is spread the net, In the sight of aught that hath wings!

11. Yet they lie in wait for their own blood, They watch in secret for their own life.

12. Such are the ways of every one that graspeth with greed, The life of the owners thereof it taketh away!

13. Wisdom in the open place soundeth forth, In the broadways she raiseth her voice;

14. At the head of bustling streets she crieth aloud,— At the openings of the gates in the city—her sayings she doth utter:—

15. Because I called, and ye refused, I stretched out my hand, and no one regarded;

16. But ye dismissed all my counsel, And to my rebuke would not yield.

17. I also at your calamity will laugh, When cometh as a crashing your dread, And your calamity as a storm-wind overtaketh,

18. Then will they call me, but I will not answer, They shall seek me diligently, but shall not find me.

19. Because they hated knowledge, And the reverence of Yahweh did not choose;

20. Consented not to my counsel, Disdained all my rebuke.

21. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, And with their own counsels be filled.

22. For the turning away of the simple will slay them,— And the carelessness of dullards will destroy them.

23. Whereas he that hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, And be at rest, without dread of misfortune.
2 So that thou direct unto wisdom, thine ear,
   Bend thy heart, unto understanding;
3 Yea if thou cry aloud, for understanding thou shalt seek,
   And like hid treasure thou search for her.
4 Then shall thou understand the reverence of Yahweh,
   And the knowledge of God shalt thou find.
5 For Yahweh giveth wisdom,
   Out of his mouth knowledge and understanding;

6 <Out of his mouth knowledge and understanding;>
7 Yea he treasureth, for the upright, safety,
   A shield [is] to them who walk in integrity.
8 To him that observeth the paths of justice,
   Yea the way of his men of lovingkindness he doth guard.
9 Then shalt thou understand righteousness and justice,
   And equity—every noble course.
10 When wisdom entereth thy heart,
   And knowledge to thy soul is sweet,
11 Discretion shall watch over thee,
   Understanding shall preserve thee:
12 To rescue thee from the way of the wrongful,
   From the man that speaketh perverses things;
13 From them who forsake the paths of rectitude,
   To walk in the ways of darkness;
14 Who rejoiceth to do wrong,
   Exult in the perversities of the wrongful;
15 Whose paths are twisted,
   And they are tortuous in their tracks.
16 To rescue thee, from the woman that is a stranger,
   From the female unknown, who with her speach seduceth;
17 Who forsaketh the friend of her youth,
   And the covenant of her God hath forgotten;
18 For she hath appointed unto death, her house,
   And unto the shades, her courses;
19 None who go in unto her come back,
   Neither attain they unto the paths of life:
20 To the end that thou walk in the way of good men,
   And the paths of the righteous that thou observe.
21 For the upright shall abide on the earth,—
   And the men of integrity shall remain therein;
22 But the lawless! out of the earth! shall be cut off,
   And the traitors shall they tear away therefrom.

1 My son, <mine instruction> do not thou forget,
   And <my commandment> let thy heart observe;
2 For length of days and years of life,
   And blessedness shall they add to thee.
3 Lovingkindness and faithfulness let them not forsake thee,—
   Bind them, upon thy neck,
   Write them upon the tablet of thy heart:*
4 So find thou favour and good repute,
   In the eyes of God and man.

5 Trust thou in Yahweh, with all thy heart,
   And unto thine own understanding do not lean:
6 In all thy ways acknowledge him,
   And he will make straight thy paths.
7 Do not become wise in thine own eyes,
   Revere Yahweh, and avoid evil;*
8 Healing shall it be to thy body,*
   And refreshing to thy bones.
9 Honour thou Yahweh, with thy substance,
   And with the firstfruit of all thine increase;
10 So shall thy storehouses be filled* with plenty,
   And with new wine* shall thy vats overflow.

11 The chastening of Yahweh, my son, do not reject,
   Nor lose the rebuke;
12 For whom Yahwehloveth he correcteth,*
   He causeth pain* to the son in whom he delighteth.
13 How happy the man who hath found wisdom,
   And the man who draweth forth understanding,
14 For better is her merchandise, than the merchandise of silver,
   Yea than gold* her increase;
15 More precious is she than carbals,*
   Yea none of thy delightful things doth equal her:
16 Length of days is in her right hand,
   In her left are riches and honour;*
17 Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
   And all her paths peace;*k
18 A tree of life is she, to them who secure her,—
   And they who hold her fast are every one to be pronounced happy.
19 Yahweh in wisdom founded the earth,
   Establishing the heavens with understanding;
20 By his knowledge the resounding deeps were burst open,
   And the skies drop down dew.

My son, let them not depart from thine eyes,
Guard thou counsel, and purpose,
So shall they become life to thy soul,
And an adornment to thy neck;
Then shalt thou walk securely in thy way,
And thy foot shall not stumble;
When thou sittest down thou shalt have no dread,
Yea thou shalt lie down, and sweet shall be thy sleep.
Be not thou afraid of sudden dread,
Nor of the desolation of the lawless, when it cometh.
For will be in all thy ways,
And will keep thy foot from the snare.
Withhold not good from them who ask it,
When it is in power of thy hand to do it:
Do not say to thy neighbour, Go and come again.
And turn not away the great lord of many things;
For with the upright he is intimate.
The curse of is in the house of the lawless,
But the of the righteous he besteth.
Yet to the humble he granteth favour.
Shall the wise inherit,
But as for dullards shame shall carry them away.

Hear, ye sons, the correction of a father,
And attend, that ye may know understanding.
For good teaching have I given you,
Mine instruction do not ye forsake.
For a son became it to my father,
Tender and most precious in the sight of my mother.
So he taught me, and said to me—
Let thy heart lay hold of my words,
Keep my commandments and live!

Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding,
Do not forget, neither decline thou from the sayings of my mouth.
Do not forsake her, and she will guard thee,—
Love her and she will keep thee.
The principal thing is wisdom, acquire thou wisdom,
With all thine acquisition acquire thou understanding.
Exalt her, and she will set thee on high,
She will bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her:
She will give for thy head a wreath of beauty,
A crown of adorning will she bestow upon thee.

Hear, my son, and receive my sayings,
And they will multiply to thee the years of life.
In the way of wisdom have I taught thee,
I have guided thee in tracks of uprightness.
When thou walkest thy step shall not be hemmed in,
And if thou runnest thou shalt not stumble.
Take fast hold of correction, let her not go,—
Keep her, for she is thy life.
Upon the path of the lawless do not thou enter,
And do not advance in the way of the wicked:
Avoid it, do not pass thereon—
Turn from it, and depart.
For they sleep not, unless they can do mischief,—
They rob themselves of their sleep, if they cannot cause someone to stumble.
For they consume bread gotten by lawlessness,
And wine obtained by violence they drink.
But the path of the righteous is as the light of dawn,
Going on and brightening unto meridian day.
The way of the lawless is like the dark night,
They know not at what they stumble.
My son to my words attend,
To my sayings incline thou thine ear;
Let them not depart from thine eyes,
Keep them in the midst of thy heart;
For they are to them who find them,—
And to every part of one's flesh they bring healing.

Above all that must be guarded keep thou thy heart,
For out of it are the issues of life.

Or: The beginning of wisdom is to hear the sayings of my mouth,
Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding,
Do not forget, neither decline thou from the sayings of my mouth.
Remove from thee, perverseness of mouth, And craftiness of lips put far from thee.

25 Let thine eyes look right onward, And thine eyelashes point straight before thee.

26 Make level the track of thy foot, That all thy ways may be directed aright: Decline not, to the right hand or the left, Turn away thy foot from wickedness.

27 My son, to my wisdom attend, And to mine understanding incline thou thine ear: That thou mayest preserve discretion, And as for knowledge that thy lips may guard it.

28 For with sweet droppings drip the lips of her that is a stranger, And smoother than oil is her mouth; But the latter end of her is bitter as wormwood, Sharp, as a two-edged sword.

29 Her feet are going down to death,—On laden will her steps take firm hold.

30 So shalt thou grieve in thy latter end, In the failing of thy flesh and of thy healthy condition;

31 And thou shalt say—How I hated correction! And reproof my heart disdained; Neither hearkened I to the voice of my teachers, Nor to my instructors inclined I mine ear:

32 Soon was I in all evil, In the midst of convocation and assembly.

33 Drink thou water out of thine own cistern, And flowing streams out of the midst of thine own well.

34 Let not thy fountains flow over abroad In the streets, divisions of waters:

35 Let them be for thyself alone, And not for strangers with thee.

36 Let thy well-spring be blessed,—And get thy joy from the wife of thy youth:

37 A loving kind! a graceful doe! Let her bosom content thee at all times, And in her love mayst thou stray evermore.

38 Wherefore, then, shouldst thou stray, my son, with a strange woman? Or embrace the bosom of a woman unknown?

39 For before the eyes of Yahweh are the ways of a man,—And all his tracks doth he consider:

40 His own iniquities shall entrap him with the lawless, And by the cords of his own sin shall he be seized.

41 He shall die, for lack of discipline, And by the abounding of his perversity shall he be lost.

42 My son, if thou have become surety for thy neighbour,—Shalt thou give to other men, thy vigour, And thy years, to him that is cruel:

43 Lest strange men be filled by thy strength, And thy toils be in the house of the alien.

44 So shalt thou grieve in thy latter end, In the failing of thy flesh and of thy healthy condition;

45 And thou shalt say—How I hated correction! And reproof my heart disdained; Neither hearkened I to the voice of my teachers, Nor to my instructors inclined I mine ear:

46 Soon was I in all evil, In the midst of convocation and assembly.

47 Drink thou water out of thine own cistern, And flowing streams out of the midst of thine own well.

48 Let not thy fountains flow over abroad In the streets, divisions of waters:

49 Let them be for thyself alone, And not for strangers with thee.

50 Let thy well-spring be blessed,—And get thy joy from the wife of thy youth:

51 A loving kind! a graceful doe! Let her bosom content thee at all times, And in her love mayst thou stray evermore.

52 Wherefore, then, shouldst thou stray, my son, with a strange woman? Or embrace the bosom of a woman unknown?

53 For before the eyes of Yahweh are the ways of a man,—And all his tracks doth he consider:

54 His own iniquities shall entrap him with the lawless, And by the cords of his own sin shall he be seized.

55 He shall die, for lack of discipline, And by the abounding of his perversity shall he be lost.
A man of iniquity; he is increase of the bribe.  1 My son, keep my sayings,  And <my commandments> treasure by thee;  Keep my commandments and live,  And mine instruction, as the pupil  Of thine eye.  3 Bind them upon thy fingers,  Write them on the table of thy heart;  Say unto wisdom, <My sister> thou!  And <an acquaintance> call thou understanding:  That thou mayest be kept, from the woman that is a stranger,  From the female unknown, who with her speeches doth flatter.  6 For in the window of my house,  Through my lattice I looked out;  And saw among the simple ones,  Discerned among the youth,  A young man lacking sense;  Passing through the street, near her corner,  And on the way to her house he sauntered along;  In the twilight, in the evening of the day,  In the midst of the night, and the gloom;  And lo! a woman came to meet him,  Attired as one unchaste, of a wily heart.  10 And  I came forth to meet thee,  To seek diligently thy face, and I have found thee:  Wliile I spread on my couch of pleasure,  Dark-hued stuffs, of the yarn of Egypt;  I have sprinkled my bed,  With myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon:  Come! let us take our fill of endearments,  Until morning, let us delight ourselves with caresses;  a written: "heart." Cp. Hos. iv. 11, n.  b U.: "soul."  c Sep. odd.:— "My son, honour thou Yahweh, and be bold,  And apart from him be afraid of no other."—O.n.  d ML.: "little man."  e Kinman."—O.G.  f ML.: "heart." Cp. chap. vi. 92, n.  g Or: "upon." Perh. "were due from me"—R.V. marg. Or: the suggestion may be—of plenty for feasting; or even—a pretence of piety.
For the husband is not in his house;
He hath gone on a journey afar;
On the day of the full moon* will he enter his house.

She turneth him aside, with her great persuasiveness,—
With the flattery of her lips she compelleth him:
Going after her instantly
As an ox, to the slaughter he entereth,
And, as in fetters, unto the correction of a fool.

Until an arrow cleaveth his liver,
As a bird hasteth into a snare,
And knowest not, that for his life it is!

Now, therefore ye sons, hearken unto me,
And attend, to the sayings of my mouth;
Let not thy heart turn aside to her ways,
Do not go astray, in her paths.

For many wounded hath she caused to fall,—
Yea strong men, slain wholly by her:
Ways to hades are in her house,
Descending into the chambers of death.

Doth not wisdom cry aloud?
And understanding send forth her voice?
At the top of the high places above the way,
At the place where paths meet she taketh her stand;
Beside the gates, at the entrance of the city,—
At the going in of the openings she shouteth:—
Unto you, O men I call,
And my voice is unto the sons of men;
Understand, ye simple ones, shrewdness;
Hear, for princely things will I speak,
The opening of my mouth shall be of equity;
For faithfulness shall my mouth softly utter,
But the abomination of my lips shall be lawlessness;
In righteousness shall be all the sayings of my mouth,
Nothing therein shall be crafty or perverse;
All of them shall be plain, to them who would understand,
Receive my correction, and not silver,
And knowledge, rather than choicest gold.

For better is wisdom, than ornaments of coral,
And no delightful things can equal her.
Wisdom inhabiteth shrewdness,
And <the knowledge of sagacious things> I gain.
The reverence of Yahweh is to hate wickedness—
Pride, arrogance, and the way of wickedness;
And a mouth of perverse things do I hate.

For the husband is not in his house;
He hath gone on a journey afar;
On the day of the full moon* will he enter his house.

She turneth him aside, with her great persuasiveness,—
With the flattery of her lips she compelleth him:

PROVERBS VIII. 32—36; IX. 1—18; X. 1—9.

351Now, therefore, ye sons, hearken to me, For how happy are they who <to my ways> pay regard!
352Hear ye correction, and be wise, And do not neglect.
353How happy the man that doth hearken to me, —
Keeping guard at my doors, day by day, Watching at the posts of my gates:
354For <the> that findeth me<findeth> life, And hath obtained favour from Yahweh;
355But <the> that misseth me<wrongeth> his own soul,
||All who hate me||love death.

9 1Wisdom hath built her house,
2hath hewn out her seven pillars;
3hath slaughtered her beasts,
4hath mingled her wine,
5hath even set in order her table;
6hath even set forth her maidens.
She crieth aloud
Upon the tops of the heights of the city:
4Who so is simple, let him turn in hither, <Aa for him that lacketh sense>c she saith to him —
5Come, feed on my food, And drink of the wine I have mingled;
6Forsake the simple ones, and live, And advance in the way of understanding.
7Ho that rebuketh a scoffer||getteth to himself contempt,
And ||he that reproveth a lawless man|getteth to himself||his shame.e
8Do not reprove a scoffer, lest he hate thee, Reprove a wise man, and he will love thee.
9Give to a wise man, and he will be wiser still, Inform a righteous man, and he will increase learning;
10The beginning of wisdom is the reverence of Yahweh, And ||the knowledge of the Holy||is understanding;
11For <by me> shall be multiplied— thy days, And there be added to thee—the years of life.
12If thou art wise thou art wise for thyself, But if thou scoff <alone> shalt thou bear it.e

14So she sitteth at the entrance of her house, Upon a seat, in the heights of the city;
To invite them who pass by the way,
Who are going straight on in their paths:
|Whoso is simple||let him turn aside hither,
And <as for him that lacketh sense> she saith to him:
|[Stolen waters] will be sweet,—
|And a secret meal will be pleasant;
17But he knoweth not, that the shades are there;
<In the depths of hades> are her guests.c

The Proverbs proper—the First and Principal Collection (Chapters X. to XXIV.).

1 The Proverbs of Solomon:
|A wise son maketh a glad father,
But ||a foolish son listhe grief of his mother.
2The treasures of lawlessness |do not profit|,
But ||righteousness|| delivereth from death.
3Yahweh suffereth not to famish ||the soul of the righteous,
But ||the desire of the lawless|| he thrusteth away.
4He becometh poor, who dealeth with a slack hand,
But ||the hand of the diligent|| maketh rich.f
5He that gathereth in summer is a prudent son,
||He that sleepleth long in harvest|| is a son causing shame.
6||Blessings|| are for the head of the righteous man,
||The mouth of the lawless|| overeth up wrong.
7||The memory of the righteous|| yieldeth blessing,
But ||the name of the lawless|| dieth out.e
8||The wise in heart|| will accept commandments,
But ||he that is foolish with his lips|| shall be thrusteth away.
9||He that walketh uprightly|| may walk securely,
But ||he that maketh crooked his ways|| shall be found out.
He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow,
And he that is foolish with his lips shall be thrust aside.*

A well-spring of life is the mouth of the righteous,
But the mouth of the lawless covereth wrong.

Hatred stirreth up strife,
But <over all transgressions> love throweth a covering.

In the lips of the intelligent is found wisdom,
But a rod is for the back of him that lacketh sense.b

Wisemen treasure up knowledge,
But the mouth of the foolish is a terror near at hand.

The substance of the rich is his strong city,
The terror of the poor is their poverty.

The labour of the righteous leadeth to life,
The increase of the lawless to sin.

On the way to life is he that heeddeth correction,
But he that hateth reproof is going astray.

He that concealeth hatred hath false lips,
<And he that sendeth forth slander> the same is a dullard.

In the multitude of words there wanteth not transgression,
But he that restraineth his lips sheweth prudence.

Choice silver is the tongue of the righteous,
But the sense of the lawless is very small.

The lips of the righteous feed multitudes,
But the foolish shall die.

The blessing of Yahweh itself maketh rich,
And he addeth no grievance therewith.

It is mere sport to a stupid man to commit lewdness,
But wisdom pertaineth to a man of understanding.

The dread of the lawless one is the same shall overtake him,
But the desire of the righteous shall be granted.

Like the passing away of a tempest so the lawless' one is not,
But the righteous hath an age-abiding foundation.

As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes;
So is the sluggard, to them who send him.

The reverence of Yahweh addeth days,
But the years of the lawless shall be shortened.

The hope of the righteous shall be gladness,
But the expectation of the lawless shall vanish.

A refuge for the blameless is the path of Yahweh,
But destruction [awaiteth] the workers of iniquity.

The righteous <to times age-abiding> shall remain unshaken,
But the lawless shall not inhabit the earth.

The mouth of the righteous beareth the fruit of wisdom,
But a perverse tongue shall be cut off.

The lips of the righteous know what is pleasing,
But the mouth of the lawless speaketh perversities.

A deceptive balance is an abomination to Yahweh,
But a full weight is his delight.

When pride cometh then cometh contempt,
But <with the modest> is wisdom.

The integrity of the upright shall guide them,
But the crookedness of the treacherous shall be their ruin.

Wealth shall not profit in the day of wrath,
But righteousness shall deliver from death.

The righteousness of the blameless shall smooth his way,
But by his own lawlessness shall the lawless one fall.

The righteousness of the upright shall deliver them,
But by their own craving shall the treacherous be captured.

When the lawless man dieth his expectation perisheth,
And the hope of strong men hath vanished.

The righteous man out of distress is delivered,
Then cometh a lawless man into his place.

With the mouth a profane man destroyeth his neighbour,
But through knowledge shall righteous men be delivered.

When it is well with the righteous the city exulteth,
<When the lawless perish there is a shout of triumph.

A deceptive balance is an abomination to Yahweh,
But a full weight is his delight.
PROVERBS XI. 11—31; XII. 1—10.

11 When the upright are blessed, exalted is the city, But by the mouth of the lawless it is overthrown.

12 He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour lacketh sense, But a man of understanding observeth silence.

13 He that goeth about talebearing revealeth a secret, But he that is faithful in spirit concealeth a matter.

14 With no guidance a people will fall, But safety lieth in the greatness of the counsellor.

15 He that becometh surety for a stranger goeth to utter ruin; But he that hateth striking hands is secure.

16 A gracious wife obtaineth honour, But the diligent shall obtain wealth.

17 The man of lovingkindness dealeth well with his own soul, But the cruel man troubleth his own flesh.

18 The lawless man earneth the wages of falsehood, But he that soweth righteousness hath the reward of fidelity.

19 A righteous son turneth to life, But the pursueth wickedness to his own death.

20 The abomination of Yahweh are they of perverse heart, But by delight are the men of blameless life.

21 Hand to hand the wicked man shall not lie held innocent, But the seed of the righteous hath been delivered.

22 As a ring of gold in the snout of a swine Is a woman of beauty who hath abandoned discretion.

23 The desire of the righteous is only good, But the expectation of the lawless is wrath.

24 There is who scattereth, and increaseth yet more, And who withholdeth of what is due, only to come to want.

25 The liberal soul shall be enriched, And he that refresheth shall himself also be refreshed.

26 He that keepeth back corn the populace will curse him, But there is a blessing for the head of him that selleth.

27 He that diligently seeketh good aimeth at favour, But he that studieth mischief it shall come on himself.

28 He that trusteth in his riches the same shall fall, But like the leaf shall the righteous break forth.

29 He that troublmeth his own house shall inherit the wind, But a servant shall the foolish be, to the wise in heart.

30 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, And he that rescueth souls is wise.

31 Lo! the righteous in the earth shall be recompensed, How much more the lawless and the sinner.

1 A gracious wife is the delight of knowledge, But he that hateth reproof is brutish.

2 A good man obtaineth favour from Yahweh, But a man of wicked devices will he condemn.

3 A son of earth shall not be established by lawlessness, But the root of the righteous shall not be disturbed.

4 A virtuous woman is the crown of her husband, But a veritable decay in his bones is she that causeth shame.

5 The plans of the righteous are just, But the counsels of the lawless are deceitful.

6 The words of the lawless are—of lying in wait for blood, But the mouth of the upright shall deliver them.

7 Overthrown are the lawless and they are not, But the house of the righteous shall stand.

8 In proportion to his prudence is a man to be praised, But the perverse in heart shall be an object of contempt.

9 Better slighted, and have a servant, Than to honour oneself, and come short of bread.

10 A righteous man regardeth the desire of his beast, But the compassions of the lawless are cruel.
11. He that tilleth his land shall be filled with food,
But he that runneth after worthless men lacketh sense. b

12. A lawless man crieth 'the prey' of the wicked,
But the root of the righteous is enduring. d

13. 'Of the transgression of the lips' is the wicked man ensnared,
But the righteous cometh out of distress. e

14. <Of the fruit of a man's mouth> shall he be satisfied with good,
And the dealing of the hands of a son of earth shall be paid back to him.

15. The way of the foolish is right in his own eyes,
But he that hearkeneth to counsel is wise.

16. A foolish man <on the same day> lettesth his vexation be known,
But he that concealeth an affront is prudent.

17. He that whispereth faithfulness declareth righteousness,
But a false witness is a fraud.

18. There is who babbleth, as with thrusts of a sword,
But the tongue of the wise hath healing.

19. A lip that is faithful shall be firm to futurity,
But <only for a twinkling> is the tongue that is false.

20. Deceit is in the heart of contrivers of mischief,
But <to the councillors of peace> shall be joy.

21. Unseemly to the righteous is any trouble,
But the lawless are full of misfortune.

22. An abomination to Yahweh are lips that are false,
But he that dealeth faithfully is his delight.

23. A prudent man concealeth knowledge,
But the heart of dullards proclaimeth folly.

24. The hand of the diligent shall bear rule,
But the indolent shall come under tribute.

25. When anxiety is in the heart of a man one may bow him down,
But a good word maketh him glad.

26. The righteous man guideth his neighbour,
But the way of the lawless leadeth them astray.

27. Indolence roareth not his own game,
But the substance of a man is precious when he is diligent.

28. In the way of righteousness is life,
And in the path thereof immortality. b

1. A wise son cometh of a father's correction,
But a scoffer heareth not a rebuke.

2. <Of the fruit of his mouth> shall a man eat what is good,
But the soul of the treacherous shall be sated with violence.

3. He that watcheth his mouth guardeth his soul,
But he that openeth wide his lips shall be his ruin.

4. The sluggard desireth, but his soul hath [nothing].
But <the soul of the diligent> shall be enriched.

5. A word of falsehood the righteous man hateth,
But the lawless causeth shame and disgrace.

6. Righteousness guardeth the man of blameless way,
But lawlessness overthrowneth the sinner.

7. There is Who feigneth himself rich, yet hath nothing at all,
Who pleadeth poverty, yet hath great substance.

8. The ransom of a man's life is his wealth,
But the poor heareth not rebuke.

9. The light of the righteous rejoiceth,
But the lamp of the lawless goeth out.

10. Only by pride doth one cause contention,
But with the well-advised is wisdom.

11. Wealth gotten by greed diminiseth,
But he that gathereth by little increaseth.

12. Hope deferred sickeneth the heart,
But  is desire fulfilled.

13. He that despiseth a matter shall get pledged thereto,
But he that revereth a commandment the same shall be recompensed.

7. Or: "a crafty son hath nothing good,
But <as for a wise servant> doeth prosperous, and his way is directed aright."—G.n.
A faithful witness will not deceive,
But a false witness uttereth deceitful things.

A scoffer seeketh wisdom, and there is none,
But knowledge is to the discerning.

Get thee from the presence of a man that is a dulleard,
When thou perceivest not the lips of knowledge.

The wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way,
But the folly of dullards is a fraud.

The foolish scoff at guilt,
But between the upright is good pleasure.

The heart knoweth its own bitterness,
And in its joy no stranger shareth.

The house of the lawless shall be destroyed,
But the tent of the upright shall flourish.

There is a way that enticeth a man,
But at the latter end thereof are the ways of death!

Even in laughter is the heart maybe in pain,
And the latter end of gladness is to be grieved.

With his own ways shall he be filled the backslider in heart,
And from himself shall a good man be satisfied.

The simple believeth every word,
But the prudent looketh well to his going.

A wise man feareth, and avoideth evil,
But a dullard is haughty and confident.

The impatient worketh folly,
And a man of wicked devices is hated.

The simple inherit folly,
But the shrewd crowneth himself with knowledge.

Abased are the wicked, before the good,
And the lawless, at the gates of the righteous.

Even by his neighbour is a poorman hated,
But the lovers of the rich man are many.

He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour,
But he that sheweth favour to the afflicted how happy is he!

Shall they not become vagrants, who devise evil?
But lovingkindness and faithfulness be to them who devise good.

By all labour there will be abundance,
But the talk of the lips tendeth only to want.

The instruction of the wise is a well-spring of life,
By departing from the snares of death.

Sound discretion yieldeth favour,
But the way of the treacherous is rugged.

Every prudent man maketh use of knowledge,
But a dullard spreadeth folly.

A lawless messenger falleth into mischief,
But a faithful herald bringeth healing.

Poverty and contempt are for him that neglegeth correction,
But he that regardeth reproof shall be honoured.

A desire fulfilled is sweet to the soul,
But it is an abomination to the lawless to depart from evil.

He that walketh with the wise becometh wise,
But the friend of dullards becometh foolish.

Evil pursueth sinners,
But unto the righteous shall good be recompensed.

A good man leaveth an inheritance to children's children,
But laid up for the righteous is the wealth of the sinner.

Much food is in the fallow ground of the poor,
But there is that is swept away, for want of justice.

He that withholdeth his rod hateth his son,
But he that loveth him carefully correcteth him.

The righteous eateth to satisfy his appetite,
But the belly of the lawless shall want.

Every wise woman buildeth up her house,
But a foolish one with her own hands would break it down.

He that walketh in his uprightness is one who revereth Yahweh,
But he that is crooked in his way is one who despiseth him.

In the mouth of the foolish is a haughty rod,
But as for the lips of the wise thou shalt give heed to them.

Without cattle the crib is clean,
But much increase is in the strength of the ox.
The crown of wisdom is their wealth,
But the folly of dullards is folly.

A deliverer of souls is a faithful witness,
But he that uttereth falsehood is a fraud.

In the reverence of Yahweh is strong security.
And his children shall have a place of refuge.
The reverence of Yahweh is a well-spring of life,
That a man may avoid the snares of death.

In the multitude of a people is the majesty of the king,
But in the ceasing of population is the ruin of the prince.

One slow to anger hath great understanding,
But he that is hasty in spirit exalteth folly.
The life of the whole body is a tranquil mind,
But decay of the bones is jealousy.
The oppressor of the poor hath reproached his Maker,
But he that sheweth favour to the needy is one who holdeth Him in honour.

By his own wickedness shall the lawless man be thrust down,
But the righteous seeketh refuge in his integrity.

In the heart of the intelligent reposeth wisdom,
But in the midst of dullards it maketh itself known.

Righteousness exalteth a nation,
But a reproach to any people is sin.
The good-pleasure of a king is due to a servant who is discreet,
But his indignation shall be against him that bringeth shame.

A soft answer turneth away wrath,
But a cutting word raiseth anger.

The tongue of the wise adorneth knowledge,
But the mouth of dullards belcheth out folly.

In every place are the eyes of Yahweh,
Observing the evil and the good.

Gentleness of the tongue is a tree of life,
But crookedness therein is a grievous wound in the spirit.

A foolish son spurneth the correction of his father,
But he that heedeth a reproof sheweth prudence.

The household of the righteous man is a great treasure,
But in the increase of the lawless is disturbance.
The lips of the wise scatter abroad knowledge,
But the heart of dullards is not right.
The sacrifice of lawless men is an abomination to Yahweh,
But the prayer of the upright is his delight.

An abomination to Yahweh is the way of the lawless,
But the pursuer of righteousness he loveth.

There is grievous correction for him that forsaketh the right path,
He that hateth rebuke shall die.

Hades and destruction are before Yahweh,
How much more then, the hearts of the sons of men.

A scoffer loveth not one who reproveth him,
Unto the wise doth he not go.

A joyful heart maketh a pleasing countenance,—
But in sorrow of heart is a stricken spirit.
The heart of the intelligent seeketh knowledge,
But the mouth of dullards feedeth on folly.

All the days of the afflicted are sorrowful,
But a cheerful heart is a continual banquet.
Better is a little, with the reverence of Yahweh,
Than great treasure, and disquietude therewith.
Better is an allowance of herbs, and love there,
Than a fatted ox, and hatred therewith.

A wrathful man stirreth up strife,
But he that is slow to anger calmeth contention.
The way of the sluggard is like a thorn hedge,
But the path of the upright is a raised road.

A wise son maketh a glad father,—
But a dullard despieth his own mother.
Folly is joy to him that lacketh sense,—
But a man of understanding taketh a straight course.

Plans are frustrated, for lack of consultation,
But by the multitude of counsellors shall counsel be established.

23 A man hath joy, in the answer of his own mouth, And [a word in its season]—how good!

24 The way of life|| is upwards to the prudent, That he may depart from hades beneath.

25 <The house of proud men> will Yahweh tear down, But he will maintain the boundary of the widow.

26 <An abomination to Yahweh> are the plottings of the wicked, But <with the pure> are sayings of sweetness.

27 He |[troubleth his own house] who graspeth with greed, But |the that hateth gifts] shall live.

28 ||The heart of the righteous|| studieth b to answer, But |the mouth of the lawless] belcheth out* mischief.

29 Far off is Yahweh, from the lawless, But |the prayer of the righteous> will he hear.

30 The sparkling of bright eyes|| rejoiceth the heart, [Good news] giveth marrow to the bones.4

31 ||The ear that heareth the reproof which giveth life || <In the midst of the wise> shall remain.

32 ||He that declineth correction|| deepiseth his own soul,* But |the that heareth reproof] gaineth sense.7

33 ||The reverence of Yahweh|| is the correction of wisdom, And <before honour> is humility.

16 1 ||To man|| belong the preparations of the heart, But <from Yahweh> cometh the answer of the tongue.

2 ||All the ways of a man|| [may be] pure in his own eyes, But |the that testeth spirits] is Yahweh.

3 Roll, upon Yahweh, thy doings, That thy plans may be established.

4 ||Everything|| hath Yahweh made for its own purpose,

Yea ||even the lawless one] for the day of calamity.

5 ||An abomination to Yahweh> is everyone who is haughty in heart,

<Hand to hand> he shall not be held innocent.*

6 ||By lovingkindness and fidelity> shall iniquity be covered,* And <in the revering of Yahweh> is a turning away from wrong.

7 ||When |acceptable to Yahweh| are the ways of a man > <Even his enemies> doth he cause to make peace with him.

8 Better a little with righteousness, Than large revenues, without justice.

9 ||A man's heart|| deviseth his way, But ||Yahweh|| directeth his steps.

10 ||An oracle|| is on the lips of a king, <In giving sentence> his mouth must not be unfaithful.

11 ||The balance and scales of justice|| belong to Yahweh, And <his handiwork> are all the weights of the bag.

12 ||The abomination of kings> is to work lawlessness, For <by righteousness> is established a throne.

13 ||The delight of kings> are lips of righteousness,— And <the words of uprightness> he loveth.

14 ||The wrath of a king|| [meaneth] messengers of death, But ||a man who is wise] will appease it.

15 ||In the light of a king's countenance> is life, And ||his good-pleasure|| is like the cloud of harvest-rain.6

16 ||To acquire wisdom> how much better than gold! And <to get hold of understanding> more choice than silver!

17 ||The highway of the upright|| is to avoid evil,* ||He preserveth his soul] who guardeth his way.7

18 ||Before grievous injury> pride! And <before a fall> haughtiness of spirit!

19 Better is lowliness of spirit, with the patient,* Than a portion of spoil, with the proud.

20 ||He that showeth discretion concerning a matter] shall find good, And <he that trusteth in Yahweh> how happy is he!

The wise in heart shall be called intelligent, and the adornment of children is their fathers.

A well-spring of life is discretion to its owner, and the correction of the foolish is folly.

The heart of the wise giveth discretion to his mouth, and upon his lips increaseth persuasiveness.

A comb of honey are pleasant words, sweet to the taste and healing to the bone.

There is a way that enticeth a man, but at the latter end thereof are the ways of death.

The appetite of the toiler hath toiled for him, for his mouth hath urged him on.

An abandoned man diggeth up mischief, and upon his lips as it were a fire is scorching.

A perverse man sendeth forth strife, and a tattler separateth intimate friends.

A ruthless man enticeth his neighbour, and leadeth him in a way not good.

Closing his eyes to devise perverse things, he hath plotted mischief.

A crown of adorning is a hoary head, in the way of righteousness it should be found.

Better he that is slow to anger than a hero, and he that ruleth his spirit than he that captureth a city.

Into the lap is cast the lot, but from Yahweh is it every decision.

Better a dry morsel, and peace therewith, than a house full of contentious sacrifices.

A prudent servant shall rule over a son who causeth shame, and in the midst of brothers shall he share the inheritance.

Fining-pot for silver, crucible for gold, but he that trieth hearts is Yahweh.

Discord giveth heed to the aggrieving lip, falsehood giveth ear to the destroying tongue.

He that mocketh the poor hath reproached his Maker, he that maketh merry at distress shall not be held innocent.

The crown of old men consists of children’s children, and the adornment of children is their fathers.

Unseemly in an unworthy man is the lip of excellence, much more in one of noble mind is the lip of falsehood.

A gift, in the eyes of its owner, is a stone of beauty, wherewithsoever it turneth it bringeth prosperity.

He that hideth a transgression seeketh love, but he that repeateth a matter separateth intimate friends.

A reproof sinketh more deeply into an intelligent man than a hundred stripes into a dullard.

Nothing less than rebellion doth a wicked man seek, and a relentless messenger shall be sent out against him.

Let a bereaved bear encounter a man, rather than a dullard, with his folly.

He that returneth evil for good evil shall not depart from his house.

A letting forth of water is the beginning of strife, therefore before it breaketh out abandon contention.

He that justifieth the lawless, and he that condemneth the righteous are they both.

Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a dullard, that he who is without sense may acquire wisdom.

At all times doth a friend love, and a brother for distress must be born.

A man lacking sense is one who striketh hands, giving security before his neighbour.

A lover of transgression is one who loveth strife, he that heighteneth his door seeketh grievous harm.

The crooked in heart shall not find good, and he that is perverse with his tongue shall fall into wickedness.

He that begetteth a dullard it is to his own grief, neither can the father of the base rejoice.
22 A joyful heart doeth good more than the medicine of meats. But a broken spirit makes the bones to pine.

23 A bribe out of the bosom is a abomination to the Lord, and secret prayers are sin.

24 Before the face of the discerning is light, but hidden men are brought into open daylight.

25 The perverted ways of a judge are an abomination; but a upright speech is his delight.

26 The back of an ass is wiser than a fool. And a prudent tongue is better than a strong jawbone.

27 When the wicked man comes, trouble also comes; and in his destruction there is a vengeance.

28 When the words of a wise man come, the simple is made wise, and knowledge is made easy to the understanding.

18 To satisfy a cankering soul in oneself is good; but a word answered out of the heart is better than a body of bones.

2 A bribe out of the bosom is an abomination to the Lord, and secret prayers are sin.

3 A wise man's eyes are in the ends of the earth; but a fool's eyes are in the ends of the earth.

4 A wise man's heart is in the beginning of learning; but a fool's heart is in the end of discourse.

5 The beginning of a good word is as a gem; the end of a wise word is as a precious stone.

6 A wise man's heart is in the beginning of learning; but a fool's heart is in the end of discourse.

7 A wise man's heart is in the beginning of learning; but a fool's heart is in the end of discourse.

27 A wise man's heart is in the beginning of learning; but a fool's heart is in the end of discourse.

28 A wise man's heart is in the beginning of learning; but a fool's heart is in the end of discourse.
6 Many will entertain the favour of a noble, And [every one] is a friend to a man abounding in gifts.
7 All the brethren of a poor man hate him, How much more have his friends gone far from him, He may hunt up promises—there are none.
8 He that acquireth sense loveth his own soul, He that guardeth understanding shall find blessing.
9 A false witness shall not be held innocent, And [he that uttereth lies] shall perish.
10 Uneasily for a dullard is delicate living, How much more for a servant to bear rule over princes.
11 The discretion of a man deferreth his anger, And [his adorning] is to pass over transgression.
12 The growl as of a young lion is the rage of a king, But [like dew upon the grass] is his good pleasure.
13 Engulfing ruin to his father is a son that is a dullard,— And [a continuous dripping] are the contents of a wife.
14 House and substance are an inheritance from one's fathers, But from Yahweh cometh a wife who is prudent.
15 Sloth falleth into a deep sleep, And [a soul that is indolent] shall famish.
16 One who guardeth the commandment guardeth his life, He that is reckless in his ways shall die.
17 A lender to Yahweh is one who sheweth favour to the poor, And [his good deed] He will pay him back.
18 Correct thy son, because there is hope, Yet [not so as to slay him] let thy passion be excited.
19 A man in a rage taketh away the penalty,— Nevertheless [if thou let him go free] the more [stripes] must thou add.
20 Hear counsel, receive correction, that thou mayest be wise in thine after-life.
21 Many are the devices in a man's heart, But [the counsel of Yahweh] shall stand.
22 The charm of a man is his lovingkindness,— And better a poor man, than one who deceiveth.
23 The reverence of Yahweh leadeth to life, Satisfied' then, let a man remain—let him not be visited by calamity.
24 A sluggard burieth his hand in the dish, <Even unto his own mouth> will he not bring it back.
25 The scoffer thou shalt smite, and [the simple] will beware, But correct a man of intelligence—he will understand teaching.
26 He that ruineth his father, and chasteth away his mother, Is a son causing shame and reproach.
27 Cease, my son, to hear instruction that would cause thee to wander from the sayings of knowledge.
28 An abandoned witness scorneth justice, And [the mouth of lawless men] swalloweth iniquity.
29 Prepared for scoffers are punishments, And stripes, for the back of dullards.
1 Wine is a scoffer, and strong drink a brawler, Every one therefore who erreth therein is unwise.
2 The growl as of a young lion is the dread inspired by a king, He that provoketh him endangereth his own life.
3 Honour hath the man who sittesth away from strife, But [any fool] may break through.
4 By reason of the autumn a sluggard will not plough, Therefore shall he beg in harvest, and there be nothing.
5 Deep water is counsel in a man's heart, But [a man of understanding] will draw it out.
6 A kind man one may call a great man, But a faithful man who can find?
7 As for a righteous man walking in his integrity, How happy are his children after him!

The man who wandereth from the way of discretion shall settle down.

A needy man shall he be that loveth merriment, The lover of wine and oil shall not become rich.

A ransom for the righteous is the lawless, And instead of upright men the traitor.

Better to dwell in a desert land than with a woman, quarrelsome and provoking.

Desirable treasure and oil are in the home of the wise, But a man who is a dulleard will destroy it.

He that pursueth righteousness and loving-kindness shall find life, righteousness and honour.

A city of heroes doth a wise man scale, And bringeth down the strength of its confidence.

He that keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth, out of distresses, his soul.

A haughty insolent one—Scoffer is his name!—Is he that acteth in a transport of pride.

The craving of the sluggard shall kill him, For his hands have refused to work.

All the day he greatly craveth, whereas the righteous giveth, and doth not spare.

The sacrifice of the lawless is an abomination, How much more, when with wickedness he bringeth it in!

A false witness shall perish, But the man who hearkeneth shall speak.

They shall fit well together, upon thy lips.

<That in Yahweh' may be thy trust> to thee.]

Have I not written for thee noble things, d

With counsels and knowledge:

To cause thee to know the meaning of faithful

sayings,

That thou mayest give back faithful sayings to them who ask* thee.

Do not rob the poor, because he is' poor,

Neither crush thou the oppressed in the gate;

For ||Yahweh|| will plead their cause,

And will despoil their despoilers of life.

Do not have friendship with one given to anger, f

And <with a wrathful man> shalt thou not enter in:

Least thou learn his ways,*

And take a snare to thy soul.

Be not of them who strike hands,

Of them who are sureties for debts:

<If thou hast nothing to pay>

Why' should one take away thy bed from under thee?

Do not move back the ancient boundary,

Which thy fathers' made.

Seest thou a man prompt in his business?

<Before kings> shall he stand,

He shall not stand before men who are obscure.

When thou sittest to eat with a ruler>

Thou shalt consider well what is before

And shall put a knife to thy throat,

If <of great appetite> thou art:

Do not crave his dainties, k

For ||the same|| are deceitful' food.

Do not toil to get wealth,

<Of thine own understanding> forbear:

Wilt thou let thine eye fly thereupon, when it

For it will surely make| itself wings,

Like an eagle> will it wing its way across

Do not eat the food of him that hath a be-

Eat and drink! he may say to thee,

But ||his heart|| is not with thee.

<As for thy morsel thou hast eaten> thou shalt

So shalt thou waste thy things so sweet.

<In the ears of a dullard> do not speak,

For ||their near of kin|| is strong.

||He|| will plead their cause with thee.

||Thou|| <with the rod> shalt smite him,

And <his soul from hades> shalt thou

My son! <if thy heart be wise>

My heart shall rejoice even mine.

So shall my reins exult,

When thy lips speak the things that are ingod.

Let not thy heart be envious of sinners,

Only of the reverence of Yahweh, all day long;

For surely there is' a future, e

And ||thine expectation|| shall not be cut

Hear thou my son, and be wise,

And lead forward, in duty, thy heart.

Do not be among them who tipple with wine,—

Among them who are gluttons; h

For ||the tippler and the glutton|| shall come to Greatly shall exult the father of a righteous man, and he that begetteth a wise son shall rejoice in him; rejoice shall thy father and thy mother, Yea she shall exult who bare thee.

Oh give, my son, thy mind unto me, And let thine eyes observe my ways; For a deep cham is the unchaste woman, And a narrow pit the female unknown; Yea she lieth in wait, and the treacherous among mankind she causeth to abound.

Its after effect is that like a serpent it biteth, And like a viper it doth sting. [Better a wise man than a mighty]—O.G. [That is, in the look-out basket at the mast-head]—O.G. [Better] a wise man than a mighty—G.n. [Aram. and Syr.; And a man of knowledge than one who is alert in vigour.]—G.n.

Surely with concerted measures shalt thou make for thyself war, And success lieth in the greatness of the counsellor. Unattainable to a foolish man are the dictates of wisdom, In the gate he openeth not his mouth. He that deviseth to do mischief shall men call a master of plots.

The purpose of folly is sin, And an abomination to mankind is a buffoon.

Thou hast been slothful in the day of straitness, [Strait] is thy strength.

Deliver thou such as are being led forth to death, And those who are tottering to slaughter oh that thou wouldst hold back! Thou knowest not this>

Shall not he that proveth hearts, himself discern? And he that formeth thy soul, himself know? And bring back to a son of earth according to his deed?

My son, eat thou honey, because it is good,— And dropings from the comb [because they are] sweet to thy palate:

Thus take knowledge of wisdom, for thine own soul; If thou find it then there is a future, And thine expectation shall not be cut off.

Do not lie in wait, thou lawless man, against the home of the righteous,— Neither destroy thou his place of rest;

For may the righteous fall and yet arise, But lawless men shall stumble into calamity.

When thine enemy falleth do not thou rejoice, And when he stumbleth let not thy heart exult:

Lest Yahweh see it, and it be wicked in his eyes, And he turn away from him his anger.

Burn not with vexation against evildoers, Be not envious of lawless men;

For there shall be no future for the wicked, The lamp of the lawless shall go out.

Revere thou Yahweh, my son, and the king, And with the fickle have thou no fellowship;

Be thou not envious of wicked men, Neither crave to be with them;

For their heart muttereth, and mischief their lips do speak.

In wisdom is a house builded, And is established; And chambers are filled, With all acquisitions, costly and fair.

A wise man is mighty, And a man of knowledge becometh alert in vigour.
For <suddenly> shall arise their calamity; And <the misfortune of their years> who knoweth?*

These things also concern the wise, To <take note of faces in judgment> is not good.

He that saith to the lawless man, Righteous art thou. Populaces shall denounce him, Peoples shall curse him; But <to reprovers> one should be pleasant, And <upon them> should come an excellent blessing; Lips should one kiss With one who answereth in right words.

Prepare in the open thy work, And make ready in the field for thyself, Afterwards shalt thou build thy house.

Do not become a needless witness against thy neighbour, So mightest thou open too wide thy lips:

Do not say— According to what he hath done to me, So will I do to him, I will repay every one according to his work.

By the field of the sluggard I passed, And by the vineyard of a man lacking sense; And lo! There had come up all over it—thorns, There, had covered the face thereof—thistles, And the stone fence thereof had been thrown down.

So I observed it for myself. I applied my heart, I looked—I accepted correction: A littlesleep, A littleslumber, A littlefolding of the hands to rest:

So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty, And thy want as one armed with a shield.

A Supplementary Collection of Proverbs. (Chapters XXV. to XXIX.)

These also are proverbs of Solomon,—which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah transcribed.

The glory of God is to conceal a thing, But <the glory of kings> is to search out a thing.

A son who watcheth a matter out wide shall be long to the place of destruction, It will surely receive him. Nothing false: <from the mouth of a king> should be uttered, And <nothing false: <from his tongue> should go forth; A sword> is the tongue of a king, and not one of flesh, And he that is delivered up shall be slain; For <if his anger be kindled> with vigour will he destroy men, And <bones of men> will he break, And consume like an unquenchable flame, So that he shall not become food for young eagles.”

Remove the dress from the silver, And there cometh forth, to the refiner, a vessel.

Remove a lawless man from before the king, That his throne |may be established in righteousness.|

Do not honour thyself before a king, Nor <in the place of great men> do thou stand;

For better’ it be said to thee, Come up hither,— Than that thou be put lower down before a noble, Whom thine own eyes |have beheld.|

Do not go forth to strive in haste,— Lest [ thou know not] what to do in the latter end thereof, When thy neighbour |hath put thee to shame].

Thy contention urge thou with thy neighbour, And <the secret of another> do not reveal:

A ring of gold, and a vessel of precious metal> Is a wise reprover, on a hearing ear.

Withhold thy foot from the house of thy neighbour,— Lest he be weary of thee, and hate thee.

PROVERBS XXV. 18—28; XXVI. 1—25.

18 A hammer and a sword, and a sharpened arrow
Is a man becoming a false witness against his neighbour.

19 A broken tooth and a faltering foot
Is confidence in the treacherous, in the day of danger.

20 As splendour of dress on a cold day—vinaigre upon nitre
So is a singer with songs, unto a sad heart.

21 If he hateth thee hunger give him bread to eat,
And if he be thirsty give him water to drink;
For burning coals shalt thou upon his head,—
And Yahweh will repay thee.

22 A north wind bringeth forth rain
And Yahweh is a secretive tongue.

23 As snow in summer, and as rain in harvest
So is he that giveth honour to a dullard.

24 A fountain fouled, a spring spoiled
Is a righteous man tottering before one who is lawless.

25 To eat honey in abundance is not good,
Neither is searching out their own honour an honourable thing.

26 A city broken down without a wall
Is a man who hath no control over his own spirit.

27 Like tying a stone to a sling
So is he that giveth honour to a dullard.

28 Like a madman throwing firebrands, arrows and death
So is he who deceiveth his neighbour,
And saith, Was not in sport?

29 Without wood a fire is quenched
And where there is no tattler strife is hushed.

30 Black coal to burning blocks, and wood to fire
So is a contentious man, for kindling strife.

31 The words of a tattler are dainties,
They therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.

32 Dross silver overlaid upon earthenware
So are burning lips, with a mischievous heart:

33 With his lips the hater dissembleth,
But within himself he layeth up deceit:
Though he make gracious his voice do not trust him,
For seven abominations are in his heart:

8 Like a groaning soul is he that hath no control over his spirit.

9 A brier cometh into the hand of a drunken man,
A proverb in the mouth of dullards.

10 As an archer who woundeth every thing,
So one who hireth a dullard and a drunkard crossing the sea.

11 A dog returneth unto his own vomit
A dullard repeateth his folly.

12 The sluggard is a slumberer in the house of the upright,
And in the day of calamity will he not be shown.

13 More hope of a dullard, than of him!

14 A roaring lion in the road!
A tearing lion in the midst of the broadways.

15 The division of the verse shall be shifted thus:—
As one who layeth hold on the ears of a dog
Is he who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel not his.

16 As a madman throwing firebrands, arrows and death
So is he that deceiveth his neighbour,
And saith, Was not in sport?

17 Without wood a fire is quenched
And where there is no tattler strife is hushed.

18 Black coal to burning blocks, and wood to fire
So is a contentious man, for kindling strife.

19 The words of a tattler are dainties,
They therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.

20 Dross silver overlaid upon earthenware
So are burning lips, with a mischievous heart:

21 With his lips the hater dissembleth,
But within himself he layeth up deceit:
Though he make gracious his voice do not trust him,
For seven abominations are in his heart:

* This rendering of a difficult verse (see A.V. and E.V.:

* says that the letters should be re-grouped, the letter r
* also being changed to thin, so as to read wskiär, wskiär;

* Sep. here adds:—
* "There is a shame which bringeth sin, and there * is a shame which is honourable and pleasing"—G.n.

* Lit. "words."
Hatred may clothe itself with guile,
His wickedness shall be disclosed in the conversation.

He that diggeth a pit shall fall,
And he that rolleth a stone shall return.

A false tongue hateth them who are crushed by it,
And a flattering mouth worketh occasion of stumbling.

Do not boast thyself of to-morrow,
For thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

Let another praise thee, and not thine own mouth,
A stranger and not thine own lips.

Heavy is a stone, and weighty is sand,—
But the vexation of a fool is heavier than both.

The cruelty of rage, and the overflow of anger!
But who can stand before jealousy?

Better is a rebuke that is open,
Than love carefully concealed.

Faithful are the wounds of a friend,
But lavished are the kisses of an enemy.

The surfeited soul trampleth upon droppings from the comb,
But to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.

As a bird wandering from her nest
So is a man wandering from his place.

Oil and perfume rejoice the heart,
The sweetness of one's friend more than fragrant wood.

Thine own friend and thy father's friend do not thou forsake;
But the house of thy brother do not enter in thy day of calamity.

Be wise, my son, and rejoice my heart,
That I may answer him that reproacheth me in a matter.

A prudent man seeth calamity—he hideth himself,
The simple pass on—they suffer.

Take a man's garment when he hath become pledge for a stranger,
Then for a female unknown accept him as surety.

He that blesseth his friend, with a loud voice in the morning early
A reproach shall it be reckoned to him.

A continuous dripping on a day of downpour,
And a contentious wife are alike:

He that hideth her hideth the wind,
And his right hand may proclaim.

Let iron <by iron> become sharp,
And let a man sharpen the face of his friend.

He that guardeth the fig-tree shall eat the fruit thereof,
And he that watcheth over his master shall be honoured.

As in water face answereth to face
(Or) the heart of man to man.

Hades and destruction are not satisfied,
And the eyes of a man are not satisfied.

Fining pot for silver, and crucible for gold
And [a man] [is to be tried] by what he praiseth,

Though thou pound a fool in a mortar, amidst grain, with a pestle
His folly will not depart from him.

Note well the appearance of thy flock,
Apply thy mind to thy herds;

For not age-abiding are riches,
Nor is the diadem, from generation to generation:

The grass is taken away, and the young shoot showeth itself,
And the herbage of the mountains is gathered;

There are lambs for thy clothing,
And for the price of thy field there are he-goats;

For the transgressions of a land many are the rulers thereof,
But under an intelligent and discerning man stability is prolonged.

A poor man, who oppresseth the helpless
[Is like] a rain beating down, leaving no food.

They who forsake instruction praise one who is lawless,
While they who keep instruction are at strife with them.

So T.G., Fu., Davies. "Hearty counsel"—O.G.

Cp. chap. xx. 16.
Wicked men consider not justice,
But they who seek Yahweh consider everything.

Better a poor man walking in his integrity,*
Than one who is crooked—turning two ways,
though he be rich.

[He that keepeth instruction] is a son with discernment,
But [a companion of squanderers] bringeth shame to his father.

[He that increaseth his substance by interest and profit],
<For one ready to favour the poor> doth gather it.

<He that turneth away his ear from hearing instruction>
||Even his prayer is an abomination.

[He that misguideth the upright into a hurtful way],
<Into his own pit> the himself shall fall,
But [men of integrity] shall inherit good.

Wise in his own eyes> is the man that is rich,
But [a poor man of discernment] searcheth him out.

In the exulting of the righteous there is great glorying,
But <when the lawless arise> a man must be sought' for.

[He that covereth his transgressions] shall not prosper,
But [he that confesseth and forsaketh] shall find compassion.

How happy the man who is ever circumspect,b
Whereas [he that hardeneth his heart] shall fall into calamity,

A growling* lion, and a ranging bear>
Is a lawless ruler, over a poor people.

[The hater of greed] shall lengthen out days.

A man oppressed with a person's blood,*
<Unto a pit> shall flee, let them not hold him back.f

[He that walketh with integrity] shall be saved,
But [he that is crooked, turning two ways] shall fall in one.g

[He that tilleth his ground] shall have plenty of bread,
But [he that pursueth empty-heads] shall have plenty of poverty.

A man of fidelity aboundeth in blessings,
But [one hasting to be rich] shall not be held innocent.

<To take note of faces [in judgment]> is not good,*
And <for a bit of bread> a man will transgress.

A man hasting to be rich hath an evil eye,
And knoweth not when wantb may overtake him.

[He that reproveth a man] shall afterwards find more [favour],
Than he that useth a flattering tongue.

<He that robbeth his father or his mother, and saith,
It is no transgression>||Companion] is he' to one who wasteth.

The ambitious in soul] stirreth up strife,
But [he that trusteth in Yahweh] shall be enriched.

<He that trusteth his own heart> [the same] is a dullard,
But <he that walketh wisely> [the same] shall be delivered.

One who giveth to the poor] shall have no want,
But [he that hideth his eyes] shall receive many a curse.

<When lawless men rise> a common man will hide' himself,
But <when they perish> righteous men multiply'.

<He that being often reproved* stiffeneth his neck>
Suddenly' shall be hurt, and there be no healing.

<When the righteous become great>d the people rejoice,
But <when a lawless man beareth rule>* a people sigh.

A man who loveth wisdom gladdeneth his father,
But [a companion of harlots] destroyeth his wealth.

A king* [by justice] shall establish a land,—
But [a man open to bribes] bringeth it to ruin.

A man who flattereth his neighbour
Spreadeth [a net] over his steps.

A man of presents.'
6 <In the transgression of a wicked man> is a snare, But [the righteous] doth shout in triumph and rejoice.
7 The righteous doth acknowledge the plea of the poor, But the lawless regardeth not knowledge.
8 Men given to mockery inflame a city,— But [wise men] turn away anger.
9 [A wise man pleading with a foolish man] <Whether he rage or laugh> there is no settlement.
10 Blood-thirsty men hate the blameless man, And <as for the upright> they seek his life.*
11 <All his anger> doth a dullard let go, But a wise man <by keeping it back> stilleth it.
12 When a ruler giveth heed to the word of falsehood, All his attendants become lawless.
13 The poor man and the man of usury meet together. He that enlighteneth the eyes of them both is Yahweh.
14 <When a king judgeth faithfully the poor> His throne to futurity shall be established.
15 A rod with rebuke giveth wisdom, But an youth unrestrained bringeth shame to his mother.
16 When the lawless become great transgression increaseth, But [the righteous] shall behold [their ruin].
17 Correct thy son, that he may give thee rest, That he may give delight to thy soul.
18 Where there is no vision a people is let loose, But <he that keepeth instruction> how happy is he !
19 By words a servant will not be corrected, Though he perceiveth yet is there no answer.
20 Thou hast seen a man hasty in his words,— There is more hope of a dullard than of him.
21 He that dealeth tenderly with his servant from childhood, <In his after life> shall have him for a son,*
22 A man given to anger stirreth up strife, And [he that exceedeth in wrath] aboundeth in transgression.
23 The loftiness of a man layeth him low,— But [one of a lowly spirit] shall attain unto honour.

24 [He that shareth with a thief] hateth himself,*<An oath> he heareth, yet may not tell.b
25 [The fear of man] setteth a snare, But [the that trusteth in Yahweh] shall be placed on high.c
26 Many seek the face of a ruler, But <from Yahweh> is the sentence of each one.
27 <An abomination to the righteous> is the man of perversity, And <an abomination to the lawless> is a man of straightforward way.

Sententious Sayings from the Stores of Agur and Lemuel (Chapters XXX. and XXXI. 1—9).

1 The words of Agur, son of Jakeh, [even] the 30 oracle,— The utterance of the man, for Ithiel, For Ithiel and Ithaleel,* Surely <more brutish> am I than any man, Nor doth [the understanding of a son of earth] pertain to me ;
3 Neither have I learned wisdom, Nor <the knowledge of the Holy Ones> can I acquire.
4 Who hath ascended the heavens and then descended? Who hath gathered the wind into his two hands? Who hath wrapped up the waters in a mantle? Who hath set up all the ends of the earth? What is his name and what the name of his son, when thou knowest?
5 Every saying of God is refined, <A shield> is he to them who seek refuge in him.
6 Do not add unto his words, Lest he convict thee, and thou be found false.
7 Two things have I asked of thee, Withhold them not from me, ere yet I die:
8 <Vanity and falsehood> remove far from me, <Neither poverty nor riches> give me, Feed me with the food appointed me:
9 Lest I lie unto, and deny, And say— Who is Yahweh? Or lest I be impoverished and steal, And do violence to the Name of my God.

* Or: "his own life." U.: "soul."
* Or: "became insolent." Meaning dubious—O.G.

"Or: "take hold of," "handle."

U.: "soul."
Or: "make safe."
10 Do not slander a servant to his master, lest he revile thee, and thou be found guilty.

11 A generation! Its father it revileth, and its mother it doth not bless.

12 A generation! Pure in its own eyes, yet from its filth hath it not been bathed, 13 A generation! How lofty are its eyes, and its eyelashes uplifted.

14 A generation! Swords are its teeth, and its incisors,—To devour the humbled out of the earth, and the needy, from among men.

15 The vampire hath two daughters. Give! Give! Give! Give!

16 Hades, and barrenness,—A land not satisfied with water, and fire, that saith not, Enough!

17 The eye that mocketh a father, and despieth to obey a mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young of the eagle shall eat it.

18 Three things there are, too difficult for me, Yea [four] which I do not understand:

19 The way of an eagle in the heavens, the way of a serpent on the rock,—The way of a ship in the heart of the sea, and the way of a man with a maid.

20 [So! is the way of a woman committing adultery, She eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no iniquity!]

21 Under three things a land is stirred, Yea [under four] she cannot bear up:

22 Under a servant, when he reigneth, and a base man, when he is surfeited with food;

23 Under a hateful woman, when she is married, and a handmaid, when she driveth out her mistress.

24 Four things there are, the small of the earth,—Yet they are wiser than the wise:

25 The ants, a people [not strong],—Yet prepare they, in summer, their food;

26 The camels, a people of [no power],—Yet set they among the crags, their house;

27 King is there none to [the locusts],—Yet go forth in swarms, do they all;

28 The lizard [with hands] reneweth its hold,—Yet [the same] is in the palaces of the king.

29 Three things there are, which step along well, Yea [four] which excel in going:

30 The lion, hero among beasts, Which turneth aside from the face of no one;

31 The greyhound, or the he-goat,—And a king, having a band of soldiers with him.

32 If thou hast acted basely by lifting thyself up,—If thou hast plotted evil [put thy] hand to [thy] mouth!

33 Surely the pressing of milk bringeth forth curd, And the pressing of the nose bringeth forth blood, And the pressing of wrath bringeth forth strife.

1 The words of Lemuel the king,—

31 The strain which was taught him by his mother:—

2 What, my son? And what, the son of my womb? Aye what, the son of my vows?

3 Do not give, to women, thy strength, nor thy ways, to them who ruin kings.

4 It is not for kings, O Lemuel, It is not for kings to drink wine, nor for dignitaries to desire strong drink;

5 Least he drink, and forget that which is decreed, and alter the plea of any who are sorely oppressed.

6 Give strong drink, to him that is perishing, and wine, to such as are embittered in soul:

7 Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and <his wearying toil> let him remember no more.

8 Open thy mouth for the dumb, for the cause of all the children of the departed.

9 Open thy mouth—judge righteousness, and administer justice for the poor and the needy.

PROVERBS XXXI. 13—31; ECCLESIASTES I. 1—13. 635

13 She seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands:
14 She is like the ships of the merchant, <From afar> she bringeth in her food;
15 And she riseth, while yet it is night, And giveth food to her household, And a task to her maidsens:
16 She considereth a field, and procureth it, <Out of the fruit of her hands> she planteth a vineyard:
17 She girdeth, with strength, her loins, And putteth vigour into her arms:
18 She tasteth, whether <good> be her merchandise, And her lamp goeth not out by night>:
19 <Her hands> she putteth forth to the distaff, And <her palms> she lay hold of the spindle:
20 <Her palm> she spreadeth out to the oppressed, And <her hands> she extendeth to the needy:
21 She feareth not for her household, because of the snow, For ||all her household|| are clothed with crimson:
22 <Coverlets> she maketh for herself, <of white linen and of purple> is her clothing:
23 <Known in the gates> is her husband, When he sitteth, with the elders of the land:
24 <Fine linen wrap> she maketh and selleth, And <girdles> doth she deliver to the trader:
25 <Strength and dignity> are her clothing, And she laugheth at the time to come:
26 <Her mouth> she openeth with wisdom, And ||the instruction of kindness|| is on her tongue:
27 She looketh well to the goings of her household, And <the bread of idleness> will she not eat.
28 Her children rise up, and call her happy! —<Her husband, and he praiseth her:—>
29 ||Many daughters|| have done virtuously, <The woman that revereth Yahweh> ||she|| shall be praised:
30 Decietful' is loveliness and vain' is beauty, <The woman that revereth Yahweh> ||she|| shall be praised:
31 Give her of the fruit of her own hands, And let her own works ||praise her in the gates|.

ECCLESIASTES;
OR, THE PROCLAIMERS.

1 1 The words of the Proclaimer, son of David, king in Jerusalem.

2 Vanity of vanities! saith the Proclaimer,a vanity of vanities! ||all|| is vanity.

3 What profit hath Man,—in all his toil wherewith he toleth under the sun? 4 |Generation| goeth and generation cometh, but the earth ||unto times age-abiding|| remaineth. 5 And the sun |breaketh forth|, and the sun ||goeth in,—yea ||unto his own place|| he panteth, from whence he' brake forth. 6 <Going unto the south, and circling unto the north,—circling, circling continually> ||in the wind||, and ||over its own circuits|| returneth the wind. 7 ||All the streams|| flow into the sea, yet ||the sea|| is not full,—<unto the place whither the streams flow> ||thither|| do they again' flow. 8 ||All words; are weak, unable' is any man to tell,—not* satisfied' is the eye by seeing, nor filled' is the ear with hearing. 9 That which hath been is the same that shall be, and that which hath been done is the same that shall be done,—and there is ||nothing' new|| under the sun. 10 Is' there a thing of which it can be said, See here, it is ||new||? ||Already|| hath it been ||for ages, ||it is something|| which was before us. 11 There is ||no' remembrance|| of the things before,—nor ||even of the things after, which shall be> will there be any remembrance, with them who shall come after.

12 ||I, the Proclaimer|| was king over Israel in Jerusalem. 13 And I gave my heart to seek and to search out, |wisely!, concerning all things which are done under the heavens,—<the same|| is the vexatious employment God hath given to the sons of men, to work toilsomely therein. 14 I saw all the works which were done under the sun,—and lo! all was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 15 That which is crooked cannot be straight,—and that which is wanting cannot be reckoned. 16 Spake I in my heart, saying, As for me lo! I have become great, and have gathered wisdom, beyond any one who hath been before me over Jerusalem,—and my heart lieth to know wisdom, and to know madness, and folly,—I know that even this is a feeding on wind. 18 For in much wisdom is much vexation,—and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth pain.

Said I in my heart, Come now! I will prove thee with gladness, and look thou on blessedness,—but lo! even that was vanity. 2 Of laughter I said, Madness! and of mirth What can it do? I sought out with my heart, to cherish with wine, my flesh,—but my heart was to guide with wisdom, even in laying hold of folly, until I should see which was blessedness for the sons of men, as to that which they could do, under the heavens, during the number of the days of their life.

I enlarged my works,—I built me houses, I planted me vineyards; I made me gardens, and parks,—I planted in them trees of every kind of fruit; I made me pools of water,—to irrigate therefrom the thick-set saplings growing up into trees: I acquired men-servants and women-servants, and the children of the household were mine, beyond all who had been before me in Jerusalem; I heaped me up, both silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings, and provinces,—I provided me singing-men and singing-women, and the delights of the sons of men, a wife and wives. So I became great, and increased, more than any one who had been before me in Jerusalem, moreover my wisdom remained with me; and nothing that mine eyes asked withheld I from them,—I did not keep back my heart from any gladness, for my heart obtained gladness out of all my toil, and so this was my portion, out of all my toil.

When I looked upon all my works, which my hands had made, and on my toil, wherein I had toil somewhat wrought then lo! all was vanity, and feeding on wind, and there was no profit under the sun. Thus turned I to look at wisdom, and madness, and folly,—for what can the man [do more] who cometh after the king? [save] that which already men have done.

Then saw I, that wisdom doth excel folly,—as far as light excelleth darkness. <As for the wise man> [his eyes] are in his head, whereas the dullard doth walk,—but I myself knew that [one destiny] happeneth to them [all]. Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the dullard even to me will it happen, but wherefore? then became I wise to excess! Therefore spake I in my heart, Even this is vanity. For there is no remembrance of a wise man, more than of a dullard, unto times age-abiding,—seeing that already, in the days to come all hath been forgotten, how then cometh it that the wise man dieth equally with the dullard?

Therefore I hated life, for a vexation unto me was the work which was done under the sun,—for all it was vanity, and a feeding on wind. Therefore hated I all my toil, wherein I was toiling, under the sun,—in that I should leave it for the man who should come after me; and who could know whether a wise man he would be or a foolish, and yet he would lord it over all my toil, wherein I had toiled and wherein I had acted wisely, under the sun,—even this was vanity.

Then resolved I, to give my heart over to despair,—concerning all the toil, wherein I had toiled, under the sun. For here is a man, whose toil hath been with wisdom and with knowledge and with skill,—yet to a man who hath not toiled therein shall he leave it as his portion, even this was vanity and a great vexation. For what hath the man for all his toil, and for the striving of his heart,—wherein the himself toiled under the sun? For [all his days] are pains, and vexatious is his employment, [even in the night] his heart lieth not down,—[even this] was [vanity]. There was nothing more blessed for Man [than] that he should eat and drink, and see his desire in his toil,—even this saw I myself, that from the hand of God it was. For who could eat and who could enjoy, so well as I? For to a man who is good before him hath he given knowledge and gladness,—whereas to the sinner he hath given employment, to gather and heap up, to give to one who is good before God, even this was vanity, and a feeding on wind.
For every thing there is a season,—
And a time for every pursuit, under the heavens:
A time to be born, and a time to die,—
a time to plant, and a time to uproot what is planted;
A time to kill, and a time to heal,—
A time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh,—
A time to wail, and a time to dance for joy;
A time to cast away stones, and a time to heap up stones,—
A time to embrace, and a time to be far from loving embrace;
A time to seek, and a time to give up as lost,—
A time to keep, and a time to cast away;
A time to rend, and a time to sew,—
A time to be silent, and a time to speak;
A time to love, and a time to hate,—
A time of war, and a time of peace.

What profit hath he that worketh, in that wherein himself hath toiled? I looked at the employment which God hath given to the sons of men, to work therein: Everything hath he made beautiful in its own time,—also intelligence; he hath put in their heart, without which men could not find out the work which God hath wrought, from the beginning even unto the end. I know that there is no blessedness in them,—save to be glad, and to do well with one's life. Though indeed that any man should eat and drink, and see blessedness, in all his toil, is it the gift of God. I know, that whatsoever God doeth ||the same! shall be age-abiding, ||unto it! there is nothing' to add, and ||from it! there is nothing to take away,—and ||God! hath done it, that men should stand in awe before him. That which was ||already! had been, and ||that shall be! ||already! shall have been,—but ||God! seeketh that which hath been chased away.

Then again I saw under the sun,—the place of justice, that there was lawlessness, and the place of righteousness, ||there! was lawlessness. Said ||I! in my heart, <both the righteous and the lawless> will God judge,—for ||there! will be a time for every pursuit, and concerning every work it. Said ||I! in my heart, <as concerning the sons of men> That God was minded to prove them,—and that they might see, that they were beasts, ||of themselves. For <as regarded the destiny of the sons of men and the destiny of beasts> ||one fate! have they, <as dieth the one> ||[so] dieth the other, and <one spirit!> have they all,—and ||the pre-eminence of man over beasts is nothing, for all! were vanity: all! go unto one place,—all! came from the dust, and all! return to the dust. 21 Who knoweth the spirit of the sons of men, whether it ascendeth above,—or the spirit of the beast, whether it descendeth below, to the earth?

So I saw, that there was nothing better than that a man should be glad in his works, for ||that! is his portion,—for who can bring him in, to look upon that which shall be after him?

Then again I considered all the oppressive deeds which were done under the sun,—and lo! the tears of the oppressed, and they have no comforter, and <on the side of their oppressors> is power, and they have no comforter. So ||I! pronounced happy' the dead, who were already dead,—more than the living, who were living still; and <as better than both> him who had not yet come into being,—who had not seen the vexatious work, which was done under the sun.

Then saw ||I! all the toil and all the skill of the work, that <for this> a man was envied of his neighbour,—<even this! was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ||The dullard! clasped his hands, and consumeth his own flesh. Better a handful—<with quietness! than both hands full—with toil, and feeding on wind.

Then again ||I! looked at a vain thing under the sun:—Here' is one without a second, <even son or brother> he hath none, yet is there no end to all his toil, ||even his eye! is not satisfied with riches,—neither <saith he> <For whom! am I toiling, and letting my soul want good? ||Even this! was vanity, yea a vexatious employment! it was! 9 Better are two, than one,—in that they have a good reward for their toil. 10 For <if the one should fall! ||the other! would raise up his companion,—but alas! for him who is alone when he falleth, with no second to raise him up! Moreover <if two lie together> then have they warmth,—but how can one have warmth? 12 And <though an enemy should prevail against one> ||two! might make a stand before him,—<a threefold cord! cannot soon be broken.

Better a boy, poor and wise,—than a king, old and stupid, who knoweth not how to take warning any longer. 11 For <out of prison! came he forth to reign,—yes! <even in his own kingdom! was he born poor. 12 I saw all the living, who were going hither and thither under the sun,—<that they were> with the boy who was to be the second, who was to stand in the other's place:—There was no end to all the people, to all before whom he came, yet [they who should come later] would not rejoice in him,—surely [even this] was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

Keep thy foot, when thou goest unto the house of God, and be more ready to hear, than dullards to offer sacrifice,—for they make no acknowledgment of doing wrong. Be not rash with thy mouth, and [with thy heart] be not in haste to bring forth a word, before God,—for [God] is in the heavens, and [though] upon the earth, [for this cause] let thy words be few. For a dream cometh through the multitude of business,—and the voice of a dullard is with a multitude of words.

When thou vowest a vow unto God, do not defer to pay it, for there is no pleasure in dullards,—what thou vowest, pay! Better that thou shouldest not vow,—than vow, and not pay. Do not let thy mouth cause thy flesh to sin,—neither say thou, before the messenger, that it was a mistake, —wherefore should God be indignant at thy voice, and destroy the work of thy hands? For [it was done] amidst a multitude of dreams, and vanities, and many words,—but towards God be thou reverent.

If the oppression of the poor, and the wresting of justice and righteousness, thou see in the province do not be astonished over the matter,—for 'one high above the highest' is watching, yea, the Most High is over them. And [the profit of the earth] is [for all],—[a king] by the field is served.

He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver nor [he that loveth abundance with revenue],—even this was vanity. When blessings are increased, increased are the eaters thereof,—what profit, then, to the owners of them saving the sight of his eyes? Sweet the sleep of the labourer, whether little or much he eat,—but the surfeit of the rich man will not suffer him to sleep. Here was an incurable evil, I had seen under the sun,—and it is common among men:

A man to whom God giveth riches and gains and honour, so that nothing 'doth lack for his soul'—of all that he craveth and yet God doth not give him power to eat thereof, but a man unknown eateth it,—this was vanity, and an incurable evil it was.' Though a man should beget a hundred children, and live many years, so that many should be the days of his years, but his own soul should not be satisfied with the good, and he should not even have [as burial] I said. Better than he is an untimely birth! For [in vain] it came in, and [in darkness] it departed,—and [with darkness] [its name] is covered: even the sun it never saw, nor ought did it know,—more quietness hath this than the other.'

Even though one hath lived a thousand years twice told yet [good] hath he not seen,—is it not unto one place that all are going? All the toil of man is for his mouth,—though [even the desire] is not satisfied! What profit hath the wise man, over the dullard? What can the poor man know—so as to walk before the living? Better what the eyes behold, than the wandering of desire,—even this was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

Whatsoever one may be has been called by his name, and it is known that it is—Son of Earth, he cannot, therefore, contend with one stronger than he. Seeing there are things in abundance which make vanity abound what profit hath man? For who knoweth what is good for a man throughout his life, for the number of the days of his life of vanity, seeing he will make them, like a shadow,—for who can tell a man, what shall be after him, under the sun?

Better a name, than precious ointment,—And the day of death, than the day of one's birth.

So it should be (w. Sep.)—Better that it should be excellent to eat and to drink and to see blessedness, in all one's toil wherein one toil eth under the sun, for the number of the days of his life, in that God hath given him it, for [that] is his portion: yet <as regarded every man, to whom God hath given wealth and goods, and granted him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to find gladness in his toil> [this] is [the gift of God]. Though it be not much let him remember the days of his life,—for God beareth witness, by the gladness of his heart.
Moreover <not to all the words which men speak> do thou apply thy heart,—lest thou hear thine own servant reviling thee! 21 For truly <many times> thy heart knoweth,—that <even thou thyself> hast reviled others.

All this> have I proved by wisdom,—I said, I will be wise, but <that> was far from me. 22 <Far away> is that which hath been,—and deep, deep,* who can find it out?

Resolved I in my heart, <to know and search out, and to seek wisdom, and a conclusion,—and to know lawlessness [to be] stupidity, and folly to be madness.

Who is really a wise man, And who knoweth the interpretation of a thing?

The wisdom of a man lighteth up his countenance, But <by defiance of countenance> one is disfigured.

I said, 23 <The bidding of the king> observe thou, even out of regard to the oath of God. 24 <Not rashly from his presence> shouldst thou go: do not 25 take thy stand in a vexatious thing,—for whatsoever he pleaseth he will do. 24 Where the word of a king is> there is power,—who then may say to him, What wouldst thou do? 25 ||He that observeth the commandment|| will not notice a vexatious thing,—and <of me and manner> will the heart of the wise take note. 25 For <to every pursuit> there is a time and a manner,—when <the vexation of man> is great concerning it.

For there is no one who knoweth what shall be,—for <when it shall be> who will* tell him? 26 ||No man hath power over the spirit, as to the day of my birth, which was before my eye, and as to the day which I shall depart out of eye. 27 There is no remembrance of men,—for what he pleaseth he will do. 27 ||No man hath power over the spirit, as to the day of my birth, which was before my eye, and as to the day which I shall depart out of eye. 27 ||No man hath power over the spirit, as to the day of my birth, which was before my eye, and as to the day which I shall depart out of eye.
to retain the spirit, and [some cod. (w. Sep. and Vul.)] hath power over the day of death, and there is no furlough in war,—neither shall lawlessness deliver them who are given thereto. 4 <All this> had I seen, and tried to apply my heart to every work which was done under the sun,—at such time as one man had power over another man, to his hurt, and had boasted above. 5 And [thereupon] I considered the lawless when buried, when they had entered their graves, that <from the place of the Holy One> they used to go and boast, in the city that they had so done,—even this was vanity. 6 <Because sentence against a wicked work is not executed speedily—on this account> the heart of the sons of men is fully set within them, to commit wickedness. 7 <Though a sinner be committing wickedness a hundred times, and continuing long in his own way> yet I surely know that it shall be well to them who revere God, who stand in awe before him; 8 but shall it not be to the lawless man, neither shall he lengthen out his days like a shadow,—because he standeth not in awe before God. 10 Here was a vain thing which was done upon the earth,—that there were righteous men unto whom it happened according to the work of the lawless, and there were lawless men, unto whom it happened according to the work of the righteous,—I said, that [even this] was vanity. 11 Then extolled I gladness, in that there was nothing better for a man, under the sun, than to eat and to drink, and to be glad,—since [that] should tarry with him in his toil, for the days of his life which God had given him under the sun. 12 When I gave my heart, to know wisdom, and to consider the business that was done upon the earth:—then surely by day and by night there was one who suffered not his eyes to sleep. 17 Then I considered all the work of God, that man could not find out the work that was done under the sun, inasmuch as man toil in seeking and yet cannot find,—yes <even though the wise man should say he knoweth> yet he can not find it out. 13 For <unto all this> I applied my heart, and [my heart] considered all this, that this <the righteous and the wise and their servants> were in the hand of God,— <neither love nor hatred> could any man know, every one <was before Him.> 2 Every one <was like every one else, <one destiny> had the righteous and the lawless, the good and the pure and the impure, and he that sacrificed, and he that did not sacrifice,—<as the good man> wisdom, than weapons of war,—but [one sinner] may destroy much good.

10 1 Dead flies* cause to stink [and] ferment, the oil of the perfumer,—
<More costly* than wisdom or honour> is a little folly.
2 The sense of the wise is on his right hand,—
But <the sense of the dullard> on his left:
3 Yea <even by the way, as the foolish man walketh along> his sense faileth him—and he teellth everyone that [foolish] is he!
4 <If the spirit of a ruler riseth up against thee> <thy place> do not leave,—for [gentleness] pacifieth such as have greatly erred.
5 Here' was a mistake I had seen under the sun,—a veritable mistake that was going forth from the presence of one who had power:
6 Folly placed in great dignity,—
While <the rich> <in a low place> took their seat:
7 I had seen |servants] upon horses,—
And <rulers> walking like servants, on the ground.
8 <He that diggeth a pit> <thereinto> may fall,—
And <he that breaketh through a hedge> there may bite him a serpent.
9 <He that removeth stones> may be hurt therewith,—
And he that cleaveth wood> may be endangered thereby.
10 <If blunt> be their iron, and [himself] hath not sharpened [the edge] then <much force> must he apply,—but <an advantage for giving success> is wisdom.*
11 <If a serpent will bite, unless he is charmed> Then there is nothing better for him that owneth a tongue.*
12 <The words of a wise man's mouth> are pleasant,—
But <the lips of a dullard> will swallow him up:
13 <The beginning of the words of his mouth> is folly,—
But <the latter end of his speech> is mischievous* madness.
14 Yet  multiplieth words,—
[Though] no man knoweth which hath been,* And <that which shall be after him> who can tell him?
15 <The toil of dullards> shall weary a man,*
That he knoweth not how to go into the city.

41

16 Alas! for thee, O land, when thy king is a boy,—
And <thy rulers> <in the morning> do eat:
17 How happy art thou, O land, when thy king is * a son of nobles,—
And <thy rulers> <in season> do eat,
For strength, and not for debauchery.
18 <By two lazy arms> the framework sinketh in,*—
And <by the hanging down of the hands> the house' may leak.
19 Merrily people make bread,*
And <wine> gladdenedeth life,—
But <money> answereth all things.
20 <Even in thy thought> do not revile [the king],
Nor <within thy bed-chambers> revile thou the rich,—
For [a bird of the heavens] might carry the voice,
Yea <an owner of wings> might tell the matter.

1 Cast thy bread-corn, upon the face of the waters,—
For <after many days> shalt thou find it:
2 Give a portion to seven, yes even to eight,—
For thou canst not know, what there shall be of misfortune, upon the earth.
3 <If the clouds be filled with a downpour> <Upon the earth> will they empty them selves,
And <if a tree fall in the south or in the north> <In the place where the tree falleth> there will it be found.
4 <He that observeth the wind> will not sow,—
And <he that watcheth the clouds> will not reap.
5 <Just as thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, when the body is in the womb of her that is with child> <Even so> canst thou not know the work of God, who maketh all.
6 In the morning sow thy seed,
And <until evening> do not withhold thy hand,—
For thou knowest not—
Whethershallthrive, either this or that, Or whether both alike shall be fruitful.
7 Trulysweet' is the light,—
And <pleasant to the eyes> to see the sun:
8 But <though many years> a man live |Through them all] let him rejoice;
Yet let him remember the days of darkness,
For many' they may be, [all that cometh] may be vanity.

8 So <nearly> Fuerst. the floor sinketh in.* Others: "By much sloth <be> make a feast"—O.G.
Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth,
And let thy heart gladden thee in the days of thine early manhood,
And walk thou—
In the ways of thine own heart,
And in that which is seen by thine own eyes,—
Yet know, that <for all these things>
Will God bring thee into judgment.
Therefore remove thou vexation from thy heart,
And put away discomfort from thy flesh,—
For <youth and dawn> are vanity!
Yet remember thy Creator,* in the days of thy vigour,—
Or ever come in, the days of discomfort,
And the years arrive, in which thou shalt say—
I have, in them, no pleasure;
Or ever be darkened—
The sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars,—
And the clouds return' after a downpour of rain;
In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble,
And the men of might bow themselves,—
And the grinders cease because they are few,
And they look through the windows* are darkened;
And the doors in the street be closed,
When the sound of the mill become low,—
And low-voiced be all the daughters of song;
Vea <at what is high> they be in fear.
And there be <terror>' in the way,
And the almond be rejected, &
And the grasshopper drag itself along,*
And desire perish,—
For man is going to his age-abiding home,
When the wailers shall go round in the streets;
Or ever the silver cord be loosed,*
Or the golden bowl be broken,—
Or the bucket by the fountain be shivered,
Or the wheel at the well be broken;
And the dust return' to the earth, as it was,—
And the spirit return unto God, who gave it.
Vanity of vanities, saith the Proclaimer, <all>
is vanity.
Besides that> the Proclaimer being wise,— still further taught knowledge unto the people, and weighed and searched, arranged proverbs in abundance.
The Proclaimer sought to find out words giving delight,
And to note down rightly, the words of truth.
The words b of the wise <as goods,>
Yea <as driven nails > their well-ordered sayings,—
Given from one shepherd.
And besides <from them > my son, be admonished,—
Of making many books there is no end,
And <much study> is a weariness of the flesh.
The conclusion of the matter—the whole> let us hear,—
Towards God > be reverent.
And <his commandments> observe,
For if this [concerneth] all mankind.
For <every work> will God bring into judgment,
With every hidden thing,—
Whether good, or evil.

He hath brought me into the house of wine,
And ||his banner* over me|| is love.
6 Sustain me with raisin-cakes,
Refresh me with apples,—
For <stick with love> I am'.
6 <His left hand under my head>
Then ||his right hand|| embraceth me!
7 I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,
By the gazelles or by the hinds of the field,—
That ye wake not, nor arouse, the dear love until she please!
8 The voice of my beloved!
Lo! here he cometh,—
Leaping over the mountains,
Skipping over the hills.
9 Resembleth, my beloved, a gazelle,
Or a young stag,—
Lo! here he is, standing behind our wall,
Looking in at the windows,
Peeping in at the lattice.
10 Responded my beloved, and said to me,—
Rise up! my fair— my beautiful— one,
And come away,
11 For lo ||the winter|| is past,—
||The rain|| is over, [and] gone;
12 ||The flowers|| have appeared in the earth,
||The time of the spring - song||* hath come,—
And ||the voice of the turtle|| is heard in our land;
13 ||The fig-tree|| hath spiced* her green figs,
And ||the vines— all blossom|| yield fragrance,—
Rise up! my fair— my beautiful— one,
And come away!

O my dove!
14 <In the retreats of the crag,
In the hiding-place of the terrace>
Let me see thy form,
Let me hear thy voice,—
For ||thy voice|| is sweet,
And ||thy form|| comely.'

Take ye for us, the foxes,
||The little foxes that are spoiling the vines||,—
And ||four vines|| are all blossom!

My beloved ||is mine||,
And ||I am his||,
He that pastureth among lilies!

Until the day |breathe|
And the shadows |be lengthened|>
|Again| liken thyself, my beloved,
To a gazelle, or to a young stag,
Upon the cleft mountains.*

I upon my couch, in the night-time| sought
The beloved of my soul, —
I sought him, but found him not.
2 Come! I must arise, and go about in the city,
In the paths* and in the broadways,
I must seek the beloved of my soul,—
I sought him, but found him not.
3 The watchmen that go round in the city |found me|,
||The beloved of my soul> have ye seen?
4 <Scarcefully had I passed from them>
When I found’ the beloved of my soul,—
I caught him, and would not let him go,
Until that I had brought him into the house of my mother,
And into the chamber of her that conceived me.

I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,
By the gazelles, or by the hinds of the field,—
That ye wake not, nor arouse, the dear love until she please.

* So O.G.
4. [He.]

1. Lo! thou art beautiful, my fair one,
   Lo! thou art beautiful,
   Thy eyes are doves, from behind thy veil, —
   Whereof all of them are twin-bearers, and Thy hair is like a flock of goats, which are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead:

2. Thy teeth are like a flock, evenly grown, which have come up from the washing-place, —
   If I am none among them:
   Like a cord of crimson are thy lips,
   And thy mouth is lovely, —
   Like a slice of pomegranate are thy temples,
   Behind thy veil:
   Like the tower of David is thy neck, built for war,
   A thousand shields hung thereon,
   All the equipment of heroes:
   Thy two breasts are like two young roes,
   Twins of a gazelle, —
   Which pasture among lilies.

3. Until the day brethren,
   And the shadows be lengthened >
   I will get me unto the mountain of myrrh,
   And unto the hill of frankincense.

4. Thou art all over beautiful, my fair one,
   And blemish is there none in thee.
   Thou hast encouraged me,* my sister, bride,
   Thou hast encouraged me,* with one glance,
   Of thine eyes,
   With one ornament of thy neck.

5. How beautiful are thy caresses, my sister, bride,
   How much more delightful thy caresses than wine,
   And the fragrance of thine oils, than all spices:

6. With sweetness thy lips do drip, O bride,
   Honey and milk are under thy tongue,
   And the fragrance of thy garments is like the fragrance of Lebanon.

7. Thou hast encouraged me,* my sister, bride,
   Thou hast encouraged me,* with one glance,
   Of thine eyes,
   With one ornament of thy neck.

8. With sweetness thy lips do drip, O bride,
   Honey and milk are under thy tongue,
   And the fragrance of thy garments is like the fragrance of Lebanon.

9. A garden barred is my sister, bride,
   A spring barred, A fountain sealed:

10. Thy boughs forth are a paradise of pomegranates,
    With precious fruits, —
    Henna bushes, with nard blossoms:

14. Nard and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon,
    With all woods of frankincense,
    Myrrh and aloes, with all the chiefs of spices:

15. A garden fountain, a well of living waters,
    And flowings from Lebanon.

[She.]

5. Awake, O north wind, and come in, thou south,
   Fan my garden—its balsams will flow out, —
   Let my beloved enter his garden,
   And eat his precious fruits.

6. Thou hast encouraged me,* my sister, bride,
   Thou hast encouraged me,* with one glance,
   Of thine eyes,
   With one ornament of thy neck.

7. With sweetness thy lips do drip, O bride,
   Honey and milk are under thy tongue,
   And the fragrance of thy garments is like the fragrance of Lebanon.

8. A garden barred is my sister, bride,
   A spring barred, A fountain sealed:

12. A garden barred is my sister, bride,
    A spring barred, A fountain sealed:

13. My beloved thrust in his hand, at the window,
    And my feelings were deeply moved for him:
    I myself arose, to open to my beloved,—
    And my hands dripped with myrrh,
    And my fingers with myrrh distilling,
    Upon the handles of the bolt.

14. I myself opened to my beloved,
    But my beloved had turned away, had passed on,—
    My soul had gone out when he spake,
    I sought him, but found him not,
    I called him, but he answered not.

7. The watchmen who were going round in the city found me,
    They smote me, wounded me,—
    The watchmen of the walls took away my cloak from off me.

8. I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,
    <If ye find my beloved> what will ye tell him?
    That sick with love I am'.

9. So, in effect, Fuerst and Davies,
    "Opening for window" —
    "Liquid honey" —
    "With my honey" —
    O.G.
What is thy beloved more than any other beloved,
Thou most beautiful among women?
What is thy beloved more than any other beloved,
That thou hast adjured us?

My beloved is white and ruddy,
Conspicuous beyond ten thousand:

His head is pure gold,—
His locks are bushy, black as a raven;
His eyes like doves, by the channels of water,—
Bathing in milk, set as gems in a ring:

His cheeks like a raised bed of balsam,
Growing plants of perfume,—
His lips like lilies, dripping with myrrh distilling:

His hands cylinders of gold, set with topaz,—
His body wrought work of ivory, covered with sapphires:

His form like Lebanon, choice as cedars:

His mouth most sweet,
Yea altogether he is delightful,—
This is my beloved.

Whither hath thy beloved gone?
Thou most beautiful among women?
Whither hath thy beloved turned him aside!
That we may seek him with thee.

My beloved is gone down to his garden,
To the beds of balsam,—
To pasture in the gardens,
And to gather lilies,

And my beloved is mine,
He that pastureth among lilies.

Whither hath thy beloved gone?
Thou most beautiful among women?
Whither hath thy beloved turned him aside?
That we may seek him with thee.

My beloved is gone down to his garden,
To the beds of balsam,—
To pasture in the gardens,
And to gather lilies,

And my beloved is mine,
He that pastureth among lilies.

Whither hast thou gone, O Shulamite,
Turn away thine eyes from me,
For they have excited me,—
Thy hair is like a flock of goats, which are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead:

How beautiful are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—
The curvings of thy hips are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman:

Thy navel is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine!
Thy body is a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies;
Thy two breasts are like two young roes, the twins of a gazelle;
Thy neck is like a tower of ivory,—
Thine eyes are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim;

The daughters have seen her, and pronounced her happy,
Queens and concubines! and they have praised her.

Who is this, that looketh forth like the dawn,
Beautiful as the moon,
Pure as the sun,
Majestic as banneder hosts?

To the garden of nuts I went down,
To look at the fresh shoots of the ravine,—
To see whether had burst forth the vine,
had blossomed the pomegranate:—
I know not how it was] my soul] set for me the chariots of my willing people!

Return, return, O Shulamite,
Return, return, that we may look on thee!
What would ye look on in the Shulamite?

As it were the dance of a double camp...
How beautiful are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—
The curvings of thy hips are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman:

Thy navel is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine!
Thy body is a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies;
Thy two breasts are like two young roes, the twins of a gazelle;
Thy neck is like a tower of ivory,—
Thine eyes are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim;

The daughters have seen her, and pronounced her happy,
Queens and concubines! and they have praised her.

Who is this, that looketh forth like the dawn,
Beautiful as the moon,
Pure as the sun,
Majestic as banneder hosts?

To the garden of nuts I went down,
To look at the fresh shoots of the ravine,—
To see whether had burst forth the vine,
had blossomed the pomegranate:—
I know not how it was] my soul] set for me the chariots of my willing people!

Return, return, O Shulamite,
Return, return, that we may look on thee!
What would ye look on in the Shulamite?

As it were the dance of a double camp...
How beautiful are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—
The curvings of thy hips are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman:

Thy navel is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine!
Thy body is a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies;
Thy two breasts are like two young roes, the twins of a gazelle;
Thy neck is like a tower of ivory,—
Thine eyes are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim;
Thy nose is like the tower of Lebanon, which looketh towards Damascus.

Thy head upon thee is like Carmel,
And the hair of thy head is like purple,

The king is held captive by the ringlets!

How beautiful, and how delightful, O dear love, for delights:

This thy stature is like a palm-tree,
And thy breasts are like clusters:

I said, I will ascend the palm-tree,
I will lay hold of its fruit stalks—

Oh then, let thy breasts, I pray thee, be like vine-clusters,
And the fragrance of thy nose like apples;

And thy mouth like good wine—

Flowing to my beloved smoothly.
Gliding over the lips of the sleeping.

Come, my beloved,
Let us go forth into the country,
Let us stay the night in the villages:
Let us get up early to the vineyards,
Let us see whether the vine hath burst forth,
The blossom hath opened,
The pomegranates have bloomed,—
There will I give my caresses to thee.

The love-apples have given fragrance.
And at our openings are all precious things, new and yet old,—
O my beloved! I have treasured them up for thee.

Oh that thou hadst been a very brother to me,
Who had sucked the breasts of my own mother,—

If a wall she is we will build upon it a battlement of silver,—
But if a door she is we will close it up with a plank of cedar.

A sister have we, a little one,
And breasts hath she none,—
What shall we do for our sister, in the day when she may be spoken for?

A vineyard had Solomon, as the owner of abundance,
He put out the vineyard to keepers,—

Every man was to bring in, for the fruit thereof, a thousand silverlings:

Mine own vineyard is before me,—
The thousand belong to thee, O Solomon,
And two hundred to the keepers of the fruit thereof.

The true reading"—
The anxiety, however, on the part of the Sopherim not to describe Jehovah as the source of human love, and especially not to exhibit him in parallelism with Hades, has caused the Western redactors of the text to obfuscate the name of God in the only place where the Divine Name occurs in this book"—

Ibid. Accordingly the received Heb. text [one word = "intense flame"] is found in Western copies and in Ben-sheer, but "the true reading" [two words] has been preserved in Eastern copies and in Ben-naphtali {w. the Hillel copy and 5 ear. pr. eda.}—Op. G.n.b

Hear the word of Yahweh, ye rulers of Sodom,—

Give ear to the instruction of our God, ye people of Gomorrah:—

Of what use to me is your multitude of sacrifices? Saith Yahweh: I am sated with ascending-offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts,—

In the blood of bulls and young rams and he-goats have I no pleasure.

Who hath required this at your hand, trampling my courts?

Ye shall not again bring in an empty present, <Incense> an abomination is that unto me! New moon, and sabbath, calling an assembly—

I cannot endure iniquity and sacred festival!—

<Your new moons, and your appointed feasts> my soul hateth,— They have become unto me a burden I am too weary to bear:

<Even when ye spread forth your open palms> I hide mine eyes from you; Yea <though ye multiply prayers> I am not hearkening,—

<Your hands with deeds of blood> are filled.

Wash you, make you clean, Put away the wickedness of your doings from before mine eyes,— Cease to do evil.

Learn to do well— Seek justice, Correct the oppressor, Vindicate the fatherless, Plead the cause of the widow.

Come, I pray you, and let us settle the dispute. Saith Yahweh,—

<Though your sins be found like scarlet> <As snow> shall they be made white, <Though they appear red like crimson> <As wool> shall they become.

ISAIAH I. 19—31; II. 1—9.

19 "If ye be willing—and hearken—
Of the good of the land shall ye eat;
But if ye refuse and rebel—
With the sword shall ye be devoured,
For the mouth of Yahweh hath spoken it.

20 How hath she become unchaste!—
The city that was Faithful,—
Full of justice, Righteousness lodged in her,
But now murderers!

21 Thy silver hath become dross,—
Thy wine* weakened with water;
Thy rulers are unruly, and companions of thieves,
Every one of the people* loveth a bribe, and runneth after rewards,—
The fatherless they do not vindicate,
And the plea of the widow reacheth them not.

22 Therefore Declareth the Lord, Yahweh of hosts,
The Mighty One of Israel,—
Alas! I must appease me on mine adversaries,
I must avenge me on mine enemies;
That I may turn my hand against thee,
And smelt away, as with potash, thy dross,
And remove all thine alloy;
That I may restore thy Judges, as at the first, and thy Counsellors, as at the beginning,—
After that shall thou be called Righteous’ citadel, Trusty’ city,—
Zion with justice shall be redeemed,—
And her returning ones with righteousness;
And the downfall of transgressors and sinners shall be [together],—
And they who forsake Yahweh shall be brought to an end;
For they shall turn pale on account of the oaks which ye desired,—
And ye shall blush on account of the gardens which ye had chosen;
For ye shall be as an oak with its leaf faded,
And a garden that hath no water;
Then shall the strong one become tow,
And his work a spark,—
And they shall both blaze together,
And there be none to quench the fire.

§ 2. A complete Vision concerning Judah and Jerusalem, in which Sin and Punishment and ultimate Cleansing and Glory are vividly portrayed: the whole prefaced by an extract from the prophet Micah (iv. 1—3).

1 That which Isaiah, son of Amoz, saw in a vision,—concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

2 But it shall come to pass, [in the afterpart of the days],
That the mountain of the house of Yahweh Shall be set up as the head of the mountains,
And be exalted above the hills,—
And all the nations shall stream thereunto;
And many peoples shall go, and say—
Come ye, and let us ascend
Unto the mountain of Yahweh,
Unto the house of the God of Jacob,
That he may teach us of his ways,
And we may walk in his paths,—
For out of Zion shall go forth a law,
And the word of Yahweh out of Jerusalem;
And he will judge between the nations,
And be umpire to many peoples,—
And they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks,
Nation against nation shall not lift up sword.
Neither shall they learn any more to make war.

3 O house of Jacob! come ye, and let us walk in the light of Yahweh.

4 Therefore hast thou abandoned thy people, the house of Jacob,
Because they have become full of the East,
And use hidden arts, like the Philistines,—
And with the children of foreigners strike hands;—
So that filled is their land with silver and gold,
And there is no end to their treasures,—
And filled is their land with horses,
And there is no end to their chariots;
And filled is their land with idols,—
To the work of their own hands do they bow themselves down,
To that which they made with their own fingers.

5 Therefore do not thou forgive them!
10 Enter into the rock,
Or hide thee in the dust,—
Because of the terribleness of Yahweh,
And for his majestic splendour.*

11 ||The lofty looks of mean men shall be humbled,
And the haughtiness of great men shall be bowed down,
And Yahweh alone shall be exalted' in that day.*

12 For in day of Yahweh of hosts [shall be]—
Upon every one who is high and lofty,—
And upon every one who is lifted up,
And he shall be brought low;
And upon all cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up,—
And upon all the oaks of Bashan;
And upon all the lofty mountains,—
And upon all the uplifted' hills;
And upon every high tower,—
And upon every fortress wall;
And upon all the ships of Tarshish,—
And upon all desir able' bann ers.

13 And the haughtiness of mean men shall be humbled,—
And the loftiness of great men shall be laid low,—
And Yahweh alone shall be exalted' in that day;"
And the house of the house of his father, [saying]—
Clothing hast thou',
Become thou our ruler,—
This downfall: be under thy hand

15 He will swear,—
I will take no control,
When <in mine own house> is neither food nor clothing,—
Ye must not set me' for a ruler of people!

16 For stumbled' hath Jerusalem, and |Judah| hath fallen,—
Because their tongue and their doings are against Yahweh.
Provoking his glorious presence.

17 The show of their face hath answered against them,
And <their sin-like Sodom> have they told, they have not concealed it.
Alas for their souls!
For they have required to themselves calamity.

18 Say ye to the righteous It is well!
For <the fruit of their doings> shall they eat:

19 Alas! <for the lawless> it is ill,
For what his own hand hath matured:
shall be done to him.

20 My people! [children] are their tyrants;
And |women| rule over them,—
My people! [they who should lead thee forward] are causing thee to stray, <Thy pathways> have they destroyed.

21 Yahweh | hath taken his station to plead|,—
And is standing to judge peoples:
But ye have consumed the vineyard,
That which hath been robbed from the oppressed: is in your houses.

ISAIAH III. 15—26; IV. 1—6; V. 1—6.

What right have ye to crush* my people, And <the faces of the oppressed> to grind? Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh* of hosts—

And Yahweh saith—

<Because haughty' are the daughters of Zion, And they walk with neck thrown back, and wanton eyes,— Tripping along as they go, And <with their feet> making a tinkling sound>—

Therefore will My Lord* smite with leprosy the crown of hair of the daughters of Zion,— And <as for Yahweh> <their shame> will he lay bare!

<In that day> will My Lord* remove the finery—of the anklets, and the little suns, and the little moons; 19 the pendants, and the bracelets, and the veils; 20 the chaplets, and the armlets, and the girdles, and the scent-cases, and the amulets; 21 the rings, and the nose-jewels; 22 the robes, and the over-tunics, and the cloaks, and the purses; and the mirrors, and the linen wraps, and the tiaras, and the cloaks.

And it shall come to pass— That <instead of fragrance> [a putrid odour] shall be, And <instead of a girdle> an encircling rope, And <instead of braided hair> baldness, And <instead of a festal robe> a girding of sackcloth, Branding instead of beauty:

Thy males! by the sword shall fall,— And <thy mighty men> by the war;—

And her gates shall mourn and lament,— And <forsaken> <on the ground> shall she sit.

And seven women will take hold of one man, in that day, saying, <Our own bread> will we eat, And <our own apparel> will we wear,— (Only) let us be called by thy name, to take away our reproach.

<In that day> Shall [the Bud of Yahweh] become beautiful and glorious,— And [the Fruit of the Land] splendid and majestic, To the escaped of Israel.

And it shall come to pass— He that is left in Zion And <the that remaineth in Jerusalem> Shall be called <holy>,— || Everyone written unto life, in Jerusalem.

 exhausted by the sword;—

and to destroy the wall thereof.

And it shall be trodden down;

And I will make it a waste;—

<When My Lord* shall have bathed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, And <the blood-guiltiness> of Jerusalem> he shall wash away out of her midst,— By the spirit of judgment, and By the spirit of thorough cleansing>—

Then will Yahweh create—<Over all the home of Mount Zion and Over her assembly> 4 A cloud by day, and a smoke, And the shining of a fire-flame, by night,— For <over all the glory> shall be a canopy; And  shall there be For a shade by day, from the heat,— and For a refuge, and from storm and from rain.

§ 3. The Paralobic Song of the Vineyard, Explained and Applied, with a six-fold Lament ("Alas!") and a Refrain; followed by a Prediction of Invasion.

1 Let me sing, I pray you, for a well-beloved* of mine, The song of my beloved, concerning his vineyard:—

A vineyard had my well-beloved, on a very fruitful hill; And he thoroughly digged it, And gathered out the stones thereof, And planted it with a precious vine, And built a tower in the midst thereof, Moreover also,  hewed he therein,—

Then waited he, that it should bring forth grapes.

And it brought forth wild' grapes:—

Now therefore, 0 inhabitant of Jerusalem, And men of Judah,— Judge, I pray you, betwixt me, and my vineyard:—

What could have been done further to my vineyard, That I had not done in' it?

Why' then—

<When I had waited that it should bring forth grapes>' Brought it forth wild' grapes?—

Now therefore, I pray you, let me tell you, what I am about to do to my vineyard,—

To take away the fence thereof, And it shall be eaten up, To destroy the wall thereof,

And it shall be trodden down;

And I will make it a waste;—

It shall be neither pruned nor hoed,
But there shall come up briers and thorns,—
And upon the clouds> will I lay a charge,
That they rain thereon no rain.

Surely the vineyard of Yahweh of hosts is the house of Israel,
And the men of Judah are the plantation in which he dearly delighted,—
And he waited
For equity but lo! murderous iniquity,
For the rule of right, but lo! the cry of the wronged;.

Alas! for them who join house to house,
<Field to field> bring they near,—
Until there is no room,
But ye are left to dwell alone in the midst of the land.

In mine ears said Yahweh of hosts,—
Verily houses in abundance shall become desolation;
Large and fair, without inhabitant;
For ten yokes of vineyard shall yield one hath,
And the seed of a homer shall yield an ephah.

Alas! for them who rise early in the morning that strong drink may pursue,—
Who follow on in the evening cool, [until] with wine they are heated;
And it cometh to pass—that lyre and harp,* timbrel and flute, and wine are in their banquets,
But the doing of Yahweh they do not discern,
And the work of his hands have they not seen.

Therefore are my people taken away captive,
And their honourable men are famished with hunger,
And their multitude do gape for thirst.
Therefore hath hades enlarged her desire,
And opened her mouth to its widest,—
And their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that is uproarious,
Shall descend thereinto.

And the mean man hath been bowed down,
And the mighty man hath been humbled,—
Yea the looks of the haughty shall be humbled.
But Yahweh of hosts hath been exalted in justice,—
And the God that is holy hath been hallowed in righteousness;

Then shall the young rams feed where they please,—
And the wastes of the wealthy shall strangers' consume.

Alas! for them who draw on themselves punishment, with cords of falsehood,—
And as with waggon-bands | penalty:
Who say—
Let his work quicken—let it hasten,
That we may see,—
And let the purpose of Israel's Holy One draw near and come,
That we may know!

Alas! for them who call evil good, and good evil,—
Who put darkness for light, and light for darkness,
Who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter.

Alas! for them who are wise in their own eyes,—
And in their own sight are prudent.

Alas! for them who are heroes to drink wine,—
And men of valour, to mingle strange drink,
Who justify the lawless, for a bribe,—
Whereas the righteousness of the righteous they take from him.

Therefore is a tongue of fire | eateth up straw.
And a flame reduceth dry grass unto powder;
Their roots | like rottenness | shall become,
And their blossom | like dust | shall ascend,—
Because they refused the law of Yahweh of hosts,
And the utterance of the Holy One of Israel they despised.

For this cause did the anger of Yahweh kindle upon his own people,
And he stretched out his hand against them and smote them—
So that the mountains trembled,
And their dead bodies served for fuel in the midst of the streets.

For all this hath his anger | not turned back,
But | is his hand outstretched.'

Therefore will he lift up an ensign to the nations afar off,
And signal* for him from the end of the earth,—
And lo! with hot haste will he come:

None shall be weary, and none shall stumble in his midst,
He shall neither slumber, nor sleep,—
Nor shall be loosened, the girdle of his loins,
Nor snapped, the thong of his sandals:
Whose arrows are sharpened, and all his bows bent,—
The hoofs of his horses like a storm-wind:
A roar hath he, like a lioness,—
Will roar like wild lions—
And will growl, and lay hold on prey, and carry into safety, and there be none to deliver.

Yea he will growl at him, in that day, like the growling of the sea,—
The darkness of distress,
Yea the light hath grown dark in its clouds!

By a Vision in the Temple, Isaiah is called and qualified for his Prophetic Mission; and prepared to wait long for good Success.

In the year that King Uzziah died I saw My Lord, sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his skirts did fill the temple.

Seraphim were standing above him; six wings severally had each one,—
With twain he covered his face.
And with twain he covered his feet.
And with twain he did fly.

And they continued crying out one to another, and said,
Holy—holy—holy, is Yahweh of hosts,—
The fulness of the whole earth is his glory.
And the foundations of the porch were moved at the voice of him that cried,—and the house was filled with smoke.

Then said I—Woe to me!—for I am undone,
Because a man of unclean lips am I, and in the midst of a people of unclean lips do I dwell.
For the King, Yahweh of hosts, have mine eyes seen!

Then flew unto me, one of the seraphim, and in his hand a live coal,—
With twain had he taken it from off the altar.

Then touched he my mouth, and said—
Lo! this hath touched thy lips,—
Thus shall be taken away, thine iniquity, and thy sin by propitiation be covered.

Then heard I the voice of My Lord, saying, Whom shall I send? and who will go for us?

And I said—Here am I—send me.

Then said he—Go and say unto this people,—Hear on, but do not discern, See on, but do not perceive:
Stupefy thou the heart of this people,
And their ears make thou heavy.
And their eyes overspread,—Lest they see with their eyes.
And with their ears should hear, and their heart should discern and come back.
And they shall be healed.

Then said I—How long, My Lord?

And he said—Until the time that Cities be wasted through having no inhabitant.
And houses—through having no men, the ground shall be laid waste unto desolation:
And Yahweh have far removed men,—And great shall be the abandonment in the midst of the land.
Yet still shall there be in it a tenth, Though it again be consumed,—Like an oak and like a terebinth,
Which when felled have a stock in them,
And I holy seed shall be the stock thereof.

Isaiah's first Message to King Ahaz: "Courage!"

And it came to pass in the days of Ahaz son of Jotham son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem, to war against it,—but could not prevail against it.

And it was told the house of David, saying, Syria hath settled down upon Ephraim.
Then shook his heart, and the heart of his people, as the trees of a forest shake before a wind.
Then said Yahweh unto Isaiah, Go forth, I pray thee, to meet Ahaz, thou, and Shear-jashub thy son, unto the end of the channel of the upper pool, unto the highway of the fuller's field; and say unto him—Take heed and keep thyself calm—do not fear, neither let thy heart be faint, because of these two fag-ends of smoking firebrands,—in spite of the glow of the anger of Rezin and Syria, and the son of Remaliah.
3:3 Because Syria hath taken counsel against thee, for mischief, and Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, saying,

3:6 Let us go up against Judah, and besiege it, and break it open, for ourselves, and set up a king in the midst thereof, even the son of Tabeal.

7:1 Then said he—

7:7 It shall not stand.

8:1 For though the head of Syria is Damascus, yet within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it shall not be a people;

9:2 Even though the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is the son of Remaliah.

10:3 If ye trust not, Surely ye cannot be trusted!

6. Isaiah's second Message to King Ahaz: "Ask a Sign!"

1:1 And again spake Yahweh unto Ahaz, saying—

3:10 But Ahaz said,—

11:1 Go down deep for a request, or ascend on high.

12:12 And he would not ask.

13:13 Then said he—

14:14 Wherefore let My Lord Himself give you a sign,—

15:15 Curds and honey shall he eat, by the time that he knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good; for before the boy knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good he will call his name Maher-shalal-hash-bai.

16:17 Yahweh will bring' upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days which have not come, from the day when Ephraim departed from Judah, even the king of Assyria.

17:1 And it shall come to pass in that day that Yahweh will give a signal—

18:19 And they shall all of them come and settle down—

21:21 And it shall come to pass in that day that a man shall keep alive a young cow, and two sheep.

22:20 But all the hills which with the hue of grass shall be broken, the thorns and briars shall it be.

7. Isaiah himself instructed to take action: If the Name of Promise is declined, a Name of Threatening shall be given and attested.

1:1 And Yahweh said unto me:—

2:1 Take thee a large tablet, and write thereon, in plain characters,

3:1 Call his name Maher-shalal-hash-baz.

4:4 Take thee a large tablet, and write thereon, in plain characters,

To Maher-shalal-hash-baz. ["Speed-spoil-hurry-prey."]

2:2 That I may take in attestation, faithful witnesses, even Uriah the priest, and Zechariah son of Jeberechiah.

3:3 Then approached I unto the prophet, and said unto me,

Call his name Maher-shalal-hash-baz. For § 8. The Assyrian Invasion again Threatened—but Defied: The Prophet meantime must Dissent, Testify and Wait, with his Eye on a Dawning Day.

And again Yahweh spake unto me |yet
further| saying:

Because this people hath refused the waters of Siloah which flow softly,—and are rejoicing with Rezin and the son of Remaiah> [now therefore, lo! the Lord]* is about to bring up against them, the waters, strong and many, of the River [= Euphrates],
even the king of Assyria, and all his glory,
—and he shall rise over all his channels, and flow over all his banks; * and roll on throughout Judah—overflow and pass along, till unto the neck he shall reach,—and it shall be, that 'the stretching out of his wings,' shall fill the breadth of thy land, O Immanuel!*

Rage, O ye peoples,—and be overthrown,
And give ear. all ye distant parts of the earth,
Gird yourselves and be overthrown,
Gird yourselves, and be overthrown:

Determine a plan,—and it shall be frustrated,—
Speak a word, and it shall not stand,
For With-us-is-God!

For |thus| spake Yahweh unto me, like a firm grasp of the hand,—when he admonished me, not to walk in the way of this people,
saying:

Ye shall not say—A confederacy! of everything of which this people |may say|. A confederacy!

And <their fear> shall ye not fear or regard as awful:

<Yahweh of hosts> ||him|| shall ye hallow,—
And let |him|| be your fear, and let |him||
inspire you with awe;
So shall be become a hallowed asylum,—
But a stone to strike against, and a rock to stumble over, unto both houses of Israel,
And many shall stumble among them,— and fall and be torn, and snared, and captured.

18 Bind thou up the testimony,—
Seal the instruction amongst my disciples.*

17 I will therefore long for Yahweh,
Who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob,—
And will wait |for him|.

16 Lo! <I> and the children whom Yahweh hath given me> are for signs and for wonders, in Israel,—from Yahweh of hosts, who is making* his habitation in Mount Zion.

19 But <when they say unto you—
Seek ye unto the necromancers* and unto the wizards, who chirp, and who mutter>
Should not a people seek |unto its God|?*
In behalf of the living> |should it seek| unto the dead?

18 To the law, and to the testimony!
If they speak not according to this word
[It is] because they have no' dawning day.

19 A renewed Description of Deepening Gloom
(ep. v. 26—30), which serves as a Background for an Outburst of Messianic Light.

Therefore shall they pass through it, hard pressed and hungry,—
And it shall be <when they hunger> then will they rage and revile their king and their god, and turn their faces upwards;
22 And cunto the land> shall they look hard,
And lo! |distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish| driven away !
For there is no gloom to her who had been in 9
anguish,

In the former time> he brought into diabolour
The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphthali,
In the latter time> hath he brought into honour
The Lake-way over the Jordan,

The people who were walking in darkness] Have seen a great light,—
The dwellers in a land death-shadowed>
A light* hath shined upon them.

Thou hast increased the exultation,
Thou hast made great the joy,—
They joy before thee, according to the joy of harvest,
As men exult when they distribute spoil.

* "For all this" hath his anger not turned back;
But still is his hand outstretched.

13 Yet the people have not turned unto him that smote them,—
And Yahweh of hosts have they not sought.
Therefore hath Yahweh cut off from Israel—
Head and tail,
Palm-top and rush.
In one day.
15 <The elder and favourite> is the head,—
And the prophet teaching falsehood is the tail;
And they who should have led this people forward have been causing them to stray,—
And they who are led of them are destroyed.
17 <For this cause> over their choice young men will My Lord not rejoice,
And on their fatherless and their widows will he not have compassion,
For every one of them,* is profane and an evildoer,
And every mouth is speaking baseness,—
But still is his hand outstretched.
18 For lawlessness hath consumed like fire,
Briars and thorns doth it devour,—
Yea it hath kindled upon the thickets of the forest,
And they have rolled up, as a column of smoke.
19 Through the wrath of Yahweh of hosts is the land consumed,—
And the people have come to be as fuel for fire,
A man unto his own brother sheweth not pity;
And he hath slain on the right, and yet is hungry,
And he hath eaten on the left, yet are they not satisfied,—
Every one <the flesh of his own arm> will they eat:
Manasseh—Ephraim, and Ephraim—Manasseh,
They together,—against Judah,—
But still is his hand outstretched.
Turning aside from judgment [the poor],
And robbing of justice [the oppressed of my people],—
So that [widows] become [their spoil],
And <of the fatherless> they make prey.
What, then, will ye do for the day of visitation,
And for the devastation which <from afar> shall come?
<Unto whom> will ye flee for help?
And where will ye leave your glory?*<Without me> one hath bowed under a prisoner.
Yea <under the slain> do they fall!
<For all this> hath his anger [not turned back],
But <still> is his hand outstretched.

Alas! [for Assyria] the rod of mine anger,—
Yea <the very staff in their hand> is [my displeasure]:
<Against an irreligious* nation> will I send him,
Yea <against the people with whom I am wroth> will I command him,—
To capture spoil. And lay hold on prey, And cause them to be trodden down as the mire of the lanes.
But <as for him> [not so] doth he deem, And <in his heart> [not so] doth he think,—
For [to destroy] is in his heart, And to cut off nations, [not a few];
For he saith:—
Are not [my generals] all alike* [kings]?
Is not [Calno] [like Carchemish]?
Is not [Hamath] [like Arpad]?
Is not [Samaria] [like Damascus]?
<As my hand hath reached unto the kingdoms of idols,—whose images* did excel then of Jerusalem and Samaria>.
Shall not, <as I have done to Samaria and her idols>, [so] do to Jerusalem and her images?

Wherefore it shall come to pass — <When My Lord shall finish his whole work upon Mount Zion, and upon Jerusalem> I will bring punishment—
Upon the fruit of the greatness of heart of the king of Assyria, And upon the vainglory of his uplifted eyes.

§ 12. For he hath said—
<By the strength of my own hand> have I effectually wrought,
And by my wisdom—for I have discernment—
That I might remove the bounds of peoples,
Yea <their treasures> have I plundered.
That I might lay prostrate, as a mighty one, the inhabitants;
And my hand [hath found as a nest] the wealth of the peoples,
And <as the gathering of eggs that are forsaken> [all the earth] have [I] gathered,—
And there was none to flap a wing, or open a mouth, or chirp.
Shall the axe [boast itself] against him that wetheth therewith? Or the saw [magnify itself] against him that wadelth it?
As if a rod [could wield] them who lift it up! As if a staff [could raise] what is [not wood]!* [Therefore] shall the Lord, Yahweh* of hosts, Send [among his fat ones] [leonine],
And <under> his glory shall he kindle [a kindling], [like the kindling of fire];
So shall [the Light of Israel] become [a fire],
And [his Holy One] [a flame],
Which shall burn and consume his thorns and his briars, in one day;
And <the glory of his forest and of his garden land, both soul and body> shall it bring to an end.
And it shall be like the wasting away of a consumptive.
And <[the remnant of his forest-trees]> [few in number] shall become,—yes [a child] might describe* them!
And it shall come to pass <in that day> That the remnant of Israel,
And the escaped of the house of Jacob,
Shall [no more again] lean upon him that smote them,—
But shall lean upon Yahweh, the Holy One of Israel, [in truth].
A remnant shall return,' The remnant of Jacob,—unto the mighty God;*
For <though thy people, O Israel, shall be as the sand of the sea> [A mere remnant] shall return of them,— A full end decreed bringeth in [justice] like a flood;
For [a full end and that a decreed one] is My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, executing in the midst of all* the earth.ª

O.G. 403ª.

K.O.T.
Therefore, saith My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, Do not fear, O my people dwelling in Zion, because of Assyria,— When he would smite thee, And when he would lift up against thee, in the manner of Egypt; For yet a very little while and displeasure shall end, Yes (mine anger) over their destruction. And Yahweh of hosts will brandish over him Like the smiting of Midian, at the rock Oreb, And over the sea He will lift it up in the manner of Egypt; And it shall come to pass in that day That his burden shall remove from off thy shoulder, And his yoke from off thy neck,— Yes, the yoke shall be broken, because of fatness.

He hath come in unto Ayyûth, Hath passed through Mîgûn,—— At Michmash storeth his baggage: They have passed over the pass, Geba is his halting-place,—— |Terror-stricken| is Ramah, —Gîbah of Saul hath fled! Make shrill thy voice, O daughter of Gallim! Hearken, O Laîshah; Answer, O Anathoth! Madmenah hath fled,—— ||The inhabitants of Gebîm|| have gone into safety: While yet to-day, in Nob, he tarrieth—— He brandisheth his hand toward The mount of the daughter of Zion, The hill of Jerusalem.

Behold! [the Lord, Yahweh of hosts] is about to lop off a tree-crown, with a crash,— Then shall they who are lifted on high be hewn down, And the lofty be laid low; Then will he fell the thicket of the forest, with iron,— And Lebanon by a majestic one shall fall.

But there shall come forth a shoot from the stock of Jesse,— And [a sprout, from his roots] shall bear fruit;

And the spirit of Yahweh shall rest upon him',—— The spirit of wisdom and understanding, The spirit of counsel and might, The spirit of knowledge, and reverence of Yahweh; So will he find fragrance, in the reverence of Yahweh, And not (by the sight of his eyes) will he judge, Nor (by the hearing of his ears) will he decide; But he will judge (with righteoussness) them who are poor, And decide (with equity) for the oppressed of the land,—— And he will smite the land for the sceptor of his mouth, And (with the breath of his lips) will he slay the lawless one;

And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, And faithfulness the girdle of his reins; The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, And (the leopard) with the kid shall lie down, —And the calf, and the young lion, and the faking—together, With a little child leading them; And (the cow) with the bear shall find pasture, Together shall their young ones lie down,—— And (the lion) like the ox shall eat straw; And the sucking child shall caress over the hole of the asp, Yes (over the viper's den) hath the weaned child stretched out his hand; They shall not hurt—nor destroy, in all my holy mountain,

For filled is the land with the knowledge of Yahweh, As the waters| to the sea |form a covering.

And there shall come to be in that day — A root of Jesse, which shall be standing as an ensign of peoples, <Unto him> shall nations seek,— And [his resting-place] shall be |glorious|.

And it shall come to pass in that day — That My Lord will again set his hand, to possess himself of the remnant of his people,—who shall be left—from Assyria and from Egypt, and from Pathros and from Ethiopia, and from Elam and from Shinar, and from Hamath and from the Coastlands of the sea;

And he will lift up a standard to the nations, And will gather the outcasts of Israel,— And the dispersed of Judah will he collect, From the four corners of the earth.

And the envy of Ephraim shall be removed,
And the vexatious doings of Judah shall be cut off:
Ephraim shall not envy Judah,
And Judah shall not vex Ephraim;
But they shall fly on the wing of the Philistines, in the west,
Together shall they make prey of the sons of the east.
On Edom and Moab putting forth their hand,
With the sons of Ammon hearkening unto them.
And Yahweh will devote to destruction the gulf* of the Egyptian sea,
And will brandish his hand against the River [= Euphrates], in the full force of his spirit,
And will smite it in the seven streams.
And cause a marching through in sandals;
So shall there be a highway for the remnant of his people who shall be left, out of Assyria,—
Like as it was to Israel, in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt!

Thou shalt say, therefore, in that day,
I will praise thee, O Yahweh!
Though thou hast been angry with me,
Thine anger turneth back.
And thou dost comfort me.
Lo! [Goi]||is my salvation!
I will trust, and not dread,—
For my might and melody is Yahweh,
And he hath become mine, by salvation.
Therefore shall ye draw water, with rejoicing,— out of the fountains of salvation.
And ye shall say, in that day,
Praise Yahweh,
Call upon his Name,
Make known among the peoples, his doings,—
Bring to remembrance, that exalted is his Name!
Praise in song Yahweh,
For hath he done,—
Well known is this, in all the earth.
Make shrill thy voice and sing out, thou inhabitress of Zion,—
That <great in the midst of thee> is the Holy One of Israel.

1 The oracle on Babylon,—of which Isaiah, son of Amoz, had vision:—
Upon a bare mountain lift ye up a standard,
Raise high the voice to them,—
Wave the hand,
That they may enter the doors of nobles.

2 I myself have given charge to my hallowed ones,— Yea I have called
My heroes in showing mine anger,
My proudly' exulting ones.

3 The noise of a multitude in the mountains,
A resemblance of many people,—
The noise of a tumult of kingdoms,
Nations gathered together,
Yahweh of hosts, mastering a host for battle!
They are coming in
From a land far away,
From the utmost bound of the heavens,—
Yahweh—with his weapons of indignation,
To destroy the land.

4 Howl ye! for at hand is the day of Yahweh,—
As a veritable destruction from the Almighty> shall it come.

5 For this cause—
All hands shall hang down,—and
Every mortal heart melt.

6 And they shall be in distress—
Writhings and pains shall lay hold,
As a woman in childbirth shall they be in pangs,—
At his neighbour! shall look in amazement,
Faces of flames their faces!

7 Lo! the day of Yahweh coming in,
Fierce and overflowing, and burning with anger,—
To devote the earth to desolation,
And her sinners will he destroy out of it.

8 And the stars of the heavens, and their constellations shall not flash forth their light—
Obscured shall be the sun in his going forth,
And the moon shall not shed her light.
And I will visit upon the inhabited earth calamity,
And upon the lawless their punishment,—
And will quiet the arrogance of the proud,
And the loftiness of tyrants will I lay low.

9 I will cause a man to be more precious than fine gold;—
Even a son of earth than the finest gold of Ophir.

10 or: "a mortal."
For this cause the heavens will I disturb,
And the earth shall tremble out of her place,
In the wrath of Yahweh of hosts,
And in the day of the glow of his anger.

And it shall be—
Like a gazelle that is chased,
And like a sheep with none to lift it up,
Each to his own people will they turn,
And [each] to his own land will they flee:
Every one found shall be thrust through,
And every one taken shall fall by the sword;
And [their] infants shall be dashed to the ground, before their eyes,
Plundered shall be their houses, and [their] wives ravished.
Behold me! stirring up against them, [the Medes],—
Who shall take no account,
And for gold [they] shall not delight in it;
[bow] shall dash the young to pieces,
And [on the fruit of the womb] will they have no pity,
(Over) children will their eye throw no shield.
Thus shall Babylon—
The most lovely of kingdoms,
The majestic beauty of the Chaldees—
Become as in the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah.

It shall not be dwelt in for ever,
Neither shall it be inhabited, from generation to generation,—
Neither shall encamp there [an Arab],
Nor [shepherds] fold their flocks there.
Then shall lie down there, [wild beasts],
And filled shall be their houses, with [owls],—
Then shall inhabit there, the ostrich,
And [shaggy creatures] shall dance there,
And jackals shall answer in their citadels,
And [wild dogs] in their voluptuous palaces,—
And near to come is [her time],
And [her days] shall not be delayed.

For Yahweh will have compassion on Jacob,
And will yet choose Israel,
And will give them rest upon their own soil,—
And the sojourner shall join himself unto them,
And they shall attach themselves unto the house of Jacob;
And peoples shall take them, and bring them into their own place,
And the house of Israel shall possess them—

Thus shall they be taking captive their captors,
And shall tread down their oppressors.

And it shall come to pass in the day when Yahweh [shall give thee rest] from thy toil, and from thy disquiet,—and from the hard service which had been laid upon thee that thou shalt take up this taunt over the king of Babylon, and shalt say:—

How hath ceased the oppressor!
Ceased the exactress! *

Broke hath Yahweh the staff of the lawless,—
The sceptre of despots;
Smiting peoples in passion,
With stroke unremitting,—
Trampling, in anger, on nations,
Persecution unhindered.

Yea the pine-trees make mirth at thee,
[Cedars of Lebanon]!*
Since thou wast laid low
No feller hath come up against us?

Hades, beneath is excited about thee
To meet thine arrival,—
Rousing up, for thee, Shades,*
All the he-goats* of earth!
Makest rise from their thrones,
All the kings of the nations.

[All of them] answer, and say to thee,—
[Thou too] made strengthless as we!
[Unto us] art thou like!
[Brought down to Hades] thy pride,
The hum of thy harps,*
[Thy coverlet]—worms!

How hast thou fallen from heaven,
O Shining One—Son of the Dawn!
Hewn down to the earth,
O crusher of nations!

Yet [thou] didst say in thy heart—
The heavens will I ascend,
[Above the stars of God] will I lift up my throne,—
That I may sit in the Mount of Assembly* h
In the Recesses of the North:
I will mount on the hills of the clouds,
I will match the Most High!

17 ||All the kings of the nations—they all|| are lying in state,

<Unnamed to times age-abiding>
Be the seed of the wicked !

19 ||All the kings of the nations—they all|| are lying in state.
Each one in his crypt ;
But |[thou]| art flung down from thy grave.
Like a scion detested,*
Bejrousted with slain, the pierced of the sword,
Like a carcase trod underfoot :

20 <As for them who go down to|b the stones of the Pit>| Thou shalt not be united with them in burial ;
For |[thy land]| thou didst ruin,
|[thy people]| didst slay,—
<Unnamed to times age-abiding>
Be the seed of the wicked !

21 ||All the kings of the nations—they all|| are lying in state.
Each one in his crypt ;
But |[thou]| art flung down from thy grave.
Like a scion detested,*
Bejrousted with slain, the pierced of the sword,
Like a carcase trod underfoot :

22 ||This is the purpose that is purposed upon all the earth,—
And |[this]| the hand outstretched over all the nations ;
For |[Yahweh of hosts]| hath purposed,—
And who' shall frustrate?
And |[his]| is the hand outstretched,
And who' shall turn it back ?

§ 14. A Prophecy against Philistia.—" Yahweh hath founded Zion."

23 <In the year that King Ahaz died> came this oracle :
Do not rejoice, Philistia |[any of thee]|,
In that the rod of him that smote thee |is broken|,—
For <[out of the root of the serpent]> shall come forth |[a viper]|,
And his fruit be a fiery dragon that fieth.

24 Then shall feed, the firstborn of the poor,
And |[the needy]| [in confidence] lie down,—
And I will kill with famine thy root,
And |[thy residue]| shall be slain.

25 Howl—O gate. Make outcry—O city,
Diapersed art thou, Philistia |[all of thee]|,
For |[out of the north]| a smoke cometh in,
With no' straggler in his ranks.

26 What, then, shall one answer the messengers of a nation?
That |[Yahweh]| hath founded Zion,
And |[in her]| shall seek refuge, the oppressed * of his people.

§ 15. A Prophecy against Moab.

1 The oracle on Moab :
<Because |[in a night]> was laid waste Ar of Moab—destroyed !
Because |[in a night]> was laid waste Kir of Moab—destroyed >
He hath gone up to Bayith and Dibon, to the high places, to weep, —
<On Nebo and on Medeba> Moab is howling,
<On all their heads> a baldness,
||Every beard|| clipped.
And Heshbon |hath made outcry|, and Elealeh,
<To Jahaz> hath been heard their voice,—

2 The oracle on Moab :
<Because |[in a night]> was laid waste Ar of Moab—destroyed !
Because |[in a night]> was laid waste Kir of Moab—destroyed >
He hath gone up to Bayith and Dibon, to the high places, to weep, —
<On Nebo and on Medeba> Moab is howling,
<On all their heads> a baldness,
||Every beard|| clipped.
And Heshbon |hath made outcry|, and Elealeh,
<To Jahaz> hath been heard their voice,—

28 * Or: "humbled," "patient."
IIForthiBcauselidothethearmedmen ofMoab roar,
|Every man's soul|*quiverethtohim.
||Mine own heart||for Moab continueth tomake outcry,
||Her fugitive||as far as Zoar is like a heifer of three years;
For <the ascent of Luhith> | with weeping| they ascend,
For <by the way of Horonaim—an outcry of destruction> they excite;
For the waters of Nimrim| shall become desolation|,—
For grass | hath dried up].
Herbage | hath failed|,
||Green thing|| hath not sprung up!
For <this cause> | the savings they had made, and that which they had stored|, <Over the torrent-bed of the willows> shall they bear them.
For the outcry | hath gone round the boundary of Moab,—
As far as Eglaлим | the howling thereof,
And |to Beer-elim| the howling thereof.
For the waters of Dimon| are full of blood,
For I will lay upon Dimon new troubles,—
To the escaped of Moab | the lions|,
Even to the survivors on the soil.

16 1 Send ye the lamb due to the ruler of the land.
From Sela towards the desert,—
Unto the mount of the daughter of Zion;
3 Yet shall it be that—
Like wandering birds from a nest cast forth—
Shall be the daughters of Moab, at the fords of Arnon.
3 Bring thou on counsel.
Execute thou' judgment,
Make | as the night| thy shadow, in the midst of high noon,—
Hide thou the outcasts,
<The wanderer> do not thou reveal.
4 Let mine own outcasts| sojourn with thee|,
O Moab, become thou a covert to them, from the face of the spoiler,—
For vanished' is the oppressor,
At an end' is extortion,
They who tread down have ceased' out of the land.

So shall be established | in lovingkindness| a
throne|,
And one shall sit thereon | in truth| |in the home of David|,—
Judging—and seeking justice, and appeasing righteousness.
6 We have heard of the arrogance of Moab.
Proud exceedingly!
His haughtiness and his arrogance and his passion.
<Not true> are his boastings.²
7 Therefore shall | Moab | howl for | Moab|,
|All that belong to her| shall wail,—
<For the ruins* of Kir-hareseth> shall they moan out.
Utterly stricken!
8 For | the fields of Heshbon| are withered—
The vine of Sibmah.
The owners of nations] have broken off ruddy branches,³
<Unto Jazer> had they reached,
They had spread abroad to the desert,—
<Her boughs> had stretched forth, had gone over to the sea.
9 ||For this cause| will I bewail, in the wailing of Jazer,
The vine of Sibmah,
I will drench thee with my tears, O Heshbon, and Elesah,—
For <upon thy fruit-harvest, and upon thy grain-harvest> | the battle-shout| hath fallen.
10 Now shall be withdrawn rejoicing and exultation, out of the garden-land,
And |in the vineyards> shall be neither singing nor shouting,—
Wine in the winepress | the treader
shall not tread|,
The vintage-shout have I made to cease.
11 ||For this cause| mine inward parts—<for
Moab| | like a lyre> shall make a plaintive sound,—
Yea | what is within me| | for Kir-heres]|
12 And it shall be—
<When it is seen that Moab hath laboured in vain on the high place>
He shall enter into his holy place to pray,
and shall not prevail.
13 ||This| is the word which Yahweh spake concerning Moab in | time past|;
But |now| hast Yahweh spoken, saying,
<In three years*>—as the years of a hiring—shall the glory of Moab be diminished, with all the great multitude,—even a very small remnant, [of no account].
§ 16. A Prophecy against Damascus.

17 Then the oracle on Damascus,—

Lo! [Damascus] is to be removed from being a city,
And shall become a heap of ruins:

And forsaken are the desolate cities,—

For flocks shall they serve,
Which shall lie down, and have none to make them afraid.

Then shall the fortress cease from Ephraim,
And the kingdom from Damascus, and the remnant of Syria,—

Like the glory of the sons of Israel shall they be,—

Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

And it shall come to pass [in that day]
That the glory of Jacob shall be diminished,
And the fatness of his flesh shall be wasted;

Yet shall there be left therein, a gleaning.

As in the beating of an olive-tree,—

Two—three berries, in the head of the tree-top,—

Four—five, among her fruitful boughs,

Declareth Yahweh, God of Israel.

In that day shall the son of earth look to him that made him,—
And his eyes shall unto the Holy One of Israel be turned;

And he shall not look unto the altars, the work of his own hands,—
Nor to what his own fingers have made shall his eye be turned, Whether Sacred Stems or Sun-pillars.

In that day shall his fortified cities become Like a neglected bough and a topmost branch, Which they neglected because of the sons of Israel,—

So shall there be desolation.

Because thou didst forget the God of thy salvation, And thy Rock of refuge thou didst not remember>

For this cause shall thou plant very pleasant plants,*

And <the slip of a stranger> shalt thou set:

In the day when thou plantest fence thou in, And in the morning cause thou thy slip to blossom,—

A harvest will have waved in the day of destiny, and mortal pain.

In some cod. (w. 2 ear. gr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): “and he”—G.n.

§ 17. A Prophecy against a Land Far South.

Ho! thou land of the buzzing of wings,—

Which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia:

That sendeth, by the sea, ambassadors,
Even in vessels of paper-reed, upon the face of the waters,—

Go, ye swift messengers.

Unto a nation drawn out and polished,
Unto a people terrible from their beginning and onwards,—

A nation most mighty and subduing,
Whose land rivers have cut through.

All ye inhabitants of the world,
And ye, that dwell in the earth,—

When there is lifted up an ensign on the mountains>
Ye shall look,
And when there is blown a horn> Ye shall hearken.

For thus said Yahweh unto me,—

I must be quiet,
I must look on in my fixed place of abode,—

Like a bright heat, on the light,
Like a cloud of dew, in the heat* of harvest.

For <before harvest, when the bud is perfect, And the blossom becometh a ripening grape> Then will one cut down the twigs with pruning-hooks,

And the tendrils> will he remove [and] cast down:

They shall be left together,
To the ravens of the mountains, And to the beasts of the earth,—

- Or: “large river.”

- Or: “tall”—O.G. and others (qy.: “postponed”—O.G. and polished (as by scourings)”).

Then shall the ravenous bird summer upon them,
And every beast of the earth upon them shall winter.*

7 In that time shall there be borne along,
As a present unto Yahweh of hosts,
A people drawn out and polished,
Even from a people terrible from their beginning and onwards, —
A nation most mighty and subduing
Whose land rivers have cut through,
Unto the place of the Name of Yahweh of hosts.

Mount Zion.

§ 18. A Prophecy against Egypt: "Yahweh will plague and heal!"

19 1 The oracle on Egypt:
Lo! Yahweh, riding upon a swift cloud,
and he will enter Egypt,
And the idols of Egypt shall shake at his presence,
And the heart of Egypt shall melt within him;
And I will stir up Egyptians against Egyptians,
And they shall fight—
Every one against his brother, and
Every one against his neighbour, —
City against city, and
Kingdom against kingdom.

And the spirit of Egypt shall vanish within them,
Yes <the sagacity thereof> will I swallow up—
And they will seek Unto the idols, and
Unto them that have familiar spirits, and Unto the wizards;
And I will deliver the Egyptians into the hand of a cruel lord,—
And a fierce king shall rule over them,
Declareth the Lord, Yahweh of hosts.

And the waters shall be dried up from the great stream, —
And the River shall waste and be dry;
And rivers shall stink,
The canals of Egypt be shallow and waste,
Reed and rushewithered;
The meadows by the Nile, by the mouth of the Nile.
And all that is sown in the Nile,
Shall be dry, driven away, and not be!
Then shall the fishers lament,
And all shall mourn, who cast in the Nile a hook;
And all shall be turned pale
The workers in combed flax, — and
The weavers of white linen;
Then shall her pillars be crushed,—
All who make wages shall bow down in soul.

Surely foolish are the princes of Zoan,
The wisest counsellors of Pharaoh: in counsel are they brutish,—
How can ye say unto Pharaoh, <Son of the wise> am I;
<Son of the kings of olden time>?

Where then are 'thy wise men?
Pray let them tell thee!
And let them know what Yahweh of hosts hath purposed on Egypt!

Doting are the princes of Zoan,
Deceived are the princes of Noph:
They who are the corner-stone of her tribes have led Egypt astray.
And they have led Egypt astray into all his own doings,
As a drunken man staggereth into his own vomit;
And Egypt shall have nothing which can be done,
Which head or tail, palm-top or rush, can do!

In that day shall Egypt be like unto women,— And shall start and tremble because of the brandishing of the hand of Yahweh of hosts, which he is about to brandish over it.

Then shall the soil of Judah become to Egypt a terror;
That city of destruction shall be the name of one.

In that day shall there be five cities in the land of Egypt,
Speaking the language of Canaan,
And swearing unto Yahweh of hosts,—
The city of destruction shall be the name of one!

In that day shall there be
An altar unto Yahweh, in the midst of the land of Egypt,—
And a pillar near the boundary thereof, unto Yahweh;
And it shall become a sign and a witness unto Yahweh of hosts, in the land of Egypt,—
ISAIAH XIX. 21—24; XX. 1—6; XXI. 1—10.

For they will make outcry unto Yahweh, because of oppressors. That he would send them a saviour—and a great one.
Then will he deliver them.
21 Then will Yahweh make himself known to the Egyptians, So shall the Egyptians know Yahweh, in that day, And they will offer a sacrifice and a present, And will vowe a vow unto Yahweh, and will perform.

And Yahweh will plague Egypt, plague and heal,— And they will turn unto Yahweh, And he will be entreated of them, and will heal them.
23 <In that day> shall there be a highway, from Egypt to Assyria, And the Assyrians shall come into Egypt, And the Egyptians into Assyria;—And the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians.
24 <In that day> shall Israel be a third with Egypt and with Assyria,— A blessing in the midst of the earth: Whom Yahweh of hosts hath blessed, saying,— Blessed be My people—the Egyptians, And the work of my hands the Assyrians, And mine own inheritance—Israel.

§ 19. A Warning not to trust in Egypt—symbolically enforced by Isaiah.

In the year that Tartan entered Ashdod, when Sargon king of Assyria sent him,—and he fought against Ashdod and captured it >,—
2 As at that time spake Yahweh, through Isaiah son of Amoz, saying,
Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, And thy sandal draw thou off from thy foot,—

And he did so, walking disrobed and barefoot.
3 Then said Yahweh,—
As my servant Isaiah hath walked| disrobed and barefoot, three years, as a sign and a wonder, against Egypt and against Ethiopia >
4 So shall the king of Assyria lead away the captives of Egypt, and the exiles of Ethiopia, young and old, disrobed and barefoot, with their persons behind uncovered ||the shame of Egypt.+

Thus shall they be confounded, and turn pale,— For Ethiopia, their expectation, and for Ethiopia, their boast;—
And the inhabitant of this shore shall exclaim, in that day, Lo! such is our expectation, whereto we fled for help, that we might be delivered from the presence of the king of Assyria!
How then shall we escape?'

§ 20. A Prophecy against the Desert of the Sea.

The oracle on the desert of the sea:—
21 <As storm-winds in the South which [with a rush from the desert] do come from a terrible land>

[Sc] hath ≡ a grievous vision[ been told me:— ||The deceiver is deceiving, And the spoiler is spoiling, Go up, O Elam, Besiege, O Media, <All the sighing she hath caused> have I made to cease.

[For this cause] are my loins filled with anguish, ||Pangs have seized me, as the pangs of her that is giving birth,— I wrieth, so that I cannot hear, I tremble, so that I cannot see:
My heart fluttereth, ||A horror terrifieth me,—
<My twilight of pleasure> hath he turned for me into a time of trembling.
5 [Ye thought] to prepare the table—spread the mat—eat—drink! .
Arise, ye chiefains, anoint the shield !
6 For thus hath My Lord said' unto me,— Go, set the watchman, <What he seeth> let him tell !
7 <When he seeth A train of horsemen in double rank, A train of asses, A train of camels>
Then shall he hearken attentively, with diligent heed.

Then cried he, A lion!
8 <On the watch> O My Lord, had I' been standing continually, by day, And <at my post> had I' been stationed whole nights;—
9 When lo ! there was a train of men coming, With horsemen in double rank,— And one began and said, Fallen! fallen! is Babylon, And all the images of her gods are smashed to the ground !

O thou My threshing,* And the grain of my corn-floor!'
10 <That which I have heard from Yahweh of hosts, the God of Israel> Have I declared unto you].

* Perhaps better, of Persian Gulf — O.G. 411. b The twilight of my pleasure— O.G. 989. c To make it slippery— O.G. d Carved, graven, or even molten—Deut. vii. 5.
 9 Or: "meal-offering." 6 Or: "offer," "worship." 4 Or: "glorying."
§ 21. A Prophecy against Dumah (Edom).

11 The oracle on Dumah:
<Unto me> is one crying—out of Seir,
Watchman! how far gone is the night?
Watchman! how far gone is the night?

12 Said the watchman,
There cometh a morning,
But also a night,—
If ye will enquire— enquire ye—
Come again!

§ 22. A Prophecy against Arabia.

13 The oracle on Arabia,—
Among the shrubs in Arabia ye must lodge,
Ye caravans of Dedanites.
To meet the thirsty bring ye water,—
Ye dwellers in the land of Tema;
With bread for him get in advance of him that is in flight!
For before swords have they fled:
Before a sword that is drawn,
Before a bow that is bent,
And before the stress of war.
For thus hath My Lord said unto me,—
Within a year, according to the years of a hireling shall fail all the glory of Kedar;
And the remnant of the record of bowmen,
The heroes of the sons of Kedar shall become few;
For Yahweh, God of Israel hath spoken.

§ 23. A Prophecy against the Valley of Vision.

22 The oracle on the valley of vision,—
What aileth thee, then,
That thou art wholly gone up to the house-tops?
With tumult art thou filled, thou citadel in commotion! city exultant!
Thy slain are Not the slain of [the sword],
Nor the dead in battle.
All thy rulers having fled [together],
by the bow> are taken captive:
All found in thee have been taken captive [together],
Far away have they fled.
For this cause I said—
Look away from me,
Bitterly will I weep,—
Do not press to comfort me,
For the ruin of the daughter of my people.

5 For  pertaineth to My Lord Yahweh of hosts, in the valley of vision,— an undermining of walls, and a crying for help to the mountain.
Yea Elam beareth the quiver,
With trains of men, [and] horsemen,—
And [Kir] hath uncovered the shield.
And it hath come to pass that [the choice of thy vales] are full of chariots;
Yea [the horsemen] have set themselves in array at the gate.
Then removed he the veil of Judah,—
Yea thou didst peer, on that day, into the armoury of the forest-house;
And <the breeches in the city of David> ye beheld, for they were many,—
So ye gathered together the waters of the lower pool;
And <the houses of Jerusalem> ye counted,—
And brake down the houses, to fortify the wall;
And  ye made, between the two walls, for the waters of the ancient pool,—
And had no regard unto him that made it,
Nor unto him that formed it long ago—had ye respect.
And <when My Lord Yahweh of hosts called, in that day,—for weeping, and for lamentation, and for shaving bare, and for girding with sackcloth>
Then lo! joy and rejoicing, killing oxen, and slaughtering sheep, eating flesh, and drinking wine,—
Let us eat and drink,
For to-morrow we may die!
Therefore did Yahweh reveal himself in mine ears.
Surely there shall be no propitiatory-covering put over this iniquity for you, until ye die,
Saith My Lord Yahweh of hosts.

§ 24. Shebna removed from his office as Steward, and Eliakim installed in his stead.

15 HThus said My Lord Yahweh of hosts,
Come, go in unto this steward, Unto Shebna, who is over the house:
What doest thou here?
And whom hast thou here?
That thou hast hewn for thyself here a sepulchre,—
As one hewing on high' his sepulchre,
Cutting out in the cliff a habitation for himself!
Lo! Yahweh is about to hurl thee, with a hurl, O mighty man,—
And roll thee with a roll;

5 Some cod. (w. Aram., Vul.) add:
4 Cp. chap. xxii. 7.
3 Or: "Adonay, Yahweh."
6 He will toss thee, with a toss, like a ball, into a country wide on both hands,—
And thou shalt die.

19 And there shall thy glorious chariots be the contempt of the house of thy lord.
And it shall come to pass, in that day, that I will call for my servant, for Eliakim, son of Hilkiah,
And I will clothe him with thy tunic. And I will gird him with thy girdle, and will deliver into his hand,—
So shall he become a father to the inhabitant of Jerusalem and to the house of Judah.

22 And I will lay the key of the house of David upon his shoulder,—And he shall open, and none shall shut, and shut, and none shall open;
And I will fasten him as a peg in a sure place,—And he shall become a throne of glory to the house of his father;
And they shall hang upon him, all the weight of his father’s house—the offshoots, and the side-twigs—all the small vessels, both the cups and all the jugs.

5 In that day shall the peg give way, that was fastened in a sure place,—Yea it shall be cut off and fall.
And the burden that was upon it shall perish, for Yahweh hath spoken!

§ 25. A Prophecy against Tyre: when restored to her Traffic, she will render Tribute to the Temple of Yahweh.

1 The oracle on Tyre,—Howl! ye ships of Tarshish, For it is laid too waste to be a haven to enter, <From the land of Cyprus> hath it been unveiled to them.

2 Be dumb, ye inhabitants of the Coast,—Whom the merchants of Zidon <passing over the sea> once replenished;
Yea it shall be cut off and fall, And the burden that was upon it shall perish, For Yahweh hath spoken!

6 Like the report of Egypt> They shall be in pangs at the like report of Tyre.*

8 Pass ye over to Tarshish,—Howl, ye inhabitants of the Coast:
Is this, to you, an exultation? <Though from ancient days> is her antiquity.
Yet shall her own feet carry her away, far off to dwell.

9 Who hath purposed this, against Tyre, The bestower of crowns,—Whose merchants are princes, Her traders, the honourable of the earth?

10 Pass through thy land, as the Nile, O daughter of Tarshish, there is no restraint any longer!

11 <His hand> hath he stretched out over the sea, He hath shaken kingdoms,—Yahweh hath given command against the Phoenician coast,
To destroy her fortresses.

12 Therefore hath he said,—<No more, again> do thou exult, Thou violated virgin daughter of Zidon,—<To Cyprus> arise and pass over,
<Even there> shall one find thee no rest.

13 Lo! this is the people, that was not, Assyria founded it for the inhabitants of the desert,—They set up its siege-towers, They demolished its palaces.
Made it a ruin!

14 Howl, ye ships of Tarshish,—For laid waste is your fortress.

15 So shall it be <in that day> That Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years, According to the days of a certain king:
<At the end of seventy years> shall it befall Tyre according to the song of the harlot: Take thou a lyre, Go round the city, O harlot forgotten,—Sweetly touch the strings. Lengthen out the song, That thou mayest be called to mind.

17 So shall it be <at the end of seventy years> That Yahweh will visit Tyre, And she will return to her hire,—Yea she will play the harlot—with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon the face of the ground.

* In some cod. (w. Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "inhabitants"—G.N.  "Jars, pitchers"—O.G.
16 <Some cod.: > which are upon—G.N.
18 But her merchandise and her hire shall be hallowed unto Yahweh,

It shall not be stored up, nor hoarded,—

For <to them who dwell before Yahweh> shall her merchandise belong,

That they may eat to satisfaction,

And have stately apparel.

§ 26. A world-wide Devastation gives place to a Manifestation of Yahweh as King in Jerusalem; in connection with which, supra-mundane and mundane hostile Powers are Imprisoned, Death is Defeated, the Veil over the Nations is Removed, Israel fills the World with Fruit, and Songs are sung both in the Uttermost Parts of the Earth and in the Land of Judah.

20 A world-wide Devastation gives place to a Manifestation of Yahweh as King in Jerusalem; in connection with which, supra-mundane and mundane hostile Powers are Imprisoned, Death is Defeated, the Veil over the Nations is Removed, Israel fills the World with Fruit, and Songs are sung both in the Uttermost Parts of the Earth and in the Land of Judah.

21 Lo! Yahweh emptying the earth, and laying it waste,—

And he will overturn the face thereof,

And scatter them who dwell therein.

And it shall be—

<As the people> ||so|| the priest,

<As the servant> ||so|| his lord,

<As the maid> ||so|| her mistress, —

<As the buyer> ||so|| the seller,

<As the lender> ||so|| the borrower,

<As the debtor> ||so|| his creditor.

Emptied—emptied—shall be the earth, yea pillaged—pillaged,—

For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken this word.

4 Mourneth, faeth, the earth

Languisheth, faeth, the world,—

Languished have the loy of the people of the earth.

5 Yea ||the earth itself|| is profaned under them who dwell therein,—

For they have Set aside laws,

Gone beyond statute,

Broken an age-abiding covenant.

6 ||For this cause|| a curse hath devoured the earth,*

And punished are the dwellers therein,—

||For this cause|| are burned the inhabitants of the earth,

And the men left remaining—are [few].

7 Mourneth' the new wine,

Withereth' the vine,—

Sighing' are all the merryhearted:

8 Ceased' hath the mirth of timbrels,

Ended' is the noise of the uproarious,—

Ceased' hath the mirth of the lyre;

<With a song> they drink not wine,—

Bitter' is strong drink,*b to whom it drink

Broken down' is the city of desolation,—

Shut up' every house, that it cannot be entered.

11 There is an outcry concerning wine' in the streets,—

Darkened' is all joy,

Departed' the gladness of the earth.

* Some cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edn., 8yr.) : "Because of a curse the earth mourneth".—O.N.
  * "Mea"—Cheyne (P.B.).
  * N.B.: the striking assonance: pahôrâh un-pahôrâh
  * Or: "And before his Elders, in glory."
25 O Yahweh! <my God> thou art;' I will exalt thee, I will praise thy Name, For thou hast done a wonderful thing,— Purposes of long ago, Faithfulness in truth.

2 For thou hast made, of a citadel, a mound, of a defended city, a ruin,— palaces for foreigners, to be no city, <To times age-abiding> shall it not be built.

3 [For this cause] will glorify thee—a strong people, The city of tyrannous nations shall revere thee;

4 For thou didst become A refuge to the weak, A refuge to the needy, when distress was upon him,— A shelter from the storm, A shade from the heat, When the blast of tyrants was like a storm against a wall.

5 As heat in a desert, [the pomp of foreigners] wilt thou subdue,— Heat—with the shade of a cloud, [The song of tyrants] become low.

6 Then will Yahweh of hosts prepare for all the peoples <in this mountain> A banquet of fat things, A banquet of old wines,— Of fat things full of marrow, Of old wines well refined;

7 And he will swallow up <in this mountain> The mask of the veil, the veil that is upon all the peoples,— And the web that is woven over all the nations.

8 Having swallowed up death itself victoriously> My Lord, Yahweh,! will wipe away| tears from off all faces,—

9 So shall it be said <in that day> Lo! <our God> is this! We waited for him, that he might save us,— This is Yahweh! We waited for him, Let us exult and rejoice, in his salvation.

10 For the hand of Yahweh will settle down in this mountain,— Then shall Moab be trodden down in its place, Like the treading down of a strawheap at the water of a dunghill;
O Yahweh, thou wilt ensure prosperity for us,—
For even all our works hast thou wrought for us.

O Yahweh, our God!

Lord other than thee have owned us,—
<By thyself alone> will we call upon thy Name.

The dead come not to life again,—
The shades do not arise,—
Therefore thou hast visited and destroyed them,
And caused to perish every memorial of them.

Thou hast increased the nation, O Yahweh,
Thou hast increased the nation, thou hast gotten thyself glory;—
Thou hast extended far, all the ends of the land.

O Yahweh! in distress they sought thee,—
They poured out a whispered prayer,4 when thy chastening was upon them.

Like as a woman with child—
Draweth nigh to giving birth,
Is in pain,
Crieth out in her pangs>
So were we before thee, O Yahweh;—
We were with child—
We were in pain,
As it were we brought forth wind,—
<Salvation> we could not accomplish for the earth,
Neither were born the inhabitants of the world.

Thy dead shall come to life again,
<My dead body> they shall arise,—
Awake and shout for joy, ye that dwell in the dust,
For a dew of light is thy dew,
And [earth] to the shades shall give birth.6

Come, my people, enter into thy chambers,
And shut thy doors behind thee,—
Hide thee, as it were, a little moment,5
Till the indignation pass over.

<In that day> will Yahweh A Wine-Vineyard! sing ye unto her:

||I—Yahweh|| am watching over her,
<Every moment> will I water her,—
<Lest anyone injure her>—
<Night and day> will I watch over her.

<Fury> have I none,—
Oh that there were delivered to me, briars and thorns, in battle!
I would march in among them, I would set fire to them [one and all].

Else, let one lay hold of my protection,4
Let him make peace with me,—
<Peace> let him make with me.

<In coming times> shall Jacob [strike root],
Israel shall blossom and bud,|
Then shall they fill the face of the world with fruit.

Was it with the smiting of his smiter that he smote him?
Or as with the slaying of his slayer was he slain?

By driving her away—by dismissing her wouldst thou contend with her?
He removed her by his rough wind, in a day of east wind.

<Therefore> hereby shall a propitiatory-covering be put over the iniquity of Jacob,
And all [this] is the fruit of taking away his sin,—
<When he maketh all the stones of an altar like chalk-stones that soon crumble,> Sacred Stems and Sun Images [shall not arise].

For the fortified city is solitary,
The dwelling forsaken, and left as a wilderness,—

For lo! Yahweh is coming forth out of his place,
To visit the iniquity of earth's inhabitant upon him,—
Therefore shall the earth unveil her shed-blood,
And throw a covering no longer over her slain.

<In that day> will Yahweh
<With his sword—the hard and the great> and the strong |
Bring punishment
Upon Leviathan, the fleeing serpent,
And upon Leviathan, the crooked serpent,—
And will slay the monster which is in the sea.

<In that day> A Wine-Vineyard! sing ye unto her:

||I—Yahweh|| am watching over her,
<Every moment> will I water her,—
<Lest anyone injure her>—
<Night and day> will I watch over her.

<Fury> have I none,—
Oh that there were delivered to me, briars and thorns, in battle!
I would march in among them, I would set fire to them [one and all].

Else, let one lay hold of my protection,4
Let him make peace with me,—
<Peace> let him make with me.

<In coming times> shall Jacob [strike root],
Israel shall blossom and bud,|
Then shall they fill the face of the world with fruit.

Was it with the smiting of his smiter that he smote him?
Or as with the slaying of his slayer was he slain?

ISAIAH XXVII. 11—13; XXVIII. 1—15.

11 There shall the calf feed, and shall consume the branches thereof:
12 When the cut-off boughs thereof are dry, they shall be broken to pieces, and women coming are kindling it!

13 And it shall come to pass in that day that Yahweh will beat off his fruit from the stream of the River, unto the torrent-valley of Egypt, and there shall be picked up, one by one, O sons of Israel.

27. Samaria's Overthrow foretold, the Babble of Ephraim's Drunkards being mimicked in Derision and in Wrath: Jerusalem's Scoffing Rulers denounced; and to them is threatened the founding of a Testing Stone in Zion.

1 Alas! for the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim, and for his fading wreath of majestic beauty,—
2 Like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest,
Like a storm of mighty waters overflowing
Hath he thrust it down to the earth with force:
3 With the foot shall be trodden down> the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim!
4 So shall his fading wreath of majestic beauty, which is on the head of the fertile valley, of them who are overcome* with wine.

7 But whom would he teach knowledge? And whom would he cause to understand the message? Them who are weaned from the milk? taken from the breasts?
8 For it is—
Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line,— A little here, a little there.*
9 For with a jabbering lip, and with an alien tongue must he speak unto this people!
10 To whom he said—
||This|| is the rest—give ye rest to the weary, and ||This|| is the quietness,—
But they were unwilling to hear.
11 So the word of Yahweh must be to them— Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line, A little here, a little there.—— That they may go, and fall backward, and be torn, and snared, and captured.
12 Wherefore I hear the word of Yahweh, ye men who scoff,— Yeast of this people that is in Jerusalem.
13 Because ye have said—
We have solemnised a covenant with death, and with hades have we effected a vision,*
But the repetition and assurance of the short words are intended to set forth mimetically the drunken babble of the scoffers'—Davies H.L.

* Cp. O.G. 352.
11 The overflowing scourge, when it sweepeth by shall not reach unto us, for we have made lying our refuge, and <in falsehood> have we hid ourselves>

12 Therefore <Thus> saith My Lord, Yahweh,* Behold me! founding in Zion, a stone, A stone of testing, * The costly* corner of a well-laid foundation, <He that trusteth shall not make haste> !

13 But I will make — Justice the line, and Righteousness the plummet, — And the hail shall sweep away your refuge of lying, and <your hiding-place> the waters shall overflow; So shall be wiped out your covenant with death, and <your vision> with hades,* Not stand,— When the overflowing scourge: sweepeth past then shall ye be thereby beaten down:

14 As often as it sweepeth past it shall take you away, For <morning by morning> shall it pass along. By day and by night,— And it shall be nothing less than a terror, to make out the message; For too short’ is the couch to stretch oneself out,— And the coverlet too narrow, when one draweth up his feet.'

15 For <as in Mount Perazim,*> will Yahweh arise, <as in the vale of Gibeon> b will he be stirred,— To do his work—foreign’ is his work, And to perform his task—strange’ is his task.

16 Now therefore, do not show yourselves scoffers, Lest your fetters be bound fast,— For <of a fullend, and that a decreed one> have I heard from My Lord Yahweh of hosts, upon all the land.1

§ 28. Practical Wisdom traced to its true Source [added by some to the foregoing section].

Give ear, and hear ye my voice,— Haarken, and hear ye my speech:—

29 All day long doth the plowman plow for sowing? Doth he continue laying open and harrowing his soil?

28 Doth he not <when he hath levelled the face thereof> Cast abroad the fennel? And <the cummin> doth he not scatter! And plant wheat in rows, And barley in a lot, And spelt in the border thereof?

27 Yea, One hath trained him to good judgment, His God || directeth him. For <not with a sledge> must black coriander be threshed, Nor must ||the wheel of a cart || on cummin be turned,

26 ||Bread-corn || must be crushed,— Yet would he not be evermore’ || threshing it, So he hasteneth over it the wheel of his cart, with his horsemen, He crusheth it not!

25 ||Even this|| <from Yahweh of hosts> cometh forth,— Who hath bestowed distinction upon counsel, And magnified sound wisdom.4

§ 29. Alas for Ariel, the Hearth of God ("Mount Zion"); yet shall besieging nations not obtain their Desire.

1 Alas for Ariel, Ariel,* The city against which David encamped,— Add ye a year to a year, Let ||the festivals|| come round; Yet will I bring Ariel into straits,— And she shall become a bewailing wailing, Yes she shall become to me a veritable Hearth of God,* And I will encamp round about thee,— And lay siege against thee with a fort, And raise against thee siege-works;

3 And thou shalt be brought low— <Out of the earth> shalt thou speak, And <out of the dust> shalt thou lower thine utterance,— And <as one that hath a familiar spirit> <Out of the earth> shall come thy voice, And <out of the dust> thy speech shall chirp;

4 Then shall be ||as finedust the multitude of thy foreigners,— And <as chaff that passeth away> the multitude of tyrants; And it shall come to pass, in a twinkling, suddenly.

ISAIAH XXIX. 6—24.

6 From Yahweh of hosts shalt thou be visited,
With thunder, and with earthquake, and a great noise,—hurricane and storm, and a flame of fire devouring;

7 And it shall be like the dream of a night vision, With the multitude of all the nations who have been making war against Ariel,— Even with all who have been making war against her, and her stronghold, and who have been laying siege to her:

8 Yea it shall be <As when the hungry man dreameth', and lo! he is eating, But he awaketh, and his soul is empty>. Or as when the thirsty man dreameth', and lo! he is drinking, But he awaketh, and lo! he is faint, and his soul is craving>

9 §30. Yahweh further complains of his own People for Want of Discernment, for Formality, and unbelieving Perversity; but foretells Better things.

9 Stand ye stock still, and stare, Besmear your eyes, and be blind,— They are drunken, but not with wine, They reel, but not with strong drink:

10 For Yahweh hath poured out upon you a spirit of deep sleep, Yea hath tightly shut your eyes—the prophets,— And <your heads—the seers> hath he covered,

11 And so all' vision hath become unto you, as the words of a writing that is sealed, Which is delivered unto one acquainted with writing, saying, Pray thee, read this, And he saith, I cannot, for it is sealed; And then the writing is delivered to one unacquainted with writing, saying, Pray thee, read this, And he saith, I am not acquainted with writing.

12 Wherefore My Lord hath said,— <Because this people hath drawn near with their mouth, And with their lips> have honoured me, But <their heart> have they moved far from me, And so their reverence of me hath become A commandment of men' in which they have been schooled>া

13 <Or: “eyes,— The prophets and your heads the seers hath he covered.” Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns., Sep., Syr.): “And the prophets,” etc.—G.n. E.O.T.

14 "Therefore‖ behold me! again' dealing wonderfully with this people, doing wonderfully a wonderful thing,— So shall perish |the wisdom of their wise men, And <the intelligence of their intelligent men> shall vanish!

15 Alas! for them who would fain have been too deep for Yahweh, by giving secret counsel,— and therefore <in the dark> have been their doings, and they have said, Who' can see us? and— Who' can understand us?

16 Your perverseness! As if <like clay> the potter could be reckoned; For shall |the thing made| say' of him that made it| He made me not?

17 Or hath <the thing fashioned> ever said |of him that fashioned it| He hath no understanding?

18 Is it not yet' a very little while, And |Lebanon| shall be turned |into garden land|,— And <garden land> |for a forest| be reckoned?

19 Therefore, in that day, shall the deaf hear' the words of a book,"— And <out of gloom and darkness> |the eyes of the blind| shall see;

20 And again' shall the humbled, <in Yahweh> have joy,— And <the needy of mankind> in the Holy One of Israel exult;

21 For the tyrant< of mankind> <in the Holy One of Israel> exulted; And the scoffer |is no more|, Yea cut off’ are all who watch for iniquity:— Who bring a man into condemnation with a rumour, And <for him that decideth in the gate> lay a snare,— And have driven away, for a thing of nought, one who was righteous.

22 <Therefore> saith Yahweh, concerning the house of Jacob, [even he saith it] who redeemed Abraham,— <Not now‖ shall |Jacob| turn pale, And <not now‖ shall their faces whiten; For* <when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in his midst> They will hallow my Name,— Yea they will hallow the Holy One of Jacob, And <the God of Israel> will they regard with awe.

23 Then will they who erred in spirit, comprehend,' And <the murmurers‖ accept instruction.

§ 31. Reliance on Egypt denounced. Yahweh Israel’s true Protection against both Egypt and Assyria.

30 'Alas! for sons who are rebellious.

Declareth Yahweh.

Executing a purpose, but not from me,

And pouring out a libation, but not from my spirit,—

That they may add sin to sin:

Who are setting out to go down to Egypt,

But not asked,—

Betting them to the protection of Pharaoh,

And seeking refuge under the shadow of Egypt.

Therefore shall the protection of Pharaoh become to you a shame,

And the refuge in the shadow of Egypt an insult:

For their princes have been in Zaan, —

And their messengers unto Hanes would draw near.

Every one hath felt ashamed of a people that could not serve them,—

Neither with help, nor with service,

But they are a shame, yea even a reproach.

They would carry, on the shoulders of young asses, their wealth,

And, on the humps of camels, their treasures,

Unto a people that cannot serve them.

But the Egyptians< with vanity and emptiness> would help,—

Therefore have I proclaimed concerning this,

Insolent! they sit still! b

ISAIAH XXX. 21—33; XXXI. 1—5.

21 So shall thine own ears hear a word from behind thee saying,—
This is the way, walk ye therein;
When ye would turn to the right hand,
Or when ye would turn to the left.

22 Then shall ye defile—
The overlaying of thy graven images of silver,
And the coating of thy molten image of gold,—
Thou wilt cast them away, as a woman the token of her sickness,
Begone! shalt thou say thereto.

23 Then will he give—
Rain for thy seed—wherewith thou shalt sow thy ground, and Bread as the increase of thy ground, which shall be fertile and fat,—
Thy cattle, in that day, shall feed in broad pasture:
And the oxen and the young asses that till the ground shall salted provender, which hath been winnowed with shovel or fan.

24 Then shall there be—
On every lofty mountain, and
On every lifted hill,
Channels, Conduits of water,—
In the great day of slaughter.

25 Then shall [the light of the moon] be [as the light of the sun],
And [the light of the sun] shall be [sevenfold; as the light of seven days;—
In the day—
When Yahweh bindeth up the laceration of his people, and
When <the severe wound caused by smiting them> he healeth.

26 Lo! the Name of Yahweh coming from afar,
His anger kindling, a heavy storm,—
His lips are full of indignation,
And his tongue is like a fire that devoureth;
And his breath like an overflowing torrent;
<even unto the neck> doth reach,
To sift nations with a sieve of calamity,—
A bridle leading to ruin being upon the jaws of the peoples.

27 <A song> shall ye have,
As in the night of hallowing a festival,—
And gladness of heart,
As when one goeth with the flute to enter
Into the mountain of Yahweh,
Unto the Rock of Israel.

28 Then will Yahweh [cause to be heard]—
the resounding of his voice,
And the bringing down of his arm shall be seen,
In a rage of anger
And with the flame of a devouring fire,—
A burst and a downpour, and a hailstone!

29 For <at the voice of Yahweh> shall Assyria be crushed,—
<With his rod> will he smite.

30 And it shall come to pass,—that [every stroke of the staff of doom, which Yahweh shall lay upon him] shall be with timbrels, and with lyres,—when [with battles of brandished weapons] he hath fought against them.

31 For there hath been set in order, beforehand, a Topheth,
Yea [the same] <for the king> hath been prepared.
He hath made it deep—made it large,—
The circumference thereof is for fire and wood in abundance,
[The breath of Yahweh] <like a torrent of brimstone> is ready to kindle it.

32 Also! for them who are going down to Egypt shall Assyria for help,
<On horses> would rely,—
And have trusted in chariots—because they are many, and in horsemen, because they are very bold,
But have not looked unto the Holy One of Israel,
And <unto Yahweh> have not sought.

33 But <he also> is wise, and hath brought in calamity,
And <his own words> hath he not set aside,—
Therefore will he rise up Against the house of evil-doers, and Against the help of the workers of iniquity.

34 Now the Egyptians are [men] and not [God],—
And <their horses> [flesh] and not [spirit];
<When Yahweh> shall stretch out his hand> Then he that is giving help shall stumble,
And <he that is receiving help> shall fall, And <together> shall [all of them] vanish!

4 For <Thus> hath Yahweh said unto me—
<Like as a lion or a young lion growleth> over his prey,
Who—though there be called out against him a multitude of shepherds—
Will not [at their voice] be dismayed,
Nor [at their noise] be daunted—
"So will Yahweh of hosts come down, to make war over Mount Zion, and over the hill thereof.

5 <As little mother-birds hovering> will Yahweh of hosts throw a covering over Jerusalem,— [Covering; so will he rescue,
Passing over] so will he deliver!

* Same word as in Deut. vi. 8.
  Heb.: Shemesh.
  Or: "spirit."
  "Crush"—Cheyne P.B.;
Return ye unto him, against whom the sons of Israel have deeply revolted.
For in that day every man shall reject his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—
Which your hands had made for you as a sin!—
Then shall the Assyrian fall by the sword, not of a great man,
And the sword, not of a mean man shall devour him,—
Howbeit he shall take his flight from the face of a sword,
And his young men shall come under tribute;
And his princes shall be dismayed at an ensign,—
Declareth Yahweh.

Who hath a flame in Zion,
And hath a furnace in Jerusalem.

§ 32. An Ideal Reign of Righteousness, with its blessed Results in quickened Intelligence, improved Speech, and rectified moral Judgments; which Reign, however, has not yet come, and the Careless Women may lament over impending Calamity; but, with the Outpouring of the Spirit, it will come, and its gracious Fruits abound. Also, the great Anti-city will be sunk.

32 1 Lo! <in righteousness> shall reign a king,
Yea even princes! <with equity> shall bear rule.
2 So shall each one become' As a hiding-place from the wind
And a covert from the storm,—
As channels of water in a dry place,
As the shadow of a massive cliff in a weary land.
3 And the eyes of them who are ready to see,
shall not be closed;—
And the ears of them who are ready to hear shall hearken;
4 And the heart of the hurried shall take note of knowledge,
And the tongue of stammerers shall make haste to speak plainly.
5 A base man shall no longer be called noble;—
Nor a knave be named liberal;
6 For a base man <with baseness> will speak,
And his heart will practise iniquity,—
Practising profanity,
And speaking, against Yahweh that which misleads her.

Emptying the soul of the hungry,
And <the drink of the thirsty> he causeth to fail;
Yea  his weapons are wicked,—
He <base schemes> hath devised
To ruin the oppressed with speeches of falsehood,
Even when the needy pleadeth for justice.

But  noble things> hath devised,—
And he <upon noble things> will stand.

Ye women in comfort! arise, hear my voice,
Ye daughters so confident, give ear to my speech;—
Some days beyond a year ye shall be troubled, ye confident ones,—
For failed hath the vintage,
No gathering is come in.

Tremble, ye women in comfort,
Be troubled, ye daughters so confident,—
Strip! and bare yourselves, and gird somwhat on your loins:
Upon your breasts  continue smiting:
For desirable fields,
For fruitful vine.

<Over the soil of my people> thorns and briars shall grow,— Yes, over all houses of joy, thou city exultant!
For the palace is abandoned,
The tumult of the city hath ceased,—
Hill and watch-tower: serve as caves, unto times age-abiding,
The joy of wild-asses,
The pasture of flocks:—
Until there be poured out upon us the spirit,
From on high,—
Then shall the wilderness become garden-land,
And the garden-land! <for a forest> be reckoned;
Then shall justice inhabit the wilderness,
And righteousness <in the garden-land> shall abide;
And the yield of righteousness shall be peace,—
And the tillage of righteousness quietness and confidence to times age-abiding;
And my people shall dwell
In a home of peace,—and
In habitations of security, and
In resting-places of comfort.
But it shall hail during the felling of the forest, and shall sink.

How happy are ye who sow beside all waters, who send forth the foot of the ox and the ass.

§33. A Series of Encouragements (probably given to King Hezekiah in view of the Impending Assyrian Invasion), with Glimpses of a King in Beauty, a City in Security, and Inhabitants freed from Sickness.

Alas! thou plunderer, when thou hast not been plundered, and thou traitor, when they had not betrayed thee:

When thou hast ceased plundering thou shalt be plundered, when thou hast left off betraying, they shall betray thee.

O Yahweh! show us favour, for we have waited, be thou their arm every morning, yes our salvation in the time of distress.

At the noise of a tumult the peoples retreated, when thou didst lift thyself up nations were scattered.

Then shall your spoil be gathered as the gathering of the caterpillar, as the swift running of locusts is he about to run upon them.

Exalted is Yahweh, for he inhabiteth a height, he hath filled Zion with justice and righteousness.

So shall a wealth of deliverances wisdom and knowledge become the stability of thy times.

The reverence of Yahweh is the same is his treasure.

Lo! their heroes have cried out openly, when the messengers of peace continue weeping (they say):

The highways are deserted, the passer-by on the path hath ceased, he hath broken covenant, he hath despised cities, he hath made no account of men.

The land mourneth, languisheth, Lebanon (displayeth shame) is withered, Sharon hath become as the waste plain, and Bashan and Carmel are shaking off their leaves.

Now will I arise, Saith Yahweh, now will I lift myself up, now will I be exalted!

Ye shall conceive chaff, ye shall bring forth stubble, your own breath shall devour you.

So shall peoples become as the burnings of lime.

As thorns lopped off with fire shall they be burned.

Hear—ye that are far off, what I have done, and know—ye that are near, my might:

In terror-stricken in Zion are sinners, Shuddering hath seized the impious, whose among us can sojourn with a fire that devoureth? Who among us can sojourn with burnings age-abiding?

He that walketh righteously, and speaketh uprightly, he that refuseth the gain of exactions, that shaketh his hands free from holding a bribe, that stoppeth his ear from hearkening to deeds of blood, that shutteth his eyes from giving countenance to wrong:

He shall inhabit, a stronghold of refuge shall be his, his bread hath been delivered, his waters have been made sure.

Of a king, in his beauty shall thine eyes have vision: they shall see a land that stretcheth afar.

Thy heart may murmur in terror, where is the scribe, where the receiver, where— he that maketh a list of the towers?

The fierce people shall thou not see, the people of too deep a lip to be understood, of too barbarous a tongue for thee to comprehend.

Look thou on Zion, the city of our appointed feast, of Thine own eyes shall see Jerusalem, a home of comfort, a tent which shall not be packed up, whose pins shall not be pulled out, for none of whose cords shall be broken.

They shall behold the land spreading very far forth—G.A.S.
But let there shall Yahweh be our majestic one,
A place of rivers—streams broad on both hands,
Wherein shall go no galley with oars,
Neither shall majestic ship traverse it;
For Yahweh is our judge,
Yahweh is our lawgiver,—
Yahweh is our king.
He will save us!

Loosed are thy ropes,—
They cannot strengthen the socket of their mast,
They have not unfurled a sail,
Now can be apportioned spoil, in abundance,
The lambs have captured prey!
Neither shall the inhabitants say,
I am sick,—
The people who dwell therein have been forgiven iniquity.

§ 34. The Divine Anger against All Nations falls on Edom: The Ransomed of Yahweh return to Zion.

1 Come near, ye nations, to hear,
And, ye races, attend,—
Let the earth hear, and the fulness thereof,
The world, and all things produced therefrom:

2 That Yahweh hath wrath against all the nations, and indignation against all their host,—
He hath devoted them to destruction,
He hath delivered them to slaughter;
And [their slain] shall be cast out,
And [their carcasses] the stench of them shall ascend,—
And [the mountains] shall melt away [with their blood].

Three shall be dissolved all the host of the heavens,
And the heavens [shall roll up as a scroll],—
Yea [all their host] shall fade—
Like the fading and falling of a leaf from a vine, and Like what fadeth and falleth from a fig-tree.

For my sword hath been sated in the heavens, [—]
Lo! <upon Edom> shall it descend,
Even on the people whom I have devoted to justice.

<A sword> hath Yahweh—
Glutted with blood, Sated with fat,—
With the blood of well-fed lambs,* and he-goats,
With the fat of the kidneys of rams,—

For  hath Yahweh, in Bozrah,
Yea a great slaughter, in the land of Edom;
Then shall buffaloes come down with them,
And bullocks with bulls,—
So shall their land be soaked with blood,
And [their dust] with fat shall be enriched.

For  hath Yahweh,—
A year of requitals, for the quarrel of Zion.

Then shall [the torrents thereof] be turned [into pitch],
And [the dust thereof] into brimstone,—
So shall her land become burning pitch:
Neither <night nor day> shall it be quenched,
<To times age-abiding> shall ascend the smoke thereof,—
<From generation to generation> shall it lie waste,
<Never, never> shall any pass through it:
That the vomiting pelican and the bittern [may possess it];
And [the great owl] and the raven dwell therein;
Then will he stretch out over it,
The line of desolation,* and
The plummet of emptiness.4

<Her nobles,> (but none are [there!] <unto royalty> will call,—
All [all her princes] shall become mought.
Then shall come up, in her palaces, [thorns].
Nettles and thistles, in her fortresses,—
And she shall become
A home for wild dogs,
An enclosure for ostriches;

Then shall criers meet with howlers,
And [the shaggy creature] [unto his fellow] shall call,—
Only [there] shall [the night-spectre]
Make her settlement,
And find for herself a place of rest:
<There> shall [the arrow-snake]
Make her nest and lay,
And hatch, and gather under her shadow,—
Only [there] shall be gathered the falcons,* every one with her mate.

Seek ye out of the scroll of Yahweh, and read,
Not one from among them is lacking,
[None] hath missed [her mate],—
For [a mouth] hath [itself] commanded,
And [his spirit] hath [itself] gathered them:
Yea he himself hath cast for them a lot,
And [his own hand] hath given to them a portion [by line],— <Unto times age-abiding> shall they possess it,
<To generation after generation> shall they dwell therein.
35 Wilderness and parched land shall be glad for them,
And the waste plain shall exult and blossom
as the lily.
It shall blossom abundantly and exult,
Yes, with exultation and shouts of triumph.
The glory of Lebanon hath been given to it.
The splendour of Carmel, and Sharon,
They shall see the glory of Yahweh,
the splendour of our God.

5 Strengthen ye the weak hands,—
<The trembling knees> make ye firm:
Say to the hurried in heart,
Be strong, Do not fear,—
Lo! your God shall come,
With the recompence of God,
He doth come to save you.

7 Then shall the glowing sand become a lake,
And the thirsty ground—springs of water,—
In the home of the wild dog—its lair>
Shall be an enclosure for cane and paper-reed.

10 Then it shall come to pass, <in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah> that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up, against all the fortified cities of Judah, and took them.

35. The Invasion of Sennacherib King of Assyria.

36 Now it came to pass, <in the fourteenth year
of King Hezekiah> that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up, against all the fortified cities of Judah, and took them.
2 Then did the king of Assyria send Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem, unto King Hezekiah, with a heavy force,—and he took his stand by the upper channel of the pool, in the highway of the fuller's field.
3 And there went out to him—Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household,—and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder. 4 And Rabshakeh said unto them,

Pray you say unto Hezekiah,—
Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria,
What is this trust, wherewith thou dost trust?
I have said—they are only words of the lips—
Counsel and might [have I] for the war,—
Now! upon whom dost thou trust, that thou hast rebelled against me?
Lo! thou dost trust on the support of this bruised cane, on Egypt, whereon, if a man lean, it will enter his hand, and lay it open,—
So is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who trust upon him.

But if thou shalt say unto me,
<In Yahweh our God> do we trust
Then is that' not he [whose high places and whose altars] Hezekiah hath removed, and said unto Judah and unto Jerusalem,
Before this altar shall ye bow yourselves down?

Now, therefore, pledge thyself, I pray thee, with my lord the king of Assyria,—
That I supply thee with two thousand horses,
If thou, on thy part, be able to set riders upon them;
How then wilt thou turn away the face of one pasha of the least of my lord's servants?
Or hast thou, on thy part, trusted upon Egypt, for chariots and for horsemen? But [now], is it without Yahweh! that I have come up against this land, to destroy it?
Yahweh himself said unto me,
Go thou up against this land, and destroy it!

Then said Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rabshakeh—
Speak, we pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language, for [well can] understand it,—and do not speak unto us in the Jews' language, in the ears of the people who are upon the wall.

But Rabshakeh said—
Is it unto thy lord and unto thee> that my lord hath sent me, to speak these things? Is it not concerning the men who are tarrying upon the wall, that they may eat... and drink what cometh from them, | with you?

13 So then Rabshakeh took his stand, and cried out with a loud voice, | in the Jews' language, | and said,

Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria:

14 "Thus saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you,—for he shall not be able to deliver you.

Neither let Hezekiah cause you to trust in Yahweh, saying, Yahweh [will certainly deliver] us,—this city [shall not be given over] into the hand of the king of Assyria.

16 Do not hearken unto Hezekiah,—for [thus] saith the king of Assyria, Deal with me thankfully, and come out unto me, Then shall ye eat, Every one of his own vine, and Every one of his own fig-tree, And drink, every one the waters of his own cistern:

17 Until I come and take you, into A land like your own land,— A land of corn, and new wine, A land of bread, and vineyards:—

18 Lest Hezekiah [persuade you], saying, "Yahweh will deliver us!"— Wherefore lift thou up a prayer, for the remnant that remaineth.

19 Where' are the gods of Hamath, and Arpad? Where' are the gods of Sepharvaim? | If indeed they had only delivered Samaria, out of my hand! |

20 Who' are they, among all the gods of these countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand? That [Yahweh] should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand!

21 But they held their peace, and answered him not a word,—for <the command of the king> it was, saying,— Ye must not answer him.

22 Then came in—Elia'kim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, unto Hezekiah, with rent clothes,—and they told him the words of Rabshakeh.

23 And it came to pass, <when King Hezekiah heard it> that he rent his clothes, —and covered himself with sackcloth, and entered the house of Yahweh; 2 and sent Eliakim who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth,— unto Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz; 3 and they said unto him,

"Thus saith Hezekiah, <A day of distress and rebuke and reviling> is this day,— For children are come to the birth, and [strength] is there none' to bring forth.

| It may be| that Yahweh thy God will hear' the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria, his lord, hath sent' to reproach a Living God, and will rebuke the words' which Yahweh thy God hath heard,— Wherefore lift thou up a prayer, for the remnant that remaineth.

5 So the servants of King Hezekiah came unto Isaiah. 6 And Isaiah said unto them, "Thus shall ye surely say unto your lord,— "Thus saith Yahweh— Be not thou afraid because of the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled | Me. |

7 Behold me! about to let go against him, a blast of alarm, 8 and <when he heareth the report> then will he return to his own country,—and I will cause him to fall by the sword, in his own land.

8 So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria, warring against Lachish,—for he had heard, that he had broken up from Laehish.

9 And he heard it reported concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, saying, He hath come forth to fight with thee,—so <when he heard it> he sent messengers unto Hezekiah, saying:

10 "Thus saith Hezekiah, Let not thy God, in whom thou art trusting, beguile thee, saying,— Jerusalem shall not be given over | into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Lo! thou thyself! hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the lands, in devoting them to destruction,— and shalt thou be delivered?

12 Did the gods of the nations [deliver them] whom my fathers destroyed,—Gozan, and Haran,—and Rezeph, and the sons of Eden, who were in Telassar?

13 Where' are the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim,— of Hena, and Ivah?

14 And <when Hezekiah had received the letter at the hand of the messengers, and had read it>— then went he up to the house of Yahweh, and Hezekiah [spread it out] before Yahweh. 15 And Hezekiah prayed' unto Yahweh, saying:

16 O Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—inhabiting the cherubim,

| Thou thyself| art GOD 4 even thou alone, for all the kingdoms of the earth: | Thou didst make' the heavens and the earth.

a ML: "eat their excrement and drink their urine." b Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep. and Syr.): "Where then"—G.n.

4a ML: "as far as the cherubim." b Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep., Syr.): "Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep., Syr.): "Where then"—G.n.

4b Or: "enthroned upon the cherubim." c ML: "a spirit"; or simply: "blast." d Heb.: "= "hav-lishim" = the Elohim."
17 Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—and hear, Open, O Yahweh, thine eyes—and see,— Yea hear thou all the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent—to reproach a Living God.
18 Of a truth O Yahweh,— the kings of Assyria have devoted to destruction all the countries, b and their land; 19 and have put their gods in the fire,—for [no-gods] were [they], but the work of the hands of men—wood and stone, and so they destroyed them.
20 Now therefore, O Yahweh our God, save us* out of his hand,— That all the kingdoms of the earth [may know], That [thou] art Yahweh, [thou alone].
21 Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent unto Hezekiah, saying,— [Thus] saith Yahweh, God of Israel, [In that thou hast prayed unto me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria]—
[this] is the word which Yahweh hath spoken concerning him,— The virgin daughter of Zion [laugheth thee to scorn—mocketh thee], The daughter of Jerusalem [after the ell] doth wag her head!—
23 Whom hast thou reproached, and insulted? And against whom hast thou lifted high thy voice?
Yea thou hast proudly raised thine eyes [against the Holy One of Israel].
24 Through thy servants thou hast reproached My Lord, and hast said,— With my multitude of chariots> have I ascended The height of the mountains, The recesses of Lebanon, That I may cut down Its tallest cedars, Its choicest firs, That I may enter Its highest summit, Its thick garden forest:—
25 I have dugged, and drunk waters,— That I may dry up, with the soles of my feet, all the Nile-streams of Egypt.
26 Hast thou not heard— That [long ago] [that] is what I appointed, And <from days of old> devised?—
Now I have brought it to pass, That thou mightest serve to lay waste [in desolate ruins] [fortified cities];—
And [their inhabitants, being powerless] were overthrown, and put to shame,— They became'— Grass of the field, and Young herbage, Grass on house-tops, and Seed parched before it came up.
27 Howbeit <thine abode, and thy coming out and thy going in> I know,—and thy raging [against me].
28 <Because thy raging against me, and thy contempt, have come up into mine ears> Therefore will I put My ring in thy nose, and My bit in thy lips, And will turn thee back, by the way by which thou camest.
29 And [this' unto thee] is the sign, Eating [this year] the growth of scattered seeds, And <in the second year> that which shooteth up of itself,—
Then <in the third year> Sow ye'—and reap, and Plant ye vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.
30 Then shall the escaped of the house of Judah that remain, [again] Take root downward,— And bear fruit upward.
31 For <out of Jerusalem> shall come forth a remnant, And that which hath escaped, [out of Mount Zion],— The jealousy b of Yahweh of hosts will perform [this].
32 [Therefore], [thus] saith Yahweh, concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not enter this city, Nor shoot there an arrow,— Nor attack it with shield, Nor cast up against it a mound :—
33 By the way that he came in— By the same shall he return,— And <into this city> shall he not enter.
34 Thus will I throw a covering over this city, to save it,— For mine own sake, And for the sake of David my servant.
35 Then went forth the messenger of Yahweh, and smote—in the camp of the Assyrians—a hundred and eighty-five thousand,— and <when men arose early in the morning> lo! [they were all] dead bodies!—
36 So Sennacherib the king of Assyria, brake up, and went his way, and returned,—and remained in Nineveh. 37 And it came to pass, <as he was bowing down in the house of Nisroch his god> that [Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons] smote him with the sword, howbeit [they] escaped into the land of Ararat,— and [Esarhaddon his son] reigned [in his stead].

§ 36. Hezekiah’s Sickness—Recovery—and Writing.

38 1 <In those days> was Hezekiah sick unto death,—and Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz, [came in unto him], and said unto him—

Thus saith Yahweh,
Set in order thy house,* for about to die thou art, and shalt not recover.

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face unto the wall,—and prayed unto Yahweh;—and said,—

I beseech thee, O Yahweh, remember, I pray thee, how I have walked before thee, in faithfulness and with an undivided heart, and that which is good in thine eyes have I done.

And Hezekiah wept aloud. Then came the word of Yahweh unto Isaiah, saying:

5 Go, and say unto Hezekiah—

Thus saith Yahweh, the God of David thy father:
I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears,—Behold me! about to add unto thy days*, fifteen years;

And out of the hand of the king of Assyria will I deliver thee, and this city;
And I will throw a covering over this city.

6 And this shall be the sign, from Yahweh,—that Yahweh will do this thing which he hath spoken:—

Behold me! causing the shadow on the steps, which hath come gone down on the steps of Ahaz with the sun, to return backwards ten steps.

So the sun returned ten steps, by the steps which it had come down.

9 The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick, and then recovered from his sickness:

10 And I said—

In the noontide of my days I must enter the gates of hades,—I am deprived of the residue of my years!

I said—

I shall not see Yah, Yah, in the land of the living,
I shall discern the son of earth no longer, with the dwellers in the quiet land.

My dwelling hath been broken up,
And is stripped from me, like a shepherd’s tent,—I have rolled up—as a weaver—my life,
<From the loom> doth he cut me off,
<From day until night> [I said]—
Thou wilt finish me.

13 I cried out, until morning, like a lion,
Thus will he break all my bones!
From day until night,
Thou wilt finish me!

14 <As a twittering swallow> [so] do I chatter,
I too as a dove,—Mine eyes languish’ through looking on high,
O My Lord! distress is upon me—my Surety!

15 What can I say? Since he hath promised for me—

Himself, will perform.
I will go softly, all my years,
Because of the bitterness of my soul.

16 O My Lord! on those things do men live,—And altogether in them is the life of my spirit,
When thou hast strengthened me, and made me live.

17 Lo! for well-being I had bitterness—bitterness,*
But thou <cleaving unto my soul> hast raised me from the pit of corruption,*
For thou hast cast, behind thy back, all my sins.

18 For hades] cannot praise thee.
Nor death; celebrate thee,—
They who go down to the pit cannot wait for thy faithfulness.

19 <The living, the living> [he] can praise thee,
As I do this day,—
A father] to his children] can make known thy faithfulness.

20 Yahweh [was willing] to save me,—Therefore <on my stringed instruments> will we play—
All the days of our life.
By the house of Yahweh.

21 And Isaiah had said,
Let them take a cake of figs, and let them press it over the lintil, that he may recover.

22 And Hezekiah had said—

What is the sign—that I shall go up unto the house of Yahweh?

§ 37. Messengers from Babylon—how treated by the King—Denunciation by the Prophet.

1 <At that time> Merodach-baladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah,—for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick, and had recovered.

2 And Hezekiah rejoiced over them, and showed them his house of precious things—the silver and the gold and the spices and the precious ointment, and all his armoury—and all that was found among his treasures,—there was nothing, which Hezekiah did not show them—in his house, or in all his dominion. Then came Isaiah the prophet, unto King Hezekiah,—and said unto him—

What said these men? and whence came they unto thee?

And Hezekiah said,

<From a land far away> came they unto me, from Babylon!

And he said,

What have they seen in thy house?

Then said Hezekiah,—

<All that is in my house> have they seen, there is nothing which I shewed them not, among my treasures.

Then said Isaiah unto Hezekiah,—

Hear thou the word of Yahweh of hosts:

Lo! days are coming, when all that is in thy house, and that which thy fathers have treasured up until this day, shall be carried away unto Babylon,—nothing shall be left:

Saith Yahweh.

And <of thy sons who shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget> shall they take away,—and they shall become eunuchs, in the palace of the king of Babylon.

And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah,

God' is the word of Yahweh, which thou hast spoken.

And he said,

Surely there shall be peace and stability in my days.

§ 38. A Charge to console Jerusalem by the Announcement of a Fact; for the Realisation of which, however, effectual Preparation must be made. In spite of Human Weakness, the Divine Word will be fulfilled, and the Rule of the Shepherd King be triumphantly inaugurated.

40 1 Comfort ye—comfort ye, my people,—

Saith your God.

2 Speak ye unto the heart of Jerusalem, And cry unto her,—That accomplished is her warfare, That accepted is her punishment,—That she hath received, at the hand of Yahweh, According to the full measure of all her sins.

3 A voice of one crying!—

<In the desert> prepare ye the way of Yahweh,—Make smooth |in the waste plain| a highway for our God:

4 Let every valley |be exalted, And every mountain and hill |be made low,—And |the steep ground| become |level], And |the chain of hills|—a plain:

Then shall be revealed the glory of Yahweh,—And all flesh shall see it together,*

For the mouth of Yahweh hath spoken!

6 A voice saying Cry! And one said—What should I cry; All flesh is grass, And all the grace thereof like the flower of the field:

The grass hath withered |The flower |hath faded, Because |the breath of Yahweh, hath blown upon it!

Surely the people |is grass!|

The grass hath withered |The flower |hath faded,—

But the word of our God shall stand unto times age-abiding!

9 <To a high mountain> get ye up, O herald-band of Zion, Lift high' with strength' your voice, O herald-band of Jerusalem,—Lift it high, do not fear, Say to the cities of Judah—

Lo! your God!

10 Lo! My Lord, Yahweh,—<as a mighty one> doth come, And his own arm is about to rule for him,—Lo! his reward is with him, And his recompense before him; Like a shepherd <his flock> will he tend, <In his own arm> will he take up the lambs, And <in his own bosom> will he carry [them],—<Them which are with young> will he lead to a place of rest.

12 Who' hath measured, |with the hollow of his hand| |the waters|, Or <the heavens with a span> hath meted out, Or hath comprehended |in a measure| |the dust of the earth,| Or weighed |in scales| |the mountains|, Or |the hills| in a balance?

4 Or: "all alike"—O.G. 40b. 5 Or: "hard service." 6 Or: "earnestly." 7 Or: "the double" or "duplicate." 8 Or: "the third of an ephah, or about a third of a bushel."
13 Who hath proved the spirit of Yahweh?
Or, being his counsellor, hath been giving him knowledge?

4 With whom hath he taken counsel—
And he hath given him intelligence,
And instructed him in the path of justice,—
And taught him knowledge,
And <in the way of intelligence> hath been giving him understanding?

13 Lo! nations
Are as a drop on * a bucket,
And <as fine dust on a balance> are accounted,—
And [islands] * like an atom> can he hoist;

16 And Lebanon isnot sufficient to bum, —
Nor lithebeasts thereof!| sufficient for an ascending-sacrifice!

17 All nations are as nothing before him, —
<A thing of nought or a waste> are they accounted unto him?

19 "The image* hath been cast by an artificer,
And ||a goldsmith | with gold | overlayeth it,—

20 <A skilled artificer> seeketh he out for himself, to construct an image d that shall not totter!

21 Have ye never taken note?
Have ye never heard?
Hath it not, from the beginning, lxsen told you?

22 It is he who sitteth upon the circle0 of the earth,
While |the inhabitants thereof| are [as grass-hoppers],—

24 <Scarcely have they been planted,
Scarcely have they been sown,
Scarcely hath their stock [begun to take root in the earth]>

When he hath just blown upon them, and they have withered,
And a whirlwind <as though they had been chaff> carrieth them away.

25 Unto whom then, can ye liken me, or can I be equal? Saith the Holy One.
Who hath wrought and performed,
Calling the generations, in advance!

I, Yahweh, [who am] First,
And <with them who are last>* I am the Same!

Coastlands have seen, so they fear,
The ends of the earth are in dread,—

Every man to his neighbour gives help,—
And <to his brother> saith, Take courage!

So the carver hath encouraged [the goldsmith],
[He that maketh smooth with the hammer],
(Saying of the welding,) It is good!
Then hath he fastened it with nails—it must not totter!

But <thou>, Israel, my Servant,
Jacob, whom I have chosen,—
The seed of Abraham, my loving one;

Thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth,
And <from the extremities thereof> have called thee,—
And said to thee <My Servant> thou!
I have chosen thee, and not cast thee off>
Do not fear, for <with thee> I am !
Look not around, for I am thy God,—
I have emboldened thee,
Yea I have helped thee,
Yea I have upheld thee, with my righteous’ right-hand.

Lo! they shall turn pale and be ashamed—
All they who have been incensed against thee,—
They shall become as nothing and perish—
The men who have been thine accusers:

Thou shalt seek them, but shalt not find them—
The men who have contended with thee,
They shall become as nothing, and as a thing of nought—
The men who have warred against thee;

For ||I, Yahweh, thy God|| am firmly grasping thy right-hand,—
Who am saying unto thee
Do not fear!
||I|| have become thy helper!

Do not fear! Thou worm Jacob,
Ye men of Israel,—
||I|| have become thy helper.

Declareth Yahweh,
And thy redeemer, The Holy One of Israel.

Lo! I have made of thee a new pointed threshing sledge, |owning teeth|,
Thou shalt thresh mountains, and crush them,
And <hills—like chaff> shalt thou make:

18 Thou shalt fan them, and ||a wind|| shall carry them away,
And ||a whirlwind|| scatter ||them||,—
But ||thou|| shalt exult in Yahweh,
And <in the Holy One of Israel> shalt thou boast thyself.*

<As for the oppressed and the needy.:

||Their tongue|| with thirst being parched >
I—Yahweh || will answer them,
<The God of Israel> I will not forsake them:

I will open
||On bare hills|| ||rivers,|| and
||In the midst of plains|| ||fountains||,—
I will make
||The desert|| ||a lake of water||, and
||Parched land|| ||springs of water||;

I will set ||in the desert|
||Cedar, scacia, and myrtle, and oil-tree,||—
I will place ||in the waste plain!
||Cypress, holm-oak and sherbin-cedar, together||

That men may see and observe, and consider and understand ||at once||,
That ||the hand of Yahweh|| hath done this,
That ||the Holy One of Israel|| hath created it.

Bring near your contention,
Saith Yahweh,—
Advance your defences,
Saith the King of Jacob:

Let them advance them, and tell us, What shall happen,—
<Things known in advance— what they were> tell ye,
That we may lay them to our heart, and mark the after-story of them,
Or <things yet to come> let us hear:
Tell ye the events which shall be hereafter,
That we may perceive that <gods> ye are',— Surely ye must do something—good or bad,
That we may be amazed, and behold it ||at once||.

Lo! ||ye|| are ||of nought||,
And ||your work|| is ||a puff of breath||,—
<An abomination> he that chooseth you!

I have roused up one from the North, and he hath come,
<From the rising of the sun> calleth he on my Name,—
And he hath come ||on deputies|| ||as though they were mortars||,
And ||as a potter| treadeth |clay||.

* Or: “win applause,” “win for thyself praise.”
26 Who hath told in advance, that we might know, And beforehand, that we might say Right! Nay, there is none' who can tell, Nay, there is none' who can let us hear, Nay, there is none' who can understand what ye utter.

27 He who is First:[c] can say] To Zion, Lo! there they are! And to Jerusalem, <A herald of good-tidings> do I give. So I look, And there is not, a Man! Even among these! And there is none'to advise,— That <when I ask them> can answer a word. Lo! <as to all of them> <Vanity—nothingness> are their works, <Wind and emptiness> their molten images!

§ 41. The Mission of Jacob, broadly viewed as Yahweh's Witnesses, resumed: with numerous diverging and converging Details — Divine Predictions calling for Song, Divine Inactivity boldly reversed, Divine Irony on Idolaters, Divine Foresight pointedly claimed, Divine Favour richly bestowed; Jacob's Experiences recorded, his Blindness, Sins, Sorrows, Shame, Captivities, Deliverances. The name "Cyrus" suddenly announced.

42 Lo! <my Servant> I will uphold him, <My chosen> well-pleased' is my soul,— I have put* my spirit upon him. <Justice—to the nations> will he bring forth: He will not cry out, nor will he speak loud,— Nor cause to be heard [in the street] his voice: <Cane that is crushed> will he not break, <And wick that is fading> will he not quench,— <Faithfully> will he bring forth justice: He will not fade, nor will he be crushed, Until he establish [in the earth] justice!, And <for his instruction> [Coastlands] wait.)

5 Thus saith God himself ... Yahweh, — <Creator of the heavens, that stretched them forth, Out-spreader of earth, and the products thereof,— Giver of breath to the people thereon, And of spirit to them who walk therein> I— Yahweh! have called thee in righteousness, And will firmly grasp thy hand,— And will keep thee, And give thee— As the covenant of a people, As the light of nations:

8 |<am Yahweh, that is my Name,— And my glory!| to another> will I not give, Nor my praise! |to images|. ... <Things told in advance> lo! they have come to pass,— And <new things> am I're telling, <Ere yet they spring forth> I let you hear them. Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new, |His praise! from the end of the earth,— Ye that go down to the sea, and the fulness thereof, The Coastlands, and ye who dwell therein. Let the wilderness [shout], and the cities thereof, The villages, wherein dwelleth Kedar,— Let the inhabitants of the crag, raise shouts of triumph, <From the top of the mountains> let them cry aloud: Let them render |unto Yahweh| [glory], — And <his praise> [in the Coastlands] let them tell.

9 |Yahweh! |as a hero| goeth forth, <As a man of war> he stirreth up jealousy,— He giveth a cry, yes he raiseth a war-cry, <Over his foes> he showeth his strength.

10 § 42. The Mission of Jacob, broadly viewed as Yahweh's Witnesses, resumed: with numerous diverging and converging Details — Divine Predictions calling for Song, Divine Inactivity boldly reversed, Divine Irony on Idolaters, Divine Foresight pointedly claimed, Divine Favour richly bestowed; Jacob's Experiences recorded, his Blindness, Sins, Sorrows, Shame, Captivities, Deliverances. The name "Cyrus" suddenly announced.

11 I have held my peace from age-past times, I kept still, I restrained myself,— <As a travelling woman> I pant, I breathe hard and gasp. |all at once|! I will lay waste mountains, and hills, And <all their vegetation> will I wither,— And I will make |rivers| to be |shores|, And <lakes> will I dry up: Thus will I lead the blind, by a way they know not, <In paths they know not> will I guide them,—
I will make |the place that was dark before them| to be |light|.
And |crooked| ways, to be |straight|.
<These things> have I done* unto them,
And have not forsaken them.

They have drawn back
They turn very pale
Who have been trusting in a graven image,†
Who have been saying to a molten image,*
Ye deaf, hear!
And ye blind, look around that ye may see!
Who is blind, if not my Servant?
Or blind, like an intimate friend?
Or blind, like the Servant of Yahweh?

Who have been trusting in a graven image,†
Who have been trusting in a carved image.‡
Ye are our gods!

Who is deaf, hear!
And ye blind, look around that ye may see!
Who is deaf, like my messenger whom I send?‡
Who is blind, like an intimate friend?
Or blind, like the Servant of Yahweh?

Seeing many things > yet thou heedest not,
Opening the ears, yet he*^ heareth not.

Yahweh* is well-pleased for his own righteousness' sake,
He magnifieth instruction* and maketh it majestic.¢
But [that is] a people preyed upon and plundered,
Snared in holes, |all of them|,
And |in houses of restraint| |concealed|, —
They have become a prey, and there is none to deliver, —
A booty, and there is none to say — Restore!

Who among you will give ear to this,—
Let him hearken and hear |for an aftertime|?
Who gave (as a booty) |Jacob|.
And |Israel| to whom were ready to take prey?
Was it not |Yahweh|?
|He against whom we have sinned;|
And they were not willing |in his ways| to walk.‡
Neither hearkened they to his instruction?h
So he hath poured out |upon him|
|The glow of his anger|, and
|The strength of battle|;
And it hath set him aflame round about, yet he knoweth it not,
And it hath kindled upon him, yet he layeth it not to heart.

Now, therefore,
Thus saith Yahweh—
Creating thee, O Jacob, and Fashioning thee, O Israel,—
Do not fear,
For I have redeemed thee,
I have called thee by thy name,
Mine thou art!*

I—Yahweh|| am Your Holy One,—
The Creator of Israel, Your King.

22 Yet <not upon me> hast thou called, O Jacob,—
For thou hast been wearied of me, O Israel : Thou hast not brought in to me small cattle as thine ascending-offerings, Nor <with thy sacrifices> hast thou honoured me,— I have not oppressed thee with meal-offerings,
Nor have I wearied thee with frankincense ;
Thou hast not bought for me, with silver,

Nor <with the fat of thy sacrifices> hast thou sated me,— Thou hast done nothing but oppress me with thy sins,
Thou hast wearied me with thine iniquities.

26 Put me in mind.

27 Thy chief father | hath sinned,—
And ||thine interpreters|| have transgressed against me ;
So then I must needs profane the rulers of the holy place,—
And deliver [Jacob] to be devoted to destruction, and [Israel] unto reviling !

1 Now then— hear, —
We Jacob my Servant,—and Israel, whom I have chosen :

2 Thus saith Yahweh—
Who made thee and formed thee from birth,
Who helpeth thee : Do not fear, O my Servant Jacob, and Jeshurun, ||whom I have chosen :

3 For I will pour Water upon the thirsty soil, and Floods upon the dry ground,—
I will pour My spirit upon thy seed, and My blessing upon thine offspring ;

Lo! [all his partners] turn pale,
Even [the artificers themselves] are of the sons of earth,—
Let them gather themselves together—all of them!,
Let them take their stand,
Let them dread, and turn pale | together|.*

<As for the smith, [with his] cutting-tool—
<When he hath wrought in the live coals,
And | with hammers | hath fashioned it,—
And hath wrought it with his strong' arm>
Anon' he is hungry, and hath no' strength,
He hath drunk no water, and so hath become faint!

<As for the carpenter—>
He hath stretched out a line, hath drawn it with a pencil,
Hath made it with carving tools,
<With compasses> hath rounded it,—
And so hath made it after the figure of a great man,
After the beauty of a son of earth, | that it may remain in a house|!

When one was cutting him down cedars>
Then took he a holm-tree, and an oak,
And secured them for himself, among the trees of the forest,—He planted a fir-tree, and the pouring rain made it grow;
So it serveth for a man to burn,
And he hath taken of [the branches]e and warmed himself,
Also' he kindleth a fire, and baketh bread,—
Also' he maketh a god, and hath bowed himself down,
Hath made of it a carved image,d and adored it :

Adoreth it, and boweth down, and prayeth unto it,
And saith,
Deliver me, for |my god| thou art!'

They have not taken note, neither can they perceive,—
He hath besmeared—past seeing—their eyes,
Past understanding, their hearts;

And no one reflecteth*—
There is neither knowledge nor discernment —to say,
<Half thereof> have I burned up in the fire.
Moreover also' I have baked | on the coals thereof| ||bread|;
I roasted flesh, and have been eating,—

And he cannot deliver his own soul, nor say,
Is there not a falsehood in my right hand?

Remember these things, O Jacob,
And |Israel|,—for |my Servant| thou art,—
I have fashioned thee, ||a Servant of mine| thou art.'

O Israel,* thou shalt not be forgotten of me.
I have wiped out, As with a thick cloud, | thy transgressions|,
And as with a broad cloud | thy sins',—

§ 43. The Divine Commission of Cyrus more fully declared.

11 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, to his Anointed, to Cyrus—
Whose right hand I have firmly grasped,
To subdue, before him, | nations, |
And <the loins of kings> will I ungird,—
To open, before him, | the two-leaved doors, |
And |the gates| shall not be shut:
I <before thee> will go,
And |the hills| will I break in pieces,
And |the bars of iron| will I cut asunder;
Then will I give thee
The treasures of darkness,
Even the hoards of hidden places,—
That thou mayest get to know
That I—Yahweh, who am calling thee by thy name|| am the God of Israel.
12 <For the sake of my servant Jacob,>
Even Israel my chosen:
Therefore have I called unto thee by thy name,
I give thee a title though thou hast not known me,—
I am Yahweh, and there is none else,
I gird thee, though thou hast not known me:
That men may get to know,
From the rising of the sun,
And from the west.
That there is none besides me,—
I am Yahweh, and there is none else:
Forming light, and creating darkness,
Making prosperity, and creating misfortune,—
I—Yahweh|| who doeth all these.

§ 44. The Unfolding of the Divine Plans quickens the Desire for the Victory of Righteousness and Salvation. Men may not dictate to the Most High. He who created the World, called Cyrus, and decreed the Destiny of Israel—not in vain. He may seem to hide himself; yet shall Idolatry be silenced, Israel be saved, Salvation be tendered to Earth's Ends, and every Knee bow to him.

8 Let the drops fall, ye heavens, from above,
Yea, let | the skies| pour down righteousness,—
Let the earth open, and let them bear as their fruit—deliverance,
And let | justice| spring forth therewith,
I—Yahweh|| have created it.

9 Alas for him who contendeth with his Fashioner,—
A potter|| should contend | with the potsherds of the ground! |

10 Alas for one who saith to a father,
What begettest thou:
Or to a woman,
What dost thou bring forth?
11 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh
The Holy One of Israel
And his Fashioner,
<As to things to come> they have asked me,
<Concerning my sons and concerning the work of my hands> they would command me:
I made the earth,
And | man upon it | I created,—
I—mine own hands| stretched out the heavens.
And <all their host> I commanded:
I have roused him up in righteousness,
And <all his roads> will I level,—
He shall build my city,
And | my captives| shall he let go,
Not for price, nor for bribe!

12 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
The produce of Egypt and the gain of Ethiopia, and the Sabeans, men of great stature:
Unto thee> shall come over.
And thine> shall they become,
After thee shall they become,:
In chains shall they come over,—
And unto thee shall they bow down,
And unto thee shall they pray [saying],—
Surely in thee is a God,
And there is none else—no; God!

13 |Surely| || thou|| art a God utterly hiding thyself,—
O God of Israel, able to save!

14 They have turned pale and |even been put to shame| all of them,—
Together have they gone into disgrace, have the makers of images:
Israel hath been delivered by Yahweh, with an age-abiding deliverance,—
Ye shall neither turn pale nor he put to shame, unto the ages of futurity‖.

Himself established it, . . .

§ 46. Babylon's dire Degradation, for her Delicacy, ruthless Cruelty, boastful Self-confidence, and wicked Idolatries.

Down—and sit in the dust: O virgin, Daughter of Babylon, Sit on the ground— throneless, Daughter of the Chaldeans; For thou shalt no more be called Tender and Dainty.

Take millstones, and grind meal,— Put back thy veil— tuck up thy train, Bare the leg, wade through streams:
Bared' shall be thy shame, Yes' seen' thy reproach,—
An avenging will I take, And will accept no son of earth.

Our Redeemer | Yahweh of hosts | is his name! The Holy One of Israel.

Sit silent, and get into darkness, Daughter of the Chaldeans! For thou shalt no more be called, Mistress of Kingdoms.

I had been provoked with my people, Had profaned mine inheritance, And given them into thy hand, . . . Thou shewest them no compassion, Upon the elder madest thou very heavy' thy yoke.

And thou saidst, Unto times age-abiding> shall I be Mistress,— Insomuch that thou laidest not these things to thy heart, Didst not keep in mind the issue thereof.

Now therefore, hear this, Thou Lady of pleasure, Who dwelleth securely, Who saith in her heart,— I am, and there is no one besides,* I shall not sit a widow, Nor know loss of children.

Yet shall there come to thee—both these, in a moment, in one day, Loss of children and widowhood,—

Lo! they have become as straw— a fire hath burned them up, They shall not deliver their own soul from the grasp of the flame,— There is no live coal to warm them, nor blaze to sit before! Such have they become to thee, with whom thou hast wearied thyself,— Thy merchants — from thy youth! will [every man] stagger [straight onwards]— There is none to save thee.

§ 47. Unworthy Members of the House of Jacob addressed with stern Remonstrance and Lamentation; then with Invocation and Encouragement.

Hear ye this— O house of Jacob, Ye who call yourselves by the name of Israel, Yea <from the waters* of Judah> came they forth,
ISAIAH XLVIII. 2—22.

Who swear by the name of Yahweh,
And, by the God of Israel, call to remembrance—
||Not in truth, nor in righteousness!;

For of the holy city do they call themselves,
And on the God of Israel do they call themselves.—

||Yahweh of hosts is his name.

Things in advance of old I declared,
Yea, out of mine own mouth came they forth,
That I might let them be known,—

Suddenly I wrought, and they came to pass.

Because I knew that—
||Obstinate thou want'—
And a sinner of iron was thy neck,
And thy brow, brass>

Therefore told I thee— in time past,
Ere yet it came I let thee hear,—
Least thou shouldst say—

Mine idol wrought them,
Yea, my carved image and my molten image commanded them!

Thou hast heard—see it whole,
And will I, not tell?
I have let thee hear new things— from the present time,
Even secrets, which ye knew not.

Now are they created, and not in time past,
And before to-day thou hast not heard of them,— Least thou shouldst say. Lo! I knew them!

Nay! thou hast not heard,
Nay! thou hast not known,
Nay! in time past [thine ear] was not opened,—
For I knew that thou wouldst be treacherous,
Yea, a transgressor from birth hast thou been called.

For I knew that mine hand founded the earth,
And my right hand stretched out the heavens,—

While I was calling unto them, they stood forth [at once].

Assemble yourselves— all of you, and hear,
Who among them hath told these things?
He whom Yahweh loveth will execute—
His pleasure, on Babylon,
And his stroke on the Chaldeans.

I— I have spoken,
Yea, I have called him,—
I have brought him in, and he shall make prosperous his way.

Draw ye near unto me— hear ye this,
Not in advance, in secret have I spoken,
From the very time it cometh into being, there am I,—
And now [My Lord Yahweh] hath sent me, and his spirit.

Thus saith Yahweh—
Thy Redeemer. The Holy One of Israel,—
I— Yahweh am thy God,
Teaching thee to profit,
Guiding thee in the way thou shouldst go.

Oh! that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments,—
Then had been [like a river] thy prosperity,*
And thy righteousness, like the waves of the sea:

Then had been [like the sand] thy seed,
And the offspring of thy body] like the grains thereof,—
Neither cut off nor destroyed] had been his name from before me.

Come ye forth out of Babylon,
Flee from among the Chaldeans,
<With triumphant voice> tell ye—let this be heard,
Let it go forth as far as the end of the earth,—
Say ye—
Yahweh hath redeemed his servant Jacob!

And they thirsted not, when through dry places he led them,
Waters out of the rock caused he to flow out to them,—
Yea he cleft a rock, and there gushed out waters.

No well-being, saith Yahweh, to the lawless!"
§ 48. Yahweh's Servant himself speaks; though in the Name of "Israel," yet also as a Restorer of the Tribes, as Abhorred of his own Nation, and as a Covenant for his People. The Return of Captives, with Songs of Triumph, being thus ensured, bereaved Zion is comforted and Enlarged, and a mysterious Rightful Tyrant-Captor is despoiled.

1 Hearken, ye Coastlands, unto me, And give ear, ye peoples afar off,—
\section{[6]} Yahweh called me [from my birth],*<From my nativity>b made he mention of my name; And he made my mouth, like a sharp sword, <In the shadow of his hand> he concealed me,— And made of me a polished arrow, <In his quiver> he hid me; And said to me ||My Servant thou art,— [6] Israel in whom I will get myself glory.

4 But ||I|| said,"<To no purpose> have I toiled,<For waste and mist—my vigour> have I spent,— Surely my vindication is with Yahweh, And my recompence with my God.| |

5 ||Now|| therefore, saidb Yahweh—<Fashioning me from birth To be Servant to him, To restore Jacob unto him, And that Israel unto him might be gathered. And I be honourable in the eyes of Yahweh, And my God be proved to have been my strength.>

6 Yea he said— It is too small a thing, for being my Servant, That thou shouldest raise up the tribes of Jacob, And the preserved of Israel shouldst restore, So I will give thee to become a light of nations, That my salvation may reach as far as the end of the earth.

7 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, <To him that is despised of the soul, To the abhorred of the nation, To the servant of rulers> ||Kings|| shall see and arise, ||Princes|| lo! they have bowed themselves down,— Because of Yahweh, who is faithful, The Holy One of Israel, lo! he hath chosen thee.

8 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—<In a time of acceptance> have I answered thee, <In a day of salvation> have I helped thee,— That I may preserve thee, And give thee as the covenant of a people,* To establish the land, To bring into possession the desolate heritages;

9 Saying To them who are bound, Go forth, To them who are in darkness, Shew yourselves,—<By the roads> shall they graze, And <on all bare places> shall be their pastures: They shall neither hunger, nor thirst, Nor shall smite them the glowing sand, or the glaring sun,— For he that hath compassion upon them will lead them, And <unto springs of water> will he conduct them.4

10 Then will I make of all my mountains, a road, And my highways shall be upraised.

11 Lo! these <from afar> shall come in,— And lo! these <from the North and from the West, And these <from the land of Sinim,>*

12 Shout in triumph—O heavens! And exult—O earth! And break forth, ye mountains, into shouts of triumph,— For Yahweh hath comforted his people,* And <on his humbled ones>b taketh he compassion.

13 But Zion had said, Yahweh hath forsaken me,— Even My Lord hath forgotten me!

15 Can [a woman] forget [her sucking child],
Past taking compassion on the son of her womb?
[Even these] may forget,
Yet will [I] not forget [thee]:
16 Lo! <on the palms of my hands> have I portrayed thee,—
Thy walls are before me continually.
In haste are thy sons,—
They who have been tearing thee down and laying thee waste [out of thee] let them go forth!
Lift up, round about, thine eyes, and see,
All those have gathered themselves together — have come to thee!
<As I live> Declareth Yahweh,— Surely <all those—as an ornament> shalt thou put on,
And bind them about thee for a girdle, as a bride.
Surely <as for thy wastes, and thy desolations, and thy land of ruins> now shalt thou be too strait for thin inhabitants,
And <far off> shall be they who have been swallowing thee up.
The children of whom thou wast bereaved [shall yet] say in thine ears, —
<Too strait for me> is the place.
Make room for me, that I may settle down.
Then shalt thou say in thy heart,—
Who hath borne me [these],—
Seeing [I] have been bereaved, and unfruitful, a captive and banished?
[These] therefore, who' hast brought them up?
Lo! [I] was left [alone],
'These' where were [they]?
Surely <thus> saith My Lord, Yahweh:—
Lo! I will lift up, unto nations, my hand,
Yea [unto peoples] wilt I raise high my banner, —
And they shall bring in thy sons in their bosom,
And [thy daughters] on the shoulder shall be borne;
And [kings] shall be [thy foster-fathers],
And [their queens] [thy nursing mothers],
<With face to the ground> shall they bow down to thee,
<The dust of thy feet> shall they lick,—
So shalt thou know that [I] am Yahweh,
In that they shall not be put to shame;
[Who were waiting for me].
Shall prey be taken from a mighty one?
Or [the captive of one in the right] be delivered?

§ 49. Were Israel’s Restoration a Mere Question of Power, it might easily be accomplished; but No! — and Yahweh’s Servant is heard narrating his Sufferings, and proclaiming his Confidence of Vindication. From his Story let all Godly Sufferers learn to trust, and all Self-Glorifiers take warning.

1 Where then is the scroll of your mother’s divorce, whom I have put away?
Or [which of my creditors] is it, to whom I have sold you?
Lo! [for your iniquities] have ye been sold,
And [for your transgressions] hath your mother been put away.

2 Wherefore —
<When I came in> was there no one?
<When I called> was there none to answer?
Is mine own hand really shortened [that it cannot redeem]?
Or is there not [in me] strength, to deliver?
Lo! [by my rebuke] I dry up the sea,
I make rivers a desert,
Their fish Stinketh, for want of water,
Yea dieth, for thirst:

3 I clothe the heavens with gloom,
And [of sackcloth] make I their covering.

4 [My Lord, Yahweh] hath given unto me the tongue of the instructed,
That I should know how to succour the fainting, with discourse,
He kept wakening — morning by morning,
He kept wakening mine ear,
To hearken as do the instructed;

5 [My Lord, Yahweh] opened mine ear,
And [I] was not rebellious,—
Away turned I not:

25 Surely [thus] saith Yahweh—
Even the captive of the mighty one shall be taken away,
And [the prey of the tyrant] shall be delivered;
And [thine oppressors] will oppose,
And [thy children] will save;
Then will I feed thy tormentors with their own flesh,
And <as with new wine—with their own blood> shall they be drunk,—
So shall all flesh [know] that [I] am thy Saviour,
And [thy Redeemer] is the Mighty One of Jacob.

665
6 <My back> gave It to smiters, and <My cheeks> to them who pulled out the beard,—
<My face> hid I not' from insult and spitting.
7 <Because [My Lord, Yahweh] would help me>
Therefore was I not deterred by insult,—
Therefore did I set my face like flint, And I knew' that I should not be put to shame.
8 [At hand] is one who can justify me, Who' will contend with me? let us stand forth together,—
Who’ can accuse me? let him draw near to me!
9 Lo! [My Lord, Yahweh] will help me, Who’ is he that should prove me lawless?
Lo! [they all] <as a garment> shall fall to pieces,
The moth shall consume them.
10 Who’ among you, revereth Yahweh,
Hearkening unto the voice of his Servant,—
That hath walked in dark places,
And hath had no gleam of light?
Let him trust in the name of Yahweh, And lean upon his God.
11 Lo! <all ye that kindle a fire,>
That gird yourselves with fiery darts,—
Walk ye in the blaze of your own fire,
And in the fiery darts ye hav'kindled,
<At my hand> hast this befallen you, <In sorrow> shall ye lie down.

§ 50. Yahweh again comforts his People.
51 1 Hearken unto me,
Ye that pursue righteousness,
Ye that seek Yahweh,—
Look well unto the rock whence ye were hewn.
And unto the quarry whence ye were digged:
2 Look well unto Abraham your father,
And unto Sarah who gave you birth,—
For he was alone when called I him,
And I blessed him, that I might make him [many].
3 For Yahweh hath comforted' Zion,
He hath comforted all her waste places,' And hath made her wilderness like Eden,
And her waste plain like the garden of Yahweh,— [Joy and gladness] shall be found in her,
Thanksgiving, and the voice of melody.'

† Or: "Who hath a case against me?" Ml.: "Who owneth my judgment or sentence?"
‡ Or (with stronger emphasis on the "Who"): "Who will prove me lawless?" Cp. O.G. 216, 4, b.
§ Or: "all you, players with fire. Kinders of fire is the literal rendering.

4 Attend unto me, O my people, And [O my nation!] unto me] give ear,—
For instruction] [from me] shall go forth, And [my justice—for a light of peoples] will I establish:
5 At hand’ is my righteousness, Gone forth’ hath my salvation, And [mine own arms]][ unto the peoples] shall give justice,—
<Upon me> |Coastlands] shall wait,' And [for mine arm] shall they hope.
6 Lift up—to the heavens—your eyes,
And look around to the earth beneath,
<Though the heavens—like smoke'should have vanished>
And [the earth—like a garment] should fall to pieces,
And [her inhabitants: in like manner should die’> Yet my salvation] unto times age-aliding] shall continue,
And [my righteousness] shall not be broken down.
7 Hearken unto me, ye who discern' righteousness,
The people in whose heart is my law,]'— Do not fear the reproach of frail men,
Nor <at their revilings> be dismayed;
8 For <like a garment> shall they be eaten of the moth,
And <like wool> shall they be eaten of the larva;
But [my righteousness] unto times age-aliding] shall continue,
And [my salvation] unto the remotest generation.

§ 51. Yahweh's Arm invoked by the Memory of its Past Deeds and in Joyful Assurance of the Result. The Divine Voice of Comfort is again heard. The Prophet himself expostulates with his afflicted People and delivers a further Divine Message.

9 Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of Yahweh,
Awake. As in days of old,
The generations of bygone ages:
Art not thou' that which—
Hewed down Rahab,
Piercing the Crocodile'\b
10 Art not thou' that which dried up—
The Sea,
The waters of the mighty Deep,—
That which made of the abysses of the sea' a road for the passing over of the redeemed?

* Or: "Law" is revelation" — O.G.
* Or: "take notice of." A. B. Davidson (Temple Bible).
* Or: "mine instruction." Ml.: "unto the generation of generations."
* Or: "cause to settle down": "As symbol of Egypt" — Davies H.I.
Therefore shall the ransomed of Yahweh again come unto Zion, with shouts of triumph,*
With gladness age-abiding on their head,—
Joy and gladness shall overtake [them],
Sorrow and sighing [have fled away].

I—III am he that comforteth you,—Who art thou that thou hast feared Frail man that dieth, and
A son of the earthborn who as grass shall be delivered up?
That thou hast forgotten Yahweh thy maker, Who stretched out the heavens
And founded the earth,
That thou hast dreaded continually, all the day, by reason of the fury of the oppressor, in that he was ready to destroy?
Where’ then is the fury of the oppressor?
The captive hath hastened to be loosed,—That he might not die in the pit.
Neither should [his bread] be cut off.
But I—Yahweh am thy God, Who threw into confusion the sea, And the waves thereof roared,—Yahweh of hosts is his name. Therefore have I put my words in thy mouth,
And <with the shadow of my hand> have I covered thee,—To plant the heavens, and To lay the foundations of the earth, and To say unto Zion,
<My people> thou art! Rouse thee—rouse thee, stand up, O Jerusalem, Who hast drunk, at the hand of Yahweh his cup of indignation:<The goblet-cup of confusion> hast thou drunk—hast thou drained.
There is none to guide her, Among all the sons she hath borne,—There is none to grasp her hand, Among all the sons she hath brought up.
<Twain> are the things befalling thee, Who will lament for thee? Wasting and destruction, and famine and sword,
By whom shall I comfort thee?
<Thy sons> have fainted, They lie at the head of all the streets, like a gazelle in a net,—Who, indeed, are full of The indignation of Yahweh, The repute of thy God.
|Therefore| hear, I pray thee, [this], thou humbled one,—And drunken, but not with wine:—

* Cp. chap. xxxv. 10.
   Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns., Syr.) both read and write: "who"—G.n.
   "And sorrow . . . shall flee away!"—G.n.

Thus saith Thy Lord Yahweh, Even thy God who pleadeth the cause of his people:—
Lo! I have taken, [out of thy hand] the cup of confusion,—
<As for the goblet-cup of mine indignation> Thou shalt not again drink it, any more;*
But I will put it into the hand of thy tormentors, Who said to thy soul, Bow down that we may pass over,—And so thou didst place, as the ground, thy back, Yea, as the street, to such as were passing along.

§ 52. Zion rolled upon to clothe Herself with Strength and Beauty, and shake herself from the Dust of her Captivities; to enjoy Redemption by a Price more precious than Silver; to acknowledge the Name of her lately reviled God as that of a now Present, Speaking King, at last Returned to Zion; as Welcome Heralds proclaim, Comenting Watchmen attest, and her own Songs celebrate. Out of Bondage, then! Yahweh waits to become your Vanguard and Rear-guard.

Awake, awake. Put on thy strength, O Zion,— Put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem—thou holy city, For there shall not again come into thee any more the ununcircumcised and unclean.
Shake thyself from the dust, arise—sit down, O Jerusalem,— Loosethyself from the bonds of thy neck, O captive! daughter of Zion!
For thus saith Yahweh, <For nought> ye sold yourselves,—And <not with silver> shall ye be redeemed. *
For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, <To Egypt> went down my people at first, to sojourn there,— But <Assyria> hath oppressed him.
<Now> therefore, what do I here? Demandeth Yahweh. That my people have been taken away for nought? [They who rule them] do howl, Declareth Yahweh, And <continually—all the day> is my Name brought into contempt.
|Therefore| shall my people acknowledge my Name: [Therefore] <in that day> shall they acknowledge that [I] am the same, even I who am speaking,— [Here I am]*

* This then must be Israel's final deliverance. Or: "shall ye redeem yourselves."
* Written: "yourselfs"; In some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns., Syr.) both written and read: "thyselv"—G.n.
* Or: "Behold me!"
698 ISAIAH LII. 7—15; LIII. 1—8.

7 How beautiful, upon the mountains, are the feet—
Of him
That bringeth good tidings,
That publisheth peace,
That bringeth good tidings of blessing,
That publisheth salvation,—
That saith unto Zion,
Thy God hath become king!.

The voice of thy watchmen!
They have uplifted a voice,
Together do they renew the shout of triumph,—
For ye shall see,
When Yahweh returneth to Zion.*

8 Break forth, shout in triumph, together, ye waste places of Jerusalem,—
For Yahweh hath comforted his people,*
Hath redeemed Jerusalem:
Yahweh hath bared his holy arm,*
in the eyes of all the nations.*
So shall all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God.

9 Away! away! come forth from whence!—
Nought unclean may ye touch,—
Come forth out of her midst,
Purify yourselves, ye who are to carry the vessels of Yahweh;

10 For ye shall come forth,
Nur by flight shall ye journey,—
For your van-guard is Yahweh,
And your rear-guard the God of Israel.*

§ 53. Yahweh’s Servant disclosed, first and last, as an Exalted Conqueror, but intermediately as a Sufferer; even at first, however, with an allusion to his Marred Appearance, and at last with his Death regarded as the cause of his Victory.
At the beginning and end of this Prophecy, the Voice is plainly that of Yahweh himself; but at lii. 1 the Voice changes, and sounds like that of Israel in changeful Moods propounding her conflicting Thoughts about the Sufferer: as if a final Generation had taken up—in order to resolve and correct—the Doubts and Mistakes of their Ancestors. (Cp. Intro. Chap. II. 11.)

13 Lo! my Servanth | prospereth,—
He riseth, and is lifted up, and becometh very high:

14 The more that Many | were amazed at thee|
So marred, beyond any man’s, was his appearance,—
And his form, beyond the sons of men>

15 The more doth he startle Many nations, Before him have kings closed their mouth,—
For that which had not been related to them have they seen,
And that which they had not heard have they diligently considered.

1 Who believed what we have heard?
And <the arm of Yahweh> to whom was it revealed?

2 When he came up as a sapling before
him,
And as a root-sprout out of dry ground>—
He had neither beauty nor majesty,—
When we beheld him there was nothing to behold, that we should desire him;

3 Despised was he, and forsaken of men,
Man of pains, and familiar with sickness,— Yes <like one from whom the face is hidden>—
Despised, and we esteemed him not.

4 Yet surely! <our sicknesses> ||he|| carried,
And <as for our pains> he bare the burden of them,—
But ||we|| accounted him stricken,
Smitten of God, and humbled.4

5 Yet ||the|| was pierced for transgressions that were ours, was crushed for iniquities that were ours,—
||The chastisement for our well-being|| was upon him,
And <by his stripes> there is healing for us.

6 ||We all|| <like sheep> had gone astray,
<Every man—to his way> had we turned,—
And ||Yahweh|| caused to light upon him
The guilt of ||us all;||

7 ||Hard pressed||—yet ||he|| humbled himself,
Nor opened his mouth—
As ||a lamb|| <to the slaughter> is led,
And ||a sheep;|| <before her shearsers> is dumb—
Nor opened his mouth.

8 ||By constraint and by sentence|| was he taken away,
And <of his age> who considered
That he was cut off out of the land of the living,||
For my people’s transgression did the stroke fall on him?

And appointed with lawless men was his grave,
And with the wicked his tomb;—
Though no violence had he done,
Nor was guile in his mouth.

Yet ||Yahweh| purposed to bruise| him,
He laid on him sickness;—
If his soul become an offering for guilt
He shall see a seed,
He shall prolong his days,—
And ||the purpose of Yahweh| in his hand| shall prosper:
Of the travail of his soul shall he see,
He shall be satisfied with his knowledge,
A setting right, when set right himself shall my Servant win for the Many,
Since of their iniquities ||he| taketh the burden.

Therefore will I give him a portion in the great,
And the strong shall he proportion as spoil,
Because he poured out to death, his own soul,
And with transgressors let himself be numbered,—
Yes ||he| <the sin of Many> bare,
And <for transgressors> interposed.*

§ 54. In Strains of exquisite Tenderness Yahweh of Hosts addresses the Nation he purposes to Renew and Restore. The Wife put away shall come back—for ever.

54 1 Shout in triumph. O barren one,
Who hadst not borne,—
Break forth into shout of triumph—and thrill thy voice,
Who hadst not travailed in birth,
For ||more|| are the children of the Desolate,
Than the children of Her who had the husband! Saith Yahweh.

Enlarge the space of thy tent,
And the curtains of thy habitations let them spread forth, do not spare,— Lengthen thy cords,
And <thy tent-pins> make thou fast;—

For <on the right hand and on the left> shalt thou break forth,—
And ||thy seed|| shall ||of the nations> take possession,
And <forsaken cities> shall they cause to be inhabited.

Do not fear, for thou shalt not turn pale,
Neither feel disgraced, for thou shalt not be put to the blush,—
For <the shame of thy youth> shalt thou forget,
And <the reproach of thy widowhood> shalt thou remember no more:
For <thy husband> is ||thy Maker|,
Yahweh of hosts| is his Name,—
And <thy redeemer| ||the Holy One of Israel|,
The God of all the earth> shall he be called.

For <like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit> hath Yahweh| called thee|,—
<Even the wife of youthful days> in that day thou wast rejected,— Saith thy God.

For  I forsook thee,—
But <with abounding compassions> do I embrace thee:
In an overflow of vexation I hid my face, b for a moment, from thee,
But <with lovingkindness age-abiding> have I had compassion on thee,— Saith thy Redeemer, Yahweh.

For <the waters> of Noah> is this unto me,—
As to which I aware that the waters of Noah should not again pass over the earth>
So have I sworn.
Not to be vexed with thee,
Nor to rebuke thee.
For ||the mountains| may move away,
And ||the hills| may be shaken,—
But ||my lovingkindness| <from thee> shall not move away,
And ||my covenant of peace|| shall not be shaken,
Saith he who hath compassion upon thee—Yahweh.

O thou humbled one, storm-tossed, |uncomforted|,—
Lo! ||I am about to set, in antimony, thy stones,
And will found thee in sapphires;—
And make rubies, thy battlements,
And thy gates, sparkling stones,—
And all thy boundaries, stones of delight;
And ||all thy children| shall be the instructed of Yahweh,—
And ||great| shall be the prosperity of thy children.

O am about to set, in antimony, thy stones,
And will found thee in sapphires;—
And make rubies, thy battlements,
And thy gates, sparkling stones,—
And all thy boundaries, stones of delight;
And ||all thy children| shall be the instructed of Yahweh,—
And ||great| shall be the prosperity of thy children.

Rich must mean 'wicked,' just as poor often means 'godly'—A. B. Davidson (Temple Bible). "Proud or violent, Mi. vi. 12; prob. also in Is. llii. 9—Devin's R.L."

"Crush"—O. G.

"Or: "made him sick"— "bruising him sorely"—O. T. 318.

The translator has here very cautiously commenced an indentation, to suggest the question, whether what follows is not an indirect Divine Soliloquy as to the reasons by which the strange procedure is justified:
That Yahweh should have purposed to lay on his own approved "Servant" the iniquity of others,—of us all." The Divine Reasoner is first referred to in the third person (ver. 10), then (ver. 11) says, "My Servant," and (ver. 12) assumes the mighty, self-revealing I." With this victorious climax of suffering, the Suffering Servant disappears; or appears again only as gracious Proclaimer (lxvi.); or terrible Avenger (lixilii.). Henceforth the formation of a New Israel become the leading theme.

"Mi.: 'the husbanded one.'

Some cod., reading one word instead of two w. Aram., Syr. and Vul.) have: "Like the days of Noah . . . when"—Gn.
11 <In righteousness> shalt thou be established,—
Be thou far from oppression—
But indeed thou shalt not fear,
And from crushing calamity—
But indeed it shall not come nigh unto thee.

15 Lo! I have created the smith, who bloweth up a fire of coals,
And who bringeth forth an instrument for his work,—
And I have created the waster to destroy:
No instrument formed against thee shall prosper,
And <every tongue that riseth against thee in judgment> shalt thou prove to be lawless,—
This is the inheritance of the servants of Yahweh,
And [their righteousness] is [from me],
Declareth Yahweh.

55 Gospel Preaching here begins, as well it may; but the Prophetic Needle holds true to the Pole of the National Hope.

55 1 Ho! every one that thirsteth!
Come ye to the waters,
Yes he that hath no money,—
Come ye—buy corn, and eat,
Yes come—buy corn [without money],
And [without price] [wine and milk];
Wherefore should ye spend Money, for which that is not bread?—
Or your labour, for that which satisfies not?
Keep on hearkening unto me,
And so eat that which is good,
And let your soul [take exquisite delight in fatness]:
Incline your ear, and come unto me,
Hearken, That your soul [may live],—
That I may solemnise for you a covenant age-abiding,
The Lovingkindness to David, well-assured.

4 Lo! <As a witness to the peoples> have I given him,—
<As a leader and commander> to the peoples:
Lo! <A nation thou shalt not know> shalt thou call,
And a nation which hath not known thee! <unto thee> shall run,—
For the sake of Yahweh thy God,
And for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath adorned thee.

6 Seek Yahweh, while he may be found,—
Call ye upon him, while he is near:
Let the lawless forsake his way,
And the man of iniquity, his thoughts,
And let him return unto Yahweh,
That he may have compassion upon him,
And unto our God,
For he will abundantly pardon.

9 For [higher] are the heavens than the earth,—
[So] [higher] are [My ways] than [your ways], and [My thoughts] than [your thoughts].

10 For <as the rain and the snow descend> from the heavens
And <thither> do not return,
Except they have watered the earth,
And caused it to bring forth and bud,—
And given seed to the sower, and bread to the eater>
[So] shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth,
It shall not return unto me void,—
But shall accomplish that which I please,
And shall prosper in that whereunto I have sent it.

12 For <with gladness shall ye come forth,
And <in peace> shall ye be led,—
The mountains and the hills shall break out, before you, into shouts of triumph,
And [all the wild trees] shall clap their hands:
[Instead of the thorn-bush] shall come up the fir-tree,
And [instead of the nettle] shall come up the myrtle-tree,—
So shall it become, unto Yahweh, a Name,
[A Sign age-abiding, which shall not be cut off].

56 On the deep and broad Foundation of Right-doing, All Mankind exorted to build; and especial Messages of Encouragement are sent to Foreigners and Eunuchs. Yahweh's House of Prayer designed for all Peoples.

1 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Observe ye justice.
And execute righteousness,—
For [near] is My salvation, to come in, and My righteousness to be revealed.
ISAIAH LVI. 2—12; LVII. 1—7.

2 How happy the frail man, who doeth this! Yea, the son of the earth-born who firmly graspeth it! Keeping the sabbath, lest he profane it, and Keeping his own hand, from doing any wrong.

3 And let not the son of the foreigner, who hath joined himself unto Yahweh, speak* saying, Yahweh will separate me from his people! Neither let the eunuch (say), I am a tree dried up!

4 For thus saith Yahweh— Of the eunuchs, Who shall keep my sabbaths, And choose what I delight in,— And lay firm hold on my covenant > That I will give unto them — In my house, And within my walls. A sign and a name, better than sons and daughters, — A name age-abiding will I give him, which shall not be cut off.

5 And (as for the sons of the foreigner— Who have joined themselves unto Yahweh. To wait upon him, and To love the name of Yahweh, To become his servants. — Every one who keepeth the sabbath, lest he profane it, And who layeth firm hold on my covenant > Surely I will bring them into my holy mountain, And make them joyful in my house of prayer, || Their ascending-offerings and their sacrifices being accepted upon mine altar,— For my house — shall be called, for all the peoples!

6 Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Who is gathering the outcasts of Israel: — Yet others will I gather unto him. Besides his own gathered ones.

§ 57. Corrupt Rulers and Teachers sternly denounced.

7 All ye beasts of the field! come ye, to devour, All ye beasts in the forest.

8 Or: "think." *Or (transferring both as propernames): "Adonay, have: " upon"—G.n. One school of Masoretites have: "upon"—O.n.

9 | His watchmen| are blind, |None of them| know, |All of them| are dumb dogs, they cannot bark,— Dreaming, sleeping, loving to slumber.

10 | His watchmen| are blind, |None of them| know, |All of them| are dumb dogs, they cannot bark,— Dreaming, sleeping, loving to slumber.

11 And (the dogs) are greedy,* they know not to be satisfied. Yea, they are shepherds, who know not to discern,— All of them < unto their own way > have turned, Every man to his unjust gain, on every hand:

12 Come ye! I will fetch wine, Let us fill ourselves with strong drink,— And < like this day > shall to-morrow be— Great beyond measure!

§ 58. Calamity impending, as a Punishment of gross (pre-exilic) Idolatry; but the high and holy Inhabitant of Futurity, who longs to heal, encourages the Repentant.

1 ||The righteous one|| hath perished, And not a man hath taken it to heart, b— Yea, the men of loving-kindness have been withdrawn, No one considering, That <from the presence of calamity> hath the righteous been withdrawn.

2 He entereth into peace, Let them rest upon their couches,— Each one who went on a straight path.

3 But |ye| draw near hither. Ye sons of divination,— Ye seed of an adulterer, when [your mother] committed unchastity! Against whom would ye disport yourselves? Against whom would ye widen the mouth, and lengthen the tongue,— Are not ye Children of transgression, A Seed of falsehood.*

5 Who inflame yourselves With the terebinths, Under every green tree,— Slaying the children In the torrent-valleys, Under the cliffs of the enraged:

6 <Among the smooth stones of the torrent-valley> is thy portion, ||They ||are thy lot; ||Even to them> hast thou Pour out a drink-offering, Caused to ascend a gift. ||Over these things> can I cease to grieve? <On a mountain high and uplifted> hast thou set thy couch,— <Even thither> hast thou gone up, to offer sacrifice;
And <behind the door and the post> hast thou set thy symbol,*
For <with another than me> hast thou uncovered thyself and gone up—
Hast widened thy couch,
And hast solemnised for thyself a covenant from them,
Thou hast loved their couch, a sign hast thou seen;
And hast gone to the king* with oil,
And hast multiplied thy perfumes,—
And hast sent thy messengers afar,
And ... lowered thyself as far as hedges!

<With the length of thy journey> thou wast weariest,
Thou didst not say, Hopeless!
The reviving of thy power thou didst find,
For this cause hast thou not become sick.
Whom then hast thou been anxious about, and feared, that thou shouldst speak falsely,
When thou rememberest not, carest not for me?
Did not I keep silence, even from age-past times,
Although <me> thou wouldest not fear?
I will expose thy righteousness,—
And thy works—but they will not profit thee!

<When thou makest outcry> let thy gathered throngs deliver thee!
But <all of them> shall
A wind catch up—A breath take away!
Whereas he that seeketh refuge in me shall inherit the land,
And possess my holy mountain.

And one said—
Cast ye up—cast ye up, prepare ye a way,—
Lift the stumbling-block out of the way of my people.*

For thus saith he that is high and lifted up—
Inhabiting futurity,*
And holy is his name:
A high and holy place will I inhabit,
Also with the crushed and lowly in spirit,*
To revive the spirit of the lowly, and
To revive the heart of them who are crushed;—

For <not age-abidingly> will I contend,
<Nor perpetually> will I be wroth,—
For spirit <before me> would faint,
Even the breathing soul* which I had made.

<Because of his iniquitous gain> was I wroth—and smote him,
Hiding myself* that I might be wroth,—
But he went on, turning aside in the way of his own heart.

<His ways> have I beheld,
That I might heal him,—
And guide him,
And restore consolations to him, and to his mourners:
Creating the fruit of the lips—
Prosperity! Prosperity!
For him that is far off, and for him that is near,
Saith Yahweh,*
So should I heal him.
But <all> are like the sea when tossed,—
For <rest> it cannot!
But its waters toss out mire and dirt.
No well-being, saith my God,* to the lawless.*

§59. More Probing of the Sins of the People:
Hypocritical Fasting exposed and denounced:
Acceptable Fasting encouraged by most gracious Promises.

Cry aloud! do not spare,
Like a horn lift high thy voice,—
And declare.
To my people, their transgression, and
To the house of Jacob, their sins.

Yet <me—day by day> do they seek,
And <in the knowledge of my ways> they delight,—
Like a nation that had done righteousness,
And <the justice of their God> had not forsaken
They ask of me the just regulations,*
In approaching God they delight.

Wherefore have we
Fasted, and thou hast not seen?
Humbled our soul,* and thou wouldst take no note?
Lo! <in the day of your fast> ye take pleasure,
But <all your toilers> ye drive on!
Lo! <for strife and contention> ye fast,
And to smite with the fiat of lawlessness,—
Ye shall not fast as to-day,
To cause to be heard, on high, your voice!

A day for the sor of earth to humble his soul?
And to let the crushed go free, and
That ye may <vomit> out the yoke?

Is it not to break, unto the hungry, thy bread,
And to let the hungry into a home,—
When thou seest one naked > that thou cover him,
And from thine own flesh shalt not hide thyself?

Then shall break forth, as the dawn, thy light,
And thy new flesh shall grow;—
Then shall go, before thee, thy righteousness,
The glory of Yahweh shall bring up thy rear.

If thou remove, out of thy midst,
The yoke;—
The pointing of the finger, and
The speaking of iniquity;—
And shall let thine own soul go out to the hungry,
And <the soul of the oppressed> thou shalt satisfy—
Then shall break forth, in darkness, thy light,
And [thy thick darkness] as the splendour of noon;
Then will Yahweh guide thee continually,
And will satisfy, [even] in scorched regions,
Thine own soul,
You shall become, like a garden well-watered,
And like a spring of water, whose waters do not deceive;—
And they who come of thee shall build the wastes of age-past times,
And shall rear them up,—

So shalt thou be called—
A Repairer of broken walls,
A Restorer of paths leading home.

If thou turn back,
From the sabbath, thy foot;—
From doing thine own pleasure, on my holy day,—
And shalt call—
The sabbath. An exquisite delight,
The holy day of Yahweh. A day to be honoured,
And so shalt honour it, rather—
Than do thine own ways,
Then speak [thine own] word>—

Then shalt thou rest thine own exquisite delight upon Yahweh, . . .
And I will cause thee to ride over the high places of the land,—
And will feed thee with the inheritance of Jacob thy father,
For the mouth of Yahweh hath spoken.

The Darkness deepens; and the Catalogue of Sins unfolds its alarming Length—the Sins being first charged upon the People, then confessed by the People, together with their deplorable Results. At length, Yahweh himself interposes to avenge: repaying his Enemies in the West and in the East. He cometh in like a pent-up River, driven on by the Breath of Yahweh. A Redeemer comes for such as repent in Jacob; who are brought into a Perpetual Covenant, by which the Redeemer's Spirit and Words abide with them for ever.

Lo! the hand of Yahweh is not too short to save,— Neither is his ear too heavy to hear.
But your iniquities have become separators betwixt you and your God, and your sins have caused a hiding of face from you, that he should not hear.
For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity,—
Your lips have spoken falsehood, and your tongue muttereth perversity.
None sueth in righteousness, and None pleadeth in faithfulness,—
Men are trusting in confusion. And speaking vanity, Conceiving wickedness. And bringing forth iniquity.

Viper's eggs do they hatch,
Spider's threads do they weave,—
He that eateth of their eggs dieth,
And [that which is crushed] bringeth forth an adder;
Their threads shall not become a garment,
Neither shall they cover themselves with their fabrics,—
Their fabrics are fabrics of iniquity,
Yea the product of violence is in their hands;
Their feet do run,
And they speed to shed innocent blood,—
The way of well-being have they not known,
And there is no justice in their tracks,—
None who treadeth therein knoweth well-being.

For this cause hath justice removed far from us,
And righteousness overtooketh us not,—
We wait for light, But lo! darkness,
For brightness, In thick darkness we walk:
We grope, as blind men, for a wall,
Yea do we grope,—
We have stumbled, at broad noon, as though it were twilight,
In desolate places, like the dead!
We growl like bears, all of us,
And do we mournfully cool,—
We wait For justice, and there is' none,
For salvation, it is far from us!
For our transgressions have multiplied before thee,
And have witnesses against us,—
Our transgressions are with us,
And we acknowledgment them:
Transgressing, and denying Yahweh,
And turning away from following our God,—
Speaking oppression and revolting,
Conceiving, and muttering from the heart, words of falsehood.
So then there hath been a driving back of justice,
And afar off standeth,—
For truth hath stumbled in the broad-way,
And cannot enter;
And hath been found missing,
And he that hath turned away from wrong is liable to be despoiled.
And when Yahweh looked >
Then was it grievous in his eyes, that there was no' justice:

<When he saw that there was no' mighty man>
Then was he astonished, that there was none to interpose,—
So his own arm brought him salvation,
And <his own righteousness> the same upheld him;
And he put on Righteousness as a coat of mail,
And a helmet of victory upon his head,—
And he put on the garner ends of avenging, for clothing,
And wrapped about him, as a cloak,— Jealousy! >
<According to their deeds> will he repay,
Indignation to his adversaries,
Recompense to his enemies,—
To the Coastlands—recompense will he repay:
That they may revere,—
From the West, the name of Yahweh,
And from the Rising of the Sun, his glory.

For he will come in like a rushing stream,
The breath of Yahweh driving it on;
So shall come in, for Zion, a Redeemer,
Even for such as are turning from transgression in Jacob,—
Declareth Yahweh.
And <as for me> shall be my covenant with them,
Saith Yahweh:
My spirit that is upon thee,
And my words which I have put in thy mouth, —
Shall not be taken out of thine mouth—
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed,
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed,
From henceforth even unto times age-abiding.

Arise, shine:—a Call to Zion to dispel the deep Gloom of the Nations.
Arise—shine.
For thy light [hath come],—
And the glory of Yahweh on thee hath beamed;
For lo! darkness covereth the earth,
And deep gloom the peoples,—
But on thee beareth Yahweh,
And his glory on thee is seen.

So shall nations come to thy light,
And kings, to the brightness of thy dawning.
Lift up—round about—thine eyes, and see,
They all have gathered themselves together—have come to thee,—
[Thy sons] [from afar] shall come,
And thy daughters [on the side] shall be carried.
Then shalt thou see, and be radiant,
And thy heart shall throb and be enlarged;
For there shall be turned upon thee the fulness of the sea,
The riches of the nations shall come unto thee;
Then shalt house be radiant,
And thy heart shall throb and be enlarged,
For there shall be turned upon thee the fulness of the sea,
The riches of the nations shall come unto thee;
Surely for me shall Coastlands wait,
And the ships of Tarshish first, To bring in thy sons, from far,
Theirs silver and their gold with them,— Unto the name of Yahweh thy God, And unto the Holy One of Israel, Because he hath adored thee.
So shall the sons of the foreigner build thy walls,
And their kings shall wait upon thee,—
For in my vexation I smote thee, But in my favour have I had compassion upon thee.
So shall thy gates be open—continually,
Neither day nor night shall they be shut,— That they may bring unto thee the riches of the nations, And their kings shall led.
For the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish, — Yea the nations shall be utterly wasted I!
The glory of Lebanon! unto thee shall come, The fir-tree, the holm-oak, and the sherdon-cedar together. To adorn the place of my sanctuary, And the place of my feet will I make glorious.
Then shall come unto thee, bending low, The sons of them who had humbled thee,
Then shall bow down, unto the soles of thy feet, All they who had despised thee; And they shall call thee— The city of Yahweh,
The Zion of the Holy One of Israel. <Instead of thy being forsaken and hated, so that none' used to pass through thee> I will make of thee— An excellency age-abiding, The joy of generation after generation.
And thou shalt derive sweet nourishment from the nations, Yes <on the bounty of kings> shalt thou be sustained, — So shalt thou know— That I, Yahweh, am thy Saviour, and That thy Redeemer is the Mighty One of Jacob.
<Instead of bronze> I will bring in |gold|, and <Instead of iron> I will bring in |silver|, and <Instead of wood> |bronze|, and <Instead of stones> |iron|,
And I will appoint the oversight of thee to Prosperity, And the setting of thy tasks to Righteousness.
Violence shall no more be heard |in thy land, Wasting nor destruction, within thy boundaries,— But thou shalt call Thy walls ||Victory|| and Thy gates Praise.
Thou shalt not more have |the sun |for light by day, Neither <for brightness> shall the moon give light unto thee,— But |Yahweh| shall become |thine age-abiding light|,
And |thy God| ||thine adorning||,—
So shall be ended |the days of thy mourning.
And <thy people| shall |all of them| be righteous,
<To times age-abiding> shall they possess the land,—
The sprout of mine own planting,
The work of mine own hands,— That I may get myself glory.
The little one shall become a thousand, and The small one a mighty nation:
I—Yahweh! <in its own season> will hasten it.

§ 62. The Voice of an Anointed Proclaimer is heard, narrating his Commission, and foretelling the Glad Results of its Fulfilment: moving Israel to Song.

61 § 1. The voice of My Lord Yahweh is upon me,—

Because Yahweh hath anointed me to tell good tidings to the oppressed, a Hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, To proclaim—

|To captives| liberty, |
|To them who are bound| the opening of the prison;| c

To proclaim—
The year of acceptance of Yahweh, and The day of avenging of our God: d
To comfort all who are mourning;
To appoint unto the mourners of Zion—
To give unto them,
A chaplet instead of ashes, The oil of joy instead of mourning, The mantle of praise instead of the spirit of dejection,—
So shall they be called,
The oaks of righteousness, The plantation of Yahweh:
That he may get himself glory.

Then shall they build the wastes of a bygone age,
<The desolations of former times> shall they raise up,—
And they shall build anew—
The cities laid waste, The desolations of generation after generation.

Then shall strangers stay' and feed your flocks,—
And the sons of the foreigner shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers.

But [you] shall be called,
<The attendants of our God> shall ye be named,—
The riches of the nations shall ye eat, And <in their glory> shall ye boast yourselves.

<Instead of your shame>—[double]! and <[Instead of] disgrace> they shall shout in triumph over their portion,— [Therefore] <in their own land> shall they possess [double],
[Joy age-abiding] shall be theirs.

6 Or: "humbled.
6 Or: "an opening" (<of prison-doors"—understood). See G.n. and Lexicon. Cp. also chap. xlii. 7; xlix. 9.
7 "Yahweh's year for accepting, Our God's day for avenging." Note that the avenging is assigned to a day.
"Dimness"—G.A.S. Same word as for "fading," chap. xlii. 8.
9 May break into glory"—G.A.S.
8 Or: "And their glory shall ye make your own."

8 For I—Yahweh| am a lover of justice, Hating plunder, for an ascending - sacrifice,— Therefore will I give their reward with faithfulness, And <an age - abiding covenant> will I solemnise for them.
9 Then shall be [known among the nations] their seed, And [their offspring] in the midst of the peoples;—
[All who see them] shall acknowledge them, That [they] are the seed that Yahweh hath blessed.
10 I will [greatly rejoice] in Yahweh, My soul shall exult' in my God, For he hath clothed me, with the garments of salvation,< With a robe of righteousness> hath he enwrapped me,—
As a bridegroom adorneth himself with [a chaplet],
And as a bride bedecketh herself with [her jewels].
11 For <as the earth>; bringeth forth her bud, And as [a garden] causeth [her seeds] to shoot forth>
[So] [My Lord, Yahweh] will cause to shoot forth
Righteousness and praise before all the nations.

§ 63. Intercession offered and invited on Jerusalem's behalf.

1 <For Zion's sake> will I not hold my peace,
And <for Jerusalem's sake> will I not rest,—
Until her righteousness go forth as brightness, And [her salvation] as a torch that is lighted.

2 So shall nations see' thy righteousness,* And all kings, thy glory;
And thou shalt be called by a new name, which <the mouth of Yahweh> will name.*

3 Then shall thou become—
A crown of adorning, in the hand of Yahweh, and A royal diadem, in the hand of thy God.

2 So shall nations see' thy righteousness,* And all kings, thy glory;

3 Then shall thou become—
A crown of adorning, in the hand of Yahweh, and A royal diadem, in the hand of thy God.
Thou shalt be termed no longer—
Forsaken,*
Nor shall [thy land] be termed any longer,
A desolation,
But [thou] shalt be called
Hephzibah [= “My delight is in her”],
And [thy land].
Beulah [= “married”]; —
For Yahweh hath found delight in thee,
And [thy land] shall be married.
For [a young man] marrieth [a virgin],
Thy sons [marry thee]!
And [the bridegroom] rejoiceth over [the bride]—
Thy God [rejoiceth over thee].

<Upon thy walls, O Jerusalem> have I appointed watchmen,
<All the day and all the night through> let them not hold their peace,—
O ye that put Yahweh in mind,b
Do not take rest [to yourselves],
Neither give rest unto him,*
Until he establish, and until he set forth Jerusalem, as a praise in the earth!
Sworn' hath Yahweh—
By his own right hand, and
By his own strong' arm,— Surely I will give thy corn, no more, as food to thine enemies,
Nor shall the sons of the foreigner drink' thy new wine, for which thou hast toiled;
But [they who have garnered it] shall eat it, and praise Yahweh,—
And [they who have gathered in its clusters] shall drink it, in my holy' courts.a

Pass ye through, pass ye through the gates,
Prepare ye the way of the people;c—
Cast ye up, cast ye up the highway,
Clear it of stones,
Lift ye high a standard’ unto the peoples.
Lo! [Yahweh] hath sent a message unto the end of the earth:
Say ye to the daughter of Zion,
Lo! [thy Salvation] is coming,—
Lo! [his reward] is with him,
And [his recompense] before him.*

So shall men call them—
The holy' people,
The redeemed of Yahweh,—
And [thou shalt be called—
Sought out,
A city [not forsaken].

§64. An Avenging Redeemer suddenly appears, coming in from Edom, where he has trodden down Israel's Enemies in the Winepress of Divine Wrath. (Cp. Ps. cxxxvii. 7; chaps. xiii., xiv., xxiv.; Jer. xlix. 19 with l. 44; Obad.; Mi. iv. 9—v. 5.)

1 Who is this' coming in from Edom.
With bright-red garments, from Bozrah? This' made splendid* in his raiment, Marching on* in the greatness of his strength?*
[II speaking in righteousness. Mighty* to save.
Wherefore' is there red, on thy raiment,—
And thy garments, as of one treading in a wine-trough?

3 <A winepress>* have I trodden [alone],
And <of the peoples> there was no' man with me.
So I trod them down, in mine anger,
And trampled upon them, in mine indignation,—
And their life-blood[ besprinkled my garments,
And <all mine apparel> I defiled;
4 For [a day of avenging] was in my heart,
And [the year of my redeemed] had come.*
Therefore looked I around, and there was none to help,—
And I was astonished, that there was none to uphold,—
So [mine own arm][b ] brought me salvation,]
And <mine indignation>[b ] the same; upheld me;
6 Then trod I down peoples, in mine anger,
And make them drunk, with mine indignation,
And brought down to the earth their life-blood.m

§65. Israel recalls her past Mercies, and bases on them a Prayer for Deliverance from her present forsaken and ruined Condition.

7 <The lovingkindness of Yahweh> will I recall.
The praises of Yahweh[ will I recall.
According to all that Yahweh hath bestowed upon us],—

<“Fig. of blood, gore”>—O.G., Cp. ver. 6.
For “day” and “year,”—cp. chap. lxi. 2.
O: “victory.”
Some cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns.) have: “righteousness,” instead of “indignation”). Cp. chap. lxi. 16—O.G.
Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram.) : “brake them in pieces.”
"shivered them”—O.G.
ML: “their grape-juice.”

Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram.) : “brake them in pieces.”
"shivered them”—O.G.
Even the abundance of goodness to the house of Israel, Which he bestowed upon them—
According to his compassions, and
According to the abundance of his loving-kindness.

Therefore he said—
Surely <my people> they are',
<Sons> they will not act falsely!
So he became their saviour.

Then were recalled the days of the age-past time.
Where is he that led them up out of the sea,
with the shepherds of his flock?
Where is he that put within him, his Holy Spirit?
That caused to go at the right hand of Moses his own majestic arm,— Cleaving the waters from before them.
To make himself an age-abiding name:
Causing them to go through the roaring deeps,—
Like a horse through the wilderness,
That they should not stumble?

Look thou down, out of the heavens, and see,
Out of the high abode of thy holiness and of thy majesty,—
Where are thy jealousy, and thy mighty deeds?—
The resounding of thy yearning affection, and thy compassions towards me are they restrained?
For thou art our father,
Though Abraham knew us not,
And Israel could not acknowledge us,—
Thou, O Yahweh art our father,
Our Redeemer from the Age-past time is thy name.

Wherefore shouldst thou suffer us to wander, O Yahweh, from thy ways!
Wherefore shouldst thou let us burden our heart past revering thee?
Return thou, for the sake of thy servants,
The tribes thou thyself hast inherited.

For a short time only did thy holy people hold possession,—
Our adversaries trod down thy sanctuary!
We have become like those Over whom <from age-past times> thou hast not ruled,
Who have never been called by thy name!

Would that thou hadst rent the heavens, hadst come down,
<At thy presence> had [mountains; quaked]:
<As fire kindleth' brushwood,
[As] fire causeth water to boil>
[So] <if thou wouldst make known thy Name to thine adversaries>
<At thy presence> [nations] would tremble.

When thou didst fearful things, we could not expect:
Thou camest down, <at thy presence>
<mountains; quaked>.

<Although from age-past times It was never heard,
It was not b perceived by the ear,—
Neither did [the eye] ever see—
That [a god besides thee] could work for the man who waited for him>
Yet didst thou meet Him who was rejoicing and working righteousness,
Even them who <in thy ways> remembrèd thee,—
Lo! [thou] hast been vexed;—
And truly we had sinned,
<Among them> was [the prospect of] an age [to come],
That we might be saved.

But we have become as one unclean all of us,
And <as a garment polluted> were all our righteous doings,—
And so we faded like a leaf all of us,
And [our iniquity] <as a wind> carried away;
And there was none
To call upon thy Name,
To rouse himself to lay firm hold on thee,—
For thou hadst hidden thy face from us,—
And hadst made us despond, by means of our iniquity.†

ISAIAH LXIV. 8—12; LXV. 1—14.

8. But [now] O Yahweh, [our father] thou art,—
   [We] are the clay, and [thou] art our potter,
   Yes <the work of thy hands> are [we all];
9. Do not be indignant, O Yahweh, so very greatly,
   Neither <perpetually> do thou recall iniquity,—
   Lo! look around, we pray thee . . . [thy people] are [we all].
10. [Thy holy] cities have become a wilderness,— [Zion]  hath become,
    [Jerusalem] a desolation!
11. [Our holy] and [our beautiful] house,
    Where our fathers praised thee:,
    <A smoke in my nostrils>,
12. <In view of these things> wilt thou restrain thyself, O Yahweh?
    Wilt thou hold thy peace, and humble us so very greatly?

§66. Divine Condescension to Gentiles while Israel are yet sunk in Idolatry. A New Israel to be formed out of the Old; yes New Heavens and a New Earth to be created.

1. I have let myself be consulted, by them who had not asked,
   I have suffered myself to be found, by them who had not sought me,—
   I have said Here I am! Here I am!
   Unto a nation that had not been called by my name.
2. I have spread out my hands all the day,
   Unto a rebellious people,—
   Who walk In the way that is not good,
   After their own devices.
3. <The people who are provoking me to anger, to my face, continually,— Sacrificing in gardens, and Burning incense upon bricks;>*
4. Who tarry among graves,
   And in the secret places do lodge,—
   Who eat the flesh of swine,
   And <in the secret places> do lodge,—
5. Who say—
   Draw near by thyself,
   Do not approach with me,
   For I am holier than thou! >
   [These] are A smoke in my nostrils,
   A fire burning all the day.

6. Lo! it is written before me,—
   I will not keep silence,
   But I have recompensed, and will' recompense,
   Into their bosom:
7. Your own iniquities,
   And the iniquities of your fathers together,
   Saith Yahweh,
   Who have burned incense upon the mountains,
   And <upon the hills> have reproached me,— Therefore will I measure their former work
   into their bosom.

8. <Thus> saith Yahweh—
   As [new wine] is found [in the cluster],
   Do not destroy it, for a blessing is in it>
   [So] will I do for the sake of my servants,*
   That I may not destroy the whole [nation];
9. Therefore will I bring forth
   Out of Jacob] [a seed]" and Out of Judah] [an inheritor of my mountains],
   That my chosen ones may inherit it,
   And [my servants] dwell there;
10. Then shall [Sharon] become a fold for flocks,
   And the vale of Achor, for the lying down of herds,—
   For my people who have sought me.
11. But [ye] are they—
    Who forsake Yahweh,
    Who forget my holy mountain,—
    Who prepare, for Fortune, a table, and
    Who fill, for Destiny, mixed wine;*
12. Therefore will I destine you' to the sword,
   And [ye all] <to the slaughter> shall bow down.
   <Because I called, and ye answered not,
   I spake, and ye hearkened not,—
   But did that which was wicked in mine
   eyes,
   And <of that wherein I delighted not> ye made choice>
13. [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,— Lo! [my servants] shall eat, but [ye] shall be famished,
    Lo! [my servants] shall drink, but [ye] shall be thirsty,—
    Lo! [my servants] shall rejoice, but [ye] shall turn pale;
14. Lo! [my servants] shall shout in triumph for mirth of heart,
    But [ye] shall make outcry, for pain of heart,
    And <for a breaking of spirit> shall ye howl.

* Mark well this note of continuity between the old Israel and the new; cp. chap. liv. 21; lxii. 4.
* Or transfer both names: "Adonay, Yahweh."
So shall ye leave your name for an oath, to my chosen ones,—
So then My Lord Yahweh will slay thee,—
And his servants will he call by another name:

So that he who blesseth himself in the earth will bless himself in the God of faithfulness,
And he who sweareth in the earth will swear by the God of faithfulness,—
Because the former troubles have been forgotten,
And because they are hid from mine eyes.

For, behold me! Creating new heavens, and a new earth,—
And the former shall not be mentioned,
Neither shall they come up on the heart.
The sound of weeping, or the sound of a cry:
There shall be thenceforward no more
A suckling of a few days, or an elder who filleth not up his days,— Yea a sinner, a hundred years old shall be accused.

Then shall they build houses, and dwell in them,—
And plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them;
For, behold me! creating Jerusalem an exultation, and Her People a joy;
Therefore will I exult in Jerusalem, and joy in my People,—
And there shall be heard in her no more the sound of weeping, or the sound of a cry:
But joy ye and exult, perpetually, in what I am about to create,—
For, behold me! creating Jerusalem an exultation, and Her People a joy.

The wolf and the lamb shall feed in unity,
And the lion shall eat straw;
But as for the serpent, dust shall be his food:
They shall not harm—Nor shall they destroy.
In all my holy mountain.

Saith Yahweh.

§67. The Humble in Heart, and the Profane who hate them, must be Divinely disciplined. The Birth of a Man-child and of a Nation. Rejoice with Jerusalem. Bewarmed by the Fate of Idolaters and Transgressors.

Thus saith Yahweh,
The heavens are my throne, and
The earth is my footstool:
Where' then is the house which ye can build me?
Or where' is my place of rest?
For all these things have mine own hand made,
And all these things came into being;—Declareth Yahweh.

But for this one will I look around,
For him who is humbled and smitten is spirit,
And so careth anxiously for my word.

He that slaughtereth an ox [is as one] who smiteth a man,
He that sacrificeth a lamb [is as one] who beheadeth a dog,
He that causeth a meal-offering to ascend [offereth it with] the blood of swine,
He that maketh a memorial of frankincense [is as one] who blesseth iniquity:
They indeed have chosen their own ways,
And in their own abominations their soul hath found delight;
I, also will choose the things that vex them,
And the things they dread will I bring upon them, Because—
I called, and there was none to answer, I spake, and they hearkened not,—But did that which was wicked in mine eyes.
And of that wherein I delighted not; made choice.

Hear the word of Yahweh, ye who care anxiously for his word:
Said your brethren who hated you, Who thrust you out for my Name's sake.
Yahweh be glorified! Therefore shall he appear to your rejoicing,
But [they] shall turn pale.

The sound of a tumult — out of the city,
The sound of Yahweh, rendering recompense to his foes.

Who hath heard the like of this?
Who hath seen the like of these things?
Can a land be made to bring forth in one day?
Or a nation be born at one time?
As soon as she travaileth Zion hath also given birth to her children.

Could it bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth? Saith Yahweh.
Or (I) to be causing to bring forth, and then prevent? Saith thy God.

Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and exult over her.
All ye who love her —
Joy with her, right joyfully,
All ye who used to mourn over her:

That ye may draw, to satisfaction, out of the fountain of her consolations —
That ye may drain out and get exquisite delight from the abundance of her glory.

For thus saith Yahweh —
Behold me! extending unto her, like a river!
Prosperity,
And as a torrent overflowing the glory of the nations.
That ye may draw it forth —
Upon the side shall ye be carried, and Upon the knees shall ye be caressed:

Sol will console you,
And in Jerusalem shall ye be consoled.

As soon as ye have seen it your heart shall be joyful,
And your bones like green herbage shall thrive —
So shall be known
The hand of Yahweh with his servants,
But indignation with his foes!

For lo! |Yahweh| with fire doth come,
And like a storm-wind are his chariots —
To render, with fury, his anger,
And his rebuke, with flames of fire.

For <by fire> will Yahweh enter into judgment,
And by his sword, with all flesh —
And many shall be the slain of Yahweh.

They who hallow themselves and purify themselves for the garden,
Behind a certain thing in the midst,
Who eat the flesh of swine, and the abomination, and the mouse.

Together shall be cut off —
Declareth Yahweh.

Because I . . . for their works and their devices doth it come!
Am about to gather together all nations and tongues —
So shall they come, and see my glory.

Then will I set, among them, a sign,
And will send, of them, such as have escaped, unto the nations —
Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow,
Tubal and Javan,
The Coastslands that are afar off,
Who have not heard my fame,
Nor seen my glory,
And they shall tell my glory throughout the nations.

Then shall they bring in all your brethren out of all the nations.
As a present unto Yahweh,
Upon horses and in chariots and in palanquins and on mules and on dromedaries.
Unto my holy mountain — Jerusalem,
Saith Yahweh —
Just as the sons of Israel bring in their present in a pure vessel, into the house of Yahweh.

And (of them also) will I take for priests — for Levites, Saith Yahweh.

For as the new heavens and the new earth which I am about to make, are to remain before me —
Declareth Yahweh.

Shall remain your seed and your name.

And it shall come to pass, that
From one new moon to another, and
From one sabbath to another
Shall all flesh come in to bow down before me,
Saith Yahweh.

Then shall they go forth and look, upon the dead bodies of the men who had been trespassing against me —
For their worm shall not die.
And their fire shall not be quenched;
So shall they become an abhorrence, to all flesh.
§ 1. After a brief historical Record, Jeremiah tells of his Pre-natal Destination and early Call to the Prophetic Office. He is charged to be fearless, sent to Nations and Kingdoms, and assured of Divine Aid. Almond Branch and Boiling Caldron shown him as Emblems of his Mission.

1 The words of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah,—of the priests who were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin: 2 unto whom came the word of Yahweh, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah,—in the thirteenth year of his reign; 3 it came also in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah,—as far as the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth month.

4 So then the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

5 <Before I formed thee at thy birth>* I took knowledge of thee, And <before thy nativity>b I hallowed thee,— <A prophet to the nations>I appointed thee.

6 Then said I— Ah ! My Lord, Yahweh! Lo ! I know not how to speak,— For  am ||I||!

7 Then said Yahweh unto me, Do not say, <A child> am ||I||,— For <against whomsoever I send thee> shalt thou go, And <whatsoever I command thee> shalt thou speak:

8 Be not afraid of their faces,— For <with thee> am ||I||, to deliver thee. Declareth Yahweh.

9 Then Yahweh put forth his hand, and touched my mouth,—and Yahweh said unto me, Lo ! I have put my words in thy mouth.

10 See ! I have set thee in charge, this day, over the nations, and over the kingdoms, To uproot and to break down, and to destroy and to tear in pieces,— To build and to plant.

11 Moreover the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying, What canst thou see, Jeremiah?

12 Then said Yahweh unto me,— Thou hast rightly seen, — for <keeping watch> b am I, over my word, to perform it.

13 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, a second time, saying,

What canst thou see?

And I said,

<A boiling caldron> c can I see, with the front thereof || on the North||.

14 Then said Yahweh unto me,— <Out of the North> shall break forth calamity, against all the inhabitants of the land. 15 For behold me ! calling for all the families of the kingdoms of the North.

16 Then will I pronounce my judgments against them, concerning all their wickedness,— in that they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, and have bowed down to the works of their own hands.

17 | Thou|| therefore, shalt gird thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them, all that ||I|l command thee,— be not dismayed because of them, lest I dismay thee before their face. 18 I therefore—lo ! I have set thee to-day, as a fortified city, and as a pillar of iron, and as walls of bronze, over all the land,—against the kings of Judah, against her princes, against her priests, and against the people of the land.

§ 2. Commencing his First Message to Jerusalem in terms of touching Tenderness, the Prophet remonstrates with his People for their Unfaithfulness, Ingratitude, Daring and Cruelty; he silences Equivocation, and sternly brings home the Charge of Unfaithfulness.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying;
2 Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying—
|Thus| saith Yahweh,
I remember, in thy behalf, the lovingkindness of thy youthful days,
The love of thy bridal estate,—
Thy coming out after me,
Through the desert,
Through a land |not sown| :
|Holiness| was Israel unto Yahweh,
The first-fruit of his increase,—
|All that devourd it| were held guilty,
|Calamity| used to come upon them,—
Deleareth Yahweh.

3 Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O house of Jacob,
And all the families of the house of Israel.
|Thus| saith Yahweh,—
What did your fathers find in me, by way of perversity, that they removed far from me,—and went after vanity, and became vain? c 4 Neither said they, Where is Yahweh,
Who brought us up out of the land of Egypt,—
Who led us
Through the desert,
Through a land of wastes and clefts,
Through a land of parched places and of death-shade,
Through a land
Along which no man had passed,
And in which no son of earth dwelt?

5 Then brought I you into a country of garden land, to eat the fruit thereof and the goodness thereof,—and yet <when ye entered> then defiled ye my land, and <mine inheritance> ye made an abomination.
6 |The priests| said not,
Where is Yahweh?
And |theirs who handled the law| did not acknowledge me,
And |the shepherds|| transgressed against me,—
And |the prophets| prophesied by Baal,
And so <after things that could not profit> did they walk.

9 |Therefore| yet further|| will I plead with you,
Deleareth Yahweh,
Yea <with your children's children> will I plead.
10 For—pass through the coastlands of the West,* and see,
And <unto Kedar> send ye and |consider diligently|,—
And see—whether there hath been the like of this!
11 Hath |a nation| changed |gods|, although |they| were No-gods?
Yet |my people| have changed my glory for that which could not profit !

12 Be amazed, O ye heavens, at this,—
And shudder, be dried up utterly,
Urgeth Yahweh.

13 For <two wicked things> have my people committed,—
<Me> have they forsaken, |a fountain of living water|,
To hew out for themselves cisterns, broken' cisterns, that cannot hold water.

14 Was Israel |a servant| ?
<Born in the house> was |he|?
Wherefore hath he become a prey ?

15 <Against him> have been roaring |wild lions|,
They have uttered their voice,—and have made his land a desolation,
|His cities| have been burned, so as to have no inhabitant.

16 Even the sons of Noph and Tahpanhes have been crushing the crown of the head.
Is not this'what thou wast certain to do for thyself,—in that thou didst forsake Yahweh thy God, when he was leading thee by the way?

18 ||Now therefore, what hast thou to do with the way to Egypt, to drink the waters of Shihor?
Or what hast thou to do with the way to Assyria, to drink the waters of the River [= Euphrates]?

19 Let thy wickedness correct thee.
And |thine apostacies| rebuke thee,
Know therefore and see,
That it is a wicked thing and a bitter, that thou shouldst have forsaken Yahweh thy God,—
And that the dread of me should not have pertained to thee,
Deleareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts.

For <in age-past time> a
I brake thy yoke,

And thou saidst, I will not transgress,—
Nevertheless thou lying down as an unchaste woman.
Yet all planted thee a precious vine, a a wholly true seed,—
How then didst thou change thyself towards me, into the degenerate plantings of the alien vine?
For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap,
Yet is thine iniquity inscribed liefore me. Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.1
How canst thou say, I have not defiled myself,
After the Baalim have I not gone?
See thy way, in the valley,
Own what thou hast done,—
A nimble young she-camel, crossing her own ways;
A wild ass, taught of the desert;
In the desire of her soul she snuffeth the wind,
In her occasion who can turn her back?
None who seek her will weary themselves,
In her month they shall find her!
Withhold thy foot from being unshod,
And thy throat from thirst!
But thou saidst, Helpless!
No! for I love foreigners, and after them will I go.
As the shame of a thief when he is found
So hath been put to shame, the house of Israel,—
They, their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets:
Saying to a tree, My father art thou! and to a stone, thou didst give us birth,
For they have turned unto me the back, and not the face,—
But in the time of their calamity they will say,
Arise, and save us!
Where then are thy gods' which thou hast made for thyself?
Let them arise, if they can save thee, in the time of thy calamity,—
For according to the number of thy cities have become thy gods, O Judah.
Wherefore should ye plead against me, All of you have transgressed against me.
Declareth Yahweh.
In vain have I smitten your children,
Correction have they not accepted,
Your sword hath devoured your prophets, a lion that destroyeth.
O generation, see ye the word of Yahweh,
A desert became I unto Israel!
Or a land of thick darkness!
Wherefore have I my people said, We have roved about, We will not come in, any more, unto thee?
Can a virgin forget her ornaments,—
A bride, her girdle? Yet my people have forgotten me, days without number.
How thou dost make winsome thy way, to seek love!
Therefore even unto wicked women hast thou taught thy ways.
Even in thy skirts is there found, The blood of the lives of the helpless innocents,—
Not in the act of breaking in didst thou find them, yet [the blood is] on all these.
Although thou saist, Because I am innocent surely liath bi' anger turned back from me,— Behold me! entering into judgment with thee, because thou sayest, I have not sinned!
How vigorously thou goest about, changing thy way!
Even of Egypt shalt thou be ashamed, just as thou wast ashamed of Assyria:
Even from this one shalt thou go forth, with thy hands upon thy head,—
For Yahweh hath rejected those in whom thou confidest, and thou shalt not prosper with them.
He hath said, If a man send away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man> will he return unto her again? would not that land be utterly defiled?
And thou hast been unchaste with many neighbours> and yet [thinnest] to return unto me!
Declareth Yahweh.

Lift up thine eyes unto the bare heights, and see—where thou hast not been unchastely embraced! besides the ways hast thou sat to them, like the Arabian in the desert,—and hast defiled the land with thine unchastities, and with thy wickedness.

Therefore have I withheld the showers, and the latter rain hath not come—yet hast thou been like the forehead of an unchaste woman, hast thou refused to be ashamed.

§ 3. Treacherous Judah put to shame as a worse Offender than Apostate Israel: the latter encouraged to return to Zion along with Judah. Ark to be abolished, Nations gathered, Spirit of Adoption bestowed.

And Yahweh said unto me, in the days of Josiah the king, Hath thou seen what apostate Israel did? She used to go upon every high mountain, and beneath every green tree, and commit unchastity there. And I said, after she had been doing all these things, Unto me shalt thou return? and she returned not,—and her treacherous sister Judah saw it! Though she saw that for all this, apostate Israel having committed adultery, I had sent her away, and had given a scroll of divorcement unto her yet her treacherous sister Judah feared not, but she also went and committed unchastity.

Yea though it had come to pass that through the levity of her unchastity she had defiled the land,—and committed adultery with Stone and with Tree yet, in spite of all this her treacherous’ sister Judah returned not unto me, with all her heart,—but falsely, Declareth Yahweh.

Then said Yahweh unto me,—Apostate’ Israel hath justified herself,—more than treacherous’ Judah.

Go, and proclaim these words towards the North, and say—Return! thou apostate’ Israel.

Urgeth Yahweh, I will not lower my face against you,—for full of lovingkindness I am.

Declareth Yahweh, I will not maintain [mine anger] unto times age-abiding. [Only] acknowledge thine iniquity, that against Yahweh thy God hast thou transgressed,—and hast gone hither and thither unto foreigners under every green tree, and unto my voice ye have not hearkened.

Declareth Yahweh.

Return, ye apostate sons, Urgeth Yahweh, for [I] am become thy husband,—therefore will I take you, one of a city, and two of a family, and will bring you to Zit ; and will give you shepherds, according to mine own heart,—who will feed you, with knowledge and discretion.

And it shall come to pass, when ye shall be multiplied and become fruitful in the land in those days, Declareth Yahweh, They shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of Yahweh, Neither shall it come up on the heart, Neither shall they remember it, Neither shall it be made any more.

<At that time> shall they call Jerusalem, The throne of Yahweh, and there shall be gathered unto her all the nations — to the Name of Yahweh, to Jerusalem; and they shall walk no more after the stubbornness of their own wicked heart.

<In those days> shall the house of Judah go unto the house of Israel,—that they may enter together out of the land of the North, upon the land which I gave as an inheritance unto your fathers.

<Though [I myself] had said,— How can I put thee among the sons, And give thee a land to lie coveted, An inheritance of beauty, of the hosts of nations? Yet I said, My father shalt thou call me, And away from me shalt thou not turn.

But indeed a wife goeth treacherously.
from her husband* [[so]] have ye acted treacherously with me. O house of Israel, Declare Yahweh.

21 ||A voice, on the bare heights[| is heard,
The weeping of the supplications of the sons
of Israel,—
Because they have perverted their way,
Have forgotten' Yahweh their God.

22 Return, ye apostate sons,
I will heal your apostasies!
Behold us! we have come unto thee,
For thou art Yahweh our God.

23 But [[the Shameful thing]] hath devoured
the labour of our fathers, from our youth:
Their flocks, and their herds, their sons,
and their daughters. We must lie down in our shame,
And our reproach [be our covering].
For <against Yahweh our God> have we sinned,
We, and our fathers, from our youth, even until this day].—
Neither have we hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God.

<If thou wilt return, O Israel>
Declare Yahweh,
Unto me mayst thou return,—
And if thou wilt remove thine abominations from before me>
Then shalt thou not become a wanderer.

<If thou wilt swear.>
By the life of Yahweh!
in faithfulness, in justice and righteousness>
Then shall the nations bless themselves in him,
And <in him> shall they glory. #

§ 4. Against Judah and Jerusalem an Invasion is threatened—to the Anxious of the tender-hearted Prophet, who, assured it must be so, pictures the Scene of Devastation in Language of great beauty. Rejected by her Paramours, the Forsaken One makes bitter Outcry.

For thus saith Yahweh,
Unto the men of Judah and unto Jerusalem,*
Till ye the untilled ground,—
And do not sow among thorns.

4 Circumcise yourselves unto Yahweh,
So shall ye remove the impurity* of your heart, ye men of Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
Lest mine indignation |go forth as fire|, and burn, and there be none to quench it,
Because of the wickedness of your doings.

5 Declare ye in Judah,
And <in Jerusalem> let it be heard,
Blow ye a horn in the land,—
Cry, with full voice!—
And say, Gather yourselves together,
And let us enter the defenced* cities.
6 Lift up an ensign—Zion-ward,
Bring into safety, do not tarry,—
For <calamity> am I bringing in from the North,
Even [a great destruction].
7 There hath come up a lion' out of his thicket, Yea (a destroyer of nations:—
hath set forward,
hath come forth out of his place,—
To make thy land' a desolation,
[Thy cities] shall fall in ruins, [so as to have no inhabitant].
8 On this account: gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl,— Because the glow of the anger of Yahweh hath not turned from us.
9 And it shall come to pass, in that day,
Declare Yahweh,
That the courage of the king [shall fail],
And the courage of the princes,—
And the priests shall be astonished,
And [the prophets] shall be amazed.
10 Then said I,—
Ah! My Lord Yahweh! [Surely] thou hast suffered this people and Jerusalem! to be beguiled,—saying, ||Penons; shall ye have,— whereas the sword shall reach' unto the soul.
11 <At that time> shall it be said of this people and of Jerusalem,—
[The sharp wind of the bare heights in the desert] cometh towards the daughter of my people,—not to winnow, nor to cleanse].
12 A wind too strong for these [cometh in for me].
||Now will I also] pronounce sentences upon them:*
13 Lo! <like clouds> shall be come up,
Even <as a storm-wind> his chariots,
[Swifter than eagles] his horses,—
Woe to us, for we are laid waste!*

Wash, from wickedness, thy heart, O Jerusalem,
That thou mayest be saved,—
How long shall lodge within thee thy wicked devices?

For a voice declareth from Dan,—
And publisheth trouble from the hill country of Ephraim.

Put ye in mind the nations.
Lo! publish ye against Jerusalem,
Blockaders are coming in from a land afar off,—
And have uttered, against the cities of Judah, their voice:
<As the keepers of a field> have they come against her, round about,—
For against me hath she relied, Declareth Yahweh.

My bowels! My bowels!
I am pained in the walls of my heart,
My heart beateth aloud to me.
I cannot be still!
For the sound of a horn hast thou heard, O my soul,
The loud shout of war!

Breach upon breach they cry, For ruined is all the land,—
Suddenly are ruined my tents, In a moment my curtains!

Surely it is bitter,
Surely it hath reached unto thy heart.

My bowels! My bowels!

Thou hast smitten them,
Yet have they not grieved,
Thou hast consumed them—
They have made their faces bolder than a cliff,
They have refused to return.

4 And I said,—
Only [poor people] are [they],—
They act foolishly,
For they know not
the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God!

I will betake me unto the great men, and will speak [with them];! For [they] know
the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God!

Yea but [they] [with one accord] have broken the yoke,
torn off the bands.

6 [For this cause] hath the lion out of the forest smitten them.
The wolf of the waste plains preyeth upon them.

The leopard is keeping watch over their cities,
Every one that goeth out from thence is torn in pieces,—
For they have multiplied their transgressions,
Numerous are their apostasies.

7 How [for this] can I pardon thee?
[Thine own sons] have forsaken me,
And have sworn by No-gods,—
When I had fed them to the full,
Then committed they adultery,
And [the house of the unchaste woman] they used to throng:
[Lusty, well-fed horses] had they become,
Every man [unto his neighbour’s wife] would neigh!

[For these things] shall I not punish!
Demandel Yahweh:

Yea [on a nation such as this] must not my soul avenge herself!

10 Scale ye her walls, and destroy,
But [a full end] do not make,—
Remove her tendrils,
For [not to Yahweh] do [they] belong!

11 For [very treacherously] have the house of Israel and the house of Judah dealt with me!, Declareth Yahweh.

They have acted deceitfully against [Yahweh],
And have said,
Not He!
Neither shall there come upon us [calamity],
[Neither sword nor famine] shall we see;

12 But [the prophet] shall prove to be wind,
And there is [no one] speaking in them,—
[Thus] shall it be done to themselves!

Therefore
[Thus] saith Yahweh,
God of hosts,

<Because ye have spoken this word>,— Behold me! making my words in thy mouth to be fire,
And [this people]—wood,
So shall it devour them.

Behold me! bringing upon you a nation from afar,
O house of Israel.
Declareth Yahweh,

<A nation invincible> it is’.
A nation from age-past times hath it been’,
A nation whose tongue thou shalt not know,
Neither shalt thou understand what it
speaketh:

16 [Its quiver] is like an open sepulchre,—
[They all] are heroes:

Then shall it eat thy harvest, and thy bread, which [thy sons and thy daughters] should eat,—
It shall eat thy flock and thy herd,
It shall eat thy vine and thy fig-tree,—
It shall destroy thy defended cities, wherein [thou] art trusting, [with the sword].

18 Yet [even in those days]
Declareth Yahweh,
Will I not make of you [a full end].

And it shall come to pass [when ye shall
say,
For what cause] hath Yahweh our God done to us all these things?
Then shalt thou say unto them,—
[As ye forsook me, and served the gods of the foreigner in your own land]
[So] shall ye serve aliens in a land [not your own].

Tell ye this, throughout the house of Jacob,—
And let it be heard throughout Judah, saying:

21 Hear this, I pray you, ye people—foolish and without heart,—
[Eye]s have they, and see not,
[Ears] have they, and hear not!

22 [Even for me] will ye have no reverence?
Enquireth Yahweh,
And [because of me] will ye not be pained?

In that [though I placed the sand as a bound to the sea,
A decree age-abiding, and it should not pass beyond it,—
When they would toss themselves,
Then should they not prevail,
When the waves thereof would roar,
Then should they not pass beyond it>
Yet this people hath an obstinate and rebellious heart,—
They have turned aside, and gone their way;
Neither have they said in their heart,—
Let us, we pray you, revere Yahweh our God,
Who giveth rain, even the early and the latter, in its season,—
<The appointed weeks of harvest> he reserveth for us.

Your iniquities have thrust away these things,
Yea, your sins have withheld that which is good from you.
For there have been found among my people, lawless men,—
One lieth in wait, as with the stooping of fowlers,
They have set a trap, they capture men;—
<As a cage> full of birds;
So are [their houses] full of unrighteous gain,—
For this cause have they become great, and waxen rich.
They have waxed fat, they shine.
Yea, they have overpassed the records of wickedness.
<The right> have they not determined,
The right of the fatherless, that they might prosper,—
Yea <justice to the helpless> have they not decreed.

An astounding and horrible thing hath been brought to pass in the land:
The prophets have prophesied falsely, and the priests tread down by their means,
And many people love it so,—
What then can ye do, as to her latter end?

Take your goods into safety, ye sons of Benjamin, out of the midst of Jerusalem,
And blow ye a horn, And raise a fire-signal,—
For calamity hath looked out from the North,
Even a great destruction.

To a comely and delicate woman> have I likened* the daughter of Zion:
<Against her> shall come shepherds, with their flocks;
They have pitched against her their tents, round about,
They tend their flocks, every one near at hand.
Hallow ye against her a war,
Arise! and let us go up in broad noon.
Woe to us, for the day hath turned,
for the shadows of evening stretch along.

Arise! and let us go up in the night,
And let us destroy her palaces.

For <Thus> saith Yahweh of hosts,
Cut ye down timber, and cast up against Jerusalem, a mound,—
That is the city to be punished!
There is nothing but oppression in her midst;
<Like the casting forth by a well of its waters>,
Hath she cast forth her wickedness,—
Violence and destruction are heard in her,
<Before my face, continually> are suffering and smiting.
Receive thou correction, O Jerusalem,
Lest my soul be torn from thee,—
Lest I make thee A desolation, A land not habitable.

Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,
They shall thoroughly glean, as a vine, the remnant of Israel,—
Turn back thy hand, as a grape gatherer, over the tendrils.

Unto whom can I speak—and bear witness, that they may hear?
Lo! <uncircumcised> is their ear, that they cannot attend,—
Lo! the word of Yahweh hath become to them a reproach; they take no delight therein.

So then <with the indignation of Yahweh> am I full.
I am too weary to hold it in,
[If I am constrained] to pour it out, upon the boy in the street, and upon the circle of young men together,—
For [even husband with wife] will be captured,
The elder, with him who is full of days;
And their houses shall be turned over to others,
Fields and wives together,—

Some authorities omit this "even"—G.n.
* Or (according to some): "As a c. and d. thing have I cut off (or laid waste)," Vul.; "and they"—G.n.
§ 6. The Invader approaches, making light of his Task, his Men drearfor the Fray. Yahweh, tearing himself from his People because they abounded in Wickedness and Violence, and refuse to hearken, and mock the Divine Word—charges the Enemy not to spare. The Prophet himself, filled with Yahweh's Indignation, pours out his Warnings wherever he can get a Hearing, and is further appointed to act as an Assayer of Metal amongst his People.

Take your goods into safety, ye sons of Benjamin, out of the midst of Jerusalem, And <in Tekoa> blow ye a horn, And <on Beth-haccherem> raise a fire-signal,—
For calamity hath looked out from the North,
Even a great destruction.

Or (according to some): "As a c. and d. thing have I cut off (or laid waste)," Vul.; "and they"—G.n.
For I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land.

Declareth Yahweh.

For from the least of them, even unto the greatest of them,
||Every one graseth with greed,—

And from the prophet even unto the priest,
||Every one* dealeth falsely;—

And so they have healed the grievous wound of my people* ||rightly,||

Saying Peace, peace, when there was no peace,

Were they led to turn pale, because <an abominable thing> they had done!

Nay! they did not ||at all turn pale.||

Nay! they did not so much as know how ||to exhibit shame!,

Therefore shall they fall among them who are falling.

<In the time when I punish them> shall they be overthrown.

Sheith Yahweh.4

||Thus|| saith Yahweh—

Stand ye at the ways—and see.

And ask for the paths of age-past times,*
Where is the good' way?

And walk therein,
And ye shall find rest' to your souls.6

But they said, We will not walk [therein]!

Therefore will I raise up over you, watchmen,
Give ye heed to the sound of a horn,—

But they said, We will not give heed! 17

|Therefore| hear, O ye nations,—

And take knowledge, O assembly.

Of that which befalleth them:

Hearthou—O earth,

Lo! ||am bringing in Calamity against

Nor are ||your sacrifices| pleasing to me.

|Therefore|
Behold me! laying before this people, stumblingblocks,—

And fathers and sons together ||shall stumble against them.||

The neighbour and his friend|| shall perish.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

Lo! a people coming in from the land of the North,—

Yea ||a great nation|| shall be stirred up out of the remote parts of the earth:

<Bow and javelin> shall they grasp,||

Cruel is he!

So they will not have compassion,
||Their voices| <like the sea> will roar,3

And <on horses> will they ride,—

Arrayed each one, like a man for battle,
Against thee, O daughter of Zion!

We have heard the report thereof.

Relaxed' are our hands,—

||Anguish| hath taken hold on us,

||Pangs as on her that is giving birth.||

Do not go out into the field,
And <in the road> do not walk,—

Because ||a sword| hath the foes,—

Terror round about!6

O daughter of my people,
Gird thee with sackcloth, and* roll thyself in ashes,—

<The mourning for an only son> make thou for thysel,

||Most bitter lamentation||! For <suddenly> shall the destroyer come upon us.

<An assayer> have I set thee amongst my people, of gold-ore,4—

That thou mayest note and try their way :*

<They all! are rebels} of rebels,
Slander-walkers, [They are] bronze and iron !

<As for them all> ||corrupters|| they are :3

Scorched' are the bellows,||<By fire> is lead [wont to be] consumed,—

<In vain> hath he gone on refining,

For [the wicked] have not been drawn out:

<Rejected silver> are they called,
For |Yahweh| hath rejected' [them].

§ 7. A Message in the Temple Gate: Thoroughly reform, or the Fate of Shiloh shall befall this House, and Judah be rejected like Ephraim. Jeremiah forbidden to pray for his People, since whole Families and the Temple are given up to Idolatry, and the cruel Rites of Topheth have been commenced. These and other Enormities, including a Falsifying of Records, deepen the Olimm, until at length the Harvest is past !

1 The word that came unto Jeremiah, from 7 Yahweh, saying:—

2 Stand thou in the gate of the house of
Therefore will I do to the house, wherein my Name hath been called, even to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers, just as I did unto Shiloh; and will cast you out from before me, just as I have cast out all your brethren, all the seed of Ephraim.

If thou therefore—do not pray for this people, neither lift up for them cry or prayer, neither intercede with me; for I am not going to hear thee.

Dost thou not see what they are doing in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem? the children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead dough, to make sacrificial cakes to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out drink-offerings to other gods, provoking me to anger! Is it I they are provoking? Enquireth Yahweh, in it not themselves—unto the shame of their own faces?

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh—Lo! mine anger and mine indignation are about to be poured out upon this place, on man and on beast, and on the tree of the field, and on the fruit of the ground, and it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, your ascending-offerings add ye unto your peace-offerings, and eat ye flesh. For I bade not your fathers, neither commanded I them, in the day I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, concerning the matter of ascending-offering and peace-offering; but this thing I commanded them—saying, hearken ye unto my voice, so will I become unto you—a God, and ye shall become unto me—a people, ye shall therefore walk in all the way that I may command you, to the end it may be well with you;
Yet they hearkened not.
Neither inclined their ear,
But walked in the counsel—
In the stubbornness of their own wicked heart;
And went backward, and not forward.

Yet they hearkened not unto me,
Neither inclined their ear,—
But stiffened their neck.
They did more wickedly than their fathers.

Therefore shalt thou speak unto them all these words,
Though they do not hearken unto thee,—
And thou shalt cry aloud unto them,
Though they do not answer thee;—

But thou shalt say unto them,—
This nation that hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh its God,
Neither accepted they correction,—
Perished is fidelity, and is cut off, out of their mouth.

Cut thou off thy crown of hair, [O Jerusalem],
and cast it away,
And lift thou upon the bare heights, a dirge,—
For Yahweh hath rejected and cast out the generation with which he was wrath.

For the sons of Judah [have done] that which was wicked in mine eyes,
Declareth Yahweh,
They have set their abominations in the house whereon my Name hath been called, to defile it;
And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom,
To burn up their sons and the daughters' in the fire,—
Which I commanded not,
Neither came it up on my heart.

Therefore | lo! | days are coming |.

Declareth Yahweh,
When it shall not be called any more—
The Topheth, nor
The valley of Ben-hinnom, but
The valley of Slaughter,—
And they shall bury in Topheth, for want of place;
And the dead bodies of this people shall become food,
For the bird of the heavens, and
For the beast of the earth,—
And there shall be none to drive them away.

So will I cause to cease,
From the cities of Judah, and
From the streets of Jerusalem,
The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride."
For | a desolation | shall the land become.

<At that time>
Declareth Yahweh,
Shall they bring forth
The bones of the kings of Judah, and
The bones of his princes, and
The bones of the priests, and
The bones of the prophets, and
The bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem
Out of their graves,
And shall spread them out—
To the sun and
To the moon and
To all the host of the heavens,
Whom they have loved,
And whom they have served,
And after whom they have walked,
And whom they have sought.
And to whom they have bowed themselves down,—
They shall not be gathered.
Neither shall they be buried,
As heaps of dung on the face of the ground shall they be.
Then shall | death | be chosen' rather than | life |.
by all the remnant of them that remain, of this wicked family,—in all the places, whither I have driven them,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

Therefore shalt thou say unto them—
Thus saith Yahweh,
Will men fall, and not arise?
Will one turn away, and not come back?
Wherefore hath this people of Jerusalem apostatised with an enduring apostacy,— Taken fast hold of deceit,
Refused to come back?

I hearkened and heard—
| Not aight | did they speak,—
| Not a man | repented him of his wickedness, saying,
What have I done! They have [every one] turned to their course again,
Like a horse sweeping on through the battle.
Even' the stork in the heavens knoweth her appointed times,
And [the turtle and the swallow and the crane] observe the season for coming;
But [my people] know not the just sentence of Yahweh.
How can ye say,

Wise are we,
And the law of Yahweh is with us?
But indeed, lo! falsely hath dealt the false pen of the scribes!

Ashamed are the wise, dismayed, and captured!
Lo! the word of Yahweh have they rejected,
And what wisdom have they?
Therefore will I give—Their wives to others,
Their fields, to such as shall take possession of them,
For from the least, even unto the greatest,
Every one is wholly given to extortion;
The prophet, even unto the priest.
And so they have heaped the grievous sound of the daughter of my people slightly;—Saying, Peace! peace! when there was no peace!

Were they led to turn pale, because an abominable thing they had done! Nay! they did not at all turn pale, Nay! they did not so much as know how to exhibit shame!
Therefore shall they fall among them who are falling,
In the time when they are punished shall they be overthrown,
Said Yahweh.

I will surely remove them,
Declareth Yahweh:
There shall be no grapes on the vine,
Nor figs on the fig-tree,
Even the leaf hath faded,
Though I have given them those things, they shall pass away from them.

Why are we sitting still? Gather yourselves together, and let us enter the defended cities,
And let us be silent there,—For Yahweh our God hath put us to silence,
And made us drink poisoned water,
Because we have sinned against Yahweh.

A waiting For prosperity, but no welfare,—For a time of healing, but lo! terror.

<From Dan> was heard the snorting of his horses,
<At the sound of the neighing of his chargers> the whole land trembled,—Yea they came in and did eat up The land and the fulness thereof,
The city, and them who were dwelling therein.

§ 8. After an Outburst of Emotion the Prophet resumes his unwelcome Theme: further probing the Sins of his People, he is instructed to call for Waiting Women to lament over the Ravages of Death. The Divine Character a Theme for Glorifying. Circumcision avails nothing.

<For the grievous injury of the daughter of my people> I am grievously injured,—I am enshrouded in gloom,
Horror hath seized me:—
<Balsam> is there none? [in Gilead]?
Is there no physician there? Why hath not appeared the healing of the daughter of my people?

Oh that my head were waters, And mine eyes a fountain of tears,—That I might weep day and night,
For the slain of the daughter of my people!
Oh that I had in the wilderness, a wayfarers' lodge, That I might leave my people, and go from them,—For they all are Adulterers,
An assemblage of traitors;
Who have prepared their tongue as their bow of falsehood,
And not by faithfulness have they become mighty in the land,—For have they gone forth, But have they not known.

Declareth Yahweh.
4. Everyone of his neighbour beware ye, And in no brother may ye trust,—
   For every brother supplanted:
And every neighbour as a tale-bearer goeth about;*

Ye. | every one | of his neighbour | maketh a dupe,
   And <truth> they do not speak,—
They have taught their tongue to speak falsehood,
<In acting perversely> they have wearied themselves.

6. Thy dwelling is in the midst of deceit,—
   Through deceit have they rejected the knowledge of me,
Declare <Yahweh>.

7. Therefore thus saith <Yahweh> of hosts,
   Behold me! melting them, so will I try them,—
For how else should I do, because of the wickedness of b the daughter of my people?

*A pointed "arrow" is their tongue,
*Deceit hath it spoken,—
<With his mouth, peace unto his neighbour> doth one speak,
But <within himself> he layeth his ambush.

9. For these things shall I not bring punishment on them? Demand <Yahweh>,—
   On a nation such as this must not my soul avenge herself!*

10. Over the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing,
   And over the oases of the desert a dirge,
   For they have been burned, so that no man passeth through,
Neither have men heard the lowing of cattle,—
   Both the bird of the heavens and the beast; have fled, have gone their way:
Thus will I give up Jerusalem
To heaps,
A habitation for jackals,—
And the cities of Judah will I give up to desolation, without inhabitant.

11. Who is the man that is wise,
   That he may discern this?
And unto whom hath the mouth of <Yahweh> spoken,
That he may declare it?
<For what cause>
   Hath the land perished,
   Hath it been burned as a wilderness, that no man passeth through?

*Therefore||Thus||saith <Yahweh> of hosts,
   The God of Israel,
Behold me!
Feeding them [even this people] with wormwood,—
And I will cause them to drink, poisoned water; *

14. But have gone their way,
   After the stubbornness of their own heart,—
   And after the Baals which their fathers taught them >

15. Therefore||Thus||saith <Yahweh> of hosts,
   The God of Israel,
Behold me!
Feeding them [even this people] with wormwood,—
And I will cause them to drink, poisoned water; *

16. And will scatter them among the nations, which neither they nor their fathers have known,—
And will send after them the sword, until I have consumed them.

17. ||Therefore||saith <Yahweh> of hosts,
   Consider ye diligently and call for the wailing women, that they may come,—
And <unto the wise women> send ye, that they may come;
Yea let them make haste, and lift up over us a wailing,—
   That our eyes may run down with tears,
   And our eyelashes stream down with water;—
Yea a voice of wailing hath been heard out of Zion,
How are we ruined!
We have turned very pale.
For we have left the land,
For they have cast down our habitations.

20. For hear, O ye women, the word of <Yahweh>,
   And let your ear take in the word of his mouth,—
And teach your daughters a wail,
   Yea [each woman — her neighbour]. *a dirge:

21. That death Hath come up through our windows,
   Hath entered our palaces,—
Cutting off
   The boy from the street,
The young men from the broadways.

22. Speak thou,
   ||Thus|| declare <Yahweh>,
So shall fall the dead bodies of men,
Like dung heaps on the face of the field,—
And like swaths after the harvestman,
With none to gather.

23. ||Thus|| saith <Yahweh>,
   Let not [the wise man] glory [in his wisdom],
Neither let [the mighty man] glory [in his might],—
Let not [the rich man] glory [in his riches];
But let the glorying one glory—
In having intelligence, and in knowing [me],
That I am Yahweh,
Executing lovingkindness, justice, and righteousness in the earth,—
That in these things I delight.
Declareth Yahweh.

Lo! days are coming.
Declareth Yahweh,—
When I will bring punishment upon every one circumcised,
With him that is uncircumcised:
Upon Egypt and upon Judah,
And upon the sons of Ammon,
And upon Moab,
And upon all the clipped beards.
The dwellers in the desert,—
For all the nations are uncircumcised,
And all the house of Israel are uncircumcised [in heart].

§ 9. The Folly of Idol-making described with keen irony; the Majesty of A Living God declared; a Challenge to the World in Aramaic; Israel's Lament.

Hear ye the word which Yahweh hath spoken unto you, O house of Israel:—
Thus saith Yahweh—
Unto the way of the nations become not ye accustomed,
Nor at the signs of the heavens be ye dismayed,—
Because the nations are dismayed at them.

For as for the prescribed customs of the peoples—vanity they are,—
For a tree out of the forest [is vanity] they are, and cannot speak,
Thy must needs be [carried], for they cannot take a step.—
Be not afraid of them, for they cannot do harm, and [they are] not in their power.

None there is [like unto thee], O Yahweh,— [Great art thou], And [great is thy Name], [for might].

Who would not revere thee, O King of nations?
For doth it beseech;
Forsaketh as among all the wise men of the nations,
And throughout all their royal estate>
None there is [like unto thee].

But do they become brutish and stupid,—
An example of utmost vanity is [a tree]!
Silver spread into plates [from Tarshish] is brought,
And gold, from Uphaz;
Work for the craftsman, and for the hands of the smith,—
Blue and purple [is their clothing],
Work for the skilled [are they all].

But is Yahweh is God [in truth],
He is a God that liveth],
And a King of times age-abiding,—
At his anger quaketh the earth,
And nations cannot endure [his wrath].

Thus shall ye say unto them,
The gods that made not the heavens' And the earth' Shall perish out of the earth,
And from under these heavens.

He that made the earth by his power,
That established the world by his wisdom,—
And by his understanding stretched out the heavens.

At the voice that he uttered there was a tumult of waters in the heavens,
And he caused vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth,—
The lightnings for rain he made,
And brought forth wind out of his treasuries.

Every son of earth hath become too brutish to discern,
Every goldsmith hath been put to shame [by a graven image],—
For [a falsehood] is his molten image.
Seeing there is no breath in them.

Vanity they are, the handiwork of mockeries,—
In the time of their visitation shall they perish.

Not like these is the portion of Jacob,
For the fashioner of all things is he, And Israel] is his inherited sceptre,—
Yahweh of hosts] is his name.

Fold up, from the ground, thy travelling carpet,—O inhabitress of the fortress;
Behold me! slinging out the inhabitants of the land at this throw,—
And I will distress them, that they may discover it.

Woe to me! for my grievous injury,
[Severe is my wound,—
But I said, Verily [this] is an affliction, and I must bear it:

Some would supply vowel-points as so: "Whence is any like like thee?"

Or "but."

Or: "soul." Heb. : rva.h.

Cp. chap. liii. 18-19.
20 My tent is laid waste,
And all my tent-cords are broken,—
My children are gone forth from me, and they are not.
There is none to stretch out, any more, my tent.
Or to set up my curtains.

21 For the shepherds have become brutish,
And <Yahweh> have they not sought,—
For this cause have they not prospered,
And [all their flock] is scattered.

22 The noise of a rumour! lo it hath come!
Even a great commotion, out of the land of the North,—
To make the cities of Judah
A desolation,
A den of jackals.

23 I know, O Yahweh,
That <not to a son of earth> pertaineth his own path,—
Not to the man who walketh also to direct his own steps.

24 Chastise me, O Yahweh,
But yet in measure,—
Not in thine anger, lest thou make me few.
Pour out thy wrath—
Upon the nations, that know thee not, and Upon the families, that <upon thy Name> have not called,—
For they have devoured Jacob,
Ye they have devoured him, and consumed him,
And <his habitation> have they made desolate.

§ 10. Suiting the Time when the Book of the Law was found (2 K. xxii. 8; 2 Ch. xxxiv. 15), Jeremiah recalls the People to the Sinai Covenant, appending his own "Amen" to the "Curse" (Deut. xxvii. 16-26); by the flagrant Breach of which Covenant the People are declared past praying for. The Prophet's own Brethren of Anathoth conspire against him; on discovering which he (the "Gentle Lamb") prays for Vengeance, though on public grounds. The Prophet is counselled to prepare for heavier Trials. In spite of the lingering of Divine Affection, the Anger of Yahweh flames forth, and is sustained only when Israel's wicked Neighbours are brought into the account.

11 The word that came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

2 Hear ye the words of this covenant,—and speak ye unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and say thou unto them,

3 Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—
Accursed is the man who will not hear the words of this covenant; which I commanded your fathers—in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the smelting-pot of iron—saying,

4 Hearken unto my voice, and do them,
According to all that I may command you,—
So shall ye become [my] people,
And [I] will become [your] God ;

5 That the oath may be established which I sware to your fathers,
To give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day.

Then answered I and said,

Amen, O Yahweh !

6 And Yahweh said unto me,—
Proclaim thou all these words, throughout the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying,—

Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them,

7 For I [solemnly took your fathers to witness] in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt—even until this day, <betimes> taking them to witness, saying,—

Hearken ye unto my voice.

8 Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, but walked severally in the stubbornness of their wicked heart,—so then I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not.

9 Yahweh therefore said unto me,—
There is found a conspiracy, among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem :

10 They have turned back unto the iniquities of their first fathers, who refused to hear my words, yet <they themselves> have walked after other gods, to serve them,—the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant, which I solemnised with their fathers.

11 [Therefore]

Thus saith Yahweh,
Behold me! bringing upon them calamity, which they shall not be able to escape,— and <though they make outcry unto me> yet will I not hearken unto them. 12 Then shall the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, go off and make outcry unto the gods, to whom they have been burning incense,—but they will not at all <save> them in the time of their calamity; 12 for <according to the number of thy cities> have become thy gods O Judah,—and <according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem> have ye set up altars to the Shameful thing, altars for burning incense to Baal.

* Cp. chap. ii. 28.
14 Thou therefore, do not pray this people, Neither lift thou up for them cry or prayer,— For I am not going to hear, in the time that they cry unto me concerning their calamity.

15 Why hath the beloved done an abomination? Shall vows and holy flesh take away from thee thy wickednesses, or shalt thou be escape?

16 A green olive-tree, fair with goodly fruit, did Yahweh call thy name, with the noise of a great tumult hath he kindled fire upon it, and the branches thereof shall be broken.

17 But [Yahweh of hosts, who planted thee hath pronounced against thee calamity,— on account of the wickedness of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah which they have wrought forthemselves, provoking me to anger by burning incense to Baal.

18 Now when [Yahweh let me know, and I did know then] didst thou shew me their doings.

19 But was as a gentle lamb that is to be led to the slaughter,— and I knew not that against me they had devised devices [saying]— Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, Yea let us cut him off out of the land of the living, And his name shall be remembered no more!

20 But, O Yahweh of hosts, Who judgest righteously, Who triest affections and intellect,— Let me see thine avenging upon them, For unto thee have I revealed my cause.

21 [Therefore]

[Thus] saith Yahweh, Concerning the men of Anathoth, who are seeking thy life, saying,— Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of Yahweh, So shalt thou not die by our hand:—

22 [Therefore]

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,— Behold me! bringing punishment upon them, The young men shall die by the sword, Their sons and their daughters shall die by famine; And shall they have none,— For I will bring calamity against the men of Anathoth, in the year of their visitation.

1 Righteous! art thou, O Yahweh, when I present my pleading unto thee,— Yet concerning the things that are right, let me speak with thee,— Wherefore hast [the way of the lawless] prospered? [Wherefore] have all [utter traitors] been at ease?

2 Thou didst plant them, yea they took root, They have gone upon, yea they have borne fruit,—

3 But, O Yahweh, knowest me, Wilt thou observe me, and try my heart towards thee? Drag them away, as sheep for slaughter, And hallow them, for the day when they are to be slain.

4 How long shall the land mourn, And the heritage of the whole field wither? <For the wickedness of them that dwell therein> beast and bird have perished, For say they, He will not see our latter end!

5 If with the footmen thou hast run, and they have wearied thee> How then wilt thou hotly contend with horses?

6 For even thy brethren and the house of thy father> [Even they] have betrayed thee, [Even they] have cried after thee with full voice,— Do not trust in them, though they speak unto thee [fair words].—

7 I have forsaken mine own house, I have given up mine inheritance,— I have delivered the dearly beloved of my soul, into the hand of her enemies:

8 Mine inheritance hath become to me [as a lion in a jungle,— She hath given forth against me her voice, [For this cause] have I hated her.

9 Is it a variegated bird of prey that mine inheritance is to me? The birds of prey are round about against her! Go ye, assemble all the beasts of the field, bring them to devour.

10 Many shepherds have laid waste my vineyard, They have trampled down my portion,— They have turned my coveted' portion into a desert of desolation:

11 It hath been made a desolation,
   It hath mourned unto me, as desolate,—
   All the land hath become a desolation,
   For [no one] layeth it to heart.

12 <On all the bare heights in the wilderness> have come despoilers,
   For [the sword of Yahweh] hath devoured from one end of the land unto the other,—
   There is peace for no flesh!

13 They sowed [wheat], but <thorns> have reaped,
   They have put themselves to pain, they shall not be profited,—
   Yea turn ye pale at your produce,
   Because of the glow of the anger of Yahweh.

14 Thus saith Yahweh
   Concerning all my wicked neighbours, who have been touching the inheritance, which I gave as an inheritance unto my people Israel,— Behold me! uprooting them from off their own soil,
   Whereas <the house of Judah> will I uproot out of their midst.

15 And it shall come to pass <after I have uprooted them> I will again have compassion upon them,—and will bring them back—
   Every man—to his own inheritance, and
   Every man—to his own land.

16 And it shall come to pass—
   <If they will diligently learn> the ways of my people—
   To swear by my Name [saying],
   By the life of Yahweh,
   As they taught my people to swear by Baal>.
   Then shall they be built in the midst of my people.

17 But <if they will not hearken>—
   Then will I uproot that nation.
   Uproot, that I may destroy,—
   Declareth Yahweh.

§ 11. By Symbolic Action with a Linen Girdle,
Jeremiah taught Israel now failed of fulfilling Yahweh's Designs, and, by the Metaphor of Wine-jars, how the Nation must suffer Punishment. If the People will not repent, the Prophet will weep in secret. The King and Queen-Mother specially called on to humble themselves.

18 Thus saith Yahweh unto me,—
   Go, and buy for thyself, a linen girdle, and put upon thy loins,—but <in water> shalt thou not place it.

20 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, a second time, saying:

   Take the girdle which thou hast bought,
   which is upon thy loins,—and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there, in a hole of the cliff.

21 So I went, and hid it, by the Euphrates,—that Yahweh said unto me,— Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from thence, the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there.

22 So I went to the Euphrates, and dug, and took the girdle out of the place where I had hidden it,—and lo! the girdle was spoiled; it was good for nothing. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

   <After this manner> will I spoil the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.

24 Thus saith Yahweh,—
   This wicked people, who are refusing to hear my words, who are walking in the stubbornness of their heart, and have gone after other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them; yea let them be like this girdle, which is good for nothing.

25 As a girdle cleaveth unto the loins of a man> I caused I to cleave unto me—the whole house of Israel, and the whole house of Judah,
   Declareth Yahweh.

26 Every jar is to be filled with wine;
   and they will say unto thee.
   Do we not know well that [every jar] is to be filled with wine?

27 Then shalt thou say unto them—
   Behold me! filling all the inhabitants of this land—
   Even the kings that are sitting for David, upon his throne, and the priests and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—with drunkenness; and I will dash them every man against his brother, even the fathers and the sons together!
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   I will not pity,
   Neither will I spare.
   Neither will I have compassion, that I should not destroy them.
Hear ye and give ear, be not haughty,—
For Yahweh hath spoken.

Give ye, to Yahweh your God—glory,
Before he cause darkness, and
Before your feet stumble upon the twilight mountains;
Lest when ye wait for light
He turn it into the shadow of death,
And change it for thick darkness.

But if ye will not hear it
In secret places shall my soul weep'.
Because of the pride,—
And mine eye shall flow over and run down with tears,
Because captive hath been taken the flock of Yahweh.

Say thou to the king and to the queen-mother,
Abase yourselves— Sit down,—
For descended have your Head-tiresses, your Crown of adornment.

The cities of the South are shut.
And there is none to open, —
Judah hath been carried away captive,
She hath altogether been carried away captive in full number.

Lift up your eyes and see,
Them who are coming in from the North,—
Where is the flock that was given thee,
Thy beautiful flock?

What wilt thou say when he shall bring punishment upon thee,
Since thou thyself hast accustomed them to be over thee as friends [in chief]?
Shall not [pangs] seize thee, as of a woman in childbirth?

But if thou say in thy heart,
Wherefore have these things befallen me?
[For the greatness of thine iniquity have Thy skirts been turned aside,
Thy heels suffered violence!]

Therefore have I scattered them.
As broken straw passing away, by the wind of the desert.

This is thy lot,
[Thy measured portion from me],
Declareth Yahweh;
For that thou didst forget me,
And confide in falsehood;
Therefore [even I myself] have drawn away thy skirts, over thy face,
And thy shame hath been seen.

<Thine adulteries, and thy neighings, thine unchaste' wickedness>
<Upon the hills in the field> I have seen thine abominations!

Woe to thee, O Jerusalem,
Wilt thou not become pure?
After how long [yet]?

So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah, concerning the matter of the drought:

Judah mourneth,
And [the gates thereof pine,
They lie in gloom on the ground,—
And [the outcry of Jerusalem] hath ascended;
And [their nobles] have sent their menials to the waters,—
They have been to the pits,
They have found no water.
They have returned, [their vessels' empty],
They are pale and ashamed, and have covered their heads.

<Because the ground is cracked,
For there hath been no rain in the land>
The plowmen are pale.
They have covered their heads.

<[Even the hind of the field] hath calved, and forsaken,
Because there is no young herbage;
Wild asses stand still on the bare heights.
They pant for air like jackals,—
Dimmed' are their eyes.
Because there is no grass.>

<Though our iniquities have testified against us>
O Yahweh, effectually work thou, for the sake of thy Name,—
For our apostacies have abounded,
<Against thee> have we sinned.

Thou Hope of Israel,
His Saviour in the time of distress,—
Wherefore shouldst thou be as a sojourner in the land?
Or as a wayfarer, who hath turned aside to lodge for the night?

Some cod. (w. 2 ear. edns., Aram., Syr.):
And have." Cp. ver. 8—G.n.

Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr.):
"And have found."
"And have answered."
"Or: 'stranger.'

G.n.
Wherefore shouldst thou be as a man astounded, As a mighty man, who cannot save? Yet thou art in our midst—O Yahweh, And thy Name | on us | hath been called, Do not abandon us!

Thus saith Yahweh To this people, In this way have they loved to wander, Their feet have they not restrained,— Yahweh therefore hath not accepted them, Now will he call to mind their iniquity,— That he may punish their sins.

And Yahweh said unto me,— Do not pray for this people, for blessing; Though they fast I am not going to hearken unto their loud cry, and Though they offer ascending-sacrifice and meal-offering I am not going to accept them,— For with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence am I about to consume them.

So then Yahweh said unto me, Falsehood are the prophets prophesying in my name, I have not sent them, Neither have I commanded them, Neither have I spoken unto them,— A vision of falsehood, and A divination of worthlessness, and A fraud of their own hearts> They are prophesying unto you.

Therefore saith Yahweh, concerning the prophets who are prophesying in my Name, though | I | sent them not, and yet they | have been saying, Neither sword nor famine shall there be in this land,— By sword or by famine shall those prophets be consumed'; And the people to whom they' have been prophesying shall be getting cast out into the streets of Jerusalem, because of the famine and the sword, and of there being none to give burial unto them, | them, their wives, nor their sons nor their daughters,— So will I pour out upon them their own wickedness.

Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word, Let mine eyes | run down | with tears night and day, And let them not rest,— For with a grievous injury hath been injured the virgin, the daughter of my people, With a wound, severe indeed!

If I have gone out into the field Then lo! the slain of the sword! And If I have entered the city Then lo! the diseases of famine! For both prophet and priest have trafficked against the land | unnoticed|.

Hast thou utterly rejected Judah? | Zion itself | hath thy soul loathed? Why hast thou smitten us, so that there is for us no healing? A waiting For prosperity, but no' welfare, and a For a time of healing, but lo! terror!

We acknowledge, O Yahweh, Our own lawlessness. The iniquity of our fathers,— For we have sinned against thee.

Do not despise—for the sake of thy Name, Do not treat with contempt—the throne of thy glory,— Remember!—do not break thy covenant with us.

Are' there, among the vanities of the nations, senders of rain? Or can the heavens themselves give myriad drops? Art not thou he, O Yahweh our God? Therefore will we wait for thee, For thou hast made all these.

Then said Yahweh unto me, Though Moses and Samuel should stand' before me> My soul could not' let toward this people,— Send them away from before me, And let them go forth.

And it shall come to pass when they say unto thee, Whither shall we go? Then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith Yahweh,— Such as are for death to death, and Such as are for the sword to the sword, and Such as are for famine to the famine, and Such as are for captivity to captivity.

And I will set in charge over them—four species, Declareth Yahweh, The sword, to slay, and The dogs, to trail along,— and The bird of the heavens and The beast of the earth, to devour and to destroy.
4 And I will make them a terror, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—

5 For who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem?
And who shall lament for thee?
And who shall turn aside, to ask for thy welfare?
I am weary of having compassion.
Therefore I stretch forth my hand against thee and lay thee waste,—
I am weary of having compassion.
Therefore have I winnowed them with a winnowing shovel in the gates of the land,—
I have bereaved, I have destroyed my people,
From their own ways have they not returned.
Their widows have become multiplied to me, beyond the sand of the seas,
I have brought against them—the spoiler, in the broad noon,—
I have let fall upon her suddenly excitement and terrors.

7 Woe to me! my mother, That thou didst bear me,
A man of litigation and a man of contention to all the land,—
I have not lent on interest.
Nor have they lent on interest to me,
Every one hath treated me with contempt.

Said Yahweh,—
Verily, I will loose thee for good!
Verily, I will intercede for thee,
In the time of calamity, and in the time of distress, with the enemy.

11 Shall iron crush [the iron from the North] and the bronze?

13 Thy substance, and thy treasures—for a prey will I give, without price,—
Even for all thy sins, and in all thy bounds:
Therefore will I make thee pass, with thine enemies, into a land thou knowest not,—
For a fire hath been kindled in mine anger.
Upon thee shall it burn.

15 Thou knowest—O Yahweh,
Remember me, and visit me, and avenge me upon my persecutors.
Do not of thy longsuffering take me away,—
Know—I have borne, for thy sake, reproach.

16 Thy words were found, and I did eat them,
Then became thy words unto me, the joy and gladness of my heart,—
For thy Name hath been called upon me, O Yahweh, God of hosts!

17 I sat not in the circle of mockers.
Nor became I uproarious,—
Because of thy hand by myself did I sit.
For with indignation hast thou filled me.

18 Wherefore hath my pain become perpetual?
And my wound incurable?
Wilt thou indeed be to me, as a brook that disappointeth, waters that cannot be trusted?

19 Wherefore
Thus saith Yahweh—
If thou wouldst return I will cause thee to return,
Before me shalt thou stand,
Yea if thou wilt bring out the precious from among the vile>
As mine own mouth shalt thou be,—
Let [them] return unto [thee],
But [thou] shalt not return unto [them];
So will I make thee, to this people, a wall of bronze fortified,
When they fight against thee they shall not prevail against thee,—
For [with thee] am I, to save thee and to deliver thee,
Declareth Yahweh;
Thus will I deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked,—
And redeem thee out of the grasp of the tyrants.
The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

10 And it shall be <when thou shalt declare to this people, all these words,—and they shall say unto thee—<For what reason> hath Yahweh pronounced against us, all this great calamity?
Or what is our iniquity, or what our sin, which we have sinned against Yahweh our God?>

11 Then shalt thou say unto them,—<For that your fathers forsook me, Declareth Yahweh, and walked after other gods, and served them, and bowed down to them,—whereas me they forsook, and my law kept they not; and ye have done more wickedly than your fathers,—for, look at you! walking every man after the stubbornness of his wicked heart, so as not to hearken unto me>

12 Therefore will I hurl you forth, from off this land, unto a land which ye have not known, ye, nor your fathers, but I will bring you back upon your own soil, which I gave to your fathers.
13 Behold me! sending for many fishers Declareth Yahweh, and they shall catch them,—and thereafter will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from off every mountain, and from off every hill, and out of the clefts of the crags.
14 For mine own eyes I are upon all their ways, they have not been hid from being straight before mine eyes.
15 Thus will I recompense their iniquity and their sin, because of their profaning my land,—<with the carcass of their disgusting and detestable thing-> have they filled mine inheritance.
16 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
17 Thou shalt not take to thee a wife,—Neither shalt thou have sons or daughters, in this place.
18 For thus saith Yahweh, Concerning the sons, and concerning the daughters, that are being born in this place,—and concerning their mothers who do bear them, and concerning their fathers who do beget them, in this land>
19 Of deaths from diseases shall they die. Neither shall they be buried,
<As heaps of dung on the face of the ground shall they serve,>
Yea <by sword and by famine> shall they be consumed, And their dead bodies shall become food—To the bird of the heavens, and To the beast of the earth.
20 For thus saith Yahweh—Do not thou enter into the house of crying, Neither do thou go to lament, nor do thou bemoan for them,—For I have withdrawn my blessing* from this people, Declareth Yahweh.
Both lovingkindness and compassion.
21 So shall great and small die in this land, They shall not be buried,—Neither shall men lament for them, Nor cut themselves, Nor make themselves bald for them;
22 Neither shall they break bread to them in mourning
To console one over his dead,—Nor cause them to drink the cup of consolation, Over one's father, Or over one's mother;
23 And <the house of banqueting> shalt thou not enter, To sit with them, To eat and to drink.
24 For thus saith Yahweh of hosts! God of Israel,—Behold me! causing to cease, out of this place, Before your eyes, Before your eyes, And in your days, the ends of the earth, that they may say—Surely!
Falsehood did our fathers inherit,
Vanity, among whom is none that can profit:
Shall a son of earth make for himself gods?
Seeing that they are no-gods?
Therefore behold me! causing them to know,
by this stroke,
I will cause them to know my hand, and my might—
That they may know, that [my name] is Yahweh!

17 1 [The sin of Judah] is written
With a stylus of iron,
With the point of a diamond:
It is engraved
Upon the tablet of their heart,
And upon the horns of your altars;
So long as their sons remember their altars,
By the green tree,
Upon the high hills.
O my mountain in the field!
Thy substance, all thy treasures for a prey will I give:
Thy high places for sin, within all thy bounds.
So shalt thou, even of thyself, suffer to rest the inheritance which I gave thee,
Seeing that I will cause thee to serve thine enemies, in the land which thou knowest not;
For have ye kindled in mine anger,
Unto times age-abiding shall it burn.

Thus saith Yahweh—
Accursed is the man—
Who trusteth in a son of earth,
And hath made flesh his arm,—
And whose heart from Yahweh turneth aside:
Therefore shall he become as a shrub in the waste plain,
Neither shall he perceive when good cometh,—
But shall inhabit,
Parched places in a wilderness,
A land of salt that cannot be dwelt in.

Blessed is the man
Who trusteth in Yahweh,
To whom Yahweh is his ground of confidence;
8 For he shall become like a tree planted by waters.
And shall send out his roots,
Neither shall he perceive when heat cometh,
But his leaf shall continue green;
Even in a year of dearth shall he not be anxious,
Neither shall he cease from bearing fruit.
Deceitful is the heart above all things.
And [dangerously wayward],—
Who can know it?

I—Yahweh] Searching the heart,
Testing the affections;
And giving to every man according to his way.
According to the fruit of his doings.

[As a partridge gathereth eggs she did not lay],
[So] is he that maketh riches, but not with justice,—
In the midst of his days shall he leave them,
And in his latter end prove to have been base.
A throne of glory, exalted from the beginning,
hath been the place of our sanctuary.
Thou hope of Israel [Yahweh],
All who forsake thee shall turn pale,—
Yea all who depart from me shall turn pale,
For they have forsaken a fountain of living water.

Blessed is the man
Who trusteth in Yahweh,
To whom Yahweh is his ground of confidence;
9 Deceitful is the heart above all things.
And dangerously wayward,—
Who can know it?
Yahweh is searching the heart, testing the affections;
And giving to every man according to his way.
According to the fruit of his doings.

As a partridge gathereth eggs she did not lay,
So is he that maketh riches, but not with justice,—
In the midst of his days shall he leave them,
And in his latter end prove to have been base.
A throne of glory, exalted from the beginning,
hath been the place of our sanctuary.
Thou hope of Israel [Yahweh],
All who forsake thee shall turn pale,—
Yea all who depart from me shall turn pale,
For they have forsaken a fountain of living water.

Blessed is the man
Who trusteth in Yahweh,
To whom Yahweh is his ground of confidence;

10 Do not thou become to me a terror,—
My refuge art thou, in the day of calamity.
18. Let my persecutors' turn pale, but let not me turn pale,
Let them be terrified, but let not me be terrified,—
Bring thou upon them a day of calamity,
And with a double fracture destroy them.

19. Thus said Yahweh unto me—
Go and stand in the gate of the sons of the people, through which the kings of Judah enter in, and through which they come out,—also in all the gates of Jerusalem. Then shalt thou say unto them—
Hear ye the word of Yahweh,
Ye kings of Judah and all Judah,
And all ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—who enter in through these gates:
Thus saith Yahweh,
Take heed unto your souls,—And do not bear any burden on the sabbath day,
Nor bring it in through the gates of Jerusalem.—
Neither shall ye take forth any burden out of your houses, on the sabbath' day,
Nor any manner of work shall ye do,—But ye shall hallow the sabbath day,
As I commanded your fathers.

20. Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear,—but stiffened their neck, that they might not hearken, neither receive correction.—
And it shall come to pass,—
If ye will indeed hearken unto me,
Declareth Yahweh,
To bring in no burden, through the gates of this city, on the sabbath' day,—
But to hallow the sabbath day, by not doing thereon any manner of work>
Then shall enter in through the gates of this city,
Kings and princes,
Sitting on the throne of David,
Riding in chariots and on horses,
[They, and their princes],
[The men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem],
And this city shall remain unto times age-abiding.

21. And they shall come in—
Out of the cities of Judah, and
Out of the places round about Jerusalem, and Out of the land of Benjamin, and
Out of the lowlands, and out of the hill country, and
Out of the South,
Bringing in ascending-offering, and peace-offering, and meal-offering, and frankincense,—
Even they who bring in a thankoffering into the house of Yahweh.

22. But if ye will not hearken unto me—
To hallow the sabbath day,
And to bear no burden and bring in through the gates of Jerusalem [on the sabbath day]>
Then will I kindle a fire within her gates,
And it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem,
And shall not be quenched.

23. The Potter's House and its Lessons: attempting to enforce which, Jeremiah's Heurers conspire against him, and he prays against them—though once he had pleaded for them.

1. The word that came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying:
2. Arise and go down, to the house of the potter,—and [there] will I cause thee to hear my words.
3. So I went down, to the house of the potter,—and, there he was! making a piece of work, on the wheels. [Then was marred] the vessel that he was making, while yet it was clay in the hand of the potter,—so he turned and made of it another vessel, as seemed right in the eyes of the potter to make it. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

4. <Like this potter> can I not deal with you, O house of Israel?

Demandeth Yahweh:
Lo! <as clay in the hand of the potter>
[Sol are ye] in my hand, O house of Israel.

5. <The moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to pull up and to break down, and to destroy; and that nation return from its wickedness, against whom I have spoken> then will I repent concerning the calamity which I had devised to bring upon it.

6. And <the moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to build, and to plant; and it commit wickedness in mine eyes, in not hearkening unto my voice> then will I repent concerning the good wherewith I had said I would do it good.

7. Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the men of Judah, and concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying,

8. Thus saith Yahweh,—
Lo! I am fashioning against you calamity, and devising against you a device,—Return, I pray you, every man from his wicked way,
And amend your ways, and your doings.
And <since they will say>, Hopeless! For <after our own devices> will we walk, And <every one> <the stubbornness of his own wicked heart> will we do!> 12 "Therefore,"<Thus> saith Yahweh, Ask, I pray you, among the nations,— Who' hast heard such things as these? <A very horrible thing> hath [the virgin, Israel] done! 14 Shall the snow of Lebanon fail from the rock of the field? Or shall waters from afar, deep, overflowing, be dried up? 15 Yet my people have [have forgotten me], <Unto vanity> have they been burning incense; And it hath caused them to stumble In their ways, The roads of age-past times, To walk in by-paths— A way [not cast up]. 16 To make their land a desolation. The hissings of age-abiding times,— Every one that passeth by her shall lie astonished and wag his head. 17 <Like an east wind> will I scatter them before the enemy,— <The back and not the face> will I let them see, in the day of their distress. "Then said they,— Come ye, and let us devise against Jeremiah devices. For |the law| shall not perish |from the priest.| Nor |counsel| from |the wise|, Nor |the word| from |the prophet|: 18 Come and let us smite him with the tongue, And let us not give ear to any of his words! " Give thou ear, O Yahweh, unto me,— And hearken unto the voice of mine accusers. Shall live be recompensed for |good|? 19 For they have digged a pit for my life,— Remember how I stood before thee, To speak, in their behalf, what was good! To turn back thine indignation from them. Therefore| give thou up their sons' to the famine. And deliver them into the hands of the sword, And let their [wives] become [childless and widows], And let [their men] be slain by death, Their young men be smitten by the sword in battle. 20 Let there be heard a cry out of their houses, When thou shalt bring in upon them a troop, [suddenly].— Because they digged a pit to capture me, And <snares did they hide for my feet.>
to the bird of the heavens, and to the beast of the earth;
8 And I will make this city a desolation, and a hissing,—every one that passeth by it shall be astonished and hiss, over all her wounds; a
9 And I will suffer them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters, yes—every one—the flesh of his friend will they eat,—in the siege, and in the straitness, wheresoever [their enemies, and they who seek their lives], will straiten them.

Then shalt thou break the bottle, before the eyes of the men who are walking with thee;
10 and shalt say unto them—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts—
\|Thus and thus\| will I break this people, and this city,
As one breaketh the vessel of a potter, which cannot be made whole any more,—
And <in Topheth> shall they bury, for want of place to bury.
12 ||Thus|| will I do to this place,
Declareth Yahweh,
And to the inhabitants thereof,—
||Even making this city like Topheth||:
Yea [the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah], shall <like the place of Topheth> be places defiled,—even all the houses, upon whose roofs they burned incense, to all the host of the heavens, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods.

Then entered Jeremiah out of Topheth, whither Yahweh had sent him to prophesy,—and stood in the court of the house of Yahweh, and said unto all the people:
14 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Behold me ! bringing in against this city, and upon all the cities thereof,
The whole calamity which I have pronounced, against her,—
Because they stiffened their neck, that they might not hear my words.

§ 16. Jeremiah is smitten and put in the Stocks by Pashhur, priest, and overseer of the Temple. Next day, when set free, he boldly denounces Pashhur—naming him a "Terror-round-about," and doomning him to be carried Captive to Babylon. Then his Mind recoils, especially when he finds himself laughed at and nicknamed by the People; he resolves to be silent, and cannot: finally, in full Oriental style, he curses the Day he was born.

And <when Pashhur son of Immer, the priest, who also was deputy-overseer in the house of Yahweh, heard that Jeremiah had prophesied these things>, then Pashhur smote Jeremiah the prophet,—and put him in the stocks, that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, which was in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass <on the morrow, when Pashhur brought forth Jeremiah, out of the stocks> —that Jeremiah said unto him—

<Not Pashhur> hath Yahweh called thy name,
But Mdôr-mîṣpatîm[— "Terror-round-about"].

4 For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
Behold me ! making thee a [mdôr, i.e. a] terror to thyself and to all who love thee, and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, [thine own eyes also] holding.
And <all Judah> will I deliver into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will carry them captive to Babylon, and smite them with the sword.

And I will deliver up—
All the wealth of this city, and all her labour and all her precious things,—
And <all the treasures of the kings of Judah> will I deliver up into the hands of their enemies, and they will make of them a prey, and take them, and carry them into Babylon.

6 And <thou, Pashhur, and all who are dwelling in thy house> shall go into captivity,— Yea <into Babylon> shalt thou enter,
And <there> shalt thou die,
And <there> shalt thou be buried.
Thou, and all who love thee, to whom thou hast prophesied falsely ||

7 Thou didst persuade me, O Yahweh, and I was persuaded,
Thou didst lay firm hold on me, and didst prevail,—
I am become a mockery |all the day|,
Every one || is laughing at me.

8 For <as often as I speak> I make outcry,
<Violence and wasting> I proclaim,—
Yea the word of Yahweh hath become' to me a reproach and derision, |all the day|.

9 Therefore I say—
I will not mention him,
Neither will I speak any more in his name,
But then it becometh in my heart, as a fire that burneth,
Shut up in my bones,—
And I am weary of restraint, and cannot refrain.

a Or: " scourgings." The word used means "blow," "wound" "slaughter."
All the visible havoc wrought by an invading army is here comprehended.
• Or: " keep saying."
Because I have heard the whispering of many—

"A terror round about!"*
Tell ye [say they], that we may tell of him,
All the men I am wont to salute]* do watch for my halting,— [Peradventure he will be persuaded, and we shall prevail over him, and take our vengeance upon him.

But [Yahweh] is with me, as a mighty one striking terror,
For this cause shall my persecutors stumble, and not prevail,—
They have turned very pale.
For they have not prospered, <Confusion age-abiding> it shall not be forgotten!

But, O Yahweh of hosts—
Testing the righteous.
Beholding the affections* and the heart,—
Let me see the avenging upon them,
For <unto thee> have I laid bare my cause.

Sing ye to Yahweh! Praise ye Yahweh!
For he hath delivered the soul* of the needy, out of the hand of evildoers.

Accursed!* be the day on which I was born,—
<The day when my mother bare me> let it not be blessed!
Accursed!* be the man who carried tidings to my father, saying,
There is born to thee a man-child!
Making him very glad:
Yea let that man be—as the cities which Yahweh overthrew and repented not,—
And let him hear
An outcry in the morning, and A war-shout at broad noon!
Because I was not slain from the womb,—
Nor did [my mother] become [my grave],
Nor was her womb great for ever!
Wherefore was it—
That <from the womb> I came forth, to see labour and pain; and
That [in shame] should [my days] be consumed!

The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—when King Zedekiah sent unto him

In reply to Enquiries of Yahweh made by Jeremiah for King Zedekiah, special Answers are sent to the King, to the People, and to the House of David. Further Messages to the Royal House.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—when King Zedekiah sent unto him

Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah,* son of Maaseiah,* the priest, saying:

Enquire for us, I pray thee, of Yahweh, in that [Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon] maketh war against us,—[Peradventure] Yahweh will deal with us, according to all his wonders, so that he go up from us.

Then said Jeremiah unto them,—
[Thus] shall ye say unto Zedekiah:

God of Israel—

Behold me! turning back the weapons of war that are in your hand, wherewith [ye] are fighting the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans, who are besieging you, outside the wall,—and I will gather them into the midst of this city.

And [I myself] will fight against you, with a hand outstretched, and with an arm of strength,—and with anger and with wrath, and with great indignation; * and I will smite the inhabitants of this city, [both man and beast], <of a great pestilence> shall they die.

And <after that> Declareth Yahweh—
Will I deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people,—even such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine,—into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, even into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and he will smite them with the edge of the sword, he will not have pity on them, nor will he spare, nor will he have compassion.

And <unto this people> shalt thou say,

Thus saith Yahweh,—
Behold me! setting before you the way of life, and the way of death.—

He that remaineth in this city shall die—by the sword, or* by the famine, or by the pestilence,—
Whereas he that goeth forth and falleth unto the Chaldeans, who are besieging you,—then shall he live,* and [his life]* shall become to him [a spoil];

For I have set my face against this city, for calamity and not for blessing.
Declareth Yahweh,—
<Into the hand of the king of Babylon> shall it be given up, and he will burn it with fire.
Now to the house of the king of Judah—hear ye the word of Yahweh:

O house of David!

Thus saith Yahweh, Administer justice [betimes],*

And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,—

Let mine indignation come forth like fire;

And burn, and there be none to quench it,

Because of the wickedness of your doings.

Behold me against thee, O thou dweller in the vale, on the level rock,

Declareth Yahweh,—

Ye who are saying: Who shall come down upon us? Who shall enter our habitations?

Yet will I bring punishment upon you, according to the fruit of your doings.

Execute ye justice and righteousness, And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,—

But the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow do not oppress, neither commit violence,

And the blood of the innocent do not ye shed in this place.

For if ye indeed do this thing then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, he, and his servants, and his people—

But the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow do not oppress, neither commit violence,

And the blood of the innocent do not ye shed in this place.

For if ye indeed do this thing then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, he, and his servants, and his people—

But the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow do not oppress, neither commit violence,

And the blood of the innocent do not ye shed in this place.

For if ye indeed do this thing then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, he, and his servants, and his people—

But the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow do not oppress, neither commit violence,

And the blood of the innocent do not ye shed in this place.

Concerning the house of the king of Judah,—

Though thou wast Gilead to me, The summit of Lebanon

Yet surely I will make thee, A wilderness, Cities not habitable;

And I will hallow against thee Destroyers, Every man with his weapons—

And they shall cut down of the choicest of thy cedars, and cast upon the fire.

Then shall many nations pass by this city,—and shall say, every man to his neighbour,

<For what cause> hath Yahweh done thus unto this great city?

And they shall say, Because they forsook the covenant of Yahweh, their God,—

And bowed down to other gods. And served them.

Do not ye lament for him that is dead, Neither bemoan ye [him],

But weep ye—weep on—for him that is going away,

For he shall not return any more. Nor see the land of his birth.

For Touching Shallum, b son of Josiah, king of Judah,

That reignedst instead of Josiah, his father,

Who hath gone forth out of this place, He shall not return thither any more:

For <in the place whither they have taken him captive>

There! shall he die,—

And <this land> shall he see no more.

Alas! for him who buildeth His house without righteousness, And his roof-chambers without justice,—

<Of his neighbour taketh service (or nought, And <recompense for his work> giveth him not.

Who saith—

I will build me a roomy house, with spacious roof-chambers,— So he cutteth him open its windows, And it is covered in with cedar.

And he painteth it with vermilion.

Shalt thou reign, because thou art eager to excel in cedar?

<Thy father> did he not eat and drink, do justice and righteousness, And then it was well with him? Did he not [plead the cause of the oppressed and the needy. And then it was well?

Was not [that] to know [me]?

Demandeth Yahweh.

Verily thou hast neither eyes, nor heart, saw for thy plundering and for thy shedding of innocent blood, and for oppression and for crushing, to do them!'
Therefore—Thus saith Yahweh,

Registeryethisman |childless|,

A man who shall not prosper in his days,—

For there shall prosper of his seed,

No man sitting upon the throne of David,

Or ruling any more over Judah.

§ 18. Bad Shepherds denounced: Yahweh himself will gather the Remnant of his Flock, and raise up Good Shepherds, notably One of Davidic Descent, of Saving Power, and of Divine Name; in whose Days a Wider Return than from Babylon shall furnish a new Formula for Swearing. False Prophets, Dreamers, Pretenders are to be for ever disgraced.

1 Alas for the shepherds, who are destroying and scattering the sleep of my pasture,

Declareth Yahweh.

2 [Therefore]

Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel, Concerning the shepherds who are tending my people,—

Ye have scattered my flock, and have driven them away, and have not visited them,—

Behold me! visiting upon you the wickedness of your doings,

Declareth Yahweh.

3 ¶ I myself therefore, will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—

And will bring them back unto their own fold,

And they shall be fruitful and multiply;

And I will raise up over them shepherds, who will tend them,—

So shall they not be afraid any more, nor be dismayed, nor be missing.

Declareth Yahweh.

5 Lo! |days are coming|.

Declareth Yahweh, when I will raise up to David A righteous Bud,

And he shall reign as' king, and prosper,

And shall execute justice and righteousness in the land.

6 <In his days>

Shall Judah |be saved|,

AndIsrael| abide securely,—

And [this] is his name whereby he shall be called,

Yahweh||our Righteousness.

7 |Therefore| lo! |days are coming|.

Declareth Yahweh,

When it shall not be said any more,

As Yahweh liveth, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

but—

As Yahweh liveth, who hath brought up and who hath brought in the seed of the house of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—

And they shall remain upon their own soil.

9 As for the prophets—
  Broken is my heart within me,
  Trembled have all my bones,
  I have become as a drunken man,
  And as a strong man whom wine hath overcome,—
  Because of Yahweh,
  And because of his holy words.

For <with adulterers> is the land filled;
  Yes <because of cursing> doth the land mourn,
  Dried up are the oases of the desert,—
  And |their oppression | hath become wicked,
  And ||their might|| is not right.

11 For ||both prophet and priest|| are profane,—
  <In my house> have I found their wickedness.
    Declareth Yahweh.

13 <Even among the prophets of Samaria> had I seen a foolish thing,—
  They prophesied by Baal,
  And led astray my people Israel.

14 But <among the prophets of Jerusalem> have I seen a horrible thing,— Committing adultery.
    And walking in falsehood.
    And so strengthening the hands of doers of wickedness, not to return any man from his wickedness:
    They have |all of them| become to me |as Sodom|.
    And her inhabitants, |as Gomorrah|.

15 |Therefore|
    ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts—
    Concerning the prophets,—
    Behold me!
    Feeding them with wormwood,
    And I will cause them to drink poisoned water, b

For <from the prophets of Jerusalem> hath there gone forth profanity unto all the land.

16 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—
    Do not hearken unto the words of the prophets who are prophesying unto you,
    They are filling you ||with vain hopes|,—
    <The vision of their own hearts> do they speak,
    Not from the mouth of Yahweh!

17 They keep on saying to them who despise me,
    Yahweh |has spoken|, [saying]
    <Prosperity> shall ye have!

And <to every one who is going on in the stubbornness of his own heart> have they said,
  There shall come on you [no calamity];
  For who’ hath stood in the council of Yahweh, that he should see, and hear his word?
  Who hath given ear to his word, and heard it?

19 Lo! the tempest of Yahweh!
  ||Indignation|| hath come forth,
  Even a tempest whirling along:
  <On the head of the lawless> shall it hurl itself down.

20 The anger of Yahweh |will not return,
  Until he hath executed, nor
  Until he hath established,
  The purposes of his heart,—
  <In the afterpart of the days> shall ye understand it |perfectly|.

21 I sent not the prophets, yet |they ran.
  I spake not unto them yet |they prophesied.
  But |if they had stood in my council|
  Then might they have announced my words unto my people,
  And have turned them from their wicked way and from the wickedness of their doings.

23 Am I |a God at hand|,
    Demandeth Yahweh.
  And not a God afar off?

24 Can any hide’ himself in secret places, that |I shall not see him?
    Demandeth Yahweh.
  <The heavens and the earth > do I not fill?
    Demandeth Yahweh.

25 I have heard what the prophets |have said’ who prophesy in my name falsely, saying,—
  I have dreamed! I have dreamed!
  |How long| shall it be’ in the heart of the prophets,
  [To be] prophets of falsehood,—
  And prophets of the deceit of their own heart?

27 Who lay a plot* to cause my people |to forget| my name, by their dreams which they relate, every man to his neighbour,—
  Just as their fathers forgot |my name|.
  ||for‘ Baal||.

28 <The prophet with whom is a dream>
  Let him relate it as’ a dream,
  And |he with whom is my word|
  Let him speak my word as’ truth,—
  What is the chaff* to the wheat’?
    Demandeth Yahweh:

  * Or: “ Are they laying plot . . . ” — G.n.
  * Or: “ in,” “ through.”
  * Cp. Lsa. i. 10.
  # Ml.: “ water of gall.”
Is not my word [like this],
Like first?— Demandeth Yahweh,—
And like a hammer, that breaketh in pieces a cliff?

Therefore, behold me against the prophets.
Declareth Yahweh,—
who steal my words, every man from his neighbour:
Behold me against the prophets,
Declareth Yahweh, who presume with their tongue and declare, He declareth:

Behold me against such as prophesy the dreams, off falsehood. Declareth Yahweh, who have related them, and led astray my people, with their falsehoods and with their recklessness,—whereas I had not sent them, nor commanded them, so that they could be of no profit to this people;
Declareth Yahweh.

But when this people, or a prophet or a priest, shall ask thee, saying:
What is the oracle of Yahweh?
Then shalt thou say unto them,
Ye yourselves are the oracle, Therefore will I reject you,
Declareth Yahweh;
But the prophet, or the priest, or the people, who shall say—
The oracle of Yahweh: I will bring punishment upon that man, and upon his house.

Thus shall ye say—every man unto his neighbour, and every man unto his brother,—
What hath Yahweh answered thee? or, What hath Yahweh spoken?
but the oracle of Yahweh shall ye not mention any more,—for every man's oracle shall be his own word, because ye have perverted the words of a Living God, [Yahweh of hosts, our God].

Thus shall thou say unto the prophet,—
What hath Yahweh answered thee? or What hath Yahweh spoken?
But since ye keep on saying—
{The Oracle of Yahweh},
|therefore:
Thus saith Yahweh,
Because ye have said this word. The oracle of Yahweh, whereas I had sent unto you saying, Ye shall not say, The oracle of Yahweh, therefore behold me! I will lift you up,—and carry you away, and the city which I gave to you and to your fathers, from before my face; and will give unto you reproach age-abiding,—and disgrace age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.

§ 19. Two Baskets of Figs: the Good representing the Captives; and the Bad setting forth such as remain in Judah or dwell in Egypt.

Yahweh shewed me, and lo! two baskets of figs, which had been set before the temple of Yahweh,—after that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon had carried away captive, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, and the carpenters and the smiths, out of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon:—[the one basket] was of very good figs, like the first-ripe figs; and [the other basket] was of very bad figs, which could not be eaten for badness.

Then said Yahweh unto me,—
What canst thou see, Jeremiah?
And I said.
Figs:
the good figs very good; and the bad very bad, which cannot be eaten for badness.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh God of Israel,
Like these good figs shall I regard them of Judah who are carried into captivity, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, [for good].
Therefore will I set mine eye upon them, [for good], and will bring them back upon this land,— and will build them up, and not pull them down, and will plant them, and not root them up;
and will give them a heart, to know me, that I am Yahweh,
So shall they become my people,
and I will become their God;
for they will return unto me with all their heart.

And like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten for badness:
Surely thus saith Yahweh—
I will deliver up Zedekiah king of Judah, and his princes, and the remnant of Jerusalem, that remain in this land, and them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt; yea I will deliver them up, as a terror of calamity, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—as a reproach, and as a byword, as a mockery and as a contempt, in every place whither I will drive them; and I will send among them, sword, famine and pestilence,—until they are consumed from off the soil, which I gave to them, and to their fathers.
§ 20. Jeremiah sums up the Messages he had delivered against Judah and Jerusalem, from the thirteenth Year of Josiah to the fourth of Jehoiakim; declaring that, as these Messages had been unheeded, the threatened Chaldean Invasion must needs come, but the Captivity in Babylon should be limited to Seventy Years. The Prophet passes the Cup of Indignation round to the Nations, beginning at Jerusalem, and significantly ending with Sheshach (or Babylon, chap. li. 41).

1 The word, which came upon* Jeremiah, concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah,—

2 which [word] Jeremiah the prophet spake concerning all the people of Judah, and against* all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying:—

3 <From the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amon king of Judah, even until this day, the which is the twenty-third year> hath the word of Yahweh come unto me; and I have spoken unto you, [betimes] speaking, yet have ye not hearkened. 4 And Yahweh sent unto you, all his servants the prophets, [betimes] sending, though ye hearkened not, neither inclined ye your ear' to hear:

5 saying,—

Return, I pray you, every one from his wicked way and from the wickedness of your doings,

6 So shall ye remain on the soil which Yahweh hath given' to you and to your fathers,—even from age to age;

7 But do not go away after other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them,— So shall ye not provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, and I will not bring calamity upon you;

8 Howbeit ye hearkened not unto me, that ye might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, unto your own hurt.

Declareth Yahweh,—

9 [Therefore]—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—

10 <Because ye have not heard my words>,—

11 Behold me! sending and fetching all the families of the North,

12 Declareth Yahweh, and Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant,

13 And I will bring them in against this land and against its inhabitants, and against all these nations, [round about],—

14 And I will devote them to destruction, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and age-abiding desolations.

15 And I will banish from among them—

The voice of joy and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,—
The sound of the millstones, and the light of the lamp:*

16 So shall all this land become, a desolation, an astonishment,*

And these nations shall serve the king of Babylon, seventy years.

17 And it shall come to pass—

<When the seventy years are fulfilled>

I will visit upon the king of Babylon and upon that nation,

Declareth Yahweh, their iniquity, and upon the land of the Chaldeans,— and I will turn it into age-abiding desolations.

18 So will I bring upon that land,

All my words which I have spoken against it,—

Even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations.

19 For many nations, and great kings, have used [even them]| as slaves,

So will I recompense to them—

According to their deed, and

According to the work of their own hands.

20 For [thus] said Yahweh, God of Israel unto me,

Take this cup of indignation' wine, out of my hand,—

16 ye shall drink, and reel to and fro, and act as madmen, because of the sword which I am sending between them.

21 So I took the cup out of the hand of Yahweh,— and caused all the nations, unto whom Yahweh had sent me, [to drink it]: 16 [to wit, said he]—

Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and her kings, her princes,—making them a desolation, an astonishment, a hissing, and a contempt, [as at this day];

22 Pharoh king of Egypt, and his servants, and his princes, and all his people;

23 And all the Bedawin,* and all the kings of the land of Uz,—and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, even Ashkelon, and Gaza, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod:

24 Edom and Moab, and the sons of Ammon;

25 And all the kings of Tyre, and all the kings of Zidon,—and the kings* of the Coastland, that is beyond the sea;
Then shall shall the slain of Yahweh <in that day> be from one end of the earth, even to the other end of the earth,—
They shall not be lamented, nor gathered together, nor buried,
<As dung, on the face of the ground> shall they serve.

43 Howl, ye shepherds, and make outcry,
And roll in the dust, ye illustrious of the flock,
Because your days for being slaughtered are fulfilled,—
Therefore will I break you in pieces, and ye shall fall, like a precious vessel!

45 Then shall place of refuge vanish from the shepherds,
And escape, from the illustrious of the flock.
The voice of the outcry of the shepherds!
Yes the howling of the illustrious of the flock!—
Because Yahweh is laying waste the grounds where they fed.

47 Then shall be silenced the prosperous pastures, b—
Because of the fierceness of the anger of Yahweh.

48 He hath left, as a lion, his covert,
For their land hath become a horror,
Because of the fierceness of oppression, and
Because of the fierceness of his anger.

§ 21. Jeremiah, delivering his Warnings in the Temple Court, Priests, Prophets, and People seize him and threaten him with death; whereupon the Princes hear the Case: the Peril of the Prophet is noted, but Ahikam delivers
Jeremiah out of his Enemies' Hands.

1 <In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah> came this word from Yahweh, saying:

†Thus saith Yahweh,—
Stand thou in the court of the house of Yahweh, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, who are entering in to bow down in the house of Yahweh, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them,
—do not thou keep back a word:

3 Peradventure they will hear, and return every man from his wicked' way,— and I shall repent as to the calamity which I am devising to execute upon them, because of the wickedness of their doings:

4 Therefore shalt thou say unto them,
†Thus saith Yahweh,—
<If ye will not hearken unto me,
To walk in my law"d which I have set before
you;
Then rose up men, from among the elders of the land, and spake unto all the convocation of the people, saying:

18. "Micah" the Morashite was prophesying, in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah,—and he spake unto all the people of Judah, saying,

"Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—

Zion shall be plowed; and Jerusalem shall be turned into heaps of ruins.

19. Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah put him to death? Did he not revere Yahweh and appease the face of Yahweh?

And did not Yahweh repent him, as to the calamity which he had spoken against them?

20. There was, however, a man prophesying in the name of Yahweh, Urijah, son of Shemaiah, of Keriath-jearim,—who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah.

And when King Jehoiakim, and all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, then the king sought to put him to death,—but Urijah heard, and feared, and fled, and entered Egypt.

21. Then did King Jehoiakim send men to Egypt,—even Elkanah son of Achbor, and certain men with him, into Egypt, and they brought forth Urijah out of Egypt, and took him in unto King Jehoiakim, who smote him with the sword,—and cast out his dead body among the graves of the sons of the people.

22. There was, however, a man prophesying in the name of Yahweh, Urijah, son of Shemaiah, of Keriath-jearim,—who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah.

And when King Jehoiakim, and all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, then the king sought to put him to death,—but Urijah heard, and feared, and fled, and entered Egypt.

Then did King Jehoiakim send men to Egypt,—even Elkanah son of Achbor, and certain men with him, into Egypt, and they brought forth Urijah out of Egypt, and took him in unto King Jehoiakim, who smote him with the sword,—and cast out his dead body among the graves of the sons of the people.

24. Howbeit if the hand of Ahikam, son of Shaphan turned out to be with Jeremiah,—so as not to give him up into the hand of the people, to put him to death.

§ 22. Jeremiah, making Symbolic Bonds and Bars, prophetically charges the Kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre and Zidon to submit to Nebuchadnezzar, in spite of False Prophets counselling resistance. A similar Charge to the Priests and People of Jerusalem to disregard their False Prophets: the Temple Vessels shall not soon be brought back; but those still left shall be taken.

1. In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim 27 son of Josiah, king of Judah, came this word unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

3. "Thus saith Yahweh unto me, Make thee bonds and bars, and put them upon thine own neck.

29. ML: "Just cause of death pertaineth to this man."

Then shalt thou send them unto the king of Edom, and unto the king of Moab, and unto the king of the sons of Ammon, and unto the king of Tyre, and unto the king of Zidon,—by the hand of messengers* coming into Jerusalem, unto Zedekiah king of Judah. And thou shalt give them charge, unto their lords, saying,—

| Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, |
| Thus shall ye say unto your lords:— |

I made The earth—The man and the beast that are on the face of the earth—

By my great power, And by mine outstretched arm,— And gave it to whomsoever was right in mine own eyes.

Now therefore, I have given all these lands, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, my servant,—Moreover also <the wild beast of the field> have I given him, to serve him. Therefore shall all the nations serve him, and his son, and his son's son,—until the time even of his own land itself arrive, when many nations and great kings shall use him as a slave.

And it shall come to pass, that <the nation or kingdom which will not serve him, even Nebuchadnezzar> king of Babylon, and that will not put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon>, —<with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence> will I bring punishment upon that nation.

Declareth Yahweh, until I have consumed them by his hand.

Ye therefore, do not ye hearken unto your prophets, nor unto your diviners, nor unto your dreams, nor unto your users of hidden arts, nor unto your mutterers of incantations,— in that they are speaking unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; for <falsehood> are they prophesying unto you,—that ye may be far removed from off your own soil, and I drive you out, and ye be destroyed.

But <the nation that shall bring its neck into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him> I will let them remain in quietness upon their own soil, and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

Also <unto Zedekiah king of Judah> spake I, according to all these words, saying,—

Bring your necks into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live!

Wherefore should ye die, thou, and thy people, by sword, by famine, and by pestilence,—as Yahweh hath spoken, against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?

Do not, then, hearken unto the words of the prophets who are speaking unto you, saying—Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon,—for <falsehood> are they prophesying unto you. For I have not sent them.

Declareth Yahweh, but they are prophesying in my name, falsely,—to the end I may drive you out and ye be destroyed, ye, and the prophets who are prophesying unto you.

Also <unto the priests, and unto all this people> spake I, saying,

| Thus saith Yahweh, |

Do not hearken unto the words of your prophets, who are prophesying unto you, saying, Lo! <the vessels of the house of Yahweh> are to be brought back out of Babylon, now, quickly; for <falsehood> are they prophesying unto you. Do not hearken unto them, serve the king of Babylon, and live! wherefore should this city become a desolation?

But <if prophets they are>, and if the word of Yahweh is' with them> let them intercede, I pray you, with Yahweh of hosts, that the vessels which are left remaining in the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, <come not> into Babylon. For <Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—Concerning the pillars, and concerning the sea, and concerning the stands,—and concerning the residue of the vessels that remain in this city> which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took not, when he carried away captive Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon,—with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem> Yea,—Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—Concerning the vessels that are left, [in] the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king of Judah, and Jerusalem>

Into Babylon shall they be taken. And <there> shall they remain, Until the day that I visit [them].

Declareth Yahweh, When I will bring them up, and restore them unto this place.

§ 23. The Prophet Hananiah, daring to foretell in the Divine Name, the Breaking of Nebuchadnezzar’s Yoke within two Years, Jeremiah is charged to confront and contradict him, and to foretell Hananiah’s Death that Year—which comes to pass.

And it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that Hananiah son of Azzur, the prophet who was of Gibeon, spake unto me in the house of Yahweh, before the eyes of the priests and all the people, saying:

28 And it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that Hananiah son of Azzur, the prophet who was of Gibeon, spake unto me in the house of Yahweh, before the eyes of the priests and all the people, saying:

29 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying,—

I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon:

30 within the space of two years, I am bringing back into this place, all the vessels of the house of Yahweh, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon hath taken away, from this place, and carried into Babylon. <Jeconiah also, son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, with all the captives of Judah who have entered Babylon> am I bringing back into this place.

31 Declareth Yahweh,— for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

Then said Jeremiah the prophet, unto Hananiah the prophet, in the presence of the priests and in the presence of all the people, who were standing in the house of Yahweh, then said Jeremiah the prophet,—

Amen! Thus may Yahweh do, Yahweh establish’ thy words which thou hast prophesied, by bringing back the vessels of the house of Yahweh and all them of the captivity, from Babylon, unto this place.

32 The prophets who were before me and before thee, from age-past times, when they prophesied against many lands, and concerning great kingdoms, of war, and of calamity, and of pestilence, the prophet who prophesied of peace, when the word of the prophet was fulfilled, then was known’ the prophet, whom Yahweh had sent in truth.

33 Then Hananiah the prophet took the yoke’ from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, and brake it. And Hananiah spake before the eyes of all the people, saying,

Thus saith Yahweh,—

In like manner will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, within the space of two years, from off the neck of all the nations.

And Jeremiah the prophet went his way.

34 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah after that Hananiah the prophet had brake the yoke from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, saying:

Go and speak unto Hananiah, saying—

Thus saith Yahweh, <Yokes of wood> thou hast broken,— But thou shalt make, in their stead, yokes of iron!

For Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—<A yoke of iron> have I put upon the neck of all these nations, to serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and they shall serve him!

Moreover also <the wild beast of the field> have I given to him.

17 Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto Hananiah the prophet,—

Hear, I pray thee, Hananiah: Yahweh hath not sent thee, therefore, hast caused this people to trust in falsehood: Therefore Thus saith Yahweh, Behold me! driving thee away from off the face of the ground,—<This year> art thou to die, Because revolt thou to die.

18 So Hananiah the prophet died the same year, in the seventh month.

§ 24. Jeremiah’s Letter to the Captives in Babylon, charging them to settle down and seek the Welfare of the City where they sojourn, as them of a Return after Seventy Years, and warning them against False Prophets—namely Ahik, Zedekiah, and Shemaiah.

1 Now these are the words of the letter which Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem unto all the captivity whom I have suffered to be carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon;—after that Jeconiah the king and the queen-mother and the eunuch, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem and the craftsmen and the smiths, had gone forth from Jerusalem;—after that Jeconiah the king and the queen-mother and the eunuch, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem and the craftsmen and the smiths, had gone forth from Jerusalem;—by the hand of Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent unto Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Unto all the captivity whom I have suffered to be carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon:

Heb. : y’moryah, here only; & y’moryah.
Build ye houses, and dwell in them;—
And plant ye gardens, and eat the fruit thereof;
6Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters,
And take wives for your sons and daughters; give ye to husbands,
That they may beget ye many there, and do not become few;
7And seek the welfare of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray for her unto Yahweh,—For in her welfare shall ye have welfare.

For thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,
Let not your prophets that are in your midst, nor your diviners, beguile you;
Neither hearken ye unto your dreams, which ye are dreaming:
For falsely are they prophesying unto you, in my name,—I have not sent them, Declareth Yahweh.

10For thus saith Yahweh,—That as soon as there are fulfilled to Babylon seventy years I will visit you, —and establish for you, my good word, by causing you to return unto this place.

11For I know the plans which I am planning for you, Declareth Yahweh,—Plans of welfare, and not of calamity, To give you a future and a hope.''

So shall ye call upon me,—And go and pray unto me,—For I will be found of you, Declareth Yahweh,
And will turn back your captivity.'

Therefore will I pursue them, with sword, with famine, and with pestilence,—And will make them a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth;
A curse and an astonishment and a hissing and a reproach, among all the nations whither I have driven them:
Because they hearkened not unto my words,
Declareth Yahweh,—which I sent unto them by my servants the prophets, [betimes] sending them, yet hearkened they not.

Declareth Yahweh.

Ye therefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh, all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon:
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,
Concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah, and concerning Zedekiah son of Maaseiah, who are prophesyng to you in my name [a falsehood],
Behold me ! delivering them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he will smite them before your eyes:
So shall there be taken up—from them—a curse,* by all of the captivity of Judah who are in Babylon, saying,— Yahweh make thee like Zedekiah and like Ahab,
Whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire!

Because they have committed vilence in Israel,
And have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbours,
And have spoken, as a word in my name, [a falsehood] [which I commanded them not],—And I am one who knoweth—and a witness, Declareth Yahweh.

Also unto Shemaiah the Nehelamite shalt thou speak, saying:
Thus speaketh Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying,— Because thou hast sent, in thine own name, [letters], unto all the people who are in Jerusalem, and unto Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, and unto all the priests,
saying:
Yahweh hath made thee priest, instead of Jehoiada the priest, that ye should lie [deputies in the house of Yahweh, to any man who is raving and prophesying, so shalt thou put him into the stocks and into the pillory:
Now therefore, why hast thou not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth, who is prophesying unto you? 28 For on this account hath he sent unto us in Babylon, saying,—

'Tis long!

Build ye houses, and dwell [in them], And plant gardens, and eat the fruit thereof.

And Zephaniah the priest hath read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet.

Therefore hath the word of Yahweh come unto Jeremiah, saying:

Send thou unto all them of the captivity, saying,

Thus saith Yahweh.

Concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite,—

Because Shemaiah hath prophesied to you when I had not sent him, And hath caused you to trust in falsehood, Therefore I thus saith Yahweh,—

Behold me! bringing punishment upon Shemaiah the Nehelamite, and upon his seed, He shall have no man to dwell in the midst of this people, Nor shall he see the good that I am about to do for my people, Declareth Yahweh; Because revolt hath he spoken against Yahweh.

§ 25. A Scroll of Consolation. With brief Allusions to Israel's Sin and Punishment are given glowing Promises of her Deliverance, Healing, Return, and Permanent Rest, the Appearance of her Illustrious Ruler, the Inclusion of Samaria and Ephraim, the Consoling of Weeping Rachel, and finally a Refrain of Coming Days when there shall be a re-sowing of both Israel and Judah with Men; and a making, with both, a New Covenant, which, even in its outward Provisions, is confirmed by reference to the Stability of the Ordinances of Heaven.

30 1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh, God of Israel, saying,—

Write thee all the words which I have spoken unto thee, in a scroll;

For lo! [days are coming], Declareth Yahweh, when I will turn the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, and will bring them back into the land which I gave to their fathers, that they might possess it.

Now these are the words which Yahweh hath spoken against Israel and against Judah:

Yes ||thus|| saith Yahweh,

<A voice of trembling> have we heard, Dread, and not welfare!

6 Ask, I pray you, and see, whether a male travaileth with child!

Why' have I seen Every man with his hands upon his knees, like a woman in travail, and Every face turned into ghastliness?

7 Alas! for ||great|| is that day, so that none is like it,—

Yea |a time of anguish| it is! for Jacob, But <out of it> shall he be saved.

And it shall come to pass, in that day,—

Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

That I will break his yoke from off thy neck, And <thy bonds> will I tear off,— And foreigners shall use him as a slave no more; But they shall serve Yahweh their God,—and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them.

10 Thou therefore, do not fear, O my Servant Jacob, Urgeth Yahweh, Neither be thou dismayed, O Israel, For behold me! saving thee from afar, And thy seed out of the land of their captivity,— Then shall Jacob return, and rest and be quiet, And there shall be none to make him afraid;

11 For <with thee> am I, Declareth Yahweh.

To save thee,—

<Though I make an end of all the nations whither I have scattered thee>, Yet will I not <of thee> make an end, But will chastise thee in measure, not holding thee guiltless! 14 For ||thus|| saith Yahweh— Incurable is thine injury,— Grievous is thy wound:

There is none to plead thy cause, for binding thee up,—<Healing bandages> hast thou none:

<All thy lovers> have forgotten thee, <Thyself> do they not seek,— For <With the wounding of an enemy> have I wounded thee, With the correction of one who is cruel, Because of the abounding of thine iniquity. [Because] numerous' have been thy sins, Why' shouldst thou make outcry over thine injury, Incurable is thy pain? <Because of the wounding of thine iniquity, [Because] numerous' have been thy sins>

Have I done these things unto thee.

a Or: "too great to have one like it."
b Or: "again rest."
c N.B.: An example of statements seemingly absolute which yet are only relative. Cp. Isa. xxv. 16; xxxv. 7.
d (Cp. Exo. xxxiv. 7.)
e Some scholars place the clause at the head of next line.
Therefore, all who devour thee shall be devoured,
And all thine adversaries— all of them shall depart,—
So shall they who plundered thee be plundered,
And all who preyed upon thee will I deliver up as a prey.
For I will put a bandage upon thee,
And from thy wounds will I heal thee,
Declareth Yahweh, —
Because An outcast they called thee,
'Tis |Zion|| who hath none to ask for her welfare |
Thus saith Yahweh—
Behold me! bringing back the captivity of the tents of Jacob,
And on his habitations will I have compassion,—
So shall the city be builded, upon her own mound;
And the citadel shall remain,
So shall there proceed from them Thanksgiving and
The sound of them who make merry,—
And I will multiply them, and they shall not become few,
And will make them honourable, and they shall not be despised:*
And his sons shall come to be as aforetime,
And his assembly shall continue,—
And I will bring punishment on all his oppressors;
And his illustrious one shall spring from himself,
And his ruler shall spring from his own midst shall proceed,
And I will bring him near, and he shall approach unto me,—
For who is there that hath pledged* his own heart to approach unto me?
Demandeth Yahweh:
So shall ye become my' people;
And I will become your' God.
"Lo! | the tempest of Yahweh!"
"Indignation hath come forth,
A tempest rolling itself upward."
"<Upon the head of the lawless ones> shall it hurl itself down!"
The fierceness of the anger of Yahweh will not turn back,
Until he hath executed, nor until he hath established
The purposes of his heart,—
<In the afterpart of the days> shall ye understand it.

"Prob. = a thanksgiving choir." — O.O.
* Observe: completed double parallelism.
* Or: " For /who/ now, " Cp. chap. xxiii. 20.

<At that time> Declareth Yahweh, 31
I will become a God, to all the families of Israel;
And they shall become my' people.
Thus saith Yahweh,—
There hath found favour in the desert, a people escaped from the sword,—
I must go to cause him, even Israel, to rest.
<From afar> | Yahweh | hath appeared unto me.
Yea <with an age-abiding love> have I loved thee,
<For this cause> have I prolonged to thee lovingkindness.
<Again> will I build thee, and thou shalt be built, thou virgin, Israel,—
<Again> shalt thou deck thyself with thy timbrels,
And go forth in the dance of them that make merry:
<Again> shalt thou plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria,—
The planters have planted, and have laid open [the vineyards].
For it is a day the watchmen have proclaimed throughout the hill country of Ephraim,— Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion, unto Yahweh our God.

Behold me! bringing them in out of the land of the North,
And I will gather them out of the remote parts of the earth,<Among them> the blind and the lame,
The woman with child and she that giveth birth together,—
A great convocation shall return hither:
<With weeping> shall they come in,
And <with supplications> will I lead them,
I will bring them unto rivers of waters.
By a smooth way, wherein they shall not stumble,—
For I have become |to Israel| a father!,
And <as for Ephraim> my firstborn is he!
Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O ye nations,
And declare ye in the Coastlands afar off,—
And say—
<He that scattereth Israel> will gather him,
And watch over him, as a shepherd his flock;
For Yahweh hath ransomed Jacob,—
And redeemed him from the hand of one stronger than he.

* Or: "fathered host." Cp. ver.'aO;Ho*, x.-xii.
* See Deu. xx. 6.
* A sp. v.r. (aevir):"cities" Or: "gathered host."
Then shall they come in and shall shout in triumph on the height of Zion, and shall stream unto the goodness of Yahweh. To the wheat, and to the new wine, and to the oil, and to the young of the flocks and of the herds,— So shall their soul become like a garden well watered, and they shall not again languish any more. Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, and young men and elders, rejoice together,— And I will turn their mourning into gladness, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow; Then will I satiate the soul of the priests, with fatness, and my people with my goodness shall be satisfied, Declareth Yahweh.

Thus saith Yahweh— A voice in Ramah is heard, Wailing, bitter weeping, Rachel, weeping for her children,— She refused to be comforted for her children, For they are not! Then saith Yahweh— Restrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears,— For there is a reward for thy labour, Declareth Yahweh, So they shall return from the land of the enemy: Yea there is hope for thy future, Declareth Yahweh,— And thy sons shall return to their own boundary.

I have heard Ephraim, bemoaning himself, Thou hast chastised me, and I have been chastised, Like a bullock not broken in, Suffer me to return, that I may return, For thou art Yahweh my God. Surely after my return I was filled with regret, And after I came to know myself I smote upon the thigh,— I turned pale, and was even confounded, For I had borne the reproach of my youthful days.

Was Ephraim a very precious son to me? Was he a most delightful child? For as often as I have spoken against him I have remembered him again! For this cause have my affections been deeply moved for him, I must have compassion upon him, Declareth Yahweh.

Erect thee waymarks, Set thee up finger-posts, Apply thy heart to The highway— The road by which thou didst depart,— Return, O virgin of Israel, Return unto these thy cities. How long wilt thou turn hither and thither, O apostate daughter? For Yahweh hath created a new thing in the earth, A female defendeth a strong man!

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Again shall they say this word, in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I cause their captivity to return, Yahweh bless thee, Thou home of righteousness! Thou mountain of holiness!

Then shall there dwell throughout Judah itself and all the cities thereof, togethers,— Husbandmen, who shall move about with a flock; For I have satiated the weary soul,— And every languishing soul have I filled.

Upon this I awoke and considered,— And my sleep had been sweet to me!

Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh— That I will sow The house of Israel, and The house of Judah, With the seed of men, and With the seed of beasts; And it shall come to pass, that— Just as I watched over them, to root up and to break down and to tear out and to destroy, and to break in pieces So will I watch over them, to build and to plant. Declareth Yahweh. In those days shall they say no more, Fathers did eat sour grapes,— And children's teeth are blunted! But every one <for his own iniquity> shall die,— Any human being who eateth the sour grapes his own teeth shall be blunted.

Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh,— When I will solemnise with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah, A new covenant:

* Had the foregoing prophecy, then, been conveyed in a dream? It would appear so.
Not like the covenant which I solemnised with their fathers, in the day when I grasped their hand, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt,—

In that I brake my covenant, though I had become a husband unto them,* Declareth Yahweh.

For this is the covenant which I will solemnise with the house of Israel, after those days, Declareth Yahweh, I will put my law within them, Yea <on their heart> will I write it,— So will I become their God, and they shall become my people.

Then shall they no longer teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, 'Know ye Yahweh,' for they shall all know me, from the least of them even unto the greatest of them, Declareth Yahweh.

For the heavens above can be measured, or the foundations of the earth beneath be searched out I also may reject all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done,Declareth Yahweh.

Thus saith Yahweh—

Who hath given the sun for a light by day, the ordinances of the moon and the stars, for a light by night,— Who excided the sea, and the waves thereof roared(!)

Yahweh of hosts is his name:— If these ordinances depart from before me, Declareth Yahweh, — the seed of Israel also may cease from being a nation before me, all the days.

Thus saith Yahweh—

If the heavens above can be measured, or the foundations of the earth beneath be searched out > I also may reject all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done. Declareth Yahweh.

Lo! days are coming,* Declareth Yahweh, That the city shall be built for Yahweh, from the tower of Hananeel as far as the gate of the corner; Then shall go forth again the measuring-line straight forward, over the hill Oareb, and it shall go round to Goah;

And all the vale of the dead bodies, and of the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Kidron torrent-bed, as far as the horse-gate corner on the east, Shall be holy unto Yahweh,— It shall not be rooted up, nor thrown down, any more, unto times age-abiding.

§ 26. When requested by King Zedekiah to say what he had been prophesying against Jerusalem and the King, Jeremiah narrates how he had, under Divine Guidance, redeemed his Family's Property at Anathoth; this enables him to return to his Royal Questioner a circumstantial though indirect Reply.

The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah,—the same was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar; * and then, the forces of the king of Babylon were besieging Jerusalem, — and Jeremiah the prophet had been shut up in the guard-court, which was in the house of the king of Judah; * whom Zedekiah king of Judah had shut up, saying,—

Why art thou prophesying, saying,—

Thus saith Yahweh,

Behold I giving up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; * and Zedekiah king of Judah shall not be delivered out of the hand of the Chaldeans,—for he shall be wholly given up into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak—the mouth of the one to the mouth of the other, and the eyes of the one <into the eyes of the other> shall look; * and <into Babylon> shall he lead Zedekiah, and <there> shall he remain, until I visit him, Declareth Yahweh,— though ye fight with the Chaldeans ye shall not prosper?

And Jeremiah said,—

The word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Lo! Hanameel son of Shallum thine uncle hath come unto thee, saying,—

Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth, for thine is the right of redemption, to buy it.

So Hanameel son of mine uncle came unto me, according to the word of Yahweh, into the guard-court, and said unto me, Buy, I pray thee, my field that is in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin, for thine is the right of inheritance, and thine the redemption, buy it for thyself.

Aram. and Sep.) both written and read: "as far as "—G.n.

So in some cod. (w. 7 ear. pr. edns.) both written and read. M.C.T. writes: "dry places"; but reads: "fields." Cp. 2 K. xxiii. 4.
So I knew, that <the word of Yahweh> it was. 9 And I bought the field, from Hanameel son of mine uncle, that was in Anathoth,— and weighed him the silver; <seventeen shekels> was the silver; and I wrote in the scroll, and sealed it, and took in attestation [witnesses],— and weighed the silver in the balances.

Then took I the scroll of purchase, both that which was sealed— the title and the condition — and that which was open; 12 and gave the scroll of purchase, unto Baruch son of Neriah* son of Mahseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle[’s son],b and in the sight of the witnesses, who subscribed the scroll of purchase,— in the sight of all the Jews, who were sitting in the guard-court.

Then charged I Baruch, in theirsight, saying:

||Thus| saith Yahwehof hosts, God of Israel, Take thou these scrolls, this scroll of purchase, even that which is sealed, and this scroll that is open, and put them in an earthen vessel,— that they may remain many days. For ||Thus| saith Yahwehof hosts, God of Israel: ||Again| shall houses and fields and vineyards, be bought, in this land.

Then prayed I unto Yahweh,—after I had delivered the scroll of purchase, unto Baruch son of Neriah, saying:—

Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! Lo ! thou art, looking on! I didst make the heavens, and the earth, by thy great might, and by thine outstretched arm,— There is [nothing]: too wonderful for thee!:

Executing lovingkindness unto thousands, But recompensing the iniquity of fathers, into the bosom of their children [after them]," Thou God, the great, the mighty, ||Yahwehof hosts|| is his name:

Great in counsel, and mighty in deed,— Whose eyes are open on all the ways of the sons of men, to give unto every one

According to his ways, and

According to the fruit of his doings:

Who didst set signs and wonders, in the land of Egypt, [unto this day]: and in Israel, and among mankind,—

And didst make for thyself a name; [as at this day];

And didst bring forth thy people Israel, out of the land of Egypt, With signs and with wonders, and With a strong hand, and With an outstretched’ arm, and With great’ terror; And didst give unto them this land, which thou hadst sworn to their fathers to give unto them,—a land flowing with milk and honey; And they came in and took possession of it. But hearkened not unto thy voice, Nor in thy law>* did they walk, <Nought of what thou hadst commanded them to do> did they do,— And so thou hast caused to befall them, [all this calamity].—

Lo ! the earthworks! they have entered the city, to capture it,

And ||the city|| hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans, who are fighting against it, because of the sword and the famine and the pestilence,— And so ||what thou didst speak|| hath come to pass,

And there’ thou art, looking on!

Yet ||thou thyself|| saidst unto me, O My Lord, Yahweh,

Buy theethe fieldforsilver. And takeinattestationIIwitnesses',— Whereas thecity||hathl«engiveninto thehand oftheChaldeans!

Then came the word of Yahweh, unto Jeremiah, b saying:—

Lo ! ||I am Yahweh, God of all flesh.—

|*|For me| is |anything| too wonderful?|| Therefore|)

||Thus| saith Yahweh,— Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; And the Chaldeans, who are fighting against this city. [Shall enter], and Shall set this city on fire and Shall consume it,—

With the houses on whose roofs they burned incense to Baal, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods, that they might provoke me to anger; For the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah have been nothing but doers of wickedness in my sight, from the days of their youth,—

For the sons of Israel have been doing nothing but provoke me to anger by the workmanship of their hands.

Declareth Yahweh;

For According to mine anger, and According to mine indignation hath been to me this city, from the day when they built it, even unto this day,—that I should pull it down from before my face: because of all the wickedness of the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem:

Thus have they turned unto me the back, and not the face,—

Yet have they not been hearkening, to receive correction;

But have set their abominations in the house on which my name hath been called, to defile it;

And have built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of Ben-hinnom, To cause their sons and their daughters to pass through unto Molech, Which I commanded them not. Neither came it up on my heart, That they should do this horrible thing,—

Causing Judah to sin!

Now therefore, <because of this>—

Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—

Concerning this city, whereof ye are saying. It hath been delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence:

Behold me! gathering them out of all the lands, whither I have driven them —

In mine anger, and In mine indignation, and In great vexation,—

And I will cause them to return into this place, And will make them dwell securely; And they shall become my people, And ||I|| will become their God; And I will give them one heart, and one way, That they may revere me, all the days,—

For the good of them, and of their children after them;

And I will solemnise to them, an age-abiding covenant, That I will not turn away from following them, to do them good,—

But <the reverence of myself> will I put in their heart, so that they shall not turn away from me.

§ 27. More Consolation through the Imprisoned Prophet: Promises (with striking Change of Refrain) directed to both Israel and Judah, concerning David's Righteous Offspring, and concerning the Fulfilment of both the Davidic and Levitical Covenants—confirmed by the Covenant of Day and Night.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, the second time, when he was yet imprisoned in the guard-court, saying:

2 Thus saith Yahweh, who doeth it,—

Who fashioneth it, To establish it, IIYahweh || is his name:

3 Call unto me, that I may answer thee,— and tell thee things great and inaccessible, which thou hast not known.

4 For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel.

Concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah,—which are thrown down against the earthworks and against the sword:

5 In entering to fight with the Chaldeans|| it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have smitten in mine anger and in mine indignation, — and because of whom I have hidden my face.

104 And I will rejoice over them, to do them good,—

And will plant them in this land, [in truth], [with all my heart, and with all my soul].

24 For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

Like as I have brought upon this people' all this great calamity>

So I am I' bringing upon them all the good that I' am speaking concerning them.

Therefore shall fields be bought in this land,—whereof ye' are saying, It is [a desolation].

Without man or beast,

It hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans:

<Fields—for silver> shall men buy, And write in scrolls, And seal them, And take in attestation ||witnesses||, In the land of Benjamin, and In the places round about Jerusalem, and In the cities of Judah, and In the cities of the hill country, and In the cities of the lowland, and In the cities of the South,— For I will cause them of their captivity to return,

Declareth Yahweh.

In some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) is found no sign of the word "Y."] against."—G.n. (thus repeated)—G.n.
from this city,—by reason of all their wickedness.
6 Behold me! laying upon her a bandage of healing, so will I heal them,—
And will reveal to them abundance of prosperity and truth;
7 And I will bring back Them of the captivity of Judah, and Them of the captivity of Israel,—
And I will build them, as at the first;
8 And I will purify them, from all their iniquity wherewith they have sinned against me,—
And I will grant pardon for all their iniquities.

9 So shall she become to me,—
A name of joy,
A praise, and
An adorning,
To all the nations of the earth,—
Who will hear all the good which I am doing them,
And will dread and be deeply moved, over all the good and over all the prosperity which I am causing her.
10 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
Again shall be heard in this place, <as to which ye' are saying,
Deserted it is, without man or beast,
In the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,
Which are desolate without man or inhabitant or beast>
11 The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,
The voice of them who are saying,
Praise ye Yahweh of hosts,
For good is Yahweh,
For age-abiding is his lovingkindness,
[The voice] of them who are bringing a thank-offering into the house of Yahweh, —
For I will bring back the captives of the land,
[as at the first],
Saith Yahweh.
12 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
Again shall there be in this place, <as to which ye' are saying,
| Again | shall the flock pass over the hands of the numberer,
Saith Yahweh.
13 <In the cities of the hill country,
In the cities of the lowland, and
In the cities of the South, and
In the land of Benjamin, and
In the places round about Jerusalem, and
In the cities of Judah>
Again shall the flock pass over the hands of the numberer.

14 Lo! |days are coming|.
Declareth Yahweh,—
when I will establish my good word, which I have spoken—
As to the house of Israel,
And concerning the house of Judah:
In those days, and at that time> will I cause to bud unto David,
A Bud* of righteousness,—
And he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land:
16 ||In those days>
Judah shall be saved, and
||Jerusalem|| abide [securely],—
And this is that which shall be proclaimed to her—
||Yahweh|| our righteousness!
17 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
There shall not be wanting to David,—
A man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel;
18 Nor <to the priests the Levites> shall their be wanting—
A man, [before me],
To offer an ascending-sacrifice, or
To make a perfume with a gift, or
To offer a [peace-] offering,* all the days!
19 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:
20 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<If ye can break,
My covenant of the day, and
My covenant of the night,
That there be not day and night in their season >
21 ||My covenant also may be broken,
|With David my servant>,
That he shall not have a son, to reign upon his throne,—
And with the Levites the priests, mine attendants:
22 <As |the host of the heavens| cannot be recorded',
Nor |the sand of the sea| be measured>,
||So| will I multiply,
The seed of David my servant,
And the Levites who attend upon me:
23 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:
24 Hast thou not observed, what |this people have spoken, saying,
|The two families which Yahweh did choose| he hath even cast them off!
25 * Or : "sprout." Cp. chap. xxiii. 5; Is. vii. ii.

And shall execute," etc.

And so my people despise, as though they could not again become a nation in their sight!

Thus saith Yahweh, If my covenant of day and night, the ordinances of the heavens and the earth I did not appoint, then the seed of Jacob also, and of David my servant, might I cast off, so as not to take of his seed as rulers unto the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob,— For I will bring back them of their captivity, and will have compassion upon them.

Then spake Jeremiah the prophet, unto Zedekiah king of Judah, all these words, in Jerusalem; when the force of the king of Babylon was fighting against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left,— against Lachish and against Azekah, for they remained among the cities of Judah, as fortified cities.

The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,— after that King Zedekiah had solemnised a covenant with all the people who were in Jerusalem, proclaiming unto them liberty: that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid, being a Hebrew or a Hebrewess, go free,—so that no man should use them as slaves, to wit a Jew his brother: so then they hearkened— even all the princes and all the people who had entered into the covenant, that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid go free, so as not to use them as slaves, any longer,—yes they hearkened, and let them go, howbeit they turned, after that, and brought back the servants and the handmaids whom they had let go free, and brought them into subjection as servants and as handmaids. So then the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

| Thus| saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—
| Myself| solemnised a covenant with your fathers, in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slaves, saying:

At the end of seven years shall ye let go every man his brother, who shall sell himself unto thee, and serve thee six years, then shalt thou let him go free from thee. Howbeit your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.

And though ye just now turned, and did that which was right in mine eyes, by proclaiming liberty, every man to his neighbour,—and solemnised a covenant before me, in the house on which my Name hath been called, yet have ye turned and profaned my Name, and brought back every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom ye had let go free, at their own desire,—and have brought them into subjection, to become your servants and handmaids. Therefore—

| Thus| saith Yahweh, Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every man to his brother and every man to his neighbour:

Behold me! proclaiming to you liberty! Declareth Yahweh, unto the sword, unto the pestilence, and unto the famine, so will I make you a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth; and will give the men who are transgressing my covenant in that they have not confirmed the words of the covenant, which they solemnised before me, when they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof; even the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land,—who passed between the parts of the calf—yea I will give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and their dead bodies shall become food, for the birds of the heavens, and for the beasts of the earth.

21 <Zedekiah king of Judah also, with his princes> will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—even into the hand of the force of the king of Babylon, who are going up from you. 22 Behold me! giving command, Declareth Yahweh, and I will bring them back unto this city, and they will fight against it, and capture it, and consume it with fire,—and <the cities of Judah> will I make toodesolate to have an inhabitant.

§29. The Rechabites. Their Persistent Obedience to their father Jonadab used for reproving Judah and Jerusalem, and as a ground of Promise to themselves.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, saying:

2 Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak with them, and bring them into the house of Yahweh, into one of the chambers,—and give them wine to drink.

3 So I took Jaazaniah, son of Jeremiah, son of Habazziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons,—and all the house of the Rechabites; and brought them into the house of Yahweh, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan son of Igdaliah, a man of God,—which was beside the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah, son of Shallum, keeper of the porch; and I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites, bowls full of wine, and cups,—and said unto them,

Drink ye wine.

4 Then said they,— We will not drink wine,—for Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, laid command upon us, saying,

Ye shall not drink wine, nor your sons, unto times age-abiding; nor shall ye build, nor sow, nor plant, neither shall ye have them, but shall ye dwell, all your days, that ye may live many days, on the face of the soil where ye are sojourning.

8 So we have hearkened unto the voice of Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, in all that he commanded us,—not to drink wine all our days, nor our wives, our sons, nor our daughters; and not to build houses for us to dwell in,—and so have we dwelt in tents, and have hearkened and done, according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. 11 And so it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said,—Let us even enter Jerusalem, because of the force of the Chaldeans and because of the force of the Syrians.

So have we dwelt in Jerusalem.

12 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

Go and say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—Will ye not receive correction, by hearkening unto my words? Deman... against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the calamity which I have spoken concerning them,— Because I spake unto them, and they did not hearken,
And I called to them, and they did not answer.
But <to the house of the Rechabites> said Jeremiah:
||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Because ye have hearkened unto the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and done according to all that he commanded you>
|Therefore|
||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,—
Jonadab son of Rechab shall not want one to stand before me, all the days!

§ 30. By Divine Command, Jeremiah, through Baruch, writes in a Scroll all the Words he has hitherto spoken concerning Israel, Judah and the Nations; after which Baruch reads the Scroll first to all the People, then to the Princes; next, Jehudi begins to read it to King Jehoiakim, who, having heard a Portion, angrily cuts up the Scroll and consumes it in the Fire; for which he is denounced by Yahweh, and the Scroll is rewritten—with Additions.

36 And it came to pass, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

3 Take thee a scroll, and write therein, all the words which I have spoken unto thee: concerning Israel, and concerning Judah, and concerning all the nations,—from the day I began to speak unto thee, even until this day:

3 |Peradventure| the house of Judah will hearken unto all the calamity, which I am devising to execute against them,—to the end they may return, every man from his wicked way, whereupon I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin.

So Jeremiah called Baruch, son of Neriah,—and Baruch wrote, from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of Yahweh which he had spoken unto him, upon a scroll. Then did Jeremiah command Baruch, saying,—
||I|| am hindered, I cannot enter the house of Yahweh;

4 |Thou| therefore shalt enter, and read in the roll which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of Yahweh, in the ears of the people, in the house of Yahweh, on the day of a fast,—moreover also in the ears of all Judah who are coming in out of their cities>
7 |Peradventure| their supplication will fall prostrate, before Yahweh, and they return every man from his wicked way,—
For ||great|| are the anger and the indignation, which Yahweh hath spoken against this people.

So then Baruch son of Neriah did according to all which Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of Yahweh, in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that all the people of Jerusalem, and all the people who were coming in out of the cities of Judah, into Jerusalem, [had proclaimed a fast before Yahweh];

10 Baruch, therefore, read in the book, the words of Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh,—in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan—the scribe, in the upper court, at the opening of the new gate of the house of Yahweh, in the ears of all the people.

11 <When Micaiah, son of Gemariah son of Shaphan, heard all the words of Yahweh, out of the book> then went he, down unto the house of the king up to the chamber of the scribe, and lo! [there] all the princes sitting,—Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah son of Shemaiah, and Ethaniah son of Shobab, and Gemariah son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

12 So Micaiah told them all the words which he heard,—when Baruch read in the book, in the ears of the people.

13 All the princes, therefore, sent unto Baruch, Jehudi, son of Nethaniah son of Shelemiah son of Cushi, saying,

|The roll wherein thou didst read in the ears of the people> take it in thy hand, and come.

So Baruch son of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came in unto them. Then said they unto him, 15 Sit down, we pray thee, and read it in our ears.

So Baruch read it in their ears.

16 And it came to pass <when they heard all the words> that they turned with fear one to another,—and said unto Baruch,

We must [surely tell] the king, all these words!

17 Then <unto Baruch> put they questions, saying,—
Tell us, we pray thee, [How] didst thou write all these words at his mouth?

18 So Baruch said unto them,
<With his own mouth> used he to proclaim unto me all these words,—and I kept on writing in the book, with ink!*

Then said the princes unto Baruch,
Go hide thee, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man know where ye are!

Then went they in unto the king, into the court, but the roll had they put in charge, in the chamber of Eliashib the scribe, so they declared, in the ears of the king all the words. [The king therefore sent] Jehudi, to fetch the roll, and he fetched it, out of the chamber of Eliashib the scribe, and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes, who were standing near the king.

Now the king was sitting in the winter house, in the ninth month, [with the fire-stove before him burning]. So then it came to pass when Jehudi had read three or four columns, that he cut it up into fragments with a scribe's knife, and cast them into the fire that was in the stove, until all the roll was consumed on the fire that was on the stove.

Yet were they not in dread, neither rent they their garments, but the king, nor any of his servants that were hearing all these words. Nevertheless Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah interceded with the king, not to burn the roll, but he hearkened not unto them.

Then did the king command Jerahmeel son of the king, and Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel, to fetch Baruch the scribe, and Jeremiah the prophet, but Yahweh had hid them.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, after the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremiah, saying:

[Again] take thee another roll, and write thereon, all the former words which were on the first roll, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned.

But unto Jehoiakim king of Judah shalt thou say, Thus saith Yahweh, Why hast thou written upon that which is certain to come and lay waste this land, and cause to cease therefrom, man and beast?

Therefore Thus saith Yahweh Concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah;—
He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David,— And his dead body shall be cast out—to the heat by day, and to the frost by night;
And I will visit upon him and upon his seed and upon his servants, the punishment of their iniquity,—and will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and against the men of Judah, all the calamity, which I have spoken against them, but they have not hearkened.

So Jeremiah took another roll and gave it unto Baruch son of Neriah, the scribe, who wrote thereon, from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire,—and further were added thereunto, many words like unto them.

§ 31. King Zedekiah, at the Beginning of his Reign, asks for Jeremiah's Prayers; and, in answer, is warned not to count on Nebuchadrezzar's permanent Departure from Jerusalem. During a temporary Withdrawal of the Chaldeans, Jeremiah is caught going out to Anathoth, falsely accused, smitten, and cast into Prison. The King, secretly consulting the Prophet, reduces his sentence to Confinement in the Guard-court, appointing him a Cake per Day while Bread lasted in the City.

1 And Zedekiah son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah. But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, had hearkened unto the words of Yahweh, which he had spoken through Jeremiah the prophet.

And King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying,— Pray thou, I beseech thee, in our behalf, unto Yahweh, our God.

Now Jeremiah was coming in and going out in the midst of the people, for they had not put him into prison.

And the force of Pharaoh, which is coming out to help us, is about to return to its own land; the Chaldeans will come back, and fight against this city,—and capture it, and burn it with fire.

Let not your own souls deceive you, saying, The Chaldeans will surely depart from us! For they will not depart;
For though ye had smitten all the force of the Chaldeans who are fighting with you, and there had remained of them only desperately wounded men> yet (every man in his tent) should have arisen and burnt this city with fire.

Now it came to pass <when the army of the Chaldeans had gone up> from Jerusalem,—because of the force of Pharaoh> then went forth Jeremiah out of Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin,—to receive a portion from thence in the midst of the people. And so it came to pass <he being in the gate of Benjamin, and there being there a ward-master whose name was Irijah son of Shelemiah son of Hananiah> that he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, <Unto the Chaldeans> art thou falling away!

Then said Jeremiah. False! I am not falling away unto the Chaldeans! How lie it he hearkened not unto him,—so Irijah seized Jeremiah, and brought him in unto the princes.

Then the princes wroth against Jeremiah, and smote him,—and put him in prison, in the house of Jonathan the scribe, for (that) had they made the prison.

Then sent King Zedekiah— and fetched him, and the king asked him in his own house, secretly. and said,— Is there a word from Yahweh? And Jeremiah said,— There is, for (said he), into the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be delivered!

And Jeremiah said unto King Zedekiah,— What sin have I committed against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have delivered me up into prison?

|Where|, then are your prophets, who prophesied unto you, saying,— The king of Babylon shall not come against you nor against this land!

Now therefore, hear, I beseech thee, O my lord the king,— Let my supplication, I pray thee, fall prostrate before thee, and do not cause me to return unto the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there!

Then King Zedekiah gave command, and they committed Jeremiah into the guard-court, and [said] that there should be given him a cake of bread daily, out of the bakers' street, until all the bread out of the city [should be spent]. So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court.
Then the king commanded’ Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—

Take with thee from hence, thirty men, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die.

So Ebed-melech took’ the men with him, and went into the house of the king, under the treasury, and took thence, pieces of cast-off clothes, and old rags,— and let them down unto Jeremiah in the dungeon, with the ropes.

Then said Ebed-melech unto Jeremiah,—

Put, I pray thee, the pieces of cast-off clothes and the old rags, under thine arm-joints, under the ropes.

And Jeremiah did so. Then drew they Jeremiah, with the ropes, and lifted him up out of the dungeon,— and Jeremiah remained in the guard-court.

Then King Zedekiah sent’ and fetched Jeremiah the prophet unto him, in the third' entrance, which is in the house of Yahweh,— and the king said’ unto Jeremiah—

I am going to ask thee a thing, do not hide anything’ from me.

Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah,

<When I tell thee wilt thou not surely put me to death||?>

And <when I counsel thee> thou wilt not hearken unto me.

So King Zedekiah sware unto Jeremiah, secretly saying,—

By the life of Yahweh, who made for us, this soul c

I will in no wise put thee to death,

Neither will I deliver thee into the hand of these men, who are seeking thy life.

Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah—

Thus saith Yahweh, God* of hosts, God of Israel—

If thou wilt indeed go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall thine own soul live, and this city shall not be burned with fire,— but thou shalt live, and thy house.

But <if thou wilt not go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon> then shall this city be delivered into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, — but thou shalt not escape out of their hand.

Then said King Zedekiah, unto Jeremiah:

I am afraid of the Jews, who have fallen away unto the Chaldeans, lest they deliver |me| into their hand, and they maltreat me. But Jeremiah said,

They shall not deliver !—

Hearken, I pray thee, unto the voice of Yahweh, in what I am speaking unto thee, that it may be well with thee, and thy soul live.

But <if thou art refusing to go forth> [this] is the thing which Yahweh hath showed me:— behold, then, [all the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah] brought forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon,— and [these very women] saying,

The men thou wast wont to salute [have goaded thee on, and prevailed upon thee],— <Thy footb [having sunk in the mire]> they have turned away [back].

Yea [thou shalt behold] all thy wives and thy children, brought forth unto the Chaldeans, and [thou] shalt not escape out of their hand,— but <by the hand of the king of Babylon> shalt thou be taken, and [this city] shall be burned with fire.

Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah—

Do not let [any man] know of these words, and thou shalt not die.

But <when the princes hear that I have spoken with thee, and they come in unto thee and say unto thee—

Do tell us, we pray thee, what thou didst speak unto the king, do not hide it from us, so will we not put thee to death,— and what spake [the king] unto thee?>

Then shalt thou say unto them,—

I was causing my supplication to fall prostrate before the king,— that he would not cause me to return to the house of Jonathan, |to die there|.

Then came in all the princes unto Jeremiah, and asked him, and he told them, according to all these words which the king |had commanded|,— so they turned in silence from him, for the matter [had not been reported]. So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court, until the day when Jerusalem |was captured|; ||thus|| it fell out, when Jerusalem |was captured|.

§ 33. After an eighteen Months’ Siege, Jerusalem is taken; King Zedekiah flees to the Waste Plains of Jericho, is captured, brought to Nebuchadrezzar at Riblah, his Sons and Nobles are slain in his presence, his Eyes are put out, and he is taken in Fetters to Babylon. Jerusalem burned, her Walls thrown down, and her Inhabitants carried captive to Babylon—saving some of the Poor, who are left to till the Soil.

<In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month> came Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and all his force against Jerusalem, and they besieged it. <In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month,> on the ninth of the month was the city broken into. Then came in all the princes of the king of Babylon, and sat in the middle gate, — Nergal-shar-ezer, Samgar-nebo, Sar-sechim, chief eunuch, Nergal-shar-ezer, chief soothsayer, and all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

And it came to pass <as soon as Zedekiah king of Judah and all the men of war saw them> that they fled, and went forth by night out of the city, by way of the king's garden, through the gate between the two walls, — and he went forth by way of the waste plain. But the force of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah, in the waste plains of Jericho, and when they had taken him, they brought him up unto Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, to Riblah, in the land of Hamath, — and pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah, in Riblah, before his eyes, — and <all the nobles of Judah> did the king of Babylon slay; and <the eyes of Zedekiah> did he put out, and bound him with fetters of bronze, to bring him into Babylon. And <the house of the king, and the houses of the people> did the Chaldeans burn with fire, — and <the walls of Jerusalem> brake they down; and <the remnant of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened, who fell away unto him, and the remnant of the people who were left> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, take captive to Babylon. But <of the poor people, who had nothing> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave remaining in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and ploughed fields, on the same day.

§ 35. A Divine Message to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, recognising his Faith and assuring him of his Life.

Now <unto Jeremiah> had come the word of Yahweh, while he was yet shut up in the guard-court, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel.

Behold me! bringing about my words against this city, for calamity — and not for blessing, — and they shall come to pass before thee, <in that day>.

But I will deliver thee in that day.

Declareth Yahweh, —

and thou shalt not be given up into the hand of the men from the face of whom thou mightest shrink with fear. For I will surely deliver thee, and <by the sword> shalt thou not fall, — but thou shalt have thine own life as a spoil,

Because thou hast trusted in me,

Declareth Yahweh.

§ 36. Nebuzaradan giving Jeremiah his Choice, of going down to Babylon or remaining in the Land, the Prophet decides to dwell at Mizpah with Gedaliah, who had been appointed Governor of the Cities of Judah.

The thing that happened unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, after Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had let him go from Ramah, — when he had taken him, he having been bound in fetters amongst all the captive-host of Jerusalem, and Judah, who were being carried away captive to Babylon. So then the chief of the royal executioners took Jeremiah, — and said unto him,

Yahweh thy God had threatened this calamity against this place; and so Yahweh hath brought it about and done it, just as he threatened, — for ye have sinned against Yahweh, and have not hearkened unto his voice, and so this thing hath befallen you. Therefore, lo! I have loosed thee today, from the fetters which were upon thy hand: <If it be good in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> come, and I will set mine eyes upon thee, but <if evil in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> in the guard-court, and delivered him unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, to bring him forth into a home, — so he dwelt in the midst of the people.

§ 34. By Nebuchadrezzar's Command Jeremiah is to be well treated: he is taken out of the Guard-court.

Then Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon [gave command], concerning Jeremiah, — through Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, saying:

Take him, and <thine eyes> set thou upon him, and do not unto him any harm, but <just as he shall speak unto thee> so shalt thou do with him.

So Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, sent, also Nebushazban, chief of the eunuchs, and Nergal-sharezer, chief of the magi, and all the chiefs of the king of Babylon; yea they sent and fetched Jeremiah out of the guard-court, and delivered him unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, to bring him forth into a home, — so he dwelt in the midst of the people.

762 JEREMIAH XL. 5-16; XLI. 1—6.

forbear,— nee!|;all the land II is before thee, whither it may be good and right in thine eyes to go> llthitherllgo!

And ere yet' he could make reply—

Go thou back then unto Gedaliah* son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath set in charge over the cities of Judah, and dwell thou with him in the midst of the people, or <whithersoever it may be right in thine eyes to go> go!

So the chief of the royal executioners gave him an allowance and a present, and let him go. 6 Then came' Jeremiah unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, to Mizpah, and dwelt with him in the midst of the people who were left in the land.

§ 37. All the Hebrew Captains left in the Field, with Jews out of Moab, Ammon and Edom, gather unto Gedaliah; among them a Traitor, Ishmael, of whom the Governor is warned; but Gedaliah refusing credence, is cruelly murdered, with the Jews and Chaldeans who are with him. After further Treacheries, Ishmael is pursued by Johanan and others, and his Captives are rescued, but himself escapes. Johanan and those with him, fearing the Wrath of the Chaldeans, dwell at the khan of Chimham, ready to go down into Egypt.

Now <when all the captains of the forces which were in the field—they and their men>, heard' that the king of Babylon had set Gedaliah* son of Ahikam in charge over the land,— and that he had committed to him men and women and children, and the poor of the land' of those who had not been carried away captive to Babylon> 5 then came they in unto Gedaliah in Mizpah,—both Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan sons* of Kareah, and Seraiah son of Tanhumoth, and the sons of Ephah and Netophathite, and Jezaniah* son of the Maachathite, [they and their men]. 6 Then Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, sworn' unto them, and to their men, saying,

Do not be afraid of serving the Chaldeans,— dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, that it may be well with you.

But <as for me> behold me! remaining in Mizpah, to stand before the Chaldeans' who may come unto us. 11

Ye however, gather ye wine and summer fruits and oil, and put [them] in your vessels, and dwell in your cities which ye have seized.

Likewise also|| all the Jews, who were in Moab and among the sons of Ammon and in Edom, and who were in any of the lands|| when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them, Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan > 12 yea, then returned all the Jews, out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah,— and gathered wine and summer fruits, in great abundance.

But Gedaliah son of Ahikam ||believed them not. 15 Then ||Johanan son of Kareah|| spake unto Gedaliah |secretly, in Mizpah|, saying,—

Let me go, I pray thee, and smite Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and not ||aman shall know it,— wherefore'should he smite thee to death, b and all Judah who have gathered themselves unto thee, be dispersed, and the remnant of Judah perish?* 16

And it came to pass <in the seventh month> 4 I that Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama of the seed royal and chiefs of the king, and ten men with him, ||came in|| unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah,— and they did there' eat bread together, in Mizpah. 14 And it came to pass<onthesecondday, after he had slain Gedaliah, not ||aman|| knowing it> 5 that men came in from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria,—eighty men, with beards shaven and clothes rent, who also had cut themselves, with a meal-offering and frankincense in their hand, to bring them into the house of Yahweh. 6 Then went forth Ishmael son of Nethaniah to meet them, out of Mizpah, weeping all along as he went, 2—and it came to pass <when he fell in with them> that he said unto them,

Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

Edom, and who were in any of the lands|| when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them, Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan > 12 yea, then returned all the Jews, out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah,— and gathered wine and summer fruits, in great abundance.

But Gedaliah son of Ahikam ||believed them not. 15 Then ||Johanan son of Kareah|| spake unto Gedaliah |secretly, in Mizpah|, saying,—

Let me go, I pray thee, and smite Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and not ||aman shall know it,— wherefore'should he smite thee to death, b and all Judah who have gathered themselves unto thee, be dispersed, and the remnant of Judah perish?* 16

Then said Gedaliah son of Ahikam, unto Johanan son of Kareah, Thou mayest not do this thing,—for ||falsely|| art thou speaking against Ishmael.

And it came to pass <in the seventh month> 41 that Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama of the seed royal and chiefs of the king, and ten men with him, ||came in|| unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah,— and they did there' eat bread together, in Mizpah. 14 And it came to pass<onthesecondday, after he had slain Gedaliah, not ||aman|| knowing it> 5 that men came in from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria,—eighty men, with beards shaven and clothes rent, who also had cut themselves, with a meal-offering and frankincense in their hand, to bring them into the house of Yahweh. 6 Then went forth Ishmael son of Nethaniah to meet them, out of Mizpah, weeping all along as he went, 2—and it came to pass <when he fell in with them> that he said unto them,

Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

Edom, and who were in any of the lands|| when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them, Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan > 12 yea, then returned all the Jews, out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah,— and gathered wine and summer fruits, in great abundance.

But Gedaliah son of Ahikam ||believed them not. 15 Then ||Johanan son of Kareah|| spake unto Gedaliah |secretly, in Mizpah|, saying,—

Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

§ 39. The Spared and Rescued Remnant of Jews solicit Jeremiah’s Intercession with Yahweh in their behalf, solemnly pledging themselves to abide the Result: yet, when the Answer proves adverse to their Wishes, they stubbornly disobey, and go down into Egypt as far as Tahpanhes, carrying Jeremiah and Baruch with them. Here the Prophet, with accompanying symbolic Action, foretells an Invasion of Egypt by Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon.

Then drew near all the captains of the forces, and Johanan son of Kareah, and Jezaniah son of Horeshiah, and all the people, from the least even unto the greatest; and said unto Jeremiah the prophet—

Let our supplication, we beseech thee, fall prostrate before thee, and pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh thy God, in behalf of all this remnant,—for we are left, a few out of many, just as thine own eyes do behold us: 9 that Yahweh thy God may tell us, the way wherein we should walk,—and the thing that we should do.

And Jeremiah the prophet said unto them,

I have heard; behold me! praying unto Yahweh your God, according to your words,—and it shall come to pass, that <the whole thing that Yahweh shall answer you> I will tell you, I will keep back from you, nothing.

They therefore said unto Jeremiah, Yahweh be against us, as a witness, true and faithful,—if <according to all the word which Yahweh thy God shall send thee unto us> we do not perform: 10 whether for good or for ill, unto the voice of Yahweh our God for which we are sending thee unto him> will we hearken,—to the end it may be well with us, because we will hearken unto the voice of Yahweh our God:

And it came to pass <at the end of ten days> that the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah.

Then called he for Johanan son of Kareah, and for all the princes of the forces which were with him, —and said unto Jeremiah, ||Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—unto whom ye sent me, to cause your supplication to fall prostrate before him:—

<If ye will indeed abide in this land> then will I build you up, and not pull you down, and plant you, and not uproot you,—for I have compassion, as touching the calamity which I have caused you. 11 Do not fear the face of the king of Babylon, of whose face ye are afraid,—do not fear him.

Urgeth Yahweh,
for <with you> am I, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand: 12 that I may grant you compassions, and he may have compassion upon you,—and suffer you to return unto your own soil.

13 But <since ye' are saying,—>
We will not dwell in this land,—nor hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God: 14 saying,—
No! for <into the land of Egypt> will we go, where we shall not see war, nor <the sound of a horn> shall we hear,—nor <for bread> shall we be famished,—|there| then will we dwell>

15 ||Now|| therefore, ||for this cause|| hear ye the word of Yahweh, O remnant of Judah,—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—

<If ye' do indeed set your faces, to enter Egypt, and do enter to sojourn there> 16 then shall it come to pass that [the sword which ye' are fearing] shall [there] overtake you, in the land of Egypt,—and [the famine which ye' are dreading] shall [there] lay fast hold of you, in Egypt, and [there] shall ye die. 17 So shall it be with all the men who have set their faces to enter Egypt, to sojourn there, they shall die, by sword, by famine, or by pestilence,—and they shall have neither survival nor escape, from the face of the calamity which I' am about to bring in upon them. 18 For—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—

<Just as mine anger and mine indignation |have been poured out | upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem> ||so|| shall mine indignation be poured out upon you when ye enter into Egypt,—thus shall ye become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach, and ye shall no more' see this place.>

19 Yahweh hath spoken' concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah, Do not enter into Egypt:

||Know certainly|| that I have taken you to witness to-day. 20 For ye have deceived yourselves at the cost of your lives,* for ||ye yourselves|| sent me unto Yahweh your God, saying,—

Pray thou in our behalf unto Yahweh our God,—and <according to all that Yahweh our God shall say'> ||so|| tell us, and we will do it.

21 Therefore have I told you to-day,—and yet ye have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh your God, [even in any thing for which he hath sent me unto you].

22 ||Now|| therefore, ||know ye certainly||, that shall ye die,—in the place whither ye have desired to go, to sojourn.

1 And it came to pass <when Jeremiah had 43 made an end' of speaking unto all the people all the words of Yahweh their God, with which Yahweh their God had sent' him unto them,— even all these words > 2 then spake Azariah son of Hoshaijah, and Johanan son of Kareah, and all the proud men,—saying unto Jeremiah—

False ||art thou' speaking, Yahweh our God [hath not sent thee| to say, Ye shall not enter Egypt, to sojourn there;

3 but ||Baruch son of Neriah|| is goading thee on against us,—that he may deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, to put us to death, or take us away captive to Babylon.

4 So Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, ||hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh,—by remaining in the land of Judah; 5 but Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took'all the remnant of Judah, who had returned out of all the nations whither they had been driven, to sojourn in the land of Judah; 6 both the men and the women and the children, and the daughters of the king, and every soul that Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners [had left] with Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan,—and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch son of Neriah; 7 and entered the land of Egypt, for they hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh,—yea entered as far as Tahpanhes. 8 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, in Tahpanhes, saying:

9 Take in thy hand great stones, and hide them in the mortar, that is in the brickyard' which is at the entrance of the house of Pharaoh, in Tahpanhes,—before the eyes of the men of Judah. 10 Then shalt thou say unto them—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—

Behold me! sending and fetching Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne' over these stones, which I have hid,—and he shall spread his canopy over them. 11 And <when he entereth> then will he smite the land of Egypt [and deliver] Him who is for death' to death, and Him who is for captivity'to captivity, and Him who is for the sword' to the sword.

12 So will I kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive,—and shall wrap the land of Egypt about him, just as a shepherd wraeth about,

Jeremiah XLIII. 13: XLIV. 1—18.

13 And he shall break in pieces the pillars of Beth-shemesh, which is in the land of Egypt,—
And <the houses of the gods of Egypt> shall he burn with fire.

§ 39. Against Jeremiah's Denunciation of his Countrymen's renewed Idolatries in Egypt, they perseveringly defend themselves; calling forth from the Prophet a Crushing Reply by reference to the Fate of Jerusalem, and a specific Prediction of the Capture of Pharaoh-hophra King of Egypt.

44 1 The word which came to Jeremiah, against all the Jews who were dwelling in the land of Egypt,—who were dwelling in Migdol, and in Tahpanhes, and in Noph, and in the land of Pathros, saying:

2 'Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

| Ye yourselves| saw all the calamity| which I brought in upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah,—and there they are, a desolation, this day, and there is not in them an inhabitant: 3 because of their wickedness| which they committed, provoking me to anger, by going to burn incense, to serve other gods,—whom they had not known, ||they, ye, nor your fathers||; 4 yet I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes| sending them, saying,—

Do not, I pray you, commit this abominable thing, which I hate!

but they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, by turning from their wickedness,—so as not to burn incense to other gods. 6 Therefore were mine indignation and mine anger |poured out|, and a fire was kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—and they became waste and desolate. 7 as at this day; neither have they seen afraid, neither have they walked in my law,—and in my statutes, which I set before you, and before your fathers.

9 'Therefore'—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

Behold me! setting my face against you, for calamity,—even to cut off all Judah; and I will take the remnant of Judah who did set their faces, to enter the land of Egypt, to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed. 11—<in the land of Egypt> shall they fall by the sword, <by a famine> shall they be consumed, ||from the least even unto the greatest||, <by sword and by famine> shall they die,—so shall they become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach;

12 and I will bring punishment upon them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt, just as I brought punishment upon Jerusalem,—by sword, by famine, and by pestilence; 14 and there shall be neither escape nor survival, unto the remnant of Judah, who have been entering, to sojourn there, into the land of Egypt,—that they should return to the land of Judah, |even when they| are lifting up their soul to return to dwell there, for none shall return, |saving fugitives|.

Then all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, and all the women standing by, a great convocation,—with all the people who were dwelling in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, |made answer unto Jeremiah|, saying:

16 <As touching the word which thou hast spoken unto us, in the name of Yahweh> we are not going to hearken unto thee; but we will certainly do|| the whole thing that hath gone forth out of our own mouth, by burning incense to the queen of the heavens, and pouring out to her drink-offerings, just as ||we and our fathers, and our kings and our princes|| did, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—then were we filled with bread, and became prosperous, and <calamity> saw we none; whereas <from the very time we ceased burning incense to the queen of the heavens> and pouring out to her drink-offerings we have lacked everything, and by sword and by famine have we been consumed.

19 And though we are burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her drink-offerings is it without our men that we have made to her sacrificial cakes as images of her, and poured out to her drink-offerings?

20 Then spake Jeremiah unto all the people,— against the men, and against the women, and against all the people who had been making any answer unto him, saying:

21 Was it not the very incense which ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings and your princes, and the people of the land was it not those very things that Yahweh did remember, and that came up on his heart; so that Yahweh could no longer forbear, because of the wickedness of your doings, because of the abominations which ye committed, and your land became a desolation, and an astonishment, and a contempt, without inhabitant— as at this day?

22 Because that ye burned incense, and ye sinned against Yahweh, and hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh, and in his law and in his statutes and in his testimonies did not walk, did this calamity befal you— as at this day?

24 And Jeremiah said unto all the people, and unto all the women,—

Hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are in the land of Egypt,—

26 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying,
Ye and your wives have both spoken with your mouth and with your hands have ye fulfilled, saying,
We will certainly perform our vows which we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out to her drink-offerings: the women will certainly confirm your vows, and will certainly perform your vows.

28 Therefore hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are dwelling in the land of Egypt,—

Behold me! I have sworn by my great Name, saith Yahweh,
That my Name shall no more be invoked by the mouth of any man of Judah, saying—

By the life of My Lord, Yahweh, in all the land of Egypt.

Behold me! watching over them for calamity, and not for blessing; so shall all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt be consumed by sword and by famine, until there be an end of them. Yet the fugitives of the sword shall certainly return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, men easily counted,—that all the remnant of Judah who are entering Egypt to sojourn there may know, whose word shall stand, mine or theirs?

29 And this to you shall be the sign. Declarest Yahweh, that I am about to bring punishment upon you in this place,—that ye may know that my words shall certainly stand against you, for calamity:

Thus saith Yahweh,

Behold me! delivering up Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, yea into the hand of them who are seeking his life,—just as I delivered Zedekiah king of Judah, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and one seeking his life.

§ 40. Jeremiah's faithful but regretful Servant, Baruch, is, by Divine Message, reminded that his Ambition for great Things is ill-timed, and he is simply assured of his Life.

1 The word which Jeremiah the prophet spake, unto Baruch son of Neriah,—when he had written these words upon a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah—

Thus saith Yahweh,

Unto thee, O Baruch,—

3 Thou didst say, Surely woe to me! For Yahweh hath added sorrow unto my pain,—

I am weary with my moaning, And creast have I not found!

4 Thus shalt thou say unto him, Thus saith Yahweh,—

Lo, what I had built I am pulling down, And what I had planted I am rooting up,—

And that is all the land:—

5 Wouldst thou then seek to secure for thyself great things? Do not seek!

For, behold me! bringing in calamity upon all flesh, Declareth Yahweh.

§ 41. The Nations (chaps. i.10; xxv. 15) — Egypt.

1 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, concerning the nations.

2 Of Egypt.

Concerning the force of Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates, in Carchemish, — which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah:—

3 Prepare ye buckler and shield, And draw near to battle:

4 Harness the horses, and mount, ye horsemen, Stand forth in helmets,— Polish the lances, put on the coats of mail.

5 Why' have I seen it? They' are drawing back, Ye' have fled— and not turned,— Terror round about! Declareth Yahweh.

6 Let not the swift flee, Nor let the hero escape,—

7 Who is' it that is like the Nile when it riseth, Like rivers when the waters are tossed? So Egypt was like the Nile when it riseth, And like rivers, when the waters are tossed: So he said— I will rise, I will cover the earth, I will destroy the city, and the dwellers therein.

8 Mount the horses, And drive the chariots madly on, So let the heroes go forth,—

9 But that day belongeth to My Lord. Yahweh of hosts— A day of avenging, to avenge him of his adversaries, When the sword shall devour and be filled, and be sated with their blood,— For as a sacrifice hath My Lord, Yahweh of hosts.

10 In the land of the North, Towards the river Euphrates.

11 Go up to Gilead, and fetch balsam, O virgin, daughter of Egypt!

<In vain> hast thou multiplied remedies, <Healing> there is none' for thee.

12 The nations have heard' of thy disgrace, And [thine outcry] hath filled the earth,— For hero against hero have they stumbled, Together have fallen [the twain]!

13 The word which Yahweh spake, unto Jeremiah the prophet,— as to the coming of Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, to smite the land of Egypt:—

Tell ye it in Egypt, And let it be heard in Migdol, Yea let it be heard in Noph, and in Tahapanhes,— Say ye— Stand thou forth, and prepare thyself, For a sword hath devoured round about thee.

15 Wherefore' have thy valiant ones' been laid prostrate? He hath made no stand, because [Yahweh] hath driven him back:

16 Hath made many a one to be stumbling, Yea fallen' is every one against his neighbour, So they have said—

17 Proclaim ye a name,— Pharaoh, king of Egypt!— a Sound! He hath overstepped the time appointed!

18 <As I live> saith the King, Yahweh of hosts] is his name:

19 <Though Like Tabor among mountains, Like Cannel > Into the sea shall he go!

20 <Baggage for captivity> prepare thee, [inhabitress, daughter of Egypt; For [Noph] shall become a desolation, And be burned, without inhabitant.

21 Even her hirelings, in her midst; are like fatted calves, For [even they] have turned— have fled at once! have made no stand!

22 For [their day of doom] hath come upon them, The time of their visitation.

Put to shame, is the daughter of Egypt,—
She hath been delivered into the hand of the people of the North.
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
Behold me! bringing punishment,—against Amon of No, and upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt, and upon her gods, and upon her kings,—
Even upon Pharaoh, and upon all that trust in him;
And I will deliver them—
Into the hand of them who are seeking their life,
Even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon,
And into the hand of his servants,—
And after that shall it be inhabited as in the days of old, Declareth Yahweh.
Thou therefore, do not fear, O my Servant Jacob,
Nor be dismayed, O Israel,
For behold me!
Saving thee from afar.
And thy seed, from the land of their captivity,—
So shall Jacob return, and be quiet, and shall rest,
With none to occasion alarm.
Thou dost not fear, O my Servant Jacob,
Urgeth Yahweh,
For I am I:
Though I make an end of all the nations whither I have driven thee,
Yet wilt thou make an end,
But will correct thee in measure,
And not hold thee guiltless.

§ 42. The Nations:—The Philistines.

So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet,
Against the Philistines,— before Pharaoh smote Gaza:

Thus saith Yahweh—
Lo! waters rising from the North
And they shall become a torrent overflowing,
Which shall overflow
The land and the fulness thereof,
The city, and the dwellers therein,—

Then shall men make outcry,
And all the inhabitants of the land howl.
Because of the sound of the trampling of the hoofs of his chargers,
Because of the rushing of his chariots, the rumbling of his wheels>
| Fathers shall not turn* to children,2
Because of the unnerving of their hands;
On account of the day that cometh to lay waste all the Philistines,
To cut off from Tyre, and Zidon, every escaped one that could have helped,—
For Yahweh is laying waste the Philistines,
The remnant of the Coastland of Caphtor.
| Baldness hath come upon Gaza, Silenced is Ashkelon, the remnant of their vale,—
How long wilt thou cut thyself?
| How long wilt thou not be quiet?
Withdraw into thy scabbard, Rest thyself, and be still.

| How can it be quiet, when Yahweh hath given it a charge,—against Ashkelon, and against the shore of the sea? There hath he appointed it!

§ 43. The Nations:—Moab.

| Of Moab:—
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,—
Alas for Nebo, for it is laid waste,
Put to shame—captured, in Kirjathaim:
Put to shame is Moab, dismayed.
| No more is the praise of Moab,
In Heshbon have they devised against her, calamity,
Come, and let us cut her off from being a nation,—
Even thou Madmen also shalt be silenced.
| After thee shall march the sword.

A voice of outcry, from Horonaim,— Wasting and great destruction!
Moab is broken:
Her little ones have caused to hear outcry.
For <the ascent of Luhith> with weeping one ascendeth— with weeping,—
For in the descent of Horonaim <the distress of the outcry of destruction> have they heard:
Flee, deliver your own lives,—
Then shall the women be as a shrub in the desert.
For <seeing thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures> shall Chemosh go forth into captivity,
| His priests and his princes together.
8 And the spoiler shall enter into every city, And not a city shall escape, Then shall perish the vale, Then be destroyed the table-land,—
[As Yahweh hath said].

9 Give wing to Moab, For she must fly away; And her cities —
<To desolation> shall be turned, With no inhabitant therein.√

10 | Accursed| be he that doeth the business of Yahweh, carelessly; And, | accursed| be he that withholdeth his sword | from blood |
Moab | hath been at ease| from his youth, And | settled| is he upon his lees, And hath not been poured out from vessel to vessel, Nor <into captivity> hath gone,— | For this cause| hath his flavour stood still’ within him, And | his scent| is unchanged.

12 | Therefore| lo! | days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When I will send to him tilters, and they shall till him,— And <his vessels> shall they empty, And <their jars> shall they dash in pieces.

13 Then shall |Moab| be ashamed, of |Chemosh|,
Just as |the sons of Israel| were ashamed of |Bethel, their confidence,.

14 How can ye say, |Heroes| are we? and Men of might for the war? Spoiled’ is Moab, And <her cities> hath he ascended, And |the choice of his young men| have gone down to the slaughter,—
Declareth The King,
|Yahweh of hosts| is his Name.

16 Near’ is the doom of Moab, to come,— And |his calamity| hasteth |greatly|.
Lament ye for him— All that are round about him, and All that know his name,— Say, How’ is broken— The staff of strength! The rod of beauty!

18 Come down from glory, and sit in thirst, O inhabitress, daughter of Dibon; For |the spoiler of Moab| hath come up against thee, He hath laid in ruins thy strongholds.
<Near the way > take thy stand and keep outlook, O inhabitress of Aroer: Ask— Him that feeth, and Her that hath escaped,
Say, What hath happened? Confounded’ is Moab! For it is broken down! Howl and make outcry,— Tell ye in Arnon’, That Moab |is spoiled|;
K.O.T.

21 And |judgment| hath come Upon the country of the table-land,— Upon Helon, and Upon Jazer, and Upon Mephaath; and Upon Dibon, and Upon Nebo, and Upon Beth-diblathaim; and Upon Kiriathaim, and Upon Beth-gamul, and Upon Beth-meon; and Upon Kerioth, and Upon Bozrah,— Yes upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far, and near.

23 Cut off’ is the horn of Moab, Yes |his arm| is broken,— Declareth Yahweh.

26 Make ye him drunken, Because |against Yahweh| hath he magnified himself; So shall |Moab| stagger |into his own vomit|, And shall become a derision, |even he|!

27 And was it not |a derision| that Israel |became to thee|? And was it not |among thieves| he was found?
For |as often as thou didst speak of him| thou didst wag the head!°

28 Leave ye the cities, and dwell in the cliff, Ye inhabitants of Moab; And become ye as a dove, that maketh her nest in the further-side of the fissure’s mouth.

29 We have heard the arrogance of Moab—proud exceedingly:
His loftiness and his arrogance and his majesty, and his elevation of heart!

30 ||I|| know— Declareth Yahweh, His passion—that ’tis Unjust! |His boastsings|, that Untrue have they made |them|!

31 |For this cause| |over Moab| will I howl, And <for all Moab> will I make outcry,— |For the men of Kir-heres> must one| moan!

32 |Beyond the weeping of Jazer> will I weep for thee, O vine of Sibmah,°
|Thy tendrils| have gone over the sea,* |Unto the sea of Jazer| have they reached, |Upon thy summer fruits, And upon thy vintage| |the spoiler| hath fallen.

° "Splash (fall with a splash)"—O.G. "'I"—G.n.

33 So shall be withdrawn gladness and exultation—
    From the fruitful field, and
    From the land of Moab,
    And <wine from the vats> have I caused to fail,
    They shall not tread with shouting.
    ||The shouting shall be no' shouting!
34 <From the outcry of Heshbon,
    Even unto Elealeh,
    Even unto Jahaz> have they given forth their voice,
    <From Zoor even unto Horonaim> the third <Eglath,>
    For ||even the waters of Nimrim ||to utter desolation have been turned :
35 Then will I cause to cease from Moab,
    Declareth Yahweh,—
    Him that offereth at a high-place, and
    Him that burneth incense to his gods.
36 For this cause ||my heart, for Moab ||like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds,
    Yea ||my heart, for the men of Kir-heres ||like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds,
    Because ||the abundance he hath gotten is lost !
37 For every head is baldness,
    And [every beard] clipped :
    <Upon all hands> are gashes,
    And <upon the loins> |sackcloth !
38 <Upon all the house tops of Moab,
    And in her broad ways> it is all lamentation,—
    For I have broken Moab—
    Like a vessel wherein is no' pleasure,
    Declareth Yahweh.
39 <How' it is broken down !>
    They have howled,
    How' hath Moab turned the back |for shame|,—
    So shall Moab become a derision and a terror, to all round about him.
40 For |thus|| saith Yahweh,
    Lo ! <as an eagle> shall one dart along,—
    And shall spread out his wings towards Moab.
41 Captured' is Kerioth,
    And [the fortresses] are seized,—
    Then shall the heart of the heroes of Moab become in that' day.
    As the heart of a woman in her pains.
42 Then shall ||Moab> be destroyed |from being a people|,—
    Because <against Yahweh> hath he magnified himself.
43 Terror, and pit, and snare:* are upon thee.
    O inhabitant of Moab,
    Declareth Yahweh :
    ||He that fleeth from the face of the terror
    Shall fall into the pit,
    And ||he that getteth up out of the pit||
    Shall be captured by the snare,—
    For I will bring against her—<against Moab>,
    The year of their visitation,
    Declareth Yahweh.
44 <In the shadow of Heshbon> stand |strengthless| the fugitives;—
    For ||a fire> hath gone forth out of Heshbon,
    And shall flame out of the midst of <Sihon,
    And shall devour the heard of Moab,>
    And the crown of the head of the proudly tumultuous.
45 Woe to thee, Moab !
    Lost' are the people of Chemosh,—
    For thy sons |have been taken| into captivity,
    And thy daughters into captivity.
46 Yet will I bring back the captivity of Moab,
    In the afterpart of the days,
    Declareth Yahweh.
    <Thus far> is the sentence of Moab.

§ 44. The Nations:—The Sons of Ammon.

1 Of the sons of Ammon||—
    <Thus|| saith Yahweh :
    Hath Israel no' ||son||? Hath he no' ||their||?
    Why hath |Malkam ||taken possession' of ||Gad,
    Or have ||his people|| <in the cities thereof> made their dwelling?
2 |Therefore| lo! |days are coming|,
    Declareth Yahweh,
    When I will cause to be heard against Rabbah of the sons of Ammon, |an alarm of war|,
    So shall she become a mound of desolation,
    And ||her villages|| <with fire> shall blaze,—
    Then shall |Israel> inherit them' who inherited him',
    Saith Yahweh.
3 Howl, 0 Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled,
    Make outcry, ye daughters of Rabbah,
    Gird you with sackcloth,
    Lament ye, and run to and fro among the fences,—
    For ||Malkam|| <into captivity> shall go,
    His priests and his princes, ||together|.

Why shouldst thou glory in the vales, The flowing of thy vale, O apostate's daughter? She who is trusting in her treasures, [saying]:
Who shall invade me?'
Behold me! bringing upon thee, terror.
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts,
From all who are round about thee,—
And ye shall be driven out every man before it.
And there shall be none to bring home the wanderer,
But afterwards will I bring back the captivity of the sons of Ammon.
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 45. The Nations.—Edom. (Cp. Isa. lxiii.)

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Is there no longer wisdom in Teman?
Hath counsel perished from the discerning?
Is [their wisdom] corrupt?
Flee ye, turn, go down deep to dwell, O inhabitant of Dedan,—
For the doom of Esau have I brought in upon him,
The time of his visitation.
If grape-gatherers came to thee
Would they not leave gleanings?
If thieves in the night;
Would they not have taken away what sufficed them?
But I have stripped Esau bare,
I have uncovered his secret places,
And shall he not be able!
Spoiled, are his seed, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he is not.

Leave thy fatherless children
Will preserve them alive,—
And thy widows;
Let them trust.

For thus saith Yahweh—
Lo! they who had not been adjudged to drink the cup, shall surely drink,
And art thou the one to go unpunished? Thou shalt not go unpunished, but shalt surely drink.

For have I sworn
Declareth Yahweh,
That Bozrah shall become an astonishment, a reprobate, and a desolation, and a contempt;—
And all her cities shall become age-abiding desolations.

49—2
§ 46. The Nations:—Damascus.

19 Of Damascus

Turned pale have Hamath and Arpad,
For a calamitous report have they heard—they tremble.

<In the sea> is anxiety, it cannot rest.

24 Enfeebled is Damascus,
She hath turned to flee.

But terror hath seized her,—
Anguish and pangs have seized her, as a woman in childbirth.

25 Alas! is she not forsaken—
The city so praised!
The citadel I rejoiced in!

Therefore shall her young men fall in her broadways,—
And all her men of war shall be silent in that day, Declareth Yahweh of hosts;

27 Then will I kindle a fire in the walls of Damascus,—
And it shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

§ 47. The Nations:—Kedar.

31 Of Kedar

And of the kingdoms of Hazor
Which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote—

Thus saith Yahweh,—

Arise ye, go up against Kedar.
So shall they spoil the sons of the East:

29 <Their tents and their flocks> shall they take,
And <their curtains, and all their baggage,> and their camels> shall they carry off for themselves,—
And shall cry out unto them.

Terror round about:—

Flee, remove far away, go deep to dwell,
Ye inhabitants of Hazor.

Urgeth Yahweh;
For Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—

Hath counselled against you, a counsel,
And devised against you a device.

31 Arise ye, go up against a nation at ease—dwelling securely—

Commandeth Yahweh,—

Having neither doors nor bars,

Alone do they dwell:

33 So shall <their camels> become ,
And <the throng of their cattle, a spoil>,
Then will I scatter them to every wind, even the clipt-beards,—
And from all sides of him shall I bring in their doom,

Declareth Yahweh.

§ 48. The Nations:—Elam.

31 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet,

Against Elam,— in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying:—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—

Behold me! breaking the bow of Elam,—

The beginning of their night;

Then will I bring in against Elam, four winds, from the four quarters of the heavens,

And will scatter them to all these winds,—
And there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come;

And I will cause Elam to be dismayed
Before their enemies,
Even before them who are seeking their life,

So will I bring upon them calamity,
Even the glow of mine anger,

Declareth Yahweh,—

And will send after them the sword, until I have made an end of them:
And I will set my throne in Elam,—

39 But it shall come to pass,
In the after-part of the days,
That I will bring back the captivity of Elam,
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 49. The Nations:—Babylon.

1 The word which Yahweh spake

Against Babylon,

Against the land of the Chaldeans,
through Jeremiah the prophet:

2 Tell ye among the nations,
And let it be heard, And lift ye up a standard.
Let it be heard, do not conceal;

Say ye—
Captured is Babylon,
Confounded is Bel,*
Broken in pieces is Merodach,
Confounded are her images,
Broken down her manufactured gods;!

3 For there hath come up against her—a nation out of the North,
    [The same] shall make her land an astonishment,
    And there shall be none to dwell therein,—
    Both man and beast: have removed—have gone!
4 <In those days, and at that time>
    Declareth Yahweh,
    Shall the sons of Israel come in,
    [They] and the sons of Judah: together:
    Weeping as they travel> so shall they journey on,
    And <Yahweh their God> shall they seek;
5 <To Zion> shall they ask the way,
    <Hitherward> their faces!
    Come and let us join ourselves unto Yahweh,
    In a covenant age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.
6 <Wandering sheep> have my people been,
    [Their own shepherds] led them astray,
    <On the mountains> they seduced them,
    <From mountain to hill> have they gone,
    They have forgotten their couching-place.
7 All who found them 11devoured them,
    And iltheir adversaries!!said—
    We shall not lieguilty,—
    Because they have sinned
    Against Yahweh, the pasturage of righteousness,4
    Yes (the hope of their fathers—Yahweh).
8 Remove ye out of the midst of Babylon,
    And <out of the land of the Chaldeans> come ye forth,—
    And become ye like he-goats before the flock;
9 For lo! I am rousing and bringing up against Babylon, a gathered host of great nations, out of the land of the North,
    And they shallarray themselves against her,
    <From thence> shall she be captured,—
    His arrows are as of a hero making childless,8
    None shall return |empty |.
10 So shall the Chaldeans become a spoil,—
    All her spoilers shallbe satisfied,
    Declareth Yahweh; 9
11 Because they used to be glad,
    Because they used to be uproarious,
    When plundering mine inheritance,—
    Because they used to caper about as a heifer at grass,
    And bellow like bulls.
12 Your mother |hath turned very pale|,
    She that bare you |hath turned red|,—
    Lo! the last of nations: is—
    A desert,
    A parched land, and
    A waste plain.
13 <Because of the vexation of Yahweh> she shall not be inhabited,
    But shall become a complete desolation,—
    Every one passing by Babylon shall be astonished and hiss, over all her plagues.
14 Set yourselves in array against Babylon round about,
    All ye who tread the bow,
    Shoot at her, do not spare so much as an arrow,—
    For <against Yahweh> hath she sinned.
15 Raise a shout against her round about,
    She hath stretched forth her hand, fallen' are her butresses,
    Torn down' are her walls,—
    <Because the avenging of Yahweh it is'>
    Take ye vengeance upon her,
    <As she hath done> do ye |unto her|.
16 Cut ye off the sower from Babylon,
    And him that graspeth the sickle, in the time of harvest.
    <From the face of the sword of the oppressor>
    [Each] |to his own people| will they turn, and
    [Each] |to his own land| will they flee.
17 <A sheep all alone> is Israel,
    Lions |have driven him away,—
    <At the first> |the king of Assyria| devoured him,
    And <here, at the last>* |Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon| hath broken his bones!
18 <Therefore >
    Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,
    Behold me! bringing punishment against the king of Babylon, and against his land,—
    Just as I brought punishment against the king of Assyria.
19 So will I bring back Israel unto his own pasture,
    And he shall feed upon Carmel and Bashan;
    And <in the hill country of Ephraim and Gilead> shall |his soul| lie satisfied.'
20 <In those days, and in that time>
    Declareth Yahweh.
    The iniquity of Israel |shall be sought | and
    |there shall be' none;
    And the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found;
    For I will grant pardon to them whom I suffer to remain.
21 <As if imploring mercy>—
    Or: "she hath delivered up her power."

21 Against the land of Merathaim, go thou up against her, And against the inhabitants of Pekod,— Lay waste and devote to destruction after them, Declareth Yahweh, And do according to all which I have commanded thee.

22 The sound of battle is in the earth,— And a great destruction.

23 How is cut and broken, the hammer of all the earth! How hath Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!

24 I laid a snare for thee, yea and thou wast captured, O Babylon, when thou wast not aware,— Thou wast found out, yea and taken, For with Yahweh hadst thou contended.

25 Yahweh opened his armoury, and brought out his weapons of indignation,— For it is pertaining to My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come ye against her from farthest parts, Throw open her granaries, Cast her up as heaps, and devote her to destruction,— Do not let her have a remnant! Cut up all her bullocks, Let them go down to the slaughter,— Alas for them! For their day hath come! Their time for punishment.

27 The voice Of them who are in flight, and Of such as are escaping, out of the land of Babylon,— To tell in Zion, The avenging of Yahweh our God, The avenging of his temple.

28 Publish against Babylon, ye chiefs of all who tread the bow— Encamp against her round about, Let there be none to escape, Recompense to her according to her work; According to all which she did do ye to her,— For hath she acted presumptuously, Against the Holy One of Israel.

29 Therefore shall her young men fall in her broadways, And all her men of war be silenced in that day, Declareth Yahweh.

30 Behold me against thee, most insolent one, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts; For thy day hath come, Thy time for punishment;

31 So shall the most insolent one stumble' and fall, And he shall have none to lift him up,— And I will kindle a fire in his cities, which shall devour all who are round about him.

32 [Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts— Oppressed were the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, [together],— And all who took them captive Held them fast, Refused to let them go:—

33 Their Redeemer can hold fast, Yahweh of hosts is his name, He will thoroughly plead their plea,— That he may quiet the earth, And disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.

34 A sword is over the Chaldeans, Declareth Yahweh,— And against the inhabitants of Babylon, And against her princes, And against her wise men:

35 A sword is against the prayer, And they shall be shewn to be foolish, A sword is against her heroes, And they shall be dismayed:

36 A sword is against his horses and against his chariots, and against all the rabble that are in her midst, And they shall become women,— A sword is against her treasures, And they shall be made a prey:

37 A sword is against her waters, And they shall be dried up,— For it is, And with their shocking things they act as men who are mad:

38 A drought is against her waters, And they shall be dried up,— For it is 39 Therefore shall the [criers] dwell with the howlers, Yea ostriches shall dwell therein,— So shall it be dwelt in no more for ever, Neither shall it be inhabited, unto generation after generation.

40 Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and her neighbours> Declareth Yahweh,— There shall not dwell there—a man, Nor sojourn therein—a son of the earth-born.

41 Lo! a people coming in from the North,— Yea a great nation, and many kings' shall be roused up out of the remote parts of the earth:

42 Bow and javelin shall they grasp, Cruel are they and will not have compassion,
Their voice\ll will roar,\nAnd \ll on horses\ll will they ride,—\nSet in array, as one man, for battle,\nAgainst thee, O daughter of Babylon!\n
The king of Babylon hath heard\ll the report of them,\nAnd unnerved\ll are his hands,—\nAnguish\ll hath seized him,\nWrithing pain, as a woman in child-birth.

Lo!\ll as a lion\ll shall he come up from the majesty of the Jordan,\nUnto the pasture perennial,
But I will wink—I will make them run away therefrom,
Who\ll then shall be the Chosen One whom I may set in charge?\nFor who\ll shall be like unto me?\nAnd who\ll shall appoint me a time?\nAnd who\ll is the Shepherd that shall stand before me?

Therefore\ll hear ye\ll The counsel of Yahweh, which he hath counselled against Babylon,\nAnd his devices which he hath devised against the land of the Chaldeans,—\nSurely the little ones of the flock shall drag them away,
Surely he will cause the pasture to be astounded over them.

At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth\ll trembled,—\nAnd litheoutcry\ll among the nations was heard.

Thus saith Yahweh—\nBehold me! stirring up against Babylon,\nAnd against the inhabitants of the centre of them who rise up against me,—\nA wind that destroyeth;\nAnd I will send to Babylon winnowers,\nAnd they shall winnow her,\nAnd shall empty her land,—\nFor they are against her round about, in the day of calamity.

Let not the archer tread his bow,\nNor lift himself up in his coat of mail,—\nAnd do not spare her young men,\nDevote to destruction all her host.

So shall they fall wounded, in the land of Chaldea,—\nYea thrust through, in her streets,
For Israel and Judah have not been widowed;\nOf their God, Of Yahweh of hosts,—\nBut their land hath been filled with punishment for guilt, from the Holy Land of Israel.

Flee out of the midst of Babylon,\nAnd deliver ye every man his own life,\nBe not cut off in her punishment,—\nFor it is Yahweh's time of avenging,\nA recompense is he repaying unto her.

A cup of gold was Babylon, in the hand of Yahweh,\nMaking drunk all the earth,—\nOf her wine have the nations drunk,\nFor this cause have the nations been acting as men who are mad.

Suddenly hath Babylon fallen, and been broken,—\nHowl ye over her,\nFetch balsam for her pain,\nPeradventure she shall be healed!

We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed,\nLeave her, and let us go every one to his own land,—\nFor her judgment reacheth unto the heavens,\nAnd mounteth as far as the skies.

Yahweh hath brought forth our righteousnesses,—\nCome and let us relate in Zion, the work of Yahweh our God.

Polish the arrows,\nLay hold of the shields,—\nYahweh hath roused the spirit of the kings of the Medes,\nFor his purpose is, to destroy her,—\nFor it is The avenging of Yahweh,\nThe avenging of his temple,.

Against the walls of Babylon\n Lift ye up a standard,\nStrengthen ye the watch, Station the watchmen,\nMake ready the ambuscades,—\nFor Yahweh hath both planned and also performed that which he had spoken against the inhabitants of Babylon.

Thou who dwellest upon many waters, Who aboundest in treasures,—\nCome' hath thine end!\nThe measure of thine unrighteous gain!
Yahweh of hosts hath sworn, by his own soul: Surely I have filled thee with men, as with locusts, And they have answered against thee, with a shout,\n

15 He that made the earth in his might,
Established the world in his wisdom,
And in his understanding stretched out the heavens;
16 By the voice that he uttered was a tumult of waters in the heavens,
And he caused vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,
Lightnings for the rain made he,
And brought forth wind out of his treasures.
17 Every son of earth had become too brutish to know,
Every goldsmith hath been put to shame by a graven image,
For a falsehood is his molten image,
Seeing there is no breath in them;
18 A handiwork of mockeries,
In the time of their visitation shall they perish.
19 Not like these is the portion of Jacob,
For the fashioner of all things is he;
Yahweh of hosts is his name.
20 A war-club art thou for me, Weapons of war;
Therefore will I beat down with thee—nations, and destroy with thee—kingdoms;
Beat down with thee—the horse and his rider,
Beat down with thee—the chariot and its rider;
Beat down with thee—man and woman, and Beat down with thee—elders and youth, and Beat down with thee—young man and virgin;
Beat down with thee—the shepherd and his flock, and Beat down with thee—the plowman and his yoke;
So will I recompense to Babylon, And to all the inhabitants of Chaldea, All their wickedness which they have committed against Zion, before your eyes,
Declareth Yahweh.
25 Behold me! against thee, O destroying mountain, Declareth Yahweh, That destroyest all the earth,
Therefore will I stretch out my hand over thee, And roll thee down from the crags, And make of thee a burning mountain;
So shall they not fetch from thee, A stone for a corner, nor A stone for a foundation,
For desolations age-abiding shalt thou become, Declareth Yahweh.

Set ye up an ensign in the earth,
Blow ye a horn among the nations,
Hallow against her—nations,
Summon against her the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz;
Set in charge against her a marshal,
Bring up cavalry like hairy locusts:
Hallow against her—nations, With the kings of Media,
With her governors and all her deputies,
And with all the land of his dominion:
Then did the land tremble, and was in pain,
For the plans of Yahweh had been established against Babylon, To make the land of Babylon an astonishment, without inhabitant.

The heroes of Babylon have ceased to fight, They have remained in the strongholds, Parched is their might, They have become women,— They have set fire to her habitations, Broken are her bars!
Runner to meet runner shall they run, And teller to meet teller,— To tell the king of Babylon, That captured' is his city at the end!
And The fords have been seized, and The reeds have they burned with fire; and The men of war are dismayed!

Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—
Hath devoured me,
Hath vexed me,
Hath set me down as an empty vessel, He hath swallowed me like a sea-monster, He hath filled his belly with my dainties,— He hath driven me away!

The violence done to me and to my flesh shall be upon Babylon!
Shall the inhabitress of Zion say,—
Yes! my blood I bear upon the inhabitant of Chaldea!
Shall Jerusalem say!
Therefore saith Yahweh,
Behold me! pleading thy cause,
So then I will execute the avenging of thee;
And will dry up her sea,
And make dry her spring:
Thus shall Babylon become — Heaps,
A habitation of jackals,
An astonishment, and
A hissing.
Without inhabitant.
Together like wild lions shall they roar,—
They have growled like lions' whelps.
When they are heated I will spread their banquet,
And let them drink that they may become uproarious,
So shall they sleep an age-abiding sleep and not wake,— Declareth Yahweh.
I will bring them down as fat lambs to slaughter,—
As rams, with he-goats.
How hath Sheshech been captured! How hath the praise of all the earth been seized!
How hath Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!
The sea hath gone up over Babylon,—
<With the multitude of its rolling waves> is she covered.
Her cities have become an astonishment,
A land parched up, and a waste plain,—
A land wherein shall no man dwell,
Nor pass through them a son of the earth—
Even the wall of Babylon hath fallen!
Come ye forth out of her midst, O my people,
And deliver ye every man his own life,—
Because of the glow of the anger of Yahweh.
And let not your heart be timid, nor be ye afraid,
Because of the report that is reported in the earth
When there shall come <in one year> the report,
And <after that, in another year> the report,
With violence in the earth, and ruler upon ruler.

Therefore lo! days coming when I will bring punishment upon the images of Babylon,
And [all her land] shall turn pale,—
Yea [all her wounded] shall fall in her midst.
Then shall shout over Babylon—heavens and earth, and all who are therein,—
For <out of the North> shall come to her the spoilers,
Declareth Yahweh.
Not only hath Babylon caused the fall of the slain of Israel,—
<By Babylon> also have fallen the slain of [all the earth].
Ye that have escaped the sword, depart, do not stand still,— Remember, from afar, Yahweh,
Let Jerusalem come up on your heart:
We have turned pale, for we have heard a reproach,
<Confusion hath covered our faces>,—
For aliens have entered upon the hallowed places of the house of Yahweh!

Therefore lo! days are coming,
Declareth Yahweh,
When I will bring punishment upon her images;*
And <throughout all her land> shall the pierced one [groan].
Though Babylon should mount the heavens,
And though she should fortify her strong high-place>
<From me> should come spoilers unto her,
Declareth Yahweh.
A voice of outcry from Babylon!
And a great crash from the land of the Chaldeans!
For [Yahweh] is spoiling [Babylon],
And will destroy out of her the loud voice,—
Though their waves have roared like many waters,
Been uttered the loud boast of their voice,
For there hath come upon her—upon Babylon
—a spoiler,
And captured are their heroes,
And broken are their bows,—
For  is Yahweh,
He will surely repay!.
Then will I make drunk—
Her princes and her wise men,
Her governors, and her deputies, and her heroes,
And they shall sleep an age-abiding sleep, and not wake,—
Declareth the King,
<Yahweh of hosts> is his name.
778 JEREMIAH LII. 58—64; LII. 1—18.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—

The broad walls of Babylon shall be laid utterly bare,
And her lofty gates shall burn with fire,
And peoples shall labour for emptiness,
And the populations shall weary themselves.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—

The broad walls of Babylon shall be laid utterly bare,
And her lofty gates shall burn with fire,
And peoples shall labour for emptiness,
And the populations shall weary themselves.

And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, and all his forces, against Jerusalem, and encamped against it, and he built against it a siege-wall round about. And the city came into the siege, until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.

And in the fourth month, on the ninth of the month, when the famine had become severe in the city, and there had come to be no bread for the people of the land, then was the city broken up; and all the men of war, beginning to flee, went forth out of the city by night, by way of the gate between the two walls which was by the garden of the king (the Chaldeans being near the city round about), and they went the way towards the Waste Plain. And the force of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook Zedekiah, in the Waste Plains of Jericho, and all his forces was scattered from him.

And so they seized the king, and brought him up unto the king of Babylon at Riblah, in the land of Hamath, and he pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah, before his eyes, moreover also all the princes of Judah, and put them all to death at Riblah; and the eyes of Zedekiah put he out, and bound him with fetters of bronze, and the king of Babylon took him to Babylon, and put him in prison—until the day of his death.

And in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, who stood before the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem; and he burned the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king, and all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great man's house, burned he with fire; and all the walls of Jerusalem, round about, did all the force of the Chaldeans who were with the chief of the royal executioners, break down.

And some of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened who had fallen away unto the king of Babylon, and the residue of the multitude did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, carry away captive. But others of the poor of the land did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave, for vinedressers and for husbandmen.

And the pillars of bronze that pertained to the house of Yahweh, and the stands, and the sea of bronze which was in the house of Yahweh, did the Chaldeans break in pieces, and they carried away all the bronze of them, to Babylon; and the caldrons... and the shovels and the snuffers and the dashing bowls, and the spoons, even all the utensils of bronze wherewith ministration used to be made did they take away; and <the basins and the censers and the dashing bowls and the caldrons and the lamps and the spoons and the cups, which were of gold, in gold, and which were of silver, in silver> did the chief of the royal executioners take away! As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve oxen of bronze which were under the stands which King Solomon had made for the house of Yahweh without weight was the bronze of all these things. Now <as for the pillars> (eighteen cubits) was the height of each pillar, and [a line of twelve cubits] compassed it about,—and the thickness thereof was four fingers' breadth—hollow; and there was a capital upon it of bronze, and the height of each capital was five cubits, with lattice-work and pomegranates upon the capital round about—the whole was of bronze,—and like these were the second pillar and the pomegranates. And the pomegranates were ninety-six on a side,—all the pomegranates; were a hundred, upon the lattice-work, round about.

And the chief of the royal executioners took away Seraiah, the first priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest,—and the three keepers of the entrance-hall; and <out of the city> took he one eunuch who was in charge over the men of war, and seven men of them who used to watch the face of the king, who were found in the city, and the scribe of the prince of the host, who used to muster the people of the land,—and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. And <when Nebuzaradan, chief the royal executioners, had taken' them, and brought them unto the king of Babylon, at Riblah> then did the king of Babylon smite' them and put them to death at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—thus carried he Judah captive, away from off their own soil.

| This is the people, whom Nebuchadrezzar (carried away captive),— <In the seventh year—of them of Judah> three thousand and twenty-three; <In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar—out of Jerusalem> eight hundred and thirty-two souls; In the three-and-twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar— Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, took away captive, [of them of Judah] seven hundred and forty-five souls: All the souls were four thousand and six hundred. And it came to pass <in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth of the month> that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year he began to reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison; and spake with him comfortable words,—and set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; so he changed his prison garments,—and used to eat bread before his face continually, all the days of his life. And his allowance was a continual allowance, given him from the king of Babylon, the portion of the day upon its own day, until the day of his death,—all the days of his life.

111 How' is seated alone, the city that abounded with people, Hath become as a widow,— She who abounded among the nations, Was a princess among provinces, Hath come under tribute.

2 She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears: is on her cheek, She hath none to comfort her, of all her lovers,— All her friends have betrayed her, Have become her foes.

3 Carried away captive is Judah— Because of oppression; and Because of great servitude, She hath remained among the nations, Hath found no place of rest,— All her pursuers have overtaken her, between straits.

4 The ways to Zion are mourning. Because none come to her appointed feasts, All her gates are desolate, Her priests are sighing,— Her virgins are grieved. And <she> it is bitter for her.'
5 Her adversaries' have become chief.
   For Yahweh hath grieved her, because of the multitude of her transgressions,
   Her children have gone into captivity, before the adversary.

7 Thus hath gone forth from the daughter of Zion.
   All that adorned her,
   Her princes have become like harts that have found no pasture,
   And have gone strengthless before the pursuer.

7 Jerusalem hath remembered
   In the days of her humiliation and her fleeings—
   All her precious things, which have existed from the days of old,—
   (Now that her people have been falling into the hand of the adversary, with none to help her).
   The adversaries have seen her, have mocked over her sabbath-keepings.

8 Jerusalem hath grievously sinned;—
   For this cause hath she been delivered,—
   All who used to honour her have despised her, for they have described her unselﬁnness,
   Yea, she herself hath sighed, and turned back.

9 Her impurity is in her skirts.
   She hath not remembered her hereafter,
   Therefore hath she come down wonderfully.
   None to comfort her,—
   Behold, O Yahweh, my humiliation,
   That the foe hath made himself great.

10 <His hand> hath the adversary spread out, over all her precious things,—
   For she saw that the nations entered her sanctuary,
   As to whom thou didst command they should not enter—in the convocation—unto thee!

11 All her people are sighing, seeking bread.
   They have given their precious things for food, to bring back life,— Behold, O Yahweh, and discern, that I have become worthless.

12 Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?
   Look around and see, whether there is pain like my pain, which is severely dealt out to me,—
   In that Yahweh hath caused grief, in the day of the glow of his anger?

13 <From on high> sent he fire, among my bones, laid them prostrate,—
   He spread out a net for my feet, he made me turn back,
   He made me desolate, <all the day> faint.

14 The yoke of my transgressions hath been bound by his hand—
   They have intertwined themselves, have come up on my neck, it hath paralysed my strength,—
   My Lord hath delivered me into the hands of those against whom I cannot rise up.

15 My Lord hath flouted at all my magnates in my midst,
   He hath called against me a host, to crush my young men,—
   <A winepress> hath My Lord trodden, to the virgin, the daughter of Judah.

16 <For these things> am I weeping,
   'Mine eye, mine eye!' is running down with waters,
   For <far from me> is any who could comfort, could bring back my life,—
   My sons are amazed, for strong is the foe.

17 Zion hath spread forth her hands, there is none to comfort her,
   Yahweh, given command respecting Jacob, unto them who surround him—his adversaries,— Jerusalem hath become as a removed woman, in their midst.

18 Righteous is Yahweh, for against his bidding had I rebelled,—
   Hear, I pray you, all ye peoples, and see my pain,
   My virgins and my young men have gone into exile.

19 I called to my lovers, they deceived me,
   My priests and mine elders, in the city, have breathed their last,—
   For they sought them food, that they might bring back their life.

20 See, O Yahweh, that I am in distress,
   Mine inward parts are in ferment,
   My heart is turned within me,
   For I have obstinately relented,—
   <Without> bereaveth the sword,<Within> is like death!

21 They have heard—that 'sighing am I,' [and am saying]—
   There is none to comfort me,
   All my foes—having heard of my calamity—
   have rejoiced,
   Because thou hast done it,—
   Thou hast brought in the day thou didst proclaim.
   So let them become like me.

22 Let all their wickedness come in before thee.
   And deal thou severely with them,
   According as thou hast dealt severely with me, for all my transgressions;
   For many are my sighs, and my heart is sick.

LAMENTATIONS II. 1—16.

1 How could My Lord, in his anger, | ensnared in gloom |
The daughter of Zion?
Have cast from the heavens to the earth,
The beauty of Israel?
And not have remembered his footstool.
In the day of his anger?

2 My Lord hath swallowed up—without pity—
All the pastures of Jacob,
Hath laid waste—in his indignation—
The strongholds of the daughter of Judah,
Hath brought them down to the ground,—
Hath profaned the kingdom, and the princes thereof.

3 He hath broken off—in the glow of his anger—
The whole horn of Israel,
Hath turned back his right hand, from the face of the foe,—
And hath kindled against Jacob a very fire of flame,
Devouring round about.

4 He hath trodden his bow like a foe.
His right hand erect'as an adversary,
And hath slain all them who delighted the eye,—
In the homeb of the daughter of Zion> hath he poured out, as fire, his indignation.

5 My Lord' hath become like a foe'.
Hath swallowed up Israel,
Hath swallowed up all her castles, ruined his strongholds,— and
Hath caused to abound, in the daughter of Judah, lamentation and mourning.

6 Thus hath he destroyed, like a garden, his pavilion,
Hath laid waste his place of assembly,—
Yahweh [hath caused to be forgotten], in Zion,
The appointed assembly and the sabbath,
In the indignation of his anger.
The king and the priest.

7 My Lord hath rejected'his altar.
Hath abhorred his sanctuary,
Hath delivered, into the hand of the foe, the walls of her castles,—
<A voice> have they uttered in the house of Yahweh,
As on the day of an appointed assembly.

8 Yahweh hath devised' to lay in ruins,
The wall of the daughter of Zion,
He hath stretched out a line,
He hath not turned back his hand,
From swallowing up, —
Thus hath he caused to mourn—rampart* and wall.
Together' have they languished !

9 Her gates [have sunk in the earth;,
He hath destroyed and broken in pieces, her bars,—
Her king and her princes! are among the nations,
There is no instruction,
Even her prophets] have found no vision, from Yahweh.

10 Seated on the ground, in silence,
Are the elders of the daughter of Zion,
They have lifted up dust on their head,
Have girded themselves with sackcloth,—
Bowed down to the ground is the head,
Of the virgins of Jerusalem.

11 Blinded with tears' are mine eyes,
In ferment' is my body,
Poured out to the earth is my grief,
For the sore hurt of the daughter of my people,—
When child and suckling are swooning,
In the broadways of the city.

12 <To their mothers> they keep saying,
Where are corn and wine?
Swooning off, like one thrust through,
In the broadways of the city,
Pouring out their life into the bosom of their mothers.

13 How shall I solemnly admonish thee?
What shall I liken to thee,
Thou daughter of Jerusalem?
What shall I compare with thee, that I may comfort thee,
Thou virgin, daughter of Zion?
For <great as the sea> is thy grievous injury,
Who can heal thee?

14 Thy prophets] have had visions for thee,
False and foolish,
And have not unveiled thine iniquity.
To turn back thy captivity,—
Yea they have had visions for thee,
Oracles of falsehood, and enticements !

15 All passing by, |have clapped, over thee, their hands|,
Have hissed and wagged their head
Over the daughter of Jerusalem,—[saying]
Is [this] the city, of which men used to say—
The perfection of beauty!
A joy to the whole earth !

16 All thy foes |have opened wide, over thee, their mouth|,
They have hissed, and ghased their teeth,
They have said—
We have swallowed [her] up!
Surely [this] is the day for which we have waited,
We have found! We have seen !

782 LAMENTATIONS II. 17—22; III. 1—24.

17 Yahweh hath done what he thought: Hath carried out his word, wherewith he gave charge in the days of old, Hath thrown down, and not spared,— Thus hath he let the enemy rejoice over thee, Hath raised high the horn of thine adversaries.*

Thus hath he let the enemy rejoice over thee. Their heart I hath made outcry] unto My Lord,— O wall of the daughter* of Zion— Let tears run down as a torrent day and night, Do not give thyself relief. Let not the weeping of thine eye cease!

19 Arise, cry out in the night, <At the beginning of the watches> pour out, like waters, thy heart, Right before the face of My Lord,— Lift up, above thee, the palms of thy hands, For the life of thy children, Who are swooning for hunger, at the top of all the streets!

20 See, O Yahweh, and do consider, to whom' thou hast acted thus severely,— Will women' [devour] their own fruit' — the children they have dandled? Shall priest' and prophet' [be slain in the sanctuary of My Lord]?!

Wilt thou proclaim, like the day of an appointed meeting— My terrors round about?* When there was not—in the day of the anger of Yahweh—fugitive or survivor,— <Those whom I dandled and reared> [my foe]; hath destroyed.

33 Good is Yahweh, to them who wait for him,
To the soul that will seek him;
To the soul that will seek him;

LAMENTATIONS IV. 1—22.

1 How is dimmed the gold!
Changed the most fine gold!
Poured out are the stones of the sanctuary,
At the top of all the streets.

2 The precious sons of Zion,
They who were weighed against pure gold>
How are they accounted as earthen pitchers,
The work of the hands of the potter!

3 Even wild dogs [draw out the breast,
Give suck to their whelps—
The daughter of my people] hath become cruel,
Like the ostriches in the desert.

4 The tongue of the suckling, cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirst,—
Young children have asked bread,
There was none to break it to them.

5 They who used to eat delicacies:
Are deserted in the streets,—
They who used to be carried on crimson
Have embraced heaps of refuse.

6 And the punishment of the daughter of my people
Hath grown greater than the punishment of Sodom,—
Which was overthrown as in a moment,
When no hands had been laid violently upon her.

7 Purer were her Nazirites than snow,
Whiter were they than milk,—
More ruddy, in body, than coral,
<A sapphire> was their beauty of form.

8 [Darker than a coal] is their visage,
They are not known in the streets—
Their skin shrivelleth on their bones,
Is withered, became like a stick.

9 Better are the slain of the sword,
Than the slain of the famine,—
For [these] pine away, stricken through,
Wanting the produce of the field.

10 The hands of compassionate women
Have cooked their own children,—
They have served as nourishment to them,
In the grievous injury of the daughter of my people.

11 Yahweh hath completed his indignation,
Hath poured out the glow of his anger:
And hath kindled at 12 Neither the kings of the earth, nor any of the inhabitants of the world, [believed]

That an adversary or an enemy [should enter] the gates of Jerusalem!

13 [It is] for the sins of her prophets,
The iniquities of her priests,—
Who have been pouring out, in her midst,
The blood of the righteous!

14 They have wandered—blind—in the streets,
Have defiled themselves with blood;
So that men may not touch their garments.

15 Turn aside! Unclean!
Have they cried to them,
Turn aside! Do not touch!
<Because they have fled, yes, wandered>
Men said among the nations,
They will not again tarry:

16 |The face of Yahweh] hath scattered them,
He will look them out no more:
<The persons of the priests> they have not respected,
<To the elders> have they shown no favour.

17 Still shall our eyes fail',
For our help that is vain:
<In our watchtower> have we watched—
For a nation that will not save.

18 They have laid snares for our steps,
That we cannot walk in our own broadways:
Drawn near hath our end.
Fulfilled are our days.
Yea arrived hath our end.

19 Swifter are our pursuers, than the eagles of the heavens,—
<Over the mountains> have they come hotly after us,
<In the wilderness> have they lain in wait for us.

20 The fragrance of our nostrils,
The Anointed of Yahweh,
Hath been captured in their pits,—
Of whom we had said—
<In his shade> shall we live among the nations.

21 Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom,
Thou inhabitress in the land of Uz,—
<Even unto thee> shall the cup pass along,
Thou shalt be drunken, and expose thy shame.

22 Completed is thy punishment, O daughter of Zion,
He will no more carry thee away captive,—
He hath punished thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom,
He hath stripped the veil from off thy sins.

* So read (w. 7 ear. pr. eds, Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.)—G.n.
* Mi. : "the iniquity," i.e., seen in its consequences.
* Mi. : "the sin" —in like manner.
* "Princes" —O. G. 634.
* Or: "recognised."
Remember, O Yahweh, what hath befallen us,
Look around, and see our reproach:
Our inheritance turned over to foreigners,
Our houses to aliens.
Orphans have we become, and fatherless,
Our mothers are widows indeed.
Our water— for silver— have we drunk,
Our wood — for a price — cometh in.
Our fathers sinned, and we their iniquities have borne.
Slaves have ruled over us.
There is none to set free from their hand.
At the risk of our life— do we bring in our bread.
Because of the sword of the desert.

Women — in Zion were ravished,
Virgins — in the cities of Judah!
Princes — by their hand — have been hanged,
The faces of elders — not honoured.
Young men — a millstone — have lifted,
Youth <under wood> have staggered.
Elders — from the gates — have ceased,
Young men — from their music.
Ceased hath the joy of our hearts,
Changed to mourning — our dance.
Fallen is the crown of our head.
Surely wo to us, for we have sinned.
For this cause — faint — is our heart,
For these things — dimmed are our eyes :
Because of Mount Zion, which doth desolate,
Jackals — have gone prowling therein.

Thou, O Yahweh — unto times age-abiding — dost remain,
Thy throne from generation to generation:
Wherefore shouldst thou perpetually forget us?
Forsake us, to length of days!
Bring us back, O Yahweh, unto thyself,
And we will come back!
Renew our days, as of old;
For though thou hast not utterly rejected us,
Thou art wroth with us— exceedingly!

So saith the word of Yahweh.
He is not God that hath created us in the beginning,
For another rendering see p. 11, ante.

§ 1. A Lightning Throne seen by the River Chebar.

And it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, I was in the midst of them of the captivity, by the river Chebar — that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.
On the fifth of the month, that was the fifth year of the captivity of King Jehoiachin — in very deed — came the word of Yahweh, unto Ezekiel son of Buzi, the priest, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar — yea the hand of Yahweh came on him there.

So then I beheld, and lo! a tempestuous wind coming out of the North, a great cloud, and a fire catching hold of itself, and it had a brightness round about, — and <out of the midst thereof> as burnished copper to look upon, out of the midst of the fire; and <out of the midst thereof> a likeness of four living ones, — and this was their appearance, <the likeness of a man> had they; and <four faces each, and four wings each> had they; and <the sole of their feet> was straight, and <the sole of the foot of a calf> was like the sole of the foot of a calf, but sparkling, as shining bronze to look upon; and <the hands of a man> were under their wings, on their four sides, — and <their faces and their wings belonged to the four of them: 9 joined to each other were their wings,—they turned not when they went, each one straight before him did they go; 10 and the likeness of their faces was the face of a man, with the face of a lion to the right of the four of them, and the face of an ox, on the left of the four of them,—the face of an eagle also had they four; 11 and their wings were spread above: two of each joined one another, and two covered their bodies; 12 and each one, straight before him did they go; whithersoever the spirit was minded to go they went, they turned not when they went. 13 As for the likeness of the living ones their appearance was like live coals of fire, burning up like the appearance of torches, the same went to and fro between the living ones, and the fire had brightness, and out of the fire went forth lightning. 14 And the living ones ran and returned,—like the appearance of a flash of lightning.

And I looked at the living ones,—and lo! one wheel upon the earth beside the living ones for each of his four faces. 15 The appearance of the wheels and of their structure was like a Tarshish-stone to look upon, and they four had one likeness, and their appearance and their structure were just as would be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

Upon their four sides, when they went so did they go,—they turned not when they went. 18 As for their rings they were so high, that they were terrible,—and their rings full of eyes round about had they four. 19 And when the living ones went the wheels went beside them,—and when the living ones were lifted up from the earth the wheels were lifted up: 20 whithersoever the spirit was minded to go they went—whithersoever the spirit was minded to go they went—thither was the spirit minded to go, and thither was the spirit minded to go. 21 And when they stood these stood, and when they were lifted up from off the earth the wheels were lifted up (along with them), for the spirit of the living one was in the wheels.

22 And there was a likeness over the heads of the living one—an expanse, like terrible crystal to look upon,—stretched forth over their heads above. 23 And (under the expanse) their wings were straight, one towards another,—each one had two, covering (on this side) and (each one) had two, covering (on that side) their bodies.

And I heard the sound of their wings, as the sound of many waters, as the sound of the Almighty, when they went, the sound of a storm, as the sound of a host,—when they stood they let down their wings. 25 And there was a voice above the expanse that was over their head,—when they stood they let down their wings.

And above the expanse that was over their heads, as the appearance of a sapphire-stone was the likeness of a throne,—and upon the likeness of a throne was a likeness, as the appearance of a man, upon it above. 27 And I saw, as burnished copper to look upon, as the appearance of fire within it round about, from the appearance of his loins and upwards, and from the appearance of his loins and downwards saw I, as the appearance of fire, and he had brightness round about: 28 as the appearance of the bow which is in a cloud, on a day of rain so was the appearance of the brightness round about, that was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh,—and when I saw I fell upon my face, and heard a voice of one speaking.

§ 2. One who Speaks sends Ezekiel to Them of the Captivity.

And he said unto me,—Son of man, Stand upon thy feet, that I may speak with thee. 2 Then the Spirit entered into me, as soon as he spake unto me, and it caused me to stand upon my feet,—and I heard one speaking unto me. 3 And he said unto me—Son of man, I am sending thee unto the sons of Israel, unto rebellious nations, which have rebelled against me,—they, and their fathers, have transgressed against me, until this very day; and it is unto such sons—of shameless face, and emboldened heart that I am sending thee,—therefore shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh. 5 And (they) whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, for a perverse house they are shall then know that a prophet hath been in their midst.

6 But thou, son of man Be not afraid of them, Nor of their words be afraid, Though thorns and thistles are about thee, And amongst prickly plants thou dost dwell> Of their words be not afraid, nor At their faces be thou dismayed, For a perverse house they are!
Then the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me the sound of a great rushing,— Blessed be the glory of Yahweh.
From his place!

Ye a the sound of the wings of the living ones, gently touching each other, and the sound of the wheels, along with them, [even the sound of a great rushing].

So the Spirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I went bitterly, in the rage of my spirit, but the hand of Yahweh upon me was [strong].

§ 3. Ezekiel commences his Mission at Tel-abib—First “Watchman” Illustration. (Comp. chaps. xviii., xxxiii.)

Thus came I unto them of the captivity, at Tel-abib, who were dwelling towards the river Chebar, and I dwelt there [they were dwelling; [yes I dwelt there seven days], [stunned in their midst].

And it came to pass [at the end of seven days] that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,

<A watchman> have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel,—and thou shalt hear, at my mouth, a message, and shalt warn them [from me].

When I say to the lawless man—

Thou shalt [surely die], and thou hast not given him warning, neither hast spoken to warn the lawless man from his lawless way, to save him [alive]; [the same lawless man] [in his iniquity] shall die, but [his blood] [at thy hand] will I require. Whereas [when thou hast warned a lawless man, and he hath not turned from his lawlessness, and from his lawless way > the: [in his iniquity] shall die, but [thou] hast delivered [thine own soul].

And [when a righteous man hath turned'] from his righteousness, and committed perverseness, and I have suffered a stumbling-block to be laid before him [he] shall die, —[though thou hast not warned him] [in his sin] shall he die, neither shall be remembered, his righteous deeds [which he hath done], but [his blood] [at thy hand] will I require; whereas [when thou hast warned a righteous man,

That a righteous man [must not sin], and the he hath not sinned > he shall [surely live] in that he took warning, and [thou] hast delivered [thine own soul].
Then came upon me, there, the hand of Yahweh,— and He said unto me,

Arise, go forth into the valley, and <there> will I speak with thee.

So I arose, and went forth into the valley, and lo! there, the glory of Yahweh, standing, like the glory which I saw by the river Chebar,—and I fell upon my face. Then the Spirit entered into me, and caused me to stand upon my feet,—and He spake with me, and said unto me,

Go in, shut thyself up, in the midst of thine own house. And <thou— O son of man> lo! they have put upon thee bands, and thou wilt bind thee therewith,—so that thou go not forth in their midst; <thy tongue also> will I cause to cleave unto the roof of thy mouth, so shalt thou be dumb, and not be to them a reprover,—

For  they are!

But <when I speak with thee> I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,— <He that is minded to hear> let him hear, And <he that is minded to forbear> let him forbear!

For  they are!

Thou therefore, O son of man,
Take thee a tile, and lay it before thee,—and pourtray thereon a city, even Jerusalem.

Then shalt thou lay siege against it, And build up against it a siege-wall, And cast up against it, a mound,— And set against it camps, And place against it battering-rams, round about.

Thou therefore, take thee a pan of iron, and set it for a wall of iron, between thee and the city,—then shalt thou direct thy face against it, and it shall come into siege, and thou shalt lay siege to it,  shall it be to the house of Israel.

Thou therefore, lie thou on thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel' upon it,— <during the number of the days which thou shalt lie thereon> shalt thou bear their punishment.

I therefore, have appointed thee the years of their punishment, by the number of days, a hundred and ninety days,—so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

And <when thou hast ended these> then shalt thou lie, on thy right side, a second' time, and shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah,— <forty days, one day for each year> have I appointed thee.

Thus then <unto the siege of Jerusalem> shalt thou direct thy face, with thine arm made bare,—so shalt thou prophesy against it. And lo! I have laid upon thee—bands,—and thou shalt not turn thee from thy one side to thine other, until thou have ended the days of thy siege.

Thou therefore, take thee wheat and barley and peas and lentils and millet and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make them ready for thee as bread,— <during the number of days which thou art lying on thy side, a hundred and ninety days> shalt thou eat it; and thy food, which thou shalt eat: shall be, by weight, twenty shekels a day,— <from time to time> shalt thou eat it; and <water, by measure> shalt thou drink, the sixth part of a hin,— from time to time shalt thou drink; and <as a barley cake> shalt thou eat it,—and <the same, with dung proceeding from man> shalt thou bake, before their eyes.

Then said Yahweh,

In like manner shall the sons of Israel eat their bread, defiled,— among the nations, whither I will drive them.

And he said unto me,

Son of man, Behold me! breaking the staff of bread in Jerusalem,

So shall they eat bread by weight, and with anxious care,

And <water, by measure, and in astonishment> shall they drink:

that they may lack bread and water and be astonished one with another, and pine away in their punishment.

§ 5. The Prophet's own Hair, shorn, divided, chopped up and burned, a Symbol of the Dispersion of the People.

5 And I will lay the carcases of the sons of Israel, before their manufactured gods,—
And will scatter your bones, round about your altars.
6 In all your dwelling-places, the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be made desolate,—
To the end your altars may be laid waste and become desolate;
And your manufactured gods be broken in pieces and cease,
And your sun-pillars be cut down,
And your handiworks be abolished.
And the slain shall fall in your midst,—
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.
7 Yet will I leave a remnant,
In that ye shall have such as are escaped of the sword throughout the nations,— when ye are scattered throughout the lands.
Then shall they who have escaped of you remember me, among the nations whither they have been carried captive,
In that I have broken their adulterous heart, which hath turned aside from me,
And their eyes which have adulterously gone after their manufactured gods,—
So shall they become loathsome in their own sight, for the wicked things which they have done in all their abominations.
Then shall they know that I am Yahweh,—
Not in vain had threatened to bring upon them this calamity.
8 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Smite with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas! regarding all the wicked abominations of the house of Israel,—in that by sword, by famine, and by pestilence shall they fall:
He that is far off by pestilence shall die, and
He that is near by the sword shall fall, and
He that is left and is besieged by the famine shall die;
Thus will I make an end of mine indignation against them.
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh,
In that their slain are in the midst of their manufactured gods, on every side of their altars,—
Upon every high hill,
In all the tops of the mountains, and Under every green tree, and
Under every tangled oak.
The place where they offered a satisfying odour to all their manufactured gods.
Thus will I stretch out my hand upon them, and make the land a greater waste and devastation than the desert toward Diblah,* throughout all their dwelling-places,—
And they shall know that I am Yahweh.
1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Therefore, O son of man,
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
To the soil of Israel there is an end,—
The end hath come upon the four skirts of the land.
3 Now is the end upon thee,
Therefore will I send mine anger against thee,
And judge thee according to thy ways,—
And lay upon thee all thine abominations;
4 And mine eye shall not shield thee.
Neither will I pity,—
For thy ways—upon thee will I lay;
And thine abominations in thy midst shall be found,
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.
5 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
A calamity, a sole calamity> lo! it hath come.
6 An end hath come,
Come hath the end,
It hath roused itself up against thee,—
Lo! it hath come.
The circle hath come round unto thee, O inhabitant of the land,—
The time hath come.
The day of consternation hath drawn near,
And not the joyful shout of the mountains.
Now shortly will I pour out mine indignation upon thee,
And will bring to an end mine anger against thee,
And will judge thee according to thy ways,—
And will lay upon thee all thine abominations.
And mine eye shall not shield thee.
Neither will I have pity,—
According to thy ways unto thee will I render,
And thine abominations in thy midst shall be found,
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

Lo! the day.
Lo! it hath come,—
The circle hath gone forth.
The sceptre hath bloomed.
Insolence hath sprouted.
Violence hath risen up as a sceptre of lawlessness, —
There are none of them,
And none of their multitude,
And none of their thongs,
And no lamentation over them.

Lo! it lieth come,—
The circle hath gone forth,
The sceptre hath blossomed,
Insolence hath sprouted:
Violence hath risen up as a sceptre of lawlessness,—
There are none of them.
And none of their multitude.
And none of their thongs.
And no lamentation over them.

Prepare thou a chain,—
For the land is full of the crime of bloodshed,
And the city is full of violence.
So then I will bring in the wicked ones of the nations,
And they shall take possession of their houses,—
And I will cause to cease the pomp of the strong ones,
And their holy places shall be profaned.

The time hath come.
The day hath arrived, —
The tyrer shall not rejoice, and
The seller shall not mourn,—
For indignation is against all her multitude.

The sword without, and Pestilence and famine within,—
He that is in the field shall die, and
He that is in the city shall devour him;
While they who escape of them shall escape, and become, on the mountains, as the doves of the valleys, cooing,—each one in his punishment.

Therefore shall they gird themselves with sackcloth,
And shuddering shall cover them,—
And in all faces shall be paleness,
And in all their heads baldness.

|Their silver| into the streets shall they cast,
|Their gold| for throwing away shall serve,
|Their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them, in the day of the wrath of Yahweh,
|Their craving| shall they not satisfy, and
|Their belly| shall they not fill,—
For a stumbling-block hath their iniquity become.

§ 7. The Prophet is carried to Jerusalem in the Visions of God (chaps. viii.—xi.).

1 And it came to pass <in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, I being seated in my house, and the elders of Judah being seated before me> then fell upon me there.

2 I looked, and lo! a likeness as the appearance of a man,
3 And I set mine eyes upon it.
4 And, behold, a likeness as the appearance of a man.
5 And I looked, and, behold, a likeness as the appearance of a man.
6 And I looked, and, behold, a likeness as the appearance of a man.
7 And I looked, and, behold, a likeness as the appearance of a man.
8 And I looked, and, behold, a likeness as the appearance of a man.
the appearance of his loins and downward fire, and from his loins and upwards as an appearance of shining, as the look of amber. 3 Then put he forth the similitude of a hand, and took me by the forelock of my head,—and the Spirit lifted me up—between the earth and the heavens, and brought me to Jerusalem in the visions of God, into the opening of the inner gate that looketh toward the north, where was the seat of the Statue of Jealousy, that provoketh to jealousy; 4 and lo! there the glory of the God of Israel, like the appearance which I had seen in the valley. 5 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, the way toward the north. 6 So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and lo! on the north, by the gate of the altar this Statue of Jealousy, in the entrance. 7 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Canst thou see what they are doing,—the great abominations which [the house of Israel] are committing here, that I should go far away from my sanctuary? Howbeit <yet again> shalt thou see great abominations.

8 So he brought me into the opening of the court,—and I looked, and lo! a single hole, in the wall. 9 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Break, I pray thee, through the wall. 10 So I broke through the wall, and lo! a single weapon in his hand, and one man in their midst clothed with linen, having a scrie's scrile's [scribe's] by his side,—so they came in and stood, beside the altar of bronze. 11 And lo!six men| coming in out of the way toward the north, even every man with his destructive weapon of destruction in his hand. 12 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, Son of man, what [the elders of the house of Israel] are doing in the dark, every man in his image-chambers? for they are saying—

Yahweh doth not see us! 16 So I went in, and looked, and lo! every man in his image-chambers? for they are saying—

Yahweh hath forsaken the land! 17 Then said he unto me,—

Yet again shalt thou see greater abominations, which they are committing.

18 So he brought me into the inner court of the house of Yahweh, and lo! at the opening of the temple of Yahweh, between the porch and the altar> about twenty-five men,—[their backs] towards the temple of Yahweh, and [their faces] eastward, and they were bowing down eastward, unto the Sun. 19 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, O son of man?

Is it too small a thing for the house of Jedab, to be committing the b abominations which they have committed here,—that they have filled the land with violence, and have again provoked me to anger, and there they are! putting the branch to my nose.

20 Therefore [even I] will act with indignation, Mine eye shall not shield,

Neither will I pity,—

Though they have cried in mine ears, with a loud voice yet will I not hear them. 21 Then cried he in mine ears, with a loud voice, saying,

Draw near, ye that have charge of the city,—even every man with his weapon of destruction in his hand.

22 And lo!six men| coming in out of the way of the upper gateway, which looketh toward the north, even every man with his destructive weapon in his hand, and one man in their midst clothed with linen, having a scrie's inker's by his side,—so they came in and stood, beside the altar of bronze. 23 And [the glory of the God of Israel] lifted itself up from off the cherub sh wherein it had been, unto the threshold of the house,—and he called unto the man clothed with linen, who had the scrie's inker's by his side. 4 Then said Yahweh unto him,

Pass along through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem,—and set thou a mark upon the foreheads of the men who are sighing and crying over all the abominations that are being done in her midst.

25 But <unto those> said he in mine ears,

Pass along through the city after him, and smite,—let not your eyes shield, neither have ye pitty: 6 elder, young man and virgin, and little ones and women> shall ye slay utterly, but <unto any man who hath upon him the mark> do not ye come near, and <at my sanctuary> shall ye begin.

So they began with the elder men, who were before the house. 7 And he said unto them, Defile ye the house, and fill the courts with the slain,—go ye forth!

So they went forth, and smote in the city. 8 And it came to pass <while they were smiting them—I'beingleftremain-ning> that I fell upon my face and made outcry,
and said,

Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! art thou'about to destroy|all the remnant of Israel, in that you art pouring out of thine indignation on Jerusalem?

8 And he said unto me,

iThe iniquity of the house of Israel, and Judah> is exceeding|great, and the land is filled with shed blood,|and the city||is fullof over-reaching,|—for they have said,

Yahweh hath forsaken the land,|—and,

Yahweh doth not see.

Therefore <as for even me>

Mine eye|shall not shield|,

Neither will I pity,—

<Their way upon their own head> have I rendered.

1 And lo! the man clothed in linen, having the inkholder by his side[, bringing back word,
saying,—

I have done, according to all which thou didst command me.

1 Then looked I, and lo! <in the expanse> which was over the head of the cherubim, as a sapphire stone, |as the appearance of a throne||appeared over them. 2 Then said he unto the man clothed with linen,—who took[it] and went forth. 8 Now the cherubim appeared to have, the likeness of the hand of a man, under their wings.

9 Then looked I, and lo! four wheels' by the cherubim—one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub,—and the appearance of the wheels|was to look upon like a Tarshish stone; 10 and <as for their appearance> ||one likeness> had they four,— as might be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

11 <When they went> ||upon their four sides they went, they turned not when they went,— for <to the place whithersoever the head e turned> ||after it|| they turned not when they went. 12 And ||all their flesh, and their back, and their hands, and their wings,— and the wheels|| were full of eyes round about,

even their wheels which they four had|d

13 <To the wheels—to them> was made the cry—

O whirligig wheel! |in mine ears. 14 And ||four faces|| had each one,— ||the first face|| was the face of a cherub, and ||the second face|| was the face of a man, and ||the third|| was the face of a lion, and ||the fourth|| was the face of an eagle. 15 Then arose the cherubim,— ||the same|| was the living one,|| which I had seen by the river
Chebar. 16 When the cherubim went, then went the wheels beside them,—and <when the cherubim lifted up their wings, to arise from off the earth> ||the wheels themselves|| turned not from beside them; 17 <when they' stood> these'stood, and <when they'arose>

these' arose with them,—for ||the spirit of the living one|| was in them.

And <when the glory of Yahweh went forth from off the threshold of the house,—and stood over the cherubim> 18 then the cherubim uplifted' their wings and arose from the earth, before mine eyes, as they went forth, the wheels also in unison with them,—and it stood at the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh that was toward the east, with the glory of the God of Israel over them, |above'. 20 ||The same|| was the living one,|| which I saw under the God of Israel, by the river Chebar, — then knew I that the cherubim were. 21 Four faces severally had each one, and four wings had each one, — and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings. 22 And as for the likeness of their faces they were the faces which I saw by the river Chebar, their appearances and themselves — every one straight before him did they go.

11 And the Spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of Yahweh, which looketh eastward, and lo! in the opening of the gate twenty-five men, — and I saw in their midst Jaazaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah son of Benaiah, princes of the people. Then said he unto me,— Son of man, These are the men who are devising iniquity, and who are counselling wicked counsel in this city; who are saying, Not near! let us build houses. — It is the caldron, and we are the flesh!

4 |Therefore| prophesy against them, — prophesy, Son of man.

5 Then fell upon me the Spirit of Yahweh, and he said unto me,
Say— Thus saith Yahweh, Ye have said, O house of Israel, — Yea <the things that come up on your spirit> I know, every one. Ye have multiplied your slain in this city, — And have filled her streets with slain.

7 |Therefore| saith Yahweh, This city shall not serve you for a caldron, Neither shall ye serve in the midst thereof, for flesh, — near the boundary of Israel will I judge you.

9 So will I take you forth out of her midst, and will deliver you into the hand of foreigners, — and will execute upon you judgments.

10 <By the sword> shall ye fall, <Upon the boundary of Israel> will I judge you, — So shall ye know that I am Yahweh. This city shall not serve you for a caldron, Neither shall ye serve in the midst thereof, for flesh, — near the boundary of Israel will I judge you.

12 So shall ye know that I am Yahweh, In whose statutes ye have not walked, And whose appointments ye have not executed, — But according to the appointments of the nations that are round about you have ye done.

13 And it came to pass <as I prophesied> that Pelatiah son of Benaniah died, — so then I fell down upon my face, and made outcry with a loud voice, and said— Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! — With a full end art thou making of the remnant of Israel?

14 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: Son of man, Thou own brethren, thine own brethren, the men of thy kindred, even all the house of Israel, all of it are they to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far away from Yahweh, To us it is that the land hath been given, for a possession!

15 |Therefore| say, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Although I have removed them far away among the nations, And although I have dispersed them throughout the lands, Yet have I become to them a sanctuary for a little while, in the lands which they have entered.

16 |Therefore| say, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I assemble you from among the peoples, And gather you out of the lands wherein ye have been dispersed, — And will give you the soil of Israel.

17 So shall they come in thither, — and take away all her detestable things, and all her abominations, out of her; And I will give them another heart, And  will I put within you, — and will take away the heart of stone out of their flesh, and give them a heart of flesh:

20 To the end that in my statutes they may walk, And in mine appointments they may keep, — and do them, — So shall they become my people, And I will become their God.

21 But <as for them who, having a heart for their detestable things, and for their abominations, after their own heart> do walk > Their way upon their own heads > will I render, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

22 Then did the cherubim lift up their wings, the wheels also going in unison with them,— the glory of the God of Israel being over them [above]. 23 Thus went up the glory of Yahweh, out from the midst of the city, and stood on the mountain, which is on the east of the city. 24 And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me to Chaldea, unto them of the captivity, in the vision, by the Spirit of God, thus went from me, the vision which I had seen. 25 So I spake unto them of the captivity,—all the words of Yahweh, which he had showed me.

12 1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

<In the midst of a perverse house> dost thou dwell,—

Who have eyes to see—and have not seen,

Ears have they to hear—and have not heard.

For  they are'.

|Thou| therefore, Son of man.

Prepare thee baggage for exile, and exile thyself, by day before their eyes,—so shalt thou exile thyself out of thy place unto another place, before their eyes, |peradventure| they will consider,* though  they are'.

Therefore shalt thou take forth thy baggage, as baggage for exile, by day before their eyes,—and thou thyself shalt go forth in the evening, before their eyes, like them who go forth to exile.

Before their eyes> break thou forth by thyself through the wall,—and carry forth through it.

Before their eyes>

Upon the shoulder> shalt thou lift it,

In thick darkness> take it forth,

Thy face> shalt thou cover, so that thou see not the land;

For  have I appointed thee to the house of Israel.

And I did as I was commanded, <My baggage> took I forth as baggage for exile, by day, and <in the evening> I brake forth by myself through the wall, by force: <in the twilight> I took it forth—<to my shoulder> I lifted it, before their eyes. 8 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, in the morning, saying:

Son of man,

Have not the house of Israel, the perverse house, [said unto thee],—

What art thou doing?

Say unto them,

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

<For the Bearer> is this burden, in Jerusalem,* and [for] all the house of Israel, such as are in their midst.

11 Say,

|I| am your sign:

<As I have done> shall it be done to them,

<Into exile>—into captivity> shall they go.

12 Ye: the Bearer b who is in their midst

<Upon his shoulder> shall lift it.

<In thick darkness> shall he go forth,

<Through the wall> shall they break, to bear forth through it,—

<His face> shall he cover, to the end that [his own eye] may not see the land.

13 Then will I spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare;

And I will take him to Babylon, in the land of the Chaldeans,

<The which> indeed, he shall not see,

And yet <there> shall he die: c

14 And <all who are round about him to help him, and all his troops> will I scatter to every wind,—and  will I make bare after them.

So shall they know that |I| am Yahweh,—

By my dispersing them among the nations, And scattering them throughout the lands.

Yet will I leave remaining of them, men easily counted, from the sword, from the famine and from the pestilence,—that they may recount all their abominations among the nations whither they have come,

So shall they know that |I| am Yahweh.

17 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

<Thy bread, with trembling> shalt thou eat,—

And <thy water, in agitation and in fear> shalt thou drink.

Then shalt thou say unto the people of the land,

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, upon the soil of Israel,

<Their bread, with anxious care> shall they eat,

And <their water, in astonishment> shall they drink,—

That her land [may be deserted] of her fulness, because of the violence of all them who dwell therein:

19 Yes <the cities that are inhabited> shall be laid waste,

And <the land> shall become [an astonishment];—

So shall ye know that |I| am Yahweh.
21 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,

What is this proverb ye have, concerning the soil of Israel, saying,—

The days are prolonged! Therefore shall every vision come to nought?—

Therefore say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, I will cause this proverb to cease, and they shall use it as a proverb no more, in Israel,—

But speak unto them, The days are drawn near, and the substance of every vision.

For there shall no more be—Any vision of falsehood, or divination of deceit, in the midst of the house of Israel.

For I Yahweh will speak whatsoever word I please to speak: And it shall be done, It shall not be delayed any more,—

For in your own days O perverse house, O will I speak a word, and perform it, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

26 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,

Lo! the house of Israel are saying, the vision which I seeth is for many days, Yea for times far away hath he prophesied.

Therefore say unto them, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,

None of my words shall be delayed any more,—

Whatsoever word I speak then shall it be performed, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

§ 9. Against the Prophets of Israel.

18 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,

Prophecy against the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying,—and say unto them who prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of Yahweh;

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,

Alas for the base prophets,—who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing:

4 As jackala among ruins> ||thy prophets, O Israel have been.

5 Ye have not gone up into the breaches, Nor built a wall about the house of Israel,—to stand in the battle, in the day of Yahweh.

6 They have had Visions of falsehood, and Divinations of lies, Who say, Declareth Yahweh, when Yahweh hath not sent them,—

Yet have they waited for a fulfilling of the word.

7 Is it not  ye have seen, and  ye have spoken, Since ye are saying, Declareth Yahweh! when I have not spoken?

8 Therefore

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,

Because ye have spoken falsehood, And have had visions of lies,

Therefore behold me! against you, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

9 So then my hand shall be against the prophets who have Visions of falsehood, and who divine Divinations of lies,—

In the council of my people shall they not be found, And in the register of the house of Israel shall they not be written, And upon the soil of Israel shall they not enter,—

So shall ye know that I am The Lord Yahweh.

10 Because, yea even because they have led astray my people, saying, Prosperity! when there was no prosperity,—and one man was building a partition wall, when, there they were! coating it with whitewash>

Say thou unto them who are coating with whitewash, It shall fall,—

There hath come an overflowing rain, And I will make hail-stones fall, And a tempestuous wind shall break it down.

12 Lo! when the wall hath fallen shall it not be said unto you, Where is the coating, wherewith ye coated it?

13 Therefore

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,

So will I break down with a tempestuous wind, in mine indignation,— And an overflowing rain in mine anger shall there be, With hailstones, in wrath, to make an end;
And I will pull down the wall which ye have coated with whitewash, and will bring it unto the ground. So shall be discovered its foundation,—yea it shall fall, and ye shall come to an end in the midst thereof, so shall ye know that I am Yahweh. Thus will I bring to an end mine indignation against the wall, and against them who were coating it with whitewash, and will say to you, no more is the wall, and no more are they who were coating it: the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying unto Jerusalem, and are seeing, on her behalf, visions of prosperity,—when there is no prosperity, declareth my lord Yahweh.

§ 10. Against the Oracle Women.

And thou, son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people, those who are prophesying out of their own heart,—and prophesy thou against them; thus saith my lord Yahweh, alas! for the women who sew oracle-cases on all their elbows, and prepare wraps upon the head of every stature to hunt souls,—the souls ye hunt are those of my people, whereas your own souls ye keep alive. thus have ye profaned me unto my people, for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, putting to death the souls that should not die, and keeping alive the souls that should not live,—by your lying to my people, who hearken to lies.

Therefore saith my lord Yahweh, behold me against your oracle-cases wherein ye' are hunting the souls, to make them fly, and I will tear them off your arms,—and let go the souls of them whose souls ye' are hunting as birds; and will tear off your wraps, and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no longer in your hand, to be hunted;—so shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

Because of the paining of the heart of the righteous man with falsehood, whom I have not pained,—and strengthening the hands of the lawless man, that he should not turn from his wicked way, by letting him live>

Therefore,—of falsehood shall ye have no vision, and of divination shall ye not divine any more,—so will I deliver my people out of your hand, and ye shall know that I am Yahweh.

§ 11. Rebuke of Idolatrous Inquirers, and of the Prophets who aid their Double Dealings.

Then came there unto me, men, of the elders of Israel,—and sat before me. And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, these men have brought up their manufactured gods, upon their heart,* and their stumbling-block of iniquity have they set straight before their face,—shall I be at all enquired of by them?

Therefore speak unto them and say unto them, thus saith my lord Yahweh, any man whatsoever of the house of Israel, who shall bring up his manufactured gods upon his heart, and set his stumbling-block of iniquity straight before his face, and then come in unto the prophet, I, Yahweh, have myself answered him thereby!

By the multitude of his manufactured gods: to the end the house of Israel may be taken by their own hearts,—in that they have estranged themselves from me, through their manufactured gods—all of them!

Therefore say thou unto the house of Israel, thus saith my lord Yahweh, turn ye—and make good your return—from your manufactured gods; and from all your abominations make good the turning away of your faces.

For what man soever of the house of Israel, or of the sojourners who sojourn in Israel, who shall estrange himself from following me, and who shall bring up his manufactured gods, on his heart, and whose stumbling-block of iniquity he shall set straight before his face,—and then come in unto the prophet, to enquire by him of me!

I, Yahweh, will myself answer him on my own account;
And will set my face against that man,
And will make of him a sign and a proverb,*
And will cut him off out of the midst of my people:
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

9 <Yea the prophet himself> when he suffereth himself to be deceived, and speaketh a word,
I, Yahweh, have suffered that prophet to be deceived>
Then will I stretch forth my hand against him, and destroy him out of the midst of my people, Israel:
So shall they bear their punishment,
<As the punishment of him that enquireth>
So shall the punishment of the prophet be:

10 That the house of Israel may no more go astray from following me,
And no more defile themselves by any of their transgressions,—
But may become my people,
And I may become their God,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 12. For a Treacherous Land, not even Noah, Daniel and Job could be heard.

12 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
13 Son of man,
<When a land shall sin against me by committing treachery, and I shall stretch out my hand against it,
And break for it the staff of bread,
And send thereon famine,
And cut off therefrom, man and beast> Then <should these three men be in the midst thereof,Noah, Daniel, and Job>
IllThey by their righteousness should deliver theirown lives—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

14 <If a mischievous wild beast> I suffer to pass through the land, and that beast bereave it, so that it become too desolate for any man to pass through, by reason of the wild beast>
15 <Were these three men in the midst thereof>Noah, Daniel and Job
IIThey alone should be delivered.
By their righteousness should deliver their own lives—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

16 <Or a sword> I should bring upon that land, and should say, O sword! thou shalt go through the land, and so I should cut off therefrom, man and beast>
17 <Were these three men in the midst thereof> As I live I Saith My Lord, Yahweh,
They should deliver neither sons nor daughters,—
For they alone should be delivered.
18 <Or pestilence> I should send into that land,—and should pour out mine indignation thereon in blood, to cut off therefrom, man and beast>
19 <Were Noah, Daniel and Job in the midst thereof>
IIAs I live I
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
Surely neither <son nor daughter> should they deliver,
They by their righteousness should deliver [only] their own lives.

For [thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,
How much less [should they avail] when <my four calamitous judgments, sword and famine and mischievous wild beast and pestilence> I have sent against Jerusalem,—to cut off therefrom, man and beast?
22 Yet lo! there hath been left therein, a remnant of fugitives to be brought forth —sons and daughters,—
There they are! coming forth unto you,
And so ye shall see their way, and their doings, and be consoled, over the calamity which I have brought in upon Jerusalem, even all that I have brought in upon her.
23 Yea they shall console you, when ye see their way and their doings,—
So shall ye know that <not without cause> have I done, anything that I have done with her,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man,
<What can the vine-tree be more than any other tree, any branch> which hath been found among the trees of the forest?
3 Shall there be taken from it wood, to be made into any work?
Or will men take therefrom a peg, to hang thereon any vessel?
4 Lo! <into the fire> it is given up for fuel,—
<The two ends thereof> doth the fire devour,
And <the middle thereof> is charred,
Is it fit for any work?
EZEKIEL XV. 5—8; XVI. 1—13.

5 Lit'.< while it was yet whole > it could not be made into any work,—
How much less, when the fire I have devoured it, and it is charred, can it still be made into any work?

6 Therefore|<Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<As a vine-tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given up to the fire for fuel> have I given up the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 Therefore will I set my face against them, <Out of one fire> have they come forth, But <another fire> shall devour them,—
So shall ye know <that I am Yahweh, by my setting my face against them;>
I will therefore give up the land as a desolation,— because they have committed treachery, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 14. Jerusalem's Infidelity, under the figure of an Adulteress, is graphically portrayed.

18 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man, Let Jerusalem know her abominations,

Therefore shalt thou say—
True Lord, Yahweh, To Jerusalem,
Thine origin and thy birth were of the land of the Canaanite,—
Thy father] was the Amorite, And thy mother a Hittite.

And <as for thy birth>, <in the day thou wast born>, Thy navel-cord was not cut,
And <in water> wast thou not bathed, to cleanse thee,—
And <as for being salted>, thou wast not salted,* And <as for being bandaged>, thou wast not bandaged.

5 No eye |threw a shield over thee |. by doing for thee one of these things, taking pity on thee,—
But thou wast cast out, on the face of the field, Because thy person |was abhorred |, in the day thou wast born.

6 And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, thrusting about thee in thy blood,
And said to thee—
<Despite thy blood> live! Yea I said to thee—
<Despite thy blood> live!

<Into myriads—like the bud of the field> made I thee,
And thou didst increase, and become well-grown, and didst attain to most excellent adornments,—
Thy breasts were well-formed, And thy hair was grown,

But thou thyself |was utterly naked. * Rubbed or washed with salt |—O.G. b U. : “soul.”

8 And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, and lo! thy time was the time for endearments,
So I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy shame,—
And took an oath to thee, And entered into covenant with thee.
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, And thou didst become mine.

9 And I bathed thee in water, and rinsed thy blood from off thee, And anointed thee with oil; And clothed thee with an embroidered dress, And sandalled thee in red leather,— And wrapped thee about with fine linen, And put over thee a mantle of silk.

11 Then decked I thee with ornaments,— And put bracelets upon thy hands, And a neckchain upon thy throat; And put a nose-jewel upon thy nose, And earrings in |thine ears,—
And a crown of adorning, upon thy head.

13 Thus wast thou adorned with gold and silver, And thy raiment was of fine linen and silk, and embroidered work,
<Fine flour and honey and oil> didst thou eat,— And so thou becamest exceedingly |beautiful, And didst attain unto royalty.

14 Then went forth thy fame among the nations, for thy beauty,—
For <perfect> it was |in my splendour which I had put upon thee,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

15 Then didst thou trust in thy beauty, And become unchaste, because of thy fame,—
And didst pour out thine unchastity upon every passer-by, his it was!

16 Yea thou didst take of thy raiment and madest thee high places of hangings, And didst commit unchastity thereon,— Which ought not to have beenfallen, And not to have come to pass.

17 But thou didst take thine adorning jewels, Of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee,
And act unchastely with them ; And thou didst take thine embroidered raiment, and cover them,— And <mine oil and mine incense> didst thou set before them; And my food which I had given thee, Fine flour and oil and honey wherewith I fed thee, And didst set it before them for a satisfying odour.
Yea so it was,—
Saith My Lord, Yahweh.

* Ml. : “upon.” * See “Special Note,” p. 206, ante.
And thou didst take thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hadst borne unto me, and didst sacrifice them unto them, to be devoured. Is this, of thine unchastity, a light thing?

Yea thou didst slay my children,—And didst deliver them up, that they should be caused to pass through [the fire] unto them. And in all thine abominations, and thine unchaste ways thou rememberest not the days of thy youth,—When thou wast utterly naked, when thou wast [thrusting about thee in thy blood]!

And it came to pass [after all thy wickedness]:

Woe! Woe! to thee, Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh; That thou didst build thee a brothel,—And didst make thee a height, in every broadway; At the head of every road didst thou build thy height, and bring thy beauty into disgust, and open thy feet to every passer-by,—So didst thou make thine unchaste ways to abound.

Then didst thou extend thine unchaste acts unto the sons of Egypt—thy neighbours, great of flesh,—And caused thine unchaste ways to abound, provoking me to anger.

Lo! therefore, I have stretched out my hand against thee, and diminished thine allotted portion,—And have delivered thee up unto the desire of them who hate thee, the daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of thy lewd way.

Thou didst also extend thine unchastity unto the sons of Assyria, because thou wast insatiable.

Yet [though thou didst behave unchastely with them], yet [even so] couldst thou not be satisfied.

Thou didst therefore cause thine unchaste ways to abound unto the land of Canaan, as towards Chaldæa.

Yet [even herewith] wast thou not satisfied.

How weak was thy heart! Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh,—That thou couldst have done all these things, the doing of a lewd woman, without shame:

That thou couldst have built thy brothel at the head of every road, and thy height couldst have made in every broadway,—Yet becamest not as a harlot, to lay claim to a harlot’s hire.

A wife who committeth adultery: instead of her husband accepteth strangers.

To all harlots they give a present,—But [thou] didst give thy presents to all thy lovers, and didst bridle them to come in unto thee from every side, in thine unchastity!

And so there came about [in thee] the reverse of women, in thine unchastity, in that they did not follow thee for purposes of lewdness,—And in that thou gavest a present, while no present was given to thee.

So didst thou become [the reverse].

[Therefore] O harlot, hear thou the word of Yahweh;

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—Because thy money [was poured out], and thy shame [was uncovered], in thine unchastity, unto thy lovers,—and unto all thine abominable manufactured gods, even as the blood of thy children, whom thou didst deliver up unto them.

[Therefore] behold me! gathering together all thy lovers, unto whom thou didst make thyself pleasant, Even all whom thou lovedst, With all whom thou hatedst,—Yea I will gather them together unto thee from every side, and will uncover thy shame unto them, and they shall see all thy shame.

So will I judge thee, with the judgments meted out to adulteresses and shedders of blood,—And will repay thee with the blood of indignation and jealousy;

And will deliver thee into their hand, and they shall pull down thy brothel, and break in pieces thy heights, and strip thee of thy adorning’ jewels,—And leave thee utterly naked.

Then will they bring up against thee a gathered host,* and they will stone thee with stones,—And cut thee in pieces with their swords, and burn up thy houses with fire, and execute upon thee judgments, before the eyes of many women,—

* Or: “mound”—O.O. [Qy.: (contemptuously)]

So will I cause thee to cease from acting unchastely,
Moreover also shalt thou not give any more.

52 Thou also bear thine own reproach, which thou didst adjudge to thy sisters, by thy sins, in which thou wast more abominable than they; thou didst make them appear more righteous than thou,—

53 When therefore I bring back their captivity,
The captivity of Sodom and her daughters, And the captivity of Samaria and her daughters;
Then will I bring back thy captivities in their midst:
That thou mayest bear thine own reproach, And take to thyself reproach, because of all that thou didst in comforting them.

55 When thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate,
And Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate>
Then thou and thy daughters shall return to your former estate.

56 And Sodom thy sister was never heard in thy mouth,—
In the day of thy pride:
Before thy wickedness was discovered,
As now [thou art] the reproach of the daughters of Syria, and all round about her, the daughters of the Philistines,—who are despising thee on every side.

58 As for thy crime, and thine abominations thou thyself dost bear them,—Declareth Yahweh.

59 For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Therefore will I deal with thee, just as thou hast dealt,—
In that thou despised an oath, by breaking a covenant.

60 Therefore will I remember my covenant with thee, in the days of thy youth,—And will establish for thee, a covenant age-abiding.

61 Thou shalt therefore remember thy ways and take to thyself reproach, by receiving thy sisters.
The older than thou, And the younger than thou,—And I will give them unto thee for daughters.

So it should be (w. Aram., Sep., Syr. and Vul.):—

O.n. | Or: "the."
---

E.O.T
But I myself will establish my covenant with thee, —
And thou shalt know that I am Yahweh:
To the end thou mayest remember, and turn pale, and there be to thee no more an opening of mouth, because of thy reproach,—
In that I have accepted a propitiatory-covering for thee, as to all that thou hast done,
DECLARETH MY LORD, YAHWEH.

§ 15. Parable of the Two Eagles.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man, Put thou forth a riddle, And speak thou a parable,— Unto the house of Israel:
3 So then thou shalt say,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
||A great eagle, with large wings of long pinion, full of plumage, which had divers colours|| came unto Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar:
4 <The crown of its young twigs> plucked he off, and brought it into a land of traffic, <in a city of merchants> he set it.
5 So he took of the seed of the land, and planted it in a field for seed,— He took it near mighty waters, <Like a willow-tree> he set it.
6 And it shot forth, and became a spreading vine of lowly stature, Its branches turning towards him, And <its roots|| under him| spread,— So it became a vine, And brought forth shoots, And sent forth boughs.
7 And it came to pass, that there was another great eagle, with large wings, and abundant plumage,— And lo! <this vine> stretched its roots hungrily towards him, And <its branches> sent it forth unto him,
That he might cause it to drink, out of the beds where it was planted:
8 <In a goodly field, by mighty waters> was it planted,— That it might bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, That it might become |a splendid’ vine|.
9 Say thou, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Shall it thrive? <Its roots> will he not tear up? <Its fruit> will he not cut off, that it wither? |
All the fresh leaves it hath caused to spring forth| shall wither, without a strong arm, or many people, to pull it up by its roots.

10 Lo! therefore <though it remain planted> shall it thrive? <As soon as an east wind toucheth it> will it not utterly wither||?
<On the beds where it sprang up>, will it not wither?
11 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
Say, I pray thee, unto the perverse house, Know ye not what these things are? Say thou,
Lo! the King of Babylon entered Jerusalem, And took her king and her princes, And brought them unto him in Babylon;
Yea took of the seed royal, And solemnised with him a covenant,— And brought him into an oath, Also <the mighty ones of the land> did he take.
That ||the kingdom| might be |[abased], so as not to lift itself up,— <By the keeping of his covenant> might be made to stand.
12 But he hath rebelled against him, by sending his messengers to Egypt, that there should be given to him horses, and much people.
Shall he thrive? Shall he escape that doeth these things? Shall he break a covenant’ and escape?
13 <As I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Verily! <in the place where dwelleth the king that made him’ king, Whose oath he hath despised, And whose covenant he hath broken> <With him, in the midst of Babylon> shall he die.
14 Neither shall Pharaoh <with a great force, or with a large gathered host>* |work with him| in the war, by casting up an earthwork, and by building a siege-wall,— to the cutting off of many lives.
15 <Seeing he hath despised an oath, by breaking a covenant,— yea lo! hath given his hand, and |all these things| hath done> he shall not escape.
16 |Therefore| ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
|As I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely it is mine oath| which he hath despised, And |my covenant| which he hath broken,
Therefore will I bring it upon his own head:
And I will spread over him my net, And he shall be taken in my snare, And I will bring him into Babylon and will enter into judgment with him there, as to his treachery wherewith he hath been treacherous against me;

* Cp. chap. xvi. 40, etc. Heb.: 44444.
And all his fugitives, throughout all his bands <by the sword> shall fall, And they who are left <to every wind> shall be scattered,— So shall ye know that I, Yahweh have spoken!

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I take, of the highest branch of the lofty cedar, and set it,—

Of the crown of its young twigs >a tender one< will I pluck off, and I, myself will plant it upon a mountain high and terraced,

In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it, And it shall put forth boughs, And bear fruit. And become a majestic cedar,— and all the trees of the field know that I, Yahweh have laid low the high tree. Have sinned; and the tree [that was dry,]

He shall eat sour grapes, And the children's teeth are blunted? As I live, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely ye shall have occasion no longer to use this proverb, in Israel.

What occasion have ye to be using this proverb, concerning the soil of Israel, saying,—

[As the person of the father] so also the person of the son. In life, they are,—

[The person that sinneth] lieth the same; shall die.

But when any man shall be righteous,— and do justice and righteousness :

Upon the mountains hath not eaten, And his eyes hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,

And the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,

the wife of his neighbour hath not defiled,

And unto a woman during her removal hath not approached ;

And no man hath treated with violence, But his debt-pledge hath restored, Plunder hath not seized,—

His bread—to the famished hath given, And the naked hath covered with clothing;

Upon interest hath not put out [his money],

And increase hath not accepted,

From dishonesty hath turned back his hand,—

Justice, in truth hath done, between man and man;

In my statutes hath walked And in my regulations hath observed, to do them in truth

Righteous he is He shall surely live,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

But he hath begotten a son

Who is a violent man, A shedder of blood,—

Who doeth the like of any of these things ; Whereas [he] none of those other things doeth,

For indeed upon the mountains he hath eaten, And the wife of his neighbour hath defiled;

The oppressed and the needy hath treated with violence, Hath ruthlessly plundered, The pledge hath not restored,

But unto the manufactured gods hath lifted up his eyes, Abomination hath wrought ;

Upon interest hath put out, And increase hath accepted, —

And shall he [live]? He shall not live,

All these abominations he hath done, He shall surely be put to death, His blood upon himself shall be.

But lo! he hath begotten a son,

Who hath considered all the sins of his father, which he hath done,—

Yea he hath considered, and not done like them:

Upon the mountains hath not eaten, And his eyes hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,

The wife of his neighbour hath not defiled;

Or: "upon.,"

Such a time (when there shall be no such occasion) is yet to come (Jer. xxxi. 29, 30); but at present it is otherwise (xxi. 3; Lam. v. 7), and has been since Adam sinned (Rom. v. 12—21).

Gr.: "surely doeth any," etc. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., and Vul.) read: "And the w."—G.n.
And <no man> hath he treated with violence,
Hath by no means withheld the pledge,
And <plunder> hath not seized,—
<His bread—to the famished> hath given,
And <the naked> hath covered with clothing;
<From dishonesty> a hath turned back his hand,
<Neither interest nor increase> hath accepted,
<My regulations> hath executed,
<In my statutes> hath walked,—
He shall not die for the iniquity of his father.
He shall surely live!

||He|| shall not die for the iniquity of his father.
He shall surely live!

{|Because he exacted unjust gain.
Seized plunder of a brother,
And <that which was not good> had done
in the midst of his people|>}
Therefore lo! he died, in his iniquity.

Will ye then say,
Why hath not the son borne a part of the iniquity of the father? But <the son> hath done justice and righteousness,
<All my statutes> hath observed and done them.
He shall surely live.

||The person that sinneth> ||the same|| shall die,—
A shall not bear a part of the iniquity of ||the father||.
Neither shall ||a father|| bear a part of the iniquity of the son.
||The righteousness of the righteous, <upon himself> shall be.
And ||the lawlessness of a lawless man| a
<upon himself> shall be.

But <as for the lawless man>—
<When he shall turn back from all his sins> which he hath committed,
And observe all my statutes,
And do justice and righteousness|>
He shall surely live.
He shall not die.

||None of his transgressions which he hath committed|| shall be remembered against him,
<In his righteousness which he hath done> he shall live.

Could I take delight in the death of the lawless? Demanded My Lord, Yahweh.
Must it not be in his turning from his ways* [in which case] he shall live?

But <when a righteous man> shall turn away from his righteousness and do that which is perverse,
Shall do (according to all the abominations which the lawless man hath done)> Shall he [live]?
||None of his righteous acts which he hath done shall be remembered,
<In his treachery wherein he hath been treacherous,
And in his sin wherein he hath sinned>
<In them> shall he [die].

Can ye then say—
The way of My Lord will not be equal?|*
Hear, I pray you, O house of Israel,
Will my way not be equal?
Will not your ways be unequal?

<When a righteous man> shall turn away from his righteousness and do that which is perverse, and die because of those things,
<In his own perversity which he hath done> shall he die.

But <when a lawless man> turneth away from his lawlessness which he hath done,
And hath done justice and righteousness|>
||He shall save [his own soul] alive:
<When he considered> then he turned away from all his transgressions, which he had committed,
He shall surely live.
He shall not die.

The house of Israel then say—
The way of My Lord will not be equal? Will my ways not be equal, O house of Israel?
Will not your ways be unequal?

<Every man according to his own ways> will I judge you, O house of Israel,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
Return ye—and make good your return—from all your transgressions, That they become not unto you a stumbling-block of iniquity.
Cast off from you, all your transgressions which ye have committed against me,
And make you a new heart,
And a new spirit,—
For why should ye die, O house of Israel?"
For I cannot take delight in the death of him that dieth, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Make good your return then, and [live]!

§ 17. A Dirge for the Princes of David's House.

1 For I therefore, take up a dirge, for the prince* of Israel; * and thou shalt say—
   How was thy mother, a lioness!
   <Between lions> she lay down,—
   <In the midst of young lions>
   She nourished her whelps;
   And she reared up one of her whelps—
   <A young lion> he became,
   And he learned to rend prey,
   <Men> he devoured;
   Then nations heard of him,
   <In their pit> was he caught,—
   So they brought him with hooks,
   Into the land of Egypt.
   And she saw she had waited,
   Lost' was her hope,
   Then took she another of her whelps,
   <A young lion> she made him.
   Yea he went to and fro amidst lions,
   <A young lion> he became,—
   And he learned to rend prey,
   <Men> he devoured;
   And he injured his widows,
   And <their cities> laid waste,—
   And deserted was the land, and its fulness,
   At the noise of his roaring.
   Then set upon him the nations round about,
   From the provinces,—
   And spread over him their net,
   <In their pit> was he caught;
   And they put him in a cage with hooks,
   And brought him to Babylon's king, c—
   That his noise might be heard no more.
   Among the mountains of Israel.

2 Thy mother [was] like a vine of thy vineyard, 4
   <By waters> was planted,—
   <Fruitful and full of branches> she became.
   By reason of waters abundant;
   And they served her as staves of power.
   For the sceptres of rulers,
   And high' became the stature thereof,
   With its intertwined foliage,—
   And it was seen by its height,
   By its multitude of branches.
   Then was she uprooted in indignation,
   <To the ground> was she cast,
   And [an east wind] dried up her fruit.—
   Broken off and withered were her staves of power.
   <A fire> devoured them.

13 Now therefore, is she planted in a desert,—
   In a land parched and dry;
   And there hath gone forth a fire out of her staves of rods,
   <Her fruit> hath it devoured,
   And there is in her no staff of power.
   As a sceptre to bear rule.
   <A dirge> it is, and hath been made [a dirge].

§ 18. The Prophet recounts Israel's past Treacheries, and protest that she shall not be suffered to become like other Nations.

1 And it came to pass <in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month> that there came in men of the elders of Israel to enquire of Yahweh,—and they sat before me. 2 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:—

3 Son of man,
   Speak thou with the elders of Israel, and say unto them,
   <Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
   <To enquire of me> are ye coming in?
   <As I live> verily I will not lie enquired of by you,
   Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

4 Wilt thou judge them, wilt thou judge, O son of man?
   <The abominations of their fathers> let them know:
   So then thou shalt say unto them,
   <Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
   <In the day when I made choice of Israel>
   then lifted I up my hand, to the seed of the house of Jacob, and made myself known to them, in the land of Egypt,— Yea I lifted up my hand to them, saying, <I, Yahweh am your God.
   <In that day> lifted I up my hand to them, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt,—into a land that I had looked out for them, flowing with milk and honey,
   <The beauty> it was, of all lands.

And I said unto them, <Every one, <the abomination of his eyes> cast ye away,
And <with the manufactured gods of Egypt> let it not be that ye defile yourselves:
<Neither> am your God.

8 But they rebelled against me,
And were not willing to hearken unto me,
<Neither> am a man <the abominations of their eyes> they cast not away;
And <the manufactured gods of Egypt> forsook they not;

13 * So it shd be (sing.): <G.> [w.

16 Or: "spied out."
Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, in the midst of the land of Egypt.

9 Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name, that it might not be profaned—before the eyes of the nations, in whose midst they were,—before whose eyes I made myself known unto them, by bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.

10 Therefore brought I them forth out of the land of Egypt,—and caused them to come into the desert.

11 Then gave I unto them my statutes, and <my regulations> caused I them to know,—By the which the man that doeth them shall live.

12 Moreover also, <my sabbaths> gave I unto them, to become a sign betwixt me and them,—that it might be known that I, Yahweh, was hallowing them.

13 But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the desert, <In my statutes> walked they not, <And my regulations> they rejected. By the which the man that doeth them shall live, <My sabbaths also> they profaned exceedingly.

Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them in the desert, to make an end of them.

14 Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not be profaned before the eyes of the nations, in whose midst I had brought them forth.

15 Yet even I lifted up my hand to them, in the desert,—That I would not bring them into the land which I had given to them, flowing with milk and honey, <The beauty it was, of all lands:>

Because <my regulations> they had rejected, And <as for my statutes> they had not walked therein, <My sabbaths also> had they profaned; For <after their manufactured gods> their heart had been going.

16 Nevertheless mine eye threw a shield over them, that they should not be destroyed; So I made not of them a full end, in the desert.

17 But I said unto their children, in the desert, <In the statutes of your fathers> let it not be that ye walk, <And their regulations> let it not be that ye observe,—<And with their manufactured gods> let it not be that ye defile yourselves.

18 Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, in their midst.

19 Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name, that it might not be profaned—before the eyes of the nations, in whose midst they were,—before whose eyes I made myself known unto them, by bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.

20 Notwithstanding, the children rebelled against me, <In my statutes> walked they not, <And my regulations> observed they not, to do them, Wherein the man who shall do them shall live, <My sabbaths> they profaned.

Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, in the midst of the land of Egypt.

21 Howbeit I withdrew my hand, and wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not be profaned before the eyes of the nations, in whose midst I had brought them forth:

22 Even <II> lifted up my hand to them, in the desert,—That I would disperse them throughout the nations, And scatter them throughout the lands;

23 Because <my regulations> had they not done, And <my statutes> they had rejected, <My sabbaths also> they had profaned,—And <after the manufactured gods of their fathers> were their eyes [turned].

24 <I myself indeed, suffered> them [to walk in] statutes which were not good,—And regulations, in which they could not live.4

25 Yea I let them defile themselves with their gifts, when they caused every first-born to pass through [the fire],—that I might make them desolate.

To the end they might know that I am Yahweh.

26 [Therefore] speak thou unto the house of Israel, Son of man, and say unto them, <Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

27 Yet further in this> did your fathers insult me, by the treachery wherewith they dealt treacherously against me;

28 When I brought them into the land, as to which I had lifted up mine hand to give Therefore said I unto them, What! [a high-place], whereto ye are entering? And so the name thereof hath been called High-place, until this day.

I Therefore say thou unto the house of Israel, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Is it [in the way of your fathers] ye are defiling yourselves,— And [after their abominations] that ye are committing lewdness?

Yes [when ye lift up your gifts, When ye cause your children* to pass through the fire] Ye' are defiling yourselves unto all your manufactured gods, until this day, And shall [I] be enquired of by you', O house of Israel?

[As I live] Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely I will not be enquired of by you.

And [as for that which is rising up on your spirit] it shall [not at all come to pass], In that ye' are saying Let us be like the nations, Like the families of the lands, By ministering unto Wood and Stone !

[As I live] Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely [with a strong hand, and With an outstretched arm, and With outpoured indignation] Will I be* king over you ; And I will bring you forth from among the peoples, And gather you together, out of the lands, throughout which ye have been dispersed ; And I will bring you into the desert of the peoples,—and will contend with you there, [face to face].

[Just as I contended with your fathers' in the desert of the land of Egypt] ||So|| will I contend with you', Declareth My Lord, Yahweh ; And I will cause you to pass under the rod,* And will bring you into the bond* of the covenant;

And will sever from you, those who are rebelling and those who are transgressing against me, <Out of the land of their sojournings> will I bring them forth, Yet <upon the soil of Israel> shall they not enter, So shall ye know that [I] am Yahweh.

But <as for you> O house of Israel, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Go, serve [every man] his own manufactured gods, Yet <afterwards> surely Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,— And <my holy name> shall ye profane no more, With your gifts, and With your manufactured gods.

For <in my holy' mountain, In the mountain of the height of Israel> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, There shall all the house of Israel |serve me|, all of it, in the land, There will I accept them, and There will I seek your heave-offerings, and the firstfruits of your gifts,* in all your holy things :

<As a satisfying'odour> will I accept [you], Through my bringing you forth from among the peoples, And gathering you out of the lands, throughout which ye have been dispersed ; Thus will I hallow myself in you, before the eyes of the nations.

So shall ye know that [I] am Yahweh, Through my bringing you in unto the soil of Israel, Unto the land, as to which I lifted up my hand, to give it unto your fathers.

Then shall ye call to mind, there, your own ways, and all your own doings, where-with ye had defiled yourselves,— And ye shall become loathsome in your own sight, for all your wickednesses, which ye have done.

So shall ye know that [I] am Yahweh, Through my dealing effectively with you, for the sake of mine own Name,— Not according to your own wicked ways, Nor according to your corrupted doings, O house of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying :

Son of man, Set thy face the way towards Teman, And drop [thy word] against the land of the sun, And prophesy unto the forest of the field of the South ;

* Some cod.: [w. 2 ear. pr. edns.]: "your sons and your daughters"—G.n.  b Or: "become."  c Or: "accept."  d Or: "crucible"—F.

Or: "your firstfruit' b Some cod.: "towards the South"—O.n.
47 And thou shalt say to the forest of the South,
Hear the word of Yahweh,—
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh—
Behold me burning in thee a fire,
And it shall devour in thee every moist tree and every dry tree,
The spreading flame shall not be quenched,
Then shall be scorched thereby, all faces,
from south to north;
And all flesh shall see that I, Yahweh have kindled it,—
It shall not be quenched.

48 Then said I,
Ah! My Lord, Yahweh:
They are saying of me,
Is not he a ponder forth of parables?

21 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me,
saying:
2 Son of man,
Set thy face against Jerusalem,
And drop [thy word] against the holy places;
And prophesy against the soil of Israel.
3 Thou shalt say then to the soil of Israel,
Thus saith Yahweh,*
Behold me against thee,
Therefore will I bring forth my sword out of its sheath,— and will cut off from thee, the righteous and the lawless.†

4 <Because I have cut off from thee, the righteous and the lawless>
Therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from south to north:
So shall all flesh know that I, Yahweh have have brought forth my sword, out of its sheath,— it shall not return any more.

5 Therefore, O son of man, sigh,—
<In the sharp pain of thy loins and in bitterness> shalt thou sigh, before their eyes.

6 And it shall come to pass <when they shall say unto thee, Wherefore' art thou sighing?> that thou shalt say,
For the report, because it cometh,
When every heart [shall melt].
And all hands [be unnerved].
And every spirit [shall become faint].
And [all knees] shall be weak as water, c
Lo! it cometh, and shall be brought to pass,
Saith My Lord, Yahweh.

8 And the word of Yahweh came unto me,
saying:
9 Son of man,
Prophecy' and thou shalt say,
Thus saith My Lord,∗
Say, A sword! A sword!

Sharpened, moreover also furbished:
<To make a slaughter> is it sharpened,
<That it may flash as lightning> is it furbished.

Or shall we flourish the royal rod b of my son, which despiseth every tree?

It hath, however, been given to be furbished, that it may be grasped by the hand:
The same is a sword [sharpened],
Yea the same is furbished,
Ready to be given into the hand of the slayer.

12 Make an outcry and howl, son of man,
For: the same hath come against my people,
The same is against all the princes of Israel,—
Who are [thrown to the sword] with my people,
Therefore smite thou upon thy thigh.

13 For trial hath been made,
What then, <even though the royal rod despiseth> shall it not be?

Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh.

14 Thou therefore, son of man,
Prophecy, and smite thy hands together,
And let the sword smite twice, thrice, [the sword of the slain],
The same is the great sword of the slain, that which hemmeth them* in.

15 <That the heart [may melt].
And the overthrowed [be multiplied] at all their gates> I have recompensed a slaying by the sword:
Surely* it hath been made ready to flash like lightning, [keen b for slaughter].
One firm stroke to the right,
Turn* to the left,— Whithersoever thine edge is directed,†

Yea [even I myself] will smite my hands together,
And will cause mine indignation to find rest,— I, Yahweh have spoken.

18 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me
saying:
19 Thou therefore, son of man,
Appoint thee two ways,
For the sword of the king of Babylont to enter,

Out of one land shall those two [ways] come, —

the hand of brutish men, skilled to destroy.

Thy blood shall be in the midst of the land,—
Thou shalt not be remembered,
For I, Yahweh, have spoken.

§ 20. The Sins of Jerusalem enumerated, and charged home upon Princes, Priests, Rulers, Prophets, and People.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me,
saying:

2 Thou therefore, O profane, lawless one,
Prince of Israel,—
Whose day hath come, in a time of final
iniquity:

3 Thou shalt say then,
Thou therefore, O profane, lawless one,
Prince of Israel,—
Whose day hath come, in a time of final
iniquity:

4 Because of the blood which thou hast shed>

5 They who are near, and they who are far off from thee shall shew themselves derisive over thee,—O thou of impure name, abounding in confusion!
Lo! the princes of Israel every man for his own account have they been in thee, for the sake of shedding blood.

Father and mother have they despised in thee, to the sojourner have they dealt with oppression, in the midst of thee.

My holy things hast thou despised, and my sabbaths hast thou profaned:

And to the mountains have they eaten in thee, lewdness have they practised in the midst of thee: a father's shame hath been uncovered in thee, her that was unclean in her removal have they humbled in thee;

And one man with the wife of his neighbour hath wrought abomination, and another hath defiled his daughter-in-law by shameful deed, and another his own sister, daughter of his own father hath humbled in thee:

Bribes have they accepted in thee, for the sake of shedding blood, and interest and increase hast thou accepted.

And thou hast overreached thy neighbour, by oppression, and me hast thou forgotten, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Therefore have I smitten my hand at thine unjust gain which thou hast made, and over thy bloodshed, which they have caused in the midst.

Can thy heart endure or can thy hand be strong in the days when I am dealing with thee?

I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem: as they gather silver and copper and iron and lead and tin, into the midst of a furnace, to blow upon it the fire, to melt it:

So will I gather in mine anger and in mine indignation, and will let be, and will melt you;

Yea I will gather you together, and blow upon you, with the fire of my wrath—

And ye shall be melted in the midst thereof:

As silver is melted in the midst of a furnace

Then shall ye know that I am Yahweh have poured out mine indignation upon you.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, say to her:

Thou liest a land, that is not to be rained upon, nor to receive fruitful showers, in the day of indignation.

Because her princes in her midst are like a roaring lion, rending prey,—

Life have they devoured, wealth and precious things have they been wont to take,

And her widows have they multiplied in her midst.

Her priests have done violence to my law,

And have profaned my holy things, between the hallowed and the common have they put no difference, and between the unclean and clean have they not taught men to discern,—

And from my sabbaths have they hid their eyes, so that I have been profaned in their midst.

Her rulers within her have been like wolves, rending prey,—

In shedding blood, in destroying lives,—

For the sake of getting dishonest gain.

And her prophets have coated it for them with whitewash, seeing visions of falsehood, and divining for them lies,—

Saying, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, when Yahweh hath not spoken.
Then sought I from among them, a man
Who could build up a wall,
And stand in the breach before me in behalf of the land,
So that I might not destroy her,—
But I found none.

Therefore have I poured out upon them mine indignation,
In the fire of mine outburst have I consumed them,—
Their way upon theirown head have I placed,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 21. The Unchaste Sisters Oholah and Oholibah.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
<Two women', daughters of one mother> there were;
And they became unchaste in Egypt,
<In their youth> became they unchaste,
<There> were handled their breasts,
And <there> were pressed their virgin' bosoms.
And their names were
Oholah— the elder,
And Oholibah— her sister,
And they became mine, and bare sons and daughters,—
<And as for their names> Samarriawas Oholah,
And Jerusalem was Oholibah.
Then became Oholah unchaste [after she had become mine],—
And lusted after her lovers,
For Assyrians, so warlike,
Clothed in blue,
Governors and deputies,
Attractive young men, all' of them,—
Horsemen, riding on horses.
So she bestowed her unchastities upon them,
The choisest men of Assyria, all' of them,—
And <with whomsoever she lusted after—with all their manufactured gods> she defiled herself.
And <her unchaste doings from the time she was in Egypt> had she not forsaken,
For <with her> had they lain in her youth,
Yea [they] had pressed her virgin' bosoms,—
And had poured out their unchastity upon her.

<Therefore> did I deliver her into the hand of her lovers,—
Into the hand of the sons of Assyria, after whom she lusted:
They disclosed her shame,
<Her sons and her daughters> took they away,
And <herself— with the sword> they slew,—
Thus became she a by-word among women,
<Their way upon theirown head> have I placed,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Yet became she more corrupt in her lust than the other,—
And <her unchaste doings> exceeded the unchaste doings of her sister.
<After the sons of Assyria> she lusted,
Governors and deputies so warlike,
Clothed in splendid array,
Horsemen, riding on horses,—
Attractive young men, all' of them.
So I saw, that she defiled herself,—
<One way> had they both.
Yet did she add, unto her unchaste doings,— when she saw men portrayed upon the wall, likenesses of Chaldeans, Portrayed with vermilion:
Girded with waistcloths upon their loins,
With overhanging high turbans upon their heads,
<In appearance> knights, all' of them,—
The likeness of the sons of Babylon of Chaldea, the land of their birth.
Then lusted she after them, as soon as her eyes beheld them,—
And she sent messengers unto them, to Chaldea.
Then [came in unto her] the sons of Babylon into the bed of endearments, and defiled her with their unchaste doings,—
And she' defiled herself with them',
And then was her soul torn from them.
Thus disclosed she her unchaste desires,
And disclosed' her shame,—
So my soul was torn from her,
Just as my soul had been torn from her sister.
Yea she multiplied her unchaste desires,— calling to mind the days of her youth, when she was unchaste in her youth, when she was unchaste in the land of Egypt;
So she lusted after their curriers,—
Whose flesh was [the flesh of asses], and Whose issue was [the issue of horses].
Yea thou didst look about for the lewdness of thy youth,—
When were pressed, by the Egyptians, thy bosoms,
When they handled thy youthful breasts.
Therefore shall My Lord Yahweh say unto thee: Behold me! rousing up thy lovers against thee, even them from whom thy soul hath been torn; and I will bring them against thee from every side:

The sons of Babylon and all Chaldeans, and Pekod and Shoa and Koaa, all the sons of Assyria, with them,—Attractive young men, Governors and deputies, all of them. Knights and men of renown, Riders on horses, all of them;

And they shall come upon thee—With battle-axe, chariot and wheel, And with a gathered host of males, <Shield and buckler and helmet> will they array against thee, on every side,—And I will put before them, judgment, And they shall judge thee with their judgments;

When I set forth my jealousy against thee> Then will they deal with thee, in indignation, <Thy nose and thine ears> will they remove, And that which is left of thee shall be devoured by the fire;

And they shall strip off thy raiment,—And take away thine adorning jewels!

Thus will I cause thy lewdness to cease, from thee, Even thine unchastity [brought] from the land of Egypt,—So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, And <Egypt> shalt thou not call to mind any more.

For <thus> saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! delivering thee up, into the hand of them whom thou hatest,—Into the hand of them from whom thy soul hath been torn;

And they shall deal with thee in hatred, And take away all thy labour, And leave thee utterly naked,—And thine unchaste shame [shall be disclosed], with thy lewdness and unchastities, These things shall be done to thee,—In that thou hast gone unchastely after the nations, Because thou hast defiled thyself with their manufactured gods.
42 The noise of a careless throng also was with her,*
And besides men out of the mass of mankind there were brought in drunkards,*
out of the desert;
And they put bracelets upon the hands of both women,
And crowns of adorning upon their heads.

43 Then said I, of her that was worn out with adulteries,
Will they not join in her unchaste doings.
Ileaven her!*

44 Yet came they in unto her, as men go in unto a woman that is a harlot,—
[So] came they in unto Oholah, and unto Oholibah— the lewd women!

45 But righteous men shall judge them,
With the judgment of adulteresses, and
With the judgment of women that shed blood,—
Because adulteresses they are*
And blood is on their hands.

46 For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
There shall be brought up against them a gathered host,*
Then shall they be delivered up, for a terror and for a prey,
Yea a gathered host [shall] judge them,
With the judgment of adulteresses, and
With the judgment of women that shed blood,—
Because adulteresses they are*
And blood is on their hands.

47 Wherefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh.—
Woe to city of bloodshed.
The caldron whose scum is in it, and [whose scum] hath not gone out of it:
Piece by piece* bring it out,
There hath fallen thereon no lot.

48 So will I make an end of lewdness, out of the land,—
And all women shall be disciplined, and shall not do according to your lewdness.

49 Yea the judges shall set your lewdness upon you,
And your sins with manufactured gods shall ye bear;
So shall ye know that I am The Lord, Yahweh.*

§ 22. Jerusalem likened to a Filthy Caldron.

24 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, saying:
Son of man,
Write thee the name of the day, this selfsame day,—the king of Babylon cast' himself against Jerusalem, on this selfsame day.

3 Put thou forth, therefore, against the perverse house, a parable, and say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Set on the caldron, set it on.
Moreover also' pour into it water:

4 Gather the pieces thereof into it.
Every good piece, thigh and shoulder,—
[With the choice of the bones] fill it:

5 Take of the choice of the flock
Moreover also' a pile of bones [place] under it,—
Boil the pieces thereof,
Yea' let the bones of it seethe' in the midst thereof.

6 Wherefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Woe! city of bloodshed,
The caldron whose scum is in it, and [whose scum] hath not gone out of it:
Piece by piece* bring it out,
There hath fallen thereon no lot.

7 For her own blood hath come to be [in her midst],—
Upon the smooth face of the cliff hath she set it,—
She hath not poured it out on the earth, that she might cover it with dust.

8 To bring up indignation, to execute an avenging* have I set her blood upon the smooth face of the cliff,—that it may not be covered.

9 Wherefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Woe! city of bloodshed,—
Even I myself will make large the pile.

10 Heap on the wood.
Kindle the fire,
Consume the flesh,—
Yes season with spice,
And let the bones be scorched.

11 Then set it upon the live coals thereof, empty,—that the copper* of it [may be scorched and burn],
So that the impurity thereof [may be annihilated within it],
The scum thereof [be consumed].

12 With toils* hath she wearied herself,—
Since her abundant scum will not go out of her [into the fire] with* her scum!

13 In thine uncleanness is lewdness; <because I purified thee, and thou wast not purified> <from thine uncleanness> thou shalt not be purified any more, until I have let mine indignation rest upon thee.

14 I, Yahweh have spoken.
It cometh, and I will perform, I will not let alone, Neither will I shield, Nor will I repent,—
According to thy ways and according to thy doings have they judged thee.

§ 23. The Prophet, bereft of his Wife, becomes a Pathetic Object-Lesson to Israel.

15 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
16 Son of man,
Behold me! taking away from thee the delight of thine eyes, with a stroke, —
But thou shalt not lament.
Neither shalt thou weep,
Neither shall come—thy tears:
17 <To groan> forbear,
<Over the dead—no mourning> shalt thou make,
/<Thy chaplet> bind thou on thee,
And <thy sandals> put thou on thy feet,
And thou shalt not cover thy beard,
And <the bread of [other] men> shall thou not eat.

18 So I spake unto the people, in the morning, and my wife died' in the evening, — and I did, in the morning, as I had been commanded.
19 Then said the people unto me:
Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou shouldst be acting [thus]?

20 So I said unto them:
||The word of Yahweh|| hath come unto me, saying: 21 Say to the house of Israel

Behold me! profaning my sanctuary,
The pride of your strength,
The delight of your eyes,

And ||your sons and your daughters whom ye have left behind|| <by the sword> shall fall.

22 Then shall ye do, as I have done.—
/<The beard> shall ye not cover,

23 And ||your chaplets|| shall be on your heads,
And ||your sandals|| on your feet,
Ye shall neither< lament, nor weep,—
Yet shall ye pine away in your iniquities, and shall groan, one to another.

24 So shall ||Ezekiel|| become |to you| a wonder,
<According to all that he hath done> shall ye do:

Therefore behold me! laying open the side of Moab out of the cities, Out of his cities, on his frontiers. The beauty of the land of Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meeon, and Kiriaothaim:

To the Sons of the East [when they come] against the sons of Ammon, and I will deliver it up for a possession,— to the end the sons of Ammon may not be remembered among the nations:

Also <upon Moab> will I execute judgments,— So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, <Because of what Edom hath done', in taking vengeance on the house of Judah,— so that they have become guilty again and again, and have taken vengeance upon them>

Therefore ||Thus|| saith My Lord. Yahweh, I will therefore stretch forth my hand over Edom, and will cut off therefrom man and beast, And will deliver it up as a desolation, from Teman, And ||they of Dedan|| <by the sword> shall fall,

And I will put forth mine avenging against Edom, by the hand of my people Israel, And they shall deal with Edom, according to mine anger and according to mine indignation,— So shall they know mine avenging, § 26. Against the Philistines.

Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, <Because of what the Philistines have done', by way of vengeance, — In that they have taken vengeance, with contempt, in the soul, to destroy, with the enmity of age-past times>

Therefore ||Thus|| saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! stretching forth my hand over the Philistines, And I will cut off the Cherethim,— And will cause to perish, the remnant of the coast of the sea;

And I will execute upon them great vengeance, with rebukes of indignation:

So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh, when I put forth mine avenging against them.

§ 27. Against Tyre (chaps. xxvi., xxvii.).

And it came to pass <in the eleventh year, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, <Because Tyre hath said' concerning Jerusalem, Aha! She is broken that was the doors of the peoples, She is turned unto me,— I shall be filled, She is laid waste>

Therefore ||Thus|| saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Tyre,— So then I will bring up against thee many nations,

As the sea bringeth up its rolling waves;

And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre, And break down her towers, And I will scrape clean her dust from off her,— And make of her the glaring face of a cliff:

A place for the spreading of nets shall she become, in the midst of the sea, For ||I|| have spoken, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh,— And she shall become a prey to the nations.

And ||her daughters that are in the field||< by the sword > shall be slain:

So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh:

For ||thus|| saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! bringing against Tyre, Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon out of the North, a king of kings,— with horses and with chariots and with horsemen, and a gathered host b and much people.

<Thy daughters in the field—with the sword> shall he slay,— And shall set against thee a siege-wall, And cast up against thee an earthwork, And set up against thee a large shield; And <the stroke of his attacking-engine> will he direct against thy walls,— And <thy towers> will he break down, with his axes. c

<By reason of the multitude of his horses> their dust shall cover thee,—<At the noise of horseman and wheel and chariot> shall thy walls tremble', when he entereth into thy gates. Just as they' do who enter a city broken open.

<With the hoofs of his horses> shall he tread down all thy streets,— <Thy people— with the sword > shall he slay, And [thy pillars of strength] <to the earth> shall go down.

And they shall spoil thy wealth, And make a prey of thy merchandise, And break down thy walls, And <thy pleasant' houses> shall they lay in ruins;

And I will cause to cease the hum of thy songs; And <the sound of thy lyres> shall not be heard any more.

And I will make of thee the glaring face of a cliff. <A place for the spreading of nets> shalt thou become, Thou shalt not be built any more, — For ||I, Yahweh | have* spoken it, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

llThusllsaith My Lord. Yahweh, to Tyre:

Shall it not be, that, <At the sound of thy fall, With the groan of thy pierced one, With the slaughter made in thy midst> The Coastlands shall tremble? Then shall come down from off their thrones, all the princes of the sea, And shall lay aside their robes, And <their embroidered garments> shall strip off,— <With tremblings> shall they clothe themselves, <Upon the ground> shall they sit, And shall tremble every moment, and be astonished over thee.

Then shall they take up a dirge over thee, a dirge, And say to thee,—

How' hast thou perished, And ceased e from the seas,— The city renowned, which was strong in the sea, She and they who dwelt in her, Who imparted their terror To all who dwelt in her!

Now shall tremble' the Coastlands, In the day of thy fall,— And shall shudder' the isles that are in the sea, At thine exit!4

For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, <When I make thee a desolate city, Like cities which cannot be dwelt in,— When I bring up over thee the roaring deep, And the mighty waters cover thee > Then will I bring thee down with them that go down into the pit, Unto the people of age-past times, And cause thee to dwell in the earth below, Among the desolations from age-past times, With them that go down into the pit, That thou mayest not be dwelt in,— Nor yet present thyself e in the land of the living.

§ 31. Against Pharaoh King of Egypt, and against his Land (Chaps. xxix.—xxxii.).

29 <In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth of the month> came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

30 Son of man, Set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt,—And prophesy against him, and against Egypt [all of it]:—

31 Speak, and thou shalt say—

<Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Pharaoh, king of Egypt, The great Crocodile that lieth along in the midst of his rivers: Who saith—My river is mine own, Since I myself made it!—> Therefore will I put hooks in thy jaws, And cause the flesh of thy rivers to stick fast in thy scales,—And will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, And all the fish of thy rivers shall stick fast;—And I will stretch thee out towards the desert. On the face of the field shalt thou lie. Thou shalt not be carried away, nor shalt thou be gathered, To the wild beast of the earth, and to the bird of the heavens have I given thee for food.

6 So shall all the inhabitants of Egypt know that I am Yahweh,— Because they were a staff of reed to the house of Israel:

7 <Whenever they took hold of thee by the hand> thou didst run through, and tear open for them every hand,— And <whenever they leaned upon thee> thou didst break, and caused all their loins to halt.

8 [Therefore, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! bringing upon thee a sword,— And I will cut off out of thee, man and beast; And the land of Egypt shall become an astonishment and a desolation, So shall they know that I am Yahweh,— Because he said—The river is mine own, Since I myself made it!—> Therefore behold me! against thee, and against thy rivers,— And I will make the land of Egypt to be most desolate, an astounding desolation, From Migdol to Syene, even up to the boundary of Ethiopia; The foot of man shall not pass through it, Nor shall the foot of beast pass through it, Neither shall it be inhabited, forty years:

11 So will I make the land of Egypt a desolation in the midst of lands made desolate, And <her cities in the midst of cities that have been laid waste> shall become a desolation, forty years,— And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations, And scatter them throughout the lands. For [thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,—<At the end of forty years> will I gather the Egyptians from among the peoples whither I had dispersed them; And I will turn the captivity of the Egyptians,* And will cause them to return To the land of Pathros, Upon the land of their nativity,— And they shall become, there, a kingdom abased: <More than [any of] the kingdoms> shall she be abased, And shall lift herself up no more over the nations,— Yes I will make them too small, to rule over the nations.

17 And it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

18 Son of man, ||Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon|| hath made his army undergo a long service against Tyre,
||Every head|| hath been made bald, and
||Every shoulder|| worn bare,—
But ||pay|| hath he had none, nor hath his army, out of Tyre, for the service whereby he hath served against it.

19 Therefore||
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! giving <to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon> the land of Egypt,—
And he shall carry off her multitude.
And capture her spoil.
And seize her prey,
So shall she become pay for his army.

20 <As a reward for his labour wherewith he hath served> have I given to him the land of Egypt,— in that they wrought for me,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

30 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 Son of man, Prophecy, and thou shalt say, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,— How! ye, Alas for the day!

3 For <near> is a day, Yea <near> is a day pertaining to Yahweh,
A day of cloud,
<A time of nations> shall it be!

4 Then shall come a sword into Egypt, And there shall be a pang in Ethiopia, When the deadly wounded one falleth in Egypt,—
And they take away her multitude, and [her foundations] are broken down.

5 Ethiopia and Libya and Lydia, and all the mixed multitudec and Cub, and the sons of the land of the covenant <with them,—by the sword> shall they fall.

b Cp. iii. 26, 27; xxiv. 27.

The young men of Aven and Pi-keseth shall fall; and lo! into captivity shall they themelves wend their way.

And in Taphnehes hath the day become dark, because I have broken, there, the yoke-bars of Egypt, and there shall be made to cease therein the pride of her strength, — (She) shall come upon her! And her daughters into captivity shall wend their way.

Thus will I execute judgments on Egypt; and they shall know that I am Yahweh.

And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, say unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and unto his multitude, — Whom art thou like in thy greatness?

Lo! Assyria was a cedar in Lebanon, beautiful in bough and dense in foliage, and lofty in stature, — and among the clouds came to be his top:

The waters made him great, the roaring deep made him high, — with its currents going round about the place where it was planted, its channels also sent forth unto all the trees of the field.

For this cause was his stature, than any of the trees of the field, — and multiplied were his boughs, and lengthened were his branches.

By reason of the mighty waters, when he shot forth shoots.

Among his branches all the birds of the heavens made their nests, and under his boughs all the wild beasts of the field brought forth, — and in his shade dwelt all the mighty nations.

Thus became he beautiful in his greatness, in the length of his waving branches, — because his root had gone to towards mighty waters.

Cedars hid him not in the garden of God, nor plane-trees like his branches, — no tree in the garden of God was like unto him, in his beauty.

Beautiful I made him in the abundance of his waving branches, — therefore was he envied by all the trees of Eden, which were in the garden of God.

Therefore I will uphold the arms of the king of Babylon, and put my sword into his hand, — and will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he shall utter the groans of one thrust through before him.

Yea I will uphold the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall, — and they shall know that I am Yahweh.

By my putting my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall stretch it out against the land of Egypt.

So will I disperse the Egyptians among the nations, and scatter them throughout the lands, — and they shall know that I am Yahweh.

And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first of the month. —

17 ||The young men of Aven and Pi-keseth* shall fall; and lo! into captivity shall they them- selves wend their way.
18 And in Taphnehes hath the day become dark, because I have broken, there, the yoke-bars of Egypt, and there shall be made to cease therein the pride of her strength, — (She) shall come upon her! And her daughters into captivity shall wend their way.

And all the peoples of the earth have come down out of his shade, And abandoned him:

Upon his trunk shall settle down all the birds of the heavens,—

And among his boughs are to be found all the wild beasts of the field:—
To the end that none of the trees of the waters—May exalt themselves in their stature, Or stretch their top among the clouds, Nor their mightiness take their stand in their height — any that drink of the waters,— Because they are delivered to death, Unto the earth below, In the midst of the sons of Adam, Amongst them who descend into the pit.

<In the day when he descended into hades> I caused a mourning, I covered over him the roaring deep, And restrained the currents thereof, And stayed were the mighty waters,— So caused I gloom over him unto Lebanon, And <all the trees of the field> for him were covered with a shroud.

<At the sound of his fall> I made nations tremble, When I caused him to descend into hades, with them who descend into the pit,— Then were grieved, in the earth below— All the trees of Eden, The choicest and best of Lebanon, All who had drunk the waters.

<Even they> with him descended into hades, Among them who were thrust through with the sword,— Even his seed b who dwelt in his shade, in the midst of the nations.

Unto whom couldst thou be likened thus, in glory and in greatness, among the trees of Eden? Yet shalt thou be caused to descend, with the trees of Eden, into the earth below, <In the midst of the uncircumcised> shalt thou lie down, With them who were thrust through by the sword.

The same is Pharaoh and all his multitude, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And it came to pass <in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, Take up a dirge, over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and thou shalt say unto him, <The young lion of the nations> thou didst deem thyself,—

Whereas thou wast like the crocodile in the sea,* And didst cause thy streams to burst forth, And didst trouble the waters with thy feet, And foul their rivers.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I spread over thee my net, With a gathered host of many peoples,— And they shall bring thee up in my net; And I will stretch thee out on the land, <Over the face of the field> will I fling thee,— And I will cause to settle upon thee all the birds of the heavens, And will satiate, with thee, the wild beasts of all the earth;

And I will lay thy flesh on the mountains,— And fill the valleys with thy blood;

And will soak the earth with thy blood, amongst the mountains,— And <all the trees of the field> shall be filled with thee.

And <when I quench thee> I will cover the heavens, And obscure their stars,— <The sun—with a cloud> will I cover, And <the moon> shall not shed her light; <As for all the light-bearers in the heavens> I will obscure them over thee,— And will stretch out darkness over thy land, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And I will aggravate the heart of many peoples,— when I bring them who are broken off from thee, among the nations, unto lands which thou hast not known.

Yea I will cause amazement, over thee, unto many peoples, And the hair of the kings shall stand on end over thee, when I brandish my sword over their faces,— And they shall tremble every moment, every man for his own life, In the day of thy fall.

For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:— The sword of the king of Babylon shall reach thee.

<With the swords of mighty men> will I cause thy multitude to fall, <Terrible ones of the nations> shall stand on end over thee, And they shall spoil the pride of Egypt, And all her multitude shall be destroyed, And I will cause to perish all her beasts, from beside the many waters,— And the foot of man shall not trouble them any more, Nor shall hoof of beast trouble them.

15 And it came to pass in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying:

Son of man,

Wail thou over the multitude of Egypt, and cause it to descend—her and the daughters of the famous nations—into the earth below, with them who descend into the pit.

16 <In the midst of them who were thrust through> have they have placed a couch for her, with all her multitude,<nub>

Round about it are her graves,—All of them uncircumcised,

Thrust through with the sword.

For that their terror was caused in the land of the living,

And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit,

In the midst of them who were thrust through> hath it been placed.

17 Therefore shall they not lie with the mighty men,

The fallen ones from age-past times,—Who descended into hades with their weapons of war,

And their swords were placed under their heads,

But their iniquities have come upon their bones,

Because of the terror of the mighty, in the land of the living.

18 <In the midst of the uncircumcised> shalt be overthrown,*

And shalt lie low with them who were thrust through by the sword.

19 <There> are the princes of the North, all of them, and all the Zidonians, Who have descended with them who were thrust through.<nub>

By reason of the terror they caused> are they ashamed,

So they have lain down uncircumcised.

With them who were thrust through by the sword,

And they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit.

20 <There> shall Pharaoh see, and be grieved over all his multitude,—Thrust through with the sword> shall be Pharaoh and all his army,—Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 32. Divine Dealing with Individuals (cp. chaps. iii., xvi.iii.iii.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 Son of man, speak unto the sons of thy people, and thou shalt say unto them:

3 [A land]—when I bring upon it a sword,—And the people of the land shall take one man out of their whole number, and appoint him for them, as watchman;

4 And he shall see the sword coming upon the land,—and shall blow with the horn, and warn the people:

5 Then <as for him who [really heard] the sound of the horn, and took not warning>:

6 But <as for the watchman—When he seeth the sword coming, and hath not blown with the horn, and [the people] have not been warned, and the sword hath come, and taken away from among them any person>:

7 <When I say to the lawless man, O lawless man, thou shalt surely die>, and thou hast not spoken to warn the lawless man from his way:

8 <When I say to the lawless man, Thou shalt surely die>, but he shall turn from his sin, and do justice and righteousness:

9 But <as for thyself>, When thou hast warned a lawless man from his way, to turn therefrom, and he hath not turned from his way:

10 [When our transgressions and our sins are upon us,—and <for them> we are melting away>:

11 Say unto them, <As I live> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely, I can take no pleasure in the death of the lawless man, but that the lawless man turn from his way, and live,—

12 Turn ye, turn ye, from your wicked ways, For wherefore should ye die, O house of Israel?

13 Thou therefore, Son of man Say unto the sons of thy people—

14 But <as for thyself>, When thou hast warned a lawless man from his way, to turn therefrom, and he hath not turned from his way:

15 Thou therefore, Son of man Say unto the house of Israel, <When I say of the righteous man, Ho shall surely live>, but [he] hath trusted in his righteousness and committed perversity:

16 <When I say of the lawless man, Thou shalt surely die>, but he shall turn from his sin, and do justice and righteousness:

17 <The debt-pledge> the lawless man shall restore.

18 <Plunder> shall pay back, <In the statutes of life> hath walked, so as not to commit perversity:

19 He shall surely live; he shall not die:—

20 <None of his sins which he hath committed shall be called to mind against him,—<Justice and righteousness> hath he done, He shall surely live>.
And can the sons of thy people say,
The way of The Lord will not be equal?
Nay! but as for them, their way will not be equal!

<When the righteous man shall turn from his righteousness, and commit perversity>
Then shall he die for them;
But when the lawless man shall turn from his lawlessness, and do justice and righteousness> <Upon them> shall he live.

And can ye then say,
The way of The Lord will not be equal?
<Every man—according to his own ways>
[so] will I judge you, 0 house of Israel!

And it came to pass <in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the fifth of the month, of our exile> that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem, saying:

Smitten is the city!

Now the hand of Yahweh had come unto me, in the evening, before the coming of him who had escaped, and he had opened my mouth, by the time that he came to me in the morning, —so my mouth was opened, and I was dumb no longer.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

These inhabitants of waste places, on the soil of Israel are saying thus,
<One> was Abraham, Yet he inherited the land,— But we are many,
<To us> is the land given as an inheritance.

Wherefore say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh.

<With the blood> ye do eat, And <your eyes> ye do lift up unto your manufactured gods, And <blood> ye do shed; And <the land> shall ye inherit?

Ye men have taken your stand by your sword, Ye women have wrought abomination, And <every man—with the wife of his neighbour> have ye defiled yourselves; And <the land> shall ye inherit?

Thus shalt thou say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh.

As I live surely they who are in the waste places <by the sword> shall fall, And him who is on the face of the field <to the wild beast> have I given to be devoured, —
And they who are in the mountain holds

and in the pits <by pestilence> shall die;

And I will make the land a desolation and an astonishment, [So shall be made to cease] the pride of her strength,— And the mountains of Israel shall be too desolate for any to pass through.

So shall they know that I am Yahweh,— When I make the land a desolation and an astonishment, because of all their abominations which they have committed.

Thou therefore, Son of man,
The sons of thy people who are talking against thee,
<Near the walls and in the entrances of the houses> are speaking one with another, every man with his brother, saying.

Come in, we pray you, and hear, what is the word that is coming forth from Yahweh;

That they may come unto thee as people do come, And may sit before thee, [as] my people, And they will hear thy words, But <the words themselves> will they not do,— though <fond with their mouths> <they> seem to be, <After their unjust gain> [their heart] is going.

And lo! thou art to them— As a bewitching song.
Of one with a beautiful voice, And skilfully touching the strings, — So will they hear thy words, And yet be going to do none of them.

But <when it cometh> Lo! it is coming!>
Then shall they know that I a prophet hath been in their midst.

§33. Against the Shepherds of Israel. The True Shepherd judges both between Classes and Individuals.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, 34 saying:

Son of man,

Prophecy against the shepherds of Israel,— Prophecy, and thou shalt say unto them, even to the shepherds—

As I live surely they who are in the waste places <by the sword> shall fall, And him who is on the face of the field <to the wild beast> have I given to be devoured, —
And they who are in the mountain holds
<The well-fed> ye do sacrifice,*
<The flock> ye do not tend:

4 <The weak> have ye not strengthened,
And <the sick> have ye not healed,
And <the torn> have ye not bound up,
And <that which was driven out> have ye not sought out;
But <with force> have ye ruled them, and with rigour.

5 And they were scattered, because there was no shepherd;
And they became food for every wild beast of the field.
So were they scattered.

6 My sheep did wander through all the mountains,
And over every high hill,—
And <over all the face of the land> were my sheep scattered,
And there was none to inquire,
And none to seek out.

7 Therefore ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh:
8 <As I live>—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely <because my flock became a prey,
And my flock became food for every wild beast of the field, through having no shepherd,
Neither did my shepherds inquire after the flock,—
But [the shepherds] tended |themselves|.
And <my flock> they tended not>.

9 ||Therefore| ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh:
10 ||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
 Behold me! against the shepherds.
So then I will require my flock at their hand,
And will cause them to cease tending the flock,
Neither shall |the shepherds| any longer tend |themselves|,
But I will deliver my flock out of their mouth,
that they may not be their food.

11 For ||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Here am ||I myself||
Therefore will I inquire after my flock, and seek them out:
12 |<As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day he is in the midst of his sheep that are scattered>|

||So|| will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they were scattered in the day of cloud and thick darkness;
And I will bring them out from among the peoples,
And will gather them out of the lands,
And will bring them upon their own soil,—
And will tend them Upon the mountains of Israel, In the ravines.* And in all the habitable places of the land:

13 <In good pastures> will I feed them,
And <on the mountains of the height of Israel> shall be their fold,—
<There> shall they lie down, in a fold that is good,
And <on pasture that is fat> shall they feed,
among the mountains of Israel.

14 ||I myself|| will tend my flock,
And ||I myself|| will cause them to lie down,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:
15 <That which is straying> will I seek out,
And <that which hath been driven away> will I bring back,
And <that which is torn> will I bind up,
And <the weak> will I strengthen,—
But <the fat and the strong> will I watch. b I will feed them with justice.

16 And <as for you, O my flock>—
Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Behold me! judging between one kind of small cattle and another, as well the rams as the he-goats.
Is it too small a thing for you that <on the good pasture> ye feed,
But <the remainder of your pastures> ye must needs trample down with your feet?
Or that <of the pure waters> ye drink,
But <the waters left remaining—with your feet> ye must needs foul?

19 And ||my flock||
<On what hath been trampled down by your feet> may feed,
And <of what hath been fouled by your feet> may drink!

20 ||Therefore|
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, unto them:
Here am ||I myself||,
Therefore will I judge between fat sheep and lean sheep,
21 <Because <with the side and with the shoulder> ye do thrust,
And <with your horns> ye push all the sick,—
Until ye have scattered them abroad>.

22 Therefore will I bring salvation* to my flock, and they shall be no longer a prey,—but I will judge between one sheep and another,

23 And I will raise up over them one shepherd,
And he shall tend them,
Even my servant David,—
||He|| will tend them,
And ||he|| will become to them a shepherd;
24 And ||I, Yahweh|| will become to them a God. ||my servant David|| being a prince* in their midst,—

25 And I will solemnise for* them a covenant of prosperity,
And will cause to cease the mischievous wild-beast out of the land,

---

*That is, for eating. Cp. O.G. 257; also Lu. xv. 23, 30.

And they shall dwell in the wilderness, securely, and shall sleep in the forests; and I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing. And I will cause the abundant rain to come down in its season; and the tree of the field shall yield his fruit, and the land shall yield her increase, and they shall remain on their own soil, in security,

So shall they know that I am Yahweh, when I have broken the bars of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hand of them who have been using them as slaves. And they shall be no longer a prey for the nations, nor shall the wild beast of the earth devour them,

And I will raise up unto them a plantation for fame, and there shall be no longere a prey for the nations, nor shall the wild beast of the earth devour them.

And I will make Mount Seir, to desolation after desolation, and will cut off therefrom, him that passeth by and him that returneth, and I will fill his mountains with his slain, and his cities shall I lay waste, and thou—adesolation shalt become,—So shall they know that I am Yahweh.

Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment:

Therefore have I heard against thee, O Mount Seir, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Mount Seir, Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment:

And thou shalt know that I am Yahweh.

As for thy hills and thy hollows and all thy channels, they who are thrust through by the sword shall fall therein;

And thy cities shall not be inhabited, So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

Because thou hast dealt, Blood therefore shall pursue thee,—Surely concerning blood will I deal with thee, Blood therefore, shall pursue thee,—Since blood thou hast not hated, Therefore blood shall pursue thee,

So then will I deliver up Mount Seir, to desolation after desolation, and will cut off therefrom, him that passeth by and him that returneth, and I will fill his mountains with his slain, and their cities shall I lay waste, and thou—adesolation shalt become,—So shall they know that I am Yahweh.

Therefore have I heard against thee, O Mount Seir, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Mount Seir, Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment:

And thou shalt know that I am Yahweh.

As for thy hills and thy hollows and all thy channels, they who are thrust through by the sword shall fall therein;

And thy cities shall not be inhabited, So shall they know that I am Yahweh.

Because thou hast dealt, Blood therefore shall pursue thee,—Surely concerning blood will I deal with thee, Blood therefore, shall pursue thee,—Since blood thou hast not hated, Therefore blood shall pursue thee,
And I will cause you to be inhabited as in your former estates, and will do you more good than at your beginnings, So shall ye know that I am Yahweh; And I will bring upon you—men, even my people Israel, That they may possess thee, So shalt thou be theirs, as an inheritance,— And thou shalt no more again make them childless. ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, <Because they are saying to you, <A devourer of men> thou art, And <one that didst make childless thy nations> hast thou been> ||Therefore|| <men> shalt thou not devour any more,— And <thy nations> shalt thou make childless* no more, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh; ||Therefore|| <men> shalt thou not devour any more,— And <thy nations> shalt thou not cause to stumble any more, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 36. The Evil Effects of Israel's Dispersion are to be removed by her Restoration and Abundant Blessing.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, |The house of Israel| were dwelling upon their own soil, But they defiled it, by their way, and by their doings, <Like the defilement of her that is removed> became their way before me.

So I poured out mine indignation upon them, Because of the blood which they had shed upon the land,— Yea <with their manufactured gods> had they defiled it.

So I dispersed them among the nations, And they were scattered throughout the lands,— <According to their way and according to their doings> I judged them.

But <when they entered among the nations where they did enter> then profaned they my holy Name,— in that it was said of them, <The people of Yahweh> those! Yet <from his land> have they come forth!

* Written: "'cause to fall"; but read: "made childless." Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. eda., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.) both wrote and read: "make childless"—G.n.

| Or as two proper names: "Adin Av. Yahweh." |

| This would seem the most natural rendering of the Hebrew, and the result may prove of value elsewhere. |
EZEKIEL XXXVI. 21—38; XXXVII. 1—5.

21 So then I had tender regard for my holy' Name,—
Which the house of Israel had profaned, among the nations, where they had entered.

22 Therefore say thou to the house of Israel,
"Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Not for your sakes am I working, O house of Israel,
But for my holy' Name, which ye have profaned, among the nations where ye have entered;
Therefore will I hallow my great' Name, that hath been profaned among the nations, which ye have profaned in their midst,—So shall the nations know that || I am Yahweh.
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
When I have hallowed myself in you,* before their eyes.
Therefore will I take you from among the nations,
And gather you out of all the lands,—
And I will throw upon you clean water, and ye shall be clean,—
<From all your uncleannesses and from all your manufactured gods> will I cleanse you;
And I will give you a new heart, and  will I put within you,—
And I will take away the heart of stone, out of your flesh,
And will give you a heart of flesh;
And <my spirit> will I put within you,—And will cause That <in my statutes> ye shall walk,
And <my regulations> ye shall observe, and do;
And ye shall dwell in the land which I gave to your fathers,—
And ye shall become my' people,* And || I will become your' God;'
And I will save you, out of all your uncleannesses,—
And will call for the corn, and will increase it, And will not lay upon you, famine;
And I will multiply The fruit of the tree, and The increase of the field,—
To the end that ye may not receive any more, the reproach of famine, among the nations.
Then shall ye call to mind Your ways that were wicked, and Your doings that were not good,—
And shall become loathsome in your own sight. For your iniquities, and For your abominations.

25 Not <for your sakes> am I' working,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Be it known to you,—
Turn ye pale and then blush for your ways, O house of Israel.

26 ||Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
In the day when I cleanse you, from all your iniquities
Then will I cause the cities to be inhabited, And the waste places shall be built;*
And || the land that was made desolate shall be tilled,—
Whereas it was a desolation, before the eyes of every passer-by;
And they shall say, ||This land that was made desolate hath become like the garden of Eden,—
And || the cities that were waste and deserted and thrown down <now fenced> are inhabited;
So shall the nations that may be left remaining round about you know that || I Yahweh—
Have built that which was thrown down, and Have planted that which was made desolate,—
||I Yahweh|| have spoken, and performed.

27 ||Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Even yet—for this will I be prevailed upon by the house of Israel, to work for them,—
I will multiply them—Like a flock—with men:
<Like a flock of holy offerings.,
Like the flock of Jerusalem in her appointed feasts> ||So shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men,—
And they shall know that || I am Yahweh.

§37. The Prophetic Vision of the Dry Bones.

1. <The hand of Yahweh being upon me> he 37 carried me forth in the spirit of Yahweh, and set me down in the midst of a plain,—and || the same|| was full of bones: and he caused me to pass near them, round about on every side,—and lo! they were very many, on the face of the plain, and lo! they were very dry. * Then said he unto me,
Son of man,
Can these bones || live||?
And I said,
My Lord, Yahweh, || thou knowest!*
Then said he unto me,
Prophesy, over these bones,—and thou shalt say unto them,
Ye bones so dry! hear ye the word of Yahweh!'

5. Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Unto these bones,—
Lo! I am about to bring into you—spirit, and ye shall live;
Yea I will lay upon you—sinews,
And bring up over you—flesh,
And cover over you—skin,
And put in you—spirit.
And ye shall live,
Then shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

And <when I prophesied, as I was commanded> then was there a noise, as I prophesied, and lo! a rattling, and the bones came near, each bone unto its own bone. And <when I looked> then lo! upon them were sinews, and flesh had come up, and there had spread over them skin above, but <spirit> was there none within them. Then said he unto me,

Prophesy unto the spirit,—
Prophesy, Son of man, and thou shalt say unto the spirit.

Then saith My Lord, Yahweh—<From the four winds>* come thou, O spirit, and breathe into these slain.
That they may live.

And <when I prophesied, as he commanded me> then came into them the spirit, and they lived, and stood upon their feet, an exceeding great army. Then said he unto me,

Son of man, these bones are all the house of Israel,—Lo! they are saying, Dried are our bones, and lost is our hope. We are quite cut off!

Therefore prophesy and thou shalt say unto them,

Lo! ||ImyselfIIam going to open your graves. And will cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people,—And will bring you upon the soil of Israel. So shall ye know that I am Yahweh,—When I open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people,—And I will put my spirit within you, and ye shall live, And I will settle you upon your own soil,—So shall ye know that I. Yahweh|| have spoken and have performed.

Declareth Yahweh.
25 And they shall dwell upon the land, which I gave to my servant — to Jacob, Wherein your fathers |dwelt|,— Yea they shall dwell thereupon, ||They, and their children, and their children's children|| Unto times age-abiding. And ||David my servant|| shall be prince unto them, Unto times age-abiding. And my habitation shall be over c them, And I will become their |God|, And they shall become my people. e So shall the nations know that ||I, Yahweh|| am hallowing Israel,— When my sanctuary is in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. 26 And I will solemnise to them a covenant of prosperity, b <A covenant age-abiding> shall it be with them,— And I will place them, And multiply them, And set my sanctuary in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. And my habitation shall be over c them, And I will become their |God|, And they shall become my people. e So shall the nations know that ||I, Yahweh|| am hallowing Israel,— When my sanctuary is in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. 27 And my habitation shall be over c them, And I will become their |God|, And they shall become my people. e So shall the nations know that ||I, Yahweh|| am hallowing Israel,— When my sanctuary is in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. 28 And I will solemnise to them a covenant of prosperity, b <A covenant age-abiding> shall it be with them,— And I will place them, And multiply them, And set my sanctuary in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. And my habitation shall be over c them, And I will become their |God|, And they shall become my people. e So shall the nations know that ||I, Yahweh|| am hallowing Israel,— When my sanctuary is in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding. 29. people Israel, like a cloud covering the land,—

<In the afterpart of the days> shall it be,
that I will suffer thee to enter upon my land,
To the end the nations |may know me|, when I hallow myself* in thee before their eyes.
O Gog!

17 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh.

Art thou* he of whom I spake in days aforesight, by the hand of my servants the prophets of Israel, who kept on prophesying in those days, for years.—
That thou shouldst be suffered to come against them?

So then shall it come to pass in that day.

<In the day when Gog entereth upon the soil of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh> That mine indignation shall come up into my nostrils;

18 Yea, in my jealousy, in the fire of mine outburst> have I spoken,—

Surely <in that day> shall there be a great trembling upon the soil of Israel:

Then shall tremble before me
The fishes of the sea, and
The bird of the heavens, and
The wild beast of the field, and Every creeping thing that creepeth on the ground, and
All the men, who are on the face of the ground,— and
The mountains shall be torn asunder, and
The steep places shall sink down, and Every wall shall be thrown.

Then will I call against him, every terror,§

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,

|The sword of every man| <against his brother> shall be;
Then will I contend with him, by pestilence and by blood,—
And <an overflowing downpour and hailstones, fire and brimstone> will I rain Upon him, and
Upon his hordes, and
Upon the many peoples who are with him.

So will I
Magnify myself, and Hallow myself, and
Make myself known.

Before the eyes of many nations,—
And they shall know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Therefore will I turn thee about, and lead thee on, and cause thee to come up out of the remote parts of the North,—
And will bring thee in upon the mountains of Israel;

And I will smite thy bow, out of thy left hand,—
And <thy arrows — out of thy right hand> will I cause to fall.

<Upon the mountains of Israel> shalt thou fall.

|Thou and all thy hordes, and the peoples who are with thee||,—

<To birds of prey and hordes, and the wild beast of the field> will I give thee for food:

<Upon the face of the field> shalt thou fall,—
For ||I|| have spoken,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And I will send a fire into Magog, And among them who are dwelling in the Coastlands, securely,—

So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

And <my holy Name> will I make known, in the midst of my people Israel,
And will not suffer my holy Name to be profaned any more,—

So shall the nations know that ||I|| am Yahweh, Holy in Israel.

Lo! it is coming, and shall be brought to pass,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—

|The same|| is the day whereof I had spoken.

Then shall go forth the dwellers of the cities of Israel, and shall make fires of the weapons and burn them, Both buckler and shield, bow and arrows, and handstaff and spear,—
And shall make fires of them, seven years; And they shall not take wood out of the field, Neither shall they cut down out of the forests,—
For <of the armour> shall they make fires,—
So shall they spoil those who spoiled them And prey on those who preyed on them',

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give to Gog a place of memorial for burial in Israel, even the valley of them that pass through east of the sea, And it shall be enough to keep back them who would pass through,— and they shall bury there, Gog and all his multitude, and shall call it, Ge-hamon-gog. [That is "The valley of the multitude of Gog.""]

So shall the house of Israel bury them (that they may cleanse the land),— seven months;
Yes all the people of the land [shall bury], and it shall become to them a memorial,—the day that I get myself glory,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And <men to keep at it constantly*> shall they tell off. Men to pass throughout the land, who, with the passers-by, [shall continue burying] them who have been left on the face of the land, to cleanse it,— <At the end of seven months> shall they make search.

And <when any of the passers-by in going through the land, shall see a human bone> then shall he set up near it a sign,—until the buryers [have buried it], in Ge-hamon-Gog.

Moreover <the name of a city> shall be Hamonah ["To the multitude"], so shall they cleanse the land.

Thou therefore, son of man, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Say to the bird of every wing. And to every wild beast of the field. Assemble yourselves and come. Gather yourselves from every side, unto my sacrifice which I am sacrificing for you. A great sacrifice, on the mountains of Israel,—

And ye shall eat flesh, and drink blood:
<The flesh of mighty men> shall ye eat, And <the blood of the princes> of the earth> shall ye drink.— Rams, well-fed lambs and he-goats, Fattlings of Bashan, all of them;

And ye shall eat fat till ye are sated, And drink blood till ye are drunken, Of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you;

So shall ye be sated at my table, with horse and chariot team, mighty man, and every man of war,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Thus will I set my glory among the nations,— And all the nations [shall see] My judgment, which I have executed,— and My hand, which I have laid upon them.

So shall the house of Israel know that I, Yahweh am their God, from that day and forward;

And the nations shall know
That <in their iniquity> were the house of Israel exiled because they had committed treachery against me, And so I hid my face from them,— And gave them into the hand of their adversaries, And they fell by the sword, [all of them].

<According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions> dealt I with them,— And so I hid my face from them.

¶40. An Extraordinary Vision (chaps. xl.—xlviii.) of Restored Land, Tribal Portions, Temple, Priests, and Sacrifices, as to which the Conditioning Force of chap. xlii. 7—11 should not be overlooked.

In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth of the month, in the fourteenth year, after the city [was smitten] <on this selfsame day> came upon me the hand of Yahweh, and he brought me thither: <In the visions of God> he brought me into the land of Israel,—and set me down upon an exceeding high mountain, and <thereupon> was, as it were, the structure of a city, on the south. And <when he brought me thither> then lo! a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of bronze, with a flax-cord in his hand, and a measuring reed,—and he was standing in the gate. And the man [spake unto me] [saying], Son of man
See with thine eyes, And <with thine ears> hear thou, And apply thine heart to whatsoever I am about to show thee,
For <to the intent it might be shown thee> hast thou been brought hither,— Declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel. And lo! a wall on the outside of the house, round about on every side,—and <in the hand of thine eyes>, And <with thine ears> hear thou, And apply thine heart to whatsoever I am about to show thee,
For <to the intent it might be shown thee> hast thou been brought hither,— Declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel.
Then he brought me into the outer court, and led me to the gate that looked toward the east, and we went up by the steps thereof, and he measured the threshold of the gate, one reed broad, and the other threshold, one reed broad. Then he brought me into the inner court, and the lodge of the gate that was toward the east, and measured the height thereof, one reed. Then he measured the porch of the gate inward, one reed. Then he measured the porch of the gate, eight cubits, and the projections thereof, two cubits, and the porch of the gate was within. Then the lodge of the gate that was toward the east, were three on this side, and three on that side, one measure had they three,—and one measure had the projections, on this side and on that side. Then he measured he the breadth of the entrance of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the gate was fifteen cubits. Then he measured he the length thereof, according to these measures: thirty cubits, and five cubits was the breadth thereof, round about on every side. Then he brought me into the outer court, and lo! chambers and a tesselated pavement, made to the court round about on every side,—thirty chambers against the pavement. Then he measured he the breadth, from the front of the lower gate, to the front of the inner court on the outside, one hundred cubits,—to the east and the north. And for the gate which looked toward the north, pertaining to the outer court he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof. And the lodge thereof, were three on this side, and three on that side, and the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof were according to the measure of the first gate, fifty cubits the length thereof, and twenty-five, by the cubit. And the windows thereof and the recesses thereof and the palm-trees thereof were according to the measure of the gate that looked toward the east,—and by seven steps they ascend it, and their recesses thereof were within. And the gate to the inner court was over against the gate, to the north and to the east,—so he measured from gate to gate, one hundred cubits. Then he took me toward the south, and lo! [a gate] toward the south,—and he measured the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof, according to these measures. And windows were there to it, and the recesses thereof round about on all sides, like these windows,—fifty cubits in length, and breadth five and twenty cubits. And seven steps the ascents thereof, with its recesses within,—and it had palm-trees on one side on this side, against the projections thereof. And a gate had the inner court, towards the south,—so he measured from gate to gate, toward the south, a hundred cubits. Yea when he brought me to the inner court through the south gate then measured he the south gate, according to these measures; and the lodge thereof, and the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof were according to these measures, and windows were there to it, and to the recesses thereof round about on every side,—fifty cubits in length, and in breadth twenty-five and five cubits; and [there were] recesses round about on every side,—in length five and twenty cubits, and in breadth five cubits; and the recesses thereof, [reached] unto the outer court, with palm-trees against the projections thereof, and eight steps were the ascents thereof. And when he brought me unto the inner court toward the east then measured he the gate, according to these measures; and the lodge thereof, and the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof, according to these measures, and windows were there to it and to the recesses thereof, round about on every side,—in length fifty cubits, and in breadth five and twenty cubits; and the recesses thereof, reached unto the outer court, with palm-trees against the projections thereof, on this side and on that side,—and eight steps were the ascents thereof. And when he brought me to the north gate then measured he according to these measures: the lodges thereof, the projections—cubits; and by ten steps they ascend into it,— and there were pillars against the projections,

[one] on this side, and [one] on that side.

1 Then he took me unto the temple,—and measured the projection, six cubits broad on this side and six cubits broad on that side, the breadth of the tent. 2 And [the breadth of the entrance] was ten cubits, and [the sides of the entrance] were five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side,—and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inwards, and measured the projection of the entrance, two cubits,—and the entrance itself] was six cubits, and [the sides of the entrance] were seven cubits: so he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits, at the front of the temple. 4 Then said he unto me,

This is the holy of holies. Then measured he the wall of the house six cubits,—and the breadth of the side-chamber, four cubits round about on every side of the house, round about. 6 And [the side-chambers, one over another] were three, and that thirty times, and they entered into the wall which pertained to the house for the side-chambers round about on every side, that they might have support,—and yet not have support in the wall of the house itself. 7 And there was a broadening and a winding about higher and higher to the side-chambers, for [the circuit of the house] was higher and higher round about on every side of the house, [for this cause] was there a broadening of the house upwards,—and from the lower] one ascended to the higher, by that which was in the middle. 8 Then saw I that the house had a height round about on every side,—the foundations of the side-chambers, a full reed, six cubits, to the joining.

9 The breadth of the wall which pertained to the side-chamber on the outside] was five cubits,— and that which was left vacant between the side-chambers which pertained to the house.

10 And [between the chambers] was a breadth of twenty cubits round about the house, round about on every side. 11 And the entrance of the side-chamber was at the vacant space, [one entrance] toward the north, and [another entrance] toward the south,—and [the breadth of the place left vacant] was five cubits round about on every side. 12 And [the building which was toward the front of the secluded place on the side toward the west] was [in breadth] seventy cubits, and [the wall of the building] was five cubits in breadth round about on every side,—and [the length thereof] ninety cubits. 13 And he measured [the house], [in length] a hundred cubits,—and [the secluded place and the structure and the walls thereof],

42 Then he took me up to the outer court, the way toward the north, and brought me unto the chamber which was over against the secular place which was over against the inner part thereof and the galleries thereof on this side and on that side, a hundred cubits. And he measured the length of the building against the front of the secular place which was over against the inner part thereof and the galleries thereof on this side and on that side, a hundred cubits. And he measured the length of the building against the front of the secular place, with the inner temple and the porches of the court: the entrance spaces and the latticed windows and the galleries round about their three stories, over against the entrance spaces wainscoted with wood, round about on every side, and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered; unto the space above the entrance even unto the inner house and without and against all the wall round about on every side within and without were the measures.

And it was made with cherubim and palm-trees, with a palm-tree between cherub and cherub, and two faces had each cherub; and the face of a man was toward the cherub and the cherub, and twofacestl had each I

Then he took me unto the gate, even the gate that looked toward the east; 2 when lo! the glory of the God of Israel coming from the way of the east, and the sound of him was as the sound of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory. 3 And it was like the appearance of the vision which I had seen, like the vision which I saw when I came in to destroy the city, also the visions were like the vision which I saw by the river Chebar,—so I fell upon my face. 4 And the glory of Yahweh entered into the house, by way of the gate which looked toward the east. 5 So then the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court, and lo! the glory of Yahweh filled the house. 6 Then heard I one speaking unto me, out of the house, and a man standing beside me. 7 Then said he unto me, Son of man, There is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I would dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel, to times age-abiding,— But the house of Israel must no more defile my holy Name. 8 They, nor their kings, by their unchastity, and by the carcases of their kings, in their high places.* 9 When they placed their threshold by my threshold, and their door-post beside my door-post, with only a wall between me and them, then defiled they my holy Name by their abominations which they committed. Wherefore I devoured them, in mine anger. 10 Now let them remove their unchastity, and the carcases of their kings, far from me,— So will I make my habitation in the midst of them, to times age-abiding. 11 Then said he unto me, Son of man, These shall be the statutes of the house, in the day when it is made, for offering up thereon an ascending-sacrifice, and for dashing thereon blood. 12 Then thou shalt give unto the priests the Levites, those who are of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me, to wait upon me. 13 These shall be the statutes of the altar, in the day when it is made,—for offering up thereon an ascending-sacrifice, and for dashing thereon blood. 14 Then shalt thou take of the blood thereof, and place upon the four horns thereof, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the boundary, round about,— and shalt cleanse it from sin, and put a propitiatory-covering over it. 15 Then shalt thou take the bullock bearing sin,—and shalt burn it in the appointed place of the house, outside the sanctuary. 16 And on the second day shalt thou bring near a kid of the goats without defect, as a sin-bearer. 17 Then shalt thou take of the blood thereof, and place upon the four horns thereof, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the boundary, round about,—and shalt cleanse it from sin, and put a propitiatory-covering over it. 18 Then shalt thou take the bullock bearing sin,—and shalt burn it in the appointed place of the house, outside the sanctuary. 19 And on the second day shalt thou bring near a kid of the goats without defect, as a sin-bearer,—and they shall cleanse the altar from sin, just as they cleansed it from sin with the bullock.
thou shalt bring near a young bullock without defect, and a ram out of the flock, without defect; and shalt bring them near before Yahweh, and the priests shall cast over them salt, so shall they cause them to go up as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh. 24 <Seven days> shalt thou offer a sin-bearing goat, for each day,—and a young bullock and a ram out of the flock, without defect> shall they offer. 27 <Seven days> shall they put a propitiatory-covering over the altar, and shall purify it,—and shall consecrate it.*

And I will accept you.

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

44 1 Then he brought me back, toward the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looked toward the east,—but ||it was shut. 3 Then said Yahweh unto me, ||This gate shall remain. It shall not be opened, And ||no man shall enter thereby, Because ||Yahweh, God of Israel doth enter thereby,— Therefore shall it remain—shut.

The prince ||shall sit therein, To eat food, before Yahweh,—<By way of the porch of the gate> shall he go in, and <By way thereof> shall he* come out.

4 Then he brought me in by way of the north gate, unto the front of the house, and I looked, and lo! |the glory of Yahweh| filled |the house of Yahweh|,— so I fell upon my face. 5 And Yahweh |said unto me|.

Son of man, Apply thy heart, And see with thine eyes, And <with thine ears> hear thou, All that I' am speaking with thee, As to all the statutes of the house of Yahweh, and As to all the laws thereof,— And thou shalt apply thy heart To the entering in of the house, With all the exits of the sanctuary.

So then thou shalt say unto the perverse [house], unto the house of Israel, ||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh: Let it more than suffice you, Out of all your abominations, O house of Israel:

7 That* ye brought in the sons of the foreigner; Uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh,* To be in my sanctuary. So that he profaned my house,— That ye brought near as my food, the fat and the blood, And so they* brake my covenant—Among* all your abominations;

Neither kept ye the charge of my holy things,— But ye did set [men] to be keepers of my charge in my sanctuary, for your own pleasure.*

9 ||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh, No son of a foreigner, Uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh,* shall enter into my sanctuary,—of any son of a foreigner, who is in the midst of the sons of Israel.

10 But <as for the Levites>, Who went far from me, when Israel went astray, Who went astray from me, after their manufactured gods:> Therefore shall they bear their iniquity.† Yet shall they remain in my sanctuary As attendants in charge at the gates of the house,— And attending upon the house,— ||They|| shall slay the ascending-offering, and the sacrifice of the people, And ||they|| shall stand before them, to wait upon them. 12 <Because they used to wait upon them, before their manufactured gods, and became to the house of Israel a stumbling-block of iniquity> ||For this cause|| have I lifted up my hand concerning them,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, and they shall bear their iniquity;

13 So then they shall not come near unto me, To minister as priests unto me, Nor come near unto any of my holy things, As regardeth things most holy,— But they shall bear their rebuke, and their abominationsb which they have committed;

14 Yet will I make them keepers of the charge of the house,— As to all the labour thereof, and As to all which shall be done therein.

15 But <the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, Who kept the charge of my sanctuary—when the sons of Israel went astray from me>

[They] shall draw near unto me, to wait upon me,—

And shall stand before me, to bring near unto me the fat and the blood.

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:

[They] shall enter into my sanctuary, and [They] shall draw near unto my table, to wait upon me,—

So shall they keep my charge.

And it shall be when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court:

[Garments of linen] shall they put on,—

Yea there shall come upon them no wool, when they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within :

[Chaplets of linen] shall be upon their head, and [Breeches of linen] shall be upon their loins,—

They* shall not gird themselves, so as to perspire.

And when they go forth into the outer court, into the outer court unto the people:

They shall put off their garments, wherein they'do minister, and lay them in the chambers of the holy place,—

And shall* put on other garments. That they may not hallow the people by their garments.

And their heads shall they not shave, Nor let [the hair] grow long,— They shall [only] poll their heads.

And <wine> shall no priest drink,— when they enter into the inner court.

Neither widow nor divorced woman shall they take,—

But <virgins of the seed of the house of Israel>, Or a widow who shall be the widow of a priest> shall they take.

And <my people> shall they instruct, between the holy and the common,—

And <between the unclean and the clean> shall they cause them to distinguish.

And <in a controversy> they shall stand up for justice,*

<With my judgments> shall they judge it,—

And <my laws and my statutes in all mine appointed assemblies> shall they observe,

And <my sabbaths> shall they hallow.

And <unto no dead person> shall they go in, to defile themselves,—

Save that <for father or for mother or for son or for daughter, or for brother, or for sister who hath belonged to no husband> they may defile themselves.

Yet <after he is cleansed> seven days shall they count to him.

And <in the day when he entereth into the sanctuary, into the inner court to minister in the sanctuary> He shall bring near his sin-bearer,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

So shall it become to them an inheritance, | I am their inheritance,—

And <possession> shall ye not give them in Israel, | I am their possession.

<As for the meal-offering and the sin-bearer and the guilt-bearer> they shall eat them,—

And <everything devoted in Israel> shall belong.

And <the first of all the firstfruits of everything, and every heave-offering of everything, from among all your heave-offerings> shall it belong,—

<The first of your meal> shall ye give to the priest, To cause a blessing to rest upon thy house.

<Nobody that died of itself or was torn in pieces, of bird or of beast> shall be eaten' by the priests.

1 And <when ye shall by lot divide the land as an inheritance> ye shall offer up as a heave-offering to Yahweh a holy portion out of the land, <in length> five and twenty thousand long, and <in breadth> twenty thousand, — [holy] shall it be throughout all the territory thereof, round about.

2 There shall be, <out of this, for the holy place> five hundred by five hundred, four-square round about,— and fifty cubits, as an open space to it, round about.

3 And <out of this measure> shall thou measure, a length of five and twenty thousand, and a breadth of ten thousand,— and <therein> shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies:  it is, <for the priests who wait in the sanctuary> shall it be, who draw near to wait upon Yahweh,— so shall it be theirs, as a place for houses, and a sanctuary, for the sanctuary.

4 And <five and twenty thousand> in length, and <ten thousand> in breadth,—and it shall be for the Levites who wait upon the house, theirs as a possession of cities to dwell in.'

5 And <the possession of the city> shall ye give, <five thousand> in breadth, and <in length> five and twenty thousand, answering to the heave-offering... of the holy portion,—<for all the house of Israel> shall it be. 7 And <to the prince>—on this side and on that> shall belong [a portion] of the heave-offering of the holy portion and of the possession of the city, facing the heave-offering of the holy portion and facing the possession of the city, on the west side westward, and on the east side eastward,— and <in length> answering to one of the portions, from the west boundary to the east boundary. 8 <Of the land> it shall be his for a possession, in Israel,— and so my princes shall no more oppress my people, but <the land itself> shall they give to the house of Israel, by their tribes.

11 |lAll the people of the landll shall give

12 <Balances of righteousness, and

15 <And one lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the watered pastures of Israel, for a gift, and for an ascending-sacrifice, and for peace-offerings,— To put a propitiatory-covering over them, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

16 |lAll the people of the landll shall give to this beave-offering,—for the prince in Israel.

17 But <on the prince himself>—shall rest the ascending-sacrifices, and the meal-offering, and the drink-offering, on the festivals, and on the new moons, and on the sabbaths, in all the appointed meetings of the house of Israel,—<he> shall offer the sin-bearer, and the meal-offering, and the ascending-sacrifice, and the peace-offerings, To put a propitiatory-covering about the house of Israel.

18 |lThusll saith My Lord, Yahweh,

19 <In the first month, on the first day of the month> shall thou take a young bullock without defect,— and shalt cleanse the sanctuary from sin ; 20 then shall the priest take' of the blood of the sin-bearer, and put upon the door-posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and upon the door-posts of the gate of the inner court. 20 And <so> shalt thou do in the seventh of the month, for any man that wavereth or is of feeble mind,—so shall ye cleanse the house by propitiatiion.

21 <In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month> shall ye have the passover,—a festival of seven days,* with unleavened cakes shall be eaten; 22 therefore shall the prince offer, on that day, for himself, and for all the people of the land,—a bullock as a sin-bearer; 22 and <the seven days of the festival> shall he offer as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh, seven bullocks and seven rams without defect daily, for the seven days,—<and a sin-bearer> a young goat daily; 24 and  and an ephah to each ram> shall be offer, and <of oil> a hin to an ephah. 28 In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, throughout the festival> he shall offer like these, seven days,—like the sin-bearer, like the ascending-sacrifice, and like the meal-offering, and like the oil.

1 |lThusll saith My Lord, Yahweh,

2 |lThe gate of the inner court which looketh toward the eastll shall be shut, the six days of work,—but <on the sabbath-day> shall it be opened, and <on the day of the new moon> shall it be opened. 2 The prince therefore shall enter by way of the porch of the gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priests shall offer his ascending-sacrifice, and his peace-offerings, and he shall bow down upon the threshold of the gate, and then go forth,—but the gate shall not be shut until the evening ; 3 and the people of the land <shall bow down> at the entrance of that gate on the sabbaths, and at the new moons,—before Yahweh.

4 And <the ascending-sacrifice which the prince

I shall bring near unto Yahweh six he-lambs without defect, and a ram without defect; and the meal-offering shall be an ephah to a ram, and the meal-offering shall be as one is able to give, and of oil a hin to an ephah.

5 But on the day of the new moon a young bullock without defect, and six he-lambs and a ram, shall they be; and an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram shall he offer as a meal-offering, and for the he-lambs just as his hand shall attain unto, and of oil a hin to an ephah.

6 And when the prince shall enter by way of the porch of the gate shall he go in, and by way thereof shall he go out. But when the people of the land shall enter before Yahweh on the appointed feasts, he that entereth by way of the north' gate to bow down shall go forth by way of the south' gate, and he shall not return by way of the gate by which he entered, but straight-forward shall he go forth.

7 And in the festivals and in the appointed feasts shall he offer as a meal-offering, and for the he-lambs just as his hand shall attain unto, and of oil a hin to an ephah.

8 And when the prince would offer, as a free-will offering, an ascending-sacrifice or peace-offerings, as a free-will offering to Yahweh, then shall be opened to him, the gate that looketh to the east, and he shall offer his ascending-sacrifice and his peace-offerings, just as he would offer on the sabbath' day, and when he shall go forth then shall one shut the gate, after he hath gone forth.

9 Then he brought me in through the entrance which was by the side of the gate, into the chambers of the holy place for the priests, those facing the north, and lo! there' a place, in the hinder parts westwards.

10 So he caused me to go out into the outer court, and then made me pass through into the four corners of the court, and lo! there' were courts covered over, forty long and thirty broad: of one measure were those four. And there was an enclosure round about in them, round about to those four, and boiling places had been made under the enclosures, round about.

11 And he said unto me— These are the places of them who boil, where they who wait upon the house, shall boil the sacrifice of the people.

Then he brought me back unto the entrance of the house, and lo! waters coming forth from under the threshold of the house, eastward, because the front of the house was to the east, and the waters were coming down from beneath, from the right side of the house, on the south of the altar.

12 Then he brought me out by way of the north gate, and took me round by an outer way unto an outer gate, that which looketh eastward,—and lo! waters trickling forth out of the right side.
measuring line in his hand> then measured he a thousand by the cubit, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the ankles. 4 Then measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the knees, and again measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through—waters reaching to the loins. 5 Then measured he a thousand—\| a river \| which I could not pass through—for the waters had risen—waters to swim in, \| a river \| that could not be forded. 6 Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen, son of man? Then he took me along and caused me to return, to the bank of the river. 7 <When I returned> then lo! <by the bank of the river> trees very many,—on this side, and on that side. 8 And he said unto me, These waters\| are going forth unto the region toward the east, and shall go down unto the waste plain, and shall enter the sea, \| unto the sea\| being led forth> then shall the waters \| be healed; 9 And it shall come to pass, that every living soul that swarmeth, whithersoever the rivers shall come\| shall live, and the fish shall become\| a very great multitude; for these waters \| have come thither, that they may be healed, so shall everything live\| whithersoever the river cometh. 10 And it shall come to pass that there shall stand by it fishers, from En-gedi even unto En-eglaim, \| places for spreading out nets\| shall they be,—after their kind\| shall be their fish, like the fish of the great sea, exceeding many. 11 |The swamps thereof and the pools thereof\| shall not be healed, \| to salt\| have they not been given up. 12 And \| by the river\| shall grow up on the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, every tree for food, the leaf whereof \| shall not fade\|—neither shall fail\| the fruit thereof. \| by its months\| shall it break forth, for \| as for the waters thereof\| \| out of the sanctuary\| are they\| coming forth, and \| the fruit thereof\| shall be \| for food\|, and \| the leaf thereof\| \| for healing.

13 |Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh, \| This shall be the boundary whereby ye shall take your inheritances in the land, according to the twelve tribes of Israel,—|Joseph| shall have portions. 14 So shall ye inherit it, each man like his brother, as to which I lifted my hand to give it to your fathers,—so shall this land fall\| to you, as an inheritance.

15 |This| then shall be the boundary of the land,—\| on the north side\| from the great sea by the way of Hethlon, to the entering in of Zedad; |Hamath, Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the boundary of Damascus, and the boundary of Hamath,—Hazer-hatticon, which is by the boundary of Hauran. 17 Thus shall there be a boundary, from the sea, Hazer-enan the boundary of Damascus, even the north northward, and the boundary of Hamath,—even the north side. 18 And \| for the east side\| from between Hauran and Damascus and from between Gilead and the land of Israel, the Jordan, \| from the boundary by the sea eastward\| shall ye measure—even the east side. 19 And \| for the south side southward\| from Tamar as far as the waters of Meriboth-kadesh, towards the torrent-bed, unto the great sea, even\| the south side southward. 20 And \| for the west side\| the great sea, from the boundary as far as over against the entering in of Hamath—\| this\| is the west side.

21 So then ye shall apportion this land to you by the tribes of Israel. 22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot as an inheritance, to yourselves and to the sojourners who are sojourning in your midst, who have begotten children in your midst,—so shall they be to you as a native among the sons of Israel, \| with you\| shall they cast lots for an inheritance, in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 23 And it shall be, that \| with whatsoever tribe the sojourner hath become a sojourner\| \| there\| shall ye give his inheritance, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

1 Now \| these\| are the names of the tribes,— 48 \| At the northern\| extremity, beside the Hethlon road—\| as one entereth Hamath\| Hazer-enan the boundary of Damascus northwards by the side of Hamath, and so they shall be his \| east side and west—\| Dan, one. 3 And \| on the boundary of Dan, from the east side unto the west side\| —\| Asher, one\|. 4 And \| on the boundary of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side\| —\| Naphtali, one\|. 5 And \| on the boundary of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side\| —\| Manasseh, one\|. 6 And \| on the boundary of Manasseh, from the east side unto the west side\| —\| Ephraim, one\|. 7 And \| on the boundary of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side\| —\| Reuben, one\|. 7 And \| on the boundary of Reuben, from the east side unto the west side\| —\| Judah, one.\n

And <on the boundary of Judah, from the east side unto the west side> shall be the heave-offering which ye shall offer up, five and twenty thousand in breadth, and <in length> like one of the portions, from the east side unto the west side, so shall the sanctuary be in the midst thereof. 8 The heave-offering which ye shall offer up to Yahweh shall be <in length> five and twenty thousand, and <in breadth> twenty thousand. 9 And <pertaining to these> shall be the holy offering, even for the priests, <northwards> five and twenty thousand, and <westward> a breadth of ten thousand, and <eastward> a breadth of ten thousand, and <southward> a length of five and twenty thousand, — so shall the sanctuary of Yahweh be in the midst thereof: — for the priests that are hallowed—the sons of Zadok, who kept my charge,—who went not astray when the sons of Israel went astray, as <the Levites> went astray. 10 So then they shall have an offering out of the offering of the land, a holy of holies,—toward the boundary of the Levites; 11 <the Levites’> boundary answering to the boundary of the priests, five and twenty thousand in length, and <in breadth> ten thousand, — all the length five and twenty thousand, and <the breadth> twenty thousand. 12 And they shall not sell thereof, nor shall one exchange or alienate the first-fruits of the land,—for it is holy unto Yahweh. 13 And <the five thousand that are left in the breadth, facing the five and twenty thousand> shall it be to the city, for dwelling and for open space,—and the city shall be in the midst thereof. 14 These moreover, shall be the measures thereof—<the north side> four thousand and five hundred, and <the south side> four thousand and five hundred,—and <the east side> four thousand and five hundred, and <the west side> four thousand and five hundred.

And the open space of the city shall be, <northward> two hundred and fifty, and <southward> two hundred and fifty,—and <eastward> two hundred and fifty, and <westward> two hundred and fifty. 15 And <the residue> <in length answering to the offering of the holy portion> shall be ten thousand on the east, and ten thousand on the west, so shall it answer to the offering of the holy portion,—and the increase thereof shall be for food, for them who serve the city. 16 And <the gates of the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel>. 17 All the offering shall be five and twenty thousand, by five and twenty thousand,—<foursquare> shall ye offer up the offering of the holy portion, towards the possession of the city.

And <the residue> shall be for the prince, on this side and on that side of the holy offering and of the possession of the city, facing the five and twenty thousand of the offering, as far as the east boundary, and <westward> facing the five and twenty thousand by the west boundary, answering to the portions, for the prince,—thus shall it be the holy offering, with <the sanctuary of the house> in the midst thereof. 22 And <out of the possession of the Levites, and out of the possession of the city>, in the midst of that which is for the prince shall it be: <between the boundary of Judah, and the boundary of Benjamin> for the prince shall it be.

And <the residue of the tribes>—<from the east side unto the west side> shall be Benjaminit. 23 And <on the boundary of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side> shall be Simeon. 24 And <on the boundary of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side> shall be Issachar. 25 And <on the boundary of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side> shall be Zebulun. 26 And <on the boundary of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side> shall be Gad. 27 And <on the boundary of Gad, by the south side southward>, — so shall there be a boundary from Tamar, [unto] the waters of Meribath-kadesh, towards the torrent-bed, as far as the great sea.

This is the land which ye shall divide by lot for inheritance to the tribes of Israel,—and <these> shall be their portions,

Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

And <these> are the exits of the city,—<on the north side> four thousand five hundred measures. 33 And <the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel>, three gates northward,—the gate of Reuben one, the gate of Judah one, the gate of Levi one; 34 and <on the east side> four thousand and five hundred, with three gates,—even the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one; 35 and <on the south side> four thousand and five hundred in measure, with three gates,—the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zebulun one; <on the west side> four thousand and

And the name of the city, from the day of Yahweh shall continue to be the name thereof.

§ 1. Daniel, in his Youth, carried Captive to Babylon, and there Trained for the Service of the King.

1 In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Jerusalem, and laid siege against it; and the Lord gave into his hand Jehoiakim king of Judea, and a part of the vessels of the house of God, and he brought them into the land of Shinar, into the house of his gods, and the vessels brought he into the treasure-house of his gods.

3 Then did the king give word to Ashpenaz, the chief of his eunuchs, that he should bring in of the sons of Israel, even of the seed royal, and of the nobles, youths in whom was no blemish, but comely of countenance, and skilful in all wisdom, and possessed of knowledge, and able to impart instruction, and who had vigour in them, to stand in the palace of the king, and that they should be taught the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans.

5 And the king appointed them the provision of each day upon its day, out of the delicacies of the king, and out of the wine which he drank, and so to let them grow three years, and at the end thereof that they should stand before the king.

6 Now there were, among them, out of the sons of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; and the ruler of the eunuchs gave them names, yea he gave to Daniel the name of Belteshazzar, and to Hananiah of Shadrach, and to Mishael of Meshach, and to Azariah of Abed-nego.

8 But Daniel laid it upon his heart, that he would not defile himself with the delicacies of the king, nor with the wine which he drank; therefore sought he of the ruler of the eunuchs, that he might not defile himself. But although God had brought Daniel into lovingkindness and tender compassion, before the ruler of the eunuchs yet said the ruler of the eunuchs unto Daniel, I do fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your food and your drink,—for why should he see your faces more comely than those of the youths of your own age? so should ye bring me under the penalty of mine own head unto the king.

10 Then said Daniel unto the overseer whom the ruler of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:

12 I pray thee—prove thy servants, ten days,—and let them give us vegetable food, that we may eat, and water that we may drink, then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenances of the youths who have been eating the delicacies of the king, and as thou shalt see deal thou with thy servants.

14 So then he hearkened unto them, according to this word, and proved them ten days; and at the end of ten days their countenances appeared more comely, and fatter in flesh, than any of the youths who had been eating the delicacies of the king. Thus it came about that the overseer continued taking away their delicacies, and the wine appointed them to drink, and kept on giving them vegetable food.

17 And as for these four youths God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom, and Daniel had discernment, in all visions and dreams.

18 Now at the end of the days after which the king had given word to bring them in, then did the ruler of the eunuchs bring them in, before Nebuchadnezzar. So then the king [spake with them], and there was not found, from among them all, one like unto Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,—therefore stood they before the king; and in any matter of wisdom and a discernment as to which the king [enquired of them] he found them ten times better than all the sacred scribes—the b magicians, who were in all his realm.

Now Daniel continued, until the first year of Cyrus the king.

1 And in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams,—and his spirit [was troubled], and [his sleep] had gone from him. 2 So the king gave word to call for the sacred scribes and for the magicians, and for the users of incantations, and for the Chaldeans, that they might tell the king his dreams—they came in therefore, and stood before the king. 2 And the king [said to them]:

A dream have I dreamed,—and my spirit is troubled to know the dream.

Then spake the Chaldeans to the king, in Aramaic,—
O king <to the ages> live!
Tell the dream to thy servants, and <the interpretation> we will declare.

The king answered and said to the Chaldeans,

The word from me is unalterable: <If ye shall not make known to me the dream and the interpretation thereof> ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses <into a dung-hill> shall be turned; *but if <the dream and the interpretation thereof> ye will declare <gifts and a present and great dignity> shall ye receive from before me,—[therefore] <the dream and the interpretation thereof> declare ye unto me.

They answered again and said,—Let <the king> tell <the dream> to his servants, and <the interpretation thereof> we will declare.

The king answered and said,

[Of a certainty] I know, that <time> ye would gain,—merely because ye see that <unalterable, from me> is the word:
That if <the dream> ye shall not make known to me] [one and the same] is the decree, and  have ye agreed to speak before me, that meanwhile the time may be changed,—[therefore] <the dream> tell ye me, so shall I know that <the interpretation thereof> ye can declare for me.

The Chaldeans answered before the king and said,

There is not a man upon the earth, who can declare <the matter of the king>.—although indeed there is no king, chief or ruler who  hath asked of any sacred scribe or magician or Chaldean; and <the thing which the king hath asked> is difficult, and <none other> is there, who can declare it before the king,—saving the gods whose dwelling is <not with flesh>.

<For this cause> <the king> was provoked and exceedingly indignant,—and gave word to destroy all the wise men of Babylon; and <the decree> went forth, that <the wise men> should be slain,—and they sought Daniel and his companions that they might be slain.

Immediately [Daniel] made answer with prudence and discretion, to Arioch, chief of the executioners of the king,—who had come forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

he began to speak and said to Arioch, the king's captain,—

<For what cause> is the decree raging forth from before the king?

Then did Arioch make the matter known unto Daniel. So Daniel entered in, and desired of the king,—that <an appointed time> he would give him, and then <the interpretation> he would declare unto the king.

Then Daniel <to his own house> departed,—and <to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions> made the matter known; that <tender compassion> they might seek from before the God of the heavens, concerning this secret,—that Daniel and his companions [might not be destroyed], with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

Then <unto Daniel—in a vision of the night> the secret was revealed,—whereupon [Daniel] blessed the God of the heavens:

Daniel responded, and said,

Let the name of God be blessed from age to age,—
In that <wisdom and might> to him belong;
And <the he> changeth times and seasons,
Removeth kings, and setteth up kings,—
Giving wisdom to the wise,
And knowledge to them who are skilled in understanding:

He will reveal the deep things, and the hidden,
Knoweth what is in the darkness,
And light [with him], doth dwell.

Unto thee, O God of my fathers do I render thanks and praise,
In that <wisdom and might> thou hast given unto me,—
Yea already hast thou made known to me, that which we desired of thee,
For <the matter of the king> hast thou made known unto us.

* Or: "began to speak."
24 Therefore Daniel entered in unto Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon,—he went in, and <thus> he said unto him.

25 Thereupon Arioch—with haste—brought in Daniel before the king,—and <thus> he said to him—

26 The king answered and said unto Daniel, I have found a man of the sons of the exile, of the sons of Judah, who <the interpretation—unto the king> will make known.

27 Daniel answered before the king, and said,—<The secret which the king hath asked> is not for any wisdom that is in me, more than any of the living; <the wise men, the magicians, the sacred scribes, the astrologers> are not able to declare unto the king; but there is a God in the heavens, who revealeth secrets, and hath made known to King Nebuchadnezzar, what shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the days:

28 <As for thee, O king> thy dream and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are <these>:—

29 <As for thee, O king> thy thoughts upon thy bed arose regarding what should come to pass hereafter; and <the thoughts of thy heart> thou shouldst get to know.

30 But <as for me—>it is in order that <the interpretation—unto the king> they should make known, and that <the interpretation of computation and di-

31 <As for thee, O king> thou wast looking, when lo! a great image, ||this image, being mighty, and the brightness thereof surpassing| was standing before thee,—and <the appearance thereof> was terrible.

32 <As for this image> ||its head| was of fine gold, ||its breast and its arms| were of silver,—||its belly and its thighs| of bronze; ||its legs| of iron,—and ||its feet| part of them| of iron, and ||part of them| of clay.

33 Thou didst look, until that a stone tare itself away, ||not by the aid of hands||, and smote the image upon its feet, which were of iron and clay,—and they were broken in pieces.

34 Then| were broken in pieces at once, the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, and became like chaff out of the summer threshing-

35 But <as for me—not for any wisdom that is in me, more than any of the living> is ||this secret| revealed to me,—||therefore| it is in order that <the interpretation—unto the king> they should make known, and that <the thoughts of thy heart> thou shouldst get to know.

36 <As for thee, O king> thy dream and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are <these>:—

37 Thou, O king! art the king of kings,—for ||the God of the heavens| hath given unto thee ||the kingship, the might, the power and the dignity; ||and wherever the sons of men do dwell| <the wild beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens> hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. ||Thou art the head of gold.

38 And <after thee> shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee,— and another a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall bear rule throughout all the earth.

39 And ||the fourth kingdom| shall be hard as iron,— ||in like manner as iron breaketh in pieces and crusheth all things,— even as iron which bringeth to ruins all these shall it break in pieces and bring to ruins. ||And <whereas thou sawest the feet, and the toes, part of them of potter's clay, and part of them of iron> ||the kingdom| shall be divided, and <of the hardness of the iron> shall there be is— thoroughly. ||Thou sawest <the iron, combined with the miry clay> the kingdom divided, and <of the hardness of the iron> shall there be is— thoroughly. ||Thou sawest <the iron, combined with the miry clay> they shall be combined with the weed of men, but shall not cleave firmly one to another,—lo! as iron is not to be combined with clay.

40 And <in the days of those kings> shall the God of the heavens [set up] a kingdom, which <to the ages> shall not be destroyed, and ||the kingdom| <to another people> shall not be left,—it shall break in pieces and make an end of all these kingdoms, but ||itself| shall stand to the ages. ||Forasmuch as thou sawest that <out of the rock| a stone tare itself away, but not with hands, and brake in pieces the clay, the iron, the bronze, the silver and the gold> ||the mighty God|| hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter.

Exact' then is the dream, And trusty' its interpretation.

41 Then King Nebuchadnezzar, fell upon his face, and <unto Daniel> paid adoration; and  gave he word to Nebuchadnezzar, making an Image of Gold to be Worshipped on Pain of Death, casts Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, for refusing to worship, into a Furnace of Fire; from which, however, they are Miraculously Delivered.

§ 3. Nebuchadnezzar, the king, made an image of gold, the height thereof sixty cubits, the breadth thereof six cubits; he set it up in the valley of Dura, in the province of Babylon. And Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather the wise men of Babylon—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—but Daniel himself was in the gate of the king.

Then the king exalted Daniel, and set him to be ruler over all the province of Babylon,—and chief of the nobles, over all the wise men of Babylon.

And Daniel desired of the king, and he gave he unto him, and Daniel himself was in the gate of the king.

Then Nebuchadnezzar— with anger and wrath— gave word to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, then these men brought they before the king. Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them,

If it with design O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—that ye are not serving, and the image which I have set up are not adoring? Now if ye be ready, at what time ye shall hear the sound of the cornet, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, and all kinds of instruments of music ye shall fall down and adore the image which I have made, but if ye shall not adore instantly shall ye be cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire,—and who is the god that shall deliver you out of my hands?

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego answered, and said to the king:

O Nebuchadnezzar! we are not accounting it needful, concerning this, to answer thee.

If it is your God, whom we serve is able to deliver us,—out of the burning furnace of fire, and out of thy hand O king, he will deliver. But if not be it known to thee, O king,—that thy god will we not serve, and the image of gold which thou hast set up will we not adore.

Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with wrath, and the likeness of his countenance was changed, against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—he spake and gave word to heat the furnace seven times hotter than it was ever seen heated; and to men, who were the mightiest men in his army gave he word to bind fast Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—to cast them into the burning furnace of fire.

Therefore, because the word of the king had raged forth, and the furnace was exceeding hot

O king! for ages live!

Thou thyself, O king, hast made a decree, that any man who shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, and all kinds of instruments of music shall fall down and adore the image of gold; and whosoever shall not fall down and adore shall be cast into the burning furnace of fire.

There are' certain Jews whom thou hast set over the business of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—these men, have made thee, O king, of no account, thy god they serve not, and the image of gold which thou hast set up do they not adore.
those very men who took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, were slain by the flame of the fire; 22 and these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down into the midst of the burning furnace of fire, fast bound.

Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was amazed, and rose up in haste: he spake and said to his nearest friends—

Where are those three men, we cast into the midst of the fire, fast bound?

They answered and said to the king,

Surely, O king!

He answered and said,

Lo! I see four men, unbound, walking in the midst of the fire, and there is not in them, and the appearance of the fourth is like to a son of the gods!

Then did Nebuchadnezzar draw near to the door of the burning furnace of fire, he spake and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, step forth and come hither.

Then stepped forth Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, out of the midst of the fire.

And—being gathered together—the satraps, the nobles, and the pashas and near friends of the king, saw these men, over whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was a hair of their head singed, neither were their trousers disfigured, nor had the smell of fire come upon them.

Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his messenger, and delivered his servants, who trusted in him, when the word of the king they transgressed, and delivered up their bodies, that they might not serve nor adore any god, saving their own God.

Therefore do I make a decree, that whosoever of any people, race, or tongue it be that shall charge any error upon the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego shall be cut in pieces, and his house shall be changed; because there is no other God, who is able to deliver, like this!

Then the king advanced Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

1 ||Nebuchadnezzar the king|| unto all the peoples, the races and the tongues who are dwelling in all the earth,> Let ||your prosperity|| abound!

2 ||The signs, and the wonders,|| which the king himself most high God (hath wrought with me> it is pleasing before me to declare.

||His signs|| how great!

And ||his wonders|| how mighty!

||His kingdom|| is an age-abiding kingdom,

And ||his dominion|| lasteth from generation to generation.

||I, Nebuchadnezzar|| was at peace in mine own house, and was prosperous in my palace.

< ||A dream|| I saw, and it made me afraid,—and ||fancies upon my bed, and visions of my head|| terrified me.

Therefore made I a decree, to bring in before me, all the wise men of Babylon,—who <the interpretation of the dream> should make known to me. 7 Then came in the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers,—and <the dream> told I before them, but <the interpretation> could they not make known to me. 8 Howbeit <at last> came before me—Daniel, whose ||name|| was Belteshazzar, after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and <the dream—before him> I told [saying]:

O Belteshazzar, chief of the sacred scribes, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee,—and no secret giveth thee trouble> [therefore] <the visions of my dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof> do thou tell.

The visions then of my head upon my bed [were these],—

I was looking, when lo! a tree in the midst of the land,

And ||the height thereof|| was great.

The tree ||grew,|| and became strong,—and ||the view thereof|| unto the end of all the land:

13 ||The foliage thereof|| was beautiful.

And ||the fruit thereof|| abundant, and there was food for all therein,—<Under it> the wild beasts of the field found shade.

And <among its branches> dwelt the birds of the heavens.

13 I was looking, in the visions of my head, upon my bed, when lo! a watcher and holy one <out of the heavens> coming down. 14 He cried aloud, and <thus> he said—

Hew ye down the tree.

And lop off its branches, Strip off its leaves.

And scatter its fruit,—

Let the wild beasts flee from under it,
And the birds, out of its branches;
Nevertheless, the stock of its roots* in the earth> leave ye, yea in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,
And let it be drenched,*
And <with the wild beasts> be its portion, amongst the herbage of the earth;

And the heart of a wild beast be given to it,—
And let seven seasons pass over it.

By the decree of the watchers is the thing,
And by the mandate of the holy ones the matter:
To the intent that the living may get to know that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men,
And to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it.

Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar| was astonished for about one moment, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake and said,
O Belteshazzar, let neither the dream nor the interpretation trouble thee.
Belteshazzar answered and said,
My Lord, the dream be for them who hate thee, and the interpretation for them who are thy foes.

The tree which thou sawest, which grew and became strong,
Whose height reached unto the heavens,
And the view thereof to all the earth:
Whose foliage was beautiful,
And whose fruit abundant,
And whose food for all was in it,—
Under it dwelt the wild beasts of the field,
And in the branches thereof nestled the birds of the heavens:
Thyself it is, O king, in that thou art grown, and become strong,—and thy greatness hath grown, and reached to the heavens, and thy dominion to the end of the earth.

And whereas the king saw a watcher and holy one coming down out of the heavens, who said,
How ye down the tree and despoil it.
Nevertheless the stock of its roots—in the earth> leave ye, even in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,—
And let it be drenched, and <along with the wild beasts of the field> be its portion,
Until that seven seasons shall pass over it>
This is the interpretation, O king,—and the decrees of the Most High it is, which hath come upon my lord the king:
That <thee> are they going to drive forth from among men,
And <along with the wild beasts of the field> shall be thy dwelling,
And <grass—like oxen> will they suffer thee to eat.
And <with the wild beasts of the field> shall be thy dwelling,
And <with the dew of the heavens> will they buffet thee to lie drenched,
And <seven seasons> shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know, that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men,
And <to whomsoever he pleaseth> he giveth it.

Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be pleasing unto thee,
<Thy sin, then,—by righteousness> break thou off,
And <thine iniquities> by shewing favour to the oppressed,—
If so be it may become the lengthening out of thy security.

All this came upon Nebuchadnezzar the king. At the end of twelve months over the palace of the kingdom of Babylon was he walking: the king spake and said, Is not this Babylon the great,—which I myself have built as the home of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the dignity of my majesty?
While yet the word was in the mouth of the king> a voice fell,—Unto thee is it said, O Nebuchadnezzar the king, The kingdom hath departed from thee; And <from among men> are they going to drive thee forth,
And <with the wild beast of the field> shall be thy dwelling,
Grass—like oxen will they suffer thee to eat,
And <seven seasons> shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men, and to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it.

Immediately the word was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and from among men was he driven forth, and as an ox did he eat, and with the dew of the heavens his body was drenched, until that his hair like to eagles' feathers was grown, and his nails like birds' claws.

And at the end of the days I, Nebuchadnezzar, mine eyes unto the heavens did uplift, and mine understanding returned, and the Most High blessed, and to him that liveth age-abidingly I rendered praise and honour, whose dominion is an age-abiding dominion, and his kingdom lasteth from generation to generation.

And all the inhabitants of the earth are nothing, and according to his own pleasure he dealeth with the army of the heavens, and the inhabitants of the earth, and none there is who can smite upon his hand, or say to him, What hast thou done?

At the same time mine understanding returned unto me, and for the dignity of my kingdom my majesty and my brightness returned unto me, and my nearest friends and my nobles did seek, and over my kingdom was I restored, and surpassing greatness was added unto me.

Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, am praising and extolling and honouring the King of the Heavens, all whose works are truth, and his ways right, and them who walk in pride he is able to abase.

§ 5. To King Belshazzar, while dishonouring the Sacred Vessels, is Handwriting put forth, which Daniel interprets, and which is swiftly fulfilled.

Belshazzar the king made a great feast, to a thousand of his nobles, and before the thousand was drinking wine. Belshazzar gave word, at the flavour of the wine to bring the vessels of gold and silver, which Nebuchadnezzar his father had brought forth out of the temple which was in Jerusalem, that the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines might drink therein.

Then brought they the vessels of gold which had been taken out of the temple of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem, and the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines drank therein; they drank wine, and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood and stone.

Immediately came forth the fingers of the hand of a man, and wrote, over against the chandelier, upon the plaster of the palace of the king, and the king saw the part of the hand which was writing. Then as for the king his bright looks changed in him, and his thoughts terrified him, and the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another. The king began crying out again, to bring in the magicians, the Chaldeans and the astrologers, the king spake and said to the wise men of Babylon.

Whosoever it is that shall read this writing, and the interpretation thereof shall declare unto me, with purple shall he be clothed, and have a chain of gold upon his neck, and as the third in the kingdom shall he have dominion.

Then were coming in all the wise men of the king, but the writing could they not read, nor the interpretation make known to the king. Then King Belshazzar was greatly terrified, and his bright looks were changed upon him, and his nobles were perplexed.

The queen, by reason of the words of the king and his nobles entered, the queen spake and said, O king! for ages live! Let not thy thoughts terrify thee, and as for thy bright looks let them not be changed.

There is a man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods, and in the days of thy father light, and intelligence, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods were found in him, and King Nebuchadnezzar thy father appointed him chief of the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers — thy father, O king! 12 Forasmuch as a distinguished spirit, and knowledge and intelligence, ability to interpret dreams and solve riddles and unravel knotty points were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belshazzar now let Daniel be called, and the interpretation will be declare.

Then Daniel was brought in before the king, and the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, that is of the sons of... the exile of Judah, whom the king my father brought out of Judah?

14 Then, I have heard concerning thee, that the spirit of the gods is in thee, and light and intelligence and distinguished wisdom are found in thee.

15 Therefore have been brought in before me, the wise men, the magicians, that this writing they might read, and the interpretation thereof might make known unto me, but they were not able the interpretation of the thing to declare.

16 I, however, have heard concerning thee, that thou art able, interpretations to unfold, and knotty points to unravel.

Now if thou be able the writing to read, and the interpretation thereof to make known unto me, with purple thou shalt be clothed, and a chain of gold shalt thou have upon thy neck, and as the third in the kingdom shalt thou have dominion.

17 Then spake Daniel, and said before the king, As for thy gifts thine own let them remain. And thy present on another bestow, howbeit the writing will I read to the king, and the interpretation thereof will I make known unto him.

18 As for thee, O king, the Most High God gave kingship and greatness and honour and majesty unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father; and for the greatness that he gave him all people, races and tongues used to tremble and to withdraw falteringly from before him, whom he would he slew, and whom he would he kept alive, and whom he would he set up, and whom he would he put down.

But when uplifted was his heart and his spirit, he became obstinate, so as to act arrogantly; he was put down from the throne of his kingdom, and his dignity took them from him; and from among the sons of men was he driven, and his heart to a wild beast's became equal, and with the wild asses was his dwelling, and grass like oxen they suffered him to eat, and with the dew of the heavens his body was drenched, until that he came to know that the Most High God hath dominion over the kingdom of men, and with whomsoever he pleaseth he setteth up over it.

22 And yet thou, his son, O Belshazzar! hast not humbled thy heart, though all this thou knewest; but against the Lord of the heavens hast uplifted thyself, and the vessels of his house have they brought before thee, and thou, and thy nobles, thy wives and thy concubines have been drinking wine therein, and gods of silver and gold, of bronze, iron, wood and stone, which see not nor hear nor know hast thou praised, whereas God in whose hand thy breath is and whose are all thy ways hast thou not glorified.

23 Then was there put forth from before him the part of the hand, and this writing was inscribed:

And this is the writing which was inscribed, M'né, M'né, T'kel, u-Pharsin.

25 This is the interpretation of the thing, M'né [= "Reckoned-up"], God hath reckoned up thy reign, and ended it; T'kel [= "Weighed"], thou art weighed in the balances, and found wanting; P'rés [= "Snatched-away"], snatched away is thy kingdom, and given to the Medes and Persians.

26 This is the interpretation of the thing, M'né, God hath reckoned up thy reign, and end it; T'kel, thou art weighed in the balances, and found wanting; P'rés, snatched away is thy kingdom, and given to the Medes and Persians.

28 Then Belshazzar gave word, that they should clothe Daniel with purple, and put a chain of gold upon his neck, and should make a proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler over the kingdom.

30 In that night was slain Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans. 4

§ 6. Darius the Mede, unwarily Signing an Interdict against Prayer, consigns Daniel to the Lions' Den, from which the King gladly welcomes him back Unharmed.

1 It was pleasing before Darius, that he should set up over the kingdom, a hundred and twenty satraps, that they should be over all the kingdom; and over these three confidential ministers, of whom Daniel was first, that to them these satraps should render an account, and the king not be suffering loss. Then this Daniel signalled himself, above the ministers and the satraps, because a distinguished spirit was in him, and the king thought to set him up over all the kingdom.

4 Then the ministers and the satraps began seeking to find occasion against Daniel, in respect of the kingdom, but no occasion nor wickedness could they find, insomuch as faithful was he, and neither error nor wickedness could be found against him.

5 Then these men were saying.

We shall not find against this Daniel, any occasion; unless we find him against him in respect of the law of his God.

6 Then these ministers and satraps crowded together unto the king, and this were saying to him, O Darius the king! for ages live!
All the ministers of the kingdom, the nobles and satraps, the near friends and the pashas [have consulted together], to establish a royal statute, and to confirm an interdict. —

That whoever shall ask a petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions.

Now, O king! wilt thou establish the interdict, and sign the writing, that it may not be changed—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Wherefore, King Darius signed the writing and the interdict.

But Daniel, when he knew that the writing was signed, went to his own house, and, the windows being opened to him, in his chamber toward Jerusalem, three times a day was he kneeling upon his knees, and praying and giving thanks before his God, in like manner as he had been doing aforetime.

Then these men crowded together, and found Daniel, praying and making supplication before his God.

Then drew they near, and began to speak before the king, concerning the royal interdict, Didst thou not sign an interdict, that any man who should petition of any God or man, save of thee, O king, should be cast into the den of lions?

The king answered and said, Certain is the thing—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Then answered they and were saying before the king, Daniel, who is of the sons of the exile of Judah, hath made thee, O king, of none account, also the interdict which thou hast signed, but three times a day is asking his petition.

Then, when he heard the matter, was sorely displeased with himself, and upon Daniel set his heart, to deliver him, and until the going in of the sun was striving to rescue him.

Then these men crowded unto the king, and were saying to the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no interdict nor statute which the king establishes may be changed.

Then the king gave word, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. The king spake and said to Daniel,— <Thy God, whom thou art serving continually> will deliver thee.

And there was brought a certain stone, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet-ring, and with the signet-ring of his nobles, that nothing might be changed, as to Daniel.

Then the king departed to his palace, and spent the night fasting, and no table was brought in before him,—and his sleep fled from him. Then the king rose early, with the dawn, and hastily unto the den of lions. And when he drew near to the den, unto Daniel, with a distressed voice made he outcry,—the king spake and said unto Daniel.

O Daniel, servant of the Living God! <Thy God, whom thou art serving continually> hast he been able to deliver thee from the lions?

Then Daniel signed the writing and the interdict, and said, O king! for ages live!

My God, hath sent his messenger, and hath shut the mouth of the lions, and they have not hurt me; forasmuch as before him rectitude was found in me, moreover also, before thee, O king, no crime had I committed.

Then the king was exceedingly glad concerning him, and gave word to take up Daniel out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found in him, for that he had trusted in his God.

And the king gave word that they should bring those men who had accused Daniel, and into the den of lions they cast them, their children, and their wives, and they had not reached the bottom of the den when the lions seized them, and all their bones brake they in pieces.

Then Darius the king wrote to all the peoples, races, and the tongues who were dwelling in all the earth.

Your prosperity abound! From before me is appointed a decree that throughout every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and withdraw fearfully from before the God of Daniel,—for that he is the Living God, and abiding for ages, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion is unto the end; who delivereth and rescueth, and worketh signs and wonders, in the heavens, and in the earth,—for that he hath delivered Daniel out of the power of the lions.

And this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius,—and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.
And, therefore, the following paragraphs might have been printed as "speech." Still, as they are, in fact, narrative, they stand as full text in the margin, as is usual with narrative.

And, first, that of Four Wild Beasts coming up out of the Great Sea, with the Interpretation of which he is favour'd.

1 In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon: Daniel beheld a dream, and visions of his head upon his bed; then the dream he wrote, the sum of the matters he told.

2 Daniel spake and said,

I was looking in my vision [which came] with the night, when lo! the four winds of the heavens bursting forth upon the great sea; and four large wild beasts, coming up out of the sea, diverse, one from another:

3 And lo! another wild beast, a second, resembling a bear, and on one side was it raised up, with three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth, and thus were they saying to it, Rise! devour much flesh.

4 After that I was looking, and lo! another, like a leopard, and its four heads had wings of a bird upon its back; and four heads had the four wild beasts, and dominion was given to it.

5 And lo! another wild beast, a third, resembling a lion, having the wings of an eagle; I looked until the wings thereof were torn out, and it was lifted up from the earth, and upon its feet, like a man, was it caused to stand, and the heart of a man was given to it.

6 Then was I looking, in my vision which came out of the Great Sea, with the Interpretation of which he is favour'd.

7 But as to the fourth wild beast, its form was terrible, exceeding terrible, whose teeth were iron, and its claws were bronze, having large teeth of iron, it devoured and brake in pieces, and the residue with its feet it trampled down; and thus was diverse from all the wild beasts that were before it, and it had ten horns.

8 I was considering the horns, when lo! another, a little one came up among them, and three of the former horns were uprooted from before it; and lo! eyes, like the eyes of a man, in this horn, and a mouth speaking great things.

9 I continued looking until that thrones were placed, and the Ancient of days took his seat, whose garment was like snow, and the hair of his head like pure wool, his throne was flames of fire, his wheels a burning fire.

10 A stream of fire was flowing on and issuing forth from before him, a thousand thousand; waited upon him, and ten thousand times ten thousand; before him stood up, judgment took its seat, and books were opened.

11 I continued looking, 'Then because of the sound of the great words which the horn was speaking,' I continued looking, until that wild beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning of the fire.

12 As concerning the rest of the beasts, their dominion was taken away; but a lengthening of life was given to them, until time and season.

13 I continued looking in the visions of the night, when lo! with the clouds of the heavens one like a son of man was coming, and unto the Ancient of days he approached, and before him they brought him near; and unto him were given dominion and dignity and kingship, that all peoples, races and tongues, unto him should do service; his dominion was an age-abiding dominion, which should not pass away, and this kingdom that which should not be destroyed.

14 The spirit of me, Daniel was grieved in the midst of the sheath, and the visions of my head terrified me. I drew near unto one of them who stood by, and made exact enquiry of him, concerning all this, so he told me, and the interpretation of the things made he known unto me.

15 These great wild beasts, which are four, are four kings who shall arise out of the earth; but the holy ones of the Highest shall receive the kingdom, and shall possess the kingdom for the age, yea for the age of ages.

16 Then desired I to be sure, concerning the fourth wild beast, which was diverse from all of them, exceeding terrible, whose teeth were iron, and its claws were bronze, brake in pieces, and the residue with his feet he trampled down; also concerning the ten horns, which were in his head, and the other, which came up, and there fell from among them that were before it, three, and this horn which had eyes, and a mouth speaking great things, and his look was more proud than his fellows: I continued looking, when this horn made war with the holy ones, and prevailed against them: until that the Ancient of Days came, and justice was granted to the holy ones of the Highest, and the time arrived, that the holy ones should possess the kingdom.

17 Thus he said, The fourth wild beast is a fourth kingdom which shall be in the earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour all the earth, and shall trample it down, and break it in pieces.

18 And the ten horns of that kingdom are ten kings who will arise, and another will arise after them, and he will be diverse from the former ones, and three kings will he cast down; and words against the Most High he will speak, and the holy ones of the Highest;* will he afflict, — and will hope to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand, for a season and seasons and the dividing of a season, — but the Judgment will take its seat,— and his dominion will they take away, to destroy and make disappear unto an end.

And the kingdom, and the dominion, and the great ones of the kingdoms under all the heavens shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Highest, — his kingdom is an age-abiding kingdom, and all [the dominions] unto him will render service, and shew themselves obedient.

Hitherto is the end of the matter.

As for me, Daniel, greatly did my thoughts terrify me, and my bright looks were changed upon me, but the matter — in mine own heart I kept.*

§ 8. Daniel's Second Vision — of the Ram and of the He-goat: which is explained by the Angel Gabriel.

1 In the third year of the reign of Belshazzar the king a vision appeared unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me at the beginning. 2 So then I saw, in the vision, and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was in Shusan the fortress, which is in Persia the province, — yea I saw it in a vision, when I was by the river Ulai. 3 So then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a ram, standing before the river, and it had two horns, — and the horns were high, but the one was higher than the other, and the higher had come up last. 4 I saw the ram, pushing strongly westward and northward and south ward, so that nowild beast could stand before him, and none could deliver out of his hand, — but he did according to his own pleasure, and shewed himself great. 5 Now I was observing, when lo! a he-goat coming in out of the west, over the face of all the earth, but it meddled not with the earth,— and the goat had a conspicuous horn between his eyes. 6 So then he came up to the ram having the two horns, which I had seen, standing before the river, — and ran unto him, in the fury of his strength. 7 Yea I saw him coming close upon the ram, and he was enraged at him, and smote the ram, and brake in pieces both his horns, and there was no strength in the ram to stand before him, — but he cast him down to the ground, and trampled him underfoot, and there was none could deliver the ram out of his power. 8 But the he-goat shewed himself very great, — and when he had become mighty > the great horn was broken in pieces, and there came up afterwards four, in its stead, towards the four winds of the heavens;

And out of the first of them came forth a little horn, — which became exceedingly great, averse against the south and against the east, and against the beautiful land; 9 yes it became great as far as the host of the heavens, — and cased to fall to the earth, some of the host and some of the stars, and trampled them underfoot;

even as far as the ruler of the host shewed his greatness, — and because of him was taken away the continual ascending sacrifice, and the place of the sanctuary was cast down; 12 and a host was set over the con tinual, by transgression, — and faithfulness was cast down to the ground, and so he acted with effect, and succeeded.

Then heard I a certain holy one, speaking, — and another holy one said to that certain holy one who was speaking —

How long is the vision of the continual ascending sacrifice as taken away, and the transgression which astondeth, for both sanctuary and host to be given over to be trampled underfoot?

And he said unto him, 14

Until two thousand and three hundred evening-mornings, then shall the sanctuary be vindicated.

And it came to pass, when I Daniel had seen the vision, — and had sought discernment, that lo! there was standing before me, as the appearance of a man. 16 Then heard I a human voice, between the banks of the Ulai, — which cried out, and said,

Gabriel! cause this man to understand the revelation.

So he came near where I stood, and <when he came> I was terrified, and fell upon my face, — but he said unto me,

Understand, O son of man, that to the time of the end belongeth the vision.

And <when he spake with me> I fell stunned upon my face, to the earth, — but he touched me, and caused me to stand up where I was. 19 Then said he,

Behold me! causing thee to know, that which shall come to pass in the afterpart of the indignation, — for at an appointed time shall be an end.
The ram which thou sawest, having the two horns, representeth the kings of Media and Persia; and the he-goat is the king of Greece, and the great horn which was between his eyes is the first king.

Now as for its being broken in pieces, whereupon there stood up four in its stead, four kingdoms, out of his nation shall stand up, but not with his strength; but in the aftertime of their kingdom, when transgressions have filled up their measure, and skilful in dissimulation; and his strength will be mighty, but not through his own strength; and wonderfully will he destroy, and succeed and act with effect, and will destroy mighty ones, and the people of holy ones; and by his cunning will he both cause deceits to succeed in his hand, and in his own heart will he shew himself to be great, and by their careless security will he destroy many, and against the ruler of rulers will he stand up, but without hand shall be broken in pieces.

Now the revelation of the evening and the morning which hath been told, is, but thou close up the vision, because it is for many days.

Now as for me Daniel then was I sick for days, but I arose and did the business of the king, and though I was confused concerning the revelation yet could no one discern it.

Encouraged by Jeremiah's prophecies, Daniel makes intercession for his city and his people.

In the first year of Darius son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, who was made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, in the first year of his reign I, Daniel, perceived by the writings, the number of the years, as to which the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah the prophet, to fulfill the desolations of Jerusalem, seventy years. So I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek [him] by prayer, and supplication, with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes; yea I prayed unto Yahweh my God, and made confession, and said—

I beseech thee, O Lord, the God great and to be revered, keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness to them who keep his commandments. We have sinned and committed iniquity, and been guilty of lawlessness and been rebellious, even departing from thy commandments, and from thy regulations; and have not hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, who spake in thy name, unto our kings, our rulers, and our fathers, and unto all the people of the land.

To thee, O Lord, belongeth righteousness, but to us the shame of faces, as at this day, to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, the near and the far off, throughout all the lands whither thou hast driven them, in their treachery, wherewith they had been treacherous against thee.

O Yahweh, to us belongeth the shame of faces, to our kings, to our rulers, and to our fathers, in that we have sinned against thee.

To the Lord our God belongeth compassion and forgiveness, for we have rebelled against him; and have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God, to walk in his instructions which he set before us, through means of his servants the prophets; yea all Israel have transgressed thy law, even going away, so as not to hearken unto thy voice, therefore were poured out upon us the curse and the oath which had been written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we had sinned against him. Thus hath he confirmed his words which he had spoken against us and against our judges who had judged us, by bringing in upon us a great calamity, as to which there had not been done, under all the heavens, as had been done unto Jerusalem.

Even as written in the law of Moses hath all this calamity come in upon us, yet entreated we not the face of Yahweh our God, by turning away from our iniquities, and by getting intelligence in thy truth.

Therefore hath Yahweh kept watch for the calamity, and brought it in upon us, for righteous is Yahweh our God concerning all his deeds which he hath done, seeing that we had not hearkened unto his voice.

Now therefore, O Lord our God, who didst bring forth thy people out of the land of Egypt with a firm hand, and didst make for thyself a name, as at this day, we have sinned, we have been guilty of lawlessness.

O Lord! <according to all thy righteousness> I beseech thee, let thine anger and thine indignation turn away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain,—for by reason of our sins, and by reason of the iniquities of our fathers—Jerusalem and thy people have become a reproach, to all who are round about us.

Now! therefore, hearken, O our God, unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto his supplications, and let thy face shine, upon thy sanctuary, that is desolate,—for the sake of thy servants, O Lord.

Incline, O my God, thine ear, and hearken, open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city on which hath been called thy name: for not on the ground of our own righteousnesses are we causing our supplications to fall down before thee, but on the ground of thine abounding compassions.

O Lord! hear! O Lord! forgive! Do not delay! For thine own sake, O my God, because [thine own name] hath been called, upon thine city, and upon thy people.

And while yet I was speaking, and praying, and confessing mine own sin, and the sin of my people Israel,—and causing my supplications to fall down before Yahweh my God, concerning the holy mountain of my God; 21 while yet I was speaking in prayer> then the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in vision at the beginning, wearied with rapid flight IItouched me, about the time of the evening-present. 22 Yea he came, and spake with me,—and said—

O Daniel! [now] have I come forth, to teach thee understanding.

<At the beginning of thy supplications> came forth a word, [I therefore, am arrived to tell, because a man delighted in thou art'—mark then the word, and have understanding in the revelation:—14> Useventy weeks! have been divided concerning thy people and concerning thy holy city—

10. By the river Tigris, after a Three Weeks' Fast, Daniel receives his Final Revelation (chaps. x.—xii.).

1 <In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia> a matter was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and faithful was the matter, but [concerned] a great warfare, and he marked the word, and had understanding in the revelation.

3 <<In those days>> III, Daniel was mourning three sevens of days; <food to delight in> did I not eat, <neither flesh nor wine> came into my mouth, nor did I so much as anoint myself,—until were fulfilled three sevens of days.

And <on the twenty-fourth day of the first month,—when I was by the side of the great river, the same is Tigris> then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! [a man] clothed in linen,—[whose loins| were girded with the bright gold of Uphaz ; — [whose body| was like Tarshish-stone, and [his face| like the appearance of lightning, and [his eyes| were like torches of fire, and [his arms and his feet| like the look of bronze burnished,— and [the sound of his words| was like the sound of a multitude.

7 And [Daniel, alone| beheld| the revelation, and [the men who were with me| beheld not the revelation,—in truth| a great terror had fallen upon them, and they had fled while hiding themselves. 8 [I| therefore, was left alone, and beheld this great revelation, and there remained in me no strength,—but [my freshness| was turned upon me into disfigurement, and I retained no strength. 9 So then I heard the sound of his words,—and [when I heard the sound of his words| then [I| myself| came to be in a deep sleep upon my face, with [my face| to the earth. 10 And lo! [a hand| touched me; and roused me up on my knees and the palms of my hands. 11 Then said he unto me,

O Daniel! man greatly delighted in! have understanding in the words which [I| am about to speak unto thee, and stand up where thou art,—for when I have been sent unto thee.

And [when he had spoken with me this word| I stood up trembling. 12 Then said he unto me,

Do not fear. O man greatly delighted in! have understanding in the words which [I| am about to speak unto thee, and stand up where thou art,—for when I have been sent unto thee.

And [when he had spoken with me such words as these| I set my face towards the earth, and was dumb. 13 Then lo! [like the similitude of the sons of men| one was touching my lips,—so I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him who was standing before me,

O my lord! — [By the revelation| my pains have seized me, and I retain no strength. 14 How then can the servant of this my lord speak with this my lord,—seeing that [as for me — henceforth| there remaineth in me no strength, and no [spirit| is left in me?

15 Then again there touched me one like in appearance to a son of earth, and he strengthened me. 16 And he said,

Do not fear. O man greatly delighted in! peace to thee, be strong, yea be strong!* And [as he spake with me| I gained strength, and said,

Let my lord speak', for thou hast strengthened me.

20 And he said,

Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? But [now| must I return to fight with the ruler of Persia; [then| therefore am going forth, and lo! [the ruler of Greece| is coming. 21 Howbeit I will tell thee that which is inscribed in the writing of truth,—but there is no one who holdeth strongly with me concerning these things, save Michael your ruler.

1 [I| therefore, <in the first year of Darius the 11 Mede> was at my station to strengthen and embolden him; 2 and [now| <the truth| I will tell thee:—

Lo! there are [yet| three kings| to arise—belonging to Persia, and [the fourth| will amass greater riches than they all, and [when he hath strengthened himself in his riches| the whole| will stir up| the kingdom of Greece. 3 And so a hero king| will arise, —and wield great authority, and do according to his own pleasure; 4 but [when he hath arisen| his kingdom| shall be broken in pieces, and be divided toward the four winds of the heavens,—but not to his own posterity, nor according to his own authority which he wielded, for his kingdom| shall be uprooted|, even for others besides these.

8 But a king of the south |will become strong|, even from among his rulers,—and will prevail against him, and have authority, <a great authority| shall his authority be.

6 And [at the end of years| they will league together, yea [the daughter of the king of the south| will go in unto the king of the north, to make peace,—but she shall not retain strength of arm, neither shall he stand, nor his arm, but she shall be delivered up—she herself and they who brought her in, and he who begat her, and that strengthened her in the times. 7 But one will stand up from the sprout of her roots, [in] his stead,—and he will enter the army, and enter into a fortress of the king of the north, and deal with them and shew himself strong; 8 yea <even their gods, with their molten images, with their delightful vessels of silver and gold, with strengthening himself in his riches, he will.>
a host of captives> will bring into Egypt,—and he will stand more [years] than the king of the north; so will the king of the south enter into the kingdom, and then return unto his own soil.

But his sons* will rouse themselves to war, and gather together a multitude of large armies, but he will come on and on, and overflow and pass through,—and will return* and wage war,* up to his fortresses.

Then will the king of the south [be enraged], and go forth and fight with him, with the king of the north,—and will raise a great multitude, but the multitude will be delivered into his hand. And when he hath taken away the multitude> his heart will be uplifted,—and he will cause tens of thousands to fall, but will not conquer.

Then will the king of the north again raise a multitude, greater than the first,—and <at the end of the times>—some years* he will come on and on* with a great army, and with great substance. And <in those times> many] will rise against the king of the south,—and the sons of the oppressors* of thy people] will exalt themselves to confirm the vision, but will be overthrown.

Then will come in the king of the north, and cast up a rampart, and capture a city of strongholds,—and the arms of the south]] will be broken in pieces, and his army will be overwhelmed like a flood,—and many wounded [will fall].

Now <as for the two kings> their heart will be set on acting wickedly, and <at one table> will they speak [falsehood]—but it shall not succeed, for yet is the end for an appointed time.

So then he will return to his own land, with great substance, with his heart set upon a holy covenant; yea he will act with effect, and return to his own land.

And <at the appointed time> will he again enter the south,—but it shall not be like the former, nor like the latter.

Then will come in against him the ships of Cyprus,* and he will be disheartened, and again have indignation against a holy covenant, and will act with effect,—and again gain intelligence, concerning them who are forsaking a holy covenant.

And [arms] <from him> will arise,—and will profane the sanctuary, the fortress, and will set aside the continual [ascending-sacrifice],* and place the horrid abomination* that astonzeth. And <them who are ready to deal lawlessly with a covenant> will he make impious by flatteries,— but the people who know their God, will be strong and act with effect. 33 And they who make the people wise will impart understanding to the many,— yet shall they be brought low, by sword and by flame, by captivity and by prey, for some days; but when they are brought low they shall be helped with a little help,— and many will join themselves unto them by flatteries; 34 and of them who make wise shall be brought low, to refine them, and to purify and make white, up to the time of the end,— for yet is it for an appointed time.

And the king will do according to his own pleasure, and will exalt himself, and magnify himself against every God, and against the God of Gods, will he speak wonderful things,— and will succeed, until emptied of its indignation, for what is decreed must be done, and for the god of his fathers will he have no regard, nor for the delight of women, nor for any God will he have regard,— for against all will he magnify himself.

Howbeit to the god of the fortresses, in his place will he give honour,— even to a god whom his fathers knew not will he give honour, with gold and with silver and with precious stones and with articles of delight.

And in the time of the end will the king of the south push against him, and the king of the north will rush against him, with chariots and with horsemen, and with many ships,— and he will enter the lands, and overwhelm and pass over; 36 yea he will enter the beautiful land, and many lands shall be laid low,— but these shall be delivered out of his hand, Edom and Moab, and the first portion of the sons of Ammon; yea he will thrust forth his hand against the lands,— and the land of Egypt shall have no deliverance; 37 and he will have authority over the treasures of gold and silver, and over all the delightful things of Egypt,— with Libyans and Ethiopians among his followers; 38 but tidings will terrify him, out of the east, and out of the north,— therefore will he go forth with great fury, to destroy and to devote many; 39 and will plant his palace-home between the seas, towards the beautiful holy mountain, but shall come to his end, with none to help him.

And (at that time) will Michael, the great ruler who standeth for the sons of thy people, make a stand, and there will be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, up to that time; and (at that time) shall thy people be delivered, every one found written in the book; and many of the sleepers in the dusty ground shall awake,— these shall be to age-abiding life, but those to reproach, and age-abiding abhorrence; 41 and they who make wise shall shine like the shining of the expanse, — and they who bring the many to righteousness like the stars to times age-abiding and beyond.

But thou, Daniel, close up the words, and seal the book until the time of the end,— many will run to and fro, and knowledge shall abound.

Then (in Daniel) looked, and lo! two others standing,— one on this side of the bank of the river, and one on that side of the bank of the river. 6 And one said to the man clothed with linen who was upon the waters of the river, How long shall be the end of the wonders?

And I heard the man clothed with linen who was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left unto the heavens, and sware by him that liveth unto times age-abiding,—

For a set time and times and a half, and when the dispersion of a part of the holy people is brought to an end, then shall come to an end all these things.

And I heard, but could not understand,— so I said, O my lord! what shall be the issue of these things?

Then said he, Go thy way, Daniel; for closed up and sealed are the words, until the time of the end. 9 And the words of the book, how that many of them will purify themselves and be made white and be refined, but the lawless will act lawlessly, and none of the lawless shall understand,— but they who make wise shall understand; and from the time of the taking away of the continual [ascending-sacrifice], and the placing of the horrid abomination that astoundeth [shall be] one thousand two hundred and ninety days.

12 Happy! is he that waiteth, and attaineth to one thousand three hundred and thirty-five days.

13 But thou go thy way to the end,—and thou shalt rest, and shalt rise to thy lot at the end of the days.

HOSEA.

PART I.—The Prophet, by a Series of painful Matrimonial Experiences, is caused to enter into Fellowship with Yahweh's unrequited Love for Unfaithful Israel (chaps. i.—iii.).

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah,—and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the word of Yahweh with Hosea was,—that Yahweh said unto Hosea, Go take thee a woman of unchastity, and the children of unchastity, for indeed hath the land been going away from following Yahweh.

3 So he went and took Gomer, daughter of Diblaim,—and she conceived and bare him a son.

4 Then said Yahweh unto him, Call his name Jezreel: for ye shall visit the bloodshed of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And it shall come to pass in that day that I will break the bow of Israel, in the vale of Jezreel.

6 Then conceived she again and bare a daughter, and he said to him, Call her name Lo-ruhamah ["Uncompassated",—for not again any more] I will have compassion upon the house of Israel, that I should forgive them; but on the house of Judah will I have compassion, and I will save them, as Yahweh their God,—but will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by battle, by horses, or by horsemen.

And when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah> she conceived, and bare a son.

9 Then said he, Call his name Lo-ammi [= "No people of mine"],—for ye are Lo-ammi ["No people of mine"], and I will not be yours.

10 Yet shall the number of the sons of Israel become like the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured, nor numbered,—and it shall come to pass in the place where it used to be said to them <No people of mine> are ye it shall be said to them Sons of a Living God!

11 Then shall the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel gather themselves together as one, and shall appoint them one head, and come up out of the earth,—for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

Say ye unto your brethren, O Ammi [= "O my people"], And unto your sisters, O Ruhamah [= "O compassionated one"]:

2 Contend ye with your mother, contend, For she is no wife of mine, And I am no husband of hers, Let her then put away her paramours, from before her, And her partners in adultery, from her embraces:

3 Lest I strip off her under-clothing, And set her forth to view, as in the day she was born,— And make her like a wilderness, And render her like a land that is parched And suffer her to die of thirst;

4 And <on her children> not have compassion,— Because <the children of paramours> they are.

For their mother [hath been unchaste], And she that conceived them [hath caused shame],—
For she said,
Let me go after my lovers! who used to give my bread, and my water, my wool, and my flax, mine oil, and my drink.

[Therefore] behold me! hedging up her way,
with thorns,—
And I will wall her in, and shall she not find.
And <when she shall pursue her lovers, and not overtake them,
and shall seek them and not find> then shall she say, Let me go my way now! and return unto my first husband,
For it was better with me then than now!

But <she> owneth not, that I gave her—the corn, and the new wine and the oil,—silver also increased I unto her, and
[which] they offered to Baal;

[Therefore] will I again take away my corn,
in the time thereof,
And my new wine, in the season thereof,—
And will recover my wool and my flax given to hide her shame.

[Now], therefore, will I expose her unseemliness, before the eyes of her lovers,—
And no man shall deliver her out of my hand!
And I will cause to cease all her mirth,
Her pilgrim-festival, her new moon and her sabbath,—and her every appointed meeting;
And will lay waste her vine and her fig-tree,
As to which she hath said,
A present are they for myself, which my lovers have given me,—
And I will make of them a thicket, and the wild beasts of the field shall devour them.

So will I visit upon her the days of the Baals,
Unto whom she used to burn incense, and decked herself with her nose-ring and her jewelry, and went her way after her lovers,— Whereas <me> she forgot,

Declareth Yahweh.

[Therefore] lo! I am going to persuade her,
And <though I conduct her forth into a wilderness>,
Yet will I speak unto her heart.

Then will I give to her her vineyards from thence,
And the vale of Achor [= “trouble ’] for a door of hope,—
And she will respond there,
As in the days of her youth,
And as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.

And it shall come to pass <in that day>
Declareth Yahweh,
That she will call me Ishi [= “My husband”],
And will not call me any more, Baali [= “Mine owner”].

So will I take away the names of the Baals, out of her mouth,—
And they shall not be called to mind any more, by their name.
And I will solemnise to them a covenant, in that day,
With the wild-beast of the field,
And with the bird of the heavens,
And the creeping thing of the ground,—
And <bow and sword and battle> will I break in pieces out of the land,
So will I cause them to lie down, in security.

And I will take thee unto myself, unto times age-abiding,—
Yea I will take thee unto myself, in righteousness and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in abounding compassion:

Yea I will take thee unto myself, in faithfulness,—
So shall thou know Yahweh.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will respond,
Declareth Yahweh,
I will respond to the heavens,—
And <they> shall respond to the earth;

And <the earth> shall respond to the corn, and to the new wine and to the oil,—
And <they> shall respond to Jezreel [= “Whom God scattereth,” “Whom God soweth”].

So will I sow her unto me in the land,
And will have compassion upon the Uncompassionate one [= “Lo-ruhamah”],—
And will say to him who was No-people-of-mine [= “Lo-ammi”] <My people> thou art,
And he shall say, My God!

Then said Yahweh unto me,
<Once more> go love a woman who loveth a friend, and is an adulteress,—according to the love of Yahweh unto the sons of Israel, though they keep turning away unto other gods, and love [idolatrous] raisin-cakes.

So I secured her to me, for fifteen pieces of silver,—and a homer of barley, and a half-homer of barley;
And I said unto her,
<Many days> shalt thou tarry for me,
Thou shalt not be unchaste.
Neither shalt thou become another man’s,—[Moreover also] || [will tarry] for thee.
For <many days> shall the sons of Israel tarry, Without king, and
Without ruler, and
Without sacrifice, and Without pillar;* and
Without ephod, or household gods.

Afterwards shall the sons of Israel return,
And seek Yahweh their God, and David their king,—
And shall turn with throbhing hearts* unto Yahweh and unto his goodness. In the afterpart of the days.*

PART II.—Fragmentary Reminiscences of Hosea's
Prophehtic Ministry to the Corrupt and Doomed Kingdom of Northern Israel; with Occasional References and Appeals to Judah.

Hear the word of Yahweh, ye sons of Israel,—
That a controversy hath Yahweh with the inhabitants of the land,
Because there is no' faithfulness, nor loving-kindness, nor' knowledge* of God, in the land:

Cursing* and lying, and killing and stealing, and committing adultery* have broken forth,
And blood-shedding doth extend.

For this cause shall the land mourn',
And everyone who dwelleth therein shall languish',
With the wild beast of the field and
With the bird of the heavens,— Moreover also the fishes of the sea shall be withdrawn.

Howbeit let no man contend,
Nor let him rebuke another,—
Since they are as they who contend against a priest:
So shouldst thou stumble in the daytime,
And even the prophet's stumble with thee, in the night,—
And I should destroy thine own mother.

My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge;—
And because thou hast forgotten the law
of thy God>
Therefore will I reject thee from ministering as priest unto me,
And because thou hast forgotten the law
of thy God>
I will also will forget thy children.

Or: "ốbelisk."
Or: "aphel ox."

Or: "acknowledgment."
Or: "awakening."

Conjectural emendation of the text: "For my people are but as their priests;

And unto their iniquity* lift they up every man his* desire.*

So doth it come to be—
Like people, like priest.]
Therefore will I visit upon him his ways,
And his doing— will I bring back to him;
And they shall eat, and not be satisfied,
They have encouraged unchastity, yet have not been making increase,—
For unto <Yahweh> have they left off giving heed:—

Unchastity, and wine, and new wine, take away the heart.

My people* of their Wood do ask,—
Let their Staff* then tell them,—
For the spirit of unchastity hath led them astray,
And they have unchastely departed from under* their God.

On the headlands of the mountains they sacrifice,
And on the hills burn they incense,
Under oak and poplar and terebinth,
Because [pleasant] is the shade thereof:
For this cause do your daughters* become unchaste],
And your brides* commit adultery.

I do not bring punishment upon your daughters when they become unchaste,
Nor upon your brides, when they commit adultery,
For the men themselves* with unchaste women do seclude themselves,
And with the common women of the shrine do offer sacrifice,—
And a people who will not discern* must be ruined.

<Though unchaste art thou, O Israel>
Let not Judah* become guilty,
Neither let them enter Gilgal,
Nor go up to Beth-aven,* And then* swear. By the life of Yahweh! For
<as a heifer that is stubborn> hath Israel* been stubborn;—
Now can Yahweh turn them out to pasture, like a young ram in a wide place?

17 Mated with idols is Ephraim, let him alone.
18 Their drinking-bout having passed, they became unchaste,
    They loved wildly,
    A contempt became her great men.
19 The wind hath bound her up in its wings,—
That they may be ashamed, because of their sacrifices.

5 Hear ye this—O priests,
And attend, O house of Israel,
And ye, House of the King give ear,
For to you pertaineth the sentence,—
For a snare have ye been to Mizpah,
And a net spread on Tabor.
And a slaughter have apostates deeply designed,— Though I was a rebuker to them all.

3 I have known Ephraim,
And Israel; hath not been hidden from me,—
And Yahweh have they dealt treacherously,
For to alien children have they given birth,—

8 Blow ye a horn in Gibeah,
A trumpet in Ramah,—
Sound an alarm at Beth-aven,
Behind thee, O Benjamin!

9 Ephraim shall become a desolation, in the day of rebuke:
<Throughout the tribes of Israel> have I made known what is sure.

10 The rulers of Judah have become as they who remove a land-mark.
<Upon them> will I pour out, like water, my wrath.

11 Oppressed is Ephraim, crushed in judgment,—
Because he hath wilfully walked after falsehood.
12 But I was like a moth to Ephraim,—
And like rotten wood, to the house of Judah.

13 When Ephraim saw his injury,
And Judah's wound>—
Then went Ephraim unto Assyria, And [Judah] sent unto a hostile king,—
Yet the cannot heal you, Nor will the wound remove from you.]
14 For I will be as a lion unto Ephraim, And as a young lion to the house of Judah,—
I, I will tear in pieces, and depart,
I will carry off, and none be able to rescue.
15 I will depart, will return unto my place! Till what time they acknowledge their guilt, and seek my face,—
In their trouble will they make for me diligent search.

1 Come, and let us return unto Yahweh! For he hath torn, that he might heal us,— smitten, that he might bind us up.
2 He will bring us to life, after two days,—
On the third day will he raise us up, that we may live before him.
3 Then let us know—let us press on to know—Yahweh,
<Like the dawn> is his coming forth assured,
That he may come Like a down-pour upon us, Like the harvest-rain, [and] the seed-rain of the land.

4 What can I do unto thee, O Ephraim? What can I do unto thee, O Judah? For your loving-kindness is like a morning cloud, Yes like the dew, early departing!]
3 For this cause have I hewn them in pieces by the prophets, I have slain them by the sayings of my mouth,—
And my justice as a light goeth forth.
6 For <loving-kindness> I desired, and not sacrifice,—
And the knowledge of God more than ascending-offerings.
But like Adam have transgressed a covenant,—
There have they dealt treacherously with me.

Gilead is a city of workers of iniquity,—
Tracked with blood.

And like liars in wait for a man in troops
Is a band of priests,
On the road will they murder towards Sisæom,—
Because a shameful deed they have done.

In the house of Israel have I seen a horrible thing,—
The unehasteity of Ephraim, Defiled is Israel.

Judah too! A harvest is appointed for thee,—
In that I will bring back the captivity* of my people.

When I would have brought healing to Israel>
Then was disclosed the iniquity of Ephraim, And the wicked doings of Samaria, For they have wrought falsehood,—
When a thief would enter a band [roamed about] outside,

And they say not to their own hearts, That all their wickedness I remember,
Right before my face have they been done.

By their wickedness they gladden a king, And by their flatteries—rulers.

They all are adulterers, Like an oven too hot for the baker,— Who leaveth off stoking, after kneading the dough, till the whole be leavened.

In the day of our king* the rulers have made themselves ill! with the heat of wine,—
He hath extended his hand with scoffers.

For they have made ready,* like an oven, their heart, by their lying in wait,—
All the night their baker sleepeth,1 In the morning he kindleth up as it were a blazing fire.

They all become hot as an oven, and devour their judges,—
All their kings have fallen,1 There* hath been none among them crying unto me.

7 But like Adam have transgressed a covenant,—
There have they dealt treacherously with me.

As for Ephraim! with the peoples hath he been mingling himself,— Ephraim is a cake not turned.

Foreigners have eaten up his strength, And he knoweth it not,— Even grey hairs! are sprinkled upon him, And he knoweth it not.

Therefore doth the Excellency* of Israel answer to his face; Yet have they not returned unto Yahweh their God.

Nor have they sought him, in spite of all this!
So then Ephraim hath become* like a simple dove, having no understanding,*
On Egypt have they called.
To Assyria they have gone.
Whithersoever they go> I will spread over them my net,
Like a bird of the heavens will I bring them down, I will chastise them, by the time the report can reach the flock of them.

Woe to them! for they have taken flight from me, Destruction to them! for they have transgressed against me,—
When I would have ransomed them> Then they spake— concerning me — falsehoods.
Neither made they outcry unto me, in their heart, Although they kept on howling upon their beds,
Over corn and new wine they gathered themselves together.* They rebelled against me.

When I had warned them I strengthened their arm,— Yet against me kept they on devising wickedness.
They would return—not to him who is on high! They have become like a deceitful bow, Their rulers shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongue, This! shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

To thy mouth! with a horn! Like an eagle on the house of Yahweh,— Because they have violated my covenant, And against my law they have transgressed.

7 1 <When I would have brought healing to Israel>
Then was disclosed the iniquity of Ephraim, And the wicked doings of Samaria, For they have wrought falsehood,—
When a thief would enter a band [roamed about] outside,

And they say not to their own hearts, That all their wickedness I remember,
Right before my face have they been done.

By their wickedness they gladden a king, And by their flatteries—rulers.

They all are adulterers, Like an oven too hot for the baker,— Who leaveth off stoking, after kneading the dough, till the whole be leavened.

In the day of our king* the rulers have made themselves ill! with the heat of wine,—
He hath extended his hand with scoffers.

For they have made ready,* like an oven, their heart, by their lying in wait,—
All the night their baker sleepeth,1 In the morning he kindleth up as it were a blazing fire.

They all become hot as an oven, and devour their judges,—
All their kings have fallen,1 There* hath been none among them crying unto me.
HOSEA VIII. 2—14; IX. 1—8.

2 <Unto me> shall they make outcry.
   My God! we acknowledge thee—[we]
   ||Israel!!!
  3 Israel hath cast away what is good,—
     ||An enemy|| shall pursue him.
  4 ||They|| have appointed kings.*
     But not from me,
     Have made rulers,
     But I have not acknowledged* them:
     Of their silver and their gold> they made themselves idols,
     To the end they* might be cut off.
  5 He hath cast away thy calf, O Samaria,
   Kindled' is mine anger upon them,—
   How long* shall they not endure to be innocent?
  6 For <of Israel> is even that thing !
     ||A craftsman|| made it,
     And ||a No-god|| it is !
   For <into fragments>d shall the Calf of Samaria be broken.
  7 For <to the wind>> they sow,
     And <to the whirlwind> they reap:*
     <Stalk> hath it none,
     ||That which shooteth forth|| shall yield no meal,
     <If so be it yield> ||foreigners|| swallow it up.
  8 ||Swallowed up|| is Israel;
     <Now> have they gone among the nations,
     Like a vessel in which no man taketh
     |delight|.
  9 For <they> have gone up to Assyria,
     <A wild ass going alone for himself> is Ephraim!
     They have hired lovers!
 10 <Even though they hire them among the nations>
     |At once|| will I gather them, when they have begun' to be diminished by reason of the burden* of the king of rulers."
 11 <Because Ephraim hath multiplied altars sinfully>.
     They have become to him the altars of Sin.
 12 I have been wont to write for him the myriad things of my law,— <Like something alien> have they been accounted.¹

⁴ N.B.: This reproach respecting the Law; as proving needless popular neglect; and by consequence the accessibility of the Law in written form.
They have deeply corrupted themselves, like the days of Gibeah:
He will call to mind their iniquity,
He will punish their sins.

Like grapes in the desert found I Israel,
Like the first-ripe in the fig-tree when it is young saw I your fathers,—

They entered Baal-peor,
And devoted themselves to the Shameful Thing,
Then became their abominations like their lusts.

As for Ephraim! did their glory [fly away],—
No birth, and None with child.
No conception.

Yea though they rear their children yet will I make them childless, till there be no human being,—
For it is nothing less than woe! to them when I depart from them!

Ephraim! <like a bird> did their glory [fly away],—
No birth, and None with child.
No conception.

Yea though they rear their children yet will I make them childless, till there be no human being,—
For it is nothing less than woe! to them when I depart from them!

Ephraim! <like a bird> did their glory [fly away],—
No birth, and None with child.
No conception.

Give them, O Yahweh—what' wilt thou give?
Give them, a miscarrying womb, and breasts dried up.

All their wickedness is in Gilgal,
Yea <there> have I come to hate them,
<For the wickedness of their doings—out of my house> will I drive them forth,—
No more! will I love them,
All their rulers are unruly.

Smitten is Ephraim,
Their root hath dried up,
Fruit shall they not bear,—
Yea <though they do bring forth> yet will I slay the darlings of their womb.

My God will reject them, because they hearkened not unto him,—
That they may become wanderers throughout the nations.

A luxuriant vine is Israel,
Fruit beseeches him,—
According to the abundance of his fruit hath he brought abundance to the altars,
<According to the goodliness of his land> hath he made goodly statues.

Hypocritical is their heart, shall they be held guilty,—
He will break down their altars,
He will destroy their statues.

For now will they say,
We have no' king,—
For we revere not Yahweh,
And what could a king do for us?
They have spoken words, swearing falsely, in solemnising a covenant,—
Therefore shall judgment [spring up like a poisonous plant] on the ridges of the field.

About the calves of Beth-aven shall the inhabitant of Samaria be concerned,—
For the people thereof have mourned over it.
And the ascetics thereof, who used to exult [shall mourn] for the glory thereof, because it hath departed therefrom.

Itself also shall Assyria be borne along, as a present to a hostile king,—
Shame shall Ephraim receive, that Israel may be ashamed of his own counsel.

Silenced is Samaria:
Her king as a chip on the face of the waters.

So shall the high places of Aven be destroyed,
the sin of Israel,
Thorn and prickle shall come up on their altars,—
Therefore shall they say to the mountains,
Cover us, and to the hills,
Fall on us.

<Beyond> the days of Gibeah hast thou sinned, O Israel:—
There came they to a stand,
The battle against the sons of perversity touched them not in Gibeah.

<When I please> then will I chastise them,—
And there shall be gathered together against them—peoples,
They being harnessed to their two Iniquities;

But Ephraim shall be a heifer broken in, loving to tread out corn, when I have passed over upon her fair neck,—
I will drive Ephraim, Judah [shall plow],
Jacob [shall harrow to him].

Sow to yourselves in righteousness,
Reap ye at the bidding of lovingkindness,
Furrow to yourselves the newly-ploughed soil,—
Then will be the time to seek Yahweh,
Until he come, that he may rain down righteousness for you.
Ye have plowed lawlessness; <Perversity> have ye reaped.
Ye have eaten the fruit of deception,—
Because thou didst trust in thy chariots,*
In the multitude of thy mighty men.

Therefore shall there arise a tumult among thy peoples,*
And all thy fortresses shall be plundered, As Shalman plundered Beth-arbel, in the day of battle,—
The mother shall <upon her children> dash to the ground.

Even so hath Bethel done to you, because of your exceeding wickedness,—
In the dawn shall the king of Israel be utterly silenced.

When Israel was a child> then I loved him,—
And <out of Egypt> called my son.
They invited them,—
<At once> they departed from before me,*
<They> took to the Baals sacrificed,*
And to the images offered incense.
Yet had I taught Ephraim to walk,
I used to take them upon mine arms,*—
But they acknowledged not that I had healed them.

With human cords used I to draw them,
With the bands of love,
So became I unto them
Like those who remove the yoke that was on their jaws,—
And holding out [food] to him I let him eat.*

He was not to turn back into the land of Egypt,
Howbeit the Assyrian—he became his king,
For they refused to turn.

Therefore shall the sword rage in his cities,
And make an end of his multitudes, and consume them,—
Because of their counsels.

But <my people> are bent towards turning from me,— <Though upwards> they call them: none of them can lift them up.*

How can I give thee up, Ephraim?
abandon thee, Israel?
How can I make thee as Admah?
set thee as Zebaim?*Mine own heart turneth against me,
<At once> are kindled my compassions.
I cannot execute the glow of mine anger,
I cannot turn to destroy* Ephraim,—
For <God> am I, and not man,
When thou drawest near [I am] a Holy One, though I do not enter a city.

<After Yahweh> let them go,
<Like a lion> will he roar,—
<When he> shall roar>
Then let sons come trembling out of the West.
Let them come trembling like a small bird out of Egypt,
And like a dove out of the land of Assyria,—
So will I cause them to dwell by their own houses.
Declareth Yahweh.

They have compassed me about—
<With denial> | Ephraim |,
<With deceit> [the house of Israel],—
But hath [again and again] run riot with God,*
Though <with the holy places> entrusted.

<With denial> Ephraim feedeth on wind,
And pursueth the east wind,
<falsehood and force> doth he magnify,—
And  would they solemnise,
And <oil into Egypt> must be borne along.
But  hath Yahweh with Judah,—
So that he may bring punishment on Jacob,
According to his ways<According to his doings> repay him.*

<In the womb> took he his brother by the heel;*—
And <in his manly vigour> strove he with God:
Yes he strove against a Messenger, and prevailed,
He went, and made supplication unto him,—
<At Bethel> he found him,*
And <there> he spake with us;
And  hath Yahweh with Jacob,*—
Then let sons come trembling out of the West.
Let them come trembling like a small bird out of Egypt, And like a dove out of the land of Assyria,—So will I cause them to dwell by their own houses, Declareth Yahweh.

<In the womb> took he his brother by the heel;*—
And <in his manly vigour> strove he with God:
Yes he strove against a Messenger, and prevailed,
He went, and made supplication unto him,—
<At Bethel> he found him,*
And <there> he spake with us;
And  hath Yahweh with Jacob,*—
According to his ways repay him.*

<In the womb> took he his brother by the heel;*—
And <in his manly vigour> strove he with God:
Yes he strove against a Messenger, and prevailed,
He went, and made supplication unto him,—
<At Bethel> he found him,*
And <there> he spake with us;

Hosea XII. 6—14; XIII. 1—15.

6 Thou, therefore, <by thy God> shalt return,— <Lovingkindness and justice> do thou keep,
So wait thou for thy God, continually.

7 <A trafficker; ! <in his hand> are balances of deceit.
<To oppress> he loveth.
So then Ephraim said,
Surely I have gotten me riches,
I have found wealth for myself,—
In all my toils they cannot find in me perversity which is sin.

8 But ||I, Yahweh|| have been thy God, from the land of Egypt,-
I will yet make thee dwell in tents, as in the days of appointed meeting.

9 And I will lay my word upon the prophets,
Yea ||I myself|| have magnified |vision|,—
And <by the hand of the prophets> will I use similitudes.

10 <When Ephraim spake'> there was terror,
Exalted' was ||he|| in Israel,—
But <when he became guilty with Baal> Then he died.

11 ||Now|| therefore they go on to sin,
And have made them a Molten Thing out of their silver,—
After the notion* of idols,
<The workmanship of craftsmen> all of it!
<Of them> b are they saying—
Ye sacrificers of men !
<The Great Cal> shall ye surely kiss !

12 <When Jacob fled' to the country of Syria>—
Then Israel served for a wife,
And <for a wife> he watched over a flock.

13 And <by a prophet> Yahweh |brought up| Israel out of Egypt,—
And <by a prophet> was he watched over.

14 Ephraim hath provoked |very bitterly|,—
<His own blood, therefore, upon him> will he leave,
And <his reproach> shall his Lord |bring back to him|.

15 Yet ||I, Yahweh|| have been thy God from the land of Egypt,—
And <god beside me> shalt thou not acknowledge,
For <saviour> is there none' besides me.

16 ||I| tended* thee in the desert,—
In a land parched with drought:
<Whenever they were pastured> then were they satisfied,
They were satisfied, and their heart |was lifted up|,—
<Because of this> they forgot me.

17 Therefore am I become to them as a lion,—
<As a leopard by the way> do I watch.
If I will fall upon them as a bear bereaved,
And will rend asunder the enclosure of their heart,—
That I may devour them there, like a lioness,
||The wild beast of the field| shall tear them in pieces.

18 It hath utterly destroyed thee, O Israel,
For it was against me, as thy helper !

19 Where's' is thy king, then,
That he may save thee throughout all thy cities?
And thy judges,
Concerning whom thou saidst,
Oh give me a king and rulers !
11 I might give thee a king in mine anger,
And take him away in my wrath.

20 <Bound up> is the iniquity of Ephraim,
<Stored away> his sin.
||The pangs of a woman in labour|| shall overtake him,—
||He|| is a son, not wise,4
For ||now'' he cannot stand still, when children are about to be born.'

21 <Out of the hand of hades> will I ransom them,
<Out of death> will I redeem them,—
Where' is thy pestilence, O death?
Where' thy plague, O hades?
||Repentance'' shall be hid from mine eyes.

22 Though ||he|| <among brethren> be fruitful,
The blast of Yahweh out of the desert coming up,
That his spring |may dry up|, and his fountain |be exhausted|,
HOSEA XIII. 16; XIV. 1—9; JOEL I. 1—3.

16 [He] will rob the treasure-house of all the vessels of delight.*
Samaria shall be held guilty, for she hath rebelled against her God,
By the sword shall they fall,
Their infants shall be dashed to the ground,
And his women with child shall be ripped up.

14 1 Return thou, O Israel, unto Yahweh thy God,—
For thou hast stumbled by thine iniquity.*
Take with you words,* and return to Yahweh:
Say* unto him—
Wholly shalt thou take away iniquity.
Accept, then, with favour,
And we will make good the boldness of our lips!

§ 1. An Invasion by Yahweh’s Locust Army occasions general Lament, and calls for united Intercession, the success of which is encouragingly portrayed (chap. i. 2—ii. 27).

1 The word of Yahweh, which came unto Joel, son of Pethuel.

2 Hear this, ye elders,
And give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land,—
Hath this ever happened in your days?
Or in the days of your fathers?
[Concerning it] tell ye the story,—
And your children, to their children,
And their children, to the generation following:—

3 <That which was left by the creeping' locust>* hath the swarming' locust* eaten,
And <that which was left by the swarming' locust> hath the grass' locust* eaten;
And <that which was left by the grass' locust> hath the corn* locust* eaten.

4 Awake, ye drunkards, and weep,
And howl, all ye drinkers of wine,—
Over the new wine,* because it hath been cut off from your mouth.

§ 1. An Invasion by Yahweh’s Locust Army

1 The word of Yahweh, which came unto Joel, son of Pethuel.

2 Hear this, ye elders,
And give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land,—
Hath this ever happened in your days?
Or in the days of your fathers?

3 [Concerning it] tell ye the story,—
And your children, to their children,
And their children, to the generation following:

4 <That which was left by the creeping' locust>* hath the swarming' locust* eaten,
And <that which was left by the swarming' locust> hath the grass' locust* eaten;
And <that which was left by the grass' locust> hath the corn* locust* eaten.

5 Awake, ye drunkards, and weep,
And howl, all ye drinkers of wine,—
Over the new wine,* because it hath been cut off from your mouth.

* Heb.: ḫāḏām, "prop. devourer, not yet winged"—Davies' H.L. "Shearer"—G.A.S.
* Heb.: ṣāḇār, "prop. the devourer, because of its voracity"—Davies' H.L. "Lapper"—G.A.S.
* Heb.: āḇēḏ, "prop. the devourer, because of its voracity"—Davies' H.L. "Lapper"—G.A.S.
* Or: "mead." O.G.: "sweet wine (prop. pressed out juice)."
6 For a nation hath come up over my land,
Bold, and without number,—
His teeth are the teeth of a lion,
And <the fangs of a lioness> hath he!
7 He hath turned my vine to a waste,
And my fig-tree to splinters,—
He hath [barked it clean], and cast it down,
Bleached are its branches.
8 Wail thou, like a virgin girded with sackcloth, for the owner* of her youth.
9 Cut off are the meal-offering and the drink-offering, from the house of Yahweh,—
In grief are the priests, the attendants on Yahweh:—
10 Laid waste is the field,
In grief is the soil,—
For laid waste is the corn,
Abashed is the new wine,
Languished is the oil.
11 Turn pale, ye husbandmen,
Howl, ye vine-dressers,
Over the wheat and over the barley,—
For perished is the harvest of the field.
12 If the vine is abashed,
And if the fig-tree languished,—
Pomegranate, palm also, and apple—
All the trees of the field have withered,
Yea abashed is gladness, away from the sons of men.
13 Gird yourselves and beat the breast—ye priests,
Howl, ye attendants of the altar,
Go in and wrap yourselves for the night in sackcloth, ye attendants on my God,—
For <withheld from the house of your God> are the meal-offering and the drink-offering.
14 Hallow ye a fast,
Call a solemn assembly,
Gather, O elders, all the inhabitants of the land, unto the house of Yahweh your God,—
And make ye outcry unto Yahweh.
15 Alas for the day!
For near is the day of Yahweh,
And <as a veritable Destruction> shall it come.
16 Is it not <before our eyes> that [food] hath been cut off?
<From the house of our God> rejoicing and exultation.
17 Rotted hath the seed, under their clods,
Laid waste are their stores,
Thrown down are the garners,—
Yea abashed is the corn.
18 How do the beasts groan!
Perplexed are the herds of oxen,
Because there is no pasture for them,—
Even [the flocks of sheep] are destroyed!
19 <Unto thee> O Yahweh, will I cry,—
For if a fire hath consumed the pastures of the wilderness,
And  hath set ablaze all the trees of the field.
20 Even the beasts of the field moan unto thee,—
Because dried up are the channels of water,
And  hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

1 Blow ye a horn in Zion,
Sound an alarm in my holy mountain,
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble,—
For coming is the day of Yahweh.
For it is near!—
2 A day of obscurity and deep gloom,
A day of cloud, and thick darkness,
As drud,* spread over the mountains,—
A people, many and bold,
<Like whom> hath not been from age-past times,
And <after whom> shall not be again unto the years of generation after generation.
3 Before him hath a fire devoured,
And <after him> shall a flame consume,—
As the garden of Eden is the land before him,
But <after him> a desert most desolate,
Moreover also <escape> giveth he none.
4 <As the appearance of horses> is his appearance,
And <as war-horses> shall they run:
Like the noise of chariots on the tops of the mountains> shall they rattle along,
Like the noise of a flame of fire, devouring dry straw,—
Like a people bold, arrayed for battle.
6 <Because of him> shall peoples' be in anguish,—
<All faces> have withdrawn their colour.
7 <Like heroes> shall they run,
<Like men of war> shall they mount a wall,—
And <every one—along his own road> shall they march along,
And shall not change their paths;
8 Nor <against each other> shall they strike,6
<Each—on his own highway> shall they march,—
<Though in among the weapons> they fall they shall not stop.

* Heb. "the lea'."
* Cp. Is. xiii. 6, and see O.G. 454.
* Prob. a play on the word.
"And as vehemence from the Vehement doth it come."—G. A. S. (who quotes from Driver: "As overpowering from the Overpowerer.""
* Fuerst: "darkness." But G.A.S.: "Like dawn scattered ... The figure is of dawn crushed by and struggling with a mass of cloud and mist, and expresses the gleams of while which so often break through a focus cloud."
JOEL II. 9—28.

9 <Upon the city> shall they leap,On the wall shall they run,Up the houses shall they climb,—
Through the windows shall they enter, like a thief.*

10 <Before him> hath quaked the earth,have trembled the heavens,— the sun and the moon have become dark,and the stars have withdrawn their shining;Yahweh hath uttered his voice, before his host,For great indeed is his camp,For bold is he who executeth his word,—
For great is the day of Yahweh, and awful exceedingly.Who then shall endure it?

11 <Even now> therefore, Urgeth Yahweh,Turn ye unto me, with all your heart,—And with fasting and with weeping, and with lamentation;and render your heart, and not your garments, Turn therefore, unto Yahweh your God,—
For gracious and full of compassion is he,' Slow to anger, and abundant in loving-kindness,' And will grieve over Calamity. Who knoweth, he may turn and grieve,—And leave behind him, a blessing, A meal-offering and a drink-offering, to Yahweh your God?

12 Blow ye a horn, in Zion,—
Hallow a fast,Call a solemn assembly:Gather the people, and rend your heart, and not your garments, Turn therefore, unto Yahweh your God,—
For he hath shewn himself great in doing.Who is there among you that will hear this day, and live?<

13 § 2. The Promise of the Spirit.
And it shall come to pass, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, —
Your old men shall dream dreams, And your young men shall see visions; —
Your servants and your maidservants in the night visions; —
And upon the young men I will pour out my spirit, and they shall prophesy. —

14 Then answered Yahweh, and said to his people:—
Behold me! sending you the corn, and the new wine and the oil, So shall ye be satisfied therewith; —
And I will not make you, any more, a reproach among the nations.

15 § 2. The Promise of the Spirit.
And it shall come to pass, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, —
Your old men shall dream dreams, And your young men shall see visions; —

16 And Yahweh became jealous for his land,— And took pity on his people; —

17 * N.B.: All the verbs here (vers. 9-9) rendered as "future" may be taken as descriptive presents: "do they leap," "so do they run," etc. And so some expositors.

18 Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Syr., Vul.) omit this "And".—G.A.N.

20 Or: "present." Cp. Josh. xv. 10; Jdg. i. 15; 1 S. xxv. 27.

Moreover also | <upon the servants and upon the handmaids—in those days> will I pour out my spirit;
And I will set forth wonders in the heavens,
and in the earth,—
Blood, and fire, and columns of smoke:
The sun shall be turned into darkness,
And the moon into blood,—
Before the coming of the great' and awful' day of Yahweh.
And it shall come to pass
|Whosoever shall call on the name of Yahweh; shall be delivered,—
For <in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem> shall be a delivered remnant,”
Just as Yahweh hath said,
And among the survivors, whom Yahweh doth call.

§ 3. All Nations, especially those around Palestine, summoned to the Vale of Jehoshaphat to be judged for their Treatment of Judah.

For lo! <in those days, and at that time,—
When I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem>
Then will I gather all the nations,
And bring them down into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—
And will enter into judgment with them there,
Concerning my people, and mine inheritance
Israel,
Whom they scattered among the nations,
And <my land> they apportioned ;
And <for my people> they cast lots,—
And gave a Boy for a harlot,
And a Girl sold they for wine—and drank.

Moreover also| what have ye to do with me,
O Tyre and Zidon,
And all the circuit of Palestine!
<A recompense> are ye paying back unto me?
But <though ye should make a recompense unto me>
Swiftly, speedily would I return your recompense upon your own head.
Because <my silver and my gold> ye took away,—
And <my richly beautiful things> carried ye into your temples;
And <the sons of Judah and the sons of Jerusalem> ye sold to the sons of Greece,—
That they might be far removed from their own boundary.

Behold me! raising them up out of the place
whither ye sold them,—
So will I bring back your dealing upon your own head.
And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the sons of Judah,
And they will sell them to Sabaeans, unto a nation afar off,—
For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken.

Proclaim ye this, among the nations,
Hallow a war,
Rouse the mighty ones,
Let them draw near, come up, all the men
of war!
Beat your plough-shares into swords,
And your pruning-hooks into spears,—
<As for the weak> let him say,
<Mighty> I am'.
Give help—and come in, all ye nations on every side, and gather yourselves to gether,— <Tither> bring down, O Yahweh, thy mighty ones!

Let the nations [be roused, and come up] into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—
For <there> will I sit to judge all the nations, on every side.

Thrust ye in the vintage knife,
For |grown ripe| is the vintage,—
Go in, tread down,
For full is the winepress,
Flow over' do the vats,
For abundant' is their wickedness.

Multitudes, multitudes, in the vale of strict decision,—
For near' is the day of Yahweh, in the vale of strict decision.
<<The sun and the moon> have become dark,—
And <the stars> have withdrawn their shining,
And ||Yahweh|| <out of Zion> will roar,
And <out of Jerusalem> will utter his voice,
And the heavens and the earth shall tremble],—
But ||Yahweh|| shall be a shelter to his people,
And a refuge' to the sons of Israel.
So shall ye know that ||I, Yahweh|| am your God, making my habitation in Zion my holy' mountain,—
So shall [Jerusalem] be |holy|,
And ||foreigners|| shall pass through her no
more.

And it shall come to pass in that day.
That the mountains shall drip' sweet wine,*
And the hills shall flow down with milk,
And ||all the channels of Judah|| shall flow down with waters,—
And ||a spring> <out of the house of
Yahweh> shall come forth,

Or: "mead."
And shall water the torrent-valley of the acacias. *Egypt: <to a desolation> shall be turned, And Edom <to a desert most desolate> shall be changed,— Because of the violence done to the sons of Judah, In that they shed innocent blood in their land.

§ 1. After a brief Introduction and Note of Warning, an Unalterable Divine Threat goes forth, in succession, against Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, Ammon, Moab, Judah, and finally Israel (chaps. i. and ii.).

1 The words of Amos, who was among the herdmen* of Tekoa,—of which (words) he had vision' concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake. * So then he said—

||Ya(hweh) ||<out of Zion> will roar, And <out of Jerusalem> will utter b his voice,— And the pastures of the shepherds shall mourn, And the top of Carmel be dried up. |

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, <Because of three transgressions of Damascus, and because of four> will I not turn it back,— <Because <with threshing instruments of iron> they have threshed Gil-ead> Therefore will I send a fire, into the house of Hazael,— Which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad; And I will break the bolt of Damascus, And cut off the inhabitant out of the plain of Aven,* And the holder of the sceptre' out of the house of Eden,— And the people of Syria shall be exiled unto Kir, Saith Yahweh. |

5 Therefore will I send a fire into the wall of Gaza,— Which shall devour the palaces thereof; And I will cut off the inhabitant* out of Ashdod, And the holder of the sceptre' out of Ashkelon,— And will turn my hand against Ekron, So shall perish' the remnant of the Philistines, Saith My Lord, Yahweh. b

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, <Because of three transgressions of Tyre, and because of four> will I not turn it back,— <Because of their delivering up the whole body of exiles to Edom, And they remembered not the brotherly covenant> Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Tyre,— Which shall devour the palaces thereof.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, <Because of three transgressions of Edom, and because of four> will I not turn it back,— <Because he pursued, with the sword, his brother, And stifled his compassions, And his anger' tare in pieces evermore, And <his indignation> kept watch perpetually > Therefore will I send a fire into Teman,— Which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah. b

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, <Because of three transgressions of the sons of Ammon, and because of four> will I not turn it back,— <Because of their ripping up the pregnant women of Gilead, that they might enlarge their own boundary>

* Or: “shepherds.”
O. G. p. 667, after Sep., Or: “As truly as.” Cp. syr.: “I will avenge the blood of them I had not avenged.”
"Or: “is making.”

AMOS.

7 Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Gaza,— * Which shall devour the palaces thereof; And I will cut off the inhabitant* out of Ashdod, And the holder of the sceptre' out of Ashkelon,— And will turn my hand against Ekron, So shall perish' the remnant of the Philistines, Saith My Lord, Yahweh. b

8 Or, perh.: “him that is seated” = “that reigneth.” Cp. O.P. 442, And so in ver. 5.
9 Or transfer both names: “Adonay, Yahweh.”

20 But Judah ||<age-abidingly> shall remain, And Jerusalem to generation after generation.

21 And I will free from their blood-guiltiness them whom I had not freed,— For b ||Yahweh|| is about to make c his habitation in Zion.

a Or: “shepherds.”
4 Or: “the Idol” = Baalbec (Heliopolis in Syria)— Davies H. L. 17.
6 Or transfer both names: “Adonay, Yahweh.”
8 Or, perh.: “him that is seated” = “that reigneth.” Cp. O.P. 442, And so in ver. 5.
Therefore will I kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah,
Which shall devour the palaces thereof,—
With a war-cry in the day of battle,
With tempest in the day of storm-wind;
And Milcom shall go into exile,—
He and his rulers together.
Saith Yahweh.

Therefore will I send a fire into Moab,
Which shall devour the palaces of Kerioth,—
And Moab shall die with tumult, with war-cry, with the sound of a horn;
And I will cut off the judge out of her midst,
And <all her rulers> will I slay with him.
Saith Yahweh.

Thus saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Judah, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
<Because they have rejected the law of Yahweh,
And <his statutes> have not kept,
But their falsehoods have led them astray,
after the which their fathers did walk;>
Therefore will I send a fire upon Judah,—
Which shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

Thus saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Israel, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
<Because they have sold— for silver— the righteous,
And theneedy— for a pair of shoes:
Who strive to bring* the dust of the earth on the head of the poor,
And <the way of the oppressed> they pervert,—
Yea [a man and his own father] go in unto the maid,
To profane my holy Name!

And <on pledged garments> they recline, beside every altar,—
And <exact'd wine> do they drink, in the house of their God.
Yet it was ||I who destroyed the Amorite,
from before them,
Whose height was ||like the height of cedars,
And ||strong was he, like the oaks,—
But I destroyed his fruit above,
And his roots beneath.

And it was ||I who brought you up out of the land of Egypt,—
And led you in the desert, forty years,
To take possession of the land of the Amorites;
And I raised up, of your sons, for prophets,
And, of your young men, for Nazirites,—
Was it not even so, ye sons of Israel?
Demandeth Yahweh;
And yet ye caused the Nazirites’ to drink wine,—
And <on the prophets> laid ye command, saying,
Ye shall not prophesy!

Lo! ||I am pressed under you,—
As a full cart is pressed by its sheaves>
Therefore shall flight perish from the swift,
And ||the mighty shall not invigorate his strength,—
Nor shall ||the hero escape with his life;
Nor ||the hero handleth the bow bow a stand,
And ||the swift on his feet shall not escape,—
Nor ||the hero doth ride on a horse escape with his life;
Nay ||he that is stout in his heart, among heroes <naked> shall flee in that day,
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 2. A First Solemn Summonsto the Whole Family of Israel.
Hear ye this word, which Yahweh hath spoken:
Concerning you, ye sons of Israel,—Concerning the whole family which I brought up out of the land of Egypt, saying:—
<Only you> have I acknowledged, of all the families of the ground,—
<For this cause> will I visit upon you all your iniquities.

Can two walk together,—
Except they meet?
Will a lion roar in the forest,
When <prey> he hath none?
Will a young lion utter his voice out of his den,
When he hath made no capture?
Will a bird fall upon an net to the earth,
When there is no ||snare|| for it?
Will a net rise from the ground,
When it hath ||captured nothing||?
Or a horn be blown in a city,
And ||people> not tremble?
Or calamity happen in a city,
And ||Yahweh> not have wrought with effect?

Surely My Lord Yahweh ||will do|| nothing,—except he have disclosed his secret unto his servants, the prophets!

§ 3. A Second Summon*, beginning with the Luxurious Women of Samaria, and culminating in a Firefold Refrain of Divine Complaint.

4. 1 Hear ye this word, ye heifers of Bashan, that are in the mountain of Samaria, Who oppress the poor, Who crush the needy,— Who say to their lords, Bring in, and let us drink!

5. Sworn' hath My Lord, Yahweh,*
By his own holiness,
That lo! [days] are coming upon you,—
When he will take you away with hooks,
And your followers' with fishhooks;
And <through fissures> shall ye go out,
[Every woman] straight before her,—
And ye shall be thrust forth towards the castle.
Declareth Yahweh.

4. Enter ye Bethel, and transgress,
<At Gilgal> cause transgression to abound,—
Yea, carry in, every morning, your sacrifices,
<Every three days> your tithes;
Yea, burn thou incense, of that which is leavened, as a thank-offering,
And proclaim ye freewill-offerings, let them be known,—
For [so] ye love [to have it], ye sons of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.*

6. Moreover also ||I|| have given you Cleanness of teeth throughout all your cities,
And want of bread throughout all your dwelling-places,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me.
Declareth Yahweh.

7. Moreover also ||I|| have withheld from you the abundant rain, when yet' there were only three months to the harvest,
Or I might rain upon one' city,
And <on another' city> might not rain,—
[One portion would be rained upon,
And [the portion whereupon it should not rain] would be dried up;]
Then would two or three cities toter' to one city to drink water, without being satisfied,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me.
Declareth Yahweh.

9. I have smitten you with blight and with mildew,
<When your gardens and your vineyards and your fig-trees and your olive-trees have increased> the creeping locust would devour them,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me.
Declareth Yahweh.

10. I have sent among you pestilence, in the manner of Egypt,
I have slain, with the sword, your young men,
And therewith have been taken captive your horses,
And I have caused to ascend— the stench of your camps, even into your own nostrils,
Yet ye have not returned unto me.
Declareth Yahweh.

* Or two proper names: "Adonay, Yahweh." * Some cod. (w. Aram. and Vul.): "So shall be brought down"—G.n. * Or as two proper names: "Adonay, Yahweh."
I have made an overthrow among you,
Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah,
And ye have become like a brand snatched out of the burning,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me.
Declareth Yahweh.

Therefore thus will I do unto thee, O Israel,—
Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

For lo! He that fashioned the mountains,
And created the wind.
And who telleth the son of earth what is his thought,
Who turneth dawn into darkness,
And marcheth upon the high places of the earth>
Yahweh, God of hosts is his name!

§4. A third Summons, commencing with a Dirge, and widening out into an Exhortation: "Seek Me"—"Seek Yahweh"—"Seek Right."

Hear ye this word, which I am taking up concerning you—
Even a dirge, O house of Israel.

She hath fallen—she cannot again rise,
The virgin, Israel,—
She lieth forsaken on her soil,
There is none to raise her up.

For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, the city that goeth out a thousand strong Shall have left it but a hundred,—
And that which goeth out a hundred strong Shall have left it ten, Belonging to the house of Israel.

For thus saith Yahweh, to the house of Israel,—
Seek me, and live;
Then do not seek Bethel,
And <Gilgal> shall ye not enter,
And <unto Beer-sheba> shall ye not cross over,
For <Gilgal> shall surely go into exile,
And <Bethel> shall become a trouble.

Seek ye Yahweh, and live,—
Lest he break forth, like a fire, upon the house of Joseph,
And it devour with none to quench it, for Bethel.

Ye who turn <into wormwood> justice,
And <righteousness—to the ground have let fall>

[Seek him]
Who made the Cluster* and the Giant,6
And turneth, into morning, the shadow of death,
And who <day into night> doth darken,
Him who calleth to the waters of the sea,
and poureth them out on the face of the land.

Yahweh is his name:

Him who flasheth force on the strong,—
And <force> on the fortress alighteth!

They hate the man who, in the gate, rebuketh,—
And <him who speaketh truthfully> they abhor.

For I know
How numerous are your transgressions, and
How surpassing your sins,—
Ye adversaries of the righteous!
Ye acceptors of a bribe!

Even the needy in the gate have they turned away!

Therefore ||the prudent man|| <at that time> will be dumb,—
Because <an evil time> it is!

Seek ye right and not wrong, that ye may live,—
That <so> Yahweh God of hosts, may be' with you, <as ye have said>.

Hate wrong, and love right,
And station <Justice> in the gate,— <Peradventure> Yahweh, God of hosts, will be gracious' unto the remnant of Joseph.

Therefore ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of hosts,

<In all broadways> shall be lamentation,
And <in all streets> they shall say, Alas! Alas!
And they shall call the husbandman' unto the mourning,
And <unto the lamentation> them who know a wailing song;"8

Yea <in all vineyards> lamentation,—
For I will pass along through thy midst,
Saith Yahweh.
§ 5. A Lament for such as long for Yahweh's Day, when it can bring them no good.

18 Alas for them who are longing for the day of Yahweh,—
[What good to you] is the day of Yahweh?
[It] being darkness and not light:
19 As if a man should flee from the face of a Lion, And there should meet him—a Bear! Or he should have entered the house, and leaned his hand upon the wall, And there should bite him—a Serpent!

20 Shall not the day of Yahweh be darkness and not light? Yes, thick darkness, and no brightness in it?

§ 6. Divine Abhorrence of Israel's Festivals.

21 I hate, I despise your festivals,—And can scent no fragrance in your solemn feasts.
22 Nay <though ye cause to ascend unto me ascending sacrifices, and your meal-offerings> I will not accept [them],—Nor the peace-offering of your fat heifers will I regard.
23 Take thou away from me, the noise of thy songs,—<Even the melody of thy harps> will I not hear.
24 But let [justice] roll along like water!,—And [righteousness] as a torrent ever flowing.
25 <The sacrifices and meal-offerings> ye brought near unto me, in the desert, for forty years, O house of Israel; 4
26 But ye carried the tent of your king-idol,* and your Saturn-images,—the star of your gods, which ye made for yourselves:
27 Therefore will I carry you into exile beyond Damascus,—
[God of hosts] is his name.

1 Alas for the careless in Zion, And for them who put confidence in the mountain of Samaria,—The distinguished among the first group of nations, To whom came in the house of Israel.
2 Pass ye over to Calneh, and see, And go on from thence to Hamath the great,
And go down to Gath of the Philistines. Are they better* than these kingdoms? Or their boundary larger' than your boundary?
3 Ye who are putting far away the day of calamity,—But bringing near the abode of violence:
4 Who are lying on beds of ivory, And sprawling on their couch of pleasure,—And eating the well-fed of the flock, And the fattened calves out of the midst of the stalls:
5 Who are bowling at the bidding of the harp.6—<Like David> have they invented for themselves instruments of song:*
6 Who are quaffing bowls of wine, And <with the best of oils> anointing themselves,—And are not afflicted for the injury of Joseph:
7 Therefore] <at once> shall they go into exile among the first of the exiles,—So shall be disturbed the revelry of sprawlers.
8 Sworn hath the Lord, Yahweh,† by his own life, 5 Declareth Yahweh, God of hosts, 4b [Abhorring am I] the grandeur of Jacob, And <his palaces> I hate,—Therefore will I cast off the city and the fulness thereof.
9 And it shall come to pass, <Though there be left remaining ten men in one house> Yet shall they die;
10 And a man's near of kin, even he who is about to burn the bones, shall carry him out of the house,
<When he shall say to him that is in the hinder parts of the house — Are there yet any with thee? And he shall say— No one > Then shall he say—Hush! for we must not invoke the name of Yahweh.
11 For lo! ||Yahweh is giving command, and will smite The great house into ruins,—And the little house with clefts.
12 Shall horses' run upon a crag? Or will a man plough [there] with oxen 1k For ye have turned to poison the sentence of justice, And the fruit of righteousness, to wormwood:

a Some cod. (w. Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "Who are better... whether their b. is," etc.—G.n.
4 Or: "Or shall one plough—with an ox—the sea."
878 AMOS VI. 13, 14; VII. 1—17.

13 Who rejoice in a thing of nought,*—
Who say, Have we not, by our own strength, taken to ourselves horns?
14 For behold me! raising up against you, O house of Israel,
Declareth Yahweh, the God of hosts,— a nation!
And they shall crush you, from the entering in of Hamath, unto the torrent-bed of the waste plain.

§ 8. Amos, moved by Two Visions, twice makes successful Intercession for Jacob: a Third Vision—No more Forgiveness!

7 § Here My Lord, Yahweh gave me to see,
And lo! he was preparing the locust, in the beginning of the shooting up of the after grass,—and lo! after-grass cometh after the mowings for the king.
And it came to pass <when they had made an end of eating the herbage of the land> that I
said—
Oh, My Lord, Yahweh, forgive, I beseech
thee:
By whom shall Jacob arise?
For [small] he is.

3 Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—
It shall not be,
Said Yahweh.*

4 § Here My Lord, Yahweh gave me to see,
And lo! My Lord Yahweh proclaiming that the controversy should be settled by fire,— which having devoured the mighty roaring deep, should devour the inheritance.
Then said I,
My Lord, Yahweh, forbear, I beseech thee,
By whom shall Jacob arise?
For [small] he is.

Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—
Even this shall not be Said My Lord, Yahweh.

7 § Here he gave me to see, And lo! My Lord stationed upon a pinnacle,—and, in his hand, a plummet.*
And Yahweh said unto me,
What canst thou see, Amos?
And I said,
A plummet,—
Then said My Lord,
Behold me! fixing a plummet in the midst of my people Israel,
I will not again any more forgive him.

9 So shall the high places of Isaac [be made desolate],
And [the holy places of Israel] be laid waste,—
And I will rise up, against the house of Jeroboam, with the sword.

§ 9. Amaziah, Priest of Bethel, attempts to silence
Amos; who defends himself by relating his call to the Prophetic Office, and proceeds to fasten Amaziah definite alarming Predictions.

10 Then sent Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, unto Jeroboam king of Israel, saying:
A conspiracy hath Amos raised against thee,
in the midst of the house of Israel,
The land is not able to endure all his words;
For [thus] saith Amos,
<By the sword> shall Jeroboam die,—
And [Israel] shall surely be exiled from off his own soil.

12 Then said Amaziah unto Amos,
O seer,* go flee thee away unto the land of Judah,—
And eat, there, bread,
And <there> mayest thou prophesy;
But <at Bethel> not again, any more mayest thou prophesy,—
For <the holy place of the king> it is,
And <the house of the kingdom> it is.

14 Then answered Amos, and said unto Amaziah,
No prophet was I,—
Nor the son of a prophet was I,—
But  was I,—
And a preparer of sycamore fruit;*
But Yahweh took me away from following the flock,—and Yahweh said unto me,
Go prophesy against my people Israel.
16 § Now therefore, hear thou the word of Yahweh,— Thou' art saying,
Thou must not prophesy concerning
Israel,
Nor let thy word drop down upon the house of Isaac.

Therefore—
Thus saith Yahweh,
Thy wife <in the city> will commit unchastity,
And <thy sons and thy daughters> <by the sword> shall fall,
And <thine own soil> <by line> shall be apportioned,—
And <thou> <on a polluted soil> shalt die,
And [Israel] shall surely go into exile away from his own soil.

§10. A Basket of Summer Fruit (kaiz) symbolises Israel’s End (k&j). Gross Sins call forth Threats of Divers Calamities, including a Famine of the Prophetic Word.

8 1 "Here My Lord, Yahweh, gave me to see,"— and lo! there was a basket of summer fruit. So then he said,

What canst thou see, Amos?

And I said,

A basket of summer fruit.

Then said Yahweh unto me.

The end hath come to my people Israel,

I will not again forgive them; but palace-songs shall become howlings in that day,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh—

Many shall be the dead bodies in every place— cast forth— [with a] Hush!

§11. Offenders cannot escape; yet, though both the Sinful Kingdom and Boastful Individuals be destroyed, the House of Jacob shall not utterly perish.

1 I saw My Lord stationed by the altar, and he said—

Smite the capital—that the sills may tremble,

Yea break them off on the head of them all,

And [the last of them]c <with the sword> will I slay,—

He that fleeth of them shall not flee away,

And he that escapeth of them shall not make good his escape.

2 <Though they break through into hades>

[From thence] shall my hand fetch them,—

And <though they ascend the heavens>

[From thence] will I bring them down;

3 And <though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel>

[From thence] will I search for them and take them,—

And <though they conceal themselves from before mine eyes at the bottom of the sea>

[From thence] will I command the serpent and he shall bite them;

4 And <though they go into captivity before their enemies>

[From thence] will I command the sword, and it shall slay them,—

So will I set mine eyes upon them for calamity, and not for blessing.

6 Now My Lord, Yahweh of hosts is he—

Who toucheth the earth, and it melteth, And all that dwell therein mourn; And it cometh up like the Nile, all of it, And subsideth like the river of Egypt:

11 Lo! days’ are coming.

 Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,

That I will send a hunger throughout the land,—

Not a hunger for food, Nor a thirst for water, But for hearing the words of Yahweh;—

Therefore shall men rove about—

From Sea to Sea, and From the North even unto Sunrise,—

They shall run to and fro— seeking the word of Yahweh, but shall not find [it].

13 <In that day> shall the fair virgins and the choice young men faint for thirst.

14 They who swear by the Guilt of Samaria, And say,— As thy God liveth, O Dan! And As the Way of Beer-sheba liveth Shall fall, and shall not rise any more.
AMOS IX. 6—15; OBADIAH I. 1—3.

6 Who buildeth, in the heavens, his upper rooms,*
   And <as for his vault> | upon the earth |
   hath he founded it,—
   Who calleth to the waters of the sea, and poureth them out over the face of the land,
   ||Yahweh|| is his name.

7 <Like the sons of the Ethiopians> are not iye| unto me, O sons*| of Israel?*
   Demaneth Yehweh:

   Was it not [Israel] I brought up out of the land of Egypt,
    And the Philistines out of Caphtor,∗
   And the Syrians out of Kir?∗

8 Lo! |the eyes of My Lord, Yahweh||* are on the sinful' kingdom,
   And I will destroy it' from off the face of
   the ground.—
Save only† that I will not iutterly destroy||
   the house of Jacob,

   Declareth Yahweh.

9 For lo! I am giving command, and will sift throughout all the nations, the house of Israel,—as grain is sifted in a sieve,
Yet shall there not fall a kernel, to the earth.

10 <By the sword> shall die all the sinners of 15 So will I plant them upon their own soil,—

   And will not uproot them any more from off their own soil, which I have given to them,
   Saith Yahweh thy God.

OBADIAH.

1 1 The vision of Obadiah,—

   ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,*
   Concerning Edom—
   <A rumour> have we heard from Yahweh,
   And ||a herald| throughout the nations|
   hath been sent,
   Up! and let us rise against her to war.

   * Or both as proper names: "Adonây, Yahweh."

2 Lo! <small> have I made thee, among the nations,— Despised' art thou exceedingly!

3 ||The insolvency of thy heart|| hath deceived
   thee,
   O thou that inhabitest
   The retreats of the crag,
   The height of his habitation,*—
   That saith in his heart,
   Who shall bring me down to the ground?

   * I.e.: "his high habitation." But Gr.: "on high is his habitation"—G.n.
Though thou build high like an eagle,
And though thou set thy nest;
From thence will I bring thee down,
Declareth Yahweh.

If thieves had come to thee,
If robbers by night—how ruined thou art!
Would they not have stolen what sufficed them?

If grape-gatherers had come to thee,
Would they not have left gleanings?

How have the things of Esau been searched out!*
his treasures been sought up!

Up to the boundary have they sent thee—
All thy covenant men,
They have deceived thee, prevailed against thee—
The men thou wast wont to salute,*—
The partakers of thy bread*f have put a net under thee—
No understanding in him!*

Shall it not be in that day*
Demandeth Yahweh,—
That I will destroy
The wise men out of Edom,
And understanding out of Mount Esau?

So shall thy mighty men, O Teman,* be dismayed;—
To the intent that every man may be cut off* out of Mount Esau, by slaughter.

For thy violence against thy brother Jacob shall shame over thee,—
So shall thou be cut off, to times age-abiding.

In the day when thou didst take thy stand over against him,
In the day when foreigners took captive his forces,—
Andaliens entered his gates,* and over Jerusalem cast lots>
Even thou wast like one of them!

Do not, then, look with satisfaction
Upon the day of thy brother,
Upon the day of his calamity,
Neither rejoice over the sons of Judah —
In the day of their ruin—
Nor enlarge thy mouth*—
In the day of distress:

Do not enter into the gate of my people—
In the day of their misfortune,
Do not* [thou also] look with satisfaction on his misery—
In the day of his misfortune;
Neither do thou thrust [thy hands] on his sub stance—
In the day of his misfortune;
Neither do thou stand at the parting of the way,*
To cut off his fugitives,—
Neither do thou deliver up his survivors—
In the day of distress.

For> is the day of Yahweh, upon all
Just as thou hast done> shall it be done to thee,
Thy dealing shall come back upon thine own head.

For> ye have drunk on my holy mountain>
All the nations shall drink* continually,*—
Yea they shall drink and swallow down,*
And shall be, as though they had not been.

But> in Mount Zion> shall be a delivered remnant* which shall be holy,—
And the house of Jacob shall possess their own possessions;* f
And the house of Jacob* shall be a fire*.
And the house of Joseph* a flame*.
With the house of Esau for stubble,
So shall they kindle upon them, and devour them,—
And there shall be no survivor to the house of Esau,
For Yahweh hath spoken.

Then shall they of the South possess Mount Esau,
And they of the Lowlands, the Philistines,
And they of the Mountain shall possess the field of Ephraim, and the field of Samaria,—
And Benjamin[shall possess] Gilad;
And they of the captivity of this force pertaining to the sons of Israel[shall possess] that of the Canaanites, up to Zarephath,
And they of the captivity of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad,[shall possess] shall possess the cities of the South.*

And saviours shall come up in Mount Zion,
To judge the mountain of Esau,—
So shall the kingdom[belong unto Yahweh].
JONAH.

§ 1. Jonah, commissioned to proclaim against Nineveh for her Wickedness, flees from Duty by taking Ship for Tarshish. A Storm overtaking the Vessel, the Sailors reluctantly cast the Prophet into the Sea, when a great Fish swallows him; he prays as out of the Belly of Hades, and is vomited upon Dry Land.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jonah son of Amittai, saying:
2 Arise, get thee to Nineveh the great city, and proclaim unto it,—That their wickedness hath come up before me.

3 But Jonah arose to flee unto Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh,—and went down to Joppa, and found a ship going to Tarshish, so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them to Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh.

4 But Yahweh hurled a great wind against the sea, and there arose a mighty tempest in the sea,—and the ship thought to be broken in pieces. Then drew near unto him the shipmaster, and said to him.

What meanest thou, O sound sleeper? Arise, cry unto thy God, Peradventure God will think himself of us, that we perish not.

And they said—everyone unto his fellow. Come, and let us cast lots, that we may to know for whose sake this calamity is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

Then said they unto him.
Tell us, we pray thee, for whose sake this calamity is upon us?

What is thy business? and from whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

And he said unto them.
<A Hebrew> am I,—and <Yahweh, the God of the heavens> do I revere, him whomodethesea, and the dry land.

Then did the men revere with great reverence, and said unto him.
What is it thou hast done?

For the men knew that <away from the presence of Yahweh> he' was fleeing,—for he had told them. Then said they unto him, What shall we do to thee, that the sea may cease raging over us?

For <the sea> was raging more and more. And he said unto them.
Take me up, and hurl me into the sea, that the sea may cease raging over you,—for I do know that <for my sake> is this great tempest upon you.

Nevertheless the men wrought hard to bring it back unto the land, but could not,—for <the sea> was raging over them more and more. Then cried they unto Yahweh, and said.
Ah now, Yahweh, pray let it not be that we perish for this man's life,—neither lay upon us innocent blood,—for <thou, O Yahweh> <as thou hast pleased> hast ever done.

So they took up Jonah and hurled him into the sea,—and the sea left off her roaring.

Then did the men revere <Yahweh> with a great reverence,—and offered sacrifice to Yahweh, and vowed vows.

Now Yahweh had appointed a great fish, to swallow up Jonah,—and Jonah was in the belly of the fish, three days and three nights. Then prayed Jonah, unto Yahweh, his God,—out of the belly of the fish; and said—
I cried—out of my distress—unto Yahweh, And he answered me,—
<Out of the belly of hades> called I, Thou didst hear my voice.

For thou hast cast me into the deep, into the heart of the seas, And a flood enveloped me,—
||All thy breakers and thy rolling waves|| <over me> passed.

And I said,
I am driven out from before thine eyes,—Yet will I again have regard unto thy holy temple:*

The waters encompassed me, to the peril of my life, ||The roaring deep|| enveloped me,—
||The sea-weed|| was wrapped about my head.

9 But II <with the voice* of praise> will sacrifice unto thee, <What I have vowed > I will pay,— Salvation* belongeth to Yahweh !

10 So then Yahweh spake' unto the fish.—and it vomited out Jonah, upon the dry land.

§ 2. Again commissioned. Jonah this time obeyed, and proclaims to Nineveh her impending Destruction; whereupon People and Monarch humble themselves for their Sins, and cry unto God for Mercy—which is granted, and Nineveh is spared.

1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jonah, the second time. Saying:
2 Arise, get thee unto Nineveh, the great city,— and cry against it the cry that I am bidding thee.
3 So Jonah arose', and went his way unto Nineveh, according to the word of Yahweh,— Nineveh; being a city great before God, of three days' journey. So Jonah began' to enter into the city, one day's journey,— and he cried out and said—<Yet forty days> and Nineveh is to be overthrown !

5 And the people of Nineveh believed'in God, — and proclaimed a fast, and clothed themselves in sackcloth, from the greatest of them, even unto the least of them. And the word reached' unto the king of Nineveh, so he arose from his throne, and laid aside his robe from off him,—and covered him with sackcloth, and sat on ashes. And he caused an outcry to be made — and said— throughout Nineveh, < By decree of the king and of his great men> •

6 Let both man and beast [cover themselves with sackcloth], And let them cry unto God, mightily,— Yes let them turn, every man from his wicked way, and from the violence which is in their hands:

9 Who knoweth whether God himself— [may turn and grieve],— and turn away from the glow of his anger, That we perish not?

10 And God saw' their doings, that they turned from their wicked way,— and God was grieved' over the calamity which he had spoken of executing upon them, and executed it not.

§ 3. Jonah, chafing at the Divine Clemency, which he protests he had expected, asks to die; but, instead of obtaining his Request, by the help of a Gourd, is taught a useful Lesson.

1 And it was vexing unto Jonah, with a great vexation,—and it angered him. So he prayed unto Yahweh, and said,— Ah now! Yahweh! Was not |this| my word, while I was yet upon mine own soil?

2 For this cause did I hasten to flee unto Tarshish,— Because I knew that [thou] art a God of favour and compassion, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness,* and art grieved over calamity.

3 ||Now|| therefore, O Yahweh, take, I pray thee, my life* from me,—for it were better* for me [to die], than [to live].

4 Then said Yahweh, Art thou rightly' angry ?

5 But Jonah |went forth| out of the city, and abode on the east side of the city ; and made for himself there,a hut. and sat under it, in the shade, until he should see what would become of the city.6 Now Yahweh God appointed* a gourd,* and caused it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shade over his head, to deliver him from his vexation,— and Jonah rejoiced* over the gourd, with great rejoicing. 7 And it came to pass <at the breaking forth of the sun> that God appointed* a sultry east wind, and the sun smote upon the head of Jonah, that he became faint,—and asked his life,* that he might die, and said, It were <better> for me [to die], than [to live].

8 Then said God unto Jonah, Art thou rightly' angry, over the gourd ?

10 And God saw their doings, that they turned from their wicked way,— and God was grieved over the calamity which he had spoken of executing upon them, and executed it not.
And he said,
I am rightly angry, unto death.

Then said Yahweh,
[Thou] wouldst have spared the gourd, for which thou hast not toiled, neither hadst thou made it grow,— which [as the offspring of a night] came up.

§ 1. A brief Introduction, identifying the Prophet, recording his Invocation of all the Earth to hear Yahweh's witness against his People, and describing the effects of the Divine Appearing.

The word of Yahweh which came unto Micah
the Morashtite,* in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah,— of which he had vision concerning Samaria, and Jerusalem:—

Hear, ye peoples [all of you];
Hearken, O earth and the fulness thereof,—
And let My Lord Yahweh be among you for a witness,
[My Lord] out of his holy temple.]

For lo! [Yahweh] coming forth out of his place,—
That he may descend, and march along upon the high places of the earth.

Then shall the mountains be melted beneath
him,
And [the valleys] be cleft,—
As wax before the fire,
As waters poured out in a steep place.

Therefore will I make of Samaria
A heap in a field;
The plantings in a vineyard,—
And I will pour down, into the valley, her
stones,
And [her foundations] will I lay bare;
And [all her images] shall be beaten in pieces,
And [all her rewards for unchastity] shall be burned in the fire,
And [all her idols] will I make a desola
tion,—
For [out of the reward of unchastity] she gathered [them],
And [unto the reward of unchastity] shall
they return.

Therefore will I lament and howl,
I will go stripped and bare,—
I will make a lamentation, like the wild
dogs,
And a mourning, like ostriches.*

For dangerous are her wounds,—
For she hath come as far as Judah,
She hath reached
as far as the gate of my people,
as far as Jerusalem.

In Gath do not tell,
In Accho do not weep,—
In Beth-laphrah roll yourselves in dust.

Therefore will I make of Samaria
A heap in a field;
The plantings in a vineyard,—
And I will pour down, into the valley, her
stones,
And [her foundations] will I lay bare;
And [all her images] shall be beaten in
pieces,
And [all her rewards for unchastity] shall be
burned in the fire,
And [all her idols] will I make a desola
tion,—
For [out of the reward of unchastity] she gathered [them],
And [unto the reward of unchastity] shall
they return.

Therefore will I lament and howl,
I will go stripped and bare,—
I will make a lamentation, like the wild
dogs,
And a mourning, like ostriches.*

as far as the gate of my people,
as far as Jerusalem.

Pass thou over (for you), thou inhabitress of Shaphir, of disgraceful disclosure.

The inhabitress of Zaanan hath not gone forth, yet there came down calamity from Yahweh, to the gate of Jerusalem.

Bind the chariot to the steed, O inhabitress of Lachish.

At the lamentation of Beth-ezel shall he take from you his station, though the inhabitress of Maroth waited for blessing,

Yet there came down calamity from Yahweh, to the gate of Jerusalem.

Bind the chariot to the steed, O inhabitress of Lachish.

And so they oppress the master and his household, the man and his inheritance.

Alas for them who devise iniquity and work wickedness upon their beds.

Therefore shall thou have none to throw a measuring-line by lot, in the convocation of Yahweh.

Do not sputter—

They must not sputter as to these things.

O thou who art said to be the house of Jacob, Is the spirit of Yahweh impatient? Or are these his doings? Are not his words pleasant to him who is upright in his walk?

But against my people as an enemy he setteth himself, from off the robe they tear away the cloak, from such as are passing by with confidence, as men averse from war.

The time shall yet be when I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Mareshah, as far as Adullam shall enter the glory of Israel.

Make thee bald, and cut off thy hair, for the children of thy pleasures. Enlarge thy baldness like a vulture, for they are exiled from thee.

Alas for them who devise iniquity and work wickedness upon their beds.

Therefore shalt thou give a dismissal, against Moreserah-path, for the houses of Achzib served for a deception to the kings of Israel.

The time shall yet be when I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Lachish, as far as Adullam shall enter the glory of Israel.

Thus do they covet fields and seize them, and houses and take them away, and so they oppress the master and his household, the man and his inheritance.

Therefore shall thou have none to throw a measuring-line by lot, in the convocation of Yahweh.

The houses of Achzib served for a deception to the kings of Israel.

The time shall yet be when I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Maresah, as far as Adullam shall enter the glory of Israel.

And so they oppress the master and his household, the man and his inheritance.

Behold me! devising, against this family, a calamity.

From which ye shall not remove your neck, and shall ye walk lofty, and for a time of calamity shall it be.

In that day shall one take up against you a by-word, and lament a lamentable lamentation, saying—

We are made utterly desolate, the portion of my people he passeth to others, how doth he set me aside?

Who saith to thee, concerning wine and strong drink—

Arise ye and depart, for this is not the place of rest, for a time of calamity shall it be.

If there be a man who goeth after wind, and falsehood hath woven, saying—

I will discourse to thee, concerning wine and strong drink.

Then shall he become a fountain of discourse unto this people.

I will surely assemble all the remnant of Israel, at once will I make them like sheep in distress, like a flock in the midst of its pasture shall they hum with men.

One making a breach hath gone up before them, they have broken in and passed through, and by the gate have departed, and their king hath passed through before them, with Yahweh at their head!

1 Then said I, Hear, I pray you, ye heads of Jacob, and ye judges of the house of Israel, is it not yours to know justice? ye haters of right, and lovers of wrong, tearing away their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones;
Who indeed have eaten the flesh of my people,
And their skin from off them have stript,
And their bones have they broken in pieces,—
And will spread them out, as flesh with a fork,
And as flesh, in the midst of a pot.

Then shall they make outcry unto Yahweh,
But he will not answer them,—
That he may hide his face from them, at that time,
Even as they have made wicked their doings.

Thus saith Yahweh, Concerning the prophets who are leading astray my people,—
Who bite with their teeth, and then cry—Prosper!—
<And whoso holdeth not to their mouth> they hallow against him a war!

Night to you, for lack of vision,
And darkness to you, for lack of divination,—
And the sun shall go in over the prophets,
And the day shall be overcast because of them;
And the men of vision shall turn pale,
And the diviners shall blush,
And shall put a covering upon their lip, all of them,—
Because there is no answer of God.

But in very deed I am full of vigour,
With the spirit of Yahweh,
And of justice and of valour,—
To declare to Jacob, his transgression, and to Israel, his sin.

Hear this, I pray you,
Ye heads of the house of Jacob, and Ye judges of the house of Israel,—
Who abhor justice,
And <all right> do pervert:—Building Zion, with deeds of blood,—
And Jerusalem, with perversion.

Her heads <for a bribe> pronounce sentence,
And <her priests> <for a price> give direction,
And <her prophets> <for silver> divine,—
Yet <on Yahweh> they lean, saying, Is not [Yahweh] in our midst?
There shall not come upon us calamity.

Zion [as a field] shall be ploughed,
And Jerusalem unto heaps of ruins shall be turned,—
And the mountain of the house shall [be] like mounds in a jungle.

§ 3. In strong Contrast with Jerusalem’s Punishment just described is set forth her ultimate and abiding Royal Destiny.

But it shall come to pass [in the afterpart† of the days]
That the mountain of the house of Yahweh Shall be [setup] as the head of the mountains,
And <exalted> shall it be, above the hills,—
And peoples shall stream thereunto;
Yea many nations shall go, and say—Come ye, and let us ascend Unto the mountain of Yahweh, and Unto the house of the God of Jacob, That he may teach us of his ways,
And we may walk in his paths,—
For <out of Zion> shall go forth a law,
And <the word of Yahweh> out of Jerusalem;

And he will judge between many peoples,
And be umpire to strong nations far and wide,—
And they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks, [Nation against nation]—shall not lift up sword,
Neither shall they learn—any more—to make war.

And they shall dwell—every man—Under his own vine and Under his own fig-tree;
With none to make them afraid,—
For [the mouth of Yahweh of hosts] hath spoken.

For [all the peoples] walk, every man in the name of his god,—
Wherefore, will walk in the name of Yahweh our God, to times age-abiding and beyond.

 Declareth Yahweh,
Will I take up her that is lame, And <her that hath been an outcast> will I carry,—
Even whomsoever I have afflicted;
And will make of her that was lame a residue,
And of her that was removed far away a strong nation,—
And Yahweh shall be king over them, in Mount Zion, From henceforth, even unto times age-abiding.

Thou therefore, O Migdal-eder* Mound of the daughter of Zion,
As far as thee shall it come,—
So shall arrive the chief dominion, The kingdom of the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Meanwhile therefore shouldst thou cry out aloud!

Or hath thy counsellor perished? For labour hath seized thee, as a woman in child-birth:

10 Be in labour, and bear, O daughter of Zion, as a woman in child-birth,—

And shalt thou be delivered, as out of the grasp of thine enemies, And their substance, to the Lord of all the earth.

§ 5. When Israel shall have received her Messiah, and been herself, as a Nation, restored, she will find no Difficulty in dealing with Assyria: the Remnant of Jacob among the Nations being, then, like nourishing Dew or like a destroying Lion.

<As for Assyria—
When he shall enter our land, and When he shall tread down in our bounds>

Then will we raise up against him, Seven shepherds, and Eight princes of mankind.

6 Then shall they shepherd the land of Assyria with the sword, And the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof,— So shall he deliver from Assyria, When he shall enter our land, and When he shall tread down within our bounds.

And [the remnant of Jacob] shall be [Among the nations,
In the midst of many peoples,
As a lion among the beasts of the jungle, As a young lion among flocks of sheep, — Who if he passeth by > Both treadeth down—And teareth in pieces, And none can deliver.

And [all thine enemies] shall be cut off.

§ 6. But Israel must herself be delivered from her old sins and from all forbidden Grounds of Trust.

10 And it shall come to pass <in that day>

Declareth Yahweh,

That I will cut off thy horses out of thy midst,—
And will destroy thy chariots;
And will cut off the cities of thy land,—
And will pull down all thy fortresses;
And will cut off incantations, out of thy hand,—
And <users of hidden arts> shalt thou not have;
And I will cut off thine images b and thy pillars, out of thy midst,—
And thou shalt not bow thyself down, any more, to the work c of thine own hands;
And I will uproot thy Sacred Stems out of thy midst,—
And will destroy thy cities:

Then will I execute,
With anger and with indignation,
Vengeance upon the nations,—
Of which they have not heard.

§ 7. A Renewal of the Controversy (§ 2) between Yahweh and his People.

6 1 Hear, I pray you, what ||Yahweh|| is saying,—

Arise thou, maintain thy controversy before the mountains,
And let the hills hear thy voice:—

2 Hear, ye mountains, the controversy of Yahweh,
And ye lasting rocks, the foundations of the earth,—

For  hath Yahweh, with his people,
And <with Israel> will he dispute."

O my people! what have I done to thee?
And wherein have I wearied thee?
Testify e thou against me!

4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt,
And <out of the house of slaves> I ransomed thee,—
And I sent before thee, Moses, Aaron and Miriam.

5 O my people! remember, I pray you,
What Balak king of Moab [counselled], and What Balaam son of Beor [answered him],—

From the Acacias as far as Gilgal,
That ye may know the righteousness of Yahweh.

6 Wherewith shall I come before Yahweh? bow myself to God on high?
Shall I come before him with ascending-sacrifices?
with calves of a year old?

7 Will Yahweh [be pleased] with thousands of rams:
with myriads of torrents of oil?
Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression?
the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath told thee, O son of earth, what is good,—
What then is ||Yahweh|| seeking of thee.
But To do justice.
To delight in lovingkindness,
And humbly* to walk with thy God?

9 ||The voice of Yahweh|| <to the city> crieth out,
With safety b for him who regardeth e his name,—

Hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.

||Even yet|| are there, in the house of the lawless one,
The treasures of lawlessness,— and the scant measure—accurst?

11 Shall I be pure with lawless balances? or with a bag of deceitful weights?

12 For ||her rich men|| are full of violence,
And ||her inhabitants|| have spoken falsehood,—
And ||their tongue|| is deceitful in their mouth.

13 ||Moreover also|| I have made thee sick with smiting thee,—
Laying thee waste because of thy sins.

14 ||Thou|| shalt eat—
And not be satisfied,
But be shrunken with hunger within thee,—
Though thou remove, yet shalt thou not set in safety,
And ||what thou dost set in safety|| <to the sword> will I deliver.

15 ||Thou|| shalt sow, but shalt not reap,—
||Thou|| shalt tread the olive, but shalt not anoint thee with oil,
Also the grape* but shalt not drink the wine.

8. The Prophet, speaking for Repentant Jerusalem, deplors his present condition, but determines to wait and hope; being assured of Ultimate Vindication and Triumph.

1 Alas for me! for I am become
As gatherings of summer fruit,
As gleanings-grapes in harvest,
There is no cluster to eat,
The firstripe fruit my soul|craved |.
— Perished is the man of lovingkindness out of the earth,
And <upright among men> is there none,—
They all <for bloodshed> lie in wait.
Every man—for his brother do they hunt as for one devoted to destruction.
Wickedness with both hands to make sure>
|The ruler| doth make demand—
And the judge—for a recompense,—
And <as for the great man> <he| is putting into words the desire of his soul|; So have they woven the net!

4 <Of the best of them> is as a sharp briar,
And <the most upright> worse than a thorn hedge,
The day of thy watchmen— of thy visitation hath come,
Now shall be their confusion!
Do not trust in a friend,
Do not put confidence in an associate,—
From her that lieth in thy bosom keep thou the doors of thy mouth;
For <the son> treateth as foolish [the father],
And <the daughter> riseth up against [her mother],
The daughter—in law against her mother—in law,—
The foes of a man are the men of his own house.

7 But || <for Yahweh> will watch,
I will wait for the God of my salvation,—
My God' will hear me.
Do not rejoice, O mine enemy, against me,
Though I fall I shall rise again!
Though I sit in darkness, I shall be light to me.

9 <The indignation of Yahweh> will I bear,
For I have sinned against him,—
Until he take up my controversy.
Then will he do me justice,
He will bring me forth to the light
I shall behold his righteousness.
So shall she* who had been mine enemy fear.
And shame shall cover her;
Who used to say unto me—
Where is Yahweh thy God?
Now shall she become to be trodden down, like the mire of the lanes.
<On the day for building thy walls>—
<On that day> far away shall be thy boundary:
The very day that against thee shall one come from Assyria, and [from] the cities of Egypt;
Yes from Egypt, even unto the River,
And from sea to sea,
And from mountain to mountain:
Though the land become a desolation.
Because of them that dwell therein,—
By reason of the fruit of their doings.
Shepherd thou thy people with thy rod,
The flock of thine inheritance,
Dwell thou alone, a jungle in the midst of a fruitful field,—
Let them feed in Bashan and in Gilead,
As in the days of age-past times.
As in the days of thy coming forth out of the land of Egypt>
Will I shew him wonders.
Nations shall see, that they may turn pale at all their valour,—
Their ears shall be silent:
They shall lick the dust like the serpent,
<Like the crawlers of the earth> shall they come quaking out of their fastnesses,— Towards Yahweh our God>
Shall they pay adoration,
And shall fear because of thee.

18 Who is a God like unto thee, Taking away the iniquity—
And passing over the transgression—
Of the remnant of his inheritance?
He hath not held fast, perpetually, his anger, For <One who delighteth in lovingkindness> is he!"
He will again have compassion upon us,
He will subdue our iniquities,—
Thou wilt cast—into the depths of the sea—all their* sins.

Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.): "our"—G.n.

Thou wilt grant—
The faithfulness to Jacob,
The lovingkindness to Abraham,—
Which thou didst swear to our fathers,
From the days of ancient time.

NAHUM.

§ 1. Out of the full-orbed perfection of Yahweh comes the Twofold Manifestation, designed to alarm his Foes and assure his Friends. From Nineveh proceedeth a Wicked Schemer against Yahweh.

1 The oracle, on Nineveh,—the scroll of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite.

2 <A God jealous and avenging> is Yahweh, <An avenger> is Yahweh, and a lord of wrath,*
<An avenger> is Yahweh towards his adversaries,
And  is he'to his foes.

3 ||Yahweh|| is slow to anger,* but great in vigour,
He will not leave [unpunished],—
||As for Yahweh|| <in storm-wind and in tempest> is his way,
And [clouds] are the dust of his feet.

4 Who rebuketh the sea, and hath made it dry,
And <all the streams> hath he dried up,—
Withered' are Bashan and Carmel,
||Even the bloom of Lebanon|| is withered :
5 ||Mountains|| have trembled because of him,
And ||the hills|| have melted,—
And the earth [hath lifted itself up] at his presence,
||The world also, and all who dwell therein].
6 <Before his indignation> who shall stand?
And who shall abide the glow of his anger?
||His wrath|| hath been poured forth like fire,
And ||the rocks|| have been broken down
because of him.

7 Good' is Yahweh, as a protection* in the day of distress,—
And one who acknowledgeth them who seek refuge in him.

8 But <with an overflow rolling on>  will he make of them who rise up against him,9—
And <his foes> will he pursue into darkness.*

9 What can ye devise' against Yahweh?
<A full end> is he' making,—
Distress'| shall not rise up twice|!
10 <Though they were like thorns intertwined.
And as drunkards drenched with their drink>
Yet have they been devoured, like stubble fully dry.
11 <Out of thee> hath one come forth—
Plotting, against Yahweh, wickedness,—
A counsellor of the Abandoned One.*

§ 2. Yahweh quiets the Fears of his People; threatens the City of Idols; and sends Good News to Judah.

12 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Though they be in full force,
And so in great numbers>
Yet even so have they been cut off, and have passed away,—
||If I humble thee [once]>
I will not humble thee again'.
13 ||Now therefore, will I break his yokeb from off thee,—
And <thy fetters> will I tear off.
14 Then will Yahweh give command concerning
thee,
None of thy name shall be sown any more,—
<Out of the house of thy gods> will I cut off carved* image and molten* image,
I will appoint* thy grave.
For thou art of little esteem.
15 Lo! <upon the mountains>
The feet of one, who bringeth Good Tidings!
who publisheth Prosperity!
Celebrate, O Judah, thy pilgrim festivals,
Fulfil thy vows,—
For <not again, any more> shall the Abandoned One [pass through thee],
He hath been wholly' cut off.

1 He that breaketh in pieces hath come up over thy face,
Keep the keeps, a— Watch the way, Brace the joins, Make vigour very firm.

2 For Yahweh hath restored the excellency of Jacob, like the excellency of Israel,— For the plunderers have plundered them, And <their vine branches> have they marred.

3 [The shield of his heroes] is made red, [The men of war] are clad in crimson, <On fire> are the chariot-steels, on the day he maketh ready,— And [the lances] are put in motion.

4 <In the streets> madly go the chariots, They rush along in the broadways,— [Their appearance] is like torches, <As lightnings> hit her and thither do they run.

5 Let him call to mind his nobles, They shall stumble as they go— Let them hasten to her wall,
Yet* the storming cover [is prepared].

6 [The gates of the rivers] have been opened,— And [the palace] doth quake.

7 [Huzzabi] hath been taken captive— hath been led up,— And [her handmaids] are making a moan like the sound of doves, as they taber upon their heart.

8 Yet <as for Nineveh> [like a reservoir of waters] are her' waters, But those men are in flight! Stand! stand!! But no' one is turning.

9 Plunder silver, plunder gold,— And there is no end to the costly furnishing,
Rich with every article of delight.

§ 4. The Overthrow of Nineveh further described, and traced back to her Idolatry and Cruelty.

1 Alas for the city of bloodshed! <All of it> deceit, of violence' full, none releaseth prey!

2 The sound of the whip, And the sound of the rushing wheel,— And horse' galloping, And dancing chariot' rattling along.

3 Horsemen uplifting both the flashing sword, and the lightning spear, Aye, A mass of slain, and A weight of dead bodies,— and No end of corpses, So that they* stumble upon their corpses.

4 <Because of the multitude of the unchaste doings of the unchaste one, Fair' in grace, mistress' of secret arts,— Who hath been selling Nations by her unchaste doings, Families by her secret arts> Behold me! against thee. Declareth Yahweh of hosts, Therefore will I burn up in smoke her chariots,* And <thy young lions> shall be devoured by the sword,— So will I cut off, out of the earth, thy prey, Nor shall be heard any more, the voice of thine envoy.

5 Behold me! against thee, Declareth Yahweh of hosts, Therefore will I remove thy skirts over thy face,— And let [nations] see thy nakedness, and [kingdoms] thy shame;
And I will cast upon thee abominable filth, and treat thee as foolish, and set thee as a gazzing-stock.

And it shall come to pass that all who see thee shall flee from thee, and shall say, Destroyed is Nineveh! Who will bemoan her? Whence shall I seek any to comfort thee?

Art thou better than No-amon, Who sat among the Nile-streams, Waters round about her, Whose fortress was the sea, From the sea her wall, Ethiopia was her strength, and Egypt— Yea, without end, Put and Lubim were among thy helpers.

Yet she was given up to exile, She went into captivity, Even her babies were dashed to the ground, at the head of all the streets, And for her honourable men cast they lots, And all her great men were bound together in chains.

Thou shalt be drunken, Thou shalt hide thyself, Thou shalt seek shelter from the foe: All thy fortresses shall be fig-trees with first-ripe figs: If they be shaken then shall [the fruit] fall on the mouth of the eater.

Lo! thy people are women, in thy midst, To thy foes have been set wide open the gates of thy land, A fire hath devoured thy barn.

§1. The Prophet's Complaint.

How long, O Yahweh, have I called out And thou wouldst nothear me? Have I kept crying unto thee of violence, And thou wouldst not save?

Wherefore Shouldst thou let me see iniquity, And wrong shouldst let me behold, And force and violence be straight before me,— And there should have ever been someone who contention and strife would uphold?

The oracle of which Habakkuk the prophet had vision:

1. The Prophet's Complaint.

2. How long, O Yahweh, have I called out. And thou wouldst not hear me?

Have I kept crying unto thee of violence, And thou wouldst not save?

3. Wherefore Shouldst thou let me see iniquity, And wrong shouldst let me behold, And force and violence be straight before me,— And there should have ever been someone who contention and strife would uphold?

Or (following a v.v. found in some cod. named in Mass., cp. G.n.): And it has ever been, that contention and strife I had to endure.
II. 4—17; II. 1—5.

O Yahweh, <to judgment> hast thou appointed him, And, O Rock, <to correction> hast thou devoted him:

§ 2. Yahweh, in Answer, announces a Chaldean Invasion.

1 Behold ye, among the nations, and look around, Yes stand stock still—stare,— For a work; is being wrought in your days, Ye will not believe, when it is recounted.

2 For, behold me! raising up the Chaldeans, The bitter and headlong nation,— That marcheth to the breadths of the earth, To take possession of habitations [not his].

3 Awful and fearful is he,— From himself his decision and his uprising proceed. Then <swifter than leopards> are his horses, And [more sharply they attack] than evening wolves, And forward have leapt his chargers,— Yea [his chargers] <from afar> will come in, They will fly as an eagle hath hastened to devour.

4 <Solely for violence> will he come, The intent of their faces is—To the east!0 And he hath gathered, as the sand, a captive host;

5 And he <over kings> will make merry, And [nobles] will be a scorn to him:

6 Then <hath he become arrogant in spirit> and so is guilty,— This his violence is due to his god.

§ 3. The Prophet again appeals to Yahweh, since the Invader is Oppressive, Idolatrous, and Cruel.

12 Art not [thou] from of old, O Yahweh, my God, my Holy One? Thou diest not.

13 [Thou] whose eyes are too pure to look with approval on wrong, <To respect oppression> canst not endure,— Wherefore?

14 So wouldst thou have made Men, Like the fishes of the sea,— Like the creeping thing that hath no ruler over it:

15 All of which <with a hook> one bringeth up, Raketh together with his drag.

16 On which account he is glad and exulteth: On which account his Drag, He sacrificeth to his Net, And burneth incense to his Drag;

17 Shall he <on this account> empty his net? And <the continual slaying of nations> deem to be no pity?

§ 4. The Prophet awaits a further Answer, which he obtains: in which Nations enlightened with the Knowledge of Yahweh direct a Five-fold Taunt against the Cruel Invader.

1 <Upon my watch-tower> will I stand, And will station myself upon the bulwark,— So will I keep outlook, to see— What he will speak with me, and What I shall reply, when I am reproved.

2 Then Yahweh answered me, and said, Write the vision, Yea, make it plain on tablets, That one may swiftly read it; For yet is the vision for an appointed time, Still, it presseth towards an end, And will not deceive,— If it tarry wait thou for it, For it [surely cometh!],— Will not be too late.

4 Lo! <as for the conceited one> crooked is his soul within him,— But [one who is righteous] by his faithfulness shall live.

Yea, he is like death, and cannot be satisfied,—
But hath gathered unto himself, all the nations,
And assembled unto himself, all the peoples.

Shall not these, all of them, against him take up—

A mocking poem,
Enigmatical sentences—concerning him?

And say—

Alas! for him who maketh abundance in what is not his own,
How long? that he should be burdening himself with heavy debts?

Will not thy creditors suddenly rise up?
And they who shall violently shake thee
[all at once become active]?
Then shalt thou serve for booties, unto them!

Because thou hast plundered many nations>
All the residue of the peoples, shall plunder thee, —

For shedding Human blood,
And doing violence
To the earth, *
To the city,
And to all who dwell therein.

Alas! for him who extorteth an extortion of wrong for his own house,—
That he may set on high his nest,
That he may be delivered from the grasp of calamity.

Thou hast counselled shame b to thy house,—
Making an end of many peoples,
And endangering e thine own life.d

Surely the stone out of the wall will make outcry,—
And the tie out of the timber will answer it.

Alas! for him who buildeth a city with deeds of blood,—
And establisheth a town with perversity.

Lo! is not from Yahweh of hosts—
That peoples labour for fire, f
And populations g <for emptiness> weary themselves?

For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of Yahweh,—
As the waters cover the sea.e

I am afraid.

ZEPHANIAH I. 1—16.

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Zephaniah, son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

2 I will take away everything from off the face of the ground, Declareth Yahweh.

3 I will take away man and beast, I will take away the bird of the heavens and the fishes of the sea, And the stumblingblocks, even them who are lawless,— And will cut off mankind, from off the face of the ground, Declareth Yahweh.

4 And I will stretch out my hand— Over Judah, and Over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem,— And will cut off out of this place, The name of Baal, The name of the priestlings, with the priests; And them who bow down upon the house-top, to the host of the heavens,— And them who bow down— Who swear to Yahweh, and swear by Milcom;— And them who turn away from following Yahweh,— And have neither sought Yahweh, nor enquired for him.

5 Hush! at the presence of My Lord, Yahweh,— For near is the day of Yahweh, For Yahweh hath prepared his sacrifice, hath hallowed his guests.

6 And it shall come to pass, in the day of Yahweh’s sacrifice, That I will punish The rulers, And the sons of the king,— And all such as are clothed with foreign apparel;

7 And I will punish Every one who leaseth over the threshold, in that day,— Those who fill the house of their lords with violence and deceit.

8 And there shall come to be, in that day,— Yahweh, The noise of an outcry from the fish-gate, And of a howling out of the new city,— And of a great crashing, from the hills.

9 Howl, ye inhabitants of the lower city,— Because destroyed are all the people of traffic, Cut off are all they who were laden with silver.

10 And it shall come to pass, at that time, That I will search through Jerusalem, with lamps,— And will punish the men Who are thickened upon their lees, Who are saying in their heart, Yahweh will not give blessing, Neither will he bring calamity.

11 Therefore shall Their goods become a booty, and Their houses, a desolation,— And they shall build houses, but not inhabit them, And plant vineyards, but not drink the wine thereof.

12 Near is the great day of Yahweh, Near and very speedy,— The noise of the day of Yahweh, A strong man—there!— bitterly crying out!

13 <A day of indignation>—that day! Day of danger and distress, Day of rush, and of crash, Day of obscurity, and deep gloom, Day of cloud, and thick darkness; Day of horn, and war-shout,— Against the fortified cities, and Against the high towers.

14 Near is the great day of Yahweh, Near, and very speedy,— The noise of the day of Yahweh, A strong man—there!— bitterly crying out! A day of indignation— that day!

15 Against the fortified cities, and Against the high towers.
And I will bring distress to mankind,
And they shall walk like them who are blind,
Because against Yahweh have they sinned,—
And their blood shall be poured out as dust,
And their bowels like dung.*

Neither their silver nor yet their gold shall be able to deliver them,
In the day of the indignation of Yahweh,
But in the fire of his jealousy shall the whole earth be consumed;
For a destruction, surely a terrible one will he make, with all them who dwell in the earth.

§ 2. In Dirge-like Accentsthe Patient and Obedient Remnant of Judah are encouraged to seek Yahweh, if peradventure His Wrath may be mitigated: In the Doom of the Philistines the Intercessors find hope.

1 Collect your thoughts, ayecollect 'them,—O nation depressed!!

2 Ere yet the decree have given birth,

Ere yet shall come upon you

Ere yet shall come upon you
The day of the anger of Yahweh.

Seek Yahweh—
All ye lowly of the land,
Who have wrought what he appointed,—
Seek righteousness,
Seek humility,
[Peradventure] ye shall be concealed,
In the day of the anger of Yahweh.*

For Gaza shall be,
And Ashkelon a desolation,— Ashdod! <at high noon> shall they drive her forth,
And Ekron be uprooted:

Alas! for the inhabitants of the line of the sea.
The nation of Kerethim,—
The word of Yahweh is against you,
O Canaan of the land of the Philistines, Therefore will I destroy thee, to the last inhabitant.

So shall the line of the sea become a meadow.
The wells of shepherds, And the folds of flocks;
And the line shall belong to the remnant of the house of Judah,
<Theroon> shall they feed their flocks,—
In the houses of Ashkelon shall they set at endtime lie down,
For Yahweh their God will visit them, And bring their captives back.

§ 3. A Gracious Answer: Israel's Reproach must be removed, and Gentile Worshippers be obtained.

I have heard the reproach of Moab,
And the revilings of the sons of Ammon,—
Who have reproached my people,
And have magnified themselves up to their bounds.

Wherefore <as I live>
Declareth Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel.

Surely <like Sodom> shall become,
And <like Gomorrah> a possession for the thorn.
And a pit of salt,
Yes a desolation, unto times age-abiding:

The remnant of my people shall make of them a prey,
And the residue of my nation shall inherit them.

This shall they have, instead of their pride,—
Because they reproached and magnified themselves against the people of Yahweh of hosts.

Terrible' will Yahweh be against them,
For he hath caused to waste away all the gods of the earth,—
That men may bow down to him,
Every' one from his place,
All the coastlands of the nations:
Even ye: Ethiopians,
The slain of my sword were they !

§ 4. The Prayer, thus emboldened, is directed against Assyria and Nineveh: their Devastation foretold.

And may he stretch out his hand against the North,
And destroy Assyria,—
And may he make of Nineveh a desolation,
Dry as the desert!

So shall lie down in her midst—flocks,
Each living thing of a nation,
Both pelican and bittern || in her capitals shall rest,—
A voice shall resound in the window,
The bustard, on the sill,
For he hath destroyed,
lath laid bare.4

This is the city exultant,

§ 5. But Jerusalem has fearfully sinned, and must be severely chastised. In the End, the Remnant is victorious; Divine Love triumphantly saves; and the Captivities are reversed before all Nations.

1 Alas for her that is rebellious, and polluted, The city that oppresseth!
2 She hath hearkened to no voice, Accepted no correction;
<In Yahweh> hath not trusted, To her God hath not drawn near:
3 Her rulers in her midst are roaring lions—
Her judges evening wolves, They have left nothing until morning!
4 Her prophets are reckless, Treacherous men!
Her priests have profaned the holy, Done violence to law.

5 Yahweh, the Righteous One is in her midst, He doaleth not perversely—
Morning by morning <his justice> bringeth forth to light, He is not found lacking;
But the perverse man knoweth no shame.

6 I have cut off nations, Deserted are their towers, Have made desolate their streets, That none passeth through; Ruined are their cities, For want of men of note, From lack of any dweller!

7 I said, Surely thou wilt reverence <Me>, Wilt accept correction, Lest her abode should be cut off. However I had punished her; But in truth they soon corrupted all their deeds.

8 Wherefore wait for me, Urgeth Yahweh, Until the day when I rise up as witness,
For <my decision> is To gather nations, To assemble kingdoms, To pour out on them mine indignation, All the glow of mine anger, For <in the fire of my jealousy> shall be devoured the whole earth.

9 Surely <then> will I turn unto the peoples a lip made pure,— That they all may call on the name of Yahweh,
May serve him with one consent.

10 <From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia> Shall come my suppliants.
The daughter of my dispersed ones Shall bear along a gift for me.

11 <In that day> wilt thou not turn pale, for all thy deeds, wherein thou hast transgressed against me? For <then> will I take away out of thy midst thy proudly exulting ones, And thou shalt not again be haughty any more in my holy mountain:

12 So will I leave remaining in thy midst, a people oppressed and poor,—who will seek refuge in the name of Yahweh:

13 <The remnant of Israel>— Will not do perversity. Nor speak falsehood, Neither shall there be found in their mouth a tongue of deceit,— Surely <they> shall feed and lie down, With none to make them afraid.

14 Sing out, O daughter of Zion, Shout aloud, O Israel,— Rejoice and exult with all thy heart, O daughter, Jerusalem:
Yahweh hath set aside thy judgments, hath turned back thy foes,—
The king of Israel, Yahweh is in thy midst, Thou shalt not fear calamity, any more.

15 <In that day> shall it be said— To Jerusalem Do not fear,— O Zion, Let not thy hands hang down:
Yahweh, thy God, in the midst of thee—
As a mighty one Will save,— Will be glad over thee with rejoicing, Will be silent in his love, Will exult over thee with shouts of triumph.

16 <The sad exiles from the appointed meeting> have I gathered, <From thee> had they been! [But were] a burden on thee—a reproach!

HAGGAI.

§ 1. In the second Year of King Darius, the Prophet Haggai seeks, by appealing to their Experience, to stir up the Zeal of the Returned Captives in building the House of Yahweh in Jerusalem. His Appeal is successful.

1 <In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, on the first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, saying:

2 ||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh of hosts, saying,—

3 Therefore hath come' the word of Yahweh by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

4 Is it a time that ye dwell in your own paneled' houses? and ||this house|| be in ruins?

5 ||Now|| therefore, ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,— Apply your heart unto your own experience,—

6 Ye have sown much, but have brought in little, Have eaten, and not been filled, Have drunk, and not been satisfied with drink, Have clothed you, and none hath been warm,— And ||he that hath hired himself out|| hath put his wages into a bag with holes.

7 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,— Apply your heart to your own experience:—

8 Ascend the mountain—and bring in wood and build the house,— That I may be pleased therewith and get myself glory. Saith Yahweh.

9 <When ye looked for much> then lo! it came to little, <When ye brought it home> then I did blow into it,— Because of what?

 Demandeth Yahweh of hosts, Because of my house, which is in ruins, while ye' keep running every man to his own house.

10 <Wherefore—on your account> Have the heavens held back dew,— And ||the earth|| held back her fruit; And I have called for drought, Upon the land and upon the mountains, and Upon the corn and upon the new wine and upon the oil, and Upon that which the ground bringeth forth,—and Upon man, and upon beast, and Upon all the labour of the hands.

12 Then hearkened' Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and all the remnant of the people, unto the voice of Yahweh their God, and unto the words of Haggai the prophet, as Yahweh their God had sent him, and the people stood in awe before Yahweh.

13 Then spake Haggai the messenger of Yahweh, in the message of Yahweh, to the people, saying,— ||I am with you.|| Declareth Yahweh.
14 Thus did Yahweh stir up—the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel pasha of Judah, and the spirit of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people,—and they came in and did service in the house of Yahweh of hosts their God: on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month,—in the second year, of Darius the king.

§ 2. Seven Weeks later the Prophet is sent with a second Message; and encourages the Builders with Assurance of the Present Spirit, of a future Influx of Nations, and a Grant of Prosperity.

1 <In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

2 Speak, I pray thee, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest,—and unto the remnant of the people, saying:—

3 Who is there among you that is left, that saw this house, in its former glory? And how do ye see it now? Is it not in comparison with that as nothing, in your eyes?

4 Now therefore—Be strong, O Zerubbabel, and be strong, O Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest. And be strong, all ye people of the land, Urgeth Yahweh, and work; For I am with you, Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

5 <The very thing that I solemnised with you, when ye came forth out of the land of Egypt> That <my spirit abiding in your midst> ye should not fear.

6 For <thus saith Yahweh of hosts, Yet once> | a little | it is,—And I am shaking, The heavens and the earth, and The sea, and the dry land; And I will shake all the nations, And the delight of all the nations |shall come in|,— And I will fill this house with glory,

7 Saith Yahweh of hosts.

8 Mine is the silver and Mine the gold,* Declareth Yahweh of hosts:

9 Greater' shall be the last glory of this house than the first,

Saith Yahweh of hosts,—And <in this place> will I give prosperity,* Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

§ 3. Two Months later still, Haggai is sent with a Third Message, in which an Appeal to the Ritual Law is used to enforce whole-hearted Devotion to the Work and Service of their God.

10 <On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius> came the word of Yahweh unto Haggai the prophet, saying:

11 ||Thus| saith Yahweh of hosts,— ||I pray you, ask the priests a direction | saying:||

12 ||If a man carry' holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, And then toucheth with his skirt bread or a cooked dish or wine or oil or any food> Shall it be holy?

And the priests answered' and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai,

14 Then answered Haggai and said,

15 ||So|| is this people and ||So|| is this nation before me, Declareth Yahweh, And ||so|| is every work of their hands,—Therefore ||whatsoever they offer there|| is |defiled|.

16 ||Now|| therefore, I pray you apply your heart, from this day and upwards,—<So long as there had not been laid one stone upon another in the temple of Yahweh>

17 <On coming unto a heap of twenty> then was it found to be ten,—<On coming unto the vat to draw off fifty measures> then were there found to be twenty.

18 I smote you with blight and with mildew and with hail, in all the work* of your hands,—Yet ye did not' return unto me, Declareth Yahweh.
Apply your heart. I pray you.
From this day and upwards,—
<From the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month,
Even from the day when was founded the <temple of Yahweh> apply your heart:
Is the seed yet* in the store-house?
Howbeit <though at present* neither the vine nor the fig-tree nor the pome granate nor the olive tree] hath brought forth >
<From this very day> will I bless you.

§ 4. On the same Day, Haggai conveys to Zerubbabel the Message that, when Yahweh overturns the Kingdoms, He will use Zerubbabel as His Signet-ring.

Then came the word of Yahweh, the second

* Gt.: "as yet."

申报 the word of Yahweh unto Zerubbabel, pasha of Judah,
saying,—
I am shaking, the heavens and the earth;
And will overturn the throne of kingdoms,
And will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations,—
And I will overturn the chariots, and them who ride therein,
And horses and their riders shall come down, every man by the sword of his brother.

Declareth Yahweh of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel—my servant.
Declareth Yahweh,
And will set thee as a signet-ring;
For thee have I chosen,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

SECTION I.—A Series of Dated Prophecies, all attributed to Zechariah.

§ 1. Zechariah's First Message to the Returned Exiles: a Simple Reminder that the Threaten-tings made to their Fathers had confessedly been Fulfilled.

1 <In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius> came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, saying:—

2 Yahweh was sore displeased! with your fathers: therefore shalt thou say unto them,
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Return ye unto me,
Urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—
That I may return unto you,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

§ 2. A Vision of Horses. (The First of a Series of Visions, all given on the Date here named;
Each with its Meaning supplied.)

7 <Upon the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month,> the same month Shebat, in the second year of Darius,> came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, as followeth:—

8 I looked by night. And lo! a man riding upon a red horse, and he was standing among* the myrtle trees,
in the shade; and <after him> were horses,
red, bay* and white.<

<Your fathers> where' are they?
And <the prophets> [to times ago-abiding] do they live?

Howbeit <as for my words and my statutes with which I charged my servants the prophets> did they not overtake your fathers? and so they returned and said,
<Just as Yahweh of hosts planned' to do unto us, according to our Ways, and according to our Practices>
So hath he dealt with us?

* See Ezr.v.1,2; vi.14.
And the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me, I will shew thee what these are.
10 So the man who was standing among the myrtle-trees answered, and said, These are they whom Yahweh hath sent to go to and fro through the earth.
11 Then the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me, We have gone to and fro through the earth, and lo! All the earth resteth and is quiet.
12 Then Yahweh of hosts answered and said, How long wilt thou have indignation against Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, against which thou hast had indignation these seventy years?
13 And Yahweh answered the messenger, in words that were pleasant, and words that were consoling. Then the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me, Proclaim thou, saying, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, I am jealous for Jerusalem, and for Zion, with a great jealousy; and with a great displeasure am I displeased with the careless nations, in that when I was displeased (for a little) then they helped forward the calamity. Wherefore saith Yahweh, I have returned to Jerusalem, with compassion, My house shall be built therein, and a glory will I become in her midst.

§ 4. Four Horns and Four Craftsmen. (Second Vision—same Date.)

18 Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! Four Horns. And I said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, What are these? And he said unto me, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, and Israel, and Jerusalem.
20 Then Yahweh shewed me Four Craftsmen. And I said, What are these coming in to do?

§ 3. Four Horns and Four Craftsmen. (Second Vision—same Date.)

18 Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! Four Horns. And I said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, What are these? And he spake, saying, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man lifted up his head, but these [others] have come in to put them in fear, to cast down the horns of the nations, which have lifted up the horn against the land of Judah to scatter her.

§ 4. Man with Measuring Line. (Third Vision—same Date.)

1 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a Man, and in his hand a Measuring Line. And I said, Whither art thou going? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what should be the breadth thereof, and what the length thereof.
3 And lo! the messenger who was talking with me, coming forward, and another messenger, coming forward to meet him. So he said unto him, Run, speak unto this young man, saying: Like open villages shall Jerusalem remain, for the multitude of men and cattle in her midst; and I will become to her, A wall of fire round about,—
5 And a glory will I become in her midst.

§ 5. Four Winds of the Heavens. (Third Vision—same Date.)

7 Ho! ho! fleshy therefore, out of the land of the North, Urgeth Yahweh. For as the four winds of the heavens have I spread you abroad,
8 Then shall Jerusalem overflow with blessing! So will Yahweh yet have compassion upon Zion, and yet make choice of Jerusalem.
Then shall many nations join themselves unto Yahweh, in that day, and shall become my people.— And I will make my habitation in thy midst, so that thou knowest that Yahweh of hosts hath sent me unto thee. Thus will Yahweh inherit Judah, his portion, on the soil of the sanctuary,—and make choice yet again of Jerusalem. Hush! all flesh, before Yahweh,—for he hath roused himself out of his holy dwelling.

§ 5. Joshua, Typical Companions, and Seven-Eyed Stone. (Fourth Vision—same date.)

1 And he shewed me Joshua the high priest, standing before the messenger of Yahweh,—and the Accuser standing at his right hand, to accuse him. Then said Yahweh unto the Accuser. Yahweh rebuke thee. Yea Yahweh rebuke thee, he who is choosing Jerusalem,—Is not this a brand snatched out of the fire?

3 Now was clothed with filthy garments, though standing before the messenger. Then responded he and spake unto those who were standing before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments, from off him; and he said unto him, See! I have caused to pass from off thee, thy iniquity, and will cause thee to be clothed in robes of state.

5 Then said I, Let them put a clean turban upon his head,—So they put the clean turban upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and the messenger of Yahweh was standing up. Then the messenger of Yahweh did solemnly affirm unto Joshua, saying: Thus saith Yahweh of hosts. If in my ways thou wilt walk, and of my charge thou wilt keep charge, then even thou shalt govern my house, and I will give thee free access among those who stand by.

1 And once more the messenger who was speaking with me, roused me up, just as a man might be roused up out of his sleep. Then said he unto me, What canst thou see? I replied,—I have looked, and lo! a Lampstand—all of gold, with the Bowl thereof upon the top thereof, and its Seven Lamps upon it, seven pipes each to the lamps which are upon the top thereof; and [Two Olive-trees] by it, one upon the right hand of the bowl, and one upon the left hand thereof.

4 Then responded I, and said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, saying,—What are these, my lord? Then answered the messenger who was speaking with me, and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these are? And I said, No my lord.

6 Then responded he, and spake unto me, saying, This is the word of Yahweh unto Zerubbabel, saying,—Not by wealth nor by strength, but by my spirit. Who art thou, great mountain? Before Zerubbabel thou art brought down to a plain! So shall he bring forth the headstone, with thundering shouts! Beautiful! Beautiful! thereunto.
Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

The hand of Zerubbabel have founded this house, and his hands shall finish it;—so shall thou know that Yahweh of hosts hath sent me unto you. Yet shall they rejoice, when they see the plummet-stone in the hand of Zerubbabel,—these seven! The eyes of Yahweh they are—running to and fro throughout all the earth.

Then responded I, and said unto him,—What are these two olive-trees, upon the right of the lampstand, and upon the left thereof?

And I responded a second time, and said unto him,—What are the two branches of the olive-trees which join the two golden tubes, which empty out of them the golden oil?

And he spake unto me, saying, Knowest thou not what these are? And I said, No, my lord. Then said he, These are the two Anointed Ones, who stand near the Lord of all the earth.

And once more I lifted mine eyes, and looked,—and lo! a Flying Volume. And he said unto me,—What canst thou see? So I said, I can see a flying volume, the length thereof is twenty by the cubit, and the breadth thereof is ten by the cubit.

Then he spake unto me, saying, This is the curse, which is going forth over the face of all the earth,—Because every one who stealeth hath in one' way been let off, and every one who sweareth hath in another' way been let off; therefore have I brought it forth. Declareth Yahweh of hosts, And it shall enter—Into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth by my name falsely,—And it shall roost in the midst of his house, and shall consume it. Both the timbers thereof, and the stones thereof.

§ 7. A Flying Volume. (Sixth Vision—same date.)

§ 8. The Woman "Lawlessness" conveyed in an Ephah to the Land of Shinar. (Seventh Vision—same date.)

Then came forward, the messenger who was talking with me,—and said unto me—Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, and see what this is which is coming forth.

And I said, What is it? Then said he, This is Lawlessness.

§ 9. Four Chariots with Horses of divers Colours, (Eighth Vision—same date.)

And once again I lifted mine eyes, and looked, and lo! four chariots coming forward from between two mountains,—now the mountains were mountains of copper. In the first chariot were red' horses,—and in the second chariot > black' horses; and in the third chariot > white' horses,—and in the fourth chariot > horses spotted, deep red. Then began I, and said, unto the messenger who was speaking with me,—What are these, my lord?

And the messenger answered, and said unto me,—These are the four winds of the heavens, coming forward after each hath presented itself near the Lord of all the earth. They in whose chariot are the black horses are going forth into the land of the North, and the white' have gone forth after them,—and the spotted... have gone forth into the land of the South; and [the deep red] have come forward and sought to go their way, that they might journey to and fro, in the land, so he said. Go your way, journey to and fro in the land, and they journeyed to and fro in the land.

Then made he outcry beside me, and spake unto me, saying,—

See these who are going forth into the land of the North have settled my spirit in the land of the North.

§ 10. Crowned the Priest—Prefigurative.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: Take of them of the exile, of Huldai, and of Jedaiah, and of Tobijah, and of Jeshua, the son of Josedek, and shall become a priest upon his throne, and shall build the temple of Yahweh; and the counsel of peace shall be between the two of them. But the crown shall belong to Huldai and to Tobijah and to Jedaiah, and to Hen son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of Yahweh. And they who are afar off shall come in, and shall build at the temple of Yahweh, so shall ye know that the temple of hosts hath sent me unto you, and it shall come to pass, if ye will indeed hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God § 11. An Inquiry about Fasting, calls forth a Divine Protest that Formalism and Corruption had occasioned the Captivity; and a Promise of abundant Blessing, in which Gentiles should partake, provided only the needful Conditions were fulfilled: affording a Glimpse (viii. 7) of a wider Return from Exile than that from Babylon.

And it came to pass in the fourth year of Darius the king, that the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah, on the fourth of the ninth month, in Chisleu; yea when Bethel sent Sherezer and Regemmelech, and his men, to pacify the face of Yahweh: to speak unto the priests that pertained to the house of Yahweh of hosts, and unto the prophets, saying,—Shall I weep in the fifth month, separating myself, as I have done these so many years?

Then came the word of Yahweh of hosts unto me, saying:

Speak thou unto all the people of the land, and unto the priests, saying,—<When ye fasted and lamented in the fifth and in the seventh, even these seventy years> did ye really fast unto me? And <when ye used to eat, and when ye used to drink> was it not <of your own accord> ye did eat, and <of your own accord> ye did drink? Should ye not [have been doing] the things which Yahweh had proclaimed by the hand of the former prophets, while yet Jerusalem was inhabited and in peace, with her cities round about her, and the South and the Lowland were inhabited?

And the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah, saying:

<Thou shalt speak of hosts, saying,—<With true justice> give ye judgment, and <wickedness between one man and another> do not ye oppress, and <wickedness between one man and another> do not ye devise in your hearts. Howbeit they refused to give heed, but put forth a rebellious shoulder, and <their ears> made them hard of hearing; that they might not hear; and <their heart> turned they into adamant, that they might not hear the law:

and so there came great wrath from Yahweh of hosts. Therefore came it to pass that—

10 That before those days [hire for man] could not be obtained, And [hire for beast] was there none,— And neither to him who went out, nor to him who came in was there success by reason of the danger, Yea I let all men loose, each one against his neighbour.

11 But [now] not as in the former days am I to this remnant of the people,— Declareth Yahweh of hosts; For [the seed] shall be secure,— The vine] shall yield her fruit, and [The land] yield her increase, and [The heavens] yield their dew,— And I will cause this remnant of the people to inherit all these things.

And it shall come to pass that—

<Just as ye had become a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel>

[So will I save you, and ye shall become a blessing,— Do not fear, let your hands be strong.]

13 And it shall come to pass that—
<Just as ye had become a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel>
[So will I save you, and ye shall become a blessing,— Do not fear, let your hands be strong.]

For [thus] saith Yahweh of hosts, <Just as I planned to bring calamity upon you, when your fathers provoked me,> Saith Yahweh of hosts,— And I relented not.

15 [So] have I again' planned, in these days, to do good unto Jerusalem, and unto the house of Judah,— Do not fear!

16 [These] are the things which ye shall do: Speak ye the truth, every man with his neighbour, <Truth and the sentence of peace> pronounce ye in your gates; And let no man devise [the injury of his neighbour] in your heart, <And the oath of falsehood> do not love,— For [all these] are things which I hate.

Declareth Yahweh.

17 And the word of Yahweh of hosts came unto me, saying:

19 And the word of Yahweh of hosts came unto me, saying:

<The fast of the fourth, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the eleventh shall become to the house of Judah a gladness and a rejoicing, and pleasant appointed meetings,— But [truth and peace] see that ye love.>

20 [Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,— It shall yet be that there shall come in peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities;
21 And the inhabitants of one city shall go unto them of another saying, Let us be going on to pacify the face of Yahweh, And to seek Yahweh of hosts,—
||I also| will go!||
22 So shall enter many peoples, and strong nations, To seek Yahweh of hosts in Jerusalem,— And to pacify the face of Yahweh.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, <In those days> it shall be that ten men out of all the tongues of the nations shall take hold,—yea take hold of the skirt of every one that is a Jew, saying— We will go with you! For we have heard [that] God is with you.

[PART II.—Some Undated Prophecies, one of which is in the New Testament (Mat. xxvii.9) attributed to Jeremiah.]

§ 12. An Oracle, in the manner of the Earlier Prophets; in which, with dramatic suddenness, Jerusalem’s King appears, secures Peace to the Nations, and attains to World-wide Dominion in which also the Prophet enacts the part of an Unsuccessful Shepherd, who is contemptuously dismissed; and in which a Worthless Shepherd is represented, who receives condign Punishment.

1 The oracle of the word of Yahweh on the land of Hadrach,
And ||Damascus|| shall be therest-place thereof,— For ||Yahweh|| hath an eye— To mankind, and To all the tribes of Israel;||
2 |Moreover also|| |Hamath|| adjoineth thereto, ||Tyre and Zidon!—because very wise;
Therefore did Tyre build a stronghold for herself,— And did heap up silver’like dust, Yea gold’like the mire of the lanes.

4 Lo! |My Lord| shall dispossess her, And smite, into the sea. her fortress,— And ||she herself|| <in fire> shall be consumed.

8 Ashkelon|shall see|and fear, ||Gaza|| also, which shall writhe in great anguish, ||Ekron|| also, because abashed is her expectation,— And the king |shall perish| from Gaza, And ||Ashkelon|| not be inhabited;*

6 And there shall be seated* a half-breed in Ashdod,— So will I cut off the arrogance of the Philistines;
7 And will take away his reeking prey out of his mouth, And his abominations, from between his teeth, But <he that is left> [even he] shall belong to our God,— So shall he become as a chief in Judah, And ||Ekron|| as a Jebusite!

8 Then will I encamp about my house—against an army, against him that passeth by, and against him that returneth, Neither shall an easteret’ [tread them down any more],— For ||now|| have I seen with mine own eyes.

9 Exult greatly, O daughter of Zion, Shout in triumph, O daughter of Jerusalem, Lo! ||thy king|| cometh unto thee, |Vindicated and victorious| is he,— Lowly, and riding upon an ass, Yea, upon a colt, a young’ ass.†

10 So will he cut off The chariot out of Ephraim, and The horse out of Jerusalem, And the war-bow |shall be cut off|. So shall he speak peace to the nations, And ||his dominion|| shall be from sea to sea, And from the river [Euphrates] to the ends of the earth.†

11 ||As for thee also||—<By the blood of thy covenant>* have I sent forth thy prisoners out of a pit, where is no’ water. Return to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope,—<Even to-day> do I declare— Double will I return to thee!

12 For I have bent for me—Judah, <As a bow> have I grasped Ephraim, Thus will I rouse up thy sons, O Zion, against the sons of Greece, And will make thee as the sword of a mighty one.

§§ 13. (Part II.)—Some Undated Prophecies, one of which is in the New Testament (Mat. xxvii.9) attributed to Jeremiah.

13 For I have bent for me—Judah, ||As a bow< have I grasped Ephraim, Thus will I rouse up thy sons, O Zion, against the sons of Greece, And will make thee as the sword of a mighty one.
But Yahweh will appear, and forth shall go, as lightning, his arrow,—
Yea, My Lord Yahweh, with a horn, will blow,
And will move along in the whirlwinds of the south.

Yahweh of hosts will throw a covering over them,
So shall they eat, and trample underfoot sling-stones,
And shall drink—shall shout as with wine,—
And shall be filled like tossing-bowls,—
Like the corners of an altar.

So will Yahweh their God save them on that day.
Yea, as a flock of sheep his people,—
For they shall be like the jewels of a diadem, sparkling over his land.

For how excellent it is! Yea how beautiful!
Corn shall make the young men flourish,
And new wine the maidens.

Ask ye from Yahweh rain, in the time of the latter rain,*
Yahweh who causeth flashes of lightning,—
And rain in abundant showers giveth he unto them,*
To every man—herbage in the field;
For the household gods have spoken vanity;
And the diviners have had vision of falsehood;
And deceitful dreams do they relate,
Vainly do they console,—
For this reason have they moved about like a flock,
They suffer ill, because there is no shepherd.

Against the shepherds is kindled mine anger,
And upon the leaders of the flock will I bring punishment,—
For Yahweh of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah,
And will make them like his noble horse in battle:
<From him> the commander,
<From him> the supporter,*
<From him> the war-bow,— shall proceed every one that driveth on, together;
So shall they become like mighty ones, trampling on the mire of lanes, in battle,
And they will fight, because Yahweh is with them,—
And will abash the riders of horses.

So will I make mighty ones of the house of Judah,
And the house of Joseph will I save, and will cause them to continue, because I have had compassion upon them,
So shall they be as though I had not rejected them,—
For I, Yahweh, will be their God, and will answer them;
And they shall be as the mighty one of Ephraim,
And their heart shall rejoice, as through wine,—
Yet (in places far away) shall they remember me,—
And they shall live with their children, and shall return;
And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt,
And out of Assyria will I gather them,
And into the land of Gilead and Lebanon will I bring them,
And [room] shall not be found for them:
Yet shall he smite the sea, with its waves,!
And the roaring depths of the Nile shall appear dry,—
So shall be brought down the pride of Assyria, And the sceptre of Egypt shall depart;
And I will make them mighty in Yahweh, And in his name shall they march to and fro,— Declareth Yahweh.

Open, O Lebanon, thy doors,— That a fire may devour thy cedars.
Howl, fir-tree, for fallen is the cedar, Because the majesties are spoiled: Howl, ye oaks of Bashan, For the inaccessible forest hath come down.

The noise of the howling of the shepherds, For spoiled is their majesty,—
The noise of the roaring of the young lions, For spoiled are the proud banks of the Jordan.

§ 13. A Second Oracle, in which is foretold and portrayed a Final Siege of Jerusalem by all Nations, out of which, by the Interposition of One who had been Pierced, the City, after Extreme Peril and Suffering, shall be triumphantly delivered.

1 The oracle of the word of Yahweh on Israel,— 12
Declareth Yahweh—
Stretching out the heavens, and Founding the earth, and Fashioning the spirit of man within him:
2 Lo! I am making Jerusalem a bowl of reeling to all the peoples, round about,— Moreover also <on Judah> shall it be in the siege against Jerusalem;
And it shall come to pass, in that day,
That I will make Jerusalem a lifting-stone,
to all the peoples,
|All who seek to lift her| shall ||cut themselves in pieces|;—
Though all the nations of the earth ||gather themselves together against her|.
3 <In that day> Declareth Yahweh,
I will smite every horse with terror,
and his rider with madness,—
And <over the house of Judah> will I keep opening mine eyes,
And <every horse of the people> will I smite with blindness.
4 Then will the chiefs of Judah say in their hearts,—
<A strength unto me> [would be] the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in Yahweh of hosts, their God.
5 <In that day> will I make the chiefs of Judah
Like a pan of fire among sticks, and
Like a torch of fire in a sheaf,
So shall they devour ||on the right hand and on the left|| all the peoples round about;
So shall Jerusalem yet ||be inhabited|| in her own place, ||as Jerusalem|.
But Yahweh will save the tents of Judah first—
Lest the honour of the house of David
And the honour of the inhabitant of Jerusalem
Should be magnified over Judah.

8 <In that day> will Yahweh throw a covering around the inhabitant of Jerusalem,
So shall the tottering among them, in that day, become like David,—
And the house of David—
Like God,
Like the messenger of Yahweh, before them.

9 And it shall come to pass, in that day,—
That I will seek to destroy all the nations, that come against Jerusalem.

10 But I will pour out
Upon the house of David and
Upon the inhabitant of Jerusalem,
The spirit of favour, and of supplications,
And they will look unto me, whom they have pierced,—
And will wail over him,
As one waileth over an only son,
And will make bitter outcry over him,
As one maketh bitter outcry over a first-born.

11 <In that day> will the wailing be great in Jerusalem,
As the wailing of Hadadrimmon, in the valley of Megiddon;
So shall the land (wail),
Family by family, apart,—
The family of the house of David apart,
And their wives apart,
The family of the house of Nathan apart,
And their wives apart;
13 The family of the house of Levi, apart,
And their wives apart:
14 All the families that remain,—
Family by family, apart,—
And their wives, apart.

13 1 <In that day> there shall be an opened fountain,
For the house of David, and
For the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
For sin and for uncleanness.

2 And it shall come to pass, in that day,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts,
That I will cut off the names of idols out of the land,
And they shall not be remembered any more,—
Moreover also <even the prophets and the spirit of impurity> will I cause to pass away out of the land.
So shall it come about that <when any man shall prophesy again> then will his own father and his own mother, of whom he was born, say unto him,—
Thou shalt not live!
For <falsehood> hast thou spoken in the name of Yahweh,—
So will his own father and his own mother of whom he was born, pierce him through, when he prophesieth, Yea it shall come to pass, in that day, that the prophets will turn pale every man by reason of his vision when he prophesieth,— neither will they put on a mantle of hair to deceive.
But he will say,
<No prophet> am I,—
<One till ing the ground> am I, for one of the common people hath owned me from my youth.
Then will one say unto him,
What are these wounds between thy hands?
And he will say,
Wherewith I was wounded in the house of them that loved me.

6 O Sword! awake
Against my shepherd,
Even against the man that is my companion,
Urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—
Smite the shepherd, and let the flock (be scattered,) Howbeit I will turn back my hand over the little ones.
And it shall come to pass, in all the land,
Declareth Yahweh,
Two-thirds therein shall be cut off, and expire,—
But a third shall be left therein;
And I will bring the third into the fire,
And will smelt them as one smelteth silver,
And will try them, as one trieth gold,—
It will call upon my name, and I will answer it, and I will say, My people it is!
Yahweh is my God!

1 Lo! a day cometh, pertaining to Yahweh,— when apportioned shall be thy spoil in thy midst;

Yea I will gather together all the nations unto Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be captured, and the houses plundered, and the women ravished—

And half of the city shall go forth into exile, but the remainder of the people shall not be cut off out of the city.

Then will Yahweh go forth, and fight against those nations, just as he did in the day when he fought, in the day of battle.

Yea, his feet shall stand in that day, on the Mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the Mount of Olives shall cleave asunder from the midst thereof. Towards the east and towards the west, an exceeding great valley;

And half of the mountain shall give way toward the north, and half of it toward the south.

Then shall ye flee to the valley of my mountains, for the valley of the mountains shall reach very near.

Yea, ye shall flee just as ye fled from Jerusalem before the earthquake, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah.

Then shall arrive, Yahweh my God, as his holy ones with thee.

And it shall come to pass, in that day, that there shall be no light, but the bright stars shall be withdrawn;

And it shall be a day by itself, the same shall be known unto Yahweh not day, nor night, but it shall come to pass, that at evening time there shall be light.

And it shall come to pass, in that day, that there shall go forth living waters, out of Jerusalem, half of them unto the sea before, and half of them unto the sea behind, in summer and in winter shall it be.

So will Yahweh become king over all the earth, in that day shall there be one Yahweh, and his Name shall be one.

All the land shall turn into a plain, from Geba to Rimmon, south of Jerusalem, and shall lift herself on high and abide in her own place.

From the gate of Benjamin up to the place of the first gate, up to the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananeel up to the wine-presses of the king.

So shall men dwell therein, and utter destruction shall not be any more, but Jerusalem shall abide in security.

And this shall be the plague, wherewith Yahweh will plague all the peoples, who have made war against Jerusalem:

His flesh shall be made to rot while he is standing upon his feet, and his eyes shall rot in their sockets, and his tongue shall rot in their mouth;

And it shall come to pass in that day, that there shall be a great confusion from Yahweh among them,

And they will lay hold upon the hand of his neighbour, and his hand will rise up against the hand of his neighbour;

Moreover also Judah will fight with Jerusalem, and the wealth of all the nations round about shall be gathered together, Gold and silver and apparel in great abundance.

And so shall be the plague of the horse, the mule, the camel, and the ass, and all the beasts which shall be in those camps, like this plague!

And it shall come to pass, that as for every one that is left out of all the nations that came against Jerusalem,

That they shall come up, from year to year, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts, and to celebrate the festival of booths.

And it shall come to pass that Whoso shall not come up out of the families of the earth, unto Jerusalem, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts, shall not be any rain.

And if the family of Egypt shall not come up, and shall not enter in, upon whom there felleth none> Then shall smite them the plague wherewith Yahweh did plague the nations, because they came not up to celebrate the festival of booths.
And every caldron in Jerusalem and in Judah, shall be Holy unto Yahweh of hosts,—
So shall all who are offering sacrifice, [come in], and take of them, and boil therein,— Neither shall there be a merchant* any more' in the house of Yahweh of hosts, in that day.

Behold me threatening, on your account, the seed, and I will scatter refuse upon your faces, the refuse of your festivals, — and one shall carry you away unto it; so shall ye know that I sent unto you this charge — as being my covenant with Levi, Said Yahweh of hosts.

My covenant was with him, Life and Well-being, So I gave them to him — [I] as one to be revered — and he did reverence me, — and before my name was dismayed he. Judah hath dealt treacherously, And an abomination hath been wrought in Israel, and in Jerusalem. — For Judah had profaned the holy place of Yahweh, which he had loved, and hath taken to himself the daughter of a foreign god. May Yahweh cut off, from the man that doeth it — him that crieth out and him that answereth, out of the tents of Jacob, — Him also that bringeth near to Yahweh of hosts.

And this a second time will ye do, covering, with tears, the altar of Yahweh, weeping and making outcry, — because he will not again turn unto the gift, and receive [it] with acceptance, at your hands?

Yet ye say, For what cause? Because [Yahweh] hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, with whom thou hast dealt treacherously, though she was thy consort, and thy covenant wife.

SPECIAL NOTE.

ON

THE APOCRYPHA.

It was once customary to bind up the Apocrypha between the authorised versions of the Old and New Testaments. This has now ceased, and as a consequence this curious, interesting, and instructive part of Jewish literature is now known only to scholars. Under these circumstances, the following account of the Apocrypha, condensed from Hastings' "Dictionary of the Bible" (T. & T. Clark), may be found useful.

The word "Apocrypha" is applied by English-speaking Protestants to the following collection of books and parts of books — I. Esdras, II. Esdras, Tobit, Judith, Additions to Esther, The Wisdom of Solomon, The Wisdom of Sirach or Ecclesiasticus, Baruch (chap. vi., Epistle of Jeremy), The Song of the Three Holy Children, The History of Susannah, The History of the Destruction of Bel and the Dragon (ix., x., and xi. are Additions to the Book of Daniel), The Prayer of Manasses, I. Maccabees, II. Maccabees. The collection consists of the excess of the Latin Vulgate over the Hebrew Old Testament; and this excess is due to the Greek LXX. ["Sep."], from which the old Latin Version was made. The difference between the Protestant and Roman Catholic Old Testament goes back, then to a difference between Palestinian and Alexandrian Jews.

The word "Apocrypha," meaning "hidden," was no doubt first applied to books in a quite literal sense — of books kept from the public. The hiding of a book was easy when copies were few. It might be done on two opposite grounds — to keep from outsiders secret laws or wisdom, or because the contents were judged to be useless or harmful. Official Judaism rejected these hidden books, and declared for the exclusive recognition of the twenty-four books of the Canon. The Catholic Church decided that the Apocrypha were not to be regarded as sacred Scriptures, since publicity and universality were marks of genuineness and truth. Protestantism went over to the Jewish usage, applying the words to the books withdrawn by it from the commonly accepted Canon, though this no longer meant withdrawn from public reading and common use, but only from full authority for doctrine — not disapproved, but recommended as good and useful, not secret or hidden in origin, meaning or use. The evil name, however, helped to lower the first estimate of the books.

In the Eastern Church clearness and consistency have never been reached. In the Latin Church there was an inclination to let Christian usage, rather than scholarly theory, determine the place of the Apocrypha in the Canon. Jerome strongly pressed the sole validity of the Hebrew Canon, but nevertheless gave these books an intermediate position. Augustine stands for the Catholic principle as determining the Canon, but reveals a growing sense of the secondary authority or security of the Apocrypha. Carlstadt vindicates Jerome's position. Luther wavers, but in his Bible (completed 1534) the Apocrypha stands between O. T. and N. T., with the title: "A., that is books which are not held equal to the sacred Scriptures, and nevertheless are useful and good to read." Calvin reaffirms Jerome's view. It was not until 1827, after two years' sharp dispute, that the British and Foreign Bible Society decided to exclude the Apocrypha from all its publications of the Bible. Within the Church of England the number of readings has been, at a comparatively recent date, reduced. In the Revision of Luther's Bible (1829) the Apocrypha still stands, with Luther's title. The modern historical interest is putting these writings in their true place as significant documents of a most important era in religious history.
DEUTERONYM, AUTHORSHIP OF

At first sight it might seem as though the translator of The Emphasized Bible had no need to trouble himself about the authorship of the Book of Deuteronomy. There it stood, written, and left all such questions to commentators and the higher critics. Even had this self-exercising policy prevailed, however, that would not have obliterated the impression naturally received in the process of rendering the book. It is true that the remaining of that impression into silence might have entailed no loss to the world. But there was another reason for offering an opinion, which was this. The design of this Bible—to give effect, among other things, to the interest of the reader and the operations of reading and speech—made it imperative to take a definite attitude as to the literary question involved in this discussion. That is to say, it demanded of the translator not only an exact judgment as to what parts of the book of Deuteronomy were probably editorial, so that he might differentiate them in the margin, setting fully out to the reader the hand of the column portions that were not "speech"; but the very fact of doing this was sure to draw the inquisitive reader into the problem. By pronouncing a definite opinion on the obvious question why some parts of Deuteronomy are marginally distinguished from other parts; why, for example, chaps. i. 1-13; ii. 10-12, 19-23; iii. 11-14; iv. 41-48, 44-46, are thus separated from their contexts. It seemed better, therefore, to take the reader into confidence and explain, such few notes as were made of the book itself, as at chaps. iv. 13; v. 8.; vii. 17.; viii. 2., &c., and then by the present connected statement, to employ the book of Deuteronomy as a very elementary object-lesson, offered once for all, in that legitimate higher criticism which no honest man of reverent judgment needs fear to study.

The purpose thus defined may perhaps be more effectively attained by first presenting, substantially as it was written, a paper which appeared in a weekly magazine two years ago, and by then submitting such further observations as may appear to be called for.

In this book we hear the voice of "the old man eloquent." As an author, there may be more or less of Moses the man of God in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers; but without the aid of his living voice, and listen to his impassioned pleadings with Israel. No later writer could have so completely entered into the situation. Moses, Edom and the other lands through which Israel had passed; far less with the inimitable. Such, at least, is the modification to which the translator's first presentation submitted itself. Briefly, as follows: That a little further extension of the supposed editorship goes a long way towards placing the main impression upon an immovable basis. Not antiquarian notes alone, but historical, introductions, and at least one historical appendix. The historical appendix is, of course, seen and known of all men. Moses certainly did not record his own death and burial; and only a considerably later hand could have finally told how much greater Moses was than any who came after him. The historical introductions—of which there are principally two—are worthy of further attention. There is nothing to show that those introductions may not have been written by Joshua, "Eleazar or Phineas, or some other contemporary of the great Prophet, within a few years of his death. The introductions referred to are, first, a general one to the whole book chap. i. 1-5; and, second, an introduction to Moses' account of the "ten words" given on Mount Sinai (chap. iv. 1—v. 1). In both of these are found tokens of editorship which challenge our confidence, inasmuch as, in them, two distinct lines of evidence are seen converging to the conclusion that these portions are editorial. The first line consists in this—that, when the Editor writes, he refers to Moses in the third person: "Moses" said or did this or that; whereas when Moses himself speaks, he naturally alludes to himself as "I" or "me"; to Israel, including himself, as "we" or "us"; directly addressing his hearers as "ye" or "you," and then by the very easy hypothesis that that particular clause in question involved in this discussion. That is to say, it is the Editor's writing because he refers to Moses in the third person,—in them we find that "over the Jordan" means to the east: on the other hand, where we feel sure that Moses himself is speaking, by the time that "I," "we," "ye," "you,"—in those very portions "over the Jordan" meant to the west; to them, after they had entered, "over the Jordan" meant to the east, or, as the Editor of Moses is accustomed to add, "towards the rising of the sun." Now the persuasive coincidence is just this: That in those portions where we presume the Editor is writing because he refers to Moses in the third person,—in them we find that "over the Jordan" means to the east; on the other hand, where we feel sure that Moses himself is speaking, by the time that "I," "we," "ye," "you,"—in those very portions "over the Jordan" means to the west. There is but one exception, and that occurs in chaps. iv. 8. and v. 8. in the sentence which by the usual token was spoken by Moses; whereas the phrase "over the Jordan" which occurs in that sentence must mean eastward, as the locality spoken of conclusively shows. The difficulty is at once removed by the very easy hypothesis that that particular clause in the sentence was added as an editorial explanation. Then all is plain, and the exception proves the rule; which rule being a second one, and coinciding with a first entirely independent of it, generates an amount of confidence not easily shaken.

But the evidence of the Mosesian authorship of the speeches—which of which, be it noted, the book of Deuteronomy is mainly composed—springs from something more subtle and more conclusive than the aforesaid converging lines of evidence, however satisfactory in themselves those lines may be. It springs from the manner in which the speaker enters into the entire situation, leading us to exclaim, None but Moses could have done it! Coupled with this, and constituting an especial form of it, is the profound emotionality—in a word, the psychology which pervades the book, prompting us to say, None but Moses could have felt all this!

What, then, was the situation into which the speaker so completely enters? It was a situation created by time, place, event, and personality, and, naturally, owing to the concurrence of these causes, a situation that had never existed before and could never exist again. The time was after the forty years' wanderings, after the conquest of Sihon, king of Heshbon, and Og, king of Bashan; and just before the passage of the Jordan into Canaan; a momentous time, crowded with exciting expectations. The place was the Arabah of Moab, near the Jordan, over against Jericho, the centre of the whole east of Canaan, along which the people had skirted or into which they had penetrated—a place, therefore, which they would have to possess, without more delay. And what unique events had already happened: the sudden acquiescence in Israel’s triumph, that was guided by divine afflation, at the terrific storm of the clain over the matter of Haal-pear with which the names of Balak and Balaam are dishonourably associated; the return of Israel to the magnificent lands of Gilead and Bashan, with all the stir of war whetting the swords of Israel’s warriors with keen eagerness for the great conquest, the-—of the inhabitants and cities and products of the land; and there are Eleazar and Phineas, son and grandson of Aaron, Moses’ equal, Moses’ peer; there, also, the memories, many of them, reached back to the early days of the wanderings, who had seen that great and terrible desert, who had skirted Edom and Moab, and Ammon, and penetrated Gilead and Bashan, many of whom had lost near relatives in the fearful revolt of Haal-pear; and towering above them all was the commanding personality of Moses himself. Now the content here submitted is, that the speaker of those discourses, which constitute the chief portion of the book of Deuteronomy, so completely enters into the situation created by the time, the place, the events, and the personalities, that he could be no other than Moses himself. Only the man who lived then, and stood there, who had passed through those stirring events, who knew and understood that generation, could possibly speak in the strain that here greets our eyes.

For note, finally, the marked psychology of this book. We find the emotions of the speaker displayed. All the forms of speech that betoken depth of feeling are present here—repetitions, as if the speaker could not make many repetitions of God’s name and his purpose; digressions, caused by vivid memories crowding in upon him while he was speaking; appeals, remembrances, recriminations Moses could have dared none but Moses could have dared; especially confessions of disappointment and regret—so keen, so bitter, as if his heart would break—that he might not have been obedient to the great command. Note well, the extremes that meet, and are melted into a living whole, by the intense feeling with which the speaker is borne. "What nation is there so great, so foolish and unwise!" Note also the labour—the travail—for the people’s well-being into which his passionate love unites him. He speaks, and speaks; and he must surely have spoken from day to day! When he has done speaking, then he writes, and writes on: adding perhaps a little, towards the end, which he had not actually spoken, but in which he feels as if he were still speaking. And when he has written all—all the law, and all the interpretation of the law, and all the giving of the law, including perhaps variations most natural in one who spoke and wrote from memory and had been indubitably—when he has done all this, then, is there anything else he can do, any further stone he can turn, to set the people free? Yes, there is one thing he can do. He can resolve his passion into song—a song for the tongue, for the ear, for the memory; a song to live among the people, to be recited in their gatherings, to be accompanied by the harp. He has harangued them, he has warned them; now he will bewitch them. Thus is born his Witnessing Song (chap. xxxiii.). This is not the place to analyze that marvellous composition. Read it; get into sympathy with it. Against the doubt whether Moses could have composed it, let it be enough to say: Could anyone else have composed it? With regard to the Song of "Blessing" which stands in the next chapter (chap. xxxiii.), the expression in many ways is very deep. Instead of being something to grow out, but in the expression in which have gone before, it is couched in a totally opposite strain. It is blessing only—admonition only—iliation only. Shall we judge of the words of Moses, who records that "This is the blessing wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the sons of Israel before his death"? "This is the” of two expressions of which we open to us, both of which are perfectly rational, either of which would naturally account for the altered mood of the people. For it is "This is the blessing" of the main composed long years before these parting scenes, though only now publicly produced. Or we may further observe that, if death has already been the note of Moses passed into a serener atmosphere after the excitement and strain of the admonitory speeches and solemn warnings, then his final words, in an expression, the man of God rested in the consciousness that he had done his duty: knowing, moreover, that, after all, there was hope in the end for Israel, how many...

fact, no hint is given of any harm befalling the goat that was dismissed; and despite the romance of the book of Enoch, preceded or followed by Jewish tradition, to the effect that the unsupervised goat steep rocks and was so killed, it is far more respectful to the Levitical appointment to stop where it claims to than to add a sequel which may pervert the transaction. As well imagination an untimely end to the living bird dipped in the blood of its fellow and then let go free (chap. xiv. 59) as to pursue the idea that the goat could just as well be returned to its keeping, as it was taken, by the man appointed, into a hole made to be indistinguishably lost in the crowd of the natural overgrown. Delivered once and for all from this mis-taken dream, and reverting once more to Azzel, it is enough to say that this particular feature, instead of suggesting any sacrifice to Satan, much rather amounts to a triumphant defiance of "him that held the dominion of death, that is, the Adversary." (Heb. i. 14); all the more so when the trend of such passages as Is. 1. 8; Rom. viii. 34, 35, and Rev. xii. 11, is patiently considered. From the above it may rightly be inferred that the meaning of and also given by the present translator as unsatisfactory.

PHARAOH'S HEART, THE HARDENING OF.

In his commentary on this place (Exo. iv. 21) Kalisch says: "The expression, hardened, occasion of an event is mostly more obvious, even to the reflecting mind, than its primary cause or its true (often hidden) originator, for it becomes a linguistic idiom in the most ancient, especially the Semitic, languages, to use indiscriminately the former instead of the latter, so that the phrase, I shall substitute the heart of Pharaoh means: 'I know, I shall be the cause of Pharaoh's obstinacy; my commands and wonders will be an occasion, this is to say, the obdurate heart of a powerful being, which is refractory to the rebukes of the most severe punishments, and who generally announced the time of the occurrence of the plagues by the words, 'Behold, I shall afflict thine heart;' so that in order to bring reflection and repentance; this clemency on the part of God increased Pharaoh's refractoriness; it was to him a cause of prolonged and renewed resistance.

The importance of the question thus suggested, coupled with the consideration of the translator's responsibility to duty, I felt it fair to draw attention to the possibility of the translators, to render the reader's knowledge of the text, to suggest a few further facts and observations of practical interest. Is it right, on the part of the translator of the Tanakh, to endeavor to avoid representing God as the author or instigator of wickedness?

Jews, says, for answering this question, it will be sufficient, in this article, to submit two facts. The first is, that words in the original usually expressive of cause are every where and employed to denote occasion, and may be legitimately rendered in the latter sense. The second is, that even positive commands are occasionally to be accepted as meaning no more than permission.

1. That Hebrew Grammarians distinctly avow occasion or permission to be sometimes the sense of verbs which ordinarily signify cause can be verified by a reference to the Hebrew Grammar of Gesenius, say in the admissible translation of Dr. Benjamin Davies (p. 12). After stating that the verbal form (conjugation) denotes intensity and repetition, this grammar adds: 'It often takes the modifications expressed by permit, to declare, and so on, to help.' This is found in the verb shâlôh, to send.' Notice its modification with reference to the raven and the dove in Gen. viii. 11. Noah said, 'Send these, that they may simply let them go.' The only cause was permission, the removal of restraint. Again, when Elisha said (2 Kings ii. 16-17) "Let me go," he meant way. "Let me go," 'Do not hinder me.' So with regard to hayaḥ, 'to live;' in piel, 'to cause to live.' The historian does not mean (as the midrash has it) the male children to live;" (Ex. i. 17)—plainly, "permitted them," 'refrained from putting them to death.' To the contrary, the opposite, in the following verses. Pharaoh asked: "Wherefore have we done this thing, to let (not really make) the male children live?" verse 18, and then gave command to every daughter shall ye not cause, but suffer to live." (verse 22.)

2. In the hiphil conjugation, the same modification occasion-

PROPITIATORY COVERING.

Instead of "make atonement for" thin translation has, mostly, " put a propitiatory covering over" ; and this is undeniably a more adequate rendering of the original kipper. The verb kipper is the intensitive (/<'-/J form of kdphar, which by general consent means to cover. And though kipper in set apart to denote moral covering, generally by sacrifice, yet it does not follow that the mental conception of covering is thereby lost. Indeed the prevailing reference of this species of covering to persons as its object, and the favourite construction of the verb with «/ "upon" and ba'ad "about," point clearly to the wisdom of preserving the more graphic rendering which has here been ventured, and which preserves the striking idealism of the Hebrew. Speaking of the application of kipper to various classes of offerings, the Oxford Gesenius (p. 498: says : " Underlying all these offerings there is the conception that the persons offering are covered by that which is regarded as sufficient ana satisfactory by Yahweh." Although this thought may be held to abate something of its picturesqueness when the action is regarded as taking effect on inanimate objectssuch as the "altar," "the tent of meeting," &c—yet these merely derived applications can scarcely be taken to efface the deeper idealism, where that aptly holds good.
Kipp'r may easily be said to signify " to atone," but the question arises, what is the radical O.T. conception of " atonement " I Or, the word in question may be held to denote " forgiveness," but Btill the question is pertinent,
Has this great " atoning" word nothing to say regarding the means by which forgiveness is secured ! The more must this question be pressed, that in many instances till it becomes the standing formula in the book of Leviticus) forgiveness is spoken of as a sequel to the atoning act rather than that act itself. The atoning lies behind the forgiving. Kven where the verb "to forgive" would seem an apt rendering of the Hebrew kipper, it will generally be found that the more graphic translation which keeps up a filament of connection with the sacrificial means by which forgiveness is secured, is to be preferred. The great gain of this rendering, however, most clearly comes in throughout those numerous cases in which there is an undeniable surrender of life /or life.
The sacrifice covers the sinner— how ! By dying in his stead. One life covers another when one is surrendered and the other therefore spared. The blow must fall ; for the wages of sin is death, and without the shedding of blood there is no remission. But it falls on the substituted life. The dead covers the living. The living is ransomed —pardoned- set free. Such covering is essentially pro pitiatory covering. Substitution is of its essence. Any possible abuse of this fundamental Hebrew concept, will be averted by doing careful and equal justice to the entire Levitical ritual. The offerer consents to the substitution; and by himself or his representative takes an essential part in the transfer of the penalty of the sin which he confesses. Man consents; God consents.
The substitutionary death is granted by God : it is accepts! by man. It is accepted under the solemn stipu lation that the spared life shall be wholly consecrated to the holy and merciful God who brings near this costly salvation. One thing is wanting in the ritual—the con sent of the substitute. Nay, a second thing is missingadequacy of value in the substituted. Be it so ! Then when a substitute shall appear who shall willingly bear the sin of the world, and be worthy to bear it ; and God consents and ordains; and man consents and accepts; then the whole Ideai of Propitiatory Covering will be complete.
It remains for tho World and for the Individual to cany the matter to its practical consum mation.
SIN = SIN-OFFERING = SIN-BEARER.
One of the most striking and significant facts in the language of Iveviticus and of the O.T. generallyis that the sin-offering and the guilf>-offering are in Hebrew called simply "sin" and "guilt"— the victim being called by the name of the offence which it bears and for which it dies. As this usage could not have been intended to confound moral delinquency or abnormal moral condition with an innocent and unoffeo'hng animal, the usage can only be regarded as vividly setting forth the close connection between sin and death-the doom of sin to end in death—the destiny of the iinbearer to carry the sin unto death and realise its termi nation in death. The sacrifice thus becomes an impretfive obj ect-leHson — a dramatic representation of pathetic moral instruct!veness. The victim is put in the offender's place, and is then slain. One sins ; another dies. Between these two facta is interposed the symbolical ceremony of the laying-on (or more exactly, the leanine-onj of the hands of the sinner upon the head of the sin-bearer. The sin is thereby represented as transferred from the former to the latter : the sin, not indeed in its moral blame worthiness, but in its legal answerableness. To render wh a transference possible, Divine sanction is essential. It i* chiefly and ultimately against God that sin is committed.

His primal law is that the person who sans— the wne ihall die (Eze. xviii. 4) ; and he (Yahweh himself! alone can commute or transfer the penalty. Besides, all life is his gift and care. No animal can be lawfully slain without his permission. Hence, in divinely-appointed sacrifice, his per mission is seen—a fact formally and solemnly enunciated in Leviticus xvii. 11. He grants, within certain limits what he alone could rightfully grant, the substitution of life for life upon the altar of sacrifice. But although, this divine sanction is essential to acceptable substitu tionary sacrifice, the interest and obligation of the offender must not be overlooked. He has done the wrong, and it is for him to make amends, if he can, and if he may. And it is worthy of note that between him and his substitute a near relation is presupposed or secured. To die for me, the lamb must be mine. Accordingly the pascal lamb was to be selected and brought to the offerer's home, there to be petted and pitied— so as to render the offering of it the offering of his own heart—of himself (Exo. xii. 3-*> .
In like manner, on the great Day of Propitiation. when all the sacrifices of the year were summed up and com pleted, it vfaafrom the ptopl*. that the priest was inrtrurttd to accept the sin-bearers which were to be offered in their behalf (Lev. xvi. 5). It is of course conceivable that the sinner may be unable to provide an acceptable s&crirkr ;
in which case it is possible that God himself may provide the Lamb {Gen. xxii. 8) ; and indeed a glimmering perception of the possible need of some notable Divine provision seems to have prophetically carried amy th* patriarch Abraham into the bestowal, upon Mount Moriah, of the name " Yahweh-yireh " ("'iahweh will provide"), and to have induced others to prolong the anticipation in the saying, " In the mountain of Yahweh shall provision be made" (Gen. xxii. 14 1. The need of Divine Sanction to the constitution of etfieaciouj Substitution attains its most weighty expression when we read in the prophets: "Yahweh caused tn light upon him the iniquity of us all" ;Isa. liii. 6. No other than He could make that transference—be the Suffering Servant who he mav. In view of the impressive lesson thus afforded, and which is so prominent in the book of Leviticus (where the word hattath—for nineteen time* it means sin— fifty-three times stands for the sin-netim the translator would fain have followed the severity of however, preferred "sin-bearer" to "sin-offering,'' a* penetrating just a little further into the heart of the matter. " Sin-bearer," meantime, may aptly remind us not only of Isa. liii. 6, but of I. Pet. ii. 21 ; but if we should ever be able to "homologate" the one term " in " f' assuredly have climbed the high level which would conduct us triumphantly into the great Pauline utterance of resisted the temptation to substitute "sin-offering" _wr traces it to the influence over him of this remarkable usage in Leviticus : " sin-offering "—yes ! but what con

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION.

The recent completion of "The Emphasised Bible" renders this issue of a Fourth Edition of the New Testament portion of that work a fitting occasion for the insertion of a new Preface here.

The Unity of "The Emphasised Bible" has controlled the moulding of its constituent parts. The New Testament, first published in 1872, and then in 1878 (under the title of "The New Testament Newly Translated and Critically Emphasised"), was entirely remodelled and received its present shorter title in 1897, so that it might take its place as an essential portion of the whole book. To that the Old Testament was conformed in size, type, style of translating, and method of emphasising; both Testaments being dealt with in the Expository Introduction placed before the Book of Genesis, in which Introduction the peculiarities of the entire work are explained in Four Chapters.

It is believed that this Unity of Plan and Execution serves to set in clearer light the essential oneness of the Sacred Volume: to render which service as complete as possible, an Introductory Note on "The Interpretation of the Bible" follows this Preface; moreover also a small handbook has been issued, entitled "Our Sacred Books: being Plain Chapters on the Inspiration, Transmission and Translation of the Bible."

May these endeavours receive the Divine blessing!

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

ON

THE INTERPRETATION OF THE BIBLE.

"Understandest thou what thou readest?" is a most natural question for a Translator to ask: first, from an inevitable solicitude that his rendering should not have missed its mark; and, secondly, from the self-restraint with which, though essentially an interpreter himself, he has continually left outstanding questions of exegesis to the judgment of his readers.

But, just here, between the Old Testament and the New, the problem of Interpretation becomes momentous and urgent, since therein is involved the very claim of the New Testament to follow the Old as a rightful part of the One Book. In weighing this problem, the following principles demand consideration—namely, continuity, gradation, fulfilment, adaptation and advancement.

1. Continuity, while chiefly consisting in the re-appearance of the things of the Old in the New, runs partly also on verbal lines of connection between the Hebrew Scriptures and the Christian, so that, by the help of such words as "God," "Israel," "Gentiles," "faith," "holiness" and "salvation," "heaven" and "earth," "life" and "death," "hades," "messengers," "age-abiding," and others too numerous to mention, the reader finds himself resuming in the Later Writings themes with which he had become familiar in the Earlier. And so, notwithstanding the great difference between them, the New Testament appears to run on as a continuation of the Old. The moral atmosphere is the same. It is God who is still speaking, in words which reveal His holiness and love. The appeal is still to men's consciences.

2. Nevertheless a marked gradation may be traced between the Book of Genesis and the Book of the Revelation. Even the earliest Books of the Bible are marked by the appearances of growth. The Book of Genesis is plainly introductory to the Book of Exodus; but the former shows within itself the signs of development—the small germ-record being followed by the larger narrative, each with its fitting commencement. No subtle criticism is needed to reveal these tokens of advancement: they are open to every eye. And as literary development appears, so does historical. The world before the Flood, leaving behind its admonitory lessons for all time, makes way for the world after the Flood. Of the three sons of Noah, Ham and Japheth, after coming on the scene, retire before Shem, because from Shem Abraham is to arise, and from Abraham the Chosen Nation. Simultaneously with the progress of history, prophecy advances, an early promise being amplified into repeated and enlarged predictions, running along the line which history has prepared for their accomplishment. The Man becomes a Nation, the Nation is called to be the Servant of Yahweh for ministry to the other nations of the earth, until at length the Ministering Nation itself is seen led on to its destiny by its Suffering and Conquering Messiah. The Messiah Himself is more and more clearly foreshadowed as time goes on, the promised Seed of the Woman being destined to appear in Abraham's line, of David's family, and to come forth from Bethlehem. Then we turn over the leaf, and the Coming One appears, though in lowliness at first, to be rejected—like Joseph, like Moses! Meantime, as history and prophecy march on, morals are uplifted, the temporary permission of half-remedies for social evils being closed when the Greater Prophet arrives; and just when hope rises on loftier wing, patience and self-sacrifice become the crowning virtues, and when the Mystery of Suffering deepens, larger and more satisfying solutions are discerned; so that a half-chapter from the Epistle to the Romans does more to solve the riddle than the elaborate drama and lengthy arguments of the Book of Job, and the Hallelujahs of the Apocalypse, in sweep and fulness of triumph, manifestly transcend any heard in the Psalms or the Prophets.

3. The fulfilment of Prophecy begins in the Old Testament, and then runs over into the New. The one man becomes a great nation, yea many nations spring from his loins. The Messiah appears, and the songs sung by heavenly messengers over Bethlehem's plains are learned and lisped for centuries by Gentile babes, and myriads of martyrs from among the Nations joyfully surrender their lives for very love of the Crucified Son of David, whose face they are sure they shall behold in glory. But fulfilment comes by instalments—the Eternal seems to be in no haste. The Old Testament is partly fulfilled in the New, and this measure of accomplishment forms a magnificent pledge of all the rest; nevertheless a glorious Remnant awaits the times of the accomplishment of all the things that are written. What is not fulfilled by the First Advent will be filled to the full by the Second, when "the heavens shall be set open, and the messengers of God ascend and descend unto the Son of Man."* Christians believe that the Jesus of the New Testament is the Messiah foreshadowed in the Old; they are unwise if they affirm that He has already entered upon the whole work assigned Him. Restraining themselves from assuming too much, they are left free to do the completest exegetical justice to the Hebrew Scriptures as well as to their own. They can well afford to favour a natural interpretation of the whole Bible—of poetry as poetry, allowing for poetical license; of prophecy as prophecy, granting that some dimness must needs rest on things yet to come, especially when the like of them have never happened yet; but abstaining nothing from the programme, hiding nothing, denying nothing; never allegorising without express warrant or manifest need.

* John i. 51.

4. It is submitted, however, that the Hebrew Scriptures in their entirety and all at once, presents a prophecy may be verified in principle long before it is fulfilled according to its own contextual intention.
Yahweh has an undoubted right to make "a People" out of Gentiles who before were a "No-people," as the Apostle Paul well understood; but He has more than the right, He has the revealed intention of bringing the Hebrew nation itself through the three successive conditions of being first "a People," second "a No-people," and third "a People" again, as clearly announced by the Prophet Hosea. It is sheer Gentile blindness not to see this; and the habit of overlooking it may, without exaggeration, be said to wreck all sound interpretation of the Old Testament Prophecies. For under its influence nothing in the ancient predictions can be trusted to mean what it says, even after making reasonable allowance for figurative language. Whereas, when borrowed language is frankly acknowledged to bear that character, and the interpreter faithfully reverts to its original intention in its own context—so that, in the Old Testament, "Israel" means Israel and "Jerusalem" means Jerusalem—then the Messiah's promised Kingdom is seen to remain intact, and the ancient prophecies concerning it can be interpreted according to their obvious significance. The manifold wisdom of God has made ample provision for the Messiah's Ecclesia, so that her heavenly portion can be assigned her as His Bride, with interference with the Messiah's Kingdom, the chief earthly place therein being still regarded as inviolably reserved for that ancient Nation whose continued existence is the most extended and persistent miracle the world has ever seen.

5. With just abatement, however, on the score of partial fulfilment in the realm of facts and of free adaptation in the sphere of language, advancement presses its way to the front, claiming that, though injustice must not be done to the Hebrew Scriptures, yet less than justice shall not be accorded to the Christian Scriptures. The advancement made in the progress of events is so decisive as of necessity to charge language with new forces and to create new forms of expression, thereby profoundly influencing the whole science of Biblical Interpretation. The fundamental Christian assumptions are:
that the Messiah has come—that His own people have rejected Him—that the promised Kingdom is postponed—that now the First Advent must be followed by a Second—that meantime an Ecclesia (or "assembly") is being summoned from the ends of the earth—that, though not herself the Kingdom, yet in her heart the hope of the Kingdom is implanted, and by her activities preparations for its establishment are being signally matured—that on this Ecclesia spiritual gifts have been bestowed, and in it spiritual men have been produced who, though in many ways like the prophets of old, yet in some ways surpass them—and that to one of these spiritual men in particular, namely Saul, of the tribe of Benjamin, also called Paul, has been committed the stupendous privilege of revealing a New Dispensation, intercalated among the Ages between the Two Advents, in other words between the Rejection and Reception of the Messiah by His own people. It thus comes about that by these concurrent advancements of facts, and of revelation as to their meaning, our methods of interpretation are enlarged and elevated. Many new words and phrases are added to our vocabulary, such as "apostle," "disciple," "church" (or "assembly"), "overseer," "impassive," "age-abiding life," "wrath to come"; and some old words are deepened in their significance, such as "good-tidings," "sacrifice,
"sanctification," "judgment." In short, Christians are the same and yet not the same as Jews: the same, in that the former as well as the latter believe in the promises made unto the fathers; not the same, inasmuch as the hopes of Christians are loftier and their outlook is more comprehensive. And all these things affect Christian Interpretation, which has to embrace new things as well as old, and therefore is naturally compelled to blend old and new in rightful proportions.

These, then, are the leading principles which, it is submitted, must underlie any successful endeavour to interpret harmoniously the Jewish and Christian Scriptures. To render such endeavour successful is to obtain three results of incalculable value. It is, first, to offer a basis on which each reader may frame for himself a few simple by-laws for Scripture exegesis; secondly, to vindicate the right of the New Testament to stand at the close of the Old as its legitimate sequel; and, thirdly, to offer a triumphant defence of the entire Bible, which—drawn from materials accumulated through long ages, penned by authors mainly to each other unknown, and dealing with facts, laws, and instructions constituting successive dispensations of Divine dealings with human affairs—nevertheless submits to be consistently understood from end to end in a way which satisfies and sanctifies the mind, the conscience, and the life.

| single upright lines enclose words on which a moderate amount of stress should be laid.
| Double lines indicate more decided stress.
< > these angular marks ask for more or less force in utterance; are always introductory; and therefore never used at the close of a sentence. In long prefixed clauses, their form will readily catch the anticipating eye of the reader; and due attention to them will, it is believed, prove especially helpful towards an immediate perception of the structure of long sentences. They are occasionally borrowed to meet an emergency, when several shades of emphasis can be distinguished to advantage.

m’: an acute accent denotes the least possible increase of stress. Its nearly uniform application to prefixed adjectives may interest the Greek student. This sign also helps in an emergency.

 A half comma (,) simply relieves the comma, which is apt to be overmuch used or annoyingly omitted.

Note.—When, in the Epistles, the indentations of the type have been carried as far from the margin as was convenient, and yet the thought of the Writer invited a still further subordinating of clauses, a few logical capitals have occasionally been thrown in, suggesting where new lines might be commenced in writing out a passage upon an enlarged scale as an aid to exposition. In any case, as Logical Analysis is necessarily subjective, and appeals to the reader’s comprehension and insight, the student is counselled, pencil in hand, to refine these typographical indications for himself, by pushing in or drawing out the lines according to his own judgment. On the basis here provided, nothing could be easier, while the profit would be certainly great. As Dr. Richard Moulton well observes in his admirable work “The Bible as Literature,” it is not so much a question of right or wrong, as of good, better and best.

And | Eleazar | begat Mattathah;
And | Mattathah | begat Jacob;
16 And | Jacob | begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus,— who is called Christ.

And <from David unto the removal to Babylon> [fourteen] generations;
And <from the removal to Babylon, unto the Christ> [fourteen] generations.

§ 2. The Birth.

18 Now the birth of Jesus Christ was thus: His mother Mary having been betrothed to Joseph,— before they came together she was found with child by the Holy Spirit.

19 Moreover, [Joseph her husband] being righteous, and yet unwilling to expose her,— intended privately to divorce her. But <when these things> he had pondered thus: a messenger of the Lord | [by dream] appeared to him, saying,—

Joseph, son of David! do not fear to take unto thee Mary thy wife, for <that which in her> hath been begotten is of [the] Holy Spirit.

21 Moreover she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus,*— for he will save his people from their sins.

22 But <when this> hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord, through the prophet, saying:

Lo! | [a * Virgin] shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son,— and they will call his name Emmanuel *; which is being translated, God with us.

24 And Joseph, | awaking from his sleep, did as the messenger of the Lord directed him,— and took unto him his wife; and knew her not, until she had brought forth a son,— and he called his name Jesus.

§ 3. The Visit of the Wise Men.

2 Now <when Jesus> was born in Bethlehem of Judaea, in the days of Herod the king > lo! | wise men from eastern parts came into Jerusalem; * saying—

Where is he that hath been born king of the Jews? for we saw his star in the east, and have come to bow down to him.

But <when King Herod heard> he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him; * and <assembling all the high-priests and scribes of the people> he was enquiring of them—

Where is | the Christ | to be born?

And they said to him,
In Bethlehem of Judaea,—
for so is it written* through the prophet:
And thou, Bethlehem, land of Judah,
By no means least art thou, among the governors of Judah,—
For out of thee shall one come forth to govern,
Who shall shepherd my people Israel.

Then Herod, privately calling the wise men, ascertained from them the time of the appearing star;
and sending them to Bethlehem, said—
Go search out accurately concerning the child,— and as soon as ye find it, bring report unto me, that I also may come and bow myself down to it.

Now they, hearing the king, went,— and lo! the star which they had seen in the east was going before them, until it went and stood over where the child was;
and seeing the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy;
and, entering the house, they saw the child, with Mary its mother,— and, falling down, prostrated themselves unto it, and, opening their treasures, offered unto it gifts—gold and frankincense and myrrh;
and being instructed by dream, not to return unto Herod by another way retired they unto their own country.

The Flight into Egypt, the Return, and the Settlement in Nazareth.

Now when they had retired, lo! a messenger of the Lord appeared by dream unto Joseph, saying,
Arise, take unto thee the child and its mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there, until I tell thee,— for Herod is about to seek the child, to destroy it.

And arising, took unto him the child and its mother, and fled into Egypt, and be there, until I tell thee,— for Herod is about to seek the child, to destroy it.

And arising, took unto him the child and its mother, and fled into Egypt, and be there, until the death of Herod,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying,
Out of Egypt called I my son.

Then Herod, seeing that he had been mocked by the wise men, was exceedingly enraged,— and sent and slew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, and all its bounds, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had ascertained from the wise men.

Then was fulfilled that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying:
A voice in Ramah was heard,
Rachel weeping for her children,
And would not be comforted,— because they are not.

But when Herod was dead, lo! a messenger of the Lord appeared by dream unto Joseph in Egypt;— saying—
Arise! and take unto thee the child and its mother, and be journeying into the land of Israel,—for they are dead, who were seeking the life of the child.

Hearing, however, that Archelaus was reigning over Judaea instead of his father Herod, he was afraid [thither] to go,— and so, being instructed by dream, he retired into the parts of Galilee; and came and fixed his dwelling in a city called Nazareth,— that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through the prophets—
A Nazarene shall he be called.

The Forerunner.

Now in those days came John the Immerser,* proclaiming in the wilderness of Judaea;— saying,
Repent ye,— for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near.

For this is he who was spoken of through Isaiah the prophet, saying,*
A voice, of one crying aloud!
In the wilderness prepare ye the way of the Lord,
Straight be making his paths.

But John himself had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins,— while his food was locusts and wild honey.

Then were going forth unto him—Jerusalem, and all Judaea, and all the country round about the Jordan; and were being immersedin the Jordan river, by him, openly confessing their sins.

But seeing many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming unto his immersion, he said to them,— Broods of vipers! who suggested to you, to be fleeing from the coming wrath?

Bring forth, therefore, fruit worthy of repentance;
and think not to be saying within yourselves,— As our father we have [Abraham];

For I say unto you, that God is able [out of these stones] to raise up children unto Abraham.

[Already also] the axe unto the root of the trees] is being laid,— [every tree, therefore, not bringing forth good fruit] is to be hewn down, and [into fire] to be cast.

[Indeed] am immersing you [in water, unto repentance],— but <he who > after me cometh is mightier than I, whose [sandsals I am not worthy to bear] [he] will immerse you [in Holy Spirit and fire];
Whose fan is in his hand, and he will clear out his threshing-floor,— and will gather his wheat into the granary, but [the chaff] will he burn up with fire unquenchable.

The Immersion.

Then cometh Jesus, from Galilee to the
Jordan, unto John, — to be immersed by him. 14 But [he] would have hindered him, saying — [I have need] [by thee] to be immersed, — and dost thou come unto me? 15 But Jesus answering, said unto him, Suffer [me] even now,— for [thus] it becometh us to fulfil [all righteousness]. 16 'Then' he suffered him. 18 And Jesus [having been immersed] [straightway] went up from the water, — and lo! the heavens were opened* and he saw the Spirit of God, descending like a dove coming upon him; 17 and lo! a voice out of the heavens,— saying, 'This is my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight.'

4 'Then' Jesus was led up into the wilderness, by the Spirit, to be tempted by the adversary; 3 and, fasting forty days and forty nights,— afterwards] he hungered. 5 And, coming near, the tempter said to him, — if thou art God's [Son] > speak! that these stones may become [loaves]. 4 But [he] answering, said, 'Not on bread alone shall man live, but on every declaration coming forth through them.'
6 Then the adversary took him with him unto the holy city,— and set him upon the pinnacle of the temple; 3 and saith to him, — if thou art God's Son, cast thyself down; — for it is written,* [To his messengers] will he give charge concerning thee; 3 and [on hands] will they bear thee up, lest once thou strike against a stone, thy foot. 7 Jesus said to him, — [Again] it is written, — Thou shalt not put to the test [the Lord thy God].
8 'Again' the adversary took him with him, unto an exceeding high mountain,— and pointed out to him all the kingdoms of the world, and their glory; 3 and said to him, All these things will I give thee,— if thou wilt fall down and worship me. 10 Then saith Jesus unto him, Withdraw, Satan! for it is written, — [The Lord thy God] shall thou worship, and [to him alone] render divine service. 11 'Then' the adversary leaveth him,— and lo! [messengers] came near, and began ministering unto him.

§ 8. Jesus begins his Ministry in Galilee. Mk. i. 14-20; Lu. iv. 14, 15.
12 And <hearing that [John] had been delivered up>, he retired into Galilee; 4 and, forsaking Nazareth, he came and fixed his dwelling in Capernaum, which was by the sea,— within the bounds of Zebulun and Naphtali: 14 that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying:
13 <Land of Zebulun, and land of Naphtali, The sea-way across the Jordan,—Galilee of the nations> 16 [The people that was sitting in darkness] [A great light] beheld,— And [on them who were sitting in land and shade of death] [Light] rose on them.*
17 [From that time] began Jesus to be making proclamation, and saying,— Repent ye, for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near. 18 And [walking round beside the sea of Galilee] he saw two brethren— Simon who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother,— casting a large fishing-net into the sea, for they were fishers; 19 and he saith unto them, Come after me,— and I will make you fishers of men.
20 And [they] [straightway] leaving the nets, followed him. 21 And [going forward from thence] he saw other two brethren— James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother— in the boat with Zebedee their father, putting in order their nets,— and he called them. 22 And [they] [straightway] leaving the boat and their father, followed him. 23 And Jesus was going round throughout all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the glad-message of the kingdom,— and curing every disease, and every infirmity, among the people. 24 And forth went the report of him into all Syria; and they brought unto him all who were sick, <with divers diseases and tortures distressed, demonized and lunatic and paralyzed,— and he cured them.>
25 And there followed him large multitudes—from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judea, and across the Jordan.

5 But <seeing the multitudes> he went up into a mountain,— and, when he had taken a seat, his disciples came unto him; 3 and, opening his mouth, he began teaching them, saying:—
3 [Happy] the destitute [in spirit]; 8 [Happy] the pure [in heart];
4 [Happy] they who mourn; 5 [Happy] the meek;
6 [Happy] they who hunger and thirst for righteousness;
7 [Happy] the merciful;
8 [Happy] the pure [in heart];
9 [Happy] they who shall be comforted*
5 [Happy] the meek;
6 [Happy] they who shall inherit the earth;
7 [Happy] they who shall receive mercy:
8 [Happy] they who shall be made perfect;
9 [Happy] they who shall see God:*

9 Happy are the peacemakers; For they shall be called sons of God:

10 Happy are they who have been persecuted for righteousness' sake; For theirs is the kingdom of the heavens.

11 Happy are ye, whensoever they may reproach you and persecute you, and say every evil thing against you falsely, for my sake: Rejoice and exult, because your reward is great in the heavens; for so persecuted they the prophets who were before you.

12 Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt become tasteless: wherewith shall it be salted? It is good for nothing: save, being cast out, to be trampled on by men.

13 Ye are the light of the world: it is impossible for a city to be hid on the top of a mountain lying. Neither light they a lamp, and place it under the measure; but upon the lampstand, and it giveth light to all that are in the house. In like manner let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in the heavens.

14 Ye are the light of the world: it is impossible for a city to be hid on the top of a mountain lying. Neither light they a lamp, and place it under the measure; but upon the lampstand, and it giveth light to all that are in the house. In like manner let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in the heavens.

15 For I say unto you, That whosoever shall relax one of these commandments, the least, and teach men so shall be called least in the kingdom of the heavens; but whosoever shall do and teach the same shall be called great in the kingdom of the heavens.

16 For I say unto you, That whosoever shall relax one of these commandments, the least, and teach men so shall be called least in the kingdom of the heavens; but whosoever shall do and teach the same shall be called great in the kingdom of the heavens.

17 Ye have heard, that it was said to them of old time,—Thou shalt not make agreement with thine adversary, quickly, while thou art with him, in the way,—lest once thine adversary deliver thee up unto the judge, and the judge unto the officer, and into prison thou be cast. Verily I say unto thee, In nowise mayest thou come out from thence, until thou pay the last halfpenny.

18 Ye have heard, that it was said,

Thou shalt not commit adultery: But I say unto you, That every one who looketh on a woman so as to covet her, already hath committed adultery with her in his heart.

19 And if thy right hand causeth thee to stumble put it off, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that one of thy members should perish, and not that whole body be cast into gehenna. And if thy whole body be cast into gehenna, there shall be no more reward for thee in the heavens.

20 But I tell you, that whosoever shall divorce his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement; But I say unto you, That every one who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness—causeth her to be made an adulteress, and whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committed adultery.

21 Again I say unto you, That unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees in nowise may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

22 Thou shalt not commit murder,* and whosoever shall commit murder shall be liable to judgment.

23 But I say unto you, That every one who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment, and whosoever shall say to his brother, Art thou foolish? shall be liable to the high council; and whosoever shall say, Rebel! shall be liable unto the fiery gehenna. If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and there, thou by thy gift cause the other to stumble, thou be reconciled unto thy brother, and thou be offering thy gift.

24 Be making agreement with thine adversary, quickly, while thou art with him, in the way,—lest once thine adversary deliver thee up unto the judge, and the judge unto the officer, and into prison thou be cast. Verily I say unto thee, In nowise mayest thou come out from thence, until thou pay the last halfpenny.

25 But I say unto you, That every one who looketh on a woman so as to covet her, already hath committed adultery with her in his heart.

26 And if thy right hand causeth thee to stumble put it off, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that one of thy members should perish, and not that whole body be cast into gehenna. And if thy whole body be cast into gehenna, there shall be no more reward for thee in the heavens.

27 Do not think, that I came to pull down the law, or the prophets: I came not to pull down, but to fulfil. For verily I say unto you, That unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees in nowise may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

28 But I tell you, that whosoever shall divorce his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement; But I say unto you, That every one who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness—causeth her to be made an adulteress, and whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committed adultery.

29 Again I say unto you, That unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees in nowise may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

30 But I tell you, that whosoever shall divorce his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement; But I say unto you, That every one who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness—causeth her to be made an adulteress, and whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committed adultery.

31 It was said, moreover, <Whoever shall divorce his wife> let him give her a writing of divorcement; But I say unto you, That every one who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness—causeth her to be made an adulteress, and whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committed adultery.

32 But I tell you, that whosoever shall divorce his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement; But I say unto you, That every one who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness—causeth her to be made an adulteress, and whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committed adultery.

33 Thou shalt not swear falsely,— But shall render unto the Lord, thine oaths. But I tell you—not to swear at all: Neither by heaven, because it is the throne of God;— Nor by the earth, because it is his footstool: Nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the Great King;— Nor by thine own head, mayest thou swear, because thou art not able to make one hair white or black.

34 If therefore thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and there shouldst remember that thy brother hath sinned against thee, leave there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw, first be reconciled unto thy brother, and then coming, be offering thy gift.

35 I say unto you, That unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees in nowise may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

36 Thou shalt not swear falsely,— But shall render unto the Lord, thine oaths. But I tell you—not to swear at all: Neither by heaven, because it is the throne of God;— Nor by the earth, because it is his footstool: Nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the Great King;— Nor by thine own head, mayest thou swear, because thou art not able to make one hair white or black.

37 If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and there shouldst remember that thy brother hath sinned against thee, leave there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw, first be reconciled unto thy brother, and then coming, be offering thy gift.

38 I say unto you, That unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees in nowise may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

39 Thou shalt not swear falsely,— But shall render unto the Lord, thine oaths. But I tell you—not to swear at all: Neither by heaven, because it is the throne of God;— Nor by the earth, because it is his footstool: Nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the Great King;— Nor by thine own head, mayest thou swear, because thou art not able to make one hair white or black.

40 If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and there shouldst remember that thy brother hath sinned against thee, leave there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw, first be reconciled unto thy brother, and then coming, be offering thy gift.
Ye have heard, that it was said,

"Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy."

But I say unto you,

Be loving your enemies,

And praying for them who are persecuting you;

That ye may become sons of your Father who is in the heavens;

Because [his sun] he maketh arise on evil and good,

And sendeth rain, on just and unjust.

For if ye love them that love you, what reward have ye? are not even the tax-collectors doing the same thing?

And if ye salute your brethren only, what more than common are ye doing? are not even the nations doing the same thing?

Ye therefore, shall become perfect, as your heavenly Father is—perfect.

But take heed, that ye do not your righteousness before men, to be gazed at by them, otherwise at least have ye none, with your Father who is in the heavens.

When, therefore, thou mayest be doing alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, just as the hypocrites do, in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may be glorified by men; Verily! I say unto you, they are getting back their reward.

But thou, when thou art fasting, anoint thy head, and thy face wash, that thou do not appear unto men to be fasting, but to thy Father who is in secret, and thy Father who seeth in secret will reward thee.

Be not laying up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust doth tarnish, and where thieves dig through and steal; but be laying up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth tarnish, and where thieves dig not through nor steal: for where thy treasure is, there will be thy heart also.

The lamp of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, Thy whole body shall be lighted up;

But if thine eye be evil, Thy whole body shall be in the dark: if therefore the light which is in thee is darkness:

The darkness is how great!

For this cause I say unto you: Be not anxious for your life; What ye shall eat [or what ye shall drink],—

Or for your body:

What ye shall put on:

Is not the life more than the food? And the body than the raiment?

Observe intently the birds of the heaven,— That they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather into barns,

And yet [your heavenly Father] feedeth them:

Are not ye much better than they?

Accomplished be thy will, [as in heaven] also on earth:

Our needful bread give us, this day;

And forgive us our debts, as [we also] have forgiven our debtors;

And bring us not into temptation, But rescue us from the evil one.

For if ye forgive men their faults, Your Father who is in the heavens will forgive [even you];

But if ye forgive not men their faults, Neither will your Father forgive [your faults].

And when ye may be fasting, become not ye, as the hypocrites, of sullen countenance,—for they darken their looks, that they may appear unto men to be fasting; Verily! I say unto you, they are getting back their reward.

But when thou art fasting, anoint thy head, and thy face wash, that thou do not appear unto men to be fasting, but to thy Father who is in secret, and thy Father who seeth in secret will reward thee.

Be not laying up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust do tarnish, and where thieves dig through and steal; but be laying up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth tarnish, and where thieves dig not through nor steal: for where thy treasure is, there will be thy heart also.

The lamp of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, Thy whole body shall be lighted up;

But if thine eye be evil, Thy whole body shall be in the dark: if therefore the light which is in thee is darkness:

The darkness is how great!

For this cause I say unto you: Be not anxious for your life, What ye shall eat [or what ye shall drink],—

Or for your body,

What ye shall put on:

Is not the life more than the food? And the body than the raiment?

Observe intently the birds of the heaven,— That they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather into barns,

And yet [your heavenly Father] feedeth them:

Are not ye much better than they?
27 But who from among you, being anxious, can add to his stature one cubit?
28 And [about clothing] why are ye anxious? Consider well the lilies of the field, how they grow,—
They toil not neither do they spin;
And yet, I say unto you, Not even Solomon, in all his glory, was arrayed like [one of these]!
Now if the grass of the field—which [to-morrow] is, and [to-morrow] into an oven is cast—God thus adorneth
Not much rather [you] little of faith?
30 Now if the gross of the field—which [to-day] is, and [to-morrow] is into an oven is cast—God thus adorneth> Not much rather [you] little of faith?
31 Do not then be anxious, saying,
What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be arrayed?
32 For [all] these things [the nations] seek after;
For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye are needing [all] these things.
33 But be seeking first, the kingdom and its righteousness,—
And [all these things] shall be added unto you.
34 Do not, then, be anxious for the morrow; [For the morrow] will be anxious for itself:
[Sufficient for the day] is the evil thereof.

7 Judge not, that ye be not judged;
8 For [with what judgment ye judge] shall ye be judged,—
And [with what measure ye mete] shall it be measured unto you.
9 Why, moreover, beholdest thou the mote, in the eye of thy brother,—
While [the beam] in thine own' eye! thou dost not consider?
4 Or how wilt thou say unto thy brother,
Let me cast the mote out of thine eye,—
When, to [a beam] is in thine own' eye?
5 Hypocrite! cast first [out of thine own eye] [the beam],—
And [then] shalt thou see clearly to cast the mote, out of the eye of thy brother.
6 Do not give what is holy unto dogs.
Neither cast ye your pearls before swine,—
Lest once they trample [them] down with their feet,
And, turning, tear [you].:
7 Be asking, and it shall be given you,
Be seeking, and ye shall find,—
Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.
8 For [whosoever asketh] receiveth,
And [he that seeketh] findeth,—
And [to him that knocketh] shall it be opened.
9 Or what man [from among yourselves],
Whom his son shall ask for a loaf,—
A stone] will give him?—
Or [a fish also] shall ask,—
[The serpent] will give him?
10 [If then] ye] being [evil] know how [good gifts] to be giving unto your children;—
[How much more] will [your Father who is in the heavens] give good things to them that ask [him]?
12 [Whatsoever things, therefore, ye would, that men be doing unto you;]
[So] be [ye also]; doing [unto them].—
For [this] is the law and the prophets.
13 Enter [ye in at] [the narrow' gate];
Because broad and roomy is the way b that leadeth unto destruction,—
And [many] are they who enter thereby:
Because [narrow] is the gate, and [confined] the way, that leadeth unto life,—
And [few] are they who find [it].
14 Beware of false prophets,
Who come unto you in clothing of sheep,—
While [within] they are ravening wolves.
15 [By their fruits] shall ye find [them] out,—
Unless perhaps men gather—
[From thorns] grapes!—
Or [from thistles] figs!
16 So [every good tree] [fine fruit] produceth,—
Whereas [the worthless tree] [evil fruit] produceth:
17 It is [impossible] for a [good tree] to be bearing [evil fruit];
Neither doth [a worthless tree] produce [fine fruit].
18 [Every] tree that beareth not fine fruit—
Is hewn down, and [into fire] is cast.
19 After all then [by their fruits], shall ye find [them] out.
20 [Not every one that saith unto me, Lord!]
Lord! shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens,—
But he that doeth the will of my Father who is in the heavens.
21 [Many] will say unto me in [that] day,
Lord! Lord! did we not [in thy name] prophesy,—
And [in thy name] cast [demons] out,—
And [in thy name] many works of power perform?
22 And [then] will I confess unto them, [Never] have I acknowledged you,— Depart from me, ye workers of unrighteousness!
23 [Every one, therefore, who heareth [these] my words, and doeth them]—
Shall be likened to a prudent man, who built his house upon the rock;
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and rushed against that house, and it fell not;
For it had been founded upon the rock.
24 [And every one who heareth these my words, and doeth them not;]
Shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand;
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and dashed against that house, and it fell; and the fall thereof was great.

28 And it came to pass when Jesus ended these words with astonishment were the multitudes being struck at his teaching; for he was teaching them as one having authority, and not as their Scribes.

8 10. A Leper cleansed. Mk. i.40-45; Lu. v.12-14.

8 And when he came down from the mountain there followed him large multitudes.

2 And lo! a leper coming near, began to bow down to him, saying—

Lord! if thou be willing thou canst cleanse me.

3 And, stretching forth the hand, he touched him, saying—

I am willing, be cleansed!

And straightway cleansed was his leprosy.

* And Jesus saith unto him,

Mind! tell no one, but withdraw, I thyself to the priest* and offer the gift which Moses directed for a witness unto them.

And when he entered into Capernaum there came near unto him a centurion, beseeching him, and saying.

Lord! my servant is laid prostrate in the house, a paralytic fearfully tortured.

He saith unto him,

[w]ill come and cure him.

But the centurion, answering, said, Lord! I am of no consideration, that under my roof thou shouldest enter,— but I only say with a word [and healed shall be my servant. * For I also am a man [set under authority, having under myself, soldiers,—and I say to this one, Go! and he goeth, and to another, Come! and he cometh, and to my servant! Do this! and he doeth it.

10 Now Jesus, hearing, marvelled, and said to them that followed,—

Verily I say unto you, With no one in Israel [such faith as this] have I found.

But I say unto you,

Many from east and west b will have come, * and shall recline with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of the heavens;

Whereas the sons of the kingdom, c shall be cast forth into the darkness outside,— [There] will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

And Jesus said unto the centurion,

Withdraw! and [as thou hast believed] be it done for thee.

And healed was the servant in that hour.

§ 12. Peter's Mother-in-law cured, and many others. Mk. i.29-34; Lu. iv.38-44.

14 And Jesus coming into the house of Peter, saw his mother-in-law lay prostrate and in a fever, 16 and he touched her hand, and the fever left her,—and she arose, and began ministering unto him. 16 But, when [evening] came, they brought unto him many demonized,—and he cast out the spirits with a word, and [all] who were sick he cured:

that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying,— [Himself] our weaknesses took, and [diseases] bare.

Now Jesus seeing a multitude about him gave orders to depart unto the other side.

And a certain scribe, coming near, said unto him,—

Teacher; I will follow thee, whithersoever thou goest.

And Jesus saith unto him:

The foxes have [dens], and the birds of the heavens [nests],— But [the Son of Man] hath not where [his head he may recline].

And another of the disciples said unto him,—

Lord! suffer me [first] to depart, and bury my father.

But [Jesus] saith unto him,—

Be following me, And leave [the dead] to bury [their own] dead.

And when he entered into a boat his disciples followed him. And lo! a great squall arose in the sea, so that the boat was being covered by the waves,— but he was sleeping. And, coming near, they aroused him, saying,

Whence is this one,—that both the winds and the sea unto him, give ear?

And when he came unto the other side, into the country of the Gadarenes there met him, two men demonized, [out of the tombs] coming forth,—fierce exceedingly, so that no one could pass that way; and lo! they cried aloud, saying,

What have we in common with thee, O Son of God?

Hast thou come hither, before the right time to torment us?

Now thou art come, from them, a herd of many swine, feeding; and the demons began to beseech him, saying,
If thou dost cast us out Send us away, into the herd of swine.
And he said unto them, Withdraw! So they going out, departed into the swine,— and lo! all the herd rushed down the cliff, into the sea, and died in the waters. And they who were feeding them fled,— and, departing into the city, reported all things, and what concerned them who had been demonized. And lo! all the city came out to meet Jesus,— and, seeing him, they besought that he would pass on from their bounds.

§ 16. A Paralytic forgiven and healed. Mk. ii. 3-12; Lu. v. 18-26.
And, entering into a boat, he crossed over, and came into his own city. And lo! they were bringing unto him a paralytic, on a couch, laid prostrate; and Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic,— Take courage! child, forgiven are thy sins.

§ 17. Matthew called. Mk. ii. 13-17; Lu. v. 27-32.
And Jesus, passing aside from thence, saw a man presiding over the tax-office, called |Matthew| and saith unto him,—

For I came not, to call the righteous, but sinners.

§ 18. Then will they fast. Mk. ii. 18-22; Lu. v. 33-38.

§ 19. The Daughter of Jairus raised; and the Woman with a Flow of Blood cured. Mk. v. 22-43; Lu. viii. 41-56.

§ 20. Two Blind men, a Demoniac, and Many Others cured; the Kingdom proclaimed; and the Multitudes pitied. thence> there followed him, two' blind men,* crying aloud and saying,—
Have mercy on us, O Son of David!
And <when he entered the house> the blind men came unto him,—and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye, that I can |do this|?
They say unto him,
Yes, Lord!
Then touched he their eyes, saying,
|According to your faith| be it done unto you.
And their eyes were opened. And Jesus [ sternly charged them] saying,
Mind! let no one know!
|They| however, going forth, made him known throughout the whole of that land.
And <as [they] were going forth> lo! there was brought to him, a dumb man, demonized.b
And the demon being cast out the dumb man spake; and the multitudes marvelled,
saying,—
|Never| was it seen thus, in Israel.

§21. The Twelve first sent forth. Mk. vi.7f; Lu.xi.1 f: cp.§ 93.

And <calling near his twelve' disciples> he gave them authority over impure spirits,—so as to be casting them out, and curing every' disease, and every' infirmity.
But [seeing the multitudes] he was moved with compassion concerning them, because they were torn and thrown down, like sheep having no shepherd.2 2[Then] saith he unto his disciples,—
The harvest| indeed, is great,
But |the labourers| few;
Beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest,—
That he would thrust forth labourers, into his harvest.

7 And |as ye go| proclaim, saying,
The kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near!*
Be curing |the sick|, raising |the dead|,—
cleansing |lepers|, casting out |demons|:
Freely| ye have |received| freely| give|.
Ye may procure—neither gold, nor silver, nor copper, for your belts,—10 neither aatchel for journey, nor two' tunics, nor sandals, nor staff;†
For |worthy| is the labourer, of his maintenance.
And <into whatsoever city or village ye enter> Search out who in it is |worthy|,
And |there| abide, till ye go forth.
And <as ye enter the house> salute it;
And <if the house be worthy>
Let your peace come upon it,
But |if it be not worthy|:
Let your peace, unto you, return.
And <whosoever shall neither welcome you, nor hear your words>
As ye go forth, outside that house or city |
Shake off the dust of your feet:
Verily| I say unto you,—
More tolerable will it be, |for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment||
Than for |that| city !
Lo! |I| send you forth, as sheepamidst wolves; Become ye therefore—
Prudent, as serpents, and simple,* as doves.
But beware of men;—
For they will deliver you up into high-councils,
And |in their synagogues| will they scourge you,—
And |before both governors and kings| shall ye be brought |for my sake|—
|For a witness to them and the nations|.
And <when they deliver you up> Be not anxious, how or what ye shall speak,—
For it shall be given you, in that' hour, what ye shall speak ;
For it is not |ye| who are speaking,
But |the Spirit of your Father| that is speaking in you.
And |brother| will deliver up |brother| unto death,
And |father|| child|,—
And |children| will rise up |against parents|,
|And will put them to death|.
And ye will be hated by all, because of my name,—
But the that endureth throughout| |the same| shall be saved.|†
And <when they persecute you in this city> flee into another,—
For |verily| I say unto you,
|In nowise shall ye finish the cities of Israel| Till |the Son of Man| come.

A disciple is not above the teacher, nor a servant above his lord.

Nor is the master of the house greater than the servant who is in his house.

If the master of the house were not greater than the servants, how much more then his household! Ichthus had been covered; which shall not be uncovered, and hidden which shall not be made known.

What I am saying to you in the darkness, tell it in the light; and what you have heard in the ear, proclaim it on the housetops.

And be not in fear, by reason of them that are killing the body; and the soul is not by them to be killed.

But fear rather him who is able to destroy both soul and body to Gehenna.

Are not two sparrows sold for an assarion? And if one of them shall fall upon the ground without your Father, but even the hairs of your head have all been numbered.

Then be not in fear, for more than many sparrows are you of value.

Every one therefore who shall confess me before men, I also will confess him before my Father who is in the heavens;

But whoever shall deny me before men, I also will deny him before my Father who is in the heavens.

Do not think, that I came to thrust peace upon the earth, but I came not to thrust peace but a sword; for I came to set at variance, a man against his father, and a father against his son, and a daughter against her mother, and a son against his father-in-law;

<He that loveth father or mother above me> Is not worthy of me;
And <he that loveth son or daughter above me> Is not worthy of me;
And <he that doth not take his cross and follow after me> Is not worthy of me;
<He that hath found his life> shall lose it,
And <he that hath lost his life for my sake> shall find it.

<He that giveth welcome unto you> Unto me giveth welcome,
And <he that giveth unto him that sent me forth> Giveth welcome—unto him that sent me forth—

<He that giveth welcome unto a prophet, in the name of a prophet> The reward of a prophet shall receive;
And <he that giveth welcome unto a righteous man, in the name of a righteous man> The reward of a righteous man shall receive;

And <whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones> a cup of cold water only, [in the name of a disciple];

Verily I say unto you, in nowise shall lose his reward!

§ 22. John in prison sends Questions to Jesus.

Lu. vii. 18-35.

And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished giving instructions to his twelve disciples, he passed on from thence, to be teaching and proclaiming in their cities.

Now when John in the prison the works of the Christ, sending through his disciples said unto him, Art thou the coming one? Or a different one are we to expect?

And answering Jesus said unto them—

Go report unto John, what ye do hear and see:

The blind receive sight, And the lame walk, Lepers are cleansed, And the deaf hear;— And the dead are raised, And the desolate are told the joyful tidings;— And happy is he, whosoever shall not find cause of stumbling in me.

But as these were going their way, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes, concerning John,—

What went ye forth into the wilderness to gaze at? A reed, by a wind, shaken?

But what went ye forth to see? A man, in soft clothing, arrayed? Lo! they who soft clothing do wear, are in the houses of kings.

But why went ye forth? A prophet to see? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.

This is he, concerning whom it is written, Lo! I send my messenger before thy face, Who shall make ready thy way before thee.

Verily I say unto you— There hath not arisen among such as are born of women, a greater than John the Immerser;

MATTHEW XI. 12—30; XII. 1—11.

Yet he that is less in the kingdom of the heavens is greater than he.

But from the days of John the Immerser, until even now, the kingdom of the heavens is being invaded, and invaders are seizing upon it.

For all the prophets and the law did prophesy; and if ye are willing to accept it, I am Elijah—the one destined to come.

He that hath ears let him hear!

But unto what shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children, sitting in the market-places, who calling unto the others say, We played the flutes to you, and ye danced not,—we sang a lament, and ye beat not the breast.

For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say—A demon he hath!

The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, Lo! a gluttonous man and a wine-drinker, a friend of tax-collectors and sinners! And yet wisdom hath been justified by her works.

Then began he to upbraid the cities, in which had been done his noblest mighty works; because they repented not:

Alas for thee, Chorazin! Alas for thee, Bethsaida! Because if in Tyre and Zidon had been done the works of power, which were done in you, Of old I in sackcloth and ashes had they repented.

Moreover, I say unto you, For Tyre and Zidon were more tolerable in a day of judgment, than for you;

And thou, Capernaum! Unto heaven shall thou be uplifted? Unto hades thou shalt be brought down; Because if in Sodom had been done the works of power, which were done in thee,

It would, in that case, have remained until this day.

Moreover, I say unto you—For the land of Sodom was more tolerable in a day of judgment, than for thee!

In that season answered Jesus, and said—

I openly give praise unto thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth,—

In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning, and hast revealed them unto babes;

Yea, O Father! that so it hath become a delight before thee.

All things which I have done have been delivered up by my Father; and no one fully knoweth the Son save the Father; Neither doth any one fully know the Son save the Son,—and he to whomsoever the Son may be minded to reveal him.

Come unto me! all ye that toil and are burdened, and I will give you rest:

Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me,—Because meek am I and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

§ 24. Praise for Babes—Welcome for the Burdened. Lu. x. 21, 22.

V In that season answered Jesus, and said—

Lo! thy disciples are doing what it is not allowed to do on sabbath.

But the Pharisees observing it said unto him,—Lo! thy disciples are doing what it is not allowed to do on sabbath.

And he said unto them,

Have ye never read what David did, when he hungered, and they who were with him? how he entered into the house of God and the presence-bread did eat, which it was not allowable for him to eat, nor for them who were with him,—save for the priests alone?

Or have ye not read, in the law, that on the sabbaths the priests in the temple, the sabbath profane, and are blameless?

But I say unto you,—Something greater than the temple is here!

If, however, ye had known what this meaneth—

Ye would not have condemned the blameless;

For the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath.

§ 25. Disciples pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath. Mk. ii. 23—28; Lu. vi. 1—5.

In that season went Jesus, on the sabbath, through the cornfields,—and his disciples hungered, and began to pluck ears of corn, and to eat. But the Pharisees observing it said unto him,—Lo! thy disciples are doing what it is not allowed to do on sabbath.

And he said unto them,

Have ye never read what David did, when he hungered, and they who were with him? how he entered into the house of God and the presence-bread did eat, which it was not allowable for him to eat, nor for them who were with him,—save for the priests alone?

Or have ye not read, in the law, that on the sabbaths the priests in the temple, the sabbath profane, and are blameless?

But I say unto you,—Something greater than the temple is here!

If, however, ye had known what this meaneth—

Ye would not have condemned the blameless;

For the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath.

§ 26. Withered Hand healed on Sabbath. Mk. iii. 1—6; Lu. vi. 6—11.

And passing on from thence, he came into their synagogue; and lo! a man having a withered hand, and they questioned him, saying, Is it allowable on the sabbath to heal?

that they might accuse him. And he said unto them,
What man [from among yourselves] [shall there be],—
Who shall have one sheep, and <if this should fall, on the sabbath, into a pit> Will not lay hold of it, and raise it? 19 How much better, then, [a man] than [a sheep]? So that it is allowable [on the sabbath] nobly to act.

Then saith he unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand! And he stretched it forth,—and it was restored whole, as the other.

§ 27. The Pharisees plotting, Jesus retires, quietly healing many.

And the Pharisees [going forth] took [counsel] against him, to the end that [him, they might destroy]. But [Jesus] taking note, retired from thence,—and many followed him, and he cured them all; and strictly charged them, lest they should make him manifest: that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying:

Lo! my servant, whom I have chosen,
My beloved, in whom [my soul] delighteth,—
I will put my Spirit upon him,
And Justice unto the nations he report:
He will not strive, nor will he cry out,
Nor shall any hear, in the broadways, his voice:
A bruised case will he not break,
And [a smoking wick] will he not quench,—
Until he urge on Justice to victory,
And [in his name] shall nations hope.

§ 28. Demoniac cured. [In Beelzebul!] Blaspheming the Spirit. Mk. iii. 20-30; Lu. xi. 14-23.

Then they brought unto him, one demonized, blind and dumb,—and he cured him, so that the dumb did speak and see. And all the multitudes were beside themselves, and were saying, Can this one be the Son of David? But [the Pharisees] hearing it, said, This one, doth not cast out the demons, [save in Beelzebul] ruler of the demons.

And [knowing their inward thoughts] he said unto them,
Every' kingdom divided against itself is laid waste,—
And no city or house divided against itself will stand;
And [if] Satan is casting Satan out> [against himself] hath he become divided,—
How then shall his kingdom stand?—
And [if] [in Beelzebul, I am casting out the demons>—
In whom are [your sons] casting them out?
Wherefore they shall be [judges of you].
But [if in God's Spirit] I am casting out the demons—

Then doubtless hath come upon you unawares the kingdom of God!!
Or how can one enter the house of the mighty and [seize his goods], Unless [first] he bind the mighty one? And [then] his house he will plunder.
[He that is not with me] is [against me],—
And [he that gathereth not with me, [scattereth].

Wherefore I say unto you, All sin and profane speaking; shall be forgiven unto men,—But [the speaking profanely of the Spirit] shall not be forgiven;—
And <whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of Man> it shall be forgiven him, Either in this age, or the coming:

Either make the tree good, and its fruit good, Or make the tree worthless, and its fruit worthless;
For [from the fruit] the tree is known.
Broods of vipers!
How can ye speak good things, being evil?
For [out of the abundance of the heart] the mouth speaketh.

The good man [out of the good treasure] putteth forth good things; And the evil man [out of the evil treasure] putteth forth evil things.

But I say unto you, That <every useless expression that men shall utter> They shall render, concerning it, an account, in a day of judgment;

For [by thy words] shalt thou be justified; And by thy words shalt thou be condemned;

The Sign of Jonah, the Wisdom of Solomon, and the Return of the Demon. Lu. xi. 29-32.

Then answered him, certain of the Scribes and Pharisees, saying.
Teacher! we desire of thee [a sign, to behold];
But [he] answering, said unto them,
A wicked and adulterous generation [a sign, doth seek, And [a sign] will not be [given] it Save the sign of Jonah the prophet.

For [just as was Jonah in the belly of the wormster three days and three nights] so will be the Son of Man, in the heart of the earth, three days and three nights.

Men of Nineveh! will rise up in the judgment, with this generation, and will condemn him,—because they repented into the proclamation of Jonah; and lo! something greater than Jonah! here.

The queen of the south will arise in the judgment with this generation and will see demnit,— because she came out of the ends of the earth, to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and lo! |something greater than Solomon| here!.

43 But when the impure spirit goeth out of the man, it passeth through waterless places, seeking rest,—and findeth it not. 44 |Then| it saith, into my house I will I return, |whence I came out|,— and, coming, findeth it empty (and] swept and adorned. 46 |Then| it goeth, and taketh along with itself, seven diverse' spirits, more wicked than itself,—and, entering, abideth there; and |the last state of that man| becometh [worse than the first]. |So| shall it be, with this wicked generation.

§ 30. "Who is my Mother?" Mk. iii.31-35; Lu.viii.19-21.

46 While yet he was speaking unto the multitudes, lo! |his mother and brethren| were standing without, seeking to speak with him.

47 |And one said to him, Lo! |thy mother and thy brethren| [without] are standing, seeking [to speak] with thee.]

48 But |he| answering, said unto him that was telling him, Lo! |my mother and my brethren!| For |whosoever shall do the will of my Father who is in the heavens| [he] is my |brother, and sister, and mother].

§ 31. The Parable of the Sower. Mk. iv.1-9; Lu.viii.4-8.

13 On that day Jesus, going out of the house, was sitting near the sea; and there were gathered unto him, large multitudes, so that |he| into a boat; entered, and was sitting, and |all the multitude| on the beach was standing. And he spake unto them many things, in parables, saying:

Lo! |the sower went forth to sow,— and as he sowed— [Some] indeed, fell by the pathway, and |the birds| came, and devoured it;

And |some| fell on the rocky places, where it had not much earth,—and |straightway| it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth;

And |the sun arising| it was scorched, and, because it had no root, it withered away;

And |some| fell upon the thorns, and the thorns came up, and choked it;

But |some| fell upon the good ground, and did yield fruit,—[this] indeed a hundred fold, and |that| sixty, and |the other| thirty.

[He that hath ears| let him hear.

19 And the disciples coming near, said to him, Wherefore |in parables| art thou speaking to them?

20 And |he| answering, said, Because |unto you hath it been given, to get to know the sacred secrets of the kingdom of the heavens,—whereas |unto them| hath it not been given. For |whosoever hath; it shall be given |to him|, and he shall be made to abound,—

But |whoever hath not| |even what he hath shall be taken from him.| |

22 |For this reason| [in parables unto them] do I speak,—because |seeing| they see not, and |hearing| they hear not,—neither do they understand.

And |agains is being fulfilled in them| the prophecy of Isaiah, which saith,— They shall |surely hear| and yet will not understand,

And |surely see| and yet not perceive; For the heart of this people hath become dense. |And| [with their ears] heavily have they heard, And |their eyes| have they closed,—

Lest, once they should see with their eyes, And |with their ears| should understand, and return;

When I would certainly heal them. 4

25 But happy are |your||eyes, that they see, And your ears, that they hear;

26 For |verily| I say unto you— |Many prophets and righteous men| Have coveted to see what ye see, and have not seen, And to hear what ye hear, and have not heard.

28 Hear |ye| then, the parable of him that sowed:—

29 |When anyone heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not> the wicked one cometh, and catcheth up that which hath been sown in his heart,—this is he |by the pathway| sown.

30 And |he on the rocky places sown| the same is he that |heareth the word| and straightway, with joy| receiveth it; 31 yet hath he no root in himself, but is |only for a season|,—and <there arising, tribulation or persecution because of the word> |straightway| he findeth cause of stumbling.

32 And he among the thorns sown| the same is he that |heareth the word|,—and |the anxiety of the age' and the deceit of riches| choke up the word, and |unfruitful| it becometh.

33 But |he on the good ground sown| the same is he who doth hear and understand

* MI: "was withered."
the word, who, indeed, beareth fruit and produceth,—this, a hundred, and that sixty, and [the other] thirty.

§ 33. The Wheat and the Darnel.
24 Another parable put he before them, saying—
The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man sowing good seed in his field; and while men were sleeping his enemy came, and sowed over darnel, in among the wheat, and away he went.

25 And when the blade shot up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared [the darnel also].
26 And the servants of the householder, coming near, said to him,—
Sir! was it not [good seed] thou didst sow in thy field?

27 And he said unto them—
An enemy hath done this.

28 And they say unto him—
Wilt thou, then, that we go and collect it?

29 And he said—
Nay! lest, at any time while collecting the darnel ye uproot, along with it, the wheat:

30 Suffer both to grow together until the harvest, and at harvest time I will say unto the reapers,— Collect ye first, the darnel, and bind it into bundles, with a view to the burning it up; but [the wheat] be gathering into my barn.

§ 34. The Grain of Mustard Seed.
30-32; Lu. xiii.18, 19.

31 Another parable put he before them, saying—
The kingdom of the heavens is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field; which, indeed, is less than all seeds, but when grown is greater than garden-plants, and becometh a tree,—so that the birds of heaven come, and lodge among its branches.

§ 35. The Leaven.
Lu. xiii.20, 21.
32 Another parable he spake unto them:—
The kingdom of the heavens is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of flour until the whole was leavened.*

§ 36. Without a Parable—nothing.
Mk. iv. 33, 34.

33 All these things spake Jesus in parables unto the multitudes, and [without a parable] was he speaking [nothing] unto them: so that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying—
I will open [in parables] my mouth,
I will bring up things hidden from the foundation: 1

§ 37. Private Explanation of The Darnel.
26 Then dismissing the multitudes he went into the house, and his disciples came near to him, saying—
Make quite plain to us the parable of the darnel of the field.

27 And he answering, said—
He that soweth the good seed is the Son of Man:

28 And [the field] is the world,
And [the good seed] [these] are the sons of the kingdom,—
And [the darnel seeds] are the sons of the evil one;

29 And [the enemy that sowed them] is the adversary,
And [the harvest] is the conclusion of an age, 8

And [the reapers] are messengers:

30 Just, therefore, as collected is the darnel, and [with fire is burned]: so will it be in the conclusion of the age:—

31 The Son of Man will send forth his messengers, and they will collect, out of his kingdom, all 'the causes of stumbling, and the doers of lewdness,' 9 and will cast them into the furnace of fire; there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

32 Then, the righteous will shine forth as the sun, in the kingdom of their Father.

33 He that hath ears let him hear.

§ 38. The Hidden Treasure.

34 The kingdom of the heavens is like unto a treasure hid in the field, which a man finding, hid,—and by reason of his joy withdrew and selleth whatsoever he hath, and buyeth that field.

§ 39. One Very Precious Pearl.

35 Again: the kingdom of the heavens is like unto a merchant, seeking beautiful pearls;—and finding one very precious pearl departing, he at once sold all things, whatsoever he had, and bought it.

§ 40. The Drag-net.
47 Again: the kingdom of the heavens is like unto a large drag-net cast into the sea and gathering of every kind,—which when it was filled they dragged up on the beach, and sitting down, collected the good in vessels, but [the worthless] forth they cast.

36 So will it be in the conclusion of the age:
The messengers will come forth, and separate the wicked from among the righteous; and will cast them into the furnace of fire: there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

§ 41. The Well-taught Scribe—Things New and Old.

§ 42. Offence at the Carpenter’s Son. Mk. vi. 2-6; cf. Jn. vi. 42.

And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these parables, he removed from thence; and coming into his own city, began teaching them in their synagogue, so that with astonishment were they being struck, and were saying—

"Whence hath this one this wisdom, and the mighty works?

Is not this one the carpenter’s son? Is not his mother called Mary, and are not his brethren—James and Joseph, and Simon, and Judas? 58 and [his sisters] are they not all with us?

"Whence then hath this one all these things?

And they began to find cause of stumbling in him. But Jesus said unto them—A prophet is not without honour, save in his city, and in his house.

In that season heard Herod the tetrarch, the fame of Jesus; and he said unto his servants—

This is John the Immerser,—He hath arisen from the dead, for this cause are the powers working mightily within him.

For Herod seizing John, had bound him, and put him away,—because of Herodias, the wife of Philip his brother; for John had said to him,

It is not allowed thee, to have her.

And, desiring to kill him, he feared the multitude, because as a prophet they held him.

But a birthday feast of Herod taking place, the daughter of Herodias danced in the midst, and pleased Herod; wherefore [with an oath] he promised to give her, whatsoever she should ask for herself; and she being led on by her mother,—

Give me (saith she) here, upon a charger, the head of John the Immerser.

And the king, though grievous yet because of the oaths and the guests, ordered it to be given; and sent and beheaded John in the prison.

And his head was brought upon a charger, and given unto the maiden, and she brought it to her mother. And his disciples [going near] bare away the corpse, and buried him, and came and brought tidings unto Jesus.

§ 44. Five Thousand fed. Mk. vi. 32-34; Lu. ix. 10-17; Jn. vi. 1-13.

And Jesus hearing it, retired from thence in a boat, into a desert place, apart—and the multitudes [hearing of it] followed him on foot from the cities.

And, [coming forth] he saw a great multitude,—and was moved with compassion over them, and cured their sick.

And [evening] arriving, the disciples came unto him, saying—

The place is a desert, and [the hour] hath already passed,—dismisses the multitudes, that they may go away into the villages, and buy themselves food.

But Jesus said unto them,

"No need have they to go away,—give [ye] them to eat.

But [he] said—

Bring [them] to me, here.

And giving orders that the multitudes should recline upon the grass,—taking the five loaves and the two fishes,—looking up into the heaven, he blessed; and breaking, gave the disciples the loaves, and the disciples unto the multitude.

And they did all eat, and were filled,—and they took up the remainder of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full.

And [they who did eat] were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

§ 45. Jesus walks upon the Lake. Mk. vi. 45-50; Jn. vi. 45-56.

And straightway constrained he the disciples to enter into a boat, and be going before him unto the other side, while he dismissed the multitudes.

And dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the mountain, apart, to pray,—and when [evening] came, [alone] was he there.

Now the boat was still many furlongs from the land; was holding off, being distressed by the waves,—for [the wind] was contrary.

And in the fourth watch of the night, he came unto them, walking upon the sea. And the disciples seeing him [upon the sea walking] were troubled,—saying—

It is an apparition;

and [by reason of their fear] they cried out.

And straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying—

Take courage! it is [I],—be not afraid.

And making answer Peter said unto him,—

Lord! if it is [thou] bid me come unto thee, upon the waters.

And [he] said—

Come!

And, descending from the boat, Peter walked upon the waters, and came unto Jesus. 52 But § 46. Eating with Unwashed Hands.

Mk. vii. 1-23.

15 Then there came unto Jesus, from Jerusalem, Pharisees and Scribes, saying—

Wherefore do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread!

3 But [he] answering, said unto them—

Wherefore do ye also transgress the commandment of God, for the sake of your tradition? 4 For [God] said—

Honour thy father and thy mother,* and—

<He that revileth father or mother> let him [surely die]! b

5 But [ye] say—

<Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother—

15 And, going forth from thence, Jesus retired into the parts of Tyre and Sidon. 16 And lo! a Canaanite woman|| from those bounds! coming forth, began crying out, saying—

Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter is miserably demonized.

16 But [he] answered her not a word. And his disciples, coming forward began requesting him, saying—

Dismiss her, because she is crying out after us.

21 But [he] answering, said, I was not sent forth, save unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 4 And [she] coming, began bowing down to him, saying—

Lord! help me.

Mk. viii. 1-10: cp. chap. xiv. 13 ff.

And, passing on from thence, Jesus came near the sea of Galilee, and, going up into the mountain, was sitting there. 20 And there came unto him large multitudes, having with themselves the lame, the maimed, the blind, the dumb,* and many others,—and they cast them near his feet,

* Or: (WH): "blind leaders" 4 Cp. Bo. xv. 8. [of the blind]." 5 Ac. xv. 30. According to WH, order of the words uncertain. 6 Or: "sewer."
and he cured them; so that the multitude marvelled, seeing the dumb speaking, the lame walking, and the blind seeing,—and they glorified the God of Israel. But [Jesus, calling near his disciples] said—

My compassions are moved towards the multitude, because [even now] three days abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat,—and [to dismiss them fasting] I am not willing, lest by any means they faint in the way.

And his disciples say unto him—

Whence [to us, in a wilderness] loaves in such numbers as to fill a multitude [so great]?

And they said—

Seven, and a few small fishes.

And sending word to the multitude to recline upon the ground, he took the seven' loaves, and the fishes, and giving thanks brake,—and [giving thanks] brake,—and began giving to his disciples, and [the disciples] to the multitudes. And they all dideat and were filled,—and the remainder of the broken pieces took they up, seven' hamers [full].

And, dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the boat,—and came into the bounds of Magadan.

§ 51. Peter Confessing and Confessed.

Mk. viii. 27-30; Lu. ix. 18-21.

And <Jesus coming into the parts of Cesarea of Philip> began questioning his disciples, saying—

Who are men saying that [the Son of Man] is?

And |they| said—

Some indeed, John the Immerser, and |others]| [Elijah,—

But |others] [Jeremiah, or one of the prophets].

He saith unto them—

But who say [ye] that I am?

And |Simon Peter, answering] said—

Thou art the Christ, [the Son of the Living God].

And Jesus |answering| said to him—

Happy! art thou, Simon Bar-yona,—Because [flesh and blood] revealed it not unto thee,

But my Father who is in the heavens.

And |I also] unto thee, say—

Thou art Peter,—

And [upon this rock] will I build my assembly,

And [the gates of hades] shall not prevail against it.

I will give thee, the keys of the kingdom of the heavens,—And whatsoever thou shalt bind upon the earth [shall be bound in the heavens],

And whatsoever thou shalt loose upon the earth [shall be loosed in the heavens].

Then] straitly charged he the disciples, lest [to any man] they should say—

[He] is [the Christ].

§ 52. The Needs Be of the Cross.

Mk. viii. 31-38; Lu. ix. 22-27.

|From that time| began Jesus Christ to be pointing out to his disciples that he must needs into Jerusalem go away, and many things suffer, from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain,—and on [the third day] shall arise].

And [taking him aside] Peter began to rebuke him, saying—

But the Lord turned, and said: "And on thee."
Mercy on thee, Lord!

In nowise shall this befall thee.

But the turning, said to Peter—
Withdraw behind me, Satan!

A snare art thou of mine,
Because thou art not regarding the things of God, but the things of men.

Then Jesus said unto his disciples—
If any one intendeth after me to come,
Let him deny himself, and take up his cross,* and be following me;

For whosoever intendeth his life to save,
Shall lose it,—
But whosoever shall lose his life, for my sake,
Shall find it.

For what shall a man be profited,
Though the whole world he gain,
And his life he forfeit*
Or what shall a man give in exchange for his life!!?

For the Son of Man is destined to be coming,
In the glory of his Father,
With his messengers,—
And then will he fight back unto each one according to his practice.

Verily I say unto you—
There are some of those here standing,
Who, indeed, shall in nowise taste of death,
Until they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.

Mk. ix. 2-13; Lu. ix. 28-36; cp. 2 P. i.10-18.

And after six days Jesus took with him, Peter and James and John his brother, and brought them up into a high mountain apart; and was transformed before them,—and his face shone as the sun, and his garments became white as the light.
And lo! there appeared to them, Moses and Elijah, conversing with him.

While yet he was speaking lo! a brightly shining cloud overshadowed them, and lo! a voice out of the cloud, saying,—[This] is my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight,—
Be hearkening to him.

And hearing it the disciples fell upon their face, and were caused to fear exceedingly.

And Jesus answered and said—
O faithless and perverted generation!
How long shall I be with you?
How long shall I bear with you?
Bring him to me here.

And Jesus rebuked it, and the demon came out of him,—and cured was the boy, from that hour.

Then the disciples coming near to Jesus,
Privately said—
Wherefore could we not cast it out?
And he saith unto them—
Because of your little faith.
For verily! I say unto you—
If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed
Ye shall say to this mountain, Remove hence yonder and it shall be removed,
And nothing shall be impossible to you.

And [calling near a child] he set it in the midst of them, and said— ||Verily|| I say unto you, Except ye turn and become as the children> You shall not enter into the kingdom of the heavens. 19 Whosoever shall humble himself as this child> The same is the greatest, in the kingdom of the heavens; And <whosoever shall give welcome unto one such child> upon my name> I Unto me giveth welcome. 20 And <if thy hand or thy foot> be causing thee to stumble > Cut itoff, and cast it from thee: It is [seemly for thee] to enter into life, maimed or lame, Rather than [having two' hands or two' feet] to be cast into the age-abiding fire. 21 But [if thine eye causeth thee to stumble > Pluck it out, and cast it from thee: It is [seemly] for thee [one-eyed] into life to enter, Rather than [having two' eyes] to be cast into the fiery Gehenna. 22 Beware! do not despise one of these little ones; For I say unto you—

   Who then can be saved?
26 And [looking intently] Jesus said unto them—
   ||With men|| this is impossible, —
   But [with God] [all things are possible].
27 Then [making answer] Peter said unto him—
   Lo! we have left all, and followed thee, —
   What then shall there be [for us]?
28 And [Jesus] said unto them—
   ||Verily|| I say unto you,
   [For you who followed me in the regeneration]
   [When the Son of Man shall take his seat on his throne of glory]
   ||Ye also|| shall be seated upon twelve thrones, —
   Judging the twelve tribes of Israel.
30 But many shall be—
   First-last, and Last-first.
20 For the kingdom of the heavens [is like] a man, a householder,—
   Who went forth with the morning, to hire labourers into his vineyard; — and [when he had agreed with the labourers for a denary the day] sent them into his vineyard.

3 And <going forth about the third' hour> he saw others, standing in the marketplace, unemployed; —

   ||Ye also|| go your way into the vineyard.
8 And [when evening came] the master of the vineyard saith unto his steward—
   Call the labourers, and pay the hire,— beginning from the last, unto the first.
9 And they of the eleventh' hour [coming] received severally a denary.
10 And [when the first came] they supposed that [more] they should receive, —and [they also] received severally a denary.
11 And [having received it] they began to murmur against the householder,
   saying—
   ||These last|| [one' hour] wrought, and thou hast made them [equal unto us] who have borne the burden of the day, and the scorching heat.
12 And [he] answering, [unto one of them] said,— Friend! I wrong thee not:
   Was it not [for a denary] thou didst agree with me?
   Take thine own, and go thy way;
   But I please [unto this' last] to give, as also to thee:

Be going into the village that is over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass bound, and a colt with her,—loose them, and lead them unto me.

3 And if anyone unto you say aught ye shall say—

Their Lord hath need,— and straightway he will send them.

4 But [this] hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying:

Tell ye the daughter of Zion, Lo! [thy King] is coming unto thee, Meek and mounted upon an ass, And upon a colt the foal of a tailing ass.*

And the disciples went and did as Jesus directed them; 7 and led the ass and the colt, and laid upon them their garments, and he took his seat upon them. 8 And [the chief multitude] spread their own mantles in the way, and [others] were cutting off young branches from the trees, and spreading them in the way; 9 and the multitudes <they who were going before him and they who were following after> were crying aloud, saying—

Hosanna* to the Son of David, [Blessed is he that is coming in the name of the Lord],

10 And the multitudes were saying— [This] is the prophet Jesus,— He from Nazareth of Galilee.

12 And Jesus entered into the temple, and cast out all who were selling and buying in the temple,—and [the tables of the money-changers] he overthrew, and the seats of them who were selling doves; 13 and saith unto them—

It is written, [My house] a house of prayer! shall be called,* but [ye] are making it, A den of robbers.*

14 And there came unto him blind and lame, in the temple, and he cured them.

15 But the Chief-priests and the Scribes seeing the marvels that he wrought, and the boys who were crying aloud in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David!* were greatly displeased; 16 and said unto him— Hearcest thou what these are saying? And [Jesus] saith unto them—and the fig-tree instantly withered away.

And the disciples [seeing it] marvelled, saying—

Not only this of the fig-tree shall ye do,—

But even if unto this mountain ye shall say, Be lifted up, and be cast into the sea—it shall be done.

And all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing ye shall receive.

§ 68. By what Authority? Two Sons.

Mk. xi. 27-33; Lu. xx. 1-8.

And when he entered the temple the Chief-priests and the Elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, saying—

"By what authority! these things art thou doing? And who to thee gave this authority?"

And making answer Jesus said unto them—

I also will ask you one thing,— Which if ye tell me,

I also will tell you—

By what authority! these things I am doing:

The immersion by John: whence was it? Of heaven, or of men? But they began to deliberate among themselves, saying—

"If we say, Of heaven; He will say unto us, Wherefore then did ye not believe him?"

But if we say, Of men; We fear the multitude. For all, as a prophet, are holding John.

And making answer to Jesus, they said—

We know not.

He also said unto them—

Neither do I tell you. By what authority! these things I am doing.

But how to you doth it seem?

A man had two sons:

[Coming unto the first] he said, Son! go thy way, [To-day] be working in the vineyard.

And he answering, said, [I] sir! and went not;
Matthew XXI. 42—46; XXII. 1—29.

42 Jesus saith unto them—
Have ye never read in the Scriptures,
[<A stone which the builders rejected>
|The same| hath become ||head of the corner|; |
|From the Lord| hath this come to pass,
|And is marvellous in our eyes.]*
Wherefore I say unto you,
The kingdom of God [will be taken away
from you],
And given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof:
|[And | he that falleth on this stone|]
Will be sorely bruised;
But [on whomsoever it may fall]
It will utterly destroy * him.]*

43 Wherefore I say unto you.
The kingdom of God will betaken away
from you;,
And givento a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof:u CAnd |haththatstone|b fallen upon him;
Will be sorely bruised;
But on whomsoever it may fall
It will utterly destroy * him.]*

44 And the Chief-priests and the Pharisees| hearing his parables| took note, that [concerning them | he was speaking. And, seeking to secure him, they feared the multitudes; since
|for a prophet | were they holding him.

§ 70. Marriage Feast and Wedding Garment.
Lu. xiv. 16-24.

22 And [answering| Jesus |again| spake in parables unto them, saying:—
The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man, a king,—
Who made a marriage-feast for his son;
And sent his servants, to call the invited into the marriage-feast,—
And they would not come.

|Again| sent he other| servants, saying—
Say to the invited,
Lo! [my dinner| have I prepared,
|Mine oxen and my fatlings| are slain,—
And |all things| are |ready|:
Come ye into the marriage-feast.

And |they| slighting it, went off,
|One| indeed, into his own field.
And |another| unto his merchandise,—
And |the rest| securing his servants, ill-treated and slew them.

And |the king| was provoked to anger,—
And, sending his armies,
Destroyed those murderers,
And |their city| set on fire.

|Then| saith he unto his servants—
The marriage | indeed, is ready.—
But |the invited| were not |worthy|;
Be going, therefore, into the crossways of the roads,
And |as many as ye shall find| call ye
into the marriage-feast.

And those servants |going forth| into the roads,
Gathered together all whom they found, both bad and good,—
And filled was the bride-chamber with guests.

But the king <entering to view the guests>
Saw there a man, who had not put on a wedding-garment,—

In. viii. 15. * Ps. xcvi. 23.

12 And saith unto him—
Friend! how camest thou in here, not having a wedding-garment?
And [he] was put to silence.

18 |Then| the king said unto the ministers—
<Binding him feet and hands>
Cast him forth into the darkness [outside]:
|There| shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

For [many| are |called|, but [few| are |chosen|.

§ 71. Cesar and God. Mk. xii. 13-17; Lu. xx.
20-26.

18 |Then| went the Pharisees and took |counsel, that they might ensnare him [in discourse].
And they sent forth to him their disciples,
with the Herodians, saying,
Teacher! we know that |true| thou art,
And |the way of God| [in truth] dost
teach,
And it concerneth thee not about anyone,—
For thou lookest not unto the face of men:
Tell us then, how [to thee] it seemeth?
Is it allowable to give tax unto Cesar, or not?

But Jesus <taking note of their wickedness>
said—
Why are ye tempting me, hypocrites?

Shew me the coin appointed for the tax.
And [they| brought unto him a denary.
And he saith unto them—
|Whose| is this image and the inscription?

They say—Cesar's.
|Then| saith he unto them—
|Render, therefore, |the things of Cesar, unto Cesar|,—
And |the things of God, unto God|.

22 And, hearing, they marvelled,—and, leaving him, departed.

§ 72. Marriage and the Resurrection.
Mk. xii. 18-27; Lu. xx. 27-39.

23 |On that'day| there came unto him Sadducees, who say, there is |no resurrection|,— and they questioned him, saying—
Teacher! [Moses| said,
<If any man die not having children> his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.>

Now there were, with us, seven' brethren;
And [the first| marrying, died, and not having seed, left his wife unto his brother.
Likewise |||the second also|, and the third,—unto the seven|.
And [last of all] died ||the wife|.

In the resurrection, therefore—
|Of which of the seven| shall she be wife?
For [all| had her.

And Jesus answering, said—
Ye are deceiving yourselves.
Knowing neither the Scriptures, nor yet the power of God.

* Des. xxv. 5; Gen. xxxviii. 8.
30 For [in the resurrection] they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but [as messengers in the heaven] are they.

31 But [as touching the resurrection of the dead]—

Have ye not read what was spoken unto you by God, saying—

32 [I] am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? a

He is not God of the dead but [of the living].

33 And [the multitudes] hearing, were being struck with astonishment at his teaching.

§ 73. The Greatest Commandment. Mk. xii. 28-31; Lu. x. 25-27.

34 Now [the Pharisees] hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees were brought together with one accord; 35 and one from among them, a lawyer [proposed a question] putting him to the test:

36 Teacher! [which commandment] is greatest in the law?

37 And [he] said unto him—

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God—with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind: b

38 [This] is the great and first commandment.

39 The second, like it [is] this: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

40 [In these two'commandments] [all the law] is contained, [and the prophets].

§ 74. David's Son and Lord. Mk. xii. 35-37; Lu. xx. 41-44.

41 Now <the Pharisees having come together> Jesus questioned them, saying—

42 How [to you] doth it seem, [concerning the Christ]?

|Whose son| is he?

They say unto him— David's.

43 He saith unto them—

How then [doth] David, in spirit, call him Lord, saying—

44 [The Lord] hath said unto [my Lord],—

Sit thou on my right hand, Until I make thy foes thy footstool? a 45 [If then] David calleth him Lord> [How] is he [his son]?

46 And [no one] was able to answer him a word, neither durst anyone [from that day] question him [any more].

§ 75. Alas for the Scribes and Pharisees.

23 [Then] Jesus spake unto the multitudes and unto his disciples, a saying—

[Upon Moses's seat] have sat down, the Scribes and the Pharisees:

3 [All things] therefore, whatsoever they tell you [do and observe],—

But [according to their works] do ye not, For they [say], and do not [perform].

4 But they bind together heavy burdens, and lay upon men’s shoulders,

Whereas [they] with their finger are not willing to move them.

But [all their works] they do, [to be gazed at by men],—

For they make broad their amulets, and make large their fringes.

And clearly love the first couch in the chief meals, and the first seats in the synagogues, and the salutations in the market-places, and to be called by men, Rabbi.

But [ye]—do not be called Rabbi,—

For [one] is your Teacher, and [all ye] are brethren;

9 And [father] be none of you called [upon the earth],

For [one] is your Father [the Heavenly];

Neither be called leaders,

For [your leader] is one [the Christ];

11 And [the greatest of you] shall be to you a minister;

13 And [whosoever shall exalt himself] shall be [exalted],

And [whoever shall abase himself] shall be [abased].

14 But alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];

Because ye are locking up the kingdom of the heavens before men,—

For [ye] are not entering, Neither [them who are entering] suffer ye to enter.

15 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites]:

Because ye compass sea and dry land, to make one convert,—

And [when it is done] ye make him a son of gehenna [twofold more than ye].

16 Alas for you, blind guides! that say—

<Whosoever shall swear by the Temple>[It is] nothing,

But <whosoever shall swear by the gold of the Temple> is bound:

Foolish and blind! for which is [greater], The gold, or the Temple that hath hallowed the gold?

And <whosoever shall swear by the altar> it is [nothing],

But <whosoever shall swear by the gift that is upon it> is bound:

19 Blind! a for which is greater The gift, or the altar that halloweth the gift?

20 <He therefore that hath sworn by the altar> Sweareth by it, and by all that is upon it;

21 And <he that hath sworn by the Temple> Sweareth by it, and by him who dwelleth therein;

22 And <he that hath sworn by heaven> Sweareth by the throne of God, and by him who sitteth thereupon.

33 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; Because ye tithe the mint and the anise and the cummin,— And have dismissed the weightier matters of the law—the justice, the mercy, and the faith; Whereas those it was binding to do, And those not to dismiss. * Blind guides! Straining out the gnat, But the camel swallowing. 25 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; Because ye cleanse the outside of the cup and of the dish,— While within they are full of plunder and, intemperance. Blind Pharisee! cleanse first the inside of the cup and of the dish, That the outside thereof may become clean. 27 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; Because ye make yourselves like sepulchres whitewashed, Which indeed appear beautiful, But within are full of dead men’s bones and all uncleanness,— Thus ye also outside indeed appear to men righteous, But within are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness. 29 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; Because ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, And adorn the monuments of the righteous, And say— If we had been in the days of our fathers, We would not have been their partners in the blood of the prophets: So that ye bear witness against yourselves, That ye are sons of them whom ye murdered the prophets. And ye fill ye up the measure of your fathers! Serpents! broods of vipers! how should ye flee from the judgment of Gehenna? For this cause lo! |I| send unto you, prophets and wise men and scribes,— Some from among them ye will slay and crucify, And some from among them ye will— Scourge in your synagogues, And pursue from city to city: That there may come upon you— All righteous blood poured out upon the earth, From the blood of Abel the righteous, Unto the blood of Zachariah, son of Barachiah, whom ye murdered between the Temple and the altar. 36 Verily I say unto you— All these things will have come upon this generation. * Jerusalem! Jerusalem! That slayeth the prophets, And stonesthem that have been sent unto her,— How often would I have gathered thy children, Like as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings,— And ye would not! Lo! your house is left to you; 32 For I say unto you— In no wise may ye see me henceforth, Until ye say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. * § 76. The Prophecy on Mount Olivet. Mk. xiii. Lu. xxi. 24 And <Jesus coming forth> |from the temple> was taking his departure, when his disciples came forward, to point out to him the buildings of the temple. * But |he| answering, said unto them— Are ye not beholding all these things? Verily I say unto you— In no wise shall there be left here stone upon stone, Which shall not be thrown down. 3 And <as he was sitting upon the Mount of Olives> the disciples came unto him, privately, saying— Tell us, when these things shall be,— And what the sign of thy presence, and the conclusion of the age. * And |answering| Jesus said unto them— Be taking heed, lest anyone deceive you; For |many| will come upon my name, saying— |I| am the Christ,— And will deceive many. Moreover ye will be sure to be hearing of wars, and rumours of wars: Mind! be not alarmed, for it must needs happen,— But |not yet| is |the end|; 7 For there will arise— Nation against nation, And kingdom against kingdom,— And there will be famines and earthquakes in places. But |all| these things are a beginning of birth-pangs. 9 |Then| will they deliver you up into tribulation, and will slay you,— And ye will be hated by all the nations |because of my name; 10 And |then| will many be caused to stumble, And one another will deliver up, And will hate one another; — Or (W.[E]): "left to you;" — Or (W.[E]): "will fill up." — Ap: "Age." — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Dem. ii. 26. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Jer. xxil. 6; — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Is. xix. 4. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Jer. xiii. 6. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Jer. xiii. 7. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Chap. x. 22; Mk. xiii. 13; — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Lu. xxi. 17. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Ps. cviii. 26. — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» — Ap: "Presence;" — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» — Or (W.[E]): «left to you;» Dan. xi. 41 (Sep.).
And many false prophets will arise, and deceive many;
And because of lawlessness being brought to the full, the love of the many will grow cold.
But he that hath endured throughout shall be saved.
And this glad message of the kingdom will be proclaimed in all' the inhabited earth, for a witness unto all the nations,—And then will have come, the end.

<Whensoever, therefore, ye shall see the abomination of desolation, that was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in a holy place,—b

He that readeth let him think>

[T]hen| they who are in Judæa, let them flee into the mountains; and he that is on the house-top let him not come down, to take away the things out of his house; c
And he that is in the field, let him not turn back, to take away his mantle.

But alas! for the women with child, and for them that are giving suck in those days;
But be praying that your flight may not happen in winter, nor on sabbath;
For there will be then, great tribulation, such as hath not happened from the beginning of the worlds until the present time, neither in any wise shall happen.

And except those days had been shortened, b no flesh had been saved; But for the sake of the chosen, those days shall be shortened.

[Then] if any unto you say—Lo! here; is the Christ, or there; Do not believe it;
For there will arise, false Christs, and false prophets, and they will show great signs and wonders, a so that, if possible, even the chosen should be deceived:

Lo! I have foretold you.
If therefore they should say unto you—Lo! in the desert he is; Do not go forth;
Lo! in the chambers; Do not believe it;
For there shall be two men in the field,—One is taken near, and one is left behind:
Two women grinding at the mill,—One is taken near, and one is left behind.
Bo watching, therefore,
For ye know not on what manner of day your Lord is coming.
But there is one thing ye know:
That if the householder had known; In what watch the thief was coming;
But if that wicked servant should say in his heart—
My master delayeth,
And begin to be striking his fellow-servants,
And eating and drinking with the drunkens
The master of that servant will have come
On a day when he is not expecting,
And in an hour when he is not observing,—
And will cut him saunder;
And |his part| |with the hypocrites| will appoint:
|There| shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth!*

Then| will the kingdom of the heavens become like unto |ten virgins; Who, taking their torches, went forth to meet the bridegroom.

Now |five of them| were foolish,
And |five| prudent.

For |the foolish||—
Though they took |their torches|,
Took not with them |oil|;
But |the prudent| took oil in their vessels, with their torches.

Now |the bridegroom| |delaying|>
They all became drowsy, and were sleeping.

And |at midnight|| an outcry hath been made—
Lo! the bridegroom!
Be going forth to meet him!

Then| arose all those virgins, and trimmed their torches.
And |the foolish|| unto the prudent |said—
Give us of your oil,
Because |our torches| |are going out|.

But the prudent |answered| |saying—
|Least once, by any means, be not enough for us and you> Be going rather unto them that sell,
And buy for yourselves.

But |as they were going away to buy>
The bridegroom |came|;
And |they who were ready| went in with him, into the marriage-feast,
And |the door was locked|.

But |afterwards| came the other virgins also, saying—
Lord! Lord! open unto us!

* Or: "their food."

And |he| answering, said—
|Verily| I say unto you,
I know* you not.

Be watching, therefore,
Because ye know, neither the day nor the hour.

For it is |just as a man|| who |going from home|
Called his own servants,
And delivered up to them his substance;
And |to one| indeed, gave he five talents,
And |to another| two,
And |to another| one,—
To each according to his particular ability,
And went from home.

|Straightway|| he who |the five talents| had received, went and traded with them,
And gained other five:
|Likewise|| he of the two| gained other two:
But |he who the one| had received| went away, and digged up ground, and hid the silver of his lord.
And |after a long time| cometh the lord of those servants, and reckoneth with them.
And he who the five talents had received |Coming forward| brought other five talents, saying—
Lord! |five talents|| to me thou didst deliver up:
See! |other five talents| I gained.
His lord said unto him—
Well-done! good and faithful servant,—
|Over a few things| wast thou faithful,
|Over many things| will I appoint thee:
Enter into the joy of thy lord.

He also of the two talents |coming forward| said—
Lord! |two talents|| to me didst thou deliver up:
See! |other two talents| I gained.
His lord said unto him—
Well-done! good and faithful servant,—
|Over a few things| wast thou faithful,
|Over many things| will I appoint thee:
Enter into the joy of thy lord.

But he also who |the one talent| had received |Coming forward| said—
Lord I knew thee,
That thou art a |hard| man,
Reaping, where thou hast not sown,—
And gathering, whence thou hast not winnowed;
And |overcome with fear| I went away, and hid thy talent in the ground;
See! thou hast what is thine!
And his lord |answering| said unto him—
O wicked servant, and cowardly,
* Or: "acknowledge."
Knewest thou
That I reap, where I have not sown,
And gather, whence I have not winnowed?

37 [It was binding on thee, therefore] to cast my silver into the money-changers,—
And [I, when I came] might have obtained what was mine, [with interest].
Therefore take away [from him] the talent, and give unto him that hath the ten talents;
For [to every one that hath] shall be given, [And he shall be made to abound];
But [from him that hath not] [Even what he hath] shall be taken away from him:
And [the unprofitable servant] cast ye forth into the darkness [outside]: [There] shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

31 But <whenever the Son of Man shall come in his glory,>
And all the messengers with him>—
Then will he sit on his throne of glory;
And there will be gathered before him, all the nations,
And he will separate them one from another,
Just as [the shepherd] separateth the sheep from the goats,—
And he will set [the sheep] indeed, on his right hand,
But [the goats] on the left.

33 [Then] will the king say to those on his right hand:
Come ye, the blessed of my Father! Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world;
For I hungered, and ye gave me to eat, I thirsted, and ye gave me drink,
[A stranger] was I, and ye took me home, Naked, and ye clothed me, Sick, and ye visited me,
| In prison | was I, and ye came unto me.

35 [Then] will the righteous answer him, saying: Lord! when saw we thee—Hungry, and fed thee,
Or thirsty, and gave thee drink?
And [when] saw we thee—A stranger, and took thee home, Or naked, and clothed thee?
And [when] saw we thee—Sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?
And [answering] the king will say unto them: Verily! I say unto you—<Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my least brethren> Unto me ye did it.

41 [Then] will he say unto those also [on his left hand]: Depart ye from me, accursed ones!
Into the age-abiding fire, which hath been prepared for the adversary and his messengers;
For I hungered, and ye gave me not to eat,
[And] I was thirsty, and ye gave me not to drink,
[A stranger] was I, and ye took me not home,
Naked, and ye clothed me not,
Sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.
[Then will they also] answer, saying: Lord! when saw we thee—Hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, And ministered not unto thee?

45 [Then] will he answer them, saying: Verily! I say unto you—<Inasmuch as ye did it not> unto one of these least:
[Neither unto me] did ye it.
And [these] shall go away, into age-abiding correction,
But [the righteous] into age-abiding life.*

26 And it came to pass <when Jesus ended all' these words> he said unto his disciples:
Ye know that [after two' days] the passover shall take place,—And the Son of Man is to be delivered up, to be crucified.

31 Then were gathered together, the High-priests and the Elders of the people, into the court of the High-priest who was called Caiaphas; and they took counsel together, in order that Jesus, by guile they might secure, and slay.
They were saying, however:
Not during the feast,
Lest an uproar arise among the people.
But Jesus <happening to be in Bethany, in the house of Simon the le[>er>7 there came unto him a woman, holding an alabaster- jar of costly perfume, and she poured it down upon his head, as he was reclining. And the disciples [seeing it] were greatly displeased, saying—To what end! this loss?
For this could have been sold for much, and given to the destitute.
But Jesus [taking note] said unto them—Why vex ye the woman? For [a seemly work] hath she wrought for me;
For [always, the destitute] have ye with you,—But [me, not always] have ye;
For [she] pouring this perfume upon my body, so as to prepare me for burial! did it.
[Verily! I say unto you—<Wheresoever this glad-message shall be proclaimed in all' the world> Also what she did, will be told, as a memorial of her.

§ 78. The Passover: the Old Feast and the New. Mk. xiv. 12-26; Lu. xxii. 7-23.

17 And <on the first of the days of unleavened bread> the disciples came unto Jesus, saying—

Where wilt thou that we make ready for thee to eat the passover? 18 And |he| said—

Go your way into the city, unto such a one, and say to him,

|The teacher| saith,

[My season| is| near],

[With thee| will I keep the passover, with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did, as Jesus directed them, and made ready the passover. 20 And <when |evening| came> he was reclining with the twelve [disciples]; 21 and, as they were eating, he said—

|Verily| I say unto you,

[One among you|will deliver me up. And |being exceedinglygrieved| they beganto besaying to him, each one—

|Can it be |I| Lord? 23 And |he! answering, said—

<He who hath dipped with me his hand in the bowl> |thesame| will deliver me up.

21 |The Son of Man| indeed, goeth his way, according as it is written concerning him,— But alas! for that man, through whom the Son of Man is being delivered up:

|Well| had it been for him, if |that man| had not been born!

25 And Judas, who was delivering him up, |answering| said—

|Thou| hast said.

26 And |as they were eating| Jesus |taking a loaf and blessing| brake,—and |giving to his disciples| said—

|Take, eat! |this| is |my body|. 27 And <taking a cup, and giving thanks> he gave unto them, saying—

Drink of it, all of you; For |this| is |my blood of the covenant b which |for many| is to be poured out, for remission of sins.

28 Moreover, I say unto you—

|In nowise| will I drink, henceforth, of this produce of the vine, until that day, whencesoever I shall drink it with you |new| in the kingdom of my Father. 30 And, having sung praise, they went forth unto the Mount of Olives.

§ 79. Peter’s Denial foretold. Mk. xiv. 27-31; Lu. xxii. 31-34; Jn. xiii. 36-38.

31 |Then| Jesus saith unto them—

|All| ye| will find cause of stumbling in me, during this night;

For it is written,

|I will smite the shepherd,

And |the sheep of the flock| will be scattered abroad; 33 But |after my arising| I will go before you into Galilee.

34 Now Peter |answering| said unto him—

<Though |all| shall find cause of stumbling in thee>

[I| shall never find cause of stumbling.

35 Jesus saith unto him:

|Verily| I say unto thee—

<During this night, before a cock crow> |Thrice| wilt thou deny me. 36 Peter saith unto him:

<Even though it be needful for me |with thee| to die>

|In nowise| will I deny thee. 37 Likewise| all the disciples also| said.

38 Then Jesus cometh with them, into a place called Gethsemane,—and he saith unto his disciples, Sit ye here, while I go yonder and pray.

39 And <taking with him, Peter and the two sons of Zebedee> he began to be grieved and to be in great distress. 40 |Then| saith he unto them: |Encompassed with grief| is my soul, d |unto death|:

Abide ye here, and be watching with me.

41 And |going forward a little| he fell upon his face, offering prayer, and saying—

My Father! If it is possible |let this cup pass from me,—|Nevertheless| not as |I| will, but as |thou| wilt.

42 And he cometh unto his disciples, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter—|Thus| powerless are ye |one hour| to watch with me? 43 Be watching and praying, that ye may not enter into temptation:

|The spirit| indeed, is| eager, but |the flesh| weak|.

44 |Again, a second time| departing he prayed, saying:

My Father! |If it is impossible for this to pass, except I| drink| it> 45 Accomplished d be |thy will|.

And coming, he again found them sleeping, for their eyes had become heavy. 43 And, leaving them, he again departed, and prayed a third time, [the same word] saying [again]. 44 Then cometh he unto the disciples, and saith unto them,—

Lo! the hour hath drawn near, and [the Son of Man] is being delivered up into the hands of sinners. 45 Arose! let us be going,—

Lo! [he that delivereth me up] hath drawn near.

§ 81. The Betrayal and Arrest. Mk. xiv. 43-54; Lu. xxii. 47-54.

And <while yet he was speaking> lo! Judas, one of the twelve! came, and, with him [a large multitude] [with swords and clubs, from the High-priests and Elders of the people]. 47 And [he who was delivering him up] gave them a sign, saying—<Whomsoever I shall kiss> [he] it is,—secure him.

And <; straightway coming unto Jesus> he said—

Joy to thee! Rabbi, and eagerly kissed him. 49 But [Jesus] said unto him—

Friend! wherefore art thou here? Then, coming forward, they thrust their hands upon Jesus, and secured him. 50 And lo! one of those with Jesus! stretching forth his hand, grasped his sword, and smiting the servant of the High-priest, cut off his ear. 51 Then Jesus saith unto him —

Put back thy sword into its place, For <all those who take asword> by asword shall perish. 52 Or thinkest thou that I cannot call upon my Father, And he will set near me, even now. more than twelve’ legions of messengers!

How then should the Scriptures be fulfilled. That it must needs come to pass? Then [the High-priest rent asunder his garments, saying—

He hath spoken profanely! What further need have we, of witnesses? 55 And the High-priest [arising] said unto him— [Nothing] answerest thou? What are these, against thee bearing witness? 56 But [Jesus] was silent.

And [the High-priest] said unto him:

[Thou hast said]; Moreover; I say unto you—— [Hereafter] ye will see the Son of Man, Sitting on the right hand of power, And coming upon the clouds of heaven.

Then [the High-priest rent asunder his garments, saying—

He hath spoken profanely! What further need have we, of witnesses? 57 And they answering, said: [Guilty of death] he is.

Then] spat they into his face, and buffeted him; and others struck him smartly, saying— Prophecy unto us, O Christ! Who is he that struck thee?

§ 82. Jesus before the High-priest. Mk. xiv. 55-65.

Now [the High-priests and all the High-council] were seeking false-witness against Jesus, that they might [put him to death]; 58 and found not any, though many came forward as false-witnesses. [At length] however, there came forward two, 59 and said:

This man said—

I am able to pull down the shrine of God, And [in three days] to [build] it. 60 And the High-priest [arising] said unto him— [Nothing] answerest thou? What are these, against thee bearing witness?

But [Jesus] was silent.

And [the High-priest] said unto him:

I put thee on oath, by the Living God, that [to us, thou say]—

Whether [thou] art the Christ, the Son of God.

Jesus saith unto him:

[Thou hast said]; Moreover; I say unto you—— [Hereafter] ye will see the Son of Man, Sitting on the right hand of power, And coming upon the clouds of heaven.

Then [the High-priest rent asunder his garments, saying—

He hath spoken profanely! What further need have we, of witnesses? 65 And they answering, said: [Guilty of death] he is.

Then] spat they into his face, and buffeted him; and others struck him smartly, saying— Prophecy unto us, O Christ! Who is he that struck thee?

Now [Peter] was sitting without, in the court; and there came unto him a certain female servant, saying—

[Thou also] wast with Jesus, the Galilean. 66 But [he] denied before all, saying—

I know not what thou sayest. 67 And <when he went out into the porch> another female saw him, and said unto them who were there—

This one was with Jesus the Nazarene.

And [again] he denied [with an oath]—

I know not the man.

And <after a little> the by-standers [coming forward] said unto Peter: [Truly you also] art [from among them], For [thy very speech] maketh thee [manifest]. 69 Then] began he to be cursing and swearing—

I know not the man.

And <straightway> a cock crowed. 70 And

Or (WH): "Hast thou..." Or: "liable to," "worthy said?"
Peter was put in mind of the declaration of Jesus, of his having said—

||Before a cock crow|| thrice| wilt thou utterly deny me;||

and, going forth outside, he wept bitterly.

§ 84. Jesus taken before the Roman Governor.

Mk. xv. 1; Lu. xxiii. 1; Jn. xvi. 28.

27 Now when morning came, all the high-priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus, so as to put him to death; and binding him, they led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate the governor.

§ 85. The Remorse and End of Judas.

Ac. i. 15-20.

3 Then Judas who had delivered him up, seeing that he was condemned, being smitten with remorse, returned the thirty pieces of silver unto the high-priests and elders, saying—

I have sinned, in delivering up righteous* blood.

But they said—

What is that to us? thou shalt see to it for thyself.

And, <throwing the pieces of silver into the temple>, he withdrew, and going away, hanged himself.

But the high-priests and elders [taking counsel] said—

It is not allowed, to cast them into the treasury; since a price of blood they are.

And [taking counsel] they bought with them, the field of the potter, as a burial-place for strangers. Wherefore that field hath been called Field of Blood, until this day.

Then was fulfilled, that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying:

And they took the thirty pieces of silver,

As the value of him whom they had valued,

Whom they had valued of Israel's sons,—

And gave them for the field of the potter,

As the Lord directed me.''

§ 86. Jesus before Pilate.

Mk. xv. 1-15; Lu. xxiii. 1-7, 13-25; Jn. xviii. 29-40; xix. 1-16.

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor questioned him, saying—

|Thou| art the king of the Jews?

And Jesus said—

|Thou| sayest.

And while he was being accused by the high-priests and elders, he answered nothing. Then Pilate saith unto him—

Hearkest thou not how many things against thee they are bearing witness?

And he answered him |no not so much as a single word|, so that the governor was marveling exceedingly.

But [feast by feast] the governor had been wont to release one unto the multitude, a prisoner whom they were desiring. Now they had at that time a distinguished prisoner, called |Barabbas|. They therefore having come together |Pilate| said to them—

Whom will I release unto you? Barabbas?

Or Jesus, who is called Christ?

For he knew that |for envy| they had delivered him up.

And <as he was sitting upon the judgment seat> his wife sent unto him, saying:

Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man, for |many things| have I suffered this day, by dream, because of him.

But |the high-priests and the elders| persuaded the multitudes, that they should claim Barabbas, but |Jesus| should |destroy|.

Now the governor [answering] said unto them—

Which of the two desire ye I should release unto you?

And they said—

Barabbas!* And Pilate saith unto them—

What then shall I do unto Jesus, |who is called Christ|?

They all say—

Let him be crucified!

But |he| said—

Indeed! what evil hath he done?

But |they, vehemently| were crying aloud, saying—

Let him be crucified!

And Pilate [seeing that |nothing| it availed, but rather a tumult was arising] taking water, washed his hands of it before the multitude, saying—

|Innocent| am I, of the blood of this man,—

|Ye| shall see to it for yourselves.

And all 'the people, answering, said—

His blood be upon us and upon our children!

Then released he unto them Barabbas, but, scourging |Jesus|, delivered him up, that he might be crucified.

§ 87. Jesus mocked by the Roman Soldiers.

Mk. xv. 22-41; Lu. xxiii. 26-49; Jn. xix. 17-37.

Then the soldiers of the governor, taking Jesus aside into the judgment-hall, gathered unto him all the band; and, unclothing him, a scarlet scarf put they about him, and |plaiting a crown out of thorns|, put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand,—and |kneeling before him| began to mock him, saying—

Joy to thee, King of the Jews!

And spitting upon him they took the reed, and began striking upon his head. And when they had mocked him, they put off him the scarf, and put on him his garments, and led him away unto the crucifying.

And <as they were going forth> they found a man of Cyrene, |by name| Simon,—the same |they impressed| to bear his cross.

§ 88. The Crucifixion.

Mk. xxv. 22-41; Lu. xxiii. 33-49; Jn. xix. 17-37.

And <coming into a place called Golgotha,> called |Barabbas|. They therefore having come together |Pilate| said to them—

Whom will I release unto you? Barabbas?

Or Jesus, who is called Christ?

For he knew that |for envy| they had delivered him up.

And <as he was sitting upon the judgment seat> his wife sent unto him, saying:

51 And | the veil of the Temple | was rent, from top to bottom, into two; and | the earth | was shaken, and | the rocks | were rent; 52 and | the tombs | were opened and | many bodies of the holy ones who had fallen asleep arose,— 53 and | coming forth out of the tombs after his arising> entered into [the holy city], and plainly appeared unto many.

54 Now [the centurion, and those with him watching Jesus] <seeing the earthquake and the things coming to pass> were violently affrighted, saying—

Truly | God's Son | was | he! |

55 Now there were there, many women, | from afar | beholding, who indeed had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him; 56 among whom was Mary the Magdalene, also Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

§ 80. The Burial. Mk. xv. 42-47; Lu. 50-56; Jn. xix. 38-42.

57 And <when evening arrived> there came a rich man from Arimathea, whose name was Joseph, who also | himself | had been disciple unto Jesus. 58 The same | going unto Pilate | claimed the body of Jesus. 59 Then | Pilate commanded it to be given up. 60 And Joseph, taking the body, wrapped it up in a clean Indian-cloth, 61 and laid it in his new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock, and <rolling near a large stone unto the door of the tomb> departed. 62 Now there were there, Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

§ 90. The Sepulchre sealed and guarded.

63 And <on the morrow, which is after the preparation> the High-priests and the Pharisees were gathered together unto Pilate, saying—

Sir! we have been put in mind that | that deceiver | said, while yet living,—

| After three days | will I arise.|

64 Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made secure until the third day,—lest once the disciples| should come and steal him, and say unto the people,

He hath arisen from the dead!

68 And <late in the week, when it was on the point of dawning into the first of the week> came Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, to view the sepulchre. 69 And lo! | [a great'] commotion occurred,—for | [a messenger| of the Lord | descending out of heaven, and coming near] had rolled away the stone, and was sitting upon it. 70 Now [his appearance] | was | as lightning, and | [his clothing] | white as snow; 71 and | for fear of him| they who were keeping watch were thrown into a commotion, and became as dead men. But the messenger answering said unto the women—

Be not ye afraid! For I know that [Jesus the crucified] ye are seeking:

8 He is not here, for he hath arisen, as he said. Come! see the place where he lay;

8 And quickly going tell his disciples—He hath arisen from the dead, And lo! he is going before you into Galilee;—

9 And quickly going tell his disciples—He hath arisen from the dead, And lo! he is going before you into Galilee;—

8 And <departing quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy> they ran to bring tidings unto his disciples. And lo! Jesus met them, saying—

Joy to you! And they going forward, held his feet, and worshipped him. Then Jesus saith unto them—

Be not afraid! Go your way, bear tidings unto my brethren, that they may depart into Galilee; And there shall they themselves see me.

§93. The Story of the Soldiers. Now as they were going! certain of the guard went into the city and reported unto the High-priests all the thing that had come to pass; and if this were reported unto the governor we will persuade him, and will make [you] free from care.

8 And they taking the pieces of silver, did as they were instructed. And this account was spread abroad among the Jews... until this [very] day.

§ 92. The Great Commission. Mk. xvi. 15-20; Lu. xxiv. 44-49; Jn. xx. 21-23.

And the eleven disciples went into Galilee, unto the mountain which Jesus had appointed them; and seeing him they worshipped, but some doubted. And Jesus speaking unto them, saying—

All authority, in heaven and on earth, hath been given unto me;

Go ye, therefore, and disciple all the nations, Immersing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit,—

Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I myself have commanded you, And lo! I am with you, all the days, until the conclusion of the age.

|Thou| art my Son, the Beloved,—
|In thee| I delight.

12 And [straightway] [the Spirit] urgeth him forth into the wilderness; 13 and he was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan, and was with the wild beasts,—and |the messengers| were ministering unto him.

14 And <after John was delivered up> Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the glad-message of God, 15 [and saying]—
The season is fulfilled,
And the kingdom of God hath drawn near,— Repent ye, and have faith in the glad-message.

16 And <passing by near the sea of Galilee> he saw Simon, and Andrew the brother of Simon, casting a net in the sea,—for they were fishers; 17 and Jesus said unto them—
Come after me,
And I will make you become fishers of men ;
18 and <|straightway| leaving the nets> they followed him. 19 And <going forward a little|> he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, and them who were in the boat putting in order the nets; 20 and |straightway| he called them,—and<leaving their father Zebedee in the boat, with the hired men> they came away after him.

§ 5. In Capernaum Jesus teaches, and expels an Impure Spirit. Lu. iv. 31-37.

21 And they journey into Capernaum. And <|straightway|, on the Sabbath| entering into the synagogue> he went into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. 22 Now |the mother-in-law of Simon| was lying in a fever, and |straightway| the messengers were ministering unto him.

22 And <straightway out of the synagogue, going forth> he went into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. 23 Now |the mother-in-law of Simon| was lying in a fever, and |straightway| they speak to him concerning her; 24 and, coming near, he raised her up, grasping her hand,—and the fever left her, and she began ministering unto them.

25 And <evening arriving, when the sun went in> they were bearing unto him all' who were sick, and them who were demonized; 26 and all' the city was gathered unto the door; 27 and he cured many' that were sick with divers' diseases, and |many demons| he cast out, and suffered not the demons to be talking,—because they knew him [to be Christ].

28 And |very early by night arising| he went out [and departed] into a desert' place, and |there| was praying; 29 and Simon, and they who were with him, went in quest of him, 30 and found him, and say unto him—
|All| are seeking thee ;
and he saith unto them—
Let us be going elsewhere, into the neighbour' ing' country-towns, in order that |there also| I may be making proclamation,—for |to this end| came I forth ;

30 and he came, making proclamation, into their synagogues, throughout the whole of Galilee,— and |was casting the demons out|.

40 And there cometh unto him, a leper, beseeching him [and kneeling],—saying unto him—
|If thou be willing| thou canst cleanse me ;
41 and |moved with compassion| he stretched forth the hand, and touched him, and saith unto him—
I am willing, Be cleansed !
42 and |straightway| the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed; 43 and |strictly charging him|| straightway| he urged him forth ; 44 and saith unto him—
Mind! [unto no one] say [taught],—but withdraw, [thyself] show unto the priest, and offer for thy cleansing what things Moses enjoined [for a witness unto them].

45 But [he] going forth, began to be proclaiming many things, and blazing abroad the story, so that [no longer] was it possible for him [openly]| into a city| to enter,—but [outside, in desert places] [was he], and they were coming unto him from every quarter.
§ 8. Forgive and Heals a Paralytic. Mt. ix. 2—8; Lu. v. 18—20.

2 And <entering again into Capernaum, after some days> it was heard say—

He is in a house; 2

2 and many were gathered together, so that [no longer] was there room [even in the approaches to the door];—and he began speaking unto them the word; 3 and they come, bearing unto him a paralytic, upborne by four;—and <not being able to get near him, by reason of the multitude> they uncovered the roof where he was, and [having broken it up] they began letting down the couch whereon the paralytic was lying; 2 and [Jesus, seeing their faith] saith unto the paralytic—

Child! forgiven are thy sins!

* Now there were certain of the Scribes there, sitting and deliberating in their hearts,—

7 Why doth this man thus talk! he is speaking profanely!

Who can forgive sins save one, [God]? 4

And Jesus, straightway taking note in his spirit, that thus they were deliberating within themselves, saith [unto them]—

Why these things are ye deliberating in your hearts?

Which is easier—

To say unto the paralytic. Forgiven are thy sins,

Or to say, Rise, and take up thy couch, and be walking?

But [that ye may know that the Son of Man hath authority to be forgiving sins upon the earth]> be saith to the paralytic:

[to thee] I say, Rise, take up thy couch, and be going thy way unto thy house.

And he arose, and straightway taking up the couch went forth before all,—so that all were beside themselves, and were glorifying God, [saying]—

Thus we never saw it!

§ 9. Calls Levi. Mt. ix. 9—13; Lu. v. 27—32.

And it came to pass, that he [on the Sabbath] was passing through the cornfields, and his disciples began to go forward, plucking the ears of corn. 23 And [the Pharisees] were saying—

See! why are they doing, on the Sabbath, what is not allowed?

And he saith unto them—

Have ye never read, what [David] did, when he had need and hungered,—he, and they who were with him: 28 How] he entered into the house of God, while [Abiathar] was High-priest, and [the presence-bread] did eat,—which it is not allowed to eat, save unto the priests, —and gave [unto them also who were with him]?

And he was saying unto them—

The Sabbath is for man was made, and not man for the Sabbath:

So that the Son of Man is [Lord] even of the Sabbath.

§ 10. Then will they fast. Mt. ix. 14—17; Lu. v. 33—38.

18 And the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting; and they came and say unto him—

[For what cause] do [the disciples of John and the disciples of the Pharisees] fast, whereas [thy disciples] fast not?

19 And Jesus said unto them—

Is it possible for the sons of the bridechamber [while the bridegroom is with them] to be fasting?

<So long as they have the bridegroom with them> it is impossible to fast. 20 But there will come days when the bridegroom shall be taken from them> and [then] will they fast [in that day].

21 No one seweth a patch of unshrunk cloth upon [an old] mantle,—otherwise, at least the shrinking teareth away from it—the new from the old—and a worse rent is made.

22 And no one poureth [new wine] into [old skins],—otherwise, at least] the wine will burst the skins, and [the wine] is lost, and [the skins]. [But new wine is for unused skins.]

§ 11. Disciple pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 1—8; Lu. vi. 1—5.

23 And it came to pass, that he [on the Sabbath] was passing through the cornfields, and his disciples began to go forward, plucking the ears of corn. 24 And [the Pharisees] were saying—

See! why are they doing, on the Sabbath, what is not allowed?

And he saith unto them—

To [save] life, or [to slay]?

but they remained silent. And [looking round upon them with anger, being at the same time grieved on account of the hardening of their heart] he saith unto the man—and he stretched it forth, and his hand [was restored].

Stretch forth thy hand !

6 And [the Pharisees, going out straightway with the Herodians] were giving counsel against him, that they should [destroy] him.

7 And [Jesus, with his disciples] retired unto the sea; and [a great throng from Galilee] followed, [also from Judea, and from Jerusalem, and from Idumaea, and beyond the Jordan, and around Tyre and Sidon] [a great throng] [hearing whatsoever things he was doing] came unto him.

9 And he spake unto his disciples, that [a little boat] might attend him, because of the multitude,—that they might not be pressing upon him. 10 For he cured [many], so that they were besieging him, that they might touch him—as many as had plagues; and [the impure spirits, as soon as they beheld him] were falling down to him, and crying aloud, [while he was speaking]—

[Thou art the Son of God !]

§ 14. Twelve appointed. Lu. vi.12-16. (Mt. x. 1-4.)

And he goeth up into the mountain and calleth near whom [he] pleased,—and they went away unto him; 14 and he appointed [twelve, whom also he named] Apostles,—that they might be with him, and that he might be sending them forth to make proclamation, 15 and to have authority to cast out the demons; 16 and he appointed the twelve (and imposed a name on Simon)—Peter, 17 and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (and imposed on them a name—Boanerges, that is, sons of thunder); 18 and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alpheus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the zealot; 19 and Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up.

§ 15. Charged with casting out Demons in Beelzebul. Mt. xii.22-37 ; Lu. xi.14-23.

And he cometh into a house; 20 and the multitude come together again, so that they could not eat [bread]. 21 And they who were near to him [hearing of it] went out to secure him,—for they were saying—

He is beside himself !

22 And [the Scribes who from Jerusalem' had come down] were saying—

He hath [Beelzebul]; and—

In the ruler of the demons casteth he out the demons.

23 And, calling them near, [in parables] began he to say unto them—

How can [Satan] cast [Satan] out?

24 And [if a kingdom against itself] be divided > that kingdom cannot be made to stand ;

25 And [if a house against itself] be divided > that house shall be unable to stand ;

26 And [if Satan hath risen up against himself, and become divided] he cannot stand, but hath [an end].

27 But [no one is able into the house of the mighty one to enter, and [his spoils] to carry off] unless [first] the mighty one [be bound, and then] his house will he plunder !

28 And [Satan hath risen up against himself, and become divided] he cannot stand, but hath [an end].

29 But [first two things] shall he make unto the sons of men,—

The sins and the profanities wherewithal they shall profane ;

30 But [whosoever shall revile against the Holy Spirit]

Hath no forgiveness, unto times age-abiding,—

But is guilty of [an age-abiding] sin :

31 And [he was saying—]

[An impure spirit] he hath !

§ 16. Who are my Mother and my Brethren ?

Mt. xii.46-50 ; Lu. viii.19-21.

And there come, his mother and his brethren, and, standing [outside] they sent unto him, calling him. 31 And there was sitting around him a multitude, and they say unto him—

Lo ! [thy mother and thy brethren] [outside] are seeking thee !

32 And, answering them, he saith—

Who are my mother and my brethren ?

33 And [looking around on them who about him, in a circle] were sitting] be saith—

See ! my mother and my brethren !

34 And [looking around on them who about him, in a circle] were sitting] be saith—

See ! my mother and my brethren !

35 [Whosoever shall do the will of God] [the same] is my brother and sister and mother.*

§ 17. Parable of the Sower. Mt. xiii.1-9 ; Lu. viii.4-8.

4 And again began he to be teaching by the sea; and there come together unto him a very great multitude, so that [he, into a boat] entering, was sitting upon the sea,—and [all] the multitude were [near the sea upon the land].

4 And he began to teach them, in parables, many things, and was saying unto them, in his teaching—

Hearken ! Lo ! the sower went forth to sow;

And it came to pass [as he sowed].

* No article: = "a brother
  * Or (WH): "a,"
  * Lit: "in."
And he was saying unto them—

Doth the lamp a come, that under the measure it should be put, or under the couch? Is not that upon the lampstand it may be put? 22 For it is not hidden, but that it may be made visible; neither did it get hidden away, but that it might come into a place where it could be seen.

If any one hath ears to hear let him hear.

And he was saying unto them—

Be taking heed, what ye are hearing:—

With what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you, and added unto you:

And he that hath not shall be taken from him.

And he saith unto them—

Know ye not this parable? How then will ye get to know all the parables?

The sower soweth the word; and these are they beside the pathway, where the word is sown, and as soon as they hear, straightway cometh Satan, and snatcheth away the word which hath been sown into them;

And these are likewise they upon the rocky places sown, who as soon as they hear the word, straightway, with joy receive it, and have no root in themselves, but only for a season are, afterwards, when there ariseth tribulation or persecution by reason of the word, straightway they find cause of stumbling:

And others are they who among thorns are sown, so these are they who hear the word, and the anxieties of the age, and the deceit of wealth, and the covetings about the remaining things entering in, choke up the word, and unfruitful it becometh;

And those yonder are they who on the good ground are sown, who indeed, hear the word, and accept it, and bear fruit—thirtyfold and sixtyfold and a hundredfold.

§ 20. First the Blade.

and dismissing the multitude they take him with them, as he was in the boat, and other boats were with him. And there arose a great tempest of wind, and the waves were dashing over into the boat, so that it was already being filled was the boat. And he was in the stern on the cushion sleeping. And they arouse him, and say unto him,
Teacher! carest thou not that we perish?
And he said unto them—
|Why are ye |fearful?|
|Not yet| have ye faith?
And they were caused to fear a great fear, and were saying one to another—
Who then is this, that both the wind and the sea give ear unto him?
And they came unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gerasenes. And when he went forth out of the boat there met him from amongst the tombs a man, in an impure spirit: who had his dwelling among the tombs, and not even with a chain, any longer was anyone able to bind him,—because of his having been many times, with fetters and chains bound, and the chains having been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters smashed, and no one was mighty enough to tame him; and continually, night and day, in the tombs and in the mountains was he crying aloud, and cutting himself in pieces with stones. And seeing Jesus from afar he ran and bowed down to him; and crying out with a loud voice saith—
What have I in common with thee, O Jesus, Son of God Most High?
I adjure thee by God,—Do not torment me! Go forth thou impure spirit, out of the man; and he was questioning him—
What is thy name?
and he saith to him—
|Legion| is my name, because we are |many|;
and he was beseeching him much, that he would not send them outside the country.
Now there was there, near the mountain, a large herd of swine, feeding; and they besought him, saying—
Send us into the swine, that into them we may enter;
and he suffered them. And the impure spirits going out entered into the swine, and the herd rushed down the cliff into the sea, about two thousand, and were choked in the sea. And they who had been feeding them fled, and bare tidings into the city and into the fields,—and they came to see what it was that had happened.
And they come unto Jesus, and view the demonized man, clothed and of sound mind, him who had had the legion,—and they were struck with fear. And the beholders narrated to them, how it happened to the demonized man, and concerning the swine. And they began to beseech him to depart from their bounds.
And as he was entering into the boat he who had been demonized was beseeching him, that with him he might be. And he suffered him not, but saith unto him—
Withdraw into thy house, unto thine own, and bear tidings unto them, how many things the Lord for thee hath done, and hath had mercy on thee.
And he departed, and began proclaiming, in the Decapolis, how many things Jesus had done for him,—and all were marvelling.
And Jesus crossing over in the boat again unto the other side there was gathered a large multitude unto him, and he was by the sea.
And there came one of the synagogue-rulers, by name Jairus, and seeing him, fell as he passed, and beseecheth him much, saying—
My little daughter is at her last!—that, coming, thou wouldest lay thy hands upon her, that she may be made well, and live; and he departed with him. And there was following him a large multitude, and they were pressing upon him.
And |a woman | who had had a flow of blood twelve years, and suffered much, from many physicians, and spent all her means, and profited nothing,—but had rather become worse;| hearing the things about Jesus came in the crowd from behind, and touched his mantle; and for she was saying—
|If I can touch so much as his mantle| I shall be made well; and straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up, and she knew, in her body, that she was healed from the plague. And straightway Jesus taking note, in himself, of the power which out of him went forth—turning round in the crowd was saying—
Who hath touched my garments?
and his disciples were saying to him—
Thou seest the crowd pressing upon thee,—and sayest thou— Who hath touched me?
and he was looking round to see her who this thing had done. And the woman |overcome with fear, and trembling, knowing what had happened to her| came, and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. And he said to her—
Daughter! thy faith hath made thee well:
Withdraw into peace, And be whole from thy plague.
While yet he is speaking they come from the synagogue-ruler's, saying—
Thy daughter is dead! Why |further| annoy the teacher
40 But [Jesus] overhearing the word being spoken saith unto the synagogue-ruler—

Do not fear, only have faith!

38 And they entered, he saith unto them—

Why are ye making a tumult, and weeping?

The child is not dead, but is sleeping.

41 and they were driving him. But [he] thrusting all forth, took with him the father of the child, and the mother, and them who were with him,—and entereth where the child was; and grasping the hand of the child he saith unto her—

Talitha, koum!

which is, when translated—

O damsel! to thee I say. Arise!

42 And straightway the damsel arose, and was walking about; for she was twelve years of age.

And they were beside themselves, straightway, with a great trans

And when it was Sabbath he began to be teaching in the synagogue, and the greater part [as they heard] were being struck with astonishment,

Whence hath this man these things?—and—

What the wisdom which hath been given to this man?—and—

Such mighty works as those [through his hands] are coming to pass!

Is not this the carpenter? the son of Mary, the brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon?

And are not his sisters here with us?—

and they were finding cause of stumbling in him.

And Jesus was saying unto them—

A prophet is not without honour, [save in his own city, and among his kinsfolk, and in his house]; and he could not there do, so much as a single mighty work, [save on a few sick] he laid his hands, and cured them. And he marvelled, because of their unbelief.

§26. The Twelve sent forth. Mt. x.;

Lu. ix. 1-6, 10, 11.

And he was going round the villages, in a circuit, teaching. And he calleth near the twelve, and began to be sending them forth, two and two, and was giving them authority over the impure spirits: and charged them that they should take [nothing] for a journey, save a staff only,—no bread, no satchel, no copper [for the belt]; but having bound on light sandals, and not to put on [two tunics];

and he was saying unto them—

<Wheresoever ye shall enter into a house> [there] abide, until ye go forth from thence;

And <whatsoever place shall not welcome you nor hearken unto you> [when ye are going forth from thence] shake off the dust that is under your feet [for a witness against them].

And they went forth, and made proclamation, in order that men should repent; and [many demons] were they casting out,—and were anointing with oil [many sick], and were curing them.

§27. John the Immerser beheaded. Mt. xiv. 1-12;

Lu. ix. 7-9.

And King Herod heard,—for his name had become his; and he was saying—

[John the Immerser] hath arisen from among the dead, and [for this cause] are the powers working mightily in him;

But [others] were saying—

It is Elijah, and others were saying—

A prophet, like one of the prophets!

But when Herod heard he was saying—

[Ho whom I beheaded—John] said I to him; and he had married. For John had been saying to Herod—

It is not allowed thee to have [the wife of thy brother].

And [Herodias] was cherishing [a grudge] against him, and wishing [to slay] him,—and could not; for [Herod] stood in fear of John, knowing him to be a man righteous and holy,—and was keeping him safe; and when he heard him he paid earnest heed, and [with pleasure] used to listen to him.

And <an opportune day [arriving] when Herod on his birth-day made a feast] for his nobles, and for the rulers of thousands, and for the first men of Galilee, when the daughter of this very Herodias came in and danced; she pleased Herod and those reclining together, and [the king] said unto the damsel—

<Ask me what thou wilt> and I will give it thee;

and he took an oath to her—

<Whateoessoever thou shalt ask me> I will give thee [unto half my kingdom].

And [going out] she said unto her mother—

What shall I ask?

and she said—

[The head of John the Immerser];

And <coming in straightway, with haste, unto the king> she asked, saying—

I desire, that [forthwith] thou give me, upon a charger, [the head of John the Immerser].

30 And <though the king was very grieved> yet <by reason of the oaths, and of them who were reclining> he would not refuse her. 27 And the king <straightway> sending off a guard gave orders to bring his head. 28 And, departing, he beheaded him in the prison, and brought his head upon a charger, and gave it unto the damest, and [the damest] gave it unto her mother. 29 And, hearing of it, [his disciples] went, and took away his corpse, and laid it in a tomb.

28 And the apostles gather themselves together unto Jesus, and reported unto him all things, as many as they had done, and as many as they had taught. 29 And he saith unto them—

Come [ye yourselves] apart, into a desert place, and rest yourselves a little. For they who were coming and they who were going [were many], and [not even to eat] were they finding fitting opportunity. 30 And they departed, in the boat, into a desert place [apart]. 31 And many saw them going away, and took note of it, and [asfoot, from all the cities] ran they together thither,—and outwent them. 32 And, coming forth, he saw [a great multitude] and was moved with compassion towards them, because they were like sheep having no shepherd, and he began to be teaching them many things.

33 [And] [already] [a late hour] having arrived> his disciples came unto him and were saying—

[A desert] is the place, and it is [already] a late hour: dismiss them, that [departing into the surrounding hamlets and villages] they may buy themselves something to eat.

34 But [he] answering said to them—

[Ye]l [give them] to eat. And they say unto him—

Shall we depart, and buy two hundred denaries' worth of loaves, and give them to eat?

35 And [he] saith unto them—

[How many loaves] have ye? Go, see! And, getting to know, they say—

Five, and [two fishes].

36 And he gave them orders, that all should be made recline [in parties, upon the green grass]. 37 And they fell back [in companies], by hundreds and by fifties. 38 And [taking the five' loaves, and the two' fishes] [looking up into heaven] he blessed, and brake up the loaves, and began giving unto the disciples, that they might set before them, and [the two' fishes] divided he [unto all]. 39 And they did all eat, and were filled. 40 And they took up broken pieces, twelve' baskets [full measure], and from the fishes. 41 And they who did eat the loaves were [five thousand' men].

§ 29. Jesus walketh upon the Lake. Mt. xiv. 22-36; Jn. vi. 16-21.

42 And [straightway] constrained he his disciples, to enter into the boat, and he going forward to the other side, unto Bethsaida,—while [he] was dismissing the multitude. 43 And, bidding them farewell, he departed into the mountain to pray. 44 And [when evening] came> the boat was in the midst of the sea, and [he, alone] on the land. 45 And [seeing them distressed in the rowing, for the wind was against them]> about the fourth'watch of the night' he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea,—and was wishing to pass by them. 46 But [they] [seeing him] [upon the sea walking] supposed that it was [an apparition], and cried out aloud; 47 for [all] saw him, and were troubled. But [he, straightway] talked with them, and saith unto them—

Take courage! it is [I],—be not afraid!

48 And he went up unto them, into the boat,—and the wind lulled. And exceedingly, within themselves were they astonished; 49 for they understood not by the loaves,—but their heart had been hardened.

§ 30. Jesus in Gennesaret.

50 And crossing over unto the land [they came unto Gennesaret, and cast anchor near. 51 And [when they had] [come forth] out of the boat> [straightway] recognizing him, the people ran round the whole' of that country, and began to be carrying round [upon couches, them who were sick] wherever they heard that he was. 52 And [wheresoever he was entering into villages, or into cities, or into hamlets > in the marketplaces] laid they the sick, and were beseeching him, that [only the fringe of his mantle] they might touch, and [as many soever as touched it] were being made well.

7 And the Pharisees and certain of the Scribes who have come from Jerusalem gather themselves together unto him; 2 and <observing certain of his disciples, that with defiled' hands, that is unwashed [they are eating bread]—

3 for [the Pharisees] and all' the Jews [unless with care they wash their hands] eat not, holding fast the tradition of the elders; 4 and coming from market, [unless they sprinkle themselves] they eat not,—and [many other things] there are, which they have accepted to hold fast,—immersions of cups and measures and copper vessels,—and so the Pharisees and the Scribes [question] him—

For what cause do thy disciples not walk according to the tradition of the elders, but with defiled' hands] eat bread?

6 But [he] said unto them—

Gr: phantasma.

Or (WH): "immerse themselves."
Well prophesied Isaiah concerning you, ye hypocrites, as it is written—

"This people| with the lips| do |honour| me,
While |their heart| far off |holdeth from me,—

But |in vain| do they pay devotions unto me,
Teaching |for teachings| the commandments of men;*

<Having dismissed the commandment of God> ye hold fast the tradition of men.

And he was saying to them—

|Well| do ye set aside the commandment of God, that |your own tradition| ye may observe;

For |Moses| said—

Honour thy father and thy mother,
and—

||He that revileth father or mother|| let him surely die,—*

But |ye| say—

<If a man shall say to his father or his mother, Korban!| that is, A gift, whatsoever |out of me| thou mightest be profited>

|no longer| do ye suffer him to do |saught| for his father or his mother,—* cancelling the word of God, by your tradition which ye have delivered. And |many such similar things| are ye doing!

And |again calling near the multitude| he was saying unto them—

Hearken to me, all! and understand:

|Nothing| is there, |from without the man| entering into him, which can defile him;
But <the things which |out of the man| come forth> are the things that defile the man. [16]

And |again calling near the multitude| he was asking them—

Hearken to me, all! and understand:

|Nothing| is there, |from without the man| entering into him, which can defile him;
But <the things which |out of the man| come forth> are the things that defile the man. [16]

And <when he entered into a house from the multitude> his disciples began to question him as to the parable;

And he saith unto them—

|Thus| are |ye also| without discernment? Perceive ye not, that <nothing >|from without| entering into the man| can defile him;
19 because it entereth not into his |heart|, but into his |stomach|, and |into the draught| is passed—purifying all foods?

And he was saying—

|That which |out of the man| cometh forth |[that]| defileth the man;

For <from within, out of the heart of men> the base designs come forth,—fornications, thefts, murders, adulteries, covetousnesses, knaveries, deceit, wantonness, an evil eye, profane speaking, foolishness,—||[all these| wicked things]| from within| come forth, and defile the man.

§ 32. Canaanite Woman's Daughter healed.
Mt. xv. 21-28.

34 And |from thence arising| he departed into the bounds of Tyre [and Zidon]. And |entering into a house| he was wishing |no one| to know it, and yet could not escape notice,—| but straightway|  she came and fell down at his feet. * Now |the woman| was a Grecian, a Syrophoenician by race,—and she was requesting him that |the demon| he would cast forth out of her daughter. * And he was saying to her—

Suffer |the children| first| to be fed; for it is not seemly to take the bread of the children, and |unto the little dogs| to cast it;

but she answered and saith to him—

|Yes, Lord, and yet |the little dogs| under the table| do eat of the crumbs of the children; and he said to her—

|Because of this| word| go thy way, the demon hath gone forth out of thy daughter;
and, departing unto her house, she found the child laid prostrate on the couch, and the demon gone forth.

§ 33. A Deaf Stammerer healed.

31 And <again coming forth out of the bounds of Tyre> he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the bounds of Decapolis. 2 And they bring to him one deaf and stammering, and beseech him that he would lay upon him his hand. 20 And <taking him away from the multitude apart> he thrust his fingers into his ears, and, spitting, touched his tongue; 2 and |looking up into the heavens| sighed deeply, and saith unto him—

Ephphatha! |that is, Be opened! and his ears opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed,—and he was speaking correctly.

30 And he charged them that they should be telling |no one|,—but <as much as |to them be given charge> they| should exceed more abundantly| were making proclamation. 2 And |superabundantly| were they being struck with astonishment, saying—

|Well| hath he |all things| done,—
Both |the deaf| he causeth to hear, and |the dumb| to speak.

§ 34. Four Thousand fed.
Mt. xv. 29-38:
ep. ch. vi. 32, etc.

8 <In those| days, there being |again|a large multitude| and they not having anything to eat|> |calling near the disciples| he saith unto them—

I am moved with compassion towards the multitude, because |already| three days| abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat; 2 and |if I dismiss them fasting unto their home| they will be exhausted in the way,—and |certain of them| are |from afar|.

And his disciples answered him—

Whence shall anyone be able |here| to fill |these|| with bread |in a desert|

And he was questioning them—

|How| many |loaves| have ye ?
and |they | said— Seven.

And he sendeth word to the multitude, to fall back upon the ground. And <taking the seven’ loaves, giving thanks> he brake, and was giving unto his disciples, that they might be setting before them; and they set before the multitude. 7 And they had a few small fishes; and |blessing them| he bade them set |these also| before them. 8 And they did eat, and were filled, and took up remainders of broken pieces |seven' hampers| . 9 Now they were about four thousand; and he dismissed them.

§ 35. A Sign refused. Mt. xvi. 1–4: cp. Mt. xii. 38–40; Lu. xii. 34–56.

And < |straightway | entering into the boat with his disciples> he came into the parts of Dalmanutha; 11 and forth came the Pharisees, and began discussing with him, seeking of him |a sign from the heaven | testing him. 12 And |deeply sighing in his spirit| he saith—

|Why| doth this generation seek |a sign |?
|Verily| I say—

There shall |not be given| to this generation |a sign|.

§ 36. Beware of the Leaven. Mt. xvi. 5–12.

And < |leaving them, |again| embarking> he departed unto the other side. 14 And they forgot to take loaves, and |save one' loaf| they had nothing with them in the boat. 15 And he began charging them, saying—

Mind ! beware of the leaven of the Pharisees,b and of the leaven of Herod !

And they began deliberating one with another, because they had no |loaves|. 17 And he began charging them, saying—

Eyes |having, see ye not ?
And |ears| having, hear ye not ?
And remember ye not 18 <when |the five' loaves| I brake unto the five thousand> how many baskets, full |of broken pieces| ye took up?

They say unto him— Twelve,—

|When the seven, unto the four thousand|> how many hampers |full measure | of broken pieces, ye took up?
And they say unto him— Seven.

And he was saying unto them—

|Not yet| do ye understand ?

§ 37. Blind Man by Degrees recovers Sight.

And they come into Bethsaida. And they bring unto him one blind, and beseech him that him, he would touch. 20 And <laying hold of the hand of the blind man> he brought him forth outside the village, and <spitting into his eyes, laying his hands upon him> he was asking him—

Anything, seest thou ?

|looking up| he was saying—

I see men, because ||like trees|| I behold them walking !

Then again| put he his hands upon his eyes, and he saw clearly, and was restored, and was seeing distinctly |in broad splendour| |all things together|.

And he sent him away unto his house, saying—

Not even into the village| mayest thou enter.

§ 38. Peter confesses Jesus to be the Christ.

And forth went Jesus and his disciples, into the villages of Cæsarea of Philip. And |in the way| he was questioning his disciples, saying unto them—

|Who| are men saying that I am ?
And they answered him, saying—

John the Immerser, and |others| Elijah,— and |others| One of the prophets.

And |he| went on to question them—

But |who| say |ye| that I am ?
Peter |answering| saith unto him—

|Thou| art ||the Christ|.

And he straitly charged them, that |no one| they should tell, concerning him.

And he began to be teaching them—

The Son of Man |must needs suffer many things |, and |rejected by the Elders and the High-priests and the Scribes,— and be slain; and |after three' days| |arise|.

And |openly| was he speaking the word. And Peter |taking him aside| began to rebuke him. 26 But |he| <turning round and looking upon his disciples> rebuked Peter, and saith—

Withdraw behind me, Satan ! because thou art not regarding the things |of God| but the things |of men|.

And <calling near the multitude with his disciples> he said unto them—

<If anyone willeth |after me| to come> let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and be following me.

But <whosoever willeth |his own' life| b to save> shall lose it,

But <whosoever shall lose his life for the sake |of me and} of the glad-message > shall save it; c

§ 40. The Glad-message. Mt. x. 21; Lu. xvii. 63; Jn. xii. 50.

(To be continued.)
For what doth it profit a man [to gain the whole world, and be made to forfeit his life]?
For what can a man [give] in exchange for his life?
For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words [in this adulterous and sinful generation] the Son of Man also will be ashamed of him, whosoever he shall come, in the glory of his Father, with the holy messengers.
And he was saying to them:

Verily I say unto you—There are certain of those here standing, who shall in nowise taste of death, until they see the kingdom of God, already come in power.

Mt. xvii.1-13; Lu. ix.28-36: cp. 2 P.i.16-18.
And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter and James and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain alone,—and he was transformed before them; and his garments became brilliant, exceeding white; such as no fuller on the earth is able to whiten.
And there appeared unto them, Elijah, with Moses,—and they were conversing with Jesus.
And Peter answering saith unto Jesus—Kabbi! it is delightful for us to lie here,—let us therefore make three' tents, for thee one, and for Moses one, and for Elijah one; for he knew not what he should answer, for greatly affrighted had they become.
And there came a cloud, overshadowing them, and there came a voice, out of the cloud,—This is my Son, the Beloved; Be hearkening unto him.
And suddenly looking round, I no longer saw they any one, save Jesus only.
And as they were coming down out of the mountain> he charged them, that unto no one they should narrate what they had seen, save when the Son of Man [from among the dead should arise].
And the word they held fast unto themselves, discussing what was the rising from among the dead.
And they began to question him, saying—The Scribes say that Elijah must needs come first!
And he said unto them—Elijah indeed, coming first; restoreth all things!
And yet, how is it written, regarding the Son of Man, that many things he must suffer, and be set at nought
But I say unto you—Elijah also hath come, and they have done with him whatsoever they pleased;—According as it is written regarding him.

§ 41. Jesus cures One whom the Disciples could not cure.
Mt. xvii.14-21; Lu. ix.37-42.
And [coming unto the disciples] they saw a large multitude around them, and Scribes discussing with them.
And straightway all the multitude, seeing him were greatly amazed, and [running near] began saluting him.
And he questioned them—What are ye discussing with them?
And one out of the multitude answered him—Teacher! I brought my son unto thee, having a dumb spirit; and <wheresoever he seizeth him> it teareth him, and he foameth, and grindeth his teeth, and weareth himself out;—and I spake to thy disciples, that they should cast it out, and they could not.
But he answering saith—O faithless generation! how long shall I be with you! how long shall I bear with you! Bring him unto me!
And they brought him unto him. And seeing him, [the spirit] straightway [tare him], and [falling upon the ground] he wallowed, foaming.
And he questioned his father—How long a time is it, that [this] hath befallen him?
and he said—From childhood; and [many times] hath it cast him both into fire and into waters, that it might destroy him; but [if anything be possible to thee] help us, having compassion upon us.
And [Jesus] said unto him—As for this, [If it be possible to thee] All things are possible to him who hath faith.
[Straightway crying out] the father of the child was saying—I have faith! help my [want] of faith.
And Jesus [seeing that a multitude is running together] rebuked the impure spirit, saying unto it—Thou dumb and deaf spirit! I [the spirit] give orders unto thee: Come forth out of him, and do not any more enter into him.
And [crying out, and greatly mangling him] it came forth; and he became as if dead, so that the more part were saying—He is dead!
But [Jesus] grasping his hand] raised him, and he stood up.
And [when he had gone into a house] [his disciples, privately] were questioning him—Why were we not able to cast it out?
And he said unto them—This kind by nothing can come out, save by prayer.

§ 42. Jesus instructs his Disciples as to his Sufferings.
Mt. xvii.22, 23; Lu. ix.43-45.
And from thence going forth, they were journeying through Galilee,—and he was not wishing that any should get to know it; for he was teaching his disciples and saying [unto them],

"The Son of Man\ will be delivered up [unto the hands of men], and they will slay him,— and being slain | after three days, will he arise."

22 But they were not understanding the declaration, and feared | to question | him.

§ 43. How to be Great. Mt. xviii. 1-5; Lu. ix. 46-48.

32 And they came into Capernaum. And | happening to be | in the house|> he was questioning them—

| What | in the way | were ye discussing?

34 And they were silent; for | with one another) they had discussed in the way, | whoso should be greatest. 33 And | taking a seat | he addressed the twelve, and saith unto them—

<If anyone willeth to be first> He shall be | least of all, | and | minister of all>. 2 And | taking a child | he set it in the midst of them,— and | folding it in his arms | said unto them—

<If anyone willeth to be first>

He shall be | least of all,

And | minister of all>. 4 And | taking a child | he set it in the midst of them,— and | folding it in his arms | said unto them—

37 Whosoever | unto [one of] these' children | shall give welcome, | upon my name>| unto me | giveth welcome;
And | whosoever | unto me | giveth welcome
not | unto me | giveth welcome, but | unto him that sent me.| 5 And | taking a seat | he addressed the twelve, and saith unto them—

He shall be | least of all,

And | minister of all>. 4 And | taking a child | he set it in the midst of them,— and | folding it in his arms | said unto them—

§ 44. Forbid him not: Value of Small Services: Mt. x. 42. Cause none to stumble: Mt. xviii. 6; Lu. xvii. 2. Be not caused to stumble: Mt. v. 30; xvi. 8.

38 John said unto him—

Teacher! we saw someone | in thy name | casting out demons; and we forbade him, because he was not following with us.

39 But | Jesus| said—

Do not forbid him!
For | no one| is there, who shall do a work of power in my name, and have power | soon | to revile me; 40 For | whosoever is not | against us | is | for| us; 41 For | whosoever shall give you to drink a cup of water | in name that | Christ's| ye are| Verily! I say unto you—

In nowise| shall lose his reward.
And | whosoever shall cause to stumble one of these little ones that believe>
It is | seemly| for him, rather, if there is hung a large millstone about his neck, and he is cast into the sea.

And | if thy hand shall cause thee to stumble> cut it off.—
It is | seemly| for thee, | maimed| to enter into life,
Rather than having | the two' hands| to depart into the gehenna, | into the fire that is not quenched; [42] 42 And | if thy foot be causing thee to stumble> Cut it off,—
It is | seemly| for thee, to enter into life| [43]| Rather than having | the two' feet| to be cast into the gehenna; [43] 43 And | if thine eye be causing thee to stumble>
Thrust it out,—
It is | seemly| for thee, | one-eyed| to enter into the kingdom of God,* Rather than having | two' eyes| to be cast into the gehenna, —

Where | their worm | dieth not,
And | the fire | is not quenched, 44 For | everyone | with fire | shall be salted.
Salt is | good; | but | if | salt | become | saltless|> wherewith will you | prepare | it? | Have | within yourselves | salt, | and be at peace | one with another.

§ 45. Concerning Divorce. Mt. xix. 1-12.

10 And | from thence| arising, he cometh into the bounds of Judea and beyond the Jordan,— and there come together again, multitudes unto him, and | as he had been won't | again| was he teaching them. 2 And Pharisees coming near were* questioning him—Whether it is allowed a husband | to divorce a wife, testing him.
3 But | he| answering, said unto them—

What unto you' did | Moses| command?
4 And | they| said—

Moses permitted, to write | a roll of dismissal, | and to divorce. 5 But | Jesus| said unto them—

In view of your hardness of heart | wrote he for you this commandment; 6 But | from the beginning of creation>
| Male and female| made he | them; 7 | For this cause| shall a man leave behind his father and mother, | and | the two| shall become | one flesh; 8 <What then| God|hathyoked together> let | a man| not put asunder.

10 And | [coming again] the disciples, concerning this| were questioning him; 11 and he saith unto them—

<Whosoever shall divorce his wife, and marry another> committeth adultery against her; 12 And | if she| divorcing her husband, marry another> she committeth adultery. 1

13 And they were bringing unto him children, that he might | touch| them,— | the disciples| however, were rebuking them. 14 But | Jesus| seeing it| was greatly displeased, and said unto them—

Suffer the children to come unto me,—do not hinder them; For | of such| is the kingdom of God.

§ 47. A Rich Ruler. "WE have left all."
Mt. xix. 16-30; Lu. xviii. 18-30.

And | as he was going forth into a road> | one, running, and kneeling before him | was questioning him—

Good Teacher! | what shall I do that | life age-abiding | I may inherit?!

Why callest thou me | good? | None | is good | save one |— ||God||.

The commandments | thou knowest, —
Do not commit murder;
Do not commit adultery,
Do not steal;
Do not bear false witness,
Do not defraud,
Honour thy father and mother.*

And | he | said unto him—

Teacher! ||all these things | have I kept | from my youth|.

The disciples | were in amazement, because of the words. But | Jesus | again answering said unto them—
Children! | how difficult | it is, to enter | into the kingdom of God! |
It is | easier | for a camel | through the eye of a needle | to pass, than for | a rich man | into the kingdom of God | to enter.
And | they | were being exceedingly struck with astonishment, saying unto him—

|Who| then, can | be saved|?
|With men | impossible, but not | with God|; for | all things| are possible | with God.|*

Peter began to be saying unto him—

Lo! ||we| have left all, and followed thee!

Jesus said—

|Verily| I say unto you—

There is | no one | <who hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands> | for the sake of me and | for the sake of the glad-message | who shall not receive a hundredfold, now.

in this season | <houses, and brethren and sisters, and mothers,* and children, and lands,—|with persecutions>| and | (in the age that is coming) | life age-abiding.

But | many | shall be—

§ 48. Jesus foretells his Sufferings. Mt. xx. 17-19; Lu. xviii. 31-34.

Now they were in the way, going up unto Jerusalem, and Jesus was going on before them,—and they were in amazement; and | they who followed | were in fear. And | taking unto himself, again, the twelve> he began to be saying unto them, | as to the things about to befall him—

Lo! | we are going up unto Jerusalem;
And | the Son of Man | will be delivered up, unto the Chief-priests and the Scribes,—
And they will condemn him to death, And deliver him up unto the nations;
And | they will mock him, and spit upon him, and scourge him, and | slay; — And | after three days | will he | arise.

And there come near unto him, James and John, the | two> sons of Zebedee,— saying unto him—

Teacher! | we desire |
That | whatsoever we shall ask thee! thou wilt do for us.

But | he| said unto them—

What desire ye, I should do for you!

And | they | said unto him—

Grant us, that | one on thy right hand, and one on thy left> we may sit, in thy glory.

But | Jesus | said unto them—

Ye know not what ye are asking: Are ye able to drink the cup that ||I am to drink?
Or to be immersed | with the immersion wherewith ||I am to be immersed:

And | they | said unto him—

We are able.

And | Jesus | said unto them—

The cup which | I will drink | ye shall drink,
And <with the immersion wherewith ||I am to be immersed> shall ye be immersed;
But <to sit on my right hand and on my left> is not mine to give, (except unto them for whom it hath been prepared).

And the ten | hearing | began to be sorely displeased, concerning James and John. And Jesus | calling them near | saith unto them—
Yo know that | they who think to rule the nations | lord it over them, And | their great ones | wield authority over them;

But | not so | is it. among you:
But <whosoever desireth to become great among you> shall be | your minister.|

* Or | WII. : "mother."
44 And <whosoever desireth, among you, to be first> shall be servant of all; *

45 For [even the Son of Man] came not to be ministered unto, but to minister,—and to give his life a ransom instead of many.

And they come into Jericho. And as he was journeying forth from Jericho, and his disciples, and a considerable multitude [the son of Timeæus, blind Bar-Timæus, a beggar], was sitting beside the road. 47 And <hearing that it was Jesus the Nazarene> he began to be crying aloud, and saying—

O Son of David! Jesus! have mercy on me.

48 And many were rebuking him, that he might hold his peace; but [he] so much the more was crying aloud—

O Son of David! have mercy on me.

49 And [coming to a stand] Jesus said—

Call him!

And they call the blind man, saying unto him—

Take courage! rise! he calleth thee!

50 And [he] <throwing off his mantle—springing to his feet> came unto Jesus. 51 And [answering him] Jesus said—

What desirest thou, I should do for thee?

And [the blind man] said unto him—

Rabboni! that I may recover sight.

And Jesus said unto him—

Go thy way! thy faith hath saved thee.

And straightway he recovered sight, and was following him in the road.

§ 51. The Triumphal Entry. Mt. xxi. 1-11; Lu. xix. 45; Jn. xii. 12-15.

11 And <when they are drawing near unto Jerusalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany, towardsthe Mount of Olives> he sendeth forth two of his disciples,— and saith unto them—

Go your way into the village that is over against you, and straightway, as ye are entering it ye shall find a colt tied, upon which no man yet hath sat:

Loose him, and bring him.

And <if anyone, unto you should say—>

Why are ye doing this?>

say—

[The Lord] of him hath need;

and straightway he sendeth him off again here.

4 And they departed, and found a colt, tied unto a door outside, on the street,—and they are loosing him. 6 And [certain of them that were there standing] were saying unto them—

What are ye doing, loosing the colt?

6 And [they] said unto them, as [Jesus] said,—and they let them go. 7 And they bring the colt unto Jesus, and throw upon him their mantles,—and he took his seat upon him. 8 And many spread out [their mantles] along the way, and [others] young branches,—cutting them out of the fields.

9 And [they who were going before, and they who were following after] were crying aloud—

 Hosanna! a

[|Blessed| is he that is coming in the name of the Lord! b

10 [|Blessed| is the coming' kingdom of our father David!

Hosanna in the highest!

11 And he entered into Jerusalem, into the temple, and looking round on all things, late already being the hour he went out into Bethany, with the twelve.

§ 52. The Barren Fig-tree cursed. Mt. xxi. 18, 19. (See § 54.)

And <on the morrow, when they came forth from Bethany> he hungered; 12 and <seeing a fig-tree from afar, having leaves> he came... if, therefore, he should find aught in it, and [coming up to it] nothing found he, save [leaves]; for it was not [the season] of figs. 14 And [answering] he said unto it—

[No more] unto times age-abiding, let anyone of thee [eat fruit]. And his disciples were listening.

15 And they come into Jerusalem. And entering into the temple, he began to cast out them who were selling and them who were buying in the temple, and <the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them who were selling doves> he overthrew,— and was not suffering that anyone should carry a vessel through the temple; 17 and was teaching, and saying—

Is it not written,

[|My house| a house of prayer| shall be called [for all the nations]| but ye| have made it,

A den of robbers. 1

18 And the High-priests and the Scribes [heard] it, and began seeking how they might [destroy] him,—for they were fearing him; for [all] the multitude were being struck with astonishment at his teaching. 19 And [as soon as it became late'] they were going forth outside the city.

§ 54. The Cursed Fig-tree Withered. Mt. xxi. 19-22. (See § 52.)

20 And [passing by early] they saw the fig-tree [withered from its roots]; 21 and [put in mind] Peter saith unto him—

Rabbi! see! [the fig-tree which thou didst curse] is withered.

22 And [answering] Jesus saith unto them—

Have faith in God.

27 And they come again into Jerusalem. And
<as he is walking| in the temple|> the High-priests and the Scribes and the Elders come unto him, 28 and were saying unto him—
By what' authority| [these things] art thou
doing?
And who to thee hath given this authority, that [these things] thou shouldst be doing?
29 But [Jesus] said unto them—
I will question you, as to one' matter, and answer me,—
And I will tell you |by what' authority|
[these things] I am doing:

saying—

He will say, Wherefore [then] did ye not believe him?
32 But <should we say, Of men . . . > they were in fear of the multitude, for [one and all] were holding John |in very deed| that he was |a prophet|. 33 And |making answer
unto Jesus| they say—
We know not;
and Jesus saith unto them—
Neither do I| tell you, |By what' authority|
[these things] I am doing.

§ 56. The Vineyard's Fruits Demanded.
Mt. xxi. 33-46; Lu. xx. 9-19.
12 And he began to be speaking unto them |in parables|—
A man planted |a vineyard|,
And put round it a wall,
And digged a wine-vat,
And built a tower,—
And let it out to husbandmen;
And left home.
13 And he sent forthunto the husbandmen, in the season, a servant, that |from the husbondmen| he might receive of the fruits of the vineyard; 2 and, taking him, they beat him, and sent him away |empty|.
4 And |again| sent he forth to them, another servant; and |him| they smote on the head, and diaboloured.
5 And |another| sent he forth; and |him|
y they slew.
And many' others; |some| indeed beating,
and |others| slaying.
6 Yet one' had he, [a son beloved]: he sent him forth last unto them, saying—
They will pay deference unto my son !
7 But [these' husbandmen| unto themselves|
said—
|This| is |the heir|:
Come! let us slay him,
And |ours| shall be |the inheritance|.
8 And, taking, they slew him, and cast him forth outside the vineyard.
9 What will the lord of the vineyard do? He will come, and destroy the husbandmen, and let the vineyard unto others.
10 Have ye not |this scripture| read—
||A stone which the builders rejected'
|The same| hath become head of the corner!
11 |From the Lord| hath this come to pass,
 And is marvellous in our eyes?
12 And they were seeking to secure| him,— and were in fear of them that |against them| the parable he had spoken. And, leaving him, they departed.

§ 57. Caesar and God. Mt xxii. 15-22;
Lu. xx. 20-26.
13 And they send forth unto him, certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might |catch| him |in discourse|.
14 And, coming, theysayunto him—
Teacher! we know that |true| thouart,
And it concerneth thee not about anyone,—
For thou lookest not unto the face of men;
But |in truth| the way of God| dost
Teach:—
Is it allowable to give tax unto Caesar, or not?
Should we give, or should we not give?
15 But |he| knowing their hypocrisy| said unto them—
Why are ye |tempting| me?
Bring me a denary, that I may see it.
16 And |they| brought one. And he saith unto them—
|Whose| is this image, and the inscription?
And |they| said unto him—
Cesar's.
17 And |Jesus| said—
||The things of Cesar| render |unto Cesar|,
And |the things of God| unto God|.
And they were marvelling at him.

§ 58. Marriage and the Resurrection.
Mt. xxii. 23-33; Lu. xx. 27-33.
18 And there come Sadducees unto him,—|who indeed say— |Resurrection| there is none!
and they were questioning him, saying—a Mt. vi. 14. b Is. v. 1 f.

Jesus does not say: "I"
Teacher! Moses wrote for us, that—

If one's brother die, and leave behind a wife, and leave no child,

That his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

Seven brethren there were;
And the first took a wife, and, dying, left no seed,—
And the second took her, and died, not leaving behind seed,—
And the third likewise,—
Left of all the woman also died:—
In the resurrection—
Of which of them shall she be wife? For the seven had her to wife.

Jesus said unto them—
Are ye not for this cause deceiving yourselves, knowing neither the Scriptures, nor the power of God? For when from among the dead they rise, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are like messengers in the heavens.

But as touching the dead; that they do rise,—
Have ye not read in the book of Moses, at the bush, How God spake unto him, saying—
I am the God of Abraham, and God of Isaac, and God of Jacob:—He is not a God of dead men, but of living.

Greatly are ye deceiving yourselves.

The Greatest Commandment. Mt.xxii.34-40.

And one of the Scribes, hearing them discussing, seeing that well he had answered them, began to question him—Which is the chief commandment of all?

Jesus answered—
The chief is:
Hear! O Israel,—
The Lord our God is one Lord;—
There shall be no other God before him,
And thou shalt have no other gods set up beside the name of the Lord thy God.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, nor any molten image, whether of gold, or silver, or stone, or wood.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

Thou shalt keep the sabbath day to sanctify it, as the Lord thy God commanded thee.

Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work:
But the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy ox, nor thy ass, nor any of thy beasts, nor any stranger that is within thy doors.

For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is therein, and all the host of heaven; and on the seventh day he rested from all his work.

And blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it, because that in it he rested from all his work that he had made and done.

These are theCommandments which the Lord our God commanded thee to keep:—

The second is this—
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

Greater than these the other commandment is there none.

The Scribe said unto him—
Well! Teacher! in truth hast thou said—
He is One; and there is none other (than he).

And <to love him, with all the heart, and with all the understanding,—and with all the might*; and to love one's neighbour as one's self> is abundantly more than all the whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.

And Jesus answering was saying as he taught in the temple—
How say the Scribes that (the Christ) is the Son of David? [David himself] hath said [by the Holy Spirit]—
The Lord hath said unto my Lord,
Sit thou on my right hand,
Until I put thy foes beneath thy feet. [David himself] calleth him [Lord]: whence, then, is he [his own son]?
[The great multitude] was hearing him gladly.

Judgment denounced against the Scribes. Cp. Mt.xxiii.6; Lu.xi.43; xx.46,47.

And in his teaching he was saying—Beware of the Scribes. Who desire [in robes] to be walking about, And salutations in the markets, And first seats in the synagogues, And first couches in the chief meals,—Who devour widows' houses, And [for a pretense] are long in prayer: [These] shall receive a more surpassing judgment.

And taking his seat over against the treasury he was observing how [the multitude] was casting in copper into the treasury, and [many rich] were casting in [much]. And there came one destitute [widow], and cast in two mites, which are [a farthing]. And [calling near his disciples] he said unto them—Verily I say unto you, This destitute widow [more than they all] hath cast in [of those casting into the treasury]; For [they all] [out of their surplus] cast in, But [she] [out of her deficiency] [all, as much as she had] cast in,—[the whole] of her living.

The Prophecy on Mount Olivet. Mt.xxiv.; Lu.xxi.

And as he was going forth out of the temple one of his disciples saith unto him—
Teacher! see what manner of stones, and what manner of buildings!
And Jesus said unto him—

Art thou beholding these great buildings? In nowise shall there be left here [stone upon stone] which shall [in any wise] not be thrown down.

And as he was sitting within the Mount of Olives, over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning him [privately]—

Tell us, When these things shall be, and What the sign when all these things shall be about to be concluded.

And Jesus began to be saying unto them— Beware, lest anyone deceive you;

For many will come on my name, saying, I am he; and will deceive many.

And when ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars— Be not alarmed—it must needs come to pass,

But not yet is [the end].

For there will arise— Nation against nation, and Kingdom against kingdom;— There will be earthquakes in places, There will be famines:

A beginning of birth-pangs are these things.

But be [ye] taking heed unto yourselves: They will deliver you up into high-councils, And in synagogues shall ye be beaten, And before governors and kings shall ye be set.

For my sake, [for a witness unto them].

And unto all the nations, first must needs be proclaimed [the glad-message];

And when they are leading you, as they are delivering you up—

Be not beforehand anxious, what ye shall speak;

But whatsoever shall be given you in that hour;

[The same] speak,— For [ye] are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit.

And [brother] will deliver up [brother] unto death, and [father] [child], And [children] will rise up [against parents]:— and put them to death:—

And ye will be men hated by all, because of my name;

But [the] that hath endured throughout [the same] shall be saved.

But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation,

Standing where it ought not, [He] that readeth let him [think];— Then they who are in Judaea, Let them flee into the mountains;

[He that is on the house-top];

Let him not come down, neither let him enter, to take away anything out of his house;—

And [he that hath gone into the field] Let him not turn back unto the things behind, [to take away his mantle].

But alas! for the women with child, and for them who are giving suck,— [in those days].

But be praying, that it may not happen in winter.

For in those days shall be a tribulation— Such that there hath not happened [the like] [from the beginning of creation which God created, until the present time].

[And shall in nowise happen].

And save that the Lord hath shortened the days;

No flesh should be saved;

But for the sake of the chosen of whom he hath made choice—

He hath shortened the days.

And [then] if any unto you say— See! [here] is the Christ! See! [there] Do not believe it;

For there will arise, false Christs, and false prophets; And they will show signs and wonders;

So as to deceive, if possible, [the chosen].

But [ye];— beware: I have foretold you [all things].

But in those days, after that tribulation—

The sun shall be darkened, And the moon will not give her brightness, And the stars will out of the heavens be falling;— And the powers which are in the heavens will be shaken;

And then will they see the Son of Man— Coming in clouds, [with great power and glory].

And then will he send forth the messengers, And they will gather together his* chosen— Out of the four winds,* From utmost bound of earth, unto utmost bound of heaven.*

Now [from the fig-tree] learn ye [the parable]:— When [already] her young branch becometh tender, And the leaves are sprouting—

Ye observe that [near] is [the summer]:

[Thus] [ye also] when ye shall see these things coming to pass—

Observe ye, that [near] he is, [at the doors].

[Verify] I say unto you— In nowise shall this generation pass away, Until all these things shall happen:

[The heaven and the earth] shall pass away, But [my words] shall not pass away:

But concerning that day or hour—

[No one] knoweth, Neither the messengers in heaven,

2 And Jesus said unto him—

Art thou beholding these' great buildings? In nowise shall there be left here [stone upon stone] which shall [in any wise] not be thrown down.

3 And as he was sitting within the Mount of Olives, over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning him [privately]—

Tell us, When these things shall be, and What the sign when all these things shall be about to be concluded.

4 And Jesus began to be saying unto them— Beware, lest anyone deceive you;

5 And when ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars— Be not alarmed—it must needs come to pass,

But not yet is [the end].

6 For there will arise— Nation against nation, and Kingdom against kingdom;— There will be earthquakes in places, There will be famines:

A beginning of birth-pangs are these things.

But be [ye] taking heed unto yourselves: They will deliver you up into high-councils, And in synagogues shall ye be beaten, And before governors and kings shall ye be set.

For my sake, [for a witness unto them].

7 And unto all the nations, first must needs be proclaimed [the glad-message];

And when they are leading you, as they are delivering you up—

Be not beforehand anxious, what ye shall speak;

But whatsoever shall be given you in that hour;

[The same] speak,— For [ye] are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit.

8 And [brother] will deliver up [brother] unto death, and [father] [child], And [children] will rise up [against parents]:— and put them to death:—

And ye will be men hated by all, because of my name;

But [the] that hath endured throughout [the same] shall be saved.

9 But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation,

Standing where it ought not, [He] that readeth let him [think];— Then they who are in Judaea, Let them flee into the mountains;

[He that is on the house-top];

Let him not come down, neither let him enter, to take away anything out of his house;—

10 And he that hath gone into the field Let him not turn back unto the things behind, [to take away his mantle].

11 But alas! for the women with child, and for them who are giving suck,— [in those days].

12 But be praying, that it may not happen in winter.

13 And in those days shall be a tribulation— Such that there hath not happened [the like] [from the beginning of creation which God created, until the present time].

[And shall in nowise happen].

14 And save that the Lord hath shortened the days;

No flesh should be saved;

But for the sake of the chosen of whom he hath made choice—

He hath shortened the days.

15 And [then] if any unto you say— See! [here] is the Christ! See! [there] Do not believe it;

For there will arise, false Christs, and false prophets; And they will show signs and wonders,

So as to deceive, if possible, [the chosen].

But [ye];— beware: I have foretold you [all things].

16 But in those days, after that tribulation—

The sun shall be darkened, And the moon will not give her brightness, And the stars will out of the heavens be falling;— And the powers which are in the heavens will be shaken;

And then will they see the Son of Man— Coming in clouds, [with great power and glory].

And then will he send forth the messengers, And they will gather together his* chosen— Out of the four winds,* From utmost bound of earth, unto utmost bound of heaven.*

Now [from the fig-tree] learn ye [the parable]:— When [already] her young branch becometh tender, And the leaves are sprouting—

Ye observe that [near] is [the summer]:

[Thus] [ye also] when ye shall see these things coming to pass—

Observe ye, that [near] he is, [at the doors].

[Verify] I say unto you— In nowise shall this generation pass away, Until all these things shall happen:

[The heaven and the earth] shall pass away, But [my words] shall not pass away:

But concerning that day or hour—

[No one] knoweth, Neither the messengers in heaven,
Nor the Son,—

"Save the Father II.

33 Be taking heed, be watching,

For ye know not when the season is:

As a man from home—

Having left his house,

And given his servants the authority,

'To each one his work,

And unto the porter hath given command, that he should watch:

35 Be watching, therefore,

For ye know not when the master of the house is coming—

Whether at even, or at midnight, or at cock-crowing,—or at early morn;

Lest comingsuddenly he find you sleeping!

36 But what unto you I say unto all I say:

Be watching.

§ 64. The Anointing in Bethany, and the Conspiracy to Betray. Mt. xxvi. 1-16; Lu. xxii. 1-6; Jn. xii. 1-8: cp. Lu. vii.36 ff.

14 Now it was the Passover and the Unleavened cakes, after two days. And the High-priests and Scribes were seeking, how with guile they might secure, and slay him; for they were saying—

Not in the feast, lest there be an uproar of the people.

And he being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he was reclining there came, a woman, holding an alabaster-jar of perfume, pure spikenard, very costly; and breaking the jar she was pouring down the perfume upon his head. But there were some much displeased among themselves—

To what end hath this waste of the perfume happened? For this perfume could have been sold for above three hundred denaries, and given unto the destitute!

But [Jesus] said—

Let her alone! Why are ye reproaching her? A seemly work hath she wrought in me;

For always have ye the destitute; and whensoever ye please, unto them, at any time, do well!

But [Jesus] said not always have ye.

What she had she used,—She took it beforehand to anoint my body for the burial;

And [whosoever ye please] ye can unto them, [at any time] do well!

But [Jesus] said, not always have ye.

What she had she used,—She took it beforehand to anoint my body for the burial;

And [whosoever ye please] ye can unto them, [at any time] do well!

And [verily] I say unto you—<Whosoever the glad-message shall be proclaimed throughout the whole world,> Also what she did will be told for a memorial of her.

30 And [Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve] went away unto the High-priests, that, him, he might deliver up unto them.

Now when they heard they rejoiced, and promised to give him [silver]; and he was seeking how [at a favourable opportunity] he might deliver him up.

12 And <on the first day of the unleavened cakes,> when the passover they were slaying> his disciples say unto him—

Where wilt thou, we depart and make ready, that thou mayest eat the passover?

And he sendeth forth two of his disciples, and saith unto them—

Go your way into the city, and there will meet you a man [a jar of water bearing,—]follow him; and [whosoever he shall enter] say ye unto the householder—

'The teacher saith, Where is my lodging, where the passover, with my disciples I may eat?'

And he [unto you] will show a large upper-room, spread ready, and [there] make ye ready for us.

And the disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found, according as he had said unto them,—and they made ready the passover.

And [when evening arrived] he cometh, with the twelve. And [as they were reclining and eating> Jesus said—

Verily I say unto you—

One from among you will deliver me up, he that is eating with me.]

They began to be grieved, and to be saying unto him, [one by one],—

Can it be [I]?

And [he] said unto them—

One of the twelve, that is dipping with me into the one bowl:

Because the Son of Man indeed, goeth his way,—According as it is written concerning him; But alas! for that man, through whom the Son of Man is being delivered up,—

[Well for him if that man had not been born!]

And as they were eating] [taking a loaf], he blessed and brake, and gave unto them, and said—

Take! this is my body;

And [taking a cup] he offered thanks, and gave unto them; and they [all] drank of it. And he said unto them—

This is my blood of the covenant that is to be poured out in behalf of many.

Verily I say unto you—

No more will I in any wise drink of the fruit of the vine, until that day, when I shall be drinking it new, in the kingdom of God.]

Ps. xli.9. Or: "Why unto her about in the feast, after are ye offering insults all (reproaches):"* Cp. Mt. xxvi. 29, n.

Ex. xxiv. 8; Zech. ix.11.
26 And having sung praise, they went forth unto the Mount of Olives.

§ 66. Peter's Denial foretold. Mt. xxvi. 31-35; Lu. xxii. 31-34; Jn. xiii. 36-38.

27 And Jesus saith unto them—
Ye all will find cause of stumbling.
Because it is written,—
I will smite the shepherd,
And the sheep will be scattered abroad*

28 But after my arising I will go before you into Galilee.

29 And Peter said unto him—
<Even if all shall find cause of stumbling> Certainly not.

30 And Jesus saith unto him—
<Verily I say unto thee, this day, before that twice a cock crow> Thrice will I deny thee.

31 But he most vehemently was saying—
<Even though I must needs die with thee> I will deny thee.

32 Likewise indeed, were all besides saying.

33 And they come into an estate the name of which is Gethsemane, and he saith unto his disciples—
Sit ye here, while I pray.

34 And he taketh Peter and James and John with him, and began to be exceedingly amazed, and in great distress; and he saith unto them—
Encompassed with grief is my soul unto death:

Abide ye here, and be watching.

35 And [going forward a little] he fell upon the ground, and was praying that if it were possible the hour might pass from him; and wassaying—
Abba! O Father! All things are possible to thee.

But what [I will, But what [thee], likewise indeed, were [all besides saying.

§ 68. The Betrayal and Arrest. Mt. xxvi. 47-58; Lu. xxii. 47-54; Jn. xviii. 1-12.

42 But [he was silent, and answered nothing. And the High-priest was questioning him, and saith unto him—
Art thou [the Christ the Son of the Blessed]?* Or add (WH): “unto b [Thou] art the him.”

43 Lo! [he that is delivering me up] hath drawn near.

50 And they [all] forsook him, and fled.

51 And [a certain young man] was following with him, having cast about him a fine Indian cloth over his naked body,—and they are securing him; but [he] leaving behind the cloth [fled naked].

54 And [Peter] afar off] followed him, as far as within, into the court of the High-priest; and wassitting with the attendants, and warming himself by the light.

56 And [the High-priests, and all the High-council] were seeking, against Jesus [testimony], with the intent to put him to death,—and were not finding any; for [many] were bearing false-witness against him, and the testimonies were not [agreed]. And some, standing up, were bearing false-witness against him, saying—

58 And [he] heard him saying,
[I will pull down this shrine, the one made by hand], and [in three days another, not made by hand] will I raise.

61 But [he] was silent, and answered nothing.

62 And [the High-priest rising up into the midst] questioned Jesus, saying—

63 Answerest thou [nothing]?

What are these, against thee, witnessing?

64 And [not even so] was the testimony [agreed].

And [the High-priest was questioning him, and saith unto him—

Art [you] the Christ the Son of the Blessed?* Or add (WH): “unto b [Thou] art the him.”
And Jesus said—

"I am; and ye shall see the Son of Man—
Sitting on the right hand of Power,
And coming with the clouds of heaven."

And the High-priest, having rent his inner-garments, said—

"What further need have we of witnesses?"

And they all condemned him to be worthy of death. And some began to be spitting at him, and covering up his face, and to be buffetting him, and saying to him—

"Prophecy!" And the attendants, with smart blows, took him.

§ 70. Peter’s Denial. Mt. xxvi. 69-75; Lu. xxii. 54-62; Jn. xviii. 16-27; cp. ver. 54, ante.

But Peter, being below in the court, there came one of the maid-servants of the High-priest; and seeing Peter warming himself, having looked at him, said—

"And thou wast with the Nazarene—; with Jesus!" But he denied, saying—

"I neither know [him], nor do I well understand what thou sayest; and went out into the porch."

And [the maid-servant] seeing him again began [again] to be saying unto the by-standers—

"This one is from among them."

But [he] again was denying. And after a little again the by-standers were saying unto Peter—

"Truly thou art from among them; for thou art [a Galilean] also."

And he began to be cursing and swearing—

"I know not this man, of whom ye are speaking!"

And straightway, a second time, a cock crowed; and Peter was reminded of the declaration, how Jesus had said to him—

"Before a cock twice crow, thrice wilt thou deny me."

And [when he thought thereon] he began to weep.

§ 71. Jesus before Pilate. Mt. xxvii. 1, 2, 11-26; Lu. xxiii. 1-7; Jn. xix. 1-16.

15 And straightway, early, when they had made a council, the High-priests, with the Elders, and Scribes, and all the High-council, binding Jesus, led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate. And Pilate questioned him—

"Art thou the king of the Jews?"

And he answering him, saith—

"Thou sayest."

3 And the High-priests began to accuse him of many things. And Pilate [again] was questioning him, saying—

"Answerest thou nothing? See! of how many things they are accusing thee!"

3 But [Jesus] no further answered anything, so that Pilate began to marvel.

11 But the High-priests stirred up the multitude, that rather Barabbas he should release unto them.

12 But Pilate [again answering] was saying unto them—

"What then shall I do with him whom ye call the King of the Jews?"

13 And [they] again cried out—

"Cruify him!"

14 But Pilate was saying unto them—

"Why? what evil hath he done?"

And they vehemently cried out—

"Cruify him!"

And Pilate being minded to do what would satisfy the multitude, released unto them Barabbas, and delivered up Jesus, having scourged him, that he should be crucified.

§ 72. Mocked by Roman Soldiers. Mt. xxvii. 27-32; Jn. xix. 2 ff.

18 And the soldiers led him away, into the court, which is a judgment-hall, and called together the whole band; and they arrayed him in purple, and set upon him, when they had plaited it, a crown of thorns, and bowed their knees, were doing him homage. And when they had mocked him they put off him the purple, and put on him his own garments. And they lead him forth, that they may crucify him.

21 And they impress a certain passer-by, Simon a Cyrenian, coming from a field, the father of Alexander and Rufus,—that he may carry his cross.

22 And they bring him unto the Golgotha’s place, which is, being translated, Skulldo. And they would have given him myrrhed wine,—who, however, received it not. And they crucify him, and part asunder his garments, casting a lot upon them,—who should have anything. And it was the third hour, and they crucified him. And the inscription of his accusation had been inscribed—

The King of the Jews.

27 And with him they crucify two robbers, one on his right hand, and one on his left. And the inscription of his accusation had been inscribed—The King of the Jews.

28 And when it was the sixth hour, darkness came over all the land until the ninth hour; and at the ninth hour Jesus uttered a cry, with a loud voice:

Eloi! Eloi! lamas barynei? which is, being translated—My God! My God! why hast thou forsaken me?

29 Likewise the high-priests also mocking one to another, with the scribes were saying—Others! he shall save! himself!* he cannot save!

30 Likewise the high-priests also mocking one to another, with the scribes were saying—Others!* he shall save! himself!* he cannot save!

31 Likewise the high-priests also mocking one to another, with the scribes were saying—He is the Christ, the King of Israel!*—Lest him come down now from the cross, that we may see and believe.

32 And they who had been crucified with him were casting it in his teeth. And when it was the sixth hour, darkness came over all the land until the ninth hour; and at the ninth hour Jesus uttered a cry, with a loud voice:

Eloi! Eloi! lamas barynei? which is, being translated—My God! My God! why hast thou forsaken me?

34 And getting to know from the centurion; he presented the corpse unto Joseph. And buying a fine Indian cloth, he took him down, and wrapped him about with the cloth, and laid him in a tomb, which had been hewn out of a rock, and rolled near a stone upon the door of the tomb.

47 Now Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome were viewing how he had been laid.

§ 75. The Resurrection. Mt. xxviii. 1-10; Lu. xxiv. 1-43; Jn. xx. 1-28; cp. Ac. i. 3; 1 Co. xv. 1-8.

16 And [the Sabbath having passed] Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, that, coming, they might anoint him. And very early, on the first of the week they are coming towards the tomb—when [the sun] arose. And they were saying one to another—Who shall roll away for us the stone, out of the door of the tomb?

4 And [looking up] they observe that the stone hath been rolled up,—for it was exceeding great. And [entering into the tomb] they saw a young man, sitting on the right, clothed with a white robe,—and they were greatly alarmed. But [he] saith unto them—Be not alarmed! Jesus ye are seeking the Nazarene, the crucified: He hath arisen!—he is not here. See! the place where they laid him!

7 But go your way, tell his disciples [and Peter]—He is going before you into Galilee: there shall ye yourselves see him,—According as he said unto you.

8 And, going out, they fled from the tomb, for trembling and transport were holding them; and unto no one said they [anything]: for they were afraid.

10 [And <arising early, on the first of the week> he was manifested, first, unto Mary the Magdalene, from whom he had cast seven demons. She] going her way, bare tidings unto them who had come to be with him, [as they were mourning and weeping. And] they <hearing that he was living, and had been looked upon by her> [disbelieved].

12 But [after these things] unto two from among them, as they were walking [was he manifested, in a different form] as they were going unto a country place; and [they] departing, bare tidings unto the rest,—but even them they believed not. But [afterwards] unto the eleven themselves, as they reclined [was he manifested, and he upbraided their disbelief and hardness of heart.]

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO LUKE.

§ 1. The Prologue.
1 <Seeing, indeed, that |many| had taken in hand to re-arrange for themselves a narrative, concerning the facts which have been fully confirmed amongst us,— 'Jaccording as they who from the beginning became eye-witnesses and attendants of the Word delivered them unto us>, it seemed good |even to me| <having closely traced from the outset all things accurately> to write unto thee |in order |, most excellent Theophihus : * that <as touching the matters which thou hast been taught by word of mouth > thou mightest obtain full knowledge |of the certainty|.

§ 2. Zachariah and Elizabeth.
2 It came to pass |in the days of Herod, king of Judæa| that there was a certain priest, by name Zachariah, of the daily course of Abia ; and that he had a wife of the daughters of Aaron, and |her name| was Elizabeth. 4 Now they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and righteous appointments of the Lord, blameless ; 7 and they had no child, inasmuch as Elizabeth was barren, and ||both| had become |advanced in their days|.

But it came to pass <as he was doing priestly service in the order of his daily course, before God, according to the custom of his priesthood> it fell to his lot to offer incense, entering into the Temple of the Lord ; 10 and |all the throng of the people| was praying outside, at the hour of the incense offering. 11 And there appeared unto him a messenger* of the Lord, standing on the right hand of the altar of incense ; 12 and Zachariah was troubled when he beheld, and |fear| fell upon him. 13 But the messenger said unto him—

Do not fear, Zachariah !
Inasmuch as thy supplication hath been hearkened to,—
And |thy wife Elizabeth| shall bring forth a son to thee,
And thou shalt call his name |John| ;
And there shall be joy to thee and exulting,
And |many| over his birth |shall rejoice| ;
For he shall be great before the Lord,
And |wine and strong drink| in nowise may he drink. 14
And |with Holy Spirit| shall he be filled, |already' from his mother's womb|;
And |many| of the Sons of Israel| shall he turn towards the Lord their God ;
17 And ||he| shall go before him |in the spirit and power of Elijah|,—

To turn the hearts of fathers unto children, And the unyielding, into the prudence of the righteous,

Ap: “Messenger.”

Mal. iv. 5 f.
And to prepare, for the Lord, [a people made ready].

28 And Zachariah said unto the messenger—

[Whereby] shall I know this? for [I am aged], and [my wife] advanced in her days.

29 And the messenger, answering, said unto him—

[I am Gabriel],—he that standeth near before God; and have been sent forth to speak unto thee, and to deliver the joyful message unto thee, as touching these things.

30 And lo! thou shalt be silent, and not able to speak until the day when these things shall come to pass; because thou didst not believe in my words,—the which shall be fulfilled for their season.

31 And the people were expecting Zachariah, and began to marvel that he should tarry in the Temple; 32 and when he came forth he was not able to speak unto them, and they perceived that a vision he had seen in the Temple,—and he continued making signs unto them, and remained dumb.

33 And it came to pass [when the days of his public ministration were fulfilled] that he departed unto his house. 34 And [after these days] Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she disguised herself five months, saying—

Thus is it with me, the Lord hath wrought,—In the days in which he looked upon me, to take away my reproach among men.

§ 3. The Message of Gabriel to Mary.

26 Now in the sixth month was the messenger sent forth from God, into a city of Galilee, the name of which was Nazareth,—unto a virgin, betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and [the name of the virgin] was Mary; 28 and entering into her, he said—

Joy to thee, favoured one! The Lord is with thee! And she was greatly troubled, and began to deliberate of what kind this salutation might be. 29 And the messenger said unto her—

Do not fear, Mary, For thou hast found favour with God,—And lo! thou shalt conceive in thy womb, And shalt call his name Jesus: 30 And [Son of God] shall be called, And [Son of the Most High] shall be called, And the Lord God will give unto him the throne of David his father,—And he shall reign over the house of Jacob unto the ages; And of his kingdom there shall be no end.

34 But Mary said unto the messenger—

How shall this thing be, Seeing that [a man] I know not?

35 And, answering, the messenger said unto her—

The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, And the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; Wherefore [even that which is to be born] shall be called, Son of God.

36 And lo! [Elizabeth thy kinswoman, even she] hath conceived a son [in her old-age];—And this month is the sixth to her, the so-called 'barren one';

Because no declaration from God shall be void of power.

37 And Mary said—

Lo! the handmaid of the Lord! Might it come to pass unto me, according to thy declaration.

And the messenger departed from her.

§ 4. Mary visits Elizabeth. Mary's Song of Triumph.

39 And Mary, arising, in these days, journeyed into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah,—and entered into the house of Zachariah, and saluted Elizabeth. 40 And it came to pass that [as Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary] the babe leapt in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with Holy Spirit;—and lifted up her voice with loud exclamation, and said—

Blessed art thou among women, And blessed is the fruit of thy womb; And whence to me is this, That the mother of my Lord should come unto me! 41 For lo! as the sound of thy salutation came into mine ears, The babe in my womb leapt in exultation.

And [hap]py is she who hath believed, that there shall be a perfecting of the things which have been spoken to her from the Lord!

46 And Mary said—

My soul doth magnify the Lord,

And my spirit hath exulted upon God my saviour; Because he hath looked upon the humbling of his handmaid; For lo! [from the present time] all the generations will pronounce me happy. Because he that is mighty hath done for me great things, And [holy] is his name; And his mercy is unto generations and generations, To them who reverence him; 47 He hath wrought strength in his arm, He hath scattered men arrogant in the intention of their heart; He hath deposed potentates from thrones, And uplifted the lowly;

53 The hungry hath he filled with good things, and the wealthy he hath sent empty away;
54 He hath laid hold of Israel his servant, To be mindful of mercies:
55 According as he spake unto our fathers,— To Abraham, and to his seed,— Unto times age-abiding.
56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned unto her house.

§5. John's Birth and Zachariah's Song of Triumph.
57 And to Elizabeth was the time fulfilled, that she should be bringing forth,—and she gave birth to a son. And her neighbours and kinsfolk heard, that the Lord had magnified his mercy with her, and they were rejoicing with her.
58 And it came to pass on the eighth day that they came to circumcise the child, and were calling it, after the name of its father, Zachariah. And his mother, answering, said—

Nay! but he shall be called John.
59 And they said unto her— There is no one from among thy kindred who is called by this name!
60 And they began making signs unto his father, as to what he might be wishing it to be called.
61 And [asking for a small tablet] he wrote, saying—

John is his name!
62 And they marvelled all. And his mouth was opened instantly, and his tongue loosed, and he began to speak, blessing God.
63 And fear came upon all the neighbours themselves; and throughout all the hill-country of Judea, were all these matters being much talked of: and all who heard laid them up in their hearts, saying—

What then shall this child be for, even the hand of the Lord was with him.
64 And [Zachariah his father] was filled with Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying:

Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel! Because he hath visited and wrought redemption for his people, 65 And hath raised up a horn of salvation for us,

In the house of David his servant:
66 According as he hath spoken by mouth of his holy ancient prophets—

Of salvation from among our foes, and out of the hand of all that hate us:
67 To perform mercy with our fathers, And to be mindful of his holy covenant,—

The oath which he swears unto Abraham our father,
68 To be rendering divine service unto him, in lovingkindness and righteousness Before him, all our days.
69 And [even thou, child!] a prophet of the Most High shall be called,—

For thou shalt march on before the Lord, to prepare his ways.
70 Giving a knowledge of salvation unto his people, By a remission of their sins.

Because of the yearning compassion of the mercy of our God,
Wherein shall visit us a day-dawn from on high.
71 To shine on them who in the darkness and shade of death are sitting,

To guide our feet into a way of peace.
72 And the child went on growing, and being strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts, until the day he was pointed out unto Israel.

§6. The Birth of Jesus.
2 Now it came to pass in those days that there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus, for all the inhabited earth to be enrolled:

But this enrolment first was made, while Cyrenius was governor of Syria; and all were journeying to be enrolled, each one unto his own city.
4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of a city Nazareth, into Judaea, into the city of David which is called Bethlehem; because he was of the house and family of David:
5 to enrol himself, with Mary who was betrothed to him, [she being with child].
6 And it came to pass while they were there that the days were fulfilled for her to give birth; and she gave birth to her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.
8 And there were shepherds in the same country, dwelling in the fields, and keeping the watches of the night over their flock.
9 And a messenger of the Lord stood over them, and a glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they feared a great fear.
10 And the messenger said unto them—

Be not afraid!
For lo! I bring you good tidings of a great joy,
The which shall be for all the people:
11 That there hath been born unto you, this day, [a saviour],— Who is Christ the Lord—

In the city of David;!
12 And [this] to you is [a sign]: Ye shall find a babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger.

And suddenly there came to be, with the messenger, the throng of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying—

Glory to God in the highest, Peace on earth to men of good will.
14 For behold, I bring you glad tidings of a great joy Which shall be for all the people:
15 In that city of David shall be born [a saviour], [Who is Christ the Lord]— Who is Christ the Lord—

In the city of David;!
16 And [this] to you is [a sign]: Ye shall find a babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger.
17 And [the child] went on growing, and being strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts, until the day he was pointed out unto Israel.

To be rendering divine service unto him, in lovingkindness and righteousness Before him, all our days.

And [even thou, child!] a prophet of the Most High shall be called,—

For thou shalt march on before the Lord, to prepare his ways.

Giving a knowledge of salvation unto his people, By a remission of their sins.

Because of the yearning compassion of the mercy of our God,
Wherein shall visit us a day-dawn from on high.

To shine on them who in the darkness and shade of death are sitting,

To guide our feet into a way of peace.

And the child went on growing, and being strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts, until the day he was pointed out unto Israel.
14 Glory, in the highest, unto God!
And on earth peace, among men of good-will.

15 And it came to pass when the messengers had departed from them into heaven that the shepherds began to say one to another—
Let us go forthwith as far as to Bethlehem, and see this thing which hath come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.

16 And they came, with haste, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger.

17 And when they beheld them they made known concerning the thing which had been told them as to this child.

18 And all who heard marvelled concerning the things which had been told by the shepherds unto them; but Mary was closely observing all these things, putting them together in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, giving glory and singing praise unto God, over all things which they had heard and seen, according as it had been told unto them.

21 And when eight days were fulfilled for circumcision him then was his name called Jesus,—which it was called by the messenger, before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of their purification, according to the law of Moses, were fulfilled—\( \text{they took him up into Jerusalem, to present him unto the Lord—} \)

\( \text{Every male that is a firstborn} \)
\( \text{Holy unto the Lord shall be called,} \)

23 and to give a sacrifice, according to that which is said in the law of the Lord—
\( \text{A pair of turtle-doves, or two young pigeons.} \)

24 And lo! there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and this man was righteous and devout, awaiting the consolation of Israel, and Holy Spirit was upon him; and it had been intimated to him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. And he came, in the Spirit, into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, that they might do according to that which was customary by the law concerning it—\( \text{even he welcomed it into his arms, and blessed God, and said—} \)

25 \( \text{Now dost thou dismiss thy servant, O Sovereign,} \)
\( \text{According to thy declaration—in peace;} \)
\( \text{Because mine eyes have seen thy salvation.} \)

26 Which thou hast prepared in face of all the peoples:
\( \text{A light for the unveiling of nations,} \)
\( \text{And the glory of thy people Israel.} \)

33 And his father and mother were marvelling over the things which were being spoken concerning him. And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother—

\( \text{Lo! [this one] is being set for the falling and rising of many in Israel,} \)
\( \text{And for a sign to be spoken against;} \)

35 And [though] [through thy very soul] shall pass a sword,
That [reasonings] may be revealed, out of many hearts.

36 And there was one Anna, a prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher;—the same advanced in many days; having lived with a husband seven years from her virginity, and she had been a widow for as long as eighty-four years,—who left not the temple, with fastings and supplications rendering divine service night and day;—and [in that very hour] coming near, she began to give thanks unto God, and to speak concerning him unto all who were waiting for the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 And when they had finished all things that were according to the law of the Lord they returned into Galilee, into their own city, Nazareth.

40 And the child went on growing, and waxing strong, becoming filled with wisdom; and the favour of God was upon it.

§ 8. Jesus, at twelve years of age, found in the Temple.

41 And his parents used to journey yearly into Jerusalem, at the feast of the passover. And when he became twelve years, and they went up, according to the custom of the feast, and completed the days, and then were returning—the boy Jesus remained behind in Jerusalem—and his parents noticed it not; but supposing him to be in the company, went a day's journey, and then began to seek for him among their kinsfolk and acquaintances, and not finding him returned unto Jerusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the temple, sitting amidst the teachers,—both hearkening unto them, and questioning them. Now all who heard him were beside themselves, because of his understanding and his answers. And when they beheld him they were astounded, and his mother said unto him—

Child! why hast thou dealt with us thus? Lo! [thy father and I] in anguish were seeking thee.

49 And he said unto them—Why was it that ye were seeking me? Perceived ye not, that in the courts of my Father I must needs be?

50 And they understood not the thing which he spake to them. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was submitting himself unto them. And his mother was closely observing all these things in her heart.

52 And [Jesus] went on advancing in wisdom, and in stature, and in favour with God and men.

§ 3. The Ministry of John the Immerser, and the Immersion of Jesus. Mt. iii.; Mk. i. 2-11; Jn. i. 19-34.

3 Now <in the fifteenth year of the supremacy of Tiberius Caesar,—Pontius Pilate being governor of Judæa, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and |Philip his brother| tetrarch of Ituraea and the country of Trachonitis, and Lysanius, tetrarch of Abilene,— in the High-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas> came a word of God unto John the son of Zachariah; in the desert; and he came into all the country about the Jordan, proclaiming an immersion of repentance into remission of sins:

4 as it is written in the book of the discourses of Isaiah the prophet:—

| A voice of one crying aloud! |
| In the desert, prepare ye the way of the Lord, |
| Straight be making his paths; |
| Every chasm shall be filled, |
| And every mountain and hill shall be made low; |
| And the crooked places shall become straight, |
| And the rugged places smooth ways; — |
| And all flesh shall see the salvation of God. |

7 He was saying, therefore, unto the multitudes who were going forth to be immersed by him—

Broods of vipers! who suggested to you to flee from the coming wrath?

8 Bring forth, therefore, fruits worthy of repentance, and do not begin to be saying within yourselves—

| As our father we have "Abraham; |
| For, I say unto you—God is able | out of these stones | to raise up children unto Abraham. |

9 And [already] [even the axe] unto the root of the tree' is being laid, | [even every] tree therefore, not bringing forth good fruit, | is to be hewn down, and | into fire | to be cast.

10 And the multitude began to question him saying—

| What? then shall we | do? |

11 And answering, he said unto them—

| He that hath two tunics! let him share with him that hath none; and | he that hath food; | in like manner | let him be doing. |

12 And there came | even tax-collectors | to be immersed; and they said unto him—

| Teacher! what shall we | do? |

13 And | he | said unto them—

| Nothing more than what is appointed you | exceeds. |

14 Then were questioning him | soldiers also | saying—

| Whaut shall we | even we | do? |

And he said unto them—

Molest ye not one', neither accuse falsely; and be content with your supplies.

15 Now <as the people were in expectation and all were deliberating in their hearts, concerning John,—whether by any means | he | might be the Christ>> 10 John answered, saying unto all—

| If indeed | with water | I am immersing you; but he that is mightier than I | comes, | the thong of whose sandals I am not worthy to unloose, — he | will immerse you in Holy Spirit and fire; | whose fan is in his hand, to clear out his threshing-floor, and to gather the wheat into his granary; but | the chaff will he burn up with fire unquenchable. |

16 So then indeed <as to many things and various things> he exhorted and continued telling his glad-message unto the people. 19 But | Herod the tetrarch * | being reproved by him concerning Herodias, the wife of his brother, and concerning all the wicked things Herod had done> added this also unto all,—| he locked up John in prison. |

21 Now it came to pass <when one and all the people were immersed> | Jesus also | <having been immersed, and being at prayer> heaven was opened; 22 and the Holy Spirit descended, in bodily appearance, as a dove, upon him,—

| Thou art my Son, the Beloved, | in thee | I delight. |

§ 11. The Temptation. Mt. iv. 1-11; Mk. i. 12, 13.

4 And [Jesus, full of Holy Spirit] returned from the Jordan, and was led in the Spirit in the desert, 40 forty days,— being tempted by the adversary; and he did eat nothing in those days,— and when they were concluded; he hungered. 3 And the adversary said to him—

"If thou art God's [Son]: speak unto this stone, that it become bread." 4 And Jesus made answer unto him—

"It is written:

Not [on bread alone] shall [man] live." 5 And leading him up, he shewed him all the kingdoms of the inhabited earth, in a moment of time. 6 And the adversary said to him—

"Unto thee I will I give this authority, all together, and their glory; because [unto me] hath it been delivered up, and [unto whomever I please] I give it: Thou therefore, if thou wilt worship before me, it shall all [be thine]."

8 And, answering, Jesus said to him—

It is written:

The Lord thy God [shall] shew to thee; And [unto thee] will I give this authority, all together, and their glory; because [unto me] hath it been delivered up, and [unto whomever I please] I give it; 9 Thou therefore, if thou wilt worship before me, it shall all [be thine].

16 And he came into Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and entered, according to his custom, on the sabbath day, 6 into the synagogue,— and stood up to read. 17 And there was handed to him a scroll of the prophet Isaiah; and unfolding the scroll, he found the place where it was written:

[The Spirit of the Lord] is upon me, Because he hath anointed me—

To tell glad tidings unto the destitute; He hath sent me forth—

To proclaim, to captives, a release, And, to the blind, a recovering of sight,—

To send away the crushed, with a release; To proclaim the welcome year of the Lord. 19 And [folding up the scroll] he handed it to the attendant, and sat down; and [the eyes of all] in the synagogue were intently fixed upon him; 20 and he began to be saying to them—

This day, is fulfilled this scripture [in your ears].

11 And Jesus answered, said to him—

It is said:

Thou shalt not put to the test the Lord thy God. 12 And [having concluded every temptation] the adversary departed from him until a fitting season. 13 And Jesus returned, in the power of the § 13. In Capernaum he cast out a Demon. 21

And he came down into Capernaum, a city of Galilee. And he was teaching them on the sabbath; 22 and they were seeking after him, and they came unto him. 23 But as the sun was going in, they one and all, as many as had any sick with divers diseases, brought them unto him, and it left her; and instantly arising, she began to minister unto them. 24 But as the sun was going in, 25 they one and all, as many as had any sick with divers diseases, brought them unto him, and he rebuked the fever, and it left her, and instantly arising, she began to minister unto them.

And rising up, 26 from the synagogue he went out into the desert place; and the multitudes! were washing their nets. 27 And a noise concerning him began to go out into every place of the country around.

§ 14. Cures the Mother-in-law of Simon and many others. Proclaims the Kingdom throughout Galilee. Mt. viii. 14–16; Mk. i. 29–30.

And rising up, 28 from the synagogue he went into the house of Simon. Now the mother-in-law of Simon was in distress with a great fever; and they made request to him concerning her. 29 And standing over her, he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and instantly arising, she began to minister unto them. 30 But the demon, throwing him into the midst, went forth from him, doing him no hurt.

And amazement came upon all,—and they began to converse one with another, saying—What is this word, that with authority and power he giveth orders unto the impure' spirits, and they go forth? 31 And a noise concerning him began to go out into every place of the country around.

And it came to pass, 32 while the multitude was pressing upon him, and was hearing the word of God; 33 and he saw two boats placed near the lake, and the fishers! having gone away from them, were washing their nets. 34 And entering into one of the boats, which was Simon's, he requested him to put off from the land, a little; and, taking a seat, 35 out of the boat, began he teaching the multitudes. 36 And when he ceased speaking, he said unto Simon—

Put off into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught. 37 And Simon, answering, said—

Master! although through the whole night we tossed > we took nothing; howbeit at thy bidding I will let down the nets. 38 And when this' they had done, they enclosed a very large number of fishes, and their nets began to break. 39 And they made signs to their partners in the other boat, to come and help them; and they came, and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink. 40 And Simon beholding fell down at the knees of Jesus, saying,—

Depart from me! Because I a sinful man am I, O Lord! 41 And Simon answering said—

Master! if thou be willing thou canst cleanse me. 42 And he answering said unto him—

I am willing: Be cleansed! And straightway he cleansed him. 43 And they entreated him, saying—

Show thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses enjoined. 44 And he was proclaiming in the cities of Judaea. 45 Or: "sabbaths": Ap: "Sabbath." 46 What to us and to thee! 47 Notable rejected reading (W & W): "Galilee."
§ 17. A Paralytic let down through the Roof, forgiven and healed. Mt. ix. 2-8; Mk. ii. 1-12.

17 And it came to pass, on one of the days, that [he] was teaching, and there were sitting Phari-see\(s\) and Teachers of the law, who had come out of every village of Galilee and Judas, and from Jerusalem; and [the power of the Lord] was there, that he might heal. 18 And lo! men bearing, upon a couch, one who was paralyzed, and they were seeking to bring him in, and lay him before him. 19 And <not finding by what means they might bring him in, because of the multitude, going up on the house-top, through the tiling, let they him down, with the little-couch, into the midst before Jesus. 20 And beholding their faith, he said—

O man! thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying—

Who is this that speaketh profanities? Who can forgive sins, save God alone?

22 And Jesus, taking note of their reasonings, answering, said unto them—

Why are ye reasoning in your hearts?

23 Which is easier, To say—Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say—Arise and be walking?

24 But, <that ye may know that [the Son of Man] hath [authority] upon the earth to forgive sins—> he said to the paralyzed man—

To thee I say, Arise, and taking up thy couch, be going thy way unto thy house.

25 And [instantly arising before them] he took up that whereon he had been lying, and departed unto his house, glorifying God. 26 And astonishment seized one and all, and they began glorifying God, and were filled with fear, saying—

We have seen unaccountable things, to-day!

§ 18. Levi called. Mt. ix. 9-13; Mk. ii. 13-17.

27 And, after these things, he went forth, and looked upon a tax-collector, by name Levi,—presiding over the tax-office; and he said to him—

Be following me!

28 And forsaking all, he arose, and was following him. 29 And Levi made a great reception for him in his house, and there was a great multitude of tax-collectors, and others,—who were with them reclining. 30 And the Pharisees and their Scribes began murmuring unto his disciples, saying—

Wherefore, with the tax-collectors and sinners, ye are eating and drinking?

31 And answering, Jesus said unto them—

[No need] have I of the whole of a physician, but they who are sick.

32 I have not come to call righteous men, but sinners, unto repentance.

§ 19. "Then will they fast." Mt. ix. 14-17; Mk. ii. 18-22.

33 But [they] said unto him—

The disciples of John, do fast much, and supplications do make,—likewise also the disciples of the Pharisees; but [the] time do eat and drink!

34 Jesus, however, said unto them—

[Can] ye make [the sons of the bride-chamber] fast, while the bridegroom is with them?

35 But there will come days, [even when the bridegroom shall be taken from them], then will they fast, in those days.

36 Moreover, he went on to speak [a parable also] unto them—

[No one] rending a patch from a new mantle, patcheth it upon an old mantle; otherwise, at least, both [the new] he will rend, and with the old [the patch which is from the new] will not agree.

37 And [no one] poureth new wine into old skins; otherwise, at least, the new wine will burst the skins, and will itself be poured out, and the skins be destroyed.

38 But [new wine] into unused skins must be poured.

39 [No one] having drunk old, desireth new; for he saith, The old is mellow.

§ 20. The Disciples pluck Barley of Corn on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 1-8; Mk. ii. 23-28.

6 And it came to pass, on a Sabbath, that he was passing along through cornfields, and his disciples were plucking and eating the ears of corn, rubbing them with their hands. 7 But [certain of the Pharisees] said—

Why are ye doing what is not allowed on the Sabbath?

8 And, making answer unto them, Jesus said—

Have ye never read [even this], what David did when he hungered, [he] and they who were with him—How he entered into the house of God, and the presence-bread receiving, did eat, and gave to them who were with him, which it is not allowable to eat, save alone, to the priests?

9 And he was saying to them—

The Son of Man is [Lord of the Sabbath].

§ 21. A Withered Hand healed on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 9-13; Mk. iii. 1-6.

6 And it came to pass, on another Sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue, and was teaching, and there was a man there, and [his right hand] was withered. 7 Now the Scribes and the Pharisees were narrowly watching him, whether [on the Sabbath] he healeth,—that they might find whereof to accuse him. 8 But [he] knew their reasonings, and said to the man who had the withered hand—

Arise, and stand forward in the midst!

§ 22. Twelve Apostles chosen. Mk. iii. 13-19:

And it came to pass in these days that he went forth into the mountain to pray, and was spending the night in the prayer-house of God. And when it became day, he called his disciples, and chose from them twelve, whom also he named Apostles. — Simon, whom also he named Peter, and Andrew his brother; and James and John; and Philip and Bartholomew; and Matthew and Thomas; and James, son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called Zealot; and Judas, son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became betrayer; — and coming down with them he stood upon a level place, also a great multitude of his disciples, — and a great throng of the people, from all Judea and Jerusalem and the sea-coast of Tyre and Sidon, who had come to hearken unto him and to be healed from their diseases; and they who were molested by impure spirits were being cured; and all the multitude were seeking to touch him, because [power] from him was coming forth, and healing all.

§ 23. The Sermon on a Level Place.

And he lifting up his eyes towards his disciples was saying:

Happy ye destitute, for yours is the kingdom of God.

Happy ye that hunger now, for ye shall be filled.

Happy ye that weep now, for ye shall laugh.

Happy are ye, whosoever men shall hate you, and whosoever they shall separate you, and reproach you, and cast out your name as evil [for the sake of the Son of Man]; be rejoiced in that day, and leap for joy! your reward is great in heaven; for [according to the same things] were their fathers doing unto the prophets.

But also for you, ye wealthy, for ye are dully receiving your consolation.

Alas! for you, ye who are filled full now, for ye shall hunger.

Alas! ye that laugh now, for ye shall mourn and weep.

Alas! whosoever all men shall speak well of you, for [according to the same things] were their fathers doing unto the false prophets.

But unto you I say, who are hearkening:

Be loving your enemies; Be doing [good] unto them that hate you; Be blessing them that curse you; Be praying for them that wantonly insult you.

To him who is smiting thee upon the one cheek > be offering [the other also];

To every one asking thee > give,

And from him who is taking away thy mantle > thy tunic also do not forbid;

To every' one asking thee > give,

And from him that taketh away thy possessions > ask them not back.

And according as ye desire that men be doing unto you > be ye doing unto them in like manner.

And if ye love them that love you > what sort of thanks are there for you? for [even sinners] love such as love them.

[For] if ye even do good unto them that do good unto you > what sort of thanks are there for you? [Even sinners] the same are doing.

And if ye lend to them from whom ye are hoping to receive > what sort of thanks are there for you? [Even sinners] unto sinners do lend, that they may receive back [as much].

But love your enemies, and do good and lend, hoping for [nothing] back; and your reward shall be [great], and ye shall be sons of the Most High,— for he is gracious unto the ungrateful and wicked.

Become ye compassionate, according as [your Father] is [compassionate];

And do not judge, and in nowise shall ye be judged;

And do not condemn, and in nowise shall ye be condemned;

Release, and ye shall be released;

Give, and it shall be given unto you: <good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over> will they give into your lap; for <with what measure ye mete> shall it be measured back unto you.

He spake, moreover, a parable also unto them:

Can [the blind] guide [the blind]? will not [both] fall into [a ditch]?

A disciple is not above the teacher; but when trained: every one shall be as his teacher.

But why beholdest thou the mote that is in the eye of thy brother, while [the beam that is in thine own] eye thou dost not con-
How canst thou say to thy brother—

Brother! let me cast out the mote that is in thine eye,— [thysel]f [the beam in thine own eye] not beholding? Hypocrite! cast out [first] the beam out of thine own eye, and [then] shalt thou see clearly, to cast out [the mote that is in the eye of thy brother].

For a good tree doth not produce worthless fruit, neither again doth [a worthless tree] produce good fruit. 44 For [every tree] by its own fruit becometh known. For not [of thorns] do they gather figs, neither [of a bramble-bush] do they gather [a bunch of grapes]. 45 [The good man] out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth that which is good; and [the wicked man] [out of the wicked heart] bringeth forth that which is wicked; for [out of an overflowing of heart] speaketh [his mouth].

And why calle me Lord! Lord! and not doth the thingsthat Isay! 47 <Every one coming unto me, and hearkening unto my words, and doing them> I will suggest to you, whom he is like: 49 He is like unto a man building a house, who digged and deepened, and laid a foundation upon the rock,—[and a flood] coming, the stream burst against that house, and was not strong enough to shake it, because it had been [well] built.

But [he that hath heard and not done] is like unto a man having built a house upon the earth, without a foundation,—against which the stream burst, and [straightway] it fell: and it came to pass, that [the crash of that house] was [great].

7 <After he had completed all his sayings within the hearing of the people> he entered into Capernaum. 8 And [a certain centurion's servant] being sick, was on the point of dying,—who was by him [highly prized]. 9 But [hearing about Jesus] he sent forth unto him elders of the Jews, requesting him that he would come and bring his servant safely through. 10 And [they] coming near unto Jesus began beseeching him earnestly, saying—

|Worthy| is he for whom thou mayest do this, for he loveth our nation, and |the synagogue| [has] built for us.

And |Jesus| was journeying with them. But [he by this time] being not far from the house] the centurion sent friends, saying unto him. 12 Lord! do not trouble thyself, for I am of no consideration, that |under my roof| thou shouldst enter. 13 Wherefore, neither deemed

I |myself| worthy to come unto thee,—but speak with a word, and let my servant be healed.

8 For |I too| am a man ranked [under authority], having [under myself] soldiers; and |I say to this one— Go! and he goeth, and to another— Come! and he cometh,—and to my servant— Do this! and he doeth it.

9 And [hearing these things] Jesus marvelled at him; and [turning to the multitude following him] said—

I tell you, [Not even in Israel] [such faith as this] have I found!

10 And they who were sent, returning unto the house, found the servant [well].

§ 25. The Son of the Widow of Nain is raised from the dead.

And it came to pass thereafter, that he journeyed unto a city called Nain, and there were journeying with him, his disciples and a great multitude. 12 Now [as he drew near unto the gate of the city] then lo! there was being brought forth, one dead, the only-begotten son of his mother,—and [she] was a widow; and [a considerable multitude of the city] was with her. 13 And [beholding her!] [the Lord] was moved with compassion over her, and said to her—

Be not weeping!

And [going forward] he touched the coffin, and the bearers stood still; and he said—

Young man! to thee I say, Arise!

And the dead man sat up, and began to speak; and he gave him to his mother. 18 And fear seized them [all], and they began to glorify God, saying—

[A great prophet] hath been raised up amongst us!

And—

God hath visited his people!

And this report went forth throughout the whole of Judæa, and all the surrounding country.

Art [thou] the Coming One, or [a different one] are we to expect? 20 And [coming near unto him] the men said—

|John the Immerser; hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art [thou] the Coming One, or [another] are we to expect? 21 In that very' hour] he cured many from diseases, and plagues, and wicked spirits; and [unto many blind] gave he the favour to see.

And, answering, he said unto them—

* Mt. vii. 6.
* Mt. vii. 9-27.
* Same Or. word as in
* Mt. xii. 34, 35.
* Ac. xxvii. 44 and 1 P. iii. 20.
Go and bear tidings unto John, as to what ye have seen and heard:

The blind are receiving sight,
The lame walk,
Lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear—
The dead are raised,
The destitute are told the glad-message;

What went ye forth into the desert to gaze at? A reed, by a wind, shaken?

And what went ye forth to see? A prophet! Yea! I say unto you,—

And abundantly more than a prophet.

This is he concerning whom it is written—Lo! I am sending my messenger before thy face.

Who that prepareth thy way before thee.

I say unto you—

Greater among them that are born of women than John is there none; but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

And all the people, when they heard, and the tax-collectors justified God, having been immersed with the immersion of John; but they not having wherewith to pay > he forgave both.

Which of them, therefore, will love him more?

Simon! I have unto thee something to say.

He then—

Teacher, speak!—saith he.

And unto Simon he said—

Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house: water to me, on my feet thou didst not give,—but she with her tears hath wetted my feet, and with her hair wiped off the tears. A kiss, to me thou didst not give,—but she with perfume hath anointed my feet.

For which cause I say unto thee—Her many sins have been forgiven, because she hath loved much; but he to whom little is forgiven little loveth.

And he said unto her—

Thy sins have been forgiven.

And they who were reclining together, began to be saying within themselves—

Who is this, that even forgiveth sins?

But he said unto the woman—

Thy faith hath saved thee,—Go thy way into peace.

§ 22. Carrying the Joyful Message from place to place, Women minister unto him.

And it came to pass [in due course] that he was passing through, city by city and village by village, proclaiming, and delivering the glad-message of the kingdom of God,—and the twelve were with him; 2 and certain women, who had been cured from evil spirits and infirmities.—Mary, the one called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone forth, 3 and Joanna, wife of Chuza steward of Herod, and Susanna, and many others,—who indeed were ministering unto them out of their possessions.

4 And seeing that a great multitude were coming together, and they who from every city were journeying forth unto him: he spake through means of a parable—

5 The sower went forth to sow his seed,—and some indeed, fell beside the pathway, and was trodden down; and the birds of heaven devoured it.

6 And other fell upon the rock; and, growing, was withered, because it had not moisture.

7 And other fell midst thorns; and, growing together, the thorns choked it.

8 And other fell into good ground; and, growing, brought forth fruit [a hundred-fold].

These things saying, he went on to cry aloud—

He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

9 But his disciples began to question him—

What might this very parable be?

10 And he said—

Unto you hath it been given, to get to know the sacred secrets of the kingdom of God; but unto the rest in parables,—in order that, seeing, they may not see, and hearing, they may not understand.

11 Now the parable is this:—The seed is the word of God. 12 And those beside the pathway are they who have heard; afterwards cometh the adversary, and catcheth away the word from their heart, lest believing they should be saved. 13 And those upon the rock are they who, as soon as they hear, with joy welcome the word; and [these] not having root are they who [for a season] believe,—and [in a season of testing] draw back. 14 And [that which in among the thorns fell] [these] are they who have heard; and by anxieties and wealth and pleasures of life being born along are choked up, and bear not to perfection.

But that in the good ground [these] are they who indeed [in a noble and good heart having heard the word] hold fast, and bear fruit with endurance.

15 And no one having lit a lamp' coverrth it up with a vessel, or [beneath a couch] putteth it; but [upon a lamp-stand] putteth it, that [they who come in] may see the light. 17 For there is no secret, which shall not be made [manifest]; neither a hidden thing, which shall in any wise not be made known, or not come [where it can be seen].

18 Be taking heed therefore how ye hear; for [whosoever shall have] it shall be given unto him; and [whosoever shall not have] (even what he seemeth to have) shall be taken from him.

§ 31. "My Mother and My Brethren." Mt. xii. 46-50; Mk. iii. 31-35.

19 And his mother and brethren came near unto him, and were unable to reach him, because of the multitude. 20 And it was reported to him—

Thy mother and thy brethren are standing outside, desiring to see thee.

21 But he answering, said unto them—

My mother and my brethren are those, who the word of God are hearing and doing.

§ 32. A Storm rebuked. Mt. viii. 23-27; Mk. iv. 35-41.

22 And it came to pass, on one of the days, that [he] entered into a boat, and his disciples; and he said unto them—

Let us pass over unto the other side of the lake.

And they set sail. 23 Now as they were sailing he fell asleep. And there came down a hurricane of wind upon the lake, and they began to be filled [and to be in peril]. 24 And coming near they roused him up, saying—

Master! Master! we perish! 25 And he, roused up, rebuked the wind, and the surging of the water; and they ceased, and it became a calm. 26 But they marvelling said one to another—

Who then is this—unto the wind [he giveth orders] and unto the water, they hearken unto him.

§ 33. A Gerasene Demoniac delivered. Mt. viii. 28-34; Mk. v. 1-20.

26 And they sailed down into the country of the Gerasenes, which is over against Galilee.

27 And when he went forth upon the land there met him a certain man, out of the city, having demons; and [for a considerable time] he had put on no garment; and [in a house] would not abide, but among the tombs. 28 But seeing Jesus he cried out aloud, and fell down before him, and [with a loud voice] said—

What have I in common with thee, O Jesus Son of [God] the Most High?

I beg of thee—Do not torment me!—

a Mt. v. 21; chap. xi. 33.  b Mt. x. 26; Mk. iv. 22; chap. xii. 2.  c Or: "mantele."  d Or: "indoors."  e Or: "A mother of mine and brothers of mine, are."  f Or: "are on the point of perishing."  g Note the present tense: here="are on the point of perishing."
Now when Jesus returned, the multitude was there, a herd of a good many swine, feeding in the mountain; and they besought him, that he would suffer them [into those] to enter; and he suffered them. And the demons, going forth from the man, entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff, into the lake, and were choked. Now there was there, a herd of a good many swine, feeding in the mountain; and they besought him, that he would suffer them [into those] to enter; and he suffered them. And the demons, going forth from the man, entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff, into the lake, and were choked.

And they who had been feeding them [seeing what had happened] fled, and carried tidings into the city, and into the country-places. And they went forth to see what had happened; and came unto Jesus, and found the man from whom the demons' had gone forth [sitting], clothed, and of sound mind, near the feet of Jesus,—and they were struck with fear. And they who had seen it [reported unto them] how the demonized man was saved. And one and all of the throng of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes [requested him, to depart from them]; because [with a great fear] they were oppressed. And though the demons, going forth from the man, entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff, into the lake, and were choked.

Now when Jesus returned, the multitude welcomed him back, for they were all expecting him. And lo! there came a man, whose name was Jairus, and [the same] was [a ruler of the synagogue],—and [falling down near the feet of Jesus] he began beseeching him to enter into his house; because he had [an only-begotten daughter], about twelve years old, and [she] was dying. Now [as he withdrew] [the multitudes] were hemming him in. And [a woman] [with a flow of blood of twelve years standing, who indeed could, from no one, be cured] [coming near behind] touched the fringe of his mantle; and [instantly] was stayed the flow of her blood. And Jesus said—

"Who is it that touched me?"

And when all were denying Peter said—"Master! [the multitudes] are hemming thee in, and pressing along." But [Jesus] said—

"Some one touched me, for [I] took: note of power, gone out from me." And [the woman seeing that she had not escaped notice] trembling, came, and [falling down before him] reported before all the people [for what cause she had touched him] and how she was healed instantly! And [he] said to her—

"Daughter! [thy faith] hath saved thee: Go thy way into peace."

§ 35. The Twelve sent forth. Mt. x. 1-14 ff; Mk. vi. 1-13. And [calling together the twelve] he gave them power and authority over all the demons, and to be curing [diseases]; and sent them forth, to be proclaiming the kingdom of God, and to be healing; and said unto them—"Nothing: take ye for the journey,—

Neither staff, nor satchel, nor bread, nor silver, Nor to have [two] tunics. And [into whatsoever house ye enter] [There] abide, and [thence] be going forth. And [as many soever as shall not welcome you] [In going forth from that city] [the dust of your feet] shake ye off [for a witness against them]. And they went forth, and were passing through, along the villages,—delivering the glad-message, and effecting cures in every direction.

§ 36. Herod at a loss about Jesus. Mt. xiv. 1-12; Mk. vi. 14-29. Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all the things which were coming to pass, and was utterly at a loss, because of its being said | by some|, that |John| had been raised from the dead; 9 and |by some|, that |Elijah| had appeared; and |by others| that |some prophet of the ancients| had arisen. 8 But Herod said—

||John||I myself| beheaded; but |who is| this|, concerning whom I am hearing such things as these?

And he was seeking to see him.

10 And the Apostles [returning] related to him what great things they had done. And [taking them aside] he retired privately, into a city called Bethsaida. 11 But [the multitudes] [getting to know] followed him; and [giving them welcome] he began speaking unto them concerning the kingdom of God,— and [them that had need' of cure] he healed. 12 And [the day] began to decline; and the twelve [coming near] said to him—

Dismiss the multitude, that <going into the surrounding' villages and hamlets> they may lodge, and find provisions; because |here, in a desert' place| are we.

13 But he said unto them—

Give [ye] them to eat.

[They] however, said—

We have not more than five loaves, and two fishes,—unless perhaps [we] should go, and buy food |for all' this people|.

14 For there were about five thousand men.

And he said unto his disciples—

Make them recline, in companies of about fifty each.

15 And they did so,—and made [one] and all| recline. 16 And <taking the five' loaves, and the two' fishes> [looking up into heaven] he blessed them, and brake [them] up, and went on giving to the disciples, to set before the multitude; 17 and they did all' eat and were filled.

And that which remained over to them |was taken up|,—of broken pieces| twelve baskets.

18 And <it came to pass, when he was praying in solitude> [the disciples] were with him. And he questioned them, saying—

Who do the multitudes say that I am?

19 And they, answering, said—

John the Immerser;

But some, Elijah,

And others, |some prophet of the ancients| hath arisen. 20 And he said to them—

But who say |ye| that I am?

And [Peter] answering, said—

The Christ of God!

21 |He| however, sternly admonishing them, gave charge that |unto no one| should they be telling this; 22 saying—

The Son of Man must needs' suffer |many things| and be rejected by the Elders and High priests and Scribes, and be slain,—and |on the third' day| | arise|.

§ 39. Taking up the Cross. Mt. xvi. 24-28; Mk. viii. 34-38.

23 And he was saying |unto all|—

<If any one intendeth after me' to come> Let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily,—and be following me.

24 For <whosoever intendeth [his life] to save> Shall lose it;

But <whosoever shall lose his life for my sake|[The same] shall save it.

25 For what doth a man profit.

Who hath gained the whole world.

But hath lost, or been made to forfeit, [himself]? 26 For <whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words> [of him] |the Son of Man| will be ashamed, whencesoever he shall come in his glory, and that of the Father, and of the holy' messengers.

27 But I tell you of a truth—

There [are] some of those [here] standing, who shall in nowise taste of death, |until they see the kingdom of God|.

§ 40. The Transformation of James. Mt. xvi. 24-28; Mk. viii. 34-38.

28 And it came to pass <after these words> |taking with him Peter and John and James> he went up into the mountain to pray. 29 And it came to pass |while he was praying| that |the appearance of his face| was changed, and |his clothing| became white, |effulgent|.

30 And lo! |two men| were conversing with him, who, indeed, were Moses and Elijah,— 31 who |appearing in glory| were speaking as to his departure, which he was about to fulfil in Jerusalem. 32 Now |Peter, and they who were with' him| had become heavy with sleep; but |waking up| they saw his glory, and the two| men who were standing with him.

33 And it came to pass |when they were being parted from him| Peter said unto Jesus—

Master! it is |delightful| for us to be |here:

Let us, therefore, make three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah:—

not knowing what he said. 34 Now |while he was saying these things| there came a cloud, and it began to overshadow them,—and they were overcome with fear as they entered into the cloud. 35 And [a voice] came out of the cloud, saying—

|This| is my Son |the Chosen One|:

[Unto him] be hearkening.

36 And |when the voice came| there was found |Jesus alone|. And they held their peace, and |unto no one| reported they, in those' days, any of the things which they had seen.
§ 41. Jesus cures a Demoniac whom the Disciples could not cure. Mt. xvii. 14-21; Mk. ix. 11-29.

And it came to pass (on the next day, when they came down from the mountain) that there met him a great multitude. And lo! [a man from the multitude] uttered a cry, saying—

Teacher! I beg of thee, to look upon my son, because [my only begotten] he is. And lo! [a spirit] taketh him, and [suddenly] he crieth out,— and it convulseth him—with foaming, and with difficulty departeth from him, sorely bruising him.

And I begged of thy disciples, that they would cast it out, and they could not.

And, making answer, Jesus said—

O faithless and perverted generation! how long shall I be with you, and bear with you! Bring |hither| thy son.

And while yet he was coming | the demon came | upon him | and mangled him. But Jesus rebuked the impure spirit, and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. And they were all lying struck with astonishment, at the majesty of God.

§ 42. Jesus warns of His Rejection. Mt. xvii. 22, 23; Mk. ix. 30-32.

And < while all were marvelling at all things which he was doing> he said unto his disciples:

Lay |ye | up in your ears, these words ; for |the Son of Man | is about to be delivered up |into the hands of men |.

But |they | understood not this saying, and it had become veiled from them, that they might not grasp it,— and they were afraid to question him concerning this saying.

§ 43. True Greatness. Mt. xviii. 1-5; Mk. ix. 33-37.

But there entered a reasoning among them, as to who of them should be greatest.

And |Jesus | perceiving the reasoning of their heart> taking a child| placed it near himself,—

< Whosoever shall give welcome unto this child, on my name > |unto me| giveth welcome;

And < whosoever |unto me | giveth welcome > giveth welcome unto him that sent me forth.

For | he who is least among you all || the same | is | great.

But John |answering | said—

Master! we saw some one | in thy name | casting out demons,—and we forbad him, because he followeth not with us.

And Jesus said unto him—

Do not forbid; for | whosoever is not against you| is || for you

§ 44. The Face of Jesus set towards Jerusalem.

And it came to pass, < when the days for taking him up were on the point of being fulfilled > || even he himself || set | his face | to be journeying unto Jerusalem a; and he sent messengers before his face,—and, taking their journey, they entered into a village of Samaritans, | so as to prepare for him|. And lo! [a man from the multitude] uttered a cry, saying—

Teacher! I beg of thee, to look upon my son, because [my only begotten] he is. And lo! [a spirit] taketh him, and [suddenly] he crieth out,— and it convulseth him—with foaming, and with difficulty departeth from him, sorely bruising him.

And I begged of thy disciples, that they would cast it out, and they could not.

And, making answer, Jesus said—

O faithless and perverted generation! how long shall I be with you, and bear with you! Bring |hither| thy son.

And while yet he was coming | the demon came | upon him | and mangled him. But Jesus rebuked the impure spirit, and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. And they were all lying struck with astonishment, at the majesty of God.

§ 45. Three Would-be Followers put to the Test. Mt. viii. 18-22.

And < as they were journeying on the road > one said unto him—

I will follow thee, whithersoever thou shalt depart.

And Jesus said unto him—

The foxes have | dens|, and | the birds of heaven | | nests|; but | the Son of Man | hath not where | his head | he may recline.

And he said unto another—

Be following me!

But | he | said—

Suffer me, | first | to depart, and bury my father

And he said unto him—

Leave | the dead | to bury theirown' dead;

But | thou | departing, be declaring the kingdom of God.

And | yet another | said—

I will follow thee, Lord.

But | first | suffer me to bid adieu to them that are in my house.

But Jesus said (unto him)—

No one, laying the hand on a plough and looking unto the things behind, is fit for the kingdom of God.

§ 46. The Mission of the Seventy [Two.]

And |after these things | the Lord appointed seventy |two others, and sent themforth, two and two before his face, into every city and place whither | he himself | was about to come.

And he was saying unto them—

The harvestindeed, is | great|,

But | the labourers| | few|;

Beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest, that he would thrust forth labourers into his harvest.

Withdraw! Lo! I send you forth as lambs amid wolves.

Be not carrying purse, or satchel, or sandals, and |no one along the road | salute ye;

And < into whatsoever house ye enter >

First | say | Peace to this house!

And < if the son of peace be | there >

Your peace shall rest upon it; but | otherwise, at least | unto you | shall it return.

The recurrence of Luke's narrative to the Lord's progress towards Jerusalem is most impressive:

— a question of punctuation.
And in the self-same house abide ye,
Eating and drinking such things as they have;
For worthy is the labourer of his hire:
Be not removing from house to house.

And into whatsoever city ye shall enter, and they bid you welcome,
Be eating such things as are set before you;
And be curing the sick that are therein,
And be saying unto them—
The kingdom of God hath drawn nigh upon you.

But into whatsoever city ye shall enter, and they do not welcome you>
Going forth into the broadways thereof say ye:
Even the dust that cleaveth unto us, out of your city, unto our feet do we wipe off against you;
Nevertheless of this be taking notice—
The kingdom of God hath drawn near.

I tell you, For them of Sodom, in that day more tolerable will it be, than for that city.

Alas for thee, Chorazin!
Alas for thee, Bethsaida!
Because if in Tyre and Zidon had been done the works of power which have been done in you,
Of old, in sackcloth and ashes sitting they would have repented.

Moreover for Tyre and Zidon more tolerable will it be, in the judgment, than for you.

And thou, Capernaum—
Unto heaven shalt thou be uplifted?... Unto hades thou shalt be brought down!

He that hearkeneth unto you unto me doth hearken,
And he that setteth you aside doth set aside;
And he that setteth me aside doth set aside him that sent me.

And the seventy returned, with joy, saying—
I open ly give praise unto thee, Father! Lord of heaven and earth!
In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning,
And hast revealed them unto babes,—
Yea, O Father! that so hath it become a delight before thee.

All things unto me have been delivered up by my Father;
And no one knoweth, who the Son is, save the Father;
And who the Father is, save the Son.
And he to whomsoever the Son may be minded to reveal him.

And turning unto his disciples, privately he said—
Happy the eyes, that see what ye see!

For I tell you—
Many prophets and kings have desired to see what ye see, and they saw not.
And to hear what ye hear, and they heard not.

§ 47. A Lawyer answered: The Good Samaritan.

And lo! a certain lawyer arose, putting him to the test, saying—
Teacher! by doing what shall I inherit life age-abiding?

And he said unto him—
Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, out of all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might, and with all thine intention;
And thy neighbour, as thyself.

And he said unto him—
Rightly hast thou answered:
This do, and thou shalt live.

But he wishing to justify himself, said unto Jesus—
And who is my neighbour?

And taking up the question, Jesus said—
A certain man was going down from Jerusalem unto Jericho, and with robbers fell in, who, stripping him, and inflicting wounds upon him, departed, leaving him half dead.

And by chance a certain priest was coming down by that road, and seeing him, passed by.

And in like manner a Levite also coming down to the place, and seeing him, passed by.

But a certain Samaritan going on his journey, came down to him, and seeing him, was moved with compassion;

And setting him on his own beast, brought him into an inn, and took care of him.

In the self-same hour exulted he in the Holy Spirit, and said—
I openly give praise unto thee, Father! Lord of heaven and earth!
In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning,
And hast revealed them unto babes,—
Yea, O Father! that so hath it become a delight before thee.

All things unto me have been delivered up by my Father;
And no one knoweth, who the Son is, save the Father;
And who the Father is, save the Son.
And he to whomsoever the Son may be minded to reveal him.

And turning unto his disciples, privately he said—
Happy the eyes, that see what ye see!

For I tell you—
Many prophets and kings have desired to see what ye see, and they saw not.
And to hear what ye hear, and they heard not.
And on the morrow throwing out two denaries, he gave them to the inn-keeper, and said—

Take care of him, and whatsoever thou shalt further spend when on my way back, will duly pay thee.

Which of these three seemeth unto thee to have become neighbour unto him who fell among the robbers?

And he said—

He who dealt mercifully with him.

And Jesus said unto him—

Be taking thy journey, and in like manner.

§48. Martha and Mary: The Good Part.

And as they were journeying, he entered into a certain village; and a certain woman, named Martha, welcomed him into her house.

And she had a sister, called Mary, who also seating herself at the feet of the Lord was hearing his word. But Martha was distracted about much ministering, and, coming near, said—

Lord! carest thou not that my sister hath left me to ministering all alone? Speak to her, then, that she help me.

But the Lord, answering, said to her—

Martha! Martha! thou art anxious and troubled about many things: of few things is there need, or if of one; Mary in fact, hath chosen the good part, one which shall not be taken away from her.

And it came to pass when he was in certain place praying, as he ceased one of his disciples said unto him—

Lord! teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

And he said unto them—

Whensoever ye are praying say—

Father!

Hallowed be thy name.

Come may thy kingdom,

Our needful bread be giving us, day by day;

And forgive us our sins,

For even we ourselves forgive every one indebted to us;

And bring us not into temptation.

And he said unto them—

Who from among you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him—

Friend! supply me with three loaves, forasmuch as a friend of mine hath come off a journey unto me, and I have not what I can set before him; and he from within shall answer, and say—

Be not disturbing me,—already the door hath been fastened, and [my children, with me] are [in bed]: I cannot rise and give thee?

I say unto you—Even though he will not give him, rising because of his being a friend of his, because, at least, of his importunity, he will rouse himself, and give him as many as he needeth.

II: therefore, unto you say—

Be asking, and it shall be given to you, be seeking, and ye shall find,—

Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.

For whoever asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh shall it be opened.

But which is the father from among yourselves:

Whom the son will ask for a fish, who instead of a fish will give him a serpent?

Or shall also ask an egg, who will give him a scorpion?

If therefore ye being evil know how to begiving good gifts unto your children, how much rather will the heavenly Father give Holy Spirit unto them that ask him!

§50. Jesus accused of casting out Demons in Beelzebul. Mt. xii. 22-37; Mk. iii. 20-30.

And he was casting out a demon that was dumb; and it came to pass when the demon went out, the dumb began speaking. And the multitudes marvelled; but some from among them said—

In Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons is he casting out the demons; and others putting him to the test were seeking from him.

But he knowing their thoughts, said unto them—

Every kingdom, against itself divided is laid waste, and a house, against a house divided, falleth;

And if even Satan against himself hath become divided how shall his kingdom stand?

Because ye are saying that in Beelzebul I am casting out the demons.

But if I in Beelzebul am casting out the demons>

In whom are your sons casting them out?

Wherefore they shall be your judges.

But if with the finger of God I cast out the demons>

Then doubtless unawares hath come upon you the kingdom of God.

Whensoever the mighty one, armed may constant supply.

Or: "going up again"—i.e., to Jerusalem, a much higher locality.

A beautiful and suggestive Gr. emendation, made by WH.
be guarding his own 'dwelling' in peace are his goods; But whenever a mightier than he shall come upon and vanquish him: His panoply he taketh away wherein he was trusting: And his spoils he distributeth. If he that is not with me is against me; And the that gathereth not with me scattereth. " (He that is not with me is against me; And he that gathereth not with me scattereth."

Whensoever the impure spirit goeth out from the man it passeth through waterless places seeking rest; and not finding it: Then it saith— I will return unto my house whence I came out!—

and coming findeth it empty swept, and adorned. Then goeth it, and taketh along with itself, other spirits, more wicked than itself—seven, and entering in, fixeth its dwelling there; and the last state of that man becometh worse than the first! Now it came to pass while he was saying these things: that a certain woman out of the multitude lifting up her voice said unto him— Happy the womb that bare thee!

But he said— Yea rather!—

Happy they who hear the word of God, and observe it!

§ 51. The Sign of Jonah and The Wisdom of Solomon. Mt. xii. 38-42.

And as the multitudes were thronging together he began to say— This generation is a wicked generation: A sign it is seeking, And a sign shall not be given it,— Save the sign of Jonah.

For according as Jonah became unto the Ninevites a sign So shall be the Son of Man also unto this generation.

The queen of the south will rise up in the judgment, with the men of this generation, and will condemn them; Because she came out of the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon,— And lo! something more than Solomon here.

Men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment, with this generation, and will condemn it; Because they repented into the proclamation of Jonah,— And lo! something more than Jonah here.

§ 52. The Lighted Lamp. Cp. chap. viii. 16; Mt. v. 15; Mk. iv. 21.

No one having lighted a lamp putteth it, nor under the measure; but upon the lampstand, that they who enter may see the light.

The lamp of the body is thine eye:

Whensoever thine eye may be single>

Even the whole of thy body is lighted up;

But whenever it may be useless>

Even thy body is darkened.

Be looking to it, therefore, lest the light that is in thee be darkness.

If therefore, thy whole body is lighted up, Not having any part darkened>
The whole shall be lighted up as whenever the lamp, with its radiance may be giving thee light.b

§ 53. "Alas for you, Pharisees and Lawyers!"

Cp. Mt. xxiii.

And when he had spoken a Pharisee was requesting him that he would dine with him; and entering, he reclined. And the Pharisee beholding marvelled that he was not first immersed, before the dinner. And the Lord said unto him:

Now ye, the Pharisees! Because ye tithe the mint, and the rue, and every garden herb, And pass by justice, and the love of God. But these things it was binding to do, And those not to pass by.

Alas for you, the Pharisees!

Because ye love the first seats in the synagogue, And the salutations in the market-places!

Alas for you!

Because ye are as the secret tombs:

Even the men that are walking above them know it not.

And making answer one of the Lawyers saith unto him—

Teacher! these things saying, us also dost thou insult!

And he said—

And (for you, the lawyers) alas!

Because ye lade men with burdens hard to be borne,

And yourselves with one of your fingers touch not the burdens.

Alas for you!

Because ye build the tombs of the prophets, And your fathers slew them!

Hence witnesses are ye, and find consent—

* Or: "different," "diverse."

Mt. vi. 22, 23.
ing pleasure in the works of your fathers:

Because [they] indeed, slew them,
And [ye] are building [their tombs].

For this cause the Wisdom of God hath
said—

I will send forth, unto them, prophets and apostles,—
And [some from among them] will they slay,
And [some] persecute:

That the blood of all the prophets which hath been shed from the foundation of the world, may be sought out from this generation.—

From the blood of Abel, unto the blood of Zachariah who was destroyed betwixt the altar and the house;
Yes! I say unto you—
[It shall be sought out from this generation].

Alas for you, the lawyers!
Because ye took away the key of knowledge:
Yourselves entered not,
And [them who were entering] ye hindered.

And when [from thence] he came out> the Scribes and the Pharisees began, with vehemence, to be hemming him in, and trying to make him speak off-hand concerning many things,—lying in wait for him, to catch something out of his mouth.

§ 54. Various Instructions for Disciples and for the Multitude.

Amongst which things, when the ten thousands of the multitude were gathered together, so that they were treading one upon another, he began to be saying [unto his disciples]|first|—

Be keeping yourselves free from the leven of the Pharisees, the which is [hypocrisy].

But [nothing] hath been [covered up]
Which shall not be uncovered,
And hidden
Which shall not be made known.

Because [as many things as in the darkness] ye have said—
[In the light] shall be heard;
And [what to the ear ye spake, in the chambers]
Shall be proclaimed on the housetops.

And I say unto you |my friends—

Do not be put in fear of them who kill the body,
And [after these things] have nothing more uncommon which they can do.

But I will suggest to you, whome ye should fear—
Fear him who [after killing] hath authority to cast into gehenna,—

Yes! I say unto you—
[ Him] fear ye.

Are not [five] sparrows sold for two farthings?
And [not one from among them] hath been forgotten before God.*

But [even the hairs of your head] have all'
been numbered:
Be not afraid: [Many] sparrows ye excel.

And I say unto you—

<Whosoever shall confess me before men>
[Even the Son of Man] will confess him, before the messengers of God;

But [he who denied me before men]
Shall be denied before the messengers of
God.

And <whosoever shall say a word against the
Son of Man>
It shall be forgiven him;
But [unto him who [against the Holy Spirit]
speaketh profanely>
It shall not be forgiven.b

But <whosoever they shall be bringing you in before the synagogues, and the rulers, and the authorities> Do not be anxious how [or what] ye shall answer, or what ye shall say;
For [the Holy' Spirit] shall teach you, in that very hour, what ye ought to say.c

And one from amongst the multitude said unto
him—

Teacher! bid my brother divide with me the inheritance.

But [he] said unto him—

Man! who hath appointed me a judge or divider over you?

And he said unto them—

Mind and be guarding yourselves from all'
covetousness:
For not [in one's abundance] doth his life spring out of his possessions.

And he spake a parable unto them, saying—
[A certain rich man's estate] bare well.

And he began to deliberate within himself,
saying—

What shall I do? because I have not where I can gather my fruits.

And he said—
This will I do,—I will pull down my barns, and [greater ones] build, and gather [there] all' my wheat and good things; and will say to my soul—
Soul! thou hast hast many' good things
Dying by for many years:
Be taking thy rest, eat, drink, I be making merry!

But God said unto him—

Simple one! [on this very night] they are asking [thy soul] from thee;
The things, then, which thou hast prepared| whose shall they be?

[So] is he that is laying up treasure for himself', and is not rich | towards God.]

And he said unto his disciples—

[For this cause] I say unto you,—

* Not merely "by God."
* Mt. x. 19, 20; Mk. xiii. 11.
* The difference is most
* suggestive.
* Or (WH): "unto you I
say."
Be not anxious for the life, what ye shall eat, nor yet for the body, what ye shall put on; 23 For the life is more than the food, and the body than the clothing.

Consider well the ravens—That they sow not, neither do they reap, Which have neither chamber nor barn,—And God feedeth them:

By how much do ye excel the birds? If then, not even the least thing ye can do—Why concerning the rest are ye anxious?

Consider well the lilies, how they grow: They toil not, neither do they spin, And yet I say unto you—But even Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these.

But if God thus adornth the grass Which is in a field to-day, and to-morrow is cast—How much rather you, O little of faith?

Therefore, be not seeking what ye shall eat and what ye shall drink, and be not held in suspense; For after all these things do the nations of the world seek, But your Father knoweth that ye need these things.

Notwithstanding, be seeking his kingdom, and these things shall be added unto you.

Be not afraid, the dear little flock! For your Father delighteth to give you the kingdom.

Sell your possessions, and give alms, Make for yourselves purses that wax not old, Treasure unfailing, in the heavens, Where thief doth not draw near, and moth doth not spoil.

For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

Let your loins be girded, And your lamps burning, And ye yourselves like unto men awaiting their own lord, once he may break up out of the marriage-feast, That when he cometh and knocketh, straightway they may open unto him.

Happy those servants whom the lord, when he cometh, shall find watching!

Verily, I say unto you—He will gird himself, and make them recline, and coming near will minister unto them.

And if in the second or if in the third watch, he come and find thus!  Happy are they! But of this be taking note—<Had the householder known, in what hour the thief was coming>

He would have watched, and not suffered his house to be digged through.

Ye therefore, be getting ready, Because in what hour ye are not thinking! The Son of Man cometh!

But Peter said—Lord! unto us? this parable speakest thou! Or even unto all?

And the Lord said—Who then is the faithful steward, the prudent one, Whom the lord will appoint over his body of attendants, To be giving, in due season, the measured allowance of wheat?

Happy that servant, whom the lord, when he cometh, shall find doing thus!

Of a truth! I say unto you—Over all his possessions will he appoint him.

But if that servant should say in his heart—My lord delayeth to come! And will cut him asunder, and make himself drunk.

The lord of that servant will have come! On a day when he is not expecting, And in an hour when he is not taking note, And will cut him asunder, And his part with the unfaithful will appoint.

And <that servant, who had come to know the will of his lord, And neither prepared, nor wrought unto his will—>

Shall be beaten with many stripes; Whereas he who had not come to know, And did things worthy of stripes— Shall be beaten with few stripes.

And every one to whom was given much, Shall be sought from him; And he to whom they committed much— For more than common will they ask him.

Fire came I to cast upon the earth,— And what can I wish, if it hath been kindled?

But an immersion have I to be immersed with, And how am I distressed, until it be ended!

Suppose ye, that peace! I am come to give in the earth! Nay, I tell you, but rather division.

For there shall be five in one house divided.—Three against two, and two against three:

There shall be divided—Father against son, and son against father, Mother against daughter, and daughter against the mother,—

Mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against the mother-in-law.

"soul."
And he went on to say—whensoever ye see a cloud springing up from the west—

| Straightway | ye are saying— | A thunder-storm is coming!—
| And it happeneth' thus.

And whensoever a south wind blowing—

Ye say— | A scorching heat will there be!—
| And it cometh to pass.

Hypocrites! | the face of the earth and of the heaven

ye know how to scan;

But || this season || how know ye not to scan?*

Why, moreover, | even from yourselves
judge ye not what is just?

For <as thou art going along with thine adversary unto a ruler>—

| On the way | take pains to get a release from him;
| Lest once he drag thee along unto the judge.
| And | the judge | deliver thee up to the punisher,—
| And | the punisher | cast thee into prison:

I tell thee—

In nowise shalt thou come out from thence,

Until | even the last fraction | thou pay!

§ 55. All must Repent: The Barren Fig-tree.

Now there were present some | in that very season | bringing tidings to him, concerning the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. 2 And, answering, he said unto them—

Suppose ye, that || these Galileans || had become sinners beyond all the Galileans, because those things they have suffered?

Nay! I tell you, but || except ye repent || ye all, in like manner shall perish.

Or <those eighteen, upon whom fell the tower in Siloam, and slew them> suppose ye that | they || had become| debtors | beyond all the men who were dwelling in Jerusalem?

Nay! I tell you, but || except ye repent | ye all, in the same way | shall perish.

And he went on to speak this parable:—

A certain man had | a fig-tree, planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit therein, and found none. 7 And he said unto the vine-dresser—

Lo! || three years || I come, seeking fruit in this fig-tree, and find none. Cut it down! Why doth it make | even the ground | useless?

And || he || answering, saith unto him—

Sir! let it alone this year also, until such time as I dig about it, and throw in manure, — and if it may bear fruit for the future ... but || otherwise, certainly | thou shalt cut it down.

§ 56. The Woman bowed together, healed on Sabbath.

And he was teaching in one of the synagogues, on the Sabbath.*

10 And lo! || a woman having a spirit of weakness eighteen years,—and was bowed together, and unable to lift herself up [at all].

12 And, seeing her, Jesus called her and said to her—

Woman! thou art loosed from thy weakness,

and laid on her his hands; and | instantly | she was made straight again, and began glorifying God. 14 But the synagogue-ruler, answering, <being greatly displeased that | on the Sabbath | Jesus had healed> began saying unto the multitude—

|| Six' days || there are, in which men ought to get their work done;
| On them | therefore, come and be healed, and | not on the day of rest.|

The Lord answered him, and said—

Hypocrites! Doth not || each one of you || on the Sabbath | loose his ox or ass from the manger, and leading it away, give it drink?*

But || this woman || <being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo! eighteen' years> was there not a needs-be b that she should be loosed from this bond || on the day of rest? |

And <as he was saying | these | things> all who had been setting themselves against him were being put to shame; and || all the multitude || were rejoicing over all the glorious things which were being brought to pass by him.

§ 57. The Mustard Seed and the Leaven.

Mt. xiii.31-33; Mk. iv.30-32.

He went on to say, therefore—

|| Whereunto || is the kingdom of God | like? | And | whereunto | shall I liken it?

It is || like | unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and cast into his own garden; and it grew, and became a tree, and | the birds of heaven | lodged amongst its branches.

And || again || he said—

| Whereunto | shall I liken the kingdom of God?

It is || like | heaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of flour, until | the whole | was leavened.

§ 58. The Narrow Door: "Lord! open to us."

And he was journeying on, city by city and village by village, and making | progress | unto Jerusalem.a 23 And one said unto him—

Lord! are they | few | who are being saved?

And || he || said unto them—

Be striving to enter through the narrow door,* for | many | I say unto you, will seek to enter, and will not be able,— and once the householder shall rouse himself, and lock the door, and ye begin to stand outside, and to knock at the door, saying—

Lord! open to us;

The "Sabbath."
and he shall answer and say unto you—
I know you not, whence ye are.

Then will ye begin to say—
We did eat and drink in thy presence,
And [in our broadways] thou didst [teach];
And he will speak, saying unto you—
I know not whence ye are;
Depart from me, all workers of unrighteousness.

There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, as soon as ye see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and [yourselves] being thrust forth outside.

And they shall have come from east and west, and from north and south, and be made to recline in the kingdom of God.

And lo! there are [last], who shall be [first],
And there are [first], who shall be [last].

In that very hour came near certain Pharisees, saying unto him—
Go forth, and be journeying hence, because [Herod] desireth to slay thee.

And he said unto them—
Go and tell this fox,
Lo! I am casting out demons, and [cures] am I finishing, to-day, and to-morrow,—and [on the third] I am to be made perfect.

Nevertheless, I must needs [to-day, and to-morrow, and the following] be journeying on, because it is impossible that a prophet perish [outside Jerusalem].

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! she that slayeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her!—How often have I desired to gather together thy children, like as a hen, her own' brood, under her wings,—and ye did not desire!

Lo! your house is left to thee.

And I say unto you—
In nowise shall ye see me, until ye say,—[Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!]

§ 60. At a Pharisee's on Sabbath Jesus heals one of Dropsy. "Come higher!" The Great Supper.

And it came to pass <when he entered into the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees, on a Sabbath, to eat bread > that [they] were narrowly watching him. And lo! there was a certain man who had the dropsy, before him. And Jesus, answering, spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying—

Is it allowed, on the Sabbath, to cure, or not? But [they] held their peace.
And taking hold [of him] he healed and dismissed him,—and [unto them] said—

| Which' of you shall have a son or an ox, that [into a pit] shall fall, and will not straightway pull him up [on the day of rest]? |

And they could not return an answer unto these things.
And he went on to speak, unto the invited, a parable,—observing how [the first couches] they were choosing; saying unto them—

<Whensoever thou hast been invited by any one unto a marriage feast> do not recline on the first couch; lest once [it] be more honourable than thou have been invited by him, and he that invited both thee and him' should come, and say unto thee—

Give [unto this one] place!
and [then] thou shouldst begin, with shame, [the last place] to occupy.

But <whensoever thou hast been invited> pass on and fall back into the last' place, that [whensoever he that hath invited thee shall come] he may say unto thee—

Friend! come close up [higher].

[Then] shalt thou have honour before all' who are reclining together with thee.

Because [everyone] who exalteth himself shall be abased;
And [he that abaseth himself] shall be exalted.

Moreover he went on to say [unto him also who had invited him]—

<Whensoever thou mayest be making a dinner or a supper> do not call thy friends, or thy brothers, or thy kinsfolk, or rich neighbours,—lest once [they] also invite thee in return, and it become a recompense unto thee.

But <whensoever [an entertainment] thou mayest be making> invite the destitute, the tried, the lame, the blind; 11 and [happy] shalt thou be, that they have not wherewith to recompense thee, for it shall be recompensed unto thee [in the resurrection of the righteous].

And one of those reclining together [hearing these things] said unto him—

Happy! whoever shall eat bread in the kingdom of God!

But [he] said unto him—

[A certain man] was making a great supper, and invited many; 17 and he sent out his servant, at the hour of the supper, to say unto the invited—

Be coming! because [even now] is it ready.

And they all began, one after another to excuse themselves.

[The first] said unto him—

[A field] have I bought, and have need to go out and see it:
I request thee, hold me excused.

And [another] said—

LUKE XIV. 20—35; XV. 1—18.

15 But all the tax-gatherers and the sinners were drawing near, to be hearkening unto him; and both the Pharisees and the Scribes were murmuring, saying—

This man draweth sinners, and giveth welcome, and eateth with them.

And he spake unto them this parable, saying—

What man from among you having a hundred sheep, and losing one of them, doth not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go his way after the lost one, until he find it? And finding it, he layeth it upon his shoulders, rejoicing; and coming unto his house calleth together the friends and the neighbours, saying unto them—

Rejoice with me, because I have found my sheep that was lost!

I say unto you—

Thus do the messengers of heaven rejoice over one sinner repenting.

And he said—

A certain man had two sons. And the younger of them said unto the father—Father, give me the share that falleth to me of what there is; and he divided unto them.

And after not many days the younger son, gathering all together, left home for a country far away, and there squandered his substance with riotous living. And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine throughout that country, and he began to be in want. And he went his way, and joined himself unto one of the inhabitants of that country, and he sent him into his fields to be feeding swine. And he used to long to be filled with the pods which the swine were eating; and no man gave unto him.

But coming to himself, he said—

How many hired servants of my father have bread enough and to spare, whereas I, with famine, am perishing!

I will arise, and go unto my father, and say unto him—

Children, come; all that have ears let them hear.
LUKE XV. 19—32; XVI. 1—13.

Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee:

[No longer] am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—

Make me as one of thy hired servants.

And he arose, and came unto his own father.

Now while yet he was holding afar off his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and running fell upon his neck, and tenderly kissed him.

The son said unto him—

Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee:

[No longer] am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—

Make me as one of thy hired servants.

But the father said unto his servants—

Quick! bring forth a robe—the best! and put on him.

And get out a ring for his hand, and sandals for his feet,—

And be bringing the fatted calf, sacrifice!

And let us eat and make merry:

Because this is my son!

Was [dead], and hath come to life again,

Was lost, and is found.

But his elder son was in a field; and as, in coming, he drew near unto the house he heard music and dancing,—

And, calling near one of the youths, he inquired what these things could be. —

And he said unto him—

Thy brother hath come,

And thy father hath sacrificed the fatted calf, because [safe and sound] hath he received him back.

But he was provoked to anger, and would not go in. And [his father] came out and entreated him. —

But he answering said unto his father—

Lo! [so many years as these] do I serve thee,

And [at no time] a commandment of thine have I transgressed,—

And [unto me, at no time] hast thou given a kid, that [with my friends] I might make merry;

But [when this thy son, who had devoured thy living with harlots] came—thou didst sacrifice [for him] the fatted calf.

But [he] said unto him—

Child! [thou] art [with me],

And [all that is mine] is [thine];

But [to make merry] and rejoice there was need,

Because [this thy brother]—

Was [dead], and hath come to life again,

And was lost, and is found.

§ 63. The Prudent Steward.

And he went on to say unto his disciples also—

There was [a certain rich man], who had a steward, and [the same] was accused to him as squandering his goods. —

And, accusing him, he said unto him—

What is this I hear of thee?

Render the account of thy stewardship, for thou canst no longer be steward.

And the steward said within himself—

What shall I do, because my lord taketh away the stewardship from me? —

I cannot: [to beg] I am ashamed.

I know what I will do, that <when I am removed out of the stewardship> they may welcome me into their own houses.

And <calling unto him each one of the debtors of his own lord> he was saying to the first—

How much owest thou my lord?

And [he] said—

A hundred baths of oil.

And [he] said unto him—

Kindly take thine accounts, and, sitting down, make haste and write—Fifty!

After that, unto another he said—

And bow much owest thou?!

And [he] said—

A hundred homer of wheat.

He saith unto him—

Kindly take thine accounts, and write—Eighth!

And the lord praised the unrighteous steward, in that with forethought he acted:

Because [the sons of this age] have more forethought than the sons of light respecting their own generation.

And [I] unto you say—

[For yourselves] make ye friends with the unjust Riches,* in order that as soon as it shall fail they may welcome you into the age-abiding tents.

The faithful in least is much also is faithful!

And [he that in least] is unrighteous is much also is unrighteous.

<If therefore in the unjust Riches ye proved unfaithful>

The true who [unto you] will entrust?

And <if in what was another's ye proved unfaithful>

Your own who will give unto you?

No' domestic can [unto two masters] be in service;

For either [the one] he will hate, and [the other] love,

Or [unto the one] he will hold, and [the other] despise:

Ye cannot [unto God] be in service, and unto Riches.*

§ 64. The Lofty brought low: The Rich Man and Lazarus.

14 Now the Pharisees, who were |lovers of money| were hearing all these things, and were openly sneering at him. And he said unto them—

||Ye| are they who justify themselves before men,
But |[God] knoweth your hearts; Because |that which amongst men| is lofty| is an abomination before God.

16 |The law and the prophets| were until John,—* [From that time] |the good news of the kingdom of God| is being proclaimed, And |[everyone]| [thereinto] is forcing his way.

But it is |easier| for heaven and earth to pass away,
Than that |[of the law]| one little point| should fail.

18 |Every' one divorcing his wife and marrying another| [commiteth adultery];
And |[he that marrieth a woman divorced'] from a husband'| [commiteth adultery].

19 Now |a certain man| was rich,* and he used to clothe himself with purple and fine linen,
- making merry day by day |brilliantly|.

20 And |a certain beggar, by name Lazarus| used to be cast near his gate, full of sores, and to long to be fed from the crumbs that fell from the table of the rich man: say! even |[the dogs] used to come and lick his sores. And it came to pass that the beggar died, and was carried away by the messengers, into the bosom of Abraham. And |[the rich man also] died, and was buried. And |[in hades] lifting up his eyes, being in torments| he seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And |[he] calling out, said—
Father Abraham! have mercy upon me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue,—because I am in anguish in this flame.

But Abraham said—
Child! remember—
That thou didst duly receive* thy good things in thy life, And |[Lazarus, in like manner] the evil things; But |now, here| he is comforted, And |[thou] art in anguish.

And |[besides all these things] ||[Betwixt us and you] ||[a great chasm] hath been fixed,—
So that |[they who might wish to cross over from hence unto you] should not be able,

Nor any |[from thence unto us] be crossing over.

27 But he said—
I request thee then, father, that thou wouldst send him unto my father's house,—* for I have five' brethren,— that he may solemnly testify unto them, lest [they also] come into this place of torment.

28 But Abraham saith—
They have Moses and the Prophets: Let them hearken unto them.

30 But |[he] said—
Nay! father Abraham, but <[if one from the dead] should go unto them> they would repent.

31 But he said unto him—
<If unto Moses and the Prophets they do not hearken>
Neither <[if one from among the dead should arise]> would they be persuaded.

§ 65. Care, Fidelity, Forgiveness, Faith and Humility enjoined.

17 And he said unto his disciples:—
It is |impossible| that occasions of stumbling should not come, Notwithstanding, alas! for him through whom they do come*:

3 It profethim, if |[a mill-stone] is hung about his neck; and he is cast into the sea,
Than that he cause |[one] of these little ones| to stumble.

3 Be taking heed to yourselves,—
<If thy brother sin> rebuke him, And <[if he repent]> forgive him;
<Even if seven times a day> he sin against thee, and |[seven times] turn to thee, saying I repent> thou shalt forgive him.

5 And the apostles said unto the Lord—
Bestow upon us faith!

6 And the Lord said—
<If ye have faith like a grain of mustard-seed> Ye should be saying unto [this] mulberry-tree—
Be uprooted! and be planted in the sea,—
And it should obey you.

7 But |[who from among you] having |[a servant] plowing or keeping sheep, |when he hath come in out of the field| will say to him—
[Straitway come, and recline;—] on the contrary, will not say to him—
Make somewhat ready, that I may dine,— said |[girding thyself] be ministering unto me, until I have eaten and drunk; and |[after these things] |[thou] shalt eat and drink?—

9 Doth he offer thanks unto the servant, because he hath done the things enjoined?

10 |[Thus] ||[ye also]| <[when ye have done all] the things enjoined upon you> say—

* Mt. xvii. 7.
LUKE XVII. 11—37; XVIII. 1—7.

11 And it came to pass <during the journey unto Jerusalem> that [he] was going through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. 12 And [as he was entering into a certain village] there met him ten leprous men, who stood still, afar off; 13 and [they] lifted up a voice, saying—

Jesus! Master! have mercy on us!

14 And [beholding] he said unto them—
Go your way, and show yourselves unto the priests.

And it came to pass [as they withdrew] they were cleansed. 15 But [one from among them] <beholding that he was healed> returned, [with a loud voice] glorifying God,— and fell prostrate at his feet, giving him thanks; and [he] was a Samaritan. 16 And Jesus, answering, said—

Werenot the ten cleansed? [But] where are then all? Have none been found returning to give glory to God, savethisone of another race!

And he said unto him—

Arise and go thy way: thy faith hath saved thee.

§ 67. When and How the Kingdom of God comes.

20 And <being questioned by the Pharisees> When cometh the kingdom of God?> he answered them and said—

The kingdom of God cometh not with narrow watching; neither shall they say— Lo, here! or There!

For lo! the kingdom of God is among you.

21 Neither shall they say— Lo, here! or There!

For lo! the kingdom of God is among you.

22 But he said unto the disciples—

There will come days—
When ye will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man;
And shall not see.

23 And they will say unto you Lo there! or Lo here!

Do not depart, and do not pursue:" For just as [the lightning], [flashing out of the one part under heaven] unto the other part under heaven] shineth; 4

[So] shall be the Son of Man. 4

25 But [first] he must needs suffer many things,
And be rejected by this generation.

26 And [as] it came to pass in the days of Noah>

[So] will it be, even in the days of the Son of Man:

They were eating, they were drinking, They were marrying, they were being given in marriage,—

Until the day that Noah entered into the ark.*

And the flood came, and destroyed them all.

28 [In like manner] [as it came to pass in the days of Lot] They were eating, they were drinking, They were buying, they were selling, They were planting, they were building,—

But [on the day Lot came out from Sodom] It rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all:

[According to the same things] will it be on the day the Son of Man is revealed.*

29 [In that] day [he that shall be on the housetop, and his utensils in the house] Let him not go down, to take them away:

And [he that is in the field] [In like manner] let him not turn unto the things behind; 4

Bear in mind the wife of Lot!

Whosoever shall seek to make his life his own shall lose it.

But whosoever shall lose it shall give it a living birth.

30 I say unto you—

[On the selfsame] night of there shall be two men on [one] bed,—

[The one] shall be taken near, and [the other] left behind;

31 There shall be two women grinding together,—

[The one] shall be taken near, and [the other] left behind. [*]

32 And, answering, they say unto him—

[Where], Lord? And [he] said unto them—

[Where the body is] [there] (the vultures also) will be gathered together. 4

18 And he was speaking a parable unto them, as to its being needful for them always to pray, and not be faint-hearted; 2 saying—

[A certain judge] there was in a certain city,—

Having [for God] no reverence, and [for man] no respect.

3 And [a widow] there was, in that city;
And she kept coming unto him, saying—

Vindicite me from mine adversary!

4 And he was unwilling for a time;
But [after these things] he said within himself—

[Although neither God] I reverence, nor man I respect>

5 Yet [if only because this widow annoyeth me] I will vindicate her,—

Lest persistently coming she wholly wear me out.

6 And the Lord said—

Hear ye what [the unrighteous judge] saith;—

And shall [God] in any wise not execute the vindication of his chosen ones, who are crying out to him day and night, although he beareth long with regard to them?*

8 I tell you—
He will execute their vindication, quickly! Nevertheless <though the Son of Man do come> Will he, after all, find the faith on the earth?

§ 68. The Pharisee and the Tax-collector.

And he spake <even unto certain who were confident in themselves that they were righteous, and were despising the rest> this parable:—

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray, [the other a tax-collector;]

|The Pharisee, taking his stand| was praying:—

O God! I thank thee, that I am not like the rest of men,—

Extortioners, unjust, adulterers, Or even as this tax-collector; I fast twice in the week, I give a tenth of whatsoever things I gain!

12 But the tax-collector standing afar off, said,—

Would not so much as lift up his eyes unto heaven, But kept smiting his own breast, saying—

O God! be propitiated unto me, the sinner! I tell you—

This one went down justified unto his house, rather than that one; Because every one who exalteth himself shall be abased, But he that abaseth himself shall be exalted.*

§ 69. Babes brought to Jesus. Mt. xix. 13-15; Mk. x. 13-16.

And they were bringing unto him even the babes, that he might touch them; but the disciples, seeing it, began to rebuke them. But Jesus called them near, saying—

Suffer the children to come unto me, and do not hinder them; For of such is the kingdom of God.

Verily I say unto you— Whosoever shall not welcome the kingdom of God, as a child in nowise shall enter thereinto.

§ 70. The Rich Ruler: One thing Lacking. Mt. xix. 16-30; Mk. x. 17-31.

And a certain ruler questioned him, saying—

Good Teacher! by doing what shall I inherit life age-abiding?

But Jesus said to him—

Why callest thou me good? None is good save one—God.

The commandments thou knowest:—

Do not commit adultery, Do not commit murder, Do not steal.

* Slow to smile his face, he seems also slow to save his friends.

Do not bear false witness,—
Honour thy father and mother.*

21 And [he] said—

|All these things| have I kept from my youth.

22 And Jesus, hearing, said unto him—

Yet one thing unto thee is lacking: Whatsoever thou hast sell, and distribute unto the destitute, And thou shalt have treasure in heaven; And come be following me.

23 But [he] hearing these things, became encompassed with grief; for he was rich exceeding.

24 And Jesus, beholding him, said—

With what difficulty shall they who have money, enter into the kingdom of God.

25 For it is easier for a camel, to enter through the eye of a needle, Than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they who heard said—

|Who, then| can be saved?

27 And [he] said—

The things impossible with men are possible with God.

28 And Peter said—

Lo! we have left our own possessions, and followed thee! b

29 And [he] said unto them—

Verily! I say unto you—

No one is there, who hath left—house, or wife, or brethren, or parents, or children,— for the sake of the kingdom of God; who shall in anywise not receive manifold in this season, and in the age that is coming; life age-abiding.

§ 71. Jesus, foretelling his Sufferings, is not understood. Mt. xx. 17-19; Mk. x. 32-34.

31 And taking aside the twelve he said unto them—

Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem, and all the things will be finished, which have been written through means of the prophets, respecting the Son of Man;

For he will be delivered up unto the nations, and be mocked, and insulted, and spit upon,—and having scourged him they will slay him, and on the third day will he arise.

34 And [they] not one of these things understood, and this saying was hidden from them, and they could not comprehend the things spoken.

§ 72. Blind Man in Jericho recovers sight. Mt. xx. 29-34; Mk. x. 46-52.

35 And it came to pass as he was drawing near unto Jericho a certain blind man was sitting beside the road, begging. And <hearkening unto a multitude moving along> he enquired, what this might be. And they told him—

Jesus of Nazareth is passing by!

* Exo. xx. 12-16; Deu. v. 28, 30. 16-20. 4. Chap ix. 51, n.

 Or: "this." *Mt. xix. 11; Mt. xxii. 12.

* Mt. xix. 27-29; Mk. x. 6. Chap ix. 51, n.
And he cried aloud, saying—

Jesus, son of David! have mercy upon me!

And they that were going before began to rebuke him, that he might hold his peace. But he cried so much the more: and they that were going before began to rebuke him, that he might hold his peace.

What desirest thou, that I should do unto thee?

And he said—

Lord! that I may recover sight!

And Jesus said unto him—

Recover sight! Thy faith hath saved thee.

And instantly he recovered sight, and began to follow him, glorifying God.

And all the people beholding gave praise unto God.

Zacchæus, the Rich Tax-collector.

And having entered, he was passing through Jericho; and lo! a man, by name called Zacchæus, and he was a chief tax-collector, and [he] was rich. And he was seeking to see Jesus, what sort of man he was, and could not for the multitude, because he was small. And running forward unto the front, he got up a sycamore-tree, that he might see him; for by that way was he about to pass. And as he came up to the place, looking up, Jesus said unto him—Zacchæus! make haste, and come down; For to-day I must needs abide in thy house.

And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

And as he was to pass, one of the twelve, whose name was Judas Iscariot, said unto him—Lord, is it I? And Jesus said unto him—Thou hast the sop cast unto thee.

And they said unto him, Lord! he hath ten minas;—

I tell you—Unto every one that hath shall be given, and from him that hath not shall be taken away. But if any man from that which he hath shall give it unto the poor, he shall have more in return. And they said to him, Lord! he hath ten minas;—

And having said these things, he was moving on in front, going up unto Jerusalem.
§ 75. The Triumphal Entry. Jesus weeps over Jerusalem. Mt. xxi. 1-9; Mk. xi. 1-10; Jn. xii. 12 ff.

29 And it came to pass <as he drew near unto Bethphage, and Bethany, unto the mount which is called the Mount of Olives> he sent off two of his disciples, 30 saying—

Go your way unto the opposite' village, in which, as ye are entering, ye shall find a colt, bound, whereon no man hath ever sat,—and, having loosed him, bring him.

31 And <if any one question you—

Wherefore are ye loosing him?>

[thus] shall ye say—

||His Lord|| hath |need|.*

32 And they who were sent, departing, found as he had said to them. And |as they were loosing the colt| his lords said unto them—

Why are ye loosing the colt?

33 And they brought him unto Jesus; and, throwing their mantles over the colt, they seated Jesus thereon. ^And, as he moved along, they were spreading their own mantles in the way. <when he was drawing near, already, unto the descent of the Mount of Olives> one-and-all'the throng of the disciples began joyfully'to be praising God with a loud voice, concerning all'the mighty works which they had seen ; 34 saying—

Blessed is he that cometh...

The king ! In the name of the Lord ! b

|In heaven | peace !

And glory in the highest !

20 And it came to pass, on one of the days, <as he was teaching the people in the temple, and telling the good tidings> that the High-priests and the Scribes, with the Elders, came upon him,—2 and spake, saying, unto him—

Tell us |by what' authority|| |these things| thou art doing,

And |who| is it, that gave thee this authority.

3 And, answering, he said unto them—

I will question |you| as to a matter,—

And |who| is it, that gave thee this authority.

§ 76. Cleanses the Temple. Mt. xxi. 12, 13; Mk. xii.15-17 : cp. Jn. ii.13-17.

45 And [entering into the temple | he began to be casting out them who were selling; 46 saying unto them—

It is written And |my house| shall be |a house of prayer|;* b

But |ye| have made [it] a den of robbers.*

4 And he was teaching day by day in the temple; but |the High-priests and the Scribes| [also the chiefs of the people] were seeking to destroy him,—46 and could not find what they might do, for |the people, one and all| were hanging upon him, as they hearkened.

§ 77. “By what Authority?” Mt. xxi. 23-27; Mk. xi. 27-33.

20 And it came to pass, on one of the days, <as he was teaching the people in the temple, and telling the good tidings> that the High-priests and the Scribes, with the Elders, came upon him,—2 and spake, saying, unto him—

Tell us |by what' authority|| |these things| thou art doing,

And |who| is it, that gave thee this authority.

3 And, answering, he said unto them—

I will question |you| as to a matter,—

And |who| is it, that gave thee this authority.

§ 78. The Vineyard and the Husbandmen. Mt. xxi. 33-46; Mk. xii.1-12.

8 And he began [unto the people] to be speaking this parable:—

A man |planted a vineyard,* a

And let it out to husbandmen, And went from home for a long time.

10 And |in due season| he sent unto the husbandmen |a servant!,

That |of the fruit of the vineyard| they might give him; But |the husbandmen| having beaten him, sent him away empty.

11 And he [further] sent another servant; But |they| <beating |that one also| and dishonouring him> sent him away empty. 12 And he [further] sent [a third]; But |they| bruising |this one also| thrust him out.

---

* Or: “tell me, then.”  Nb: Even now—in spite of all that has happened —the joyful message is not withdrawn.
13 And the lord of the vineyards said—

What shall I do? I will send my son, the beloved,—

It may be that they will respect.

14 But the husbandmen, seeing him, began to deliberate one with another, saying—

'This' is the heir; Let us slay him, that our inheritance may be.

And thrusting him forth outside the vineyard, they slew him.

What, then, will the lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He will come, and destroy those husbandmen, and give the vineyard unto others.

But when they heard it, they said—Far be it!

17 But he looking at them said—

What, then, is this that is written,—

<A stone which the builders' rejected>

'The same hath become head of the corner'?

18 <Every one who falleth on that stone>

Will be sorely bruised, but <on whomsoever it shall fall> It will utterly destroy him.

19 And the Scribes and the High-priests sought to thrust on him their hands, in that very hour; and feared the people; for they perceived that against them spake he this parable.

§ 79. Of Tribute to Caesar. Mt. xxii. 16-22; Mk. xii. 13-17.

20 And watching narrowly they sent forth subtorn men, feigning themselves to be righteous, that they might lay hold of a word of his, so as to deliver him up unto the rule and the authority of the governor.

21 And they questioned him, saying—

Teacher! we know that rightly thou speakest and teachest, and respectest no person, but in truth; the way of God dost teach;

Is it allowable for us to give unto Caesar tribute, or not?

22 But observing their villany he said unto them—

Shew me a denary. Of whom hath it an image and inscription? And they said—

Of Caesar.

23 And he said unto them—

Well then! render the things of Caesar unto Caesar,

And the things of God unto God.

24 And they could not lay hold of the saying, before the people; and marvelling at his answer they held their peace.

80. Whose Wife, in the Resurrection? Mt. xxii. 23-33; Mk. xii. 18-27.

25 But there came near certain of the Sadducees, they who say |Resurrection| there is none! and questioned him, saying—

Teacher! Moses wrote for us,

<If one's brother die, having a wife, and he be childless>

That his brother shall take the wife,

And raise up seed unto his brother.

29 |Seven brethren| therefore, there were,—

And the first taking a wife, died childless,

And the second, and the third took her,

Yes, likewise even the seven:

They left no children, and died:

31 Later on |the woman also| died.

32 <The woman, therefore, in the resurrection>

Of which of them doth she become wife?

For the seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus said unto them—

<The sons of this age>

Marry, and are given in marriage,—

35 But <they who have been accounted worthy>

|That age| to obtain,

And the resurrection that is from among the dead>

Neither marry, nor are given in marriage;

For they cannot even die any more,—

For |equal unto messengers| are they,

And are |sons of God|,

|Of the resurrection| being |sons|.

37 But <that the dead do rise> b

|Even Moses| disclosed at the bush,

When he calleth the Lord—

The God of Abraham and God of Isaac and God of Jacob—

38 Now |God| he is not |of the dead', but |of the living|,—For |no longer| were they daring to ask him any questions.*

§ 81. David's Son and David's Lord. Mt. xxii. 41-45; Mk. xii. 35-37.

41 And he said unto them—

How say they, that |the Christ| is |David's Son|?

42 For |David himself| saith, in |the| book Psalms:

Said the Lord, unto my Lord,

Sit thou at my right hand,

Until I make thy foes thy footstool. f

43 |David| therefore, calleth |him Lord|:

How, then, |his son| is he?

§ 82. The Scribes denounced. Mt. xxiii. 6, 7; Mk. xii. 38-40; chap. xi. 43.

45 And |all the people hearing| he said unto the disciples:

46 Be taking heed of the Scribes—

Who desire to walk about in long robes.

And are fond of salutations in the markets,

And first seats in the synagogues,

And first couches in the chief meals,—

Who devour the houses of widows.

And |for a show| are a long time at prayer.

|These| shall receive |a heavier sentence|.

* Ps. cxviii. 22.

a Or: "are to live."

b Or: "are to rise."

c Ps. cx. 1.
§ 83. The Widow's Mites. Mk. xii. 41-44.

And looking up he saw the rich who were casting their gifts into the treasury,—and he saw a certain poor widow, casting in thither two mites; and he said—

| Of a truth I say unto you—
||This destitute widow |||more than they all|
<<hath cast in ;

For all these out of their superfluity have cast in among the gifts, But [she] out of her deficiency [all'] the living that she had [hath cast in.

§ 84. The Prophecy of the Overthrow of Jerusalem, and of the Coming of the Son of Man. Mt. xxiv.; Mk. xiii.

And certain saying of the temple—

| With beautiful stones and offerings! hath it been adorned !>
he said—

| As to these things, which ye are looking upon>
There will come days, in which there will not be left here [stone upon stone] which will not be taken down.

And they questioned him, saying—

Teacher! [when] therefore, will these things be!

And what the sign] when these things shall be about to come to pass?

But [he] said—

Be taking heed ye be not deceived; For [many] will come upon my name, saying— [I am he,—

and—

The season hath drawn near !
Do not go after them.

But <whenever ye shall hear of wars and revolutions>

Be not terrified,—

For these things [must needs] come to pass first,b

But [not immediately] is the end.

Then [said he unto them—

There will rise up,
Nation against nation,
And kingdom against kingdom ;

<As well great earthquakes, as also [in places] pestilences and famines> will there be,
<As well objects of terror, as also [from heaven] great signs> will there be.

And before [all these things] They will thrust upon you their hands, and persecute you,
Delivering you up into the synagogues and prisons,—

When ye have been led away before kings and governors, for the sake of my name ;

But it shall turn out to you for a witness.

Settle, then, in your hearts, not to be studying beforehand, how to make defence;

For [I] will give you a mouth and wisdom, which one-and-all' who are setting themselves against you shall be unable to withstand or gainsay.

But ye will be delivered up [even by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolk, and friends], And they will put to death some from among you;

And ye will be hated by all, because of my name;

And [a hair of your head] in nowise shall perish,—

| By your endurance| shall ye gain your lives for a possession.

<But whenever ye shall see Jerusalem being encompassed by armies|>

| Then | know, that her desolation hath drawn near.

<Then' they who are in Judaea>

Let them flee into the mountains,

<And they who are in her midst>

Let them go forth,—

<And they who are in the fields>

Let them not enter into her ;

For [days of avenging] are [these] for all' the things written to be fulfilled.

Alas! for the women with child, And for them who are giving suck, [in those' days];

For there will be great distress upon the land,c
And anger against this people.

And they will fall by the edge of the sword, And be carried away captive into all the nations, And [Jerusalem] shall be trodden down by the nations.d

Until the seasons of the nations shall be fulfilled [and shall be].

And there will be signs in sun, and moon, and stars, And [on the earth] anguish of nations in embarrassment—

Sea and surge resounding,—e

[Men fainting]f from fear and expectation of the things overtaking the inhabited earth. For [the powers of the heavens] will be shaken.*

And [then] will they see the Son of Man—

Coming in a cloud,* with great power and glory.

And <when these things are beginning' to come to pass>

Unbend and lift up your heads, Because that [your redemption] is drawing near.

And he spake a parable unto them:
See the fig-tree, and all' the trees,—

<Whenever they have already budded>

[Seeing it] [of yourselves] ye observe that [already near] is [the summer] ;

|Thou | [ye also] <whenever ye shall see these' things coming to pass>

• Modern lip-service, with its "Widow's mite," forgets there were "two."
Observe ye, that near is the kingdom of God!

Verily I say unto you—In nowise shall this generation pass away. Until all things shall happen: Heaven and earth will pass away, But my word in nowise will pass away.

But be taking heed unto yourselves, Lest once your hearts be made heavy—With debauch and drunkenness and anxieties about livelihood, And that day come upon you suddenly (as a snare),— For it will come in by surprise, upon all them that are dwelling on the face of all the earth.

But be watching in every season, Making supplication, that ye may gain full vigour To escape all these things that are about to be coming to pass And to stand before the Son of Man.

And he was by day in the temple, teaching; but by night, going forth, he was lodging in the mount which is called the Mount of Olives. And all the people were coming at day-break unto him, in the temple, to be hearkening unto him.

§ 85. Judas bargains to Betray his Master.

And the feast of the unleavened bread, which is called a Passover, was drawing near.

And the High-priests and the Scribes were seeking, how they might get rid of him; for they feared the people. But Satan entered into Judas, him called Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve; and, departing he conversed with the High-priests and Captains, as to how unto them he might deliver him up.

And they rejoiced, and bargained with him to give him silver; and he freely consented, and began seeking a good opportunity for delivering him up in the absence of a multitude unto them.

§ 86. The Last Supper.

Now the day of the unleavened bread came,—on which it was needful to be sacrificing the passover. And he sent forth Peter and John, saying—Go, and make ready, for us, the passover, that we may eat. And they said unto him—Where wiliest thou, we should make ready! And he said unto them—Lo! when ye have entered into the city, there will meet you a man, bearing an earthen-jar of water: follow him into the house into which he is entering.

And ye shall say unto the master of the house—The teacher saith unto thee. Where is the lodging, where the passover, with my disciples, I may eat?

And he unto you will shew a large upper room, spread: there make ready. And, departing, they found according as he had said unto them, and made ready the passover.

And when the hour arrived he reclined, and the apostles with him. And he said unto them—I have greatly desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer;

For, I say unto you—In nowise shall I eat it, until it have been fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

And accepting a cup giving thanks, he said—Take this, and divide among yourselves;

In nowise shall I drink henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come.

And taking a loaf he gave thanks, and brake and gave unto them, saying—This is my body which in your behalf is being given: this be ye doing, in remembrance of me.

And the cup, in like manner, after the taking of supper, saying—This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which in your behalf is to be poured out.

Nevertheless, lo! the hand of him who is delivering me up is with me upon the table.

Because the Son of Man indeed, according to what is marked out, goeth his way; nevertheless, alas! for that man through whom he is being delivered up.

And they began to be enquiring together, among themselves, as to which, then, it could be, from among them, who this thing was about to perpetrate!

And it came to pass that there was a rivalry also among them, as to which of them seemed to be greater [than the rest]. And he said unto them—The kings of the nations lord it over them, And they who wield authority over them [benefactors] are called.

But ye not so! On the contrary—

<The greater among you> Let him become as the younger, And <he that governeth> As he that ministereth.

For which is greater—He that reclineth? or He that ministereth? Is not he that reclineth? But I am [in your midst] as he that ministereth.

[Ye!] however, are they who have remained throughout with me in my temptations;

And I covenant unto you—

53 [Daily] was I with you, in the temple, and yet ye stretched not forth your hands against me... But [this] is your' hour, and the authority of darkness.
But Peter said—

Man! I know not what thou art saying!

And instantly while yet he was speaking a cock crew.

And the Lord turned, and looked at Peter; and Peter was put in mind of the declaration of the Lord, how he had said to him—

<Before a cock; crow this day>

Thou wilt deny me thrice!

[And going forth outside] he wept bitterly.

Jesus is mocked and taken before the Jewish Council. Mt.xxvi.57-68; Mk. xiv.53-65; Jn.xviii.24.

And the men who held him bound kept mocking him, with blows; and blindfolding him questioned him, saying— Prophecy! which is he that smote thee?

And many other things, with profane speech were they saying unto him.

And when it became day the Eldership of the people was gathered together—both High-priests and Scribes,—and they led him away into their high-council, saying—

<If thou art the Christ> tell us!

But he said unto them—

<If I should tell you> in nowise would ye believe,

And <if I should put questions> in nowise would ye answer;

But <henceforth> shall the Son of Man be seated on the right hand of the power of God.

And they all said—

[Thou] then, art the Son of God? And [he] unto them said—[Ye] say [it],—because [I] am.

What [further] need have we [of witness]? [W]e ourselves have heard it from his mouth.

Jesus before Pilate and Herod. Mt.xxvii.2,11-20; Mk. xv.1-15; Jn. xix.28-33, 38-40.

And one and all the throng of them [arising] led him unto Pilate. And they began to accuse him, saying—

[This one] found we, perverting our nation, and forbidding to give [tribute unto Caesar],—and affirming himself to be [an anointed king].

And [Pilate] questioned him, saying—

Art thou the king of the Jews? And [he] answering him, said—

[Thou] sayest.

And [Pilate] said unto the High-priests and the multitudes, [Nothing] find I, worthy of blame, in this man.

But [they] began to be urgent, saying—

He is stirring up the people, teaching along all Judaea, even beginning from Galilee unto this place.

§ 93. The Crucifixion. Mt. xxvii.27-56; Mk. xv.10-41; Jn. xix.16-37.

And as they led him away they laid hold of a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the country,—they laid on him the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

* WH omit this verse.
27 And there was following him a great throng of the people, and of women, who were smiting themselves and lamenting him. But, turning towards them, Jesus said—

Daughters of Jerusalem!

Do not weep for me; But [for yourselves] be weeping, and for your children.

28 For lo! days are coming, in which they will say—

Happy the barren!

Even the wombs that never bare, And the breasts that never gave suck.

51 Because if in moist wood [these things] they are doing,—

In [the dry] what shall happen?

29 And there were being led, two other evil-doers also, to be lifted up. And [when they came into the place which was called Skull] there they crucified him; and the evil-doers, one indeed on the right hand, and the other on the left. But Jesus was saying—

Father! forgive them; For they know not what they do.

2 But when they were parting his garments they cast lots, And the people were standing, looking on. But the rulers were sneering, saying—

[Others] he saved, let him save himself,— If [this] is [the Christ of God, the Chosen].

Moreover the soldiers also mocked him,—coming near, offering [vinegar] unto him, And saying—

<If thou art the King of the Jews> save thyself.

30 And now there was an inscription also, over him—

THE KING OF THE JEWS

31 And [one of the suspended] evil-doers began to defame him—

Art not thou [Jesus] the Christ?

Save thyself and us!

But the other, answering, rebuked him, and said—

Neither forest thou [God], in that thou art [in the same] judgment;

And [we] indeed, justly,—for [things worthy of what we have done] are we duly receiving, But [this man] [nothing amiss] hath done.

And he went on to say—

Jesus! remember me, whencesoever thou shalt come into thy kingdom.

And he said unto him—

[Verily] I say unto thee this day: With me shalt thou be in Paradise.

44 And it was already about the sixth hour, and [darkness] came upon the whole land, until the sun failing; and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.

45 And calling out with a loud voice, Jesus said—

Father! [into thy hands] I commend my spirit.* And [this] saying, he ceased to breathe.

46 And the centurion, beholding that which came to pass, began to glorify God, saying—

In very deed [this man] was righteous.

47 And [all] the multitudes who had been drawn together unto this spectacle, <having looked upon the things that came to pass>, smiting their breasts, began to return. But all they who were acquainted with him, were standing afar off,* women also who had followed with him from Galilee,—beholding these things.

§ 94. The Burial. Mt. xxvii. 55-61; Mk. xv. 42-47; Jn. xix. 38, 42.

50 And lo! —a good and righteous man 51 (the same had not consented unto their plan and deed),—from Arimathæa, a city of the Jews, who was awaiting the kingdom of God> 52 (the same) going unto Pilate, claimed the body of Jesus. And, taking it down, he wrapped it in a fine Indian cloth, and laid him in a tomb hewn in stone,—where no one as yet was lying.

53 And it was a day of preparation, and a Sabbath was about to dawn. And the women, they who had come out of Galilee with him, <weeping, looking on>, having looked upon the things that came to pass, smiting their breasts, began to return. But all they who were acquainted with him, were standing afar off, observed the tomb, and how his body was laid. And, returning, they made ready spices and perfumes.

§ 95. The Resurrection. Mt. xxviii. 1-10; Mk. xvi. 1-14; Jn. xx., xxii.

And [on the Sabbath] indeed they were quiet, according to the commandment;* but [on the first day of the week] at early dawn unto the tomb came they, bringing the spices which they had prepared: 2 And they found the stone, rolled away from the tomb; but [when they entered] they found not the body [of the Lord Jesus]. 4 And it came to pass <while they were perplexing themselves concerning this> that lo! two men stood near them, in dazzling* raiment. 5 And <they becoming afraid, and bending their faces unto the ground> they said unto them—

Why seek ye the Living One with the dead?

6 If He is not here, but hath arisen:* Remember how he spake unto you while yet he was in Galilee:

Saying [as to the Son of Man] That he must needs be delivered up into the hands of sinful men, And be crucified,—And [on the third day] [arise].''

8 And they remembered his sayings; and, returning [from the tomb], reported all these things unto the eleven, and unto all the rest.

Now they were the Magdalene Mary, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James; and the other women with them, were telling unto the apostles these things. And these sayings appeared before them, as if idle talk, and they were minded to disbelieve them. But Peter arose, ran unto the tomb, and bending near, beholdeth the linen bandages alone; and departed, unto himself, marvelling at the thing that had happened.

And lo! two from among them on the selfsame day were journeying unto a village, distant sixty furlongs from Jerusalem, the name of which was Emmaus; and they were conversing one with another, about all these things which had occurred. And it came to pass as they were conversing and reasoning together, that Jesus himself drawing near was journeying with them; but their eyes were held, so as not to know him.

And he said unto them—
What are these things which ye are debating one with another, as ye walk along?
And they came to a stand, sad in countenance.

But one, by name Cleopas, answering, said unto him—
Art thou lodging at Jerusalem, and knowest not the things which have come to pass therein in these days?

And he said unto them—
What things?

And they said unto him—
The things concerning Jesus the Nazarene, who became a prophet, mighty in work and word, before God and all the people: In what way also our High-priests and Rulers delivered him up unto a sentence of death, and crucified him.

Well however, were hoping that he was the one destined to redeem Israel! But indeed even with all these things this brings on the third day, since these things happened:

Nay! certain women also, from amongst us have made us beside ourselves, in that they went early unto the tomb; and not finding his body came, saying—that a vision of messengers they had seen, who were affording him to be alive.

And certain of them who were with us departed unto the tomb, and found so, according as the women had said; but they saw not.

And he said unto them—
O thoughtless ones! and slow in heart to rest your faith upon all things which the prophets have spoken:

Was it not needful for the Christ these very things to suffer, and to enter into his glory?

And beginning from Moses, and from all the prophets> he thoroughly explained to them, in all the Scriptures, the things concerning himself.

And they drew near unto the village, whither they were journeying; and he made for journeying further. And they constrained him, saying—

Abide with us; because it is towards evening, and the day hath already declined. And he went in to abide with them.

And it came to pass, when he reclined with them, taking the loaf he blessed, and breaking it went on to give unto them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished from them. And they said one to another—

Was not our heart burning, as he was speaking to us in the way, as he was opening to us the Scriptures?

And arising in that very hour they returned unto Jerusalem, and found gathered together the eleven, and them who were with them, saying—

In truth the Lord hath arisen, and hath appeared unto Simon!

And they went on to relate the things that had passed on the journey, and how he was made known unto them in the breaking of the loaf.

Now these very things they were telling he himself stood in their midst and saith unto them—

Peace to you!
But being agitated and becoming afraid they began to imagine, that upon a spirit they were looking. And he said unto them—

Why are ye troubled? and for what cause do reasonings arise in your hearts?

See my hands, and my feet,—that it is I myself:
Handle me, and see! because a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye perceive I have.

And this saying> he pointed out to them his hands and his feet.

Now while yet they believed not for the joy, and were marvelling> he said unto them—

Have ye anything to eat, here?
And they gave unto him a piece of boiled fish; and, taking it before them he did eat.

Now these are my words, which I spake unto you yet being with you: That all the things that are written in the law of Moses and the Prophets and Psalms, concerning me, must needs be fulfilled.

Then> opened he their mind, to understand the Scriptures; and said unto them—

Thus it is written,
LUKE XXIV. 47—53. JOHN 1. 1—15.

That the Christ should suffer,
And arise from among the dead on the third day;
And that repentance for remission of sins should be proclaimed upon his name unto all the nations,—Beginning from Jerusalem.
And lo! I am sending forth the promise of my Father upon you;
Ye are witnesses of these things.
||Ye|| are witnesses of these things.
Or : "unto." Or (WH): ye are witnesses, &c.
A question of punctuation.

§ 97. The Ascension. Ac. i. 9—12.
And he led them forth as far as unto Bethany;
And uplifting his hands he blessed them.
And it came to pass while he was blessing them he parted from them and was borne up into heaven.
And they having bowed down unto him returned unto Jerusalem, with great joy; and were continually in the temple, blessing God.

* Or: "worshipped."

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

JOHN.

§ 1. The Prologue.
1 [Originally was the Word,] And the Word was with God; And the Word was God.
2 [The same was originally with God.]
3 [All things through him came into existence,] And without him came into existence not even one thing:
4 [That which hath come into existence is in him was life.]
And the life was the light of men,—
And the light in the darkness shined; And the darkness thereof layed not hold.
5 [He was not the light,—
But that he might bear witness concerning the light.
6 Its was—
The real light that enlighteneth every man—Coming into the world.

10 [In the world he was, And the world through him came into existence, And the world knew him not.
11 [Into his own possessions he came, And his own people received him not.
12 But as many as did receive him he gave unto them authority to become, —unto them who were believing on his name:
13 Who—not of bloods, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but—Of God were born.
14 And the Word became flesh, And pitched his tent among us, And we gazed upon his glory,—A glory as an Only-begotten from his Father, Full of favour and truth.
15 (John beareth witness concerning him, and hath cried aloud, saying—the same was he that said—<He who after me was coming>—Before me hath advanced; Because my Chief was he.)
16 Because <out of his fulness> we all received, even favour over against favour.

17 Because [the law] through Moses was given,

[Favour and truth] through Jesus Christ came into existence.

18 [No one] hath seen [God] at any time: * An Only Begotten God, The One existing within the bosom of the Father. [He] hath interpreted [him].

§2. The Witness of John the Forerunner.

19 And this is the witness of John, when the Jews sent forth unto him, out of Jerusalem, priests and Levites,—that they might question him—

Who art thou?

and he confessed, and did not deny,— and he confessed—

I am not [the Christ];

and they questioned him—

What then? Art thou Elijah?

and he answered—

I am not; The prophet [art] thou?

and he answered—

No!

20 So they said unto him—

| Who [art thou? | And | the answer we may give, unto them who sent us,— What sayest thou [concerning thyself]? |

21 and they questioned him—

What then? Art thou Elijah?

and he saith—

I am not;

The prophet [art] thou?

and he answered—

No!

22 He said—

[If] I am a Voice, of one crying aloud;

| In the desert | make ye straight, the way of the Lord: |

according as said Isaiah the prophet.

23 And they had been sent forth from among the Pharisees; 22 and they questioned him, and said unto him—

Why, then, dost thou immerse,— if [thou art] not [the Christ], nor [Elijah], nor [the Prophet]? 24 John answered them, saying—

[If] I immerse [in water]. [In the midst of you] standeth one, whom [ye] know not:—after me coming:—Of whom [I] am not worthy that I should unloose the thong of the sandal.

25 These things | in Bethany | came to pass, beyond the Jordan, where John was, immersing.

26 On the morrow he beheld Jesus, coming unto him, and saith— See! the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world.

27 This is he, of whom [I] said—

| After me | cometh a man, Who [before me] hath advanced, Because [my Chief] was he.

28 And [I] knew him not,

But <that he might be manifested unto Israel> [therefore] came [I] in water, immersing.

29 And John bare witness, saying—

I have gazed upon the Spirit, descending like a dove, out of heaven, —and it abode upon him.*

30 And [I] knew him not,—

But <that he sent me to immerse in water> [he] unto me said—

<Upon whosoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending and abiding upon him> [the same] is he that immerseth in Holy Spirit.

31 [I] therefore, have seen, and borne witness— That [this] is [the Son of God].

§3. The First Disciples of Jesus.

32 | On the morrow again | was John standing, and from among his disciples | two; 32 and, looking at Jesus walking, he saith—

See! the Lamb of God! b and the two disciples hearkened unto him speaking, and they followed Jesus. 33 But Jesus, turning, and looking at them following, saith unto them—

What seek ye? 34 And [they] said unto him— Rabbi! which meaneth, when translated, Teacher Where abidest thou?

35 He saith unto them—

Be coming, and ye shall see.

They came, therefore, and saw where he abode, and [with him] they abode that day. It was about the tenth | hour]. 36 One of the two that heard from John and followed him | was Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter. 37 The same findeth, first, his own brother Simon, and saith unto him—

We have found the Messiah! which is, when translated, Anointed.*

38 He led him unto Jesus. Jesus, looking at him, said—

| Thou [art Simon, the son of John,— | Thou shalt be called, Cephas; which is to be translated, Peter. 4}

39 And [I] desire thee to go forth into Galilee. And Jesus findeth Philip, and saith unto him—

Be following me!

40 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, of the city of Andrew and Peter. 41 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him—

| Him of whom wrote Moses in the law, and the Prophets > have we found,—Jesus, son of Joseph, him from Nazareth! 42 And Nathanael said unto him—

| Out of Nazareth; can any good thing come? Philip saith unto him—

Come, and see!
47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming unto him, and saith concerning him—
See! [truly] an Israelite, in whom is no guile.
48 Nathanael saith unto him—
Whence dost thou know me? Jesus answered, and said unto him—Before Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig-tree I saw thee. Nathanael answered him—A greater thing than these shall thou see! And he saith unto him—Verily, verily, I say unto you: Ye shall see heaven opened, and the messengers of God attending and descending unto the Son of Man.

§ 4. The Marriage in Cana—First Sign.
And on the third day [a marriage] took place, in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there, and Jesus also was invited with his disciples, unto the marriage. And [wine] running short, the mother of Jesus saith unto him—Wine have they none! And Jesus saith unto her—What part can I take with thee, O woman? Not yet hath come mine hour.
His mother saith unto them who were ministering—Whatsoever he may say to you, do! And they filled them up to the brim. And they bare. When the master of the feast had tasted the water, now made wine, and knew not whence it was,—and they who had drawn out the water knew not, the master accosted the bridegroom, and saith unto him—Every man [first] the good wine [settheth out; and when they have been well-supplied] the master accosteth the bridegroom, and saith unto him—What part can I take with thee, 0 woman? Not yet hath come mine hour.
His mother saith unto them—Whatsoever he may say to you, do! And they filled them up to the brim. And they bare.
And when the master of the feast had tasted the water, now made wine, and knew not whence it was,—though they who were ministering knew, even they who had drawn out the water the master accosted the bridegroom, and saith unto him—Every man [first] the good wine settheth out; and when they have been well-supplied—

§ 5. The First Cleansing of the Temple.
And after this he came down into Capernaum,—[he] and his mother and brethren, and his disciples; and [there] they abide, not many days. And near was the passover of the Jews; and [Jesus] went up unto Jerusalem. And he found, in the temple, them that were selling oxen and sheep and doves, also the money-changers sitting. And <making a scourge out of rushes> all of them thrust he forth out of the temple, both the sheep and the oxen; and [the money-changers] small coins poured he forth, and [the tables] he overturned; and unto them who were selling [the doves] he said—Take these things hence! Be not making [the house of my Father] a house of merchandise.
His disciples remembered that it was written—The zeal of thy house eateth me up. The Jews therefore answered, and said unto him—What sign dost thou point out to us, in that these things thou dost? Jesus answered, and said unto them—Take down this shrine; and in three days will I raise it. The Jews, therefore, said—In forty and six years was this shrine built. And [he] will raise it! But [he] was speaking concerning the shrine of his body. And when, therefore, he had been raised from among the dead, his disciples remembered, that [this] he had been saying; and they believed in the Scripture, and in the word which Jesus had spoken.
Now when he was in Jerusalem, during the passover, during the feast [many] believed on his name, viewing his signs which he was doing. [Jesus himself] however was not trusting himself unto them, by reason of his understanding them all, and because he had [no need] that anyone should bear witness concerning man; for he understood what was in man.

3 There was however, a man from among the Pharisees, [Nicodemus] his name,—ruler of the Jews. [The same] came unto him, by night, and said unto him—Rabbi! we know that [from God] thou hast come, a teacher; For [no one] can be doing [these] signs which thou art doing, except [God] be with him.

* Ap: “Messenger.”
* See! [truly] an Israelite, in whom is no guile.
* The mother being already there (ver. 1), probably as relative or near friend, had naturally accepted a measure of providing care. If so, Jesus hereby morely excuses himself from being yoked in as her helper, and yet may and must have declined her guidance with respectful tenderness.
* Zech. xiv. 21.
* Mt. xxvi. 61; xxvii. 40.
* Ps. cxix. 9.
* Mk. iv. 55; xv. 29.
* Chap. vii. 50; xix. 20.
Jesus answered, and said unto him—

"Verily, verily! I say unto thee:

Except one be born from above*

He cannot see the kingdom of God.

Nicodemus saith unto him—

"How can a man be born, when he is old? Can he into the womb of his mother, a second time enter, and be born?"

Jesus answered—

"Verily, verily! I say unto thee:

Except one be born of water and spirit* He cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

That which hath been born of the flesh is 'flesh';

And that which hath been born of the spirit is 'spirit'.

Do not marvel, that I said unto thee: Ye must needs be born from above.

The spirit doth breathe, and the sound thereof thou hearest:

But knowest not, whence it cometh and whither it goeth:

Thus is every one who hath been born of the spirit.

Nicodemus answered, and said unto him—

"How can these things come about?"

Jesus answered, and said unto him—

"Art thou the teacher of Israel, and these things knowest not?"

"Verily, verily! I say unto thee:

What we know we speak, and of what we have seen we bear witness,—

And our witness ye receive not.

If the earthly things I told you, and ye believe not:

How if I should tell you the heavenly things will ye believe?

No one hath ascended into heaven, Save he that out of heaven descended, — 'He who hath the bride is the bridegroom,'

But the friend of the bridegroom who standeth by and heareth unto him

Greatly rejoiceth by reason of the voice of the bridegroom.

This, my joy, therefore, is fulfilled.

That one it behoveth to increase,— But me to decrease.

What he hath seen and heard of the same he beareth witness,—

And his witness no one receiveth.

He that hath received his witness have, "so.

And this is the judgment:

That the light hath come into the world,—

And men loved rather the darkness than the light,

For wicked were their works.

For whosoever doth promise except things

Hateth the light,

And cometh not unto the light, Lest his works should be reproved;

But he that doeth the truth Cometh unto the light,

That his works may be made manifest.

That in God have they been wrought.

§ 7. Further Testimony of the Forerunner, at the Bridegroom's Friend.

After these things came Jesus, and his disciples, into the Judean land; and there was he tarrying with them, and immersing. And John also was immersing in Azoto near to Salim, because many waters were there; and they were coming, and being immersed: — for not yet had John been cast into prison.

There arose, therefore, a questioning, from among the disciples of John, with a Jew,— concerning purification.

And they came unto John, and said unto him—

Rabbi! <he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, unto whom thou hast borne witness> see! <the same> is immersing; and all are coming unto him.

John answered, and said—

A man can receive nothing, except it have been given him out of heaven.

Ye yourselves unto me bear witness, that I said—

He is not the Christ;

But that one it behoveth to increase,— But me to decrease.

He that from above doth come

Over all is:

Of the earth is.

And of the earth doth speak:

He that out of heaven doth come * Over all is.

What he hath seen and heard of the same he beareth witness,— And his witness no one receiveth—

He that hath received his witness is in me."
Hath set seal—
That [God] is [true].

34 For [he whom God hath sent]
| The sayings * of God doth speak ;
For [not by measure] * giveth he the Spirit.
35 [The Father] loveth the Son,
And [all things] hath given into his hand.
36 [That he believe] that the Son
Hath life age-abiding ;
Whereas [he] yieldeth not unto the Son:
Shall not see life,—
But [the anger of God] waiteth him.

§ 8. The Woman of Samaria, and the Samaritans.
4 <When therefore the Lord knew, that the Pharisees had heard—[Jesus] more disciples is making and immersing, than John,— although indeed [Jesus himself] was not immersing, but his disciples> he left Judaea, and departed again into Galilee. 4 Now he must needs pass through Samaria. 4 He cometh, therefore, unto a city of Samaria, called Sychar, near the parcel of ground which Jacob gave unto Joseph his son. 5 Now Jacob's fountain was there. [Jesus], therefore, having become toil-worn with the journey > was sitting thus, upon the fountain. It was about the sixth hour. 7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus saith unto her—

Give me to drink!

8 [for] his disciples> had gone away into the city, that [food] they might buy. 9 The Samarian woman> saith unto him—
How dost thou ask of me? who am I a Samaritan woman? for [Jews] have no dealings with [Samaritans].
[Or: "thing"]

Jesus answered, and said unto her—

11 She saith unto him—
Sir! not even a bucket! hast thou,—and [the well] is [deep];—Whence then, hast thou the living' water?

12 Art thou greater than [our father Jacob], who gave us the well,—and [himself] out of it drank, and his sons, and his flocks?

13 Jesus answered, and said unto her—

14 But <whosoever shall drink of the water which [I] will give him>
In nowise shall thirst, unto times age-abiding,—
But <the water which I will give him>
Shall become, within him, [a fountain of water],
Springing up unto life age-abiding.

15 The woman saith unto him—
Sir! give me this' water, that I thirst not, neither be coming hither to draw.

16 He saith unto her—
Go, call thy husband, and come hither!

17 The woman answered, and said [unto him]—
Rabbi! I have no husband.

Jesus saith unto her—

19 The woman saith unto him—
Sir! I perceive that [a prophet] art thou!:
[Or: "thing"]

20 [Our fathers] in this mountain! worshipped;
And [ye] say, that [in Jerusalem] is the place, where [to worship] it behoveth.

21 Jesus saith unto her—
Believe me, woman!

22 There cometh an hour, when <neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem> shall ye worship the Father.

23 [Ye] worship, that which ye know not; [We], worship, that which we know; Because [salvation] is of the Jews.

24 But there cometh an hour, and [now] is,—
When [the real worshippers] shall worship the Father in spirit and truth;
For [even the Father] is seeking [such as these] as his worshippers.

25 God is [spirit]; And [they that worship him] In spirit and truth, must needs worship.

26 The woman saith unto him—
I know that [Messiah] cometh, who is called Christ,—

27 [Whensoever he] shall come> he will tell us [everything].

28 Jesus saith unto her—

29 Come! see a man, that told me all things that ever I did:
Can [this] be [the Christ]?

30 They came forth out of the city, and were coming unto the men—

31 Come! see a man, that told me all things that ever I did:
Can [this] be [the Christ]?

32 But [he] said unto them—

33 The disciples, therefore, began to say, one to another—
Hath anyone brought him, to eat?
John IV. 34—54; V. 1—17.

34 Jesus saith unto them—

... My food is that I should do the will of him that sent me, and complete his work.

35 Are ye not saying—

Yet a four month it is, and the harvest cometh!—

Lo! I say unto you—

Lift up your eyes, and gaze at the fields,—

That white are they unto harvest.

Even; I say unto you—

One is the sower, and another is the reaper.

41 And out of that city many believed on him—by reason of the word of the woman in bearing witness—

He told me all things that ever I did.

43 When therefore, the Samaritans came unto him—they went on to request him to abide with them; and he abode there two days.

44 For Jesus himself bare witness, that a prophet hath not honour.

So when he came into Galilee, the Galilæans welcomed him, having seen all things whatsoever he had done in Jerusalem during the feast; for they also went unto the feast.

46 So he came again unto Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water wine.

47 When the servants of him that had been invited to the marriage, came away, they said, that his boy was living.

And the man believed in the word which Jesus spake to him, and at once went his way. And when he was even now going down, [his servants] met him, saying, that [his boy] was living. So he enquired the hour, from them, when he began to amend. They said, therefore, unto him—

Yesterday, at the seventh hour, the fever left him.

33 So the father took note that it was [in that hour] wherein Jesus said unto him—

Thy son liveth!

and he believed, [he] and all his house.

Now this again as a second sign Jesus did, after coming out of Judea into Galilee.

§ 10. Cure at the Pool of Bethzatha. Jesus claims to be the Son of God.

5 After these things was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up unto Jerusalem.

Now there is in Jerusalem, at the Sheep-gate, a pool, which is called in Hebrew Bethzatha, having five porches.

And there was a certain man there, who [for thirty-eight years] had continued in his sickness.

Jesus seeing this one lying, and taking note that now at a long time had he continued saith unto him—

Desirest thou to be made well?

The sick man answered him—

Sir! I have [no man] that as soon as the water hath been troubled might thrust me into the pool; but while I am coming—[another] before me goeth down.

Jesus saith unto him—

Rise! take up thy couch, and be walking.

And [straightway] the man was made well and took up his couch, and began to walk.

Now it was Sabbath, on that day.

The Jews, therefore, were saying, unto him who had been cured—

It is Sabbath; and it is not allowable for thee to take up thy couch:

who however, answered them—

He that made me well said unto me—

Take up thy couch, and be walking.

See! thou hast become well!—

No more be committing sin, lest some worse thing do thee befall.

The man went away, and told the Jews, that it was Jesus who had made him well.

And on this account were the Jews persecuting Jesus, because these things he had been doing on Sabbath.

But [he] answered them—

b Cp. Mt. vi. 15.

[\text{My Father}] until even now;* is working;
And [I] am working.\text{b}

18 On this account therefore [the other] were the Jews seeking to slay him, because <not only was he breaking the Sabbath> but was calling God his own Father, making himself equal with God.\text{c}

19 Jesus, therefore, answered, and went on to say unto them—

\text{\textquoteleft}{\textquoteleft}Verily, verily\textquoteright{\textquoteleft} I say unto you:
The Son cannot be doing, of himself, a single thing,—
Save anything he may see [the Father] doing;
For whatsoever he may be doing> [These things] the Son also, in like manner, doeth.

20 For [the Father] dearly loveth the Son,
And [all things] pointeth out to him, which [himself] is doing;
And [greater works than these] will he point out to him,
That ye may marvel.

44 How can ye believe,—

Glory from one another receiving;
And the glory which is from the only God are not seeking?

45 Do not think that I will accuse you unto the Father:
There is who accuseth you even Moses—
On whom ye have set your hope.

For if ye had been believing in Moses>
Ye would, in that case, have been believing in me;
For concerning me he wrote.

But if [in his writings] ye are not believing>
How [in my sayings] will ye believe?

Mk. vi. 32-44; Lu. ix. 10-17.

6 [After these things] Jesus went away across the sea of Galilee, that is, of Tiberias; and there was following him a great multitude, because they had been viewing the signs which he did upon such as were sick. But Jesus had gone up into the mountain, and there was sitting with his disciples. Now the passover was near, the feast of the Jews. So then Jesus, lifting up his eyes, and beholding that a great multitude was coming unto him> saith unto Philip—

Whence are we to buy loaves, that these may eat?

But [this] he was saying, to test him; for he himself knew what he was about to do.

Philip answered him—

Two hundred denaries-worth of loaves are not sufficient for them, that [each one] may take a little.

One from among his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, saith unto him—

There is a little lad here, that hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes,—
But these—what are they for such numbers?

Jesus said—

Make the people recline.
Now there was much grass in the place. So the men reclined, to the number of about five thousand. Jesus therefore took the loaves, and giving thanks, went on distributing unto them that reclined; in like manner of the small fishes also: as much as they were wishing.

And when they were well-filled he saith unto his disciples—

Gather up the broken pieces left over, that nothing be lost.

So they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets, with broken pieces out of the five barley loaves,—which were left over by them who had eaten. ||The people| therefore, seeing what signs he wrought| began to say—

This is of a truth, the prophet who was to come into the world.

*Or (WH): "from the Only One."

§ 12. Jesus walks on the Lake. Mt. xiv. 22-36;
Mk. vi. 45-56.

15 [Jesus] therefore <getting to know> that they were about to come, and seize him, that they might make him king> retired again into the mountain [himself, alone].

But when evening came his disciples went down unto the sea; and entering into a boat were going across the sea unto Capernaum. And dark, already had it become, and [not yet] had Jesus reached them; moreover the sea <by reason of a great wind that blew> was rising high.

Having therefore rowed about twenty-five or thirty furlongs> they observe Jesus, walking upon the sea, and [near the boat] coming; and they were affrighted.

But [he] saith unto them—

It is [I]: be not affrighted!

They were willing, therefore, to receive him into the boat; and [straightway] the boat was at land, whither they had been slowly going.

22 On the morrow [the multitude that was standing on the other side of the sea] saw that there was not [another small-boat] there, save one,—and that Jesus entered not [along with his disciples] into the boat, but that [alone] his disciples departed:—howbeit there came'boats out of Tiberias, near the place where they did eat the bread, after the Lord had given thanks:

When, therefore, the multitude saw that Jesus was not there, nor yet his disciples> they themselves got into the small boats, and came unto Capernaum, seeking Jesus; and finding him on the other side of the sea they said unto him—

Rabbi! when [earnest] thou comest hither?

Jesus answered them, and said—

Verily, verily I say unto you: Ye seek me,
Not because ye saw signs,
But because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled.

Be working.
Not for the food that perisheth,
But for the food that endureth unto life age-abiding.—
Which [the Son of Man] unto you, will give;
For upon [the same] hath the Father [even God] set his seal.

They said, therefore, unto him—

What are we to do, that we may be working the works of God?

Jesus answered, and said unto them—

This is the work of God:
That ye believe on him whom [he] hath sent forth.

They said, therefore, unto him—

What art thou doing [by way of sign],
That we may see, and believe in thee:
What art thou working?

Or: "observing."
Or: "make a king."
Our fathers! did eat the manna in the desert,—
Just as it is written:

Bread out of heaven] he gave them to eat.*

Jesus said unto them—

Verily, verily I say unto you:

Not Moses gave you the bread out of heaven;
But [my Father] giveth you the real' bread out of heaven.

For [the bread of God] is
That which is coming down out of heaven,
And giving life unto the world.

They said, therefore, unto him—

Sir! [evermore] give us this bread.

Jesus said unto them—

I am the bread of life:

He that cometh unto me in nowise shall hunger,
And he that believeth on me in nowise shall thirst [anymore].

But I told you—

Ye have even seen [me],
And yet do not believe.

<All that which the Father is giving me>—
Unto me will have come,
And [him] that cometh unto me
In nowise will I cast out,—

Because I have come down from heaven,—
Not that I should be doing my own' will,
But the will of him that sent me.

And [this] is the will of him that sent me,
That [of all'] that which he hath given me
I should lose nothing,
But should raise it up at the last' day.

For [this] is the will of my Father,
That [every'] one that vieweth the Son, and
believeth on him—
Should have life age-abiding,
And [I] should raise him up, at the last' day.

The Jews, therefore, began to murmur concerning him, because he said—

I am the bread that came down out of heaven;

and were saying—

Is not [this] Jesus, the son of Joseph,—
Of whom [we] know the father and the mother!

How is it then, that he [now] saith:

Out of heaven have I come down?

Jesus answered, and said unto them—

Be not murmuring, one with another:

No one|| can' come unto me, except [the
Father who sent me] draw him,—
And [I] will raise him up, in the last' day.

It is written in the prophets,—

And they shall be all, the instructed of God:*
<Every' one who hath heard of the Father, and learned>
Cometh unto me.

Not that any one hath seen [the Father];

Save he who is from God,—

This one] hath seen the Father.

[Verily, verily I say unto you:

He that believeth] hath life age-abiding.

I am the bread of life:

[Your fathers] did eat, in the desert, the manna,—

And died;]

This is the bread which [out of heaven] cometh down,*
That one [thereof] may eat,—

And not die].

I am the living bread, which [out of heaven] came down:
He shall live unto times age-abiding;
And [the bread, moreover, which [I] will give]
Is [my flesh]—for the world's life.

The Jews, therefore, began to strive one with another, saying—

How can this one [unto us] give his flesh to eat?

Jesus, therefore, said unto them—

Verily, verily I say unto you—

Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, And drink his blood:
Ye have not life within yourselves.

He that feedeth upon my flesh, And drinketh my blood>

I have come down from heaven,—
Not that I should be doing my own' will,
But the will of him that sent me.

That <of all'that which he hath given me>
I should lose nothing,
But should raise it up at the last' day.

For [this] is the will of my Father,
That <every' one that vieweth the Son, and
believeth on him>—
Should have life age-abiding,
And [I] should raise him up, at the last' day.

The things said he, as in a synagogue; he was teaching, in Capernaum. 00 Many of his disciples, therefore, when they heard] said—

[Hard] is this discourse,—

Who can] thereof] hearken?

But Jesus <knowing within himself that his disciples were murmuring concerning this> said unto them—

Doth [this] cause [you] to stumble?

[What] then [if ye should view the Son of Man ascending where he was before! ...]

The spirit] is, that giveth life,—

Profiteth [nothing];
The declarations which [I] have spoken unto you>
Are [spirit] and [I] am [life].

Or: [is coming down]; "is to come down."
But there are some from among you, who do not believe.

For Jesus knew from the beginning, who they were that did not believe, and who it was would deliver him up;—

And he went on to say—

[For this cause] have I said unto you:

[No one] can' come unto me, except it have been given him |of the Father].

Because of this|| many from among his disciples| went away back, and |no longer, with him |were walking. Jesus, therefore, said unto the twelve:

Are ||ye also|| wishing to withdraw?

Simon Peter answered him—

Lord! |unto whom |shall we go?

[Declarationsoflife age-abiding] thou hast;

And ||we|| have believed, and come to know,—

That |thou ||art the Holy One of God.

Jesus answered them—

Did not ||I|| make choice |of you, the twelve|?

And yet ||from among you|| one |is an adversary.

Now he was speaking of Judas, son of Simon Iscariot; for |the same |was about to deliver him up,— Hone of the twelvell.

§ 14. The Feast of Tents, Jerusalem.

And ||after these things|| Jesus was walking in Galilee; for he was not wishing |in Judaea |to be walking, because the Jews were seeking to slay him. But the feast of the Jews was near, that of the pitching of tents. His brethren, therefore, said unto him—

Remove hence, and withdraw into Judaea, that |thy disciples also| may view thy* works which thou art doing.

For ||no one || anything in secret doeth, and yet is seeking |himself |to be well-known." <If these things thou art doing> manifest thyself thence, and withdrew into Judaea, that |thy disciples also| may view thy* works which thou art doing.

For |not even his brethren| were believing on him. Jesus, therefore, saith unto them—

My' season|| not yet| is here;

But ||your' season|| at any time |is ready:

The world cannot' hate you;

But |me |it hateth, Because ||I|| bear witness concerning it,

That |the works thereof| are |wicked|.

Ye ||go up unto the feast: ||I |not yet| am coming up unto this feast, Because ||my' season| not yet |hath fully come.

And ||these things|| having said unto them| he was still abiding in Galilee. But <when his brethren had gone up unto the feast>| then |the also| went up,—not openly, but as it were in secret. The Jews, therefore, were seeking him in the feast, and were saying—

Where is that one?

and there was great ||murmuring| about him.

among the multitudes: ||some, indeed, were saying—

[Good| is he!]

[But ||others] were saying—

Not so! but he is leading the multitude many.

No one| nevertheless, was speaking |openly about him, because of their fear of the Jews.

Presently| however, the feast being at its height> Jesus went up unto the temple and was teaching. The Jews, therefore, began to marvel, saying—

||How| doth this one know ||letters|, not having learned?

Jesus, therefore, answered them, and said—

My' teaching ||is not mine", but his who sent me.

If any one intend ||his will| to do>

He shall get to know concerning the teaching—

Whether it is |of God|.

Or ||I|| |from myself| am speaking.

He that |from himself| doth speak|

|His own glory |is seeking:

He that seeketh the glory of him that sent him>

The same|| is |true,|

And ||injustice|| in him |is there none.

Did not ||Moses| give you the law?

And yet ||not one of you| doeth the law:—

Why seek ye |to slay| me?

The multitude answered—

A demon |thou hast:

|Who |is seeking |to slay| thee!

Jesus answered, and said unto them—

One' work| I did, and ye |all| are marvelling:

For this cause|| ||Moses| hath given you ||circumcision||,—

Not that |of Moses| it is, but of the fathers:—

And |on Sabbath| ye circumcise a man.

If ||circumcision, a man received on Sabbath,|

That the law of Moses may not' be broken>

|With me |are ye bitter as gall, Because ||a whole' man| I made |well on Sabbath?

Be not judging according to appearance.

But |just' judgment | be judging.

So then, some of them of Jerusalem were saying—

Is not |this| he whom they are seeking to kill?

And yet, see ! |with freedom of speech| he is talking,

And |nothing| ||unto him| do they say:—

Have the rulers perhaps come to know of a truth.

That |this| is ||the Christ ?

But ||as for this one| we know whence he is; <The Christ, however, wheresoever he shall come> ||no one| gettest to know whence he is.

Jesus, therefore, cried aloud in the temple, teaching, and saying—

Both me |ye know, and ye know whence I am",—

Chap. viii. 49; x. 20. Ap: "Demon."
And yet [of myself] have I not come, but he is real [who sent me, whom ye know not.]

29 [If I] know him,
Because [from him] I am, and [he] sent me forth.

They were seeking therefore to seize him; and yet no one laid on him his hand, because [not yet] had come his hour. But [from amongst the multitude] many believed on him, and were saying— <The Christ, whosoever he cometh.> Greater signs will he do, than those which [this one] did.

The Pharisees hearkened unto the multitude murmuring concerning him thesethings; and the High-priests and the Pharisees sent forth officers, that they might seize him.

33 Jesus therefore said— Yet a little time I am [with you,] and will withdraw unto him that sent me: Ye shall seek me, and not find me, and where I am ye cannot come.

35 The Jews, therefore, said unto themselves— Whither is this one about to go, that we shall not find him? Unto the dispersion of the Greeks [he is about to go, and teach the Greeks?]

36 What is this which he said: Ye shall seek me and not find me, and where I am ye cannot come? This spake he concerning the Spirit which they who believed on him were about to receive; for not yet was there Spirit, because Jesus was not glorified.

Some from amongst the multitude therefore, having hearkened unto these words, were saying— [This] is in truth [the prophet].

41 Others were saying— [This] is [the Christ]. But others were saying— Out of Galilee! is [the Christ] to come?

42 Hath not the Scripture said: <Of the seed of David,> and from Bethlehem, the village where David was> Cometh the Christ?

A division, therefore, arose in the multitude, because of him. [Certain] indeed, from among them, were wishing to seize him; but [no one] thrust upon him his hands.

43 So then the officers came unto the High-priests and the Pharisees, and they said unto them— [For what cause] have ye not brought him?

44 The officers answered— [Never] man spake thus!

47 The Pharisees, therefore, answered them— Surely ye also have not been led astray! Surely [none of the rulers] hath believed in him, Nor of the Pharisees?

But [this multitude, that take no note of the law] are [laid under a curse].

Nicodemus saith unto them—he that came unto him formerly, being [one] from among them— Surely [our law doth not judge the man, unless it hear first from him, and get to know what he is doing?]

52 They answered and said unto him— Surely [thou also] art not [of Galilee]?

[Search and see! that [out of Galilee] a prophet is not to arise.]

[See the section concerning the Adulteress at the end of this Gospel.]

§ 15. The Light and the Darkness in Conflict.

812 Again therefore, unto them, spake Jesus, saying— I am the light of the world; He that followeth me shall in nowise walk in darkness, But shall have the light of life.

13 The Pharisees, therefore, said unto him— [Thou] [concerning thyself] bearest witness: [Thy witness] is not true.

14 Jesus answered, and said unto them— Even though [I] bear witness concerning myself> [True] is my witness, Because I know whence I came, and whither I go; But [ye] know not whence I come, and whither I go.

15 Ye! [according to the flesh] do judge: I am judging no one.

And [even if I am judging] My judging! is [genuine],— Because [alone] am I not, But [I] and the Father who sent me;* And [in your own law] it is written:

That 'two men's witness' is [true] :

18 I am the one bearing witness of myself, And the Father who sent me is bearing witness concerning me.

19 They were saying unto him, therefore— [Where] is thy father?

Jesus answered— Neither [me] do ye know, nor yet my Father:

<If ye had known> [my Father also] had ye known.

20 These sayings spake he in the treasury, teaching in the temple, and yet no one seized him, because not yet had come his hour.

21 He said unto them again, therefore—

[i] go, and ye shall seek me,—and yet [in your sin] shall ye die:

22 The Jews, therefore, were saying—

Can it be that he will kill himself, that he saith, <Whither I go> [ye] cannot come?

23 And he was saying unto them—

[ye] are [of the realms below], [I] am [of the realms above!]:

[ye] are [of this world], I am not of this world.

Therefore said I unto you, Ye shall die in your sins;

For if ye believe not that [I] am he ye shall die in your sins.

24 They were saying unto him, therefore—

Who art thou?

25 Jesus said unto them—

First and foremost [Even what I speak unto you].

Many things have I concerning you to speak, and to judge;

But he who sent me is true, and I <what things I heard from him> the same speak I unto the world.

26 They noted not that as touching the Father unto them he was speaking.

27 Jesus, therefore, said—

<Whensoever ye shall lift up the Son of Man> [Then] shall ye know, that [I] am he, And [of myself] am doing [nothing];

But [just as the Father taught me] [the same things] am I speaking.

And he that sent me is [with me]: He hath not left me alone. Because [I] [the things that please him] ever do.

28 As he was speaking these things [many] believed on him.

29 Jesus was saying, therefore, unto the Jews who had believed on him—

If [ye] abide in my word [Of a truth] my disciples ye are;

And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

30 They made answer unto him—

Seed of Abraham [are we], And unto no one [have been brought into bondage] at any time;

How sayest thou [Free] shall ye be made?

31 Jesus answered them—

Verily, verily I say unto you:

<Every one who committeth sin> is [a slave] [of sin] :

Now [the slave] doth not abide in the house [evermore].

* Chap. vii. 30.
* Or: "at the outset"; or: "revealeth my person."
* "fundamentally."
* Prob: "What I speak, that I am: my speech is my life."

32 The Son abideth [evermore].

<If then the Son shall make you free> [Really' free] shall ye be.

I know that ye are [seed of Abraham; But ye are seeking to kill me,

Because [my word] findeth no place in you.

What things [I] have seen with the Father I am speaking;

[ye] also, then, <what things ye have heard from your father> are doing.

33 They answered and said unto him—

Our father [is] Abraham.

Jesus saith unto them—

If children of Abraham ye are [The works of Abraham are ye doing.

But [now] ye are seeking [to kill me],—

A man who [the truth, unto you; hath spoken.

Which I have heard from God:

[This] [Abraham] did not.

34 [Ye] are doing the works of your father. They said unto him—

We [of fornication] were not born:

One father have we,—God.

35 Jesus said unto them—

If [God] had been your father ye had been loving me,' For [I] [from God] came forth, and am here;

For [not even of myself] have I come, But [he] sent me forth.

Wherefore is it, that [my speech] ye do not understand?

Because ye cannot hear my word.

36 [Ye] are [of your father—the adversary].

And [the covetings of your father; ye choose to be doing.

He] was [a murderer] from the beginning, And [in the truth] he stood not; Because truth is not in him:

<Whensoever he speaketh falsehood> Of his own he speaketh; Because [false] he is, and [the father of it].

But [as for me]

<Because the truth I speak> ye do not believe me.

37 Which of you convicteth me of sin?

<If truth I speak> [wherefore] do ye not believe me?

38 He that is of God heareth the sayings of God;

Therefore do ye not hear, because [of God] ye are not.

39 The Jews answered, and said unto him—

Do [we] not [well] say; [Thou] art [a Samaritan], and hast [a demon].

40 Jesus answered—

[I] have not [a demon]; But honour my Father; And [ye] dishonour me.

41 [Ye] are doing the works of your father. They said unto him—

First and foremost [Even what I speak unto you].

Many things have I concerning you to speak, and to judge;

But he who sent me is true, and I [what things I heard from him] the same speak I unto the world.

They noted not that as touching the Father unto them he was speaking.

Jesus, therefore, said—

<Whensoever ye shall lift up the Son of Man> Then shall ye know, that [I] am he, And [of myself] am doing [nothing];

But [just as the Father taught me] [the same things] am I speaking.

And he that sent me is [with me]: He hath not left me alone. Because [I] [the things that please him] ever do.

As he was speaking these things [many] believed on him.

Jesus was saying, therefore, unto the Jews who had believed on him—

If [ye] abide in my word [Of a truth] my disciples ye are; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

They made answer unto him—

Seed of Abraham [are we], And unto no one [have been brought into bondage] at any time;

How sayest thou [Free] shall ye be made?

Jesus answered them—

Verily, verily I say unto you:

<Every one who committeth sin> is [a slave] [of sin] :

Now [the slave] doth not abide in the house [evermore].

80 But [I] seek not my glory: There is' one who seeketh and judgeth.
81 Verily, verily I say unto you: <If anyone shall keep | my word|>
[Death] shall he not see, unto times age-abiding.
22 The Jews said unto him—
[Now] we know that [a demon] thou hast:—
[Abraham] died, and [the prophets],
And yet [thou] sayest:
<If anyone shall keep | my word|>
In nowise shall he taste of death, unto times age-abiding.
53 Surely [thou] art not [greater] than our father Abraham—who, indeed, died?
And [the prophets] died:—
[Whom] makest thou thyself?
54 Jesus answered—
<If [I] glorify myself> [my glory] is [nothing]: It is [my Father] that glorifieth me,—
Of whom [ye] say—He is [your God]!
55 And yet ye have not come to know him;
But [I] do know him:
<If I say I know him not>
I shall be like you—[false];
But I know him, and [his word] am I keeping.
56 [Abraham, your father] exulted that* he should see my' day;
And he saw, and rejoiced.
57 The Jews, therefore, said unto him—
[Fifty] years old [not yet art thou, And [Abraham] hast thou seen?
58 Jesus said unto them—
Verily, verily I say unto you:
<Before | Abraham| came into existence>
[I, am'].
89 They took up stones, therefore, that they might cast at him; but [Jesus] was hidden, and went forth out of the temple.
§ 16. Jesus heals a Blind Man; and avows himself The Good Shepherd.
9 And [passing] along he saw a man, blind from birth. 2 And his disciples questioned him, saying—Rabbi! who sinned, this man or his parents, That [blind] he should be born?
3 Jesus answered—
Neither [this man] sinned, nor his parents; But...that the works of God should be made manifest in him.
4 We must needs be working the works of him that sent me, while it is [day]: There cometh a night, when [no one] can work.
5 <Whensoever I may be | in the world|> I am [the light] of the world.
6 [These things] having said, he spat on the ground, and made clay with the spittle, and laid the clay upon his eyes; 7 and said unto him—

Withdraw! wash' in the pool of Siloam,—which is to be translated, Sent. He went away, therefore, and washed, and came [seeing].
8 <The neighbours, therefore, and they who used to observe him aforesay—that he was a beggar> were saying—
Is not [this] he that used to sit and beg?
9 [Others] were saying—
'Tis [the same].
[Others] were saying—
Nay! but he is [like him].
He was saying—
[He] am he.
10 So they were saying unto him—
How [then] were thine eyes opened?
11 [He] answered—
[The man that is called Jesus] made [clay], and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me:
Withdraw unto the pool of Siloam, and wash.
<Going away, therefore, and washing> I received sight.
12 And they said unto him— Where is [he]? He saith— I know not.
13 They bring him unto the Pharisees—[him at one time blind] 14 Now it was Sabbath, on the day when Jesus made [the clay], and opened his eyes.
15 [Again] therefore, the Pharisees also questioned him, as to how he received sight. And [he] said unto them—
[Clay] laid he upon mine eyes, and I washed,—and do see.
16 Certain' from among the Pharisees, therefore, were saying—
This' man is not [from God], because [the Sabbath] he keepeth not.
[Others] [however] were saying—
How can a sinful man [such signs as these]' be doing? And there was [a division] among them.
17 So they were saying unto the blind man, again—
What dost thou[ say concerning him, in that he opened thine eyes? And [he] said—
[ A prophet] is he.
18 The Jews, therefore, did not believe, concerning him, that he was blind, and received sight,—until they called the parents of him that had received sight, 19 and questioned them, saying—
Is [this] your son, of whom [ye] say, that [blind] he was [born]?
How, then, seeth he [even now]?
20 His parents, therefore, answered, and said—
We know that [this] is our son, and that [blind] he was born;
21 But [how he now seeth]: we know not, Or [who opened his eyes] [we] know not,— Question [him], he is [of age],—
[He] [concerning himself] shall speak.
22 [These things] said his parents, because they were in fear of the Jews,—for [already] had the Jews agreed together, that [if anyone should

* As it to say: "Was he ever blind!"
confess | him to be Christ > an excommunicant from the synagogue should he be made.

So they called the man a second time—[him] who had been blind, and said unto him—
Give glory unto God!

[He] therefore, answered—
Whether he is a sinner | I know not:
One thing I know,—That whereas I was [blind] > now I see!

They said, therefore, unto him—
What did he unto thee? How opened he thine eyes?

He answered them—
I told you just now, and ye did not hear:
Why | again | do ye wish to hear?
Are ye also | wishing to become | his disciples?*

And they reviled him, and said—
| Thou | art | the disciple | of that man |
But | [we] | are | Moses' | disciples:—

We know that | [God] | unto sinners | doth not hearken;
But | if one be a worshipper of God | and be doing | his will /> [Unto this one] he hearkeneth.

Out of age-past time | hath it never been heard, | that anyone opened the eyes of one who | blind | had been born.

If this man were not | from God | he could have done nothing.

They answered and said unto him—
In sins | wast | thou | born | altogether;
And art | thou teaching | us? |
And they cast him out.

Jesus heard that they had cast him out: and [finding him] said—
Dost | thou believe on the Son of Man?

He answered | and said |—
And | who | is he, Sir, that I may believe on him?

Jesus said unto him—
Thou hast both seen him and | he that is speaking with thee is | [he]|

And | he | said—
I believe, Sir!

And worshipped him.

And Jesus said—
<For judgment> | [I] | unto this world | came:
That | they who were not seeing | might see,
And | they who were seeing | might become | blind.>

They of the Pharisees who were with’ him heard | these things, and said unto him—
Are | [we also] | blind?

Jesus said unto them—
<If | blind | ye had been> | ye had not had sin;
But | now | ye say. We see | your sin |

Verily, verily | I say unto you:—
He that entereth not | through the door | into the fold of the sheep,
But goeth up from another place>

That man is | [a thief] and | [a robber].

But | if he that entereth through the door | is | shepherd | of the sheep:

To him | the porter openeth, And | the sheep | unto his voice | hearken;
And | his own | sheep | he calleth by name, and leadeth them forth.

As soon as | all his own | he hath put forth>.
Before them | he moveth on, And | the sheep | follow him’, because they know his voice;

But | a stranger | will they in nowise follow, but will flee from him, Because they know not the voice | of strangers.

This similitude spake Jesus unto them; but those men understood not what the things were which he was speaking unto them.

Jesus, therefore, said | again—

Verily, verily | I say unto you:—
| [I] | am the door of the sheep:

All as many as came before me | are | thieves | and | robbers;
But the-sheep hearkened not unto them.

| [I] | am the door:

| Through me | if anyone enter> He shall be saved, And shall come in and go out, and pasture shall find.

The thief cometh not. Save that he may thief and slay and destroy:

| came, That | life | they might have, And | above measure | might have.

| [I] | am the good shepherd:

The good shepherd | his life | layeth down | for the sheep.

The hireling

Even because he is no shepherd, Whose own’ the sheep are not>
Vieweth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth,—  And | the wolf | seizeth them and scattereth,—
Because | a hireling | he is, and hath no care for the sheep.

| [I] | am the good shepherd, And know my own,
And I know the Father; I lay down for the sheep.

And other sheep have I, which are not of this fold: all those also I must needs bring, and unto my voice they will hear, and there shall come to be one fold.

Therefore doth the Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might receive it again: I have authority to lay it down, and I have authority to receive it again; for this commandment received I from my Father.

A division again took place among the Jews, because of these words. But many of them believed on him, and said: ‘A demon hath he, and is mad;— why do ye hear him?’ Others said: ‘These sayings are not those of one demonized;— Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?’

The feast of dedication took place at that time, in Jerusalem; it was winter, and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the porch of Solomon. The Jews, therefore, surrounded him, and were saying unto him: ‘How long holdest thou our lives in suspense? If thou art the Christ, tell us plainly.’

Jesus answered them: I told you, and ye believe not: the works which I do in the name of my Father— the same bear witness concerning me. But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep.

My sheep unto my voice will hear, and I know them, and they follow me, and no one shall carry them out of my hand. What my Father hath given me is greater than all, for no one can carry off out of the hand of my Father.

And I and the Father are one. The Jews again lifted up stones to stone him; but Jesus answered them: ‘Many works have I showed you, noble ones from my Father: For which of those works are ye stoning me?’

The Jews answered him— Concerning a noble work are we not stoning thee;— But concerning profane speech,— And because thou being a man, art making thyself God.

Is it not written in your law: If those he called gods, unto whom the word of God came— And the Scripture cannot be broken—> Of him whom the Father hallowed and sent forth into the world are ye saying— Thou speakest profanely, Because I said Son of God I am! If I am not doing the works of my Father do not believe in me; But if I am doing them— Even though in me ye believe not— In the works believe,— That ye may get to know and go on to know, That the Father is in me, I am in the Father.

They were therefore again seeking to take him; and he went forth out of their hand. And he went away again, beyond the Jordan, unto the place where John was at the first, and he abode there.

Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, of the village of Mary and Martha her sister. And Mary was she who anointed the Lord with perfume, and wiped his feet with her hair,— whose brother Lazarus was sick. The sisters, therefore, sent out unto him saying— Lord, see! he whom thou tenderly lovest is sick.

But Jesus hearing, said— This sickness is not unto death, But for the glory of God, — That the Son of God may be glorified thereby.

Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus. When, therefore, he heard that he... was sick; then, indeed, he abode in the place where he was two days. Then, after this, he saith unto the disciples—

Let us be leading on into Judaea again.

The disciples say unto him—

Rabbi! just now were the Jews seeking to stone thee,—

And, again, goest thou thither?

Jesus answered—

Are there not twelve hours in the day? If one walk in the day, he doth not stumble, because the light of this world he seeth; But if one walk in the night, he stumbleth, because the light is not in him.

These things he said, and after this he saith unto them—

Lazarus, our dear friend, hath fallen asleep; But I am going, that I may awake him.

The disciples, therefore, said unto him—

Lord! if he have fallen asleep, he will recover.

But Jesus had spoken concerning his death; whereas they supposed that concerning the taking of rest in sleep he had been speaking.

Jesus, therefore, then said unto them plainly—

Lazarus died; and I rejoice, for your sake,—that ye may believe,—that I was not there;

But let us be going unto him.

Thomas, therefore, the one called Didymus, said unto his fellow-disciples—

Let us also be going, that we may die with him.

Jesus, therefore, coming, found that four days already had he been in the tomb.

Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off; and many from among the Jews had come unto Martha and Mary, that they might console them concerning their brother.

Martha, therefore, when she heard that Jesus was coming, was about to meet him; but Mary, in the house, remained sitting.

Martha therefore, said unto Jesus—

Lord! if thou hast been here, my brother had not died.

And now I know, that whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give unto thee.

Jesus saith unto her—

Thy brother shall rise.

Martha saith unto him—

I know that he shall rise, in the resurrection, in the last day.

Jesus saith unto her—

I am the resurrection and the life: He that believeth on me, even though he die, shall live again!

Shall in anywise die unto times age-abiding!

Believest thou this?

She saith unto him—

Yea, Lord! I have believed. That thou art the Christ, the Son of God,—I who am into the world should come. And this saying, she went away, and called Mary her sister, secretly saying—

The teacher is present, and calleth thee.

And (she) when she heard was roused up quickly, and was coming unto him. Not yet; however, had Jesus come into the village, but was still in the place where Martha met him.

The Jews, therefore, who were with her in the house and consoling her, seeing Mary, that quickly she arose and went out followed her, supposing that she was withdrawing unto the tomb, that she might weep there.

Mary therefore, when she came where Jesus was, seeing him, fell at his feet, saying unto him—

Lord! if thou hast been here, my brother had not died.

Jesus therefore, when he saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping, was indignant in the spirit, and troubled himself, and said—

Where have ye laid him?

They say unto him—

Lord! come and see.

Jesus wept.

The Jews, therefore, were saying—

See! how tenderly he loved him!

But some from among them said—

Could not this man, who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that this one also should not have died?

Jesus therefore, again being indignant within himself, cometh unto the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone was lying thereon.

Jesus saith—

Take ye away the stone!

Martha, the sister of the deceased, saith unto him—

Lord! by this time, he stinketh, for it is four days.

Jesus saith unto her—

Said I not unto thee, That if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God? So they took away the stone. And Jesus, lifted up his eyes on high, and said—

Father! I thank thee, thou didst hear me:

I knew, that always, unto me, thou dost hearken; But for the sake of the multitude standing around I spake,—That they might believe that thou didst send me forth.

And these things having saith, with a loud voice, he cried out—

Lazarus! come forth!
He that was dead came forth, bound feet and hands with bandages, and his face with a napkin was bound about. Jesus saith unto them—

Loose him, and let him go.

Many therefore from among the Jews, who had come unto Mary, and gazed on what he did, believed on him; but certain from among them went away unto the Pharisees, and told them what Jesus had done.

The High-priests and Pharisees, therefore, brought together a high-council, and were saying—

What are we to do, in that this man doeth many signs?

If we let him alone thus all will believe on him, and the Romans will come, and take away both our place and nation.

But a certain one from among them, Caiaphas, being High-priest for that year, said unto them—

Ye know nothing at all; nor do ye take into account, that it is profitable for you that one man should die for the people, and not the whole nation perish.

This however, from himself he spake not, but being High-priest for that year he prophesied, that Jesus was about to die for the nation; and not for the nation only but that the scattered children of God also he might gather together into one. From that day therefore, they took counsel, that they might put him to death.

Jesus therefore, no longer openly was walking among the Jews, but departed thence, into the country near the desert, unto a city called Ephraim; and there abode, with his disciples.

Now the passover of the Jews was at hand, and many went up to Jerusalem, out of the country, before the passover, that they might purify themselves. They were therefore seeking Jesus, and were saying one to another, in the temple standing—

How seemeth it unto you? that he will in nowise come unto the feast?

Now the High-priests and the Pharisees had given commands, that if anyone came to know where he was he should inform [them], so that they might seize him.

§ 19. The Anointing at Bethany. Mt. xxvi. 6-12; Mk. xiv. 3-8.

Jesus therefore, six days before the passover came unto Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom Jesus had raised from among the dead.

So they made for him a supper there; and Martha was ministering, but Lazarus was one of them who were reclining with him.

Mary therefore, taking a pound of pure nard perfume, very precious, anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped, with her hair, his feet; and the house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume.

| Chap. xxviii. 14. | e 卜 Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples, he that was about to deliver him up, saith—
| Chap. xi. 2. | Why was this perfume not sold for three hundred denaries, and given unto the destitute?

Howbeit he said this, not that for the destitute he cared but because a thief he was, and holding [the bag] used to carry away what was cast therein.

Jesus, therefore, said—

Let her alone, that for the day of my burial she may observe it;

For the destitute always have ye with you, whereas [me] not always have ye.

The great multitude of the Jews, therefore, got to know that he was [there], and came [not on account of Jesus only] but that Lazarus also they might see, whom he had raised from among the dead.

But the High-priests took counsel that Lazarus also they might put to death; because [many] of the Jews [by reason of him] were withdrawing, and believing on Jesus.

§ 20. The Triumphant Entry. Mt. xxi. 1-11; Mk. xi. 1-10; Lu. xix. 29-38.

On the morrow the great multitude that had come unto the feast hearing that Jesus was coming into Jerusalem took the branches of the palm trees, and went out to meet him, and began crying aloud—

Blessed is he that is coming in the name of the Lord, —

Even the King of Israel!

And Jesus, finding a young ass, took his seat thereon, just as it is written—

Do not fear, O daughter of Zion! Lo! [thy king] cometh, sitting upon the colt of an ass!

These things his disciples noticed not, at the first; but when Jesus was glorified remembered they that these things had for him been written,— and that these things they had done unto him. The multitude, therefore, that was with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him from among the dead, was bearing witness.

On this account the multitude met him also, because they heard that he had done this sign.

The Pharisees therefore, said among themselves—

Ye observe that ye are profiting nothing: See! the world after him hath gone away.

§ 21. The Hour is Come. Final Appeals to the Jews.

Now there were certain Greeks, from among them who were coming up that they might worship in the feast.

These things his disciples noticed not, at the first; but when Jesus was glorified remembered they that these things had for him been written,— and that these things they had done unto him. The multitude, therefore, that was with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him from among the dead, was bearing witness.

On this account the multitude met him also, because they heard that he had done this sign.

The Pharisees therefore, said among themselves—

Ye observe that ye are profiting nothing: See! the world after him hath gone away.

Philip cometh, and telleth Andrew: Andrew and Philip come, and tell Jesus. But Jesus answered them, saying—

The hour hath come, that the Son of Man should be glorified!

Verily, verily, I say unto you: Except the kernel of wheat shall fall into the ground, and die; it shall remain alone: but if it die, it shall bear much fruit. He that loveth his life loseth it; but he that hateth his life in this world shall preserve it unto life everlasting. If any man among you shall be my minister, him shall my Father honor. Now is my soul troubled, and what can I say? Father, save me from this hour! But for your sake I am come unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name! There came a voice out of heaven— I both have glorified it, and will glorify it again.

So the multitude that was standing by, and heard it, were saying—

Ithath thundered. Others were saying—A messenger unto him hath spoken. If anyone with me be ministering, The Father will honor him. If anyone lieth ministering, I will abide in his house. If anyone with me lieth ministering, I will give him the Father's commandment which I have received from him.

Believe on the light,
That sons of light ye may become.

These things spoke Jesus, and, departing, was hid from them. And although such signs as these he had done before them— they were not believing on him:—

Lord! who believed what we have heard?
And the arm of the Lord to whom was it revealed?

He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart;
Let them see with their eyes, and should understand with their heart, and should turn,—

And I should heal them.

These things said Isaiah, because he saw his glory, and spake concerning him. Nevertheless, however even from among the rulers many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they were not confessing him, lest [excommunicants from the synagogue] they should be made; for they loved the glory of men, more than the glory of God. And Jesus cried aloud, and said—

He that believeth on me shall not be judged; but he that believeth not on me is judged already: because I come not that I might judge the world, but that I might save the world. He that believeth on me shall not be judged already; but he that believeth not on me shall be judged already: because I come to judge the world, but that I might save the world. He that believeth not on me shall be judged already: because I come not that I might judge the world, but that I might save the world.

And I know that this commandment is life age-abiding; The things, therefore, which I speak, Just as the Father hath told me So I speak.

§ 22. The Last Supper. Jesus washes his Disciples' Feet, and Comforts their Troubled Hearts.

troubled in spirit, and bare witness, and said—

||Verily, verily| I say unto you—

||One from among you| will deliver me up. b
22|The disciples began to look one at another, being at a loss concerning whom he was speaking.
23One of Jesus' discipkes was reclining in his bosom, one whom Jesus loved: 24so Simon Peter beckoneth unto the same, and saith unto him—

Say Who is it? concerning whom he speaketh. 25<He] falling back thus, upon the breast of Jesus> saith unto him—

Lord! who is it?
26Jesus, therefore, answereth—

||That one| it is for whom ||I| shall dip
the morsel, and give unto him.
So <dipping the morsel> he taketh and giveth it unto Judas, son of Simon Iscariot. 27And after the morsel ||then| entered |Satan| into that man. Jesus, therefore, saith unto him—

||What thou art doing |do quickly! 28But |as to this| none of them who were reclining with him knew| respecting what, he said it to him. 29For |some| were thinking |since
Judas held the bag| that Jesus was saying to
him—

Buy the things of which we have |need| for the feast;
or that |unto the destitute| he should give'something. 30So |he|, taking the morsel, went out straightway;—and it was night. 21<When, therefore, he had gone out> Jesus saith—

||Just now| was |the Son of Man| glorified,
And |God| was glorified in him ;
32And |God| will glorify him |in himself,—
And |straightway| glorify him.
33Dear children!
||Yet a little|| am I |with you|.
Ye shall seek me, and <just as I said unto the Jews.> ||To| whither |||I|| go| *|ye| cannot come >
||Unto you also; I say it |even now|.
34||A new commandment|I give I unto you,--
That ye be loving one another :
<Just as I loved you>
That ||ye also| be loving one another ; c
35||By this| shall all men take knowledge, that |my' disciples| ye are,—
If ye have |love| one to another.

* Mt. x. 49; Lu. ix. 48. "used to love."
* Mt. xxvi. 21; Mt. xiv. 18. Chap. vii. 34; viii. 21.
* Or: "withdrew.
* Is a commandment of a new kind.
* Mt. "was loving," or
* Or: "withdraw."

Lu. vi. 40; xxii. 27.
Chap. xv. 20; Mt. x. 24;
Ps. xiii. 9.
Simon Peter saith unto him—

Lord! whither dost thou withdraw?

Jesus answered—

Whither I withdraw, thou canst not now follow me,

But thou shalt follow hereafter.

Peter saith unto him—

Lord! why cannot I follow thee even now? My life in thy behalf will I lay down.

Jesus answered—

Thy life in my behalf wilt thou lay down?

Verily, verily I say unto thee—In nowise shall a cock crow Till thou hast denied me thrice.

Let not your heart be troubled:

Believe on God, and on me believe. In the house of my Father are many dwellings; or else I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, again am I coming, and will take you home unto myself, That where I am ye also may be. And whither I go ye know the way.

Thomas saith unto him—

Lord! we know not whither thou goest; how know we the way?

Jesus saith unto him—

I am the way and the truth, and the life: No one cometh unto the Father, but through me. If ye had been getting to know me, my Father also had ye known: From henceforth are ye getting to know him, and have seen him.

Philip saith unto him—

Lord! show us the Father, and it suffice us.

Jesus saith unto him—

If long a time as this I have been with you,—And thou hast not come to know me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. How art thou saying, Show us the Father?

Believeth thou not, that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me? The things which I am saying unto you, from myself I speak not; but the Father, within me abiding, doeth his works.

Believe me, that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me:—Or else on account of the works themselves believe ye.

Verily, verily I say unto you—He that believeth on me shall do;

And greater than these shall he do, because I am going,—And because whatsoever ye shall ask in my name the same will I do, That the Father may be glorified in me. If anything ye shall ask in my name the same will I do. If ye be loving me my commandments ye shall keep; And I will request the Father, and Another Advocate will be given unto you, That he may be with you age-abidingly,—

The Spirit of truth,—Which the world cannot receive, Because it beholding it not, nor getteth to know it. But ye are getting to know it; Because with you it abideth, And in you it is.

I will not leave you bereft,—I am coming unto you. Yet a little and the world no longer beholdeth me: But ye behold me,—Because I live. In that day shall ye get to know, That I am in my Father, And ye in me, And I in you.

He that hath my commandments and keepeth them—It is that loveth me; And he that loveth me shall be loved by my Father, And I will love him, and will manifest myself unto him.

Judas, not the Iscariot, saith unto him—Lord! what hath happened, That unto us thou art about to manifest thyself, and not unto the world?—Jesus answered, and said unto him—If any man be loving me My word he will keep, And my Father will love him, And unto him will we come, And an abode with him will we make.

He that loveth me not Doth not keep my word,—And the word which ye hear is not mine, But the Father's, who sent me.

These things have I spoken unto you, With you abiding; But the Advocate, The Holy Spirit, which the Father will send in my name, He will teach you all things.

Or (WH): "shall be."
And will put you in mind of all things which I told you.

27 Peace I leave with you, My own peace give I unto you,—
Not as the world giveth give I unto you:—
Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye heard that I said unto you,—
Had ye loved me ye would have rejoiced, that I am going unto the Father,
For the Father is greater than I.

29 But now have I told you, before it cometh to pass,
That whensoever it shall come to pass ye may believe.

30 I also loved you: Abide ye in my love.

31 If my commandments ye keep,
Ye shall abide in my love,—
Just as the Father's commandments have kept,
And abide in his love.

32 These things have I spoken unto you,
That my own joy may be in you; may be,
And your joy may be made full.

33 This is my own commandment, That ye be loving one another,
Just as I loved you.

34 Greater love than this hath no one, That his life* one should lay down in behalf of his friends.

35 Ye are friends of mine,
If ye be doing that which I am commanding you.

36 No longer do I call you servants,
For the servant knoweth not what his lord is doing.

37 But ye I have called friends, Because all things which I heard from my Father> made I known unto you.

38 Not ye chose me, But I chose you, and placed you,
That ye should go your way and bear fruit—
And your fruit should abide:
That whatsoever ye should ask the Father in my name> he might give unto you.

39 These things I command you, That ye be loving one another.

40 If the world is hating you> Ye are getting to know that I, before you> it hath hated.

41 If of the world ye had been, The world> of its own had been fond; But because of the world ye are not, On the contrary I chose you out of the world,
Therefore> the world doth hate you.

42 Remember the word which I spake unto you: A servant is not greater than his lord. If me they persecuted> ye too will they persecute,—
If my word they kept> your own also> will they keep.

44 But all these things will they do unto you, on account of my name, Because they know not him that sent me.

45 Had I not come and spoken unto them Sin had they none; But now> have they no excuse for their sin.

46 He that hateth me> hateth my Father also.

47 Had I not done among them the works which no other had done Sin had they none;

* Or: “vine-dresser.”
* Chap. xiv. 13.
* Chap. xiii. 10.
* Chap. xii. 11, 15.
* Chap. ix. 41.
* Chap. xiii. 34.
But now, have they, both seen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But that the word which in their law is written, might be fulfilled—

They hated me without cause.*

26 Whosoever the Advocate shall come, Whom I will send unto you from the Father,—

The Spirit of truth, which from the Father cometh forth—

He shall bear witness concerning me; And ye also shall bear witness, Because from the beginning ye are with me.

16 These things I have spoken unto you, That ye may not be caused to stumble:

Nay! there cometh an hour, That everyone who killeth you shall think to be rendering divine service unto God:

3 And these things will they do, Because they got to know, neither the Father nor me.

4 But these things I have told you,—

That whosoever their hour shall come, Ye may remember, that thereof I told you.

5 These things, however, I told you not, from the beginning,

Because I was with you;

But if you go, I go my way unto him that sent me, And not one from among you questioneth me—

Whither goest thou?

6 But because these things I have told you, "Sorrow hath filled your heart."

7 But if I the truth am telling you —

It is profitable for you that I depart; For if I should not depart

The Advocate would in nowise come unto you,

But if I go,

I will send him unto you.

8 And having come—

He will reprove the world—

Concerning sin, And concerning righteousness, And concerning judgment:

9 Concerning sin, indeed >

Because they are not believing on me;

10 But concerning righteousness

Because unto the Father, I go my way, and no longer do ye behold me;

11 And concerning judgment

Because the ruler of this world hath been judged.

12 Yet many things have I unto you to be saying,

But ye cannot bear them just now:

Howbeit as soon as he hath come—

The Spirit of truth>

He will guide you into all truth:

For he will not speak from himself, But whatsoever he beareth he will speak,

And the coming things will he announce unto you.

14 He shall glorify me:

For of mine shall he receive, and announce unto you.

15 All things, whatsoever the Father hath are mine;

And therefore said I—

Of mine shall he receive, and announce unto you.

16 A little while, and no longer ye behold me, And again a little while, and ye shall see me.

17 Some of his disciples, therefore, said one to another—

What is this which he is saying to us:—

A little while, and ye behold me not, And again a little while, and ye shall see me;

And—

Because I go my way unto the Father!

18 They were saying, therefore—

What is this which he saith:— A little while!

We know not what he is saying.

19 Jesus took note, that they were wishing to question him, and said unto them—

Concerning this are ye enquiring one with another,—

Because I said:—

A little while, and ye behold me not, And again a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily I say unto you—

Ye shall weep and lament, But the world shall rejoice:

Ye shall be grievous, But your grief shall be turned.

21 A woman, as soon as she is about to bring forth, Hath grief, because her hour hath come; But as soon as she hath given birth to the child, No longer remembereth she the anguish, By reason of the joy, that a human being into the world hath been born.

22 And ye, therefore, now indeed have grief;
But [again] will I see you,
And your heart shall rejoice,— *a
And [your joy] no one shall force *b from you.
23 And [in that day] shall ye request *e me [nothing]:—
Verily, verily I say unto you—
<Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father>
He will give you [in my name].
21 Until even now ye have asked nothing in my name:
Be asking, and ye shall receive,—
That [your joy] may be made full.
26 These things in similitudes have I spoken unto you:
There cometh an hour,
When [no longer in similitudes] will I speak unto you,
But [openly, concerning the Father] will I tell you.
25 <In that day>
[In my name] shall ye ask:—
And I say not that I will request the Father for you;
27 For [the Father himself] dearly loveth you,
Because [ye] have dearly loved me,
And believed that I [from the Father] came forth:—
28 I came forth out of the Father,
And have come into the world,—
Again I leave the world,
And go unto the Father.
29 His disciples say—
See! [now] openly art thou speaking,
And not a single similitude art thou using:
30 [Now] we know, that thou knowest all things,
And hast [no need] that one be questioning thee'.
31 Hereby do we believe,
That [from God] thou camest forth:—
32 Jesus answered them—
[As yet] ye believe:
33 Lo! there cometh an hour, and hath come,
That ye should be scattered, [each] unto his own home; and [me], [alone] should leave;—
And yet I am not [alone],
But [the Father] is [with me].
35 These things I have spoken unto you,
That [in me] ye may have [peace];
[In the world] ye have [tribulation];
But be taking courage,—
[I] have overcome the world.

§ 23. Jesus prays for His Disciples.
17 These things spake Jesus, and [lifting up his eyes unto heaven] said:—
Father! The hour is come!
Glorify thy Son,
That [the Son] may glorify [thee],—
2 Even as thou gavest him authority over all flesh,
That <as touching whatsoever thou hast given him>
He might give unto them [life age-abiding]. *a
3 And [this] is the age-abiding life,
That they get to know thee, [the only' real] God],
And him whom thou didst send, [Jesus Christ], *b
4 I glorified thee on the earth,
[The work] finishing, which thou hast given me that I should do.
5 And [now] glorify me—[thou, Father],
With thine ownself, with the glory which I had,
before the world's existence, [with thee].
6 I manifested thy name unto the men whom thou gavest me out of the world:
[Thine] they were,
And [to me] thou gavest them,
And [thy word] have they kept:
7 [Now] have they come to know,
That [all things, as many as thou gavest me] are [from thee];
8 And [the declarations which thou gavest me] have I given them,
And [they] received them, and came to know in truth,
That [from thee] came I forth,—
And they believed
That [thou] didst send me forth. *d
9 [I] concerning them make request:
Not [concerning the world; do I make request,
But concerning them whom thou hast given me,
Because [thine] they are,—
And [all my possessions] are [thine].
And [thy possessions] are mine,*
And I have been glorified in them.
11 And [no longer] am I in the world,
And [they]* are [in the world],—
And [I] unto thee am coming.
Holy Father!
Keep them in thy name which thou hast given me,
That they may be one, as [we]. *h
12 <When I was with them>
[I] kept them in thy name which thou hast given me,—
And I kept watch,
And [none from among them] went to destruction,—
Save the son of destruction,
That [the Scripture] might be fulfilled.
13 But [now] I unto thee am I coming;
And [these things] am I speaking in the world,
14 I have given them thy word, and they have accepted it, even as I am not of the world. Because they are not of the world— Even as I am not of the world.

15 I request not, that thou wouldst take them out of the world, but that thou wouldst keep them out of the evil:

16 Of the world they are not, even as I am not of the world.

17 Hallow them in the truth:

§1. isthe own word is [truth].

18 Even as thou didst send me forth into the world,

19 And on their behalf, | I, | hallow myself, That | they also | may have become hallowed in truth.

20 Not however concerning these alone' do I make request, But concerning them also who believe through their word on me:

21 That they all may be one,— Even as thou Father in me,

22 And | I | in thee,— That | they also | in us may be:—

23 That the world may believe that thou didst send me forth.

24 Father!

§2. As touching that which thou hast given me I desire— That <where I am> they also may be [with me], That they may behold my own glory which thou hast given me,— Because thou lovest me, before the foundation of the world.

25 Righteous Father!

§3. And so the world came not to know thee; But | I | came to know thee, And | these | came to know That | thou didst send me forth:

26 And I made known unto them thy name, and will make known,— That the love wherewith thou lovest me| In them | may be, And | I | in them.

27 Having said these things, Jesus went out, with his disciples, across the winter-torrent of the Kedron, where was a garden,— into which he entered, and his disciples.

28 Now Judas also, who was delivering him up, knew the place; because of it had Jesus been gathered there, with his disciples. Therefore <receiving the band, and officers from among the High-priests and from among the Pharisees> cometh thither, with lights and torches and weapons. Jesus therefore, knowing all things coming upon him, went forth, and saith unto them—

§4. Whom seek ye?

They answered him— Jesus, the Nazarene.

He saith unto them—

| I | am he. Now Judas also, who was delivering him up, was standing with them. <When, therefore, he said unto them > they went backwards, and fell to the ground.

7 | Again | therefore, he questioned them—

| Whom | seek ye? And | they | said—

Jesus, the Nazarene.

8 Jesus answered— I told you | I | am he | If, then, ye seek me! let these go their way; —

9 that the word might be fulfilled which he had said—

| As touching them whom thou hast given me > I lost from among them, [not so much as one].

10 Simon Peter, therefore, having a sword I drew it, and smote the High-priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. Now the name of the servant was Malchus. Jesus, therefore, said unto Peter—

11 Thrust the sword into its sheath:—

The cup which the Father hath given me shall I in anywise not drink it?

12 The band, therefore, and the captain, and the officers of the Jews apprehended Jesus, and bound him, and led him unto Annas, first; for he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the High-priest of that year. Now Caiaphas was he that gave counsel unto the Jews, that it was profitable for one man to die in behalf of the people. And Simon Peter was following with Jesus, also another disciple. But that disciple was known unto the High-priest, and entered in, with Jesus, into the court of the High-priest; whereas Peter remained standing at the door outside. The other disciple, therefore, was known of the High-priest [went out] and spake a Or 'WH': "I," unem- phatic.

unto the portress, and brought in Peter. The female servant, therefore, the portress, saith unto Peter—

Art thou also from among the disciples of this man?

He saith—

I am not!

Now the servants and the officers were standing by, having made [a coal fire] because it was cold, and were warming themselves; and Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself.

The High-priest therefore questioned Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his teaching. Jesus answered him—openly have spoken unto the world,— ever taught [in synagoge, and in the temple, where all the Jews' gather together; and [in secret] spake nothing:

Why questionest thou me? question them who have heard, what I spake unto them. See! these know what I said.

And when these things he had said, one of the officers who was standing by gave a smart blow to Jesus, saying—

Thus answerest thou the High-priest!

Jesus answered him—

If with abuse I spake bear witness of the abuse;

But if with respect why smitest thou me?

Annas therefore sent him forth, bound, unto Caiaphas the High-priest.

Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said, therefore, unto him—

Art thou also from among his disciples?

He denied, and said—

I am not!

Saith one from among the servants of the High-priest, being kinsman of him whose ear Peter cut off,—

Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

Again, therefore, Peter denied. And straightway, a cock crew.

§ 25. Jesus before Pilate. Mt. xxvii. 1; Mk. xv. 1; Lu. xxiii. 1.

So they lead Jesus from Caiaphas unto the judgment hall. Now it was early; and they themselves entered not into the judgment-hall, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover. Pilate, therefore, went forth outside unto them, and saith—

What accusation bring ye against this man?

They answered and said unto him—

If this one had not been doing mischief he had not delivered him up.

Pilate therefore, said unto them—

I'Ve! take him, and [according to your law] judge ye him.

The Jews said unto him—

| Unto us! | it is not allowed, to kill anyone! — that [the word of Jesus] might be fulfilled.

which he spake, signifying by what manner of death he was about to die.

Pilate, therefore, entered again into the judgment hall; and addressed Jesus, and said unto him—

Art thou the king of the Jews?

Jesus answered—

Of thyself art thou this thing saying; or did others tell thee concerning me?

Pilate answered—

Am I [a Jew]? [Thine own nation, and the High-priests] delivered thee up unto me! [What] hast thou done?

Jesus answered—

My kingdom is not of this world:

If of this world had been my kingdom mine own officers would have been striving, that I should not be delivered up unto the Jews:

But now [my kingdom] is not from hence.

Pilate, therefore, said unto him—

And yet thou art not a king?

Jesus answered—

Thou sayest, that [a king] I am:—

I for this have been born, and [for this] have come into the world,—that I may bear witness unto the truth:

Every one who is of the truth hearkeneth unto my voice.

Pilate saith unto him—

What is truth?

And this saying again he went out to the Jews, and saith unto them—

I find in him not a single fault.

Howbeit ye have a custom, that I should release unto you the king of the Jews:

If ye cries aloud again, saying—

Not this man, but Barabbas!

Now [Barabbas] was a robber.

Then Pilate, therefore, took Jesus, and scourged him. And the soldiers plaiting a crown out of thorns, placed it upon his head, and a purple robe cast they about him; and kept coming unto him, and saying—

Joy to thee! O King of the Jews!—

And were giving unto him smart blows.

And Pilate went forth again outside, and saith unto them—

See! I lend him unto you outside, that ye may take knowledge, that no single fault do I find in him.

Jesus, therefore, came forth outside, wearing the thorn' crown, and the purple' mantle. And he saith unto them—

Lo! the Man!

When, therefore, the High-priests and the officers saw him they cried aloud, saying—

Crucify! Crucify!

Chap. xii.ai.

Or (WH): "Dost thou say that I am a king?": Mt. xxvii. 28; Mk. xv. 17. Or (tr): "Thou sayest it, because I am a king."
Pilate saith unto them—

Ye shall take him, and crucify; for I find not in him a fault.

The Jews answered him—

We have a law, and according to the law he ought to die, because he made himself a king.

But Pilate gave him no answer. He knew that the Chief Priests had put an evil policy into the minds of the people, that he might deliver him unto them.

Therefore delivered he him unto them, that they might crucify him.

They therefore cried aloud saying—

Away! away! Crucify him!

Pilate saith unto them—

Your king shall I crucify? The High-priests answered—

We have no king but Caesar!

Then therefore, he delivered him up unto them, that he might be crucified.

Jesus therefore cried aloud—

Away! away! Crucify him!

Pilate saith unto them—

Your king shall I crucify? The High-priests answered—

We have no king but Caesar!

Then therefore, he delivered him up unto them, that he might be crucified.

They took possession, therefore, of Jesus. And hearing for himself the cross, he went forth unto the so-called Skull-place, which is called, in Hebrew, Golgotha; where they crucified him; and with him other two, on this side and on that, and in the midst, Jesus. And Pilate wrote a title also, and placed on the cross; and there was written—

Jesus, the Nazarene, the King of the Jews.

This' title therefore, read many of the Jews, because near was the place to the city where Jesus was crucified; and it was written in Hebrew in Latin, in Greek.

The High-priests of the Jews, therefore, were saying unto Pilate—

Emphasis of official dignity.

Do not be writing The King of the Jews; but that I am.

Pilate answered—

What I have written I have written! The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments and made four parts, unto each soldier a part; also the tunic. Howbeit, the tunic was without seam, from above woven throughout. They said, therefore, one to another—

Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be;

that, the Scripture might be fulfilled—

They parted my garments amongst them, And (for my vestment) they cast lots:—

Yes verily, the soldiers these things did.

And there were standing by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary the Magdalene.

Jesus therefore, seeing his mother and the disciple whom he loved, saith unto his mother—

O woman, see! thy son! Afterwards he saith unto the disciple—

See! thy mother! And from that hour, the disciple took her unto his own home.

After this Jesus knowing that all things were now fulfilled, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith—I thirst!

A vessel was standing, full of vinegar. A sponge, therefore, full of the vinegar, put about hyssop brought they unto his mouth. When therefore, he had received the vinegar, Jesus said—

It is finished!

And, bowing his head, delivered up his spirit.

The Jews therefore, seeing that already the bodies might not remain upon the cross during the Sabbath,—for that Sabbath day was great—requested Pilate that their legs might be broken, and they be taken away. But when they saw that already he was dead, they brake not his legs; but one of the soldiers, with a spear, pierced his side, and there came out straightway, blood and water. And he knew that he said what was true, that ye also may believe. For these things came to pass, that the Scripture might be fulfilled—

A bone thereof shall not be crushed; and (again) a different Scripture saith—

They shall look unto him whom they pierced.

Mt. xxvii. 36; Mk. xv. 24: Exo. xiii. 19; Ps. xxii. 17; Ps. lxix. 21. As their hope: Ps. xxxiv. 20. Zech. xii. 10.
§ 27. The Burial. Mt. xxvii. 57-61; Mk. xv. 42-47; Lu. xxiii. 50-56.

38 But [after these things] Joseph from Arimathea, being a disciple of Jesus, but having kept it secret for fear of the Jews, requested Pilate, that he might take away the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave permission. He came, therefore, and took away his body. 39 There came, moreover, Nicodemus also,—he that came unto him by night at the first,—bearing a roll of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds' weight. 40 So they received the body of Jesus, and bound it in linen-bandages with the spices, just as it is a custom with the Jews to prepare for burial.

41 Now there was, in the place where he was crucified, a garden; and [in the garden] an unused tomb wherein lay yet no one had been laid. 42 So the disciples, having seen the Lord, left the tomb and went away to prepare the spices as is the custom of the Jews.

§ 28. The Resurrection. Jesus appears to his Disciples. Mt. xxviii. 1-10; Mk. xvi. 1-11; Lu. xxiv. 1-12.

20 But on the first day of the week [Mary the Magdalen] came early, while it is yet [dark], unto the tomb,—and beholdeth the stone, already taken away out of the tomb. 2 She runneth, therefore, and cometh unto Simon Peter, and unto the other disciplo whom Jesus dearly loved, and saith unto them—

They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter, therefore, went out, and the other disciples,—and they were going unto the tomb; and the two were running together, and [the other disciple] outran Peter, and came first unto the tomb; and, stooping aside, beheldeth, lying the linen-bandages, nevertheless he entered not. 4 So Simon Peter also cometh, following him, and entered into the tomb, and vieweth the linen-bandages lying,—and the napkin, which was upon his head, not [with the linen-bandages] lying, but apart, folded up into one place. 5 Then entered, therefore, the other disciple also, who had come first unto the tomb, and he saw and believed. 6 For [not yet] knew they the Scripture, that [he must needs] from among the dead [arise]. 7 The disciples, therefore, departed again, by themselves.

11 Howbeit [Mary] remained standing against the tomb outside, weeping. So then [as she wept] she stooped aside into the tomb, and beheldeth two messengers, in white garments, sitting, one at the head, and the other at the feet, where had been lying the body of Jesus. 12 And they saith unto her—

Woman! why weepest thou? She saith unto them—

They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

* Or (WH): "mixture."
* Or (ml): "ran forward more quickly than."
Then saith he unto Thomas—
Reach thy finger hither, and see my hands, and reach thy hand, and press into my side,—and become not disbelieving, but believing.

Thomas answered, and said unto him—

My Lord, and my God!

Jesus saith unto him—

Because thou hast seen me hast thou believed? Yea, Lord! thou knowest that I am fond of thee.

Jesus saith unto him—

Be feeding my lambs.

He saith unto him—

Be shepherding my sheep.

Simon Peter saith unto them—

I go a fishing!

They say unto him—

We also! go with thee!

They went out, and got up into the boat, and during that night they caught nothing.

But morning by this time drawing on, Jesus stood upon the beach; nevertheless the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

Simon, therefore, saith unto them—

Children! perhaps ye have nothing to eat? They answered him—

No.

And [he] saith unto them—

Cast the net [on the right] side of the boat,—and ye shall find.

They cast, therefore; and [no longer] were they able to draw it, for the multitude of the fishes.

That disciple, whom Jesus loved, saith unto Peter—

It is the Lord! Simon Peter, therefore, hearing that it was the Lord, girded about him [his upper garment],—for he was naked; and cast himself into the sea; but [the other] disciples came [by the little boat],—for they were not farther from the land than about two hundred cubits off,—dragging the net of fishes.

So when they got out upon the land, they beheld a coal* fire lying, and fish lying over, and bread.

Jesus saith unto them—

Bring of the fish which ye caught just now.

Simon Peter, therefore, went on board, and drew the net on to the land,—full of large fishes, a hundred and fifty-three; and though they were so many, the net was not rent. Jesus saith unto them—

Come! break your fast.

Not one of the disciples was venturing to ask him—

Who art thou?

knowing that it was the Lord.

Jesus cometh, and taketh the bread, and giveth unto them; and the fish [in like manner].

This already is the third time Jesus was manifested unto the disciples, after he was raised from among the dead.

§ 30. Peter restored to his Apostleship. Conclusion.

<When, therefore, they had broken their fast> Jesus saith unto Simon Peter—

Simon, son of John! lovest thou me more than these?

He saith unto him—

Yes, Lord! thou knowest that I am fond of thee.

He saith unto him—

Be feeding my lambs.

He saith unto him—

Be shepherding my sheep.

When therefore they had broken their fast> Jesus saith unto Simon Peter—

Simon, son of John! lovest thou me more than these?

He saith unto him—

Yes, Lord! thou knowest that I am fond of thee.

He saith unto him—

Be feeding my lambs.

He saith unto him—

Be shepherding my sheep.

Verily, verily I say unto thee—

<When thou wast younger> thou usedst to gird thyself, and to walk whithersoever thou didst choose;

But when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch out thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and bear thee whither thou dost not choose.

Now this he said, signifying by what manner of death he should glorify God.* And having said this he saith unto him—

Be following me.

Peter, turning about, beheldeth the disciple whom Jesus loved,1 following,—who also reclined during the supper upon his breast, and said—

Lord! who is it that is delivering thee up?

Peter, therefore, seeing this one, saith unto Jesus—

Lord! and [this one]; what?

Jesus saith unto him—

* Or: "agapai.
* Or: "philein.
* Mi: "Iambline"—"dear lamb.
* F. P. I. 16; MI: "was loving," or "used to love."
<If I will that he remain until I come, what is that to thee?

This word, therefore, went forth unto the brethren, that disciple should not die. Howbeit, Jesus did not tell him, he should not die; but if I will that he remain until I come, what is that to thee?

This is the disciple who beareth witness concerning these things, and who hath written these things; and we know that true is his witness.

Now there are many other things also, which Jesus did, which indeed, if they were to be written one by one, not even the world itself, I suppose, would contain the books which must be written.

A Section concerning an Adulteress.

And they went, each unto his own house; but Jesus went unto the Mount of Olives.

And early in the morning again came he into the temple, and all the people were coming unto him; and sitting down, he began to teach them.

And the Scribes and the Pharisees bring a woman, caught in adultery; and setting her in the midst, they say unto him—

Teacher! this woman hath been caught in the very act of committing adultery!

Now in the law Moses gave command to stone such as these. What, then, dost thou say?

But, however, they were saying, by way of testing him,—that they might have whereof to accuse him. But Jesus stooping down with his finger wrote in the ground. When, however, they still continued questioning him, he lifted himself up and said unto them—his of you that is without sin let him first cast at her a stone; and again stooping down he wrote in the ground.

And they who heard began to go out one by one, beginning from the elders,—and he was left alone; the woman also being in the midst.

And lifting himself up, Jesus said unto her—

Woman, where are they? hath no one condemned thee?

And she said—No one, Sir!

And Jesus said—Neither do I condemn thee; be going thy way; henceforth be sinning no more.

*Or add (WH): "concerning her."

ACTS OF APOTLENS.

§ 1. The Prologue: Jesus appears unto his Disciples, gives them charge, and ascends.

1 The first narrative indeed, made concerning all things, O Theophilus, which Jesus began both to do and teach,—until the day when having given command unto the apostles, whom through Holy Spirit he had chosen he was taken up; unto whom he also presented himself alive; after he had suffered, by many sure tokens, throughout forty days, making himself visible unto them, and speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God. And being in company with them he charged them, from Jerusalem not to absent themselves, but—

To abide around the promise of the Father which ye have heard of me,

Because John indeed, immersed with water;

But ye in Holy Spirit shall be immersed,—

After not many of these days.

They therefore, having come together began to question him, saying—

Lord! art thou at this time? duly establishing the kingdom unto Israel?

He said unto them—

It is not yours to get to know times or seasons which the Father hath put in his own authority;

But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit cometh upon you, and ye shall be my witnesses, both in Jerusalem and in all Judaea and Samaria, and as far as the uttermost part of the land.

And having said these things as they were beholding he was lifted up, and a cloud caught him away from their eyes. And while they were looking steadfastly into heaven, as he was going his way; then lo! two men had takentheirstandbesidethem, in white garments,—who also said—
Men of Galilee! why stand ye looking into heaven?
This Jesus, who hath been taken up from ye into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye yourselves have gazed upon him going into heaven.

§ 2. The Disciples return to Jerusalem.
And when they had entered, into the upper-story went they up, where remained behind—both Peter and John and James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus and Simon the zealot, and Judas the son of James. These all were giving constant attention, with one accord, unto the prayer, with [certain] women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

§ 3. Speech of Peter, and Choice of Matthias.
And in these days Peter, standing up in the midst of the brethren, said,—and there was a multitude of names, of one accord, about a hundred and twenty.—
Brethren! It was needful for the Scripture to be fulfilled which the Holy Spirit spoke beforehand, through the mouth of David, concerning Judas,—who became guide unto them who apprehended Jesus; 17 for that he had come to be reckoned among us, and obtained the lot of this ministry.—

And the field was called, in their language, Akeldama, that is, Field of Blood.—

For it is written in the Book of Psalms: Let his encampment become desolate, And let there be none to dwell therein! 4 And—
His overeeship let a different man take! 6
It is needful then that <of the men who [compared with us] during all the time in which the Lord Jesus came in and went out over us, 22 beginning from the immersion by John until the day when he was taken up from us> that [a witness of his resurrection, along with us] should one of these become.

And they appointed two,—Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

And, praying, they said—
Thou Lord! observer of the hearts of all men! Shew forth whom thou hast chosen,—

To take the place of this ministry and apostleship,

From which Judas went aside, to go his way unto his own place.

And they gave lots for them; and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

§ 4. The Day of Pentecost.
And when the day of pentecost 6 was filling up[the number of days] they were all together with one intent; — when there came, suddenly, out of heaven, a sound, just as of a mighty rushing wind,—and it filled all the house where they were sitting; 2 and there appeared unto them—parting asunder—tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each one of them; 4 and they were all filled with Holy Spirit, and began to be speaking with other kinds of tongues, just as [the Spirit] was giving unto them to be sounding forth.

Now there were in Jerusalem, sojourning Jews, reverent men, from every nation, who were under heaven; and this sound occurring the throng came together, and was thrown into confusion, because each one severally heard in his own language, them who were speaking; 7 yes they were beside themselves, and did marvel, saying—

Lo! are not all these who are speaking, Galileans?!

How then do we hear, each one in our own language in which we were born? <Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judaea also and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, Phrygia also and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of the Libys that is towards Cyrene, and the sojourning Romans,—both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabians> we do hear them speaking, in our own tongues, the magnificent things of God.

But they were all beside themselves, and were utterly at a loss, saying [one to another]—
What doth this please to be?

while others in mockery were saying—
With sweet wine are they drunken!

But taking his stand Peter, with the eleven lifted up his voice, and sounded out unto them—
Ye men of Judsea, and all ye who are sojourning in Jerusalem!
Let [this] unto you be [known], And give ear unto my declarations;—

For not, as ye suppose, are these men drunken, for it is the third hour of the day;—

But [this] is that which hath been spoken through the prophet Joel—

And it shall be, in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh; And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, And your young men [visions] shall see, And your elders [dreams] shall dream,—

Lev. xxiii. 15-21; Deu. Or: "one." Ps. cxix. 9-12. Jodi ii. 28-34.
And <crrn upon my men-servants and upon my maid-servants.
In those days> will I pour out of my Spirit,
And they shall prophesy;
And I will set forth wonders in the heaven above,
And signs upon the earth beneath,—
Blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:
Before the coming of the day of the Lord,
the great and manifest [day];
And it shall be—
Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.*
Ye men of Israel! hear these words :—
Jesus the Nazarene, a man pointed out of God unto you, by mighty works and wonders and signs, which God did through him, in your midst, just as ye yourselves know;
I' The same,' by the marked-out counsel and foreknowledge of God given up through the hands of lawless men suspending [ye slew] Whom [God] raised up, loosing the pangs of death, inasmuch as it was not possible for him to continue held fast by it. For [David] saith concerning him—
I foresaw the Lord, before me, continually, Because he is on my right hand, that I may not be shaken; for this reason was my heart made glad, and my tongue exulted,—Yea further, [even] my flesh shall encamp on hope:
Because thou wilt not abandon my soul unto hades,
Neither wilt thou give thy man of loving-kindness to see corruption;
Thou madest known unto me paths of life. Thou wilt make me full of gladness with thy countenance.
Brethren! it is allowable to say with freedom of speech unto you, concerning the patriarch David,—That he both died, and was buried, and [his] tomb is among us until this day.
Being then a prophet, and knowing that with an oath God had sworn unto him of the fruit of his loins, to sit on his throne, with foresight spoke he concerning the resurrection of the Christ—That neither was he abandoned unto hades,
Nor did his flesh see corruption. The same Jesus' hath God raised up, whereof all we are witnesses;
<By the right hand of God therefore, having been exalted, Also [the promise of the Holy Spirit] having received from the Father> He hath poured out this which yourselves do see and hear.

For [David] hath not ascended, into the heavens; but he saith himself—
Said the Lord unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand,
Until I make thy foes thy footstool.
Assuredly, then, let all the house of Israel know:
That both Lord and Christ hath God made him,
Even the same Jesus whom [ye] crucified!
And when they heard this, they were pricked to the heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles—
What are we to do, brethren?
And Peter [said] unto them— Repent ye,
And let each one of you be immersed, in the name of Jesus Christ, into the remission of your sins,—And ye shall receive the free-gift of the Holy Spirit;
For [unto you] is the promise,
And unto your children,—And unto all them who are afar off:
As many soever as the Lord our God shall call unto him.

And with many different words bare he full witness, and went on exhorting them saying—
Be saved from this perverse generation!
They, therefore, who welcomed his word were immersed; and there were added, on that day, about three thousand souls. And they went on to give constant attention—Unto the teaching of the apostles, And unto the fellowship, Unto the breaking of bread, And unto the prayers. And there came, on every soul, ifear, and [many] wonders and signs, through means of the apostles were coming to pass. And all who believed [with one accord] began to hold all things common; and [their possessions and goods] were they selling, and distributing them unto all in so far as anyone had need.
And daily giving attendance with one intent in the temple, and [at home] breaking bread they were partaking of food with exultation and singleness of heart; praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord was adding them who were being saved daily together.

§ 5. The Lame Man Healed.
3 Now Peter and John were going up into the temple, for the hour of prayer—the ninth; a certain man who had been lame from his mother's womb was being carried,—whom they used to lay daily at the door of the temple—the [door] called Beautiful, that he might ask alms of them who were entering into the temple: who <seeing Peter and John about to enter into

 Ps. cxv. 1.
 Or: "reverence."
the temple> was requesting to receive [an alms]. 4 But Peter looking steadfastly at him-- with John— said:

Look on us!

5 And [he] gave heed unto them, expecting to receive [something from them]. 6 But Peter
said--

||Silver and gold|| have I none,
But [what I have] [the same] unto thee do
I give:--

<In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene> Walk!

7 And |laying hold of him by the right’ hand| he raised him up; and |instantly| were his feet and ankles strengthened; 8 and |leaping forward| he stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple ||walking, and leaping, and praising God||

9 And all’ the people saw him, walking and praising God ; 10 and they began to recognise him, that [the same] was he who [for the alms] used to sit at the Beautiful Gate of the temple;— and they were filled with amazement and transport at what had happened unto him. 11 And <as he hold fast Peter and John> all’ the people ran together unto them, in the portico which is called Solomon’s,—greatly amazed. 12 And Peter |seeing it| made answer unto the people:--

Ye men of Israel!!
Why marvel ye at this man?
Or |upon us| why are ye intently looking, as though |by our own’ power or godliness| we had made him walk?

13 <The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob,—
The God of our fathers>—
Hath glorified his servant b Jesus:—
Whom [ye] indeed, delivered up and denied to Pilate’s face,
||When he had adjudged to release him||
14 But [ye] denied [the Holy and Righteous
One],
And claimed a man that was a murderer, to be granted you;
15 But ||the Princeely Leader of Life|| ye slew:—
Whom [God] raised from among the dead, whereof [we] are [witnesses].

16 And [by the faith of his name]
|Unto this man whom ye see and know| hath his name given strength,—
Yea ||the faith which is through him|| hath given unto him this perfect soundness, over against you all’!
17 And |now| brethren, I know that [by way of ignorance] ye acted,—
||Just as even your rulers:||
18 Howbeit ||God||—
<what things he had before declared, through the mouth of all the prophets, for his Christ to suffer>

—did |thus| fulfil!
19 Repent ye, therefore, and turn,—unto the blotting out of your sins;
To the end that, in that case, there may come

* Exo. iii. 6.  b  Is. lii. 15, 15.  c  Ex. xxi. 18, 19 ; cp. 20.  d  Lev. xxi. 20.  e  Or \(WH\) : “our.”  f  Gen. xliii. 8 ; xxvii. 18.  g  Deu. xxi. 15, 18, 19.  h  Or \(WH\) : “the priests.”
10 Be it known unto you all, and unto all the people of Israel: That in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene,— Whom ye crucified, Whom God raised from among the dead,— In him doth this man stand by, in your presence, whole.

11 This is the stone, set at nought by you the builders, Which became the head of the corner; And there is in no one else salvation, For neither is there any other name under heaven, Which hath been set forth among men.

12 And looking at Peter's boldness of speech, and John's, and having discovered that they were unlettered and obscure men, they began to marvel, recognising them also, that they had been with Jesus; seeing the man also, standing with them, even the [man] who had been cured, they had nothing wherewith to contradict. Howbeit ordering them to go forth outside the high-council, they began to confer on another, saying— What are we to do with these men? For, indeed, that an notable sign hath come through their means unto all who are dwelling in Jerusalem is manifest, and we cannot deny it!

13 Nevertheless lest it further spread abroad among the people, let us charge them with threats, to be no more speaking upon this name [to any soul of man].

14 And calling them, they gave them the sweeping charge,— Not to be sounding aloud [or even to be teaching] upon the name of Jesus.

15 For we cannot but be speaking [the things which we have seen and heard]!

16 And they, however, further charging them with threats, let them go, finding [nothing] as to how they might chastise them on account of the people; because [all] were glorifying God for that which had come to pass;— for [more than forty years' old] was the man, upon whom had taken place [this healing sign].

§ 7. The Apostles Triumphant.

22 But when they had been let go, they came unto their own [friends], and told as many things as unto them [the High-priests and Elders] had said. And [they, having heard] [with one accord] uplifted a voice unto God, and said— O Sovereign! Thoul art he that made the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein; a 23 Who by our father, through means of the Holy Spirit, even by the mouth of David thy servant, said— Unto what end did nations rage, And [peoples] busy themselves with empty things?

24 The kings of the earth [stationed themselves], And [the rulers] were gathered together, with one intent.

25 Against the Lord, And against his Christ. b

26 For they were gathered together, a truth, in this city, against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hadst anointed,— both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with them of the nations, and peoples of Israel;— to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel marked out beforehand to come to pass.

27 As to the present things, then, O Lord,— Look upon their threats, and grant unto thy servants with all freedom of utterance to be speaking thy word, by stretching forth thy hand for healing, and by the coming to pass of both signs and wonders through the name of thy holy servant Jesus.

28 And when they had made supplication the place was shaken in which they were gathered together, and they were filled, one and all, with the Holy Spirit, and began speaking the word of God with freedom of utterance.

29 And the throng of them that believed, had one heart and soul, and not so much as one was saying that [aught of his goods] was his own, but they had all things common. And with great power were the apostles giving forth their witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus; great favour also was upon them all.

30 For there was not so much as anyone [lacking] among them; for as many as were possessors of lands or houses [selling them] were bringing the prices of the things that were being sold, and laying them at the feet of the Apostles, while on the other hand they were distributing unto each one, in so far as any one had [need].

31 And Joseph, who had been surnamed Barnabas, by the Apostles, which is to be translated Son of Exhortation, a a Levite, a Cyprian by nation;

32 And sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.

§ 8. Ananias and Sapphira.

5 But a certain man, Ananias by name, with Sapphira his wife sold a possession, and kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it; and bringing a certain part, [at the feet of the Apostles] he laid it. But Peter said— Ananias! wherefore did Satan fill thy heart, that thou shouldst deal falsely with the Holy Spirit, and keep back part of the price of the field?

4 "While it remained" was it not [as thine own] it remained? and "when sold" was it not [in thine own authority] that it still continued? Why was it that thou didst contrive in thy heart this deed?
Thou hast not dealt falsely [with men] but [with God].
5 And [as Ananias heard these words] he fell, and expired. And there came great fear upon all that heard; 6 but the young men [rising up] wrapped him about, and, bearing him forth, buried him.
7 <And it came to pass, after about three hours' interval> that his wife [not knowing what had happened] came in. And Peter began to say unto her—
Tell me! was it [for so much] ye gave up [the field]?
And [she] said—
Yea! for so much.
8 And [Peter] said unto her—
Why was it agreed by you to put to the proof the Spirit of the Lord?
Lo! the feet of them that have buried thy husband! are at the door, and they shall bear thee forth.
9 And she fell instantly at his feet, and expired. And the young men [coming in] found her dead; and, bearing her forth, they buried her with her husband.
10 And there came great fear upon the whole assembly, and upon all them that heard these things.

12 And through the hands of the Apostles were coming to pass many signs and wonders, among the people; and they were all with one accord in the portico of Solomon; 13 howbeit [of the rest] no one [durst] join himself unto them,—nevertheless the people continued to magnify them; 14 and [the more] were being added [when they believed in the Lord] through both of men and women; 15 so that even into the broad-ways were they bringing forth the sick, and laying them on small couches and beds, in order that [if Peter were coming along] even perchance his shadow might overshadow some one of them. Moreover even the throng of the cities all round Jerusalem was coming together, bearing sick folk, and such as were harassed by impure spirits,—[who] indeed, were being cured [one and all].

§10. The Authorities, foiled, are advised by Gamaliel.
17 But the High-priest [rising], and all' who were with him,—being the sect of the Sadducees,—were filled with jealousy, 18 and thrust their hands upon the Apostles, and put them in a public ward. 19 But [as messenger of the Lord] [by night] opened the doors of the prison; and [leading them out] said—
20 Be going your way, and [taking your stand] be speaking, in the temple, unto the people, all' the declarations of this Life.
21 Now [when they heard this] they entered, under the dawn, into the temple, and began teaching. And the High-priest and they who were with him [arriving] called together the high-counsel, and all' the senate of the sons of Israel; and sent off unto the prison, to have them brought. 22 And [the officers who came to the place] found them not in the prison; and, returning, brought tidings, 23 saying—
The prison we found we locked with all' safety, and the keepers standing at the doors; but [when we had opened the prison] [inside] found we [no one].
24 Now [when both the captain of the temple and the High-priests heard these words] they were utterly at a loss concerning them—what perhaps this might come to. 25 But some one [entering] brought tidings unto them—
Lo! [the men whom ye put in the prison] are in the temple, standing, and teaching the people!
26 Then] the captain with the officers [departing] brought them—not with violence,—for they were afraid of the people, lest they should be stoned; 27 but, leading them in, set them in the high-council. And the High-priest questioned them, 28 saying—
|Strictly| did we charge you not to be teaching upon this name; and lo! ye have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and are minded to bring down upon us [the blood of this man].
29 But Peter and the Apostles [answering] said—
It is needful [to be yielding obedience] unto God' [rather than unto men]:—
30 [The God of our fathers] hath raised up Jesus,—whom ye I got into your hands, [suspending him upon a tree]:—
31 [Him, as Prince of Life and Saviour] hath God exalted unto his right hand,—to give repentance unto Israel, and remission of sins.
32 And [we] are witnesses of these things,—also the Holy Spirit, which God hath given unto them who are yielding obedience unto him.
33 And they, when they heard this, were cut to the heart, and were making up their minds to slay them. 34 But a certain man, rising up in the high-council, by name Gamaliel, a lawteacher honoured by all' the people, gave orders to put the men [outside, for a little];—35 and said unto them—
Men of Israel!
Be taking heed unto yourselves, what ye are about to inflict [upon these men].
36 For [before these days] there rose up one Theudas, affirming [himself] to be somebody,—unto whom was inclined a number of men, about four hundred; who was slain, and [all as many as had been trusting in him] were disbanded, and came to nothing. 37 After him] rose up Judas the Galilean, in the days of the enrolling, and drew a people into revolt after him; and [he] perished, and [all, as many as had trusted in him] were scattered.

[Now, therefore] I say unto you—Stand aloof from these men, and let them alone; because [if] of men, be this project or this work— it will be overthrown,— but [if it is of God] ye will not be able to overthrow them: lest once [even fighters against God] ye be found.

And they were persuaded by him; and [calling unto prayer and unto the ministry] they charged them not to be speaking upon the name of Jesus; and let them go.

[They], therefore, went rejoicing from the presence of the high-council; in that they had been accounted worthy [in behalf of The Name] to suffer dishonour. And [every day in the temple, and at home] they ceased not to be teaching, and telling the good news as to the Anointed Jesus.

§ 11. Murmuring among the Disciples: Seven chosen to minister.

But [in these days] <the disciples multiplying>] there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, in that [their widows] were being overlooked in the daily ministry.

And the Twelve, calling near the throng of the disciples, said—

It doth not seem [right] that [we], forsaking the word of God, should be ministering unto tables.

But look out for yourselves, brethren, seven men from among you, who can be well-attested, full of Spirit and wisdom,—whom we will appoint over this need;

But [we], unto prayer and unto the ministry of the word> will give constant attention.

And the word was pleasing in the sight of all' the throng; and they selected Stephen, a man full of faith and Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte of Antioch; whom they set before the Apostles, and [praying] they laid upon them their hands. And the throng; and they selected Stephen, a man full of faith and Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte of Antioch; whom they set before the Apostles, and [praying] they laid upon them their hands.

§ 12. Stephen stirs up Opposition.

Now [Stephen] full of favour and power began to do great wonders and signs among the people. But there rose up certain of those out of the synagogue which is called [the synagogue] of them of Libertium and Cyrene and Alexandria, and certain of them from Cilicia and Asia,—disputing with Stephen; and they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit with which he was speaking.

We have heard him speaking profane things against Moses and God.

And they stirred upb the people and the elders and the scribes; and [coming upon him] they caught him away, and led him into the high-council. And they set up false witnesses, who said—

This man ceaseth not speaking things against this holy place and the law; 14 for we have heard him saying—

This Jesus the Nazareneb will overthrow this place, and will change the customs which [Moses] delivered unto us.

And looking steadfastly at him [all] they who were sitting in the high-council saw his face, as if the face of a messenger.

7 And [he] said—

Brethren and fathers, hearken!]
The God of Glorye appeared unto our father Abraham, while he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran,— and said unto him—

Get thee forth, out of thy land, and from among thy kindred, and come unto the land which I will show thee. I will point out.

Then [coming forth out of the land of the Chaldeans] he dwelt in Haran; and [from thence, when his father was dead] he removed him into this land, in which [ye] now dwell; and gave him no inheritance therein, not even a place to set his foot on; and yet promised to give it unto him in possession, and unto his seed after him, when we as yet he had not a child.

But God [spake thus]—

His seed shall be a sojourner in a foreign land, and they will bring it into bondage, and ill-treat it four-hundred years; and the nation unto which they shall be in bondage will [I] judge— said God; and [after these things] shall they come forth, and render divine service unto me, in this place.

And he gave unto him a covenant of circumcision; and [thus] he begat Isaac, and circumcised him on the eighth day, and Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob, the twelve' patriarchs.

And [the patriarchs] being jealous of Joseph, gave him up into Egypt; and [God] was with him, and rescued him out of all'his tribulations, and gave him favour and wisdom before Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he... appointed him governor over Egypt and all his house. 11 And there came a famine upon all Egypt 1 and Canaan, and great tribulation, and our fathers could not find pasture. 12 But Jacob, hearing there was corn in Egypt 1 sent off our fathers first; and the second time Joseph was made known unto his brethren, and the race of Joseph was made manifest unto Pharaoh. 13 And Joseph, sending forth, called for Jacob his father, and all the kindred, sitting oftentimes; 15 and Jacob went down into Egypt. And he died, and our fathers; and were brought over into Shechem, and laid in the tomb which Abraham had purchased, for a price of silver, of the sons of Hamor in Shechem.

Now just as the time of the promise was drawing near, wherewith God had agreed with Abraham, the people grew, and were multiplied in Egypt,— 18 until there arose another sort of king over Egypt, who had not known Joseph. 19 The same dealing craftily with our race ill-treated our fathers, so as to cause their babes to be exposed, to the end they might not be suffered to live. 20 In which season Moses was born, and was exceeding goodly,— who was nourished up three months in the house of his father; but when he was exposed, the daughter of Pharaoh rescued him, and nourished him for herself as a son. 22 And so Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in his words and works. 22 And when there was being fulfilled unto him a period of forty years, it came up on his heart, to look after his brethren the sons of Israel and seeing one being wronged, he defended him, and avenged him that was getting wearing down, in putting the Egyptian. 23 But he supposed his brethren would understand that God through his hand would give them deliverance; whereas they understood not. 22 On the following day also he appeared unto them, as they were contending, and would have reconciled them in peace, saying—

Men! ye are my brethren! Wherefore wrong ye one another? But he that was wronging his neighbour thrust him away, saying— Who hath appointed thee to be ruler and judge over us? 23 Art thou wishing to kill me in the same way thou didst kill yesterday, the Egyptian? 24 And Moses [k] at this saying, and became a sojourner in the land of Midian, where he begat two sons. 25 And when forty years were fulfilled, there appeared unto him in the desert of Mount Sinai a messenger, in a flame of fire, in a bush. 26 And Moses seeing it marvelled at the sight; and as he was going near to observe there came a voice of the Lord—

And I am the God of thy fathers. The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob. 27 And Moses becoming terrified durst not observe. 28 And the Lord said unto him— Loose the sandles of thy feet; For the place whereon thou art standing is hallowed ground. 29 I have indeed seen the ill-treatment of my people that is in Egypt, And unto their groaning have I hearkened, And have come down to rescue them. Now therefore, come! I will send thee into Egypt.

The same Moses whom they had refused, saying— Who hath appointed thee to be ruler and judge? The same both as ruler and redeemer did God send by the hand of the messenger who had appeared unto him in the bush; 30 The same led them forth, doing wonders and signs in Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the desert, forty years:
The same is the Moses that said unto the sons of Israel— A prophet, unto you will God raise up, from among your brethren, like unto me:
The same is he that came to be in the assembly in the desert, with the messenger who was speaking with him in Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, he who welcomed living utterances, to give unto us:
Unto whom our fathers would not become obedient, but thrust him away, and turned in their hearts unto Egypt, saying unto Aaron—

Make us gods who shall go before us; For as for this Moses who brought us forth out of Egypt>

We know not what hath befallen him! 41 And so they fell to self-making in those days, And offered sacrifice unto the idol, And rejoiced in the works of their hands. 42 But God turned and delivered them up to be doing divine service unto the host of heaven,— Just as it is written in a book of the prophets— Victims and sacrifices did ye offer unto me," Nay! but ye took with you the tent of Moloch, and the star of the god Rephan, — the forms which ye made to bow down unto them: Therefore will I carry you away beyond Babylon.

The tent of witness was with our fathers in the desert, according as he who was speaking unto Moses gave instructions to make it according to the model which he had seen.

Which our fathers succeeding to also found favour before God, and asked to find a habitation for the God of Jacob.

But Solomon built him a house.

Although indeed the Most High is not in hand-made places: just as the prophet saith: —

[Heaven] is my throne, and [the earth] is my footstool: what manner of house will ye build me, saith the Lord,— or what shall be the place of my resting?

Hath not my hand made all these things?

Yea they slew them who declared beforehand against the Holy Spirit; — against me in this day do they thrust me out, and cast me behind their ears, and rush with one accord upon me;

Who indeed, received the law through ranks of messengers, —

And guarded it not.

And [while they were hearing these things] they were being pierced in their hearts, and began saying —

Lo! I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man, standing on the right hand of God;

And [crying out with a loud voice] they held their ears, and rushed with one accord upon him;

And [thrusting him forth outside the city] proposed to stone him.

And the witnesses laid their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.

And they stoned Stephen, as he was invoking and saying —

Lord Jesus! give welcome unto my spirit.

And kneeling down he cried out with a loud voice —

Lord! do not charge against them this sin.

And [having said this] he fell asleep.

And [Saul] was taking pleasure with them in his death. Moreover there arose, in that day, a great persecution against the assembly which was in Jerusalem: [and] all were scattered abroad throughout the countries of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles.

Howbeit reverent men assisted at the burial of Stephen, and made great lamentation over him.

But [Saul] went on to lay waste the assembly, along the houses going in, and [dragging off both men and women] was delivering them up into prison.

§ 15. Philip preaches in Samaria.

They, indeed, therefore, who were scattered abroad passed through, telling the good-news of the word; and [Philip] [going down unto the city of Samaria] proclaimed unto them the Christ.

And the multitudes began to give heed unto the things that were being spoken by Philip, with one accord, when they heard him, and saw the signs which he was working. For from many who had impure spirits shouting with a loud voice they were going out, and [many that were paralysed and lame] were cured.

And there came to be great joy in that city.

But [a certain man named Simon] was already in the city, practising magical arts, and astonisheing the nation of Samaria,—saying that himself was someone great: unto whom all who were giving heed, from small even to great, saying —

This is the Power of God, which is called Great.

And they were giving heed to him, because that [for a considerable time] with his magical arts he had astonished them.

But when they believed Philip telling the good news concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ> they proceeded to be immersed, both men and women.

And [Simon himself also] believed; and [having been immersed] was in constant attendance on Philip,—and beholding signs and great works of power coming to pass was astonished.

And the Apostles who were in Jerusalem, hearing that Samaria had welcomed the word of God, sent out unto them Peter and John;

who, indeed, going down, prayed for them, that they might receive Holy Spirit; — for [not yet] had it upon any one of them fallen, but only to begin with they had been immersed into the name of the Lord Jesus.

And they proceeded to lay their hands upon them, and they were receiving Holy Spirit.
18 But Simon <seeing that through means of the laying on of the hands of the Apostles | the Spirit was being given | offered unto them money, saying—
   Give unto me also | this authority,—
In order that <on whomsoever I may lay my hands | he may receive Holy Spirit.
20 And | Peter | said unto him—
   Thy silver | with thee | go to destruction! Because | the free-gift of God thou didst suppose could | with money | be obtained!
21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter; For [thy heart] is not upright before God.a
22 Repent, therefore, from this thy baseness, And entreat of the Lord—
Whether | after all | the purpose of thy heart shall be forgiven thee;
23 For I see that thou servest as
A gall-root of bitterness, And a bond of unrighteousness.b
24 And Simon | answering | said—
Entreat ye, in my behalf, unto the Lord;
That | nothing | may come upon me.

34 And Philip | answering | said—
Entreat ye, in my behalf, unto the Lord; That | nothing | may come upon me.

35 And Philip <opening his mouth, and beginning from this scripture | told him the glad tidings of Jesus.
36 And <as they were journeying along the way | they came unto a certain water,—and the eunuch saith—
   Lo! water!
What doth hinder my being immersed? [3] a
38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they went down, both, into the water, 'both Philip and the eunuch,—and he immersed him.
39 But <when they came up out of the water> | the Spirit of the Lord | caught away Philip; and | the eunuch | saw him no more; for he was going on his way rejoicing.

40 Now [Philip] | was found at Azotus; and | passing through | he was telling the glad tidings unto all the cities, until he came unto Cesarea.

§ 17. The Conversion of an Ethiopian Eunuch. Chap. xxii. 6,ff.; xxvi. 12,ff.
9 But [Saul] | <yet breathing threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord> | going unto the High-priest | asked from him letters for Damascus, unto the synagogues; to the end that | if he should find | any | who were of The Way, whether men or women | he might bring them | bound | unto Jerusalem. But | as he was journeying | it came to pass that he was drawing near unto Damascus, and suddenly there flashed around him a light out of heaven: and | falling unto the earth | he heard a voice saying unto him—
   Saul! Saul! why | me | art thou persecuting?
3 And he said—
   Who art thou, Lord?
And | he | said—
I am Jesus, whom | thou | art persecuting.
6 But rise up, and enter into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.
7 But | the men who were accompanying him | stood speechless,—hearing, indeed, the voice, but beholding no one. And Saul arose from the earth, and | his eyes being opened | he could see | nothing |; and | taking him by the hand they led him into Damascus,— and he was three days without seeing, and did neither eat nor drink.
10 Now there was a certain disciple in Damascus, by name Ananias; and | the Lord | said unto him in a vision—
   Ananias!
And | he | said—
   Lo! I am here, Lord!
11 And the Lord | said unto him—
   Rise! go into the street which is called Straight, and seek | in the house of Judas, one Saul, by name, of Tarsus.

 Or: "in fact." Donald—
 Or: "inspiring." 4 Or: "sound."
For lo! he is praying,—and hast seen a man [in a vision]. Ananias by name, coming in and laying on him his hands, to the intent he should see.

13 And Ananias [answered]—

Lord! I have heard from many, concerning this man,—how many evil things, unto thy saints! he hath done, in Jerusalem;

14 And [here] he hath authority from the High-priests, to bind all' them that call upon thy name.

15 But the Lord said unto him—

Be going thy way; for [a choice vessel unto me] is this man, to bear my name before both [the] nations and kings, and the sons of Israel; 16 for [I] will let him understand how many things he must needs [for my name] [suffer];

17 And Ananias departed, and entered into the house; and [laying upon him his hands] said—

Saul, brother! The Lord hath sent me,—and thou shalt recover sight, and be filled with Holy Spirit.

18 And, straightway, there fell from him— from his eyes,—as it were scales; he recoveredsight, and was able to see food, gaining strength. And he came to be with the disciples who were [in Damascus], certain days; 19 and [straightway, in the synagogues] he began proclaiming Jesus, that he was with the disciples who were |in Damascus|.

20 And he saw Peter, and said—

Tabitha, arise!

And she, opening her eyes, and seeing Peter, sat up. And giving her his hand, he raised her up; and calling the saints and the widows, presented her [living]. And it became [known] throughout the whole of Joppa, and many believed upon the Lord. And it came to pass that [for a considerable number of days] he abode in Joppa, with one Simon, a tanner.

10 But a certain man in Cesarea, by name Cornelius, a centurion of the band called Italian,—a devout, and fearing God with all' his house, doing many alms unto the people, and supplicating God continually—saw, in a vision, manifestly, as if about the ninth hour of the day, a messenger of God, coming in unto him, and saying unto him—Cornelius!
And he said unto him—

"Thy prayers and thine alms have gone up for a memorial before God."

And now therefore, send men unto Joppa, and fetch one Simon who is surnamed Peter,— the same is a guest with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea.

And when the messenger who had been speaking with him had departed, he sent them off unto Joppa. Now <on the morrow, as those men were journeying, and unto the city drawing near> Peter went up on the housetop to pray, about the sixth hour; but he became hungry, and wished to eat,—and while they were making ready there came upon him a trance; and he beheld the heavens opened, and coming down a kind of vessel, like a large linen cloth, by its four corners (being let down upon the earth), in which were all the quadrupeds and creeping things of earth and birds of heaven. And there came a voice unto him—

Rise, Peter! sacrifice and eat.

But Peter said—

"By no means! Lord! because at no time have I eaten anything common or unclean.

And a voice came a second time, unto him—

"What things God hath cleansed, be not thou making common."

Now <on this> took place thrice; and straightway was the vessel taken up into heaven.

And as Peter was pondering over the vision which he had seen, he went in, and findeth many come together; and there came a voice unto him—

And Cornelius was expecting them, having called together his kinsfolk and intimate friends. And when it came about that Peter entered, Cornelius met him, and falling at his feet did homage. But when Peter raised him up, saying—

"Arise, I also myself am a man!"

And conversing with him, he went in, and findeth many come together; and said unto them—

"Ye well know, how unlawful it is, for a Jew to be joining himself, or coming in, unto one of another race. And yet unto me hath God pointed out that I should be calling no man common or unclean."

Wherefore even without gainsaying came I when sent for. I ask, therefore, [for what reason] ye sent for me.

And <Four days ago, counting unto this very hour> I was keeping the ninth hour as one of prayer, in my house. And lo! a man stood before me, in bright clothing, and said—

Cornelius!

Thy prayer hath been heard, and thine alms have been remembered before God.

Send, therefore, unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter. The same is being entertained in the house of one Simon a tanner, by the sea.

Immediately therefore, I sent unto thee: Thou also hast well done in coming. Now therefore, all well before God are present, to hear all things that have been enjoined upon thee by the Lord.

And Peter, opening his mouth, said—

"Of a truth I find that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is acceptable unto him.

<As touching the word he hath sent unto the sons of Israel, announcing the glad tidings of peace through Jesus Christ—the same is Lord of all> ye yourselves know what hath come to pass throughout the whole of Judea, beginning from Galilee, after the immersion which John proclaimed, respecting Jesus who was of Nazareth;—

How God anointed him with Holy Spirit and with power, Who went about, doing good and healing all that were oppressed by the adversary, because God was with him.

We also are witnesses of all things which he did, both in the country of the Jews and Jerusalem; Whom they even slew by suspending upon a tree;—

Or: "improper," "out of place," "disorderly." • Isa. 11. 1. • Deu. x. 17. • Deu. xxii. 23 f.

Or: "Sir." • Cp. Deu. xii. 21, n. • Ps. evii. 20; eviixvii. 18.
God raised up on the third day, and gave him to become manifest, not unto all the people, but unto witnesses who had been fore-appointed by God, unto us, who, indeed, did eat and drink with him after his rising from among the dead. And he bade us to proclaim unto the people, and bear full witness, that—

|This| is he that hath been marked out by God to be judge of living and dead.

41 And unto the same do all the prophets bear witness. That remission of sins shall be received through his name, by every one that believeth on him. While Peter was yet speaking these words the Holy Spirit fell upon all who were hearing the word. 45 And the faithful of the circumcision who had come with Peter, were amazed,—in that upon the nations also the free-gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out; for they heard them speaking with tongues, and magnifying God. Then answered Peter—

47 Surely then [the water] can no man forbid, that these should not be immersed,—seeing that [the Holy Spirit] they have received [as well as we].

48 And he commanded them [in the name of Jesus Christ] to be immersed. Then requested they him, to abide still some days.

§ 21. Peter's defence to Them of the Circumcision.

Now the Apostles and the brethren who were throughout Judaea [heard] that the nations also had welcomed the word of God. And Peter came up unto Jerusalem; they of the circumcision began to find fault with him, saying—

He went in unto men [uncircumcised], and did eat with them. But Peter [making a beginning] went on to set forth the matter unto them in order, saying—

If I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and saw, in a trance, a vision:—coming down a sort of vessel, like a large sheet, [by four corners] being let down out of heaven, and it came even unto me: 4 into which steadfastly looking, I began to observe, and saw the quadrupeds of the earth, and the wild beasts, and the creeping things, and the birds of heaven.

Moreover I heard a voice also, saying unto me—

Rise, Peter! sacrifice and eat. But I said—

By no means, Lord, because [a common or unclean thing] hath [at no time] entered into my mouth.

And a voice answered, a second time, out of heaven—

And [this] took place [therefore],—and the whole was drawn up again into heaven; and lo! [immediately] three men halted at the house wherein we were, sent from Caesarea unto me. And the Spirit bade me go with them, [nothing] doubting. And there went with me these six brethren also; and we entered into the house of the man, and he related to us how he had seen the messenger in his house, standing, and saying—

Send away unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter; who shall speak words unto thee, whereby thou shalt be saved, [thou] and all thy house.

And [as I began to be speaking] the Holy Spirit fell upon them, just as upon us also, at the beginning.

And I was put in mind of the word of the Lord, how he used to say—

John indeed, immersed [with water]; but [ye] shall be immersed in Holy Spirit.

If therefore [the like free-gift] God gave unto them, as even unto us, when we had believed upon the Lord Jesus Christ, who was [I] that I could withstand God?

And [having heard these things] they held their peace, and glorified God, saying—

Hence [unto the nations] God hath granted repentance unto life.

§ 22. The Dispersion (chap. viii. 1): the Faith spreads as far as Antioch in Syria, whither Barnabas is sent, Saul is brought, and Agabus comes with tidings of a Famine.

They, therefore, who had been scattered abroad by reason of the tribulation that took place on account of Stephen] passed through as far as Phoenice and Cyprus and Antioch, unto no one speaking the word, save alone unto Jews. And there were some from among them, Cyprians and Cyrenians, who, indeed, [coming unto Antioch] began speaking [even unto the Grecian Jews], announcing the glad-tidings as to the Lord Jesus; and the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number—they who believed—turned unto the Lord. And the matter was reported in the hearing of the assembly that was in Jerusalem, concerning them; and they sent forth Barnabas, as far as Antioch; who <arriving, and seeing the favour which was of God> rejoiced, and went on to beseech all [with the purpose of their heart] to abide [in] the Lord; because he was a good man, and full of Holy Spirit and faith; and a considerable multitude were added unto the Lord. He went away, however, unto Tarsus, to seek up Saul; and, finding him, he brought him unto Antioch. And so it was with them, that [for a whole year] they were brought together in the assembly, and taught a considerable multitude; also that the disciples [first in Antioch] were called [Christians].

* Chap. i. 5. * XI: "into the ears."

ACTS XI. 27—30; XII. 1—25; XIII. 1—4.

27 Now in these days, there came down from Jerusalem, prophets, unto Antioch. And one from among them, by name Agabus, rising up, gave a sign, through means of the Spirit, that a great famine was coming over all the inhabited earth, which, indeed, came to pass under Claudius. And according as any one of the disciples was being prospered, they each one of them set apart something for ministering, to send unto the brethren who dwelt in Jerusalem;—which thing they also did, sending it unto the Elders, through the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

12 Now in the course of that season Herod the king thrust forth his hand to harm some of them of the assembly,—and slew James the brother of John with a sword; and seeing that it was acceptable unto the Jews, he went on to apprehend Peter also (now they were the days of unleavened bread),—whom also having seized, he put into prison, delivering him up unto four quaternions of soldiers, to be guarding him,—intending after the passover to bring him up unto the people. Therefore, was kept in the prison; but prayer was earnestly being made by the assembly, unto God, concerning him. And when Herod was about to bring him forth, he was Peter sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; also, before the door, were keeping the prison. And lo! a messenger of the Lord stood over him, and a light shone in the cell; and smiting the side of Peter, he roused him up, saying—Rise up quickly! And his chains fell off out of his hands. And the messenger said unto him—Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And he did so. And he said unto him—Throw around thee thy mantle, and be following me. And, coming out, he began following, and knew not that it was true which was coming about through means of the messenger; but supposed that a vision he was beholding. And passing through the first ward and the second, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city, the which of its own accord opened unto them; and, coming out, they went on through one street, and straightway the messenger was parted from him. And Peter, coming to himself, said—[Now] know I, of a truth, that the Lord hath sent forth his messenger, and taken me out of the hand of Herod, and all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

13 And, considering the matter, he came unto the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where a considerable number were gathered together and praying. And when he had knocked at the door of the porch, there came unto it a maiden to hearken, by name Rhoda; and recognizing the voice of Peter, she opened not the porch, but running in, bare tidings, that Peter was standing before the porch. But they unto her said—Thou art raving!

15 [She] however, kept on strongly declaring that it was. But [they] were saying—It is his messenger.

16 And Peter continued knocking; and, opening, they saw him, and were amazed. But making a sign to them with his hand to hold their peace he related to them how the Lord had brought him forth out of the prison; and he said—Carry tidings unto James and the brethren, as to these things.

And, going out, he went his way unto some other place. And when it became day, there was no small commotion among the soldiers, as to What, then, Peter had become! And Herod, seeking after and not finding him, having examined the guards, ordered them to be led away to death; and going down from Judea unto Cesarea, stayed there.

20 Now he was bitterly hostile to them of Tyre and Zidon; but with one accord they came unto him, and persuading Blastus, who was over the bed-chamber of the king, they were urging for peace; because their country was fed by the king's. And on an appointed day, Herod, putting on royal apparel, and seating himself upon the tribunal, proceeded to deliver an oration unto them. And the populace began to shout—[A god's voice, and not a man's!]

23 And instantly there smote him, a messenger of the Lord, because he gave not the glory unto God; and becoming worm-eaten he expired.

24 And the word of the Lord went on growing and multiplying.

25 And Barnabas and Saul, returned unto Jerusalem, fulfilling the ministering, taking with them John who was surnamed Mark.

§ 24. Barnabas and Saul sent forth from Antioch, visit Cyprus, Pamphylia, Pisidia and Lycaonia; and return by Attalia unto Antioch.

13 Now there were in Antioch, distributed through the existing assembly,—prophets and teachers: both Barnabas and Symeon who was called Niger, and Lucius the Cyrenian, Manaen also, Herod the tetrarch's foster-brother, and Saul. And as they were publicly ministering unto the Lord and fasting> the Holy Spirit said—Separate forthwith unto me, Barnabas and Saul, unto the work whereunto I have called them.

10 Then, fasting and praying, and laying their hands upon them, they sent them away.

11 [They], therefore, being sent forth by the Holy Spirit went down unto Seleucia, and from thence sailed away unto Cyprus; and coming to be in Salamis, they declared the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews; and they had [John also] as an attendant.

And passing through the whole island, as far as Paphos, they found a certain man, a magician, a false-prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus; who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. [The same] calling for Barnabas and Saul sought to hear the word of God. But Elymas the magician,—for so, when translated, is his name,—withstood them; seeking to turn aside the proconsul from the faith. But Saul [who is also Paul] filled with Holy Spirit, looking steadfastly at him said—

O full of all guile, and all recklessness! Son of an adversary! Enemy of all righteousness!—Wilt thou not cease to pervert the straight ways of the Lord?

Now therefore, lo! the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun, until a fitting time. Then the proconsul, seeing what had happened, believed, being amazed at the teaching of the Lord.

And setting sail from Paphos [Paul's company] came into Perga of Pamphylia; but John [withdrawing from them] returned unto Jerusalem. If they, however, passing through from Perga, arrived at Antioch of Pisidia; and going into the synagogue on the sabbath-day, sat down. And after the reading of the law and the prophets the synagogue-rulers sent unto them, saying—

Brethren! if there is in you a word of exhortation unto the people say on.

And Paul standing up and making a sign with his hand said—

Ye men of Israel! and such as revere God! hearken:—

The God of this people Israel chose our fathers, and the people he exalted by their sojourn in the land of Egypt, and with a high arm brought them out of it; and for the time of about forty years bare with their manner in the desert; and overthrowing seven nations in the land of Canaan gave them their land as an inheritance about four hundred and fifty years. And after these things he gave them judges, until Samuel the prophet. And from that time they asked for themselves a king, and God gave them Saul, son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, during forty years; and setting him aside raised up [David] unto them for king. Of whom he also said [bearing witness]—

I have found David, the son of Jesse,—

A man according to my heart,

Who will do all my will.

From this man's seed hath God according to promise brought unto Israel, a saviour—

John beforehand proclaiming before the face of his coming in, an immersion of repentance, unto all the people of Israel. And as John was fulfilling his course he was saying—

Whom are ye supposing that I am?

I am not he! But lo! there cometh, after me, One of whom I am not worthy the sandals of his feet; to loosen.

Brethren! sons of the race of Abraham, and those who among you revere God,—unto you hath this word of salvation been sent forth. For they who were dwelling in Jerusalem, and their rulers, not recognising him have, by judging him, fulfilled [the every voices of the prophets which every sabbath are being read; and though no single cause of death they found] yet claimed they of Pilate that he should be slain. And when they had finished all those things which concerning him had been written; taking him down from the tree they put him in a tomb. But [God] raised him from among the dead: Who appeared, during many days, unto them who had come up with him from Galilee unto Jerusalem; who, indeed, now are his witnesses unto the people.

We therefore, unto you bring the good news, as to the promise which unto our fathers was made. That God hath fulfilled the same for our children, by raising up [Jesus]:

As also [in the second psalm] it is written—

For they who were dwelling in Jerusalem, and their rulers, not recognising him have, by judging him, fulfilled [the every voices of the prophets which every sabbath are being read; and though no single cause of death they found] yet claimed they of Pilate that he should be slain. And when they had finished all those things which concerning him had been written; taking him down from the tree they put him in a tomb. Brethren! if there is in you a word of exhortation unto the people say on.

And Paul standing up and making a sign with his hand said—

Ye men of Israel! and such as revere God! hearken:—

The God of this people Israel chose our fathers, and the people he exalted by their sojourn in the land of Egypt, and with a high arm brought them out of it; and for the time of about forty years bare with their manner in the desert; and overthrowing seven nations in the land of Canaan gave them their land as an inheritance about four hundred and fifty years. And after these things he gave them judges, until Samuel the prophet. And from that time they asked for themselves a king, and God gave them Saul, son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, during forty years; and setting him aside raised up [David] unto them for king. Of whom he also said [bearing witness]—

I have found David, the son of Jesse,—

A man according to my heart,

Who will do all my will.

From this man's seed hath God according to promise brought unto Israel, a saviour—

John beforehand proclaiming before the face of his coming in, an immersion of repentance, unto all the people of Israel. And as John was fulfilling his course he was saying—

We therefore, unto you bring the good news, as to the promise which unto our fathers was made. That God hath fulfilled the same for our children, by raising up [Jesus]:

As also [in the second psalm] it is written—

My son! art thou:

T: [this day] have begotten thee.

And in that he raised him from among the dead, no more destined to return unto corruption: on this wise hath he spoken—

I will give unto you the faithful loving-kindnesses of David.

Wherefore also [in a different place] he saith—

Thou wilt not give thy man of loving-kindness to see corruption.

For [David] indeed, unto his own generation having done service, by the counsel of God fell asleep, and was added unto his fathers, and saw corruption;

But [he whom God] hath raised did not see corruption.
38 Be it \[known\] unto you, therefore, brethren,—That \[through\ this man\] \[unto you\] remission of sins is declared; \[and\] \[from\ all things from which ye could not \[by the\ law of Moses\] be justified \[by\ this man\] \[everyone\] that believeth \[is justified\].

40 Be taking heed, therefore, lest that which \[spoken in the prophets—\]

41 See, ye despisers, and marvel, and disapper:

In that \[a work\] \[in working in\] your days,—"A work\] \[which in noise will ye believe.

Though one relate it in full unto you."

42 And <as they were going out> they kept on beseeching that \[on the ensuing\] sabbath might be spoken unto them these things. And \[when the congregation was broken up\] there followed many of the Jews, and of the devout proselytes, with Paul and Barnabas; who, indeed, \[in speaking unto them\] went on persuading them to abide in the favour of God.

43 And \[on the coming\] sabbath \[almost all\] the city was gathered together, to hear the word of God. But \[the Jews\] \[seeing\] \[them all\] were filled with jealousy,—and began speaking against the things which \[by Paul\] were being spoken, \[defaming\] them.

44 And Paul and Barnabas \[speaking boldly\] said—

"Unto you\] was it necessary, that the word of God \[should first\] be spoken:

<Seeing ye are thrusting it from you, and \[unworthy\] are judging yourselves of the age-abiding\' life> lo! we turn unto the nations;\[for\] \[so\] hath the Lord commanded us—

That thou mayest be for salvation unto the end of the earth."

And they of the nations \[hearing\[this\]] began to rejoice, and to be glorifying God, and they believed—\[as many as had become disposed for life age-abiding\].

And \[the word\] of the Lord went on to be carried through the whole country. But \[the Jews\] urged on the devout women of the higher class, and the chief men of the city, and roused up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas,—and thrust them out from their bounds. But \[they\] \[shaking off the dust of their feet against them\] came into Iconium.

And \[the disciples\] \[were filled with joy, and with Holy Spirit.

14 And it came to pass, in Iconium, that they together entered into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that there believed, both of Jews and Greeks, a great\' throng. But \[the unpersuaded\] Jews roused up and provoked the souls of the nations against the brethren.

3 A good while, therefore, tarried they\] using boldness of speech \[in dependence] upon the Lord, who was bearing witness unto his word of favour, granting \[signs and wonders\] to be coming to pass through their hands. \[And\] \[the throng of the city was divided; and \[some\] indeed were with the Jews, while \[some\] were with the apostles. But <when there took place an assault both of them of the nations and of the Jews, with their rulers, to maltreat and to stone them> they became aware of it, and fled unto the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra and Derbe, and the surrounding country; and \[there\] were they announcing the glad tidings.

8 And \[a certain man in Lystra, impotent in his feet\] was sitting,—lame from his mother\'s womb, who never \[had walked. \[This man heard\] upon Paul, as he was speaking,—who <looking steadfastly at him, and seeing he had faith to be made well> \[said\], with a loud voice—

Stand up on thy feet, erect!

And he sprang up, and began to walk about.

And \[the multitudes\] \[seeing\] \[what Paul had done] lifted up their voice, in the speech of Lycaonia—

'The gods, made like unto men; have come down unto us!'" And they went on to call Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury, seeing that \[he\] was the leader of discourse. Also \[the priest of the Jupiter that was before the city\] \[bringing\] \[bulls and garlands unto the gates\] \[with the multitudes\] \[would have offered sacrifice. \[But the apostles Barnabas and Paul, \[hearing\] of it, rending asunder their own\] mantles, sprang forward amidst the multitude, crying aloud.

Men! why \[these things\] are ye doing? \[We also\] \[of like nature with you\] are \[men\], bringing you the good news, that \[from these\' vain things\] ye should be turning unto a living God:

Who made heaven and the earth and the sea and all things therein;

Who \[in the bygone\'] generations\] suffered all the nations to be going on in their own ways,—

Although \[not without witness\] he left himself, \[doing good;\]

[From heaven\] \[upon you\] giving \[rain\] and fruitful seasons,

Filling \[with food and gladness\] your hearts.

Even these things\] \[saying\], \[scarcely\] restrained they the multitudes from offering sacrifice unto them.

But there came thither, from Antioch and Iconium, \[Jews\], and \[persuading the multitudes and stoning Paul\] they dragged him outside the city, supposing him to be dead.

Howbeit, \[the disciples surrounding\] him he rose up, and entered into the city. And \[on the morrow\] he went forth, with Barnabas, unto Derbe.
Delivering the good news unto that city also, and making a good number of disciples, they returned unto Lystra, and unto Iconium, and unto Antioch,—confirming the souls of the disciples, beseeching them to abide in the faith, and [declaring] that Through many tribulations must we enter into the kingdom of God. Moreover appointing unto them by vote, in each assembly, elders, praying with fasting, they commended them unto the Lord on whom they had believed. And passing through Pisidia they came into Pamphylia; and speaking in Perga the word, they came down unto Attalia; and from thence they sailed for Antioch, when the grace of God was given unto them for the work which they had fulfilled. And when they had arrived and gathered together the assembly they began recounting how many things God had done with them, and that he had opened the door of faith unto the nations. And they spent no little time with the disciples.

§ 25. Must Gentiles be Circumcised? The Question settled in Jerusalem.

15 And certain persons, coming down from Judea, began to teach the brethren—Except ye be circumcised according to the custom of Moses ye cannot be saved.

9 And when Paul and Barnabas had had no little discussion and discussion with them it was arranged, that Paul and Barnabas and certain others from among them should go up unto the Apostles and Elders in Jerusalem concerning this question. [They], therefore, being set forward by the Assembly began passing through Phoenicia and Samaria, fully relating the conversion of them of the nations, and were causing great joy unto all the brethren. And having arrived in Jerusalem they were welcomed by the Assembly and the Apostles and the Elders; and they recounted all things God had done with them. But there [had] stood forth some of those who [from the sect of Pharisees] had believed, saying—It is needful to be circumcising them, also to charge them to be keeping the law of Moses.

6 And the Apostles and Elders [were gathered] together to see about this matter. [And when much] discussion had arisen Peter standing up, said unto them—Brethren! Ye yourselves well know that in days long past amongst you God chose that through my mouth the nations should hear the word of the glad tidings, and believe. And the heart-observing God [bare witness] unto them giving the Holy Spirit, just as even unto us; and made no distinction at all between us and them, by their faith purifying their hearts.

10 [Now] therefore, why are ye proving God, that ye should put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear.

11 But through the favour of the Lord Jesus we believe we shall be saved, in like manner as even they.

12 And all the throng held their peace, and began to hearken unto Barnabas and Paul relating how many signs and wonders God had done among the nations through them. And after they held their peace James answered, saying—Brethren! hearken unto me.

14 [Symeon] hath fully told how God first visited, to take out of the nations, a people for his name.

15 And with this agree the words of the prophets, according as it is written—After these things will I return, and will rebuild the tent of David that hath fallen, and the ruins thereof will I rebuild, and will set it up again:

17 That the residue of men may seek out the Lord, and all the nations upon whom my name hath been called, saith the Lord that doeth these things, known from age-past times.

18 Wherefore I judge, not to be troubling them who [from the nations] are turning unto God; but to write unto them, To abstain from the pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from what is strangled, and from blood.

21 For [Moses] out of ancient generations hath in every city [them who proclaim him]; seeing [that in the synagogues] every sabbath he is read.

22 Then seemed it good, unto the Apostles and the Elders with the whole Assembly, to send [chosen] men from among them unto Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas,—even Judas who is called Barabbas, and Silas, men taking a lead among the brethren: writing through their hand—The Apostles and the Elder Brethren unto the brethren throughout Antioch and Syria and Cilicia who are from among the nations wish joy!

24 Inasmuch as we had heard that [certain from among us] had troubled you with words, dismantling your souls,—unto whom we had given no instructions, it seemed good unto us [coming to be of one accord], that we should choose men and send them unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, men who have given up their lives in behalf of the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have sent, therefore, Judas and Silas, who also [themselves] by word of mouth can tell you the same things.

28 For it hath seemed good unto the Holy Spirit, and unto us [no greater burden] to be laying upon you, than these necessary things:

28 To be abstaining from idol sacrifices,
And from blood,
And from what is strangled,
And from fornication,—

From which if ye keep yourselves ye shall prosper. Fare ye well.

29 They, therefore, being let go came down unto Antioch; and having gathered together the throng delivered the letter, and when they read it they rejoiced for the consolation.

And both Judas and Silas being themselves also prophets with much discourse consoled and confirmed the brethren. And when they had spent a time they were let go, in peace, from the brethren, unto them who had sent them. [28]

30 § 26. Paul and Barnabas, differing about Mark, separate: Barnabas, with Mark, sails for Cyprus; Paul, with Silas, journeys from Antioch round about to Troos.

31 But Paul and Barnabas tarried in Antioch, teaching and telling the joyful tidings, along with many others also, of the word of the Lord.

32 And after certain days Paul said unto Barnabas—

Let us now return, and visit the brethren in every city in which we have declared the word of the Lord, and see how they are.

33 And Barnabas was minded to take with them John also, called Mark; but Paul deemed it right as to him who had withdrawn from them, to depart from Pamphylia, and had not gone with them unto the work not to be taking with them this man. And there arose an angry feeling, so that they parted from one another: and Barnabas, taking Mark, sailed away unto Cyprus, whereas Paul, choosing Silas went forth, committed unto the favour of the Lord by the brethren, and proceeded to pass through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the assemblies. And he came even unto Derbe, and unto Lystra; and lo! a certain disciple was there, by name Timothy, son of a believing Jewish woman, but whose father was a Greek, who was well-attested by the brethren in Lystra and Iconium.

§ 27. Paul and his Companions come from Troos unto Philippi: Lydia—the Jailer—and others believe.

9 And a vision by night unto Paul appeared:—

A man of Macedonia there was, standing and beseeching him, and saying—

Come over into Macedonia, and bring us succour!

10 Now when the vision he had seen was straightway we sought to go forth unto Macedonia, concluding that God had summoned us to tell the glad tidings unto them.

11 Setting sail, therefore, from Troos we ran straight into Samothracia, and on the morrow unto New City, and from thence unto Philippi, which, indeed, is the first city of the part of Macedonia—a colony. And we were, in this city, spending certain days; and on the day of rest we went forth outside the gate, beside a river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer, and sitting down we went on to speak unto the women who had come together. And a certain woman, by name Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, devout towards God was hearkening, whose heart the Lord fully opened, to giving heed unto the things being spoken by Paul. And when she was immersed, and her house she besought us, saying—

If ye have judged me to be a believer in the Lord come into my house, and abide there.

And she constrained us.

14 And it came to pass as we were on our way unto the place of prayer a certain damsel, having a spirit of Python met us, who, indeed, much gain was presenting unto her masters by divining. The same following after Paul and us, kept crying aloud, saying—

These men are servants of the Most High God,

Who, indeed, are declaring unto you a way of salvation.

15 And this she continued to do for many days. But Paul worn out and turning unto the spirit said—

I charge thee, in the name of Jesus Christ, to come out from her. And it came out the same hour. And <her masters seeing> that their hope of gain had gone out lay hold on Paul and Silas dragged them into the market-place unto the rulers; and leading them forward unto the magistrates said—

These men are exceedingly troubling our city, they being Jews.

16 And the assembly therefore were being confirmed in the faith, and increasing in number (every day).

17 They passed through the Phrygian and Galatian country, being forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia; but coming along Myasia they were attempting to journey into Bithynia—and the Spirit of Jesus suffered them not; but passing by Myasia they came down unto Troes.

* § 20. Paul and Barnabas, differing about Mark, separate: Barnabas, with Mark, sails for Cyprus; Paul, with Silas, journeys from Antioch round about to Troas.

4 And as they passed through the cities they were delivering unto them, for observance, the decrees which had been decided upon by the Apostles and Elders who were in Jerusalem.

These men are exceedingly troubling our city, they being Jews.

* Or: "hindered."
And are declaring customs, which it is not allowable for us either to accept or to observe; being Romans.

And the multitude rose up together against them, and [the magistrates] rending off them their mantles; were giving orders to beat them with rods; and [laying upon them many'] stripes: they thrust them into prison, charging the prison-keeper [safely] to be keeping them:

who, [a charge like this] receiving: thrust them into the inner' prison, and [their feet] made he fast in the stocks. And [at midnight] [Paul and Silas] being at prayer began singing praise unto God; and [the prisoners] unto them, did hearken. And [sudden]ly a great earthquake took place.— so that the foundations of the prison were shaken, and all the doors were [instantly] set open, and the bonds of all' were unfastened.

And <the prison-keeper> being wakened and seeing that the doors of the prison had been opened: [drawing his sword] was about to kill himself, supposing [the prisoners] to have fled.

But Paul called out with a loud' voice, saying— By no means I do thyself harm, for we are [one and all] here.

And [taking for a light] he sprang in, and becoming [agitated] fell down unto Paul and Silas; and [leading them forth outside] said— Sirs! what must I be doing, that I may be saved?

And [they] said— Believe on the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved, thou, and thy house.

And they spake unto him the word of God, [with all'] who were in his house.

And <taking them with him> in that' hour of the night> he bathed them from their stripes, and was immersed [he, and his, one and all, on the spot]; and [leading them up into his house] he set near a table,— and exulted, having [with all his house] believed in God.

And <when [day] came> [the magistrates] sent off [the constables] saying— Let those men go!

And the prison-keeper reported the words unto Paul— The magistrates have sent, that ye be let go.

Now therefore, going forth, be taking your journey in peace.

But [Paul] said unto them—<Beating us [in public] uncondemned [men that are Romans]> they thrust us into prison:— And [now, by stealth] are they thrusting us forth?

Nay, verily! but let them come [themselves] and lead us out!

And [the constables] reported [unto the magistrates] these words; and they were struck with fear, when they heard that they were [Romans]; and came, and besought them, and [leading them out] went on to request them to depart from the city.

And so coming forth from the prison they went unto Lydia, and [seeing the brethren] they comforted * them, and went forth.

§ 28. Paul proceeds by Thessalonica and Berea to Athens.

And travelling through Amphipolis a.d Apollonia they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews; and [according to Paul's custom] he went in unto them, and [for three sabbaths] reasoned with them from the Scriptures,—opening up, and setting forth, that it was needful for [the Christ] to suffer, and to arise from among the dead; and [saying] This is the Christ,—[Jesus] whom [I] am declaring unto you.

And [some from among them] were persuaded, and cast in their lot with Paul and Silas: also [of the devout?] Greeks a great throng, and [of the chief women] not a few. But the Jews <being ]jealous> and taking unto themselves certain wicked men [of the rabble], and making a riot:> were setting the city in an uproar; and [besieging the house of Jason] were seeking to lead them forth unto the populace,— and [not finding them] they began dragging Jason and certain brethren unto the city-rulers, shouting—

<They who have thrown [the inhabited earth] into confusion [the same] hither also> are come,—unto whom Jason hath given welcome; and [these all] contrary to the decrees of Caesar are acting,—saying that there is another [king], * [Jesus].

And they troubled the multitude and the city-rulers, when they heard these things; and [taking security from Jason and the rest] they let them go.

But [the brethren] straightway, during the night, sent away both Paul and Silas unto Berea, [who, indeed, arriving] unto the synagogue of the Jews, went off; and [these] were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they welcomed the word with all' readiness of mind, [daily] searching the Scriptures,—whether these things could be so. 12 [Many, therefore, from among them] believed, and [of the Grecian women of the higher class, and of men] not a few. 13 But <when the Jews from Thessalonica came to know that [in Berea also] had the word of God been declared by Paul> they came [thither also], stirring up and troubling the multitudes. 14 Howbeit [then] immediately [the brethren sent away [Paul]] to be journeying as far as unto the sea; and both Silas and Timothy stayed behind [there]. 15 But [they who were conducting Paul] brought him as far as Athens, and [receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timothy, that with [all possible speed] they would come unto him> they departed.

* Or (WH): "the Lord."

b Or: "home."

c Or: "a king of another kind."
§ 29. Paul in Athens.

18 But while in Athens [Paul] was expecting them, his spirit within him was being urged on, seeing how the city was given to idols. So then, he began reasoning in the synagogue with the Jews, and with them who worshipped; and in the market-place, every day, with them who happened to be at hand. But certain both of the Epicurean and of the Stoic philosophers were encountering him; and some were saying—

What might this picker-up-of-scrap wish to be saying?

And others—

[Of foreign' demons] he seemeth to be a declarer:

because he was announcing the joyful tidings. And so laying hold of him they brought him up to the Hill of Mars, saying—

Can we get to know what this new teaching is, which by thee is being spoken?

For certain foreign things art thou bringing into our hearing:

We are minded to get to know, therefore, what these things please to be!

21 Now all Athenians and the sojourning foreigners unto nothing else were devoting their leisure, than to be telling or hearing something newer. And Paul taking his stand in the midst of the Hill of Mars, said—

Ye men of Athens!

In every way, how unusually reverent the demons yearn I perceive.

23 For passing through, and carefully observing your objects of devotion I found an altar also, in which was inscribed—

Unto an Unknown God.

<What, therefore, not knowing ye reverence> [the same] do I declare unto you. 24 <The God that made the world and all things that are therein, [the same] being [Lord] of heaven and earth> not in hand-made shrines, doth dwell, nor by human hands is waited upon, as though in want of anything, [himself] giving unto all life, and breath, and all things; he made also of one every nation of men to dwell upon all the face of the earth, marking out fitting opportunities, and the bounds of their dwelling place, that they might be seeking God— if, after all, indeed, they might feel after him and find him, although in truth, he is already not far from any one of us. 25 For in him we live, and move, and are: as even some of your own poets have said—

For [his offspring also] we are.

<Being, then, offspring> of God we ought not to be supposing that <unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and device of man> is like.

20 The times of ignorance, therefore, overlooking— [God] as things now are: is charging all men everywhere to repent, inasmuch as he hath appointed a day, in which he is about to be judging the habitable earth in righteousness, by a man whom he hath pointed out,—offering faith unto all, by raising him from among the dead.

Now when they heard of raising the dead, some indeed, began to mock, while [others] said—

We will hear thee, concerning this, even again.

Thus Paul came forth out of their midst. But certain persons, joining themselves unto him believed; among whom were even Dionysius the Mars-hill judge, and a woman by name Damaria, and others with them.

§ 30. Paul in Corinth.

18 After these things withdrawing from Athens he came unto Corinth; and finding a certain Jew, by name Aquila, of Pontus by birth,—lately come from Italy, and Priscilla his wife, because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to be leaving Rome— he came unto them, and because he was of the same craft he abode with them, and wrought, for they were tent-makers by their trade. And he began reasoning in the synagogue every sabbath, and was persuading both Jews and Greeks.

<When, however, both Silas and Timothy had come down from Macedonia> Paul began to be urged on in the word, bearing full witness unto the Jews that [Jesus] was the Christ.

But as they began opposing and defaming; shaking out his garments; he said unto them—

<Your blood be upon your own head!> [Pure] am I:

Henceforth unto the nations will I go.

And removing from thence he came into the house of a certain man by name Titius Justus who worshipped God, whose house was adjoining unto the synagogue. But Crispus the ruler of the synagogue, believed in the Lord, with all his house. And many of the Corinthians [hearing] were believing, and being immersed. And the Lord said by night, through means of a vision, unto Paul—

Be not afraid! but be speaking; and do not hold thy peace;

Inasmuch as I am with thee, and no one shall set upon thee to harm thee; Inasmuch as I have much people in this city. And he remained a year and six months, teaching among them the word of God.

But when [Gallio] was proconsul of Achaea the Jews, with one accord, set upon Paul, and led him unto the judgment-seat, saying—

Contrary to the law is this one leading men to be worshipping God.

<Ps. ix. 8; xevi. 13; xeviii. 4 Co. i. 14. 9. 14 Is. xiii. 6; Jer. i. 8. 8 Or: "tried to persuade." 7 Or: "by the word."
But as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews—

"If, indeed, it had been some wrong or wicked recklessness, O Jews, with reason, in that case should I have been bearing with you. If, however, they are questions concerning discourse, and names, and law, that which ye have—ye shall see to it yourselves; A judge of these things I am not disposed to be.

And he drove them from the judgment-seat. And they all, laying hold of Sosthenes the ruler of the synagogue, began to strike him before the judgment-seat; and for none of these things did Gallio care.

Paul visits Ephesus, Jerusalem, Antioch, Galatia and Phrygia.

Paul, however, still further abiding a good many days with the brethren, bidding them adieu, setsail for Syria; and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head in Cenchrea, for he had a vow. And they came down to Ephesus; and as for them he left them there, but himself entering into the synagogue he reasoned with the Jews.

And when they requested him for a longer time to abide he consented not; but bidding them adieu, and saying—Again will I return unto you—God willing—he sailed away from Ephesus; and putting in at Caesarea, going up and saluting the assembly went down unto Antioch; and spending some time he went forth, passing through, in order, the country of Galatia and Phrygia, confirming all the disciples.

Paul visits Ephesus: he goes into Achaia.

But a certain Jew, Apollos by name, an Alexandrian by birth, a learned man, came down to Ephesus, being mighty in the Scriptures. The same had been orally taught the way of the Lord, and being fervent in his spirit began speaking and teaching accurately, the things concerning Jesus, properly knowing, only the immersion of John. The same also began speaking boldly in the synagogue; and Priscilla and Aquila hearing him took him unto them, and more accurately expounded unto him the way of God. And he being minded to pass through into Achaia, the brethren urgently wrote unto the disciples, to welcome him, who arriving was very useful unto them who had believed; with his gift; and with great force began he confuting the Jews, publicly, shewing by the Scriptures that Jesus was the Christ.

Paul labours in Ephesus. Demetrius and the Artisans.

And they said unto him—

Nay! not even whether there is Holy Spirit did we hear.

And he said—

Into what then, were ye immersed?

And they said—

Into John's immersion.

Then said Paul—

John immersed with an immersion of repentance, unto the people, saying, That on him who was coming after him, they should believe, that is, on Jesus.

And when they heard this they were immersed into the name of the Lord Jesus; and Paul laying hands upon them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they began speaking with tongues and prophesying. And all the men were about twelve.

And entering into the synagogue he was speaking boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading the kingdom of God.

But when some were hardening themselves, and refusing to be persuaded, speaking evil of the Way before the throng, withdrawing from them he separated the disciples; day by day reasoning in the school of Tyrannus.

And [this] took place for two years, so that all who dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks. Mighty works also, not the ordinary God was working through the hands of Paul; so that even unto the sick were being carried from his body, handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases were departing from them, and the wicked spirits were going out. But certain also of the wandering Jews, exorcists, took in hand to naming, over them that had the wicked spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying—

I adjure you, by Jesus whom [Paul] proclaimeth!

But there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, a High-priest, who this thing were doing. But the wicked spirit, answering, said unto them—

Jesus [indeed] I am getting to know, and [Paul] I well-know, but who are ye?

And the man in whom was the wicked spirit, springing upon them, mastering them both, prevailed against them, so that naked and wounded fled they out of that house.

And this became known to all—both Jews and Greeks—who were dwelling in Ephesus; and fear fell upon them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was being magnified. Many also of them who had believed were coming, making open confession, and renouncing their practices. And [a] good many of them who had practised the curious arts, bringing together the books were burning them before all; and they reckoned up the prices of them, and found them fifty thousand pieces of silver.

Thus, with might the Lord's word was growing and prevailing.

Mt. iii. 11; Mk. i. 4, 8; chap. i. 5; xi. 16. Lu. iii. 16; Jn. i. 20; Mt. "skin."
Now when these things were fulfilled, Paul purposed in his spirit, going through Macedonia, and Achaia, to be journeying unto Jerusalem, saying—

After I have been there, Rome also must I see!

And sending off into Macedonia, two of them that ministered unto him, Timothy and Erastus, he himself held on awhile in Asia. And there arose during that season no small disturbance concerning the Way. For one Demetrius by name, a silversmith, making [silver] shrines, of Diana > used to bring unto the craftsmen no little business; gathering whom together, and them who in such things wrought, he said—

Men! ye well know that by this business we have our prosperity; and ye perceive and hear that not only in Ephesus, but well-nigh in all Asia, [this Paul] hath persuaded and turned away a considerable multitude, saying that they are [no gods] which [with hands] are made. And not only is there danger, that this our heritage [into ill-repute] may come, but even that the temple of the great Goddess Diana [for nothing] may be counted; also that even on the point of being pulled down may be Her Majesty, whom [all Asia and the habitable world do worship].

Men! ye well know that by this business we have our prosperity; and ye perceive and hear that not only in Ephesus, but well-nigh in all Asia [this Paul] hath persuaded and turned away a considerable multitude, saying that they are [no gods] which [with hands] are made. And not only is there danger, that this our heritage [into ill-repute] may come, but even that the temple of the great Goddess Diana [for nothing] may be counted; also that even on the point of being pulled down may be Her Majesty, whom [all Asia and the habitable world do worship].

Now hearing this, and becoming full of wrath, they began crying aloud, saying—

Great is Diana of the Ephesians!

And the city was filled with the confusion; they rushed also with one accord into the theatre, carrying off with them, Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians, fellow-travellers of Paul. But Paul being minded to enter in among the populace [the disciples] would not suffer him. Moreover [certain of the Asiarchs also] [being his friends] sending unto him, were beseeching him not to adventure himself into the theatre. Others indeed, were crying out [something else]; for the assembly had become confused, and [the greater part] knew not for what cause they had come together. Howbeit [out of the multitude] they bare aloft one Alexander, the Jews thrusting him forward; [Alexander] however [waving his hand] was wishing to make his defence unto the populace. But [recognising that he was a Jew] one voice arose from all for about two hours, as they cried aloud—

Great is Diana of the Ephesians!

Howbeit the town-clerk [having calmed the multitude] saith—

Ephesians! why, who is there of mankind, that doth not acknowledge [the city of Ephesians] to be temple-keeper of the Great Diana, and of the [image] that fell from Jupiter?

As these things, then, cannot be denied, it is needful that ye be calmed at once, and nothing rash be doing.

* 1 Co. xvi. 5.
away on the morrow we came over against Chios, and on the next day we thrust aside into Samos, and on the succeeding day we came into Miletus. For Paul had determined to sail past Ephesus, lest he should happen to lose time in Asia; for he hastened, if it were possible for him, against the day of Pentecost to arrive in Jerusalem.

§ 35. Paul's Farewell Address to the Elders of Ephesus.

But from Miletus he sent unto Ephesus, and called for the elders of the assembly. And when they were come to him he said unto them—

"Ye yourselves well know, from the first day when I set foot in Asia, in what manner I came to be with you all the time, doing service unto the Lord, with all humility and tears, and temptations which befell me through the plots of the Jews: in what manner I in nowise shrank from announcing unto you anything that was profitable and teaching you publicly and in your homes; bearing full witness, both to Jews and to Greeks, as to the repentance due unto God, and as to belief on our Lord Jesus. And now I bound in my spirit am journeying unto Jerusalem; the things which therein shall befall me I not knowing,—save that the Holy Spirit from city to city doth bear me full witness, saying that bonds and tribulations await me. But for no cause whatever am I making my life dear to myself, so that I may finish my course, and the ministry which I have received from the Lord Jesus, to bear full witness as to the good news of the favour of God. And now I know that no more shall ye see my face,—ye all, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom. Wherefore I take you to witness, on this very day, that I am from the blood of all; for I have not shrunken from announcing all the counsel of God unto you. Be taking heed unto yourselves, and unto all the little flock in which the Holy Spirit hath set you as overseers,—to be shepherding the assembly of God which he hath acquired through means of the blood of his own.

I know, that there will enter, after my departure, grievous wolves into your midst, not sparing the little flock; and from among your own selves will arise men speaking distorted things, to draw away the disciples after themselves. Wherefore, be on the watch, remembering that for three years, night and day, I gave myself no rest, with tears admonishing each one.

[Or: "soul."—Ap. suspects a primitive error for: "his own Son." 1 P. v. 2.]
[Or (WH): "unto God." Or: "who." 1 P. Deu. xxxiii. 3 f.]
[Or: "his gracious word." 1 P. Deu. xxxiii. 3 f.]
[Or (WH): "unto God." 1 P. Deu. xxxiii. 3 f.]

Now, therefore, I commend you unto the Lord, and unto his word of favour, which is able to build up and give the inheritance among all the hallowed ones. The silver or gold or apparel of no one did I covet: yourselves acknowledge that for my necessities, and for those who were with me, hard wrought these hands! In all things I gave you to understand, that as a toiling it behoves to be helping the weak, also to be keeping in mind the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said—Happy is it, rather to give than to receive!

And these things saying, kneeling down with them all, he prayed. And they all wept much, and falling upon Paul's neck they were tenderly kissing him; being most distressed for the word which he had said,—That no more should they his face behold. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

§ 36. Paul sails to Tyre, Ptolemais, and Caesarea: thence is escorted to Jerusalem.

And it came to pass when we set sail, having torn ourselves from them, running a straight course we came unto Cos, and on the next day unto Rhodes,—and from thence unto Patara; and finding a ship crossing over to Phoenicia—we set sail. And sighting Cyprus, and leaving it behind to the left we held on our voyage to Syria, and landed at Tyre; for there the ship was to discharge her cargo. And finding up the disciples we remained there seven days, and they unto Paul began to say through the Spirit, that he would gain no footing in Jerusalem. And when it came to pass that we had completed the days, we went forth, and continued our journey, all of them accompanying us, with wives and children, as far as outside the city; and kneeling down on the beach in prayer we tare ourselves from each other, and we went on board the ship, while they returned unto their homes. And we finishing the voyage from Tyre reached Ptolemais, and saluting the brethren abode one day with them; and on the morrow departing we came to Caesarea, and entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was of the seven we abode with him. Now this man had four virgin daughters, who used to prophesy. And as we stayed on many days there came down a certain man from Judea, a prophet, by name Agabus: and as coming unto us, and taking Paul's girdle he bound his own feet and hands, and said—Thus saith the Holy Spirit: The man whose this girdle is shall be Lord, thus' bind in Jerusalem, and deliver up into the hands of Gentiles. And when we heard these things both we and they of the place began beseeching him, not to go up unto Jerusalem.

13 Then answered Paul—

What are ye doing, weeping and breaking my heart?

For [I] not only to be bound, but to die in Jerusalem, am ready, in behalf of the name of the Lord Jesus.

14 And as he was not to be persuaded, we ceased, saying—

[The Lord's] will be done!

15 And after these days, making ready what we had started to go up unto Jerusalem; and there went certain also of the disciples from Caesarea, along with us, who were to introduce us unto one with whom we might be entertained, one Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple.

§ 37. Paul, in Jerusalem, is rescued from the Multitude by the Captain.

17 Now when we came to Jerusalem, the brethren gladly welcomed us. And on the next day Paul went in with us unto James, and [all] the elders were present. And having heard, began glorifying God; and they said to him—

Thou observest, brother, how many myriads there are, among the Jews, who have believed, and [all] are zealous for the law.

21 But concerning them of the nations who have believed, let them be of such a sort, as God shall appoint them. For they have seen Trophimus, the Ephesian, in the city along with him, whom they were supposing [Paul] had brought into the temple. And the whole city was in motion, and there took place a running together of the people, and [laying hold of Paul] they proceeded to drag him outside the temple, and straightway the doors were made fast.

22 But when also, they were seeking to slay him, there was carried up information, unto the captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in confusion:—

<Who instantly taking unto him soldiers and centurions> ran down upon them; and |seeing the captain and the soldiers| left off striking Paul. Then the captain |drawing near| laid hold of him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains,—and began to enquire, who he might be, and what he had done; but others were calling out |something else|, in the multitude; and so, he could not get to know the certainty, because of the tumult, he ordered him to be brought into the castle. And |when he came unto the stairs| so it was that he was borne along by the soldiers, because of the force of the multitude; and for the throng of the people was following, crying out—

Away with him!

24 But when he was on the point of being taken into the castle, Paul saith unto the captain—

Is it allowed me, to say somewhat unto thee? And |he| said—

With Greek art thou acquainted?

25 Not, then, art thou the Egyptian, who before these days stirred up sedition, and led out into the wilderness the four-thousand men of the Assassins?

And Paul said—

I indeed, am a Jew, of Tarsus in Cilicia,—a citizen of no obscure city; but I beseech thee, give me leave to speak unto the people!

§ 38. Paul addresses the People: escapes Scourging: is set before the High-council.

27 And when he had given leave, Paul! standing upon the stairs| waved with his hand unto the people; and when [great silence] was secured> he addressed them in the Hebrew language, saying—

Brethren and fathers! Hear ye |the defence| which I now make unto you:—

And when they heard that in the Hebrew language he had begun to address them> they kept the more' quiet. And he saith—

[I] am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but nurtured in this city, at the feet of Israelites! be giving help! This is the man who <against the people, and the law, and this place> is teaching [all men everywhere]; furthermore [even Greeks] hath he brought into the temple, and hath profaned this holy place.

For they had before seen Trophimus, the Ephesian, in the city along with him, whom they were supposing [Paul] had brought into the temple. And the whole city was set in motion, and there took place a running together of the people, and [laying hold of Paul] they proceeded to drag him outside the temple, and straightway the doors were made fast.
Gamaliel,—trained after the strictness of our ancestral law; being jealous for God just as all ye are this day; and this way I persecuted unto the death, binding, and delivering up into prisons, both men and women;—even the High-priest beareth me witness, and all the Eldership,—from whom letters also accepting to the brethren unto Damascus was I journeying, to bring them who were there, bound unto Jerusalem, that they might be punished.

But it befell me, as I was journeying, and drawing nigh unto Damascus, about mid-day—suddenly—out of heaven there flashed a great light all around me; I fell also to the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me—

Saul! Saul! Why art thou persecuting?

And I answered—Who art thou, Lord?

And he said unto me—

I am Jesus the Nazarene, whom thou art persecuting!

Now they who were with me beheld, indeed, the light but heard not the voice of him that was speaking with me.

And I said—

What shall I do, Lord?

And the Lord said unto me—

Arise, and going thy way into Damascus, and there shall it be told thee, of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

But I could not see clearly owing to the glory of that light; being led by the hand of them who were with me, I came into Damascus.

And one Ananias, a man devout according to the law, well-attested by all the Jews that dwelt there, coming unto me, and standing over me said—

Saul, brother! look up.

And I, in that very hour, looked up on him. And he said—

The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, to get to know his will, and to see the Righteous One,—and to hear a voice out of his mouth. Because thou shalt be a witness to him, unto all men, of the things which thou hast seen and heard.

And now what art thou going to do? Arise, and get thyself immersed, and have thy sins bathed away, calling upon his name.

And it came to pass, when I had returned unto Jerusalem, and was praying in the temple, that I came to be in a trance, and saw him, saying unto me—

Haste thee, and go forth speedily out of Jerusalem, inasmuch as they will not accept thy witness concerning me.

And I said—

Lord! well know, that I was imprisoning and beating, in every synagogue, them who were believing on thee.

And when the blood of Stephen thy witness was being shed, even I myself was standing by, and approving, and guarding the mantles of them who were slaying him.

And he said unto me—

Be taking thy journey; because unto nations afar off I will send thee.

And they hearkened unto him as far as this word, and lifted up their voice saying—

Away from the earth, with such a man as this, for it is not fit that he should live.

Now they who were both making an outcry and tearing their mantles,—dust also were throwing into the air; the captain ordered him to be brought into the castle, saying, that he should be put to the test,—that he might find out, for what cause they were clamouring against him. But when they had stretched him out with straps Paul said unto the by-standing centurion—

A Roman, and uncondemned is it allowed you to be scourging?

And when the council heard that he went unto the captain, and reported, saying—

What art thou going to do? For this man is a Roman?

And the captain, coming up, said to him—

Tell me! Art thou a Roman?

And he said—

Yes!

And the captain answered—

I for a large sum this citizenship acquired! And Paul said—

But am I even free-born!

Straightway therefore, they who were about to put him to the test, withdrew from him; and even the captain was struck with fear, when he found out he was a Roman, and because him he had bound.

But on the morrow being minded to get to know the certainty, as to why he was being accused by the Jews he released him, and ordered the High-priests and all the High-council to come together; and bringing down Paul set him before them.

Paul rebukes the High-priest; divides the Council; and is brought back to the Castle.

And Paul looking steadfastly at the High-council, said—

Brethren! in all good conscience have used my citizenship for God, until this day.

And the High-priest Ananias ordered them that stood by him, to be smiting him on the mouth. 3 Then Paul unto him said—

God is about [to be smiting thee], thou whited wall! Dost thou then sit to judge me according to the law, and unlawfully orderest me to be smitten?

4 And they who stood by said—

The High-priest of God dost thou revile?

5 And Paul said—

I was not aware, brethren, that he was high-priest; because it is written—

If of a ruler of thy people shalt thou not speak injuriously.

6 But Paul, getting to know that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees—began to cry aloud in the council—

Brethren! I am a Pharisee, son of Pharisees—Concerning a hope, even of a rising again of the dead am I to be judged.

7 And as this he was saying there arose a dissension of the Pharisees and Sadducees; and rent asunder was the throng! For there is no rising again, nor spirit, where as Pharisees confess them both. And there arose a great outcry, and certain of the Scribes of the party of the Pharisees, standing up, began to strive, saying—

Nothing bad find we in this man;—but if a spirit hath spoken unto him, or a messenger—...

9 And great dissension arising the captain fearing lest Paul would be torn in pieces by them> ordered the troop to go down, and take him by force out of their midst, to bring him into the castle.

10 But on the following night the Lord, standing over him, said—

Be of good courage! for thou hast fully borne witness of the things concerning me, in Jerusalem> or must thou in Rome also bear witness.

11 And when it became day the Jews forming a conspiracy bound themselves under a curse, saying, That they would neither eat nor drink, till they had slain Paul. And they were more than forty who this sworn-confederacy had formed. And they went unto the High-priests and Elders, and said—

With a curse! have we bound ourselves, to taste [nothing] until we have slain Paul.

12 And now therefore, do ye, with the Highcouncil make it appear unto the captain, that he should bring him down unto you, as though about to ascertain more exactly the things that concern him; and we, or ever he come near are ready to kill him.

13 But Paul's sister's son hearing of the lying-in-wait, happening to be near, and coming into the castle, reported it unto Paul. And Paul, calling unto him one of the centurions, said—

This young man lead thou away unto the captain, for he hath somewhat to report unto him.

14 He therefore, taking him with him, brought him unto the captain, and said—

The prisoner Paul calling me unto him, requested me to bring this young man unto thee, as having somewhat to tell thee. And the captain, taking him by the hand, and going aside began privately to ask—

What is it which thou hast to report unto me?

15 And he said—

The Jews have agreed to request thee, that to-morrow thou wouldst bring Paul down into the High-council, as though about to ascertain something more exact concerning him.

16 Thou therefore, do not be persuaded by them, for they are lying in wait for him, from among them, more than forty men, who indeed have bound themselves under a curse, neither to eat nor drink, till they have killed him; and now are they ready, awaiting the promise from thee.

17 The captain therefore, dismissed the young man, charging him—

Unto no one divulge thou, that these things thou hast showed unto me.

18 And calling certain two of the centurions, he said—

Make ye ready two hundred soldiers, that they may journey as far as Caesarea,—and provide, in order that seating Paul thereon they may bring him safely through unto Felix the governor.

19 And he wrote a letter, after this form:—

Claudius Lysias, unto the most excellent governor Felix, Joy!

This man, having been apprehended by the Jews, and being about to be killed by them I went down with the troop, and rescued: having learned that he was a Roman. And being minded to find out the cause for which they were accusing him I took him down into their High-council where I found to be accused concerning questions of their law, but of nothing worthy of death or bonds to be charged.

But when I was informed there would be a plot against the man> forthwith I sent him unto thee, charging his accusers also to be speaking against him before thee.

So the soldiers according to their orders, taking up Paul brought him by night unto Antipatris; and on the morrow leaving the horsemen to go on with him returned to the castle, and the others entering into Caesarea, and delivering the letter unto the governor set Paul also before him.

And when he had read it, and asked, out of what province he was, and learned that he was from Cilicia>

47. Felix hears Paul's case: Converses often with him; but leaves him bound.

24 And [after five days] came down the High-priest Ananias, with certain Elders and a certain orator Tertullus, and they informed the governor against Paul.

2 And [when he was called] Tertullus began to make accusation, saying—<Seeing that [great peace] we are obtaining throughtheo, and that [reforms] are being brought about for this nation through thy forethought> * both in all ways and in all places] are we accepting it, most excellent
Felix, with all thankfulness.

4 But <lost I too> long detain thee] I beseech thee to hear us concisely in thy' considertativeness.

5 For <finding this man a pest, and moving sedition with all the Jews that are throughout the inhabited earth, a leader also of the sect of the Nazarenes,> 4 who also attempted to desecrate even [the temple],* whom we also seized> * from whom thou shalt be able by thyself] by making examination concerning all these things] to ascertain the things of which we are accusing him.

9 Moreover, the Jews also were joining in the attack, saying that [these things] were [so].

10 And Paul answered, when the governor had motioned him to be speaking,— <Well knowing thee to have been [for many years] judge unto this nation> [cheerfully] as to the things concerning myself] do I make defence; 11 seeing that I am able to ascertain that there are [not more] than twelve days, since I went up to worship in Jerusalem,—12 and neither [in the temple] found they me [with any one] disputing, or causing [a halt] of the multitude, either in the synagogues or throughout the city,— either can they make good the things concerning which they are [now] accusing me.

15 But I confess] [this] unto thee,—That [according to the Way which they call a Sect] [so] am I rendering divine service unto my fathers' God, believing in all the things which [throughout the law] and those which [in the prophets] are written:

18 Having [hope] towards God, which [even these] themselves] do entertain,—that [as resurrection] there shall certainly be, both of righteous and of unrighteous: 18 [herein], even I myself am studying to have [an unoffending conscience], towards God and men, continually.

20 Now [after many years] <intending to do
[alms] unto my nation> I arrived,—also [to present] offerings*; among which they found me purified in the temple, not with a multitude, nor with tumult; 16 but certain Jews from Asia' [caused it], 18 who ought [before these] to have presented them-

22 And Felix deferred them, having more exact knowledge concerning the Way,—saying—<As soon as [Lydia the captain] hath come down> I will give judgment as to your affairs,— giving orders unto the centurion, that he should be kept, and have a measure of liberty, and to be hindering [none] of his own from waiting
upon him.

24 And [after certain days] <Felix having arrived, with Drusilla his own wife, who was [a Jewess]> he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith respecting Christ Jesus.

35 And <as he was reasoning of righteousness,and self-control, and the judgment to come> Felix becoming greatly afraid] answered—[For the present] going thy way, and [when I find an opportunity] I will send for thee,—

39 [at the same time] also hoping that [money] would be given him by Paul; [wherefore also] <themore frequently'sending forhim> he used to converse with him. 57 [When, however.] [two years] were completed> [Felix] was succeeded [by Porcius Festus], and Felix
[wishing to gain favour with the Jews] left Paul bound.

§ 42. Festus wishing him to go to Jerusalem, Paul appeals unto Caesar.

25 [Festus] therefore, [having come upon
the province], [after three days] went up unto Jerusalem from Cesarea; 2 and the High-priests
and chiefs of the Jews laid information before him against Paul, and began to beseech him,
asking for themselves as a favour against him,
that he would send for him unto Jerusalem,—
making [an ambush] to kill him on the way.

4 [Festus] therefore, answered, that Paul should be kept in Cesarea, and that [he himself] was about [shortly] to be going out [thither].

5 [They, therefore, among you (saith he) who are in power] let them go down with me;
and [if there is in the man [anything'] amiss]>
let them accuse him.

6 And <spending among them, not more than eight or ten days> he went down unto Cesarea;
and [on the morrow] [taking his place upon

* Chap. xxiv. 30.  ____1____ of the temple, not with a multitude, nor with tumult; 16 but certain Jews from Asia' [caused it], 18 who ought [before these] to have presented themselves, and to have been laying accusation, if [anything] they might have had against me:—20 Or, let these themselves say what wrong they found, when I stood before the High-council,—21 unless concerning this one' voice, wherewith I cried aloud among them, as I stood—

<Concerning the raising of the dead> am [I] to be judged, this day, by you.

22 And Felix deferred them, having more exact knowledge concerning the Way,—saying—
<As soon as [Lydia the captain] hath come down> I will give judgment as to your affairs,— giving orders unto the centurion, that he should be kept, and have a measure of liberty, and to be hindering [none] of his own from waiting upon him.

24 And [after certain days] <Felix having arrived, with Drusilla his own wife, who was a Jewess> he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith respecting Christ Jesus.

35 And <as he was reasoning of righteousness, and self-control, and the judgment to come> Felix becoming greatly afraid answered—
[For the present] going thy way, and [when I find an opportunity] I will send for thee,—

39 [at the same time] also hoping that [money] would be given him by Paul; [wherefore also] <themore frequently'sending for him> he used to converse with him. 57 [When, however.] [two years] were completed> [Felix] was succeeded [by Porcius Festus], and Felix [wishing to gain favour with the Jews] left Paul bound.

§ 42. Festus wishing him to go to Jerusalem, Paul appeals unto Caesar.

25 [Festus] therefore, [having come upon
the province], [after three days] went up unto Jerusalem from Cesarea; 2 and the High-priests
and chiefs of the Jews laid information before
him against Paul, and began to beseech him,
asking for themselves as a favour against him,
that he would send for him unto Jerusalem,—
making [an ambush] to kill him on the way.

4 [Festus] therefore, answered, that Paul should be kept in Cesarea, and that [he himself] was about [shortly] to be going out [thither].

5 [They, therefore, among you (saith he) who
are in power] let them go down with me;
and [if there is in the man [anything'] amiss]>
let them accuse him.

6 And <spending among them, not more than eight or ten days> he went down unto Cesarea;
and [on the morrow] [taking his place upon

the judgment-seat| ordered Paul to be brought. 7 And | when he presented himself| the Jews who | from Jerusalem | had come down, stood round about him, ||many and grievous| charges| bringing against |him], which they were not able to prove,—| Paul saying in defence—

<Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar> have I in anything sinned.

9 But ||Festus|| wishing | with the Jews| to gain |favour> answered Paul, and said—

Art thou willing | unto Jerusalem| to go up, and |there| concerning these things| be judged before me?

10 But Paul said—

<Standing before the judgment-seat of Caesar> am I, where |I| ought to be judged.

<Unto the Jews> have I done no wrong, as |even thou|| right well | art discovering.

11 |If then, on the one hand, I am doing wrong, and |anything worthy of death| have committed|| I excuse not myself from dying ; but, on the other hand, <if there is |nothing| in the things whereof these are accusing me>: |no man| hath power to give |me| unto them as a favour:—

<Unto Caesar> I appeal !

12 |Then Festus| |having conversed with the council| answered—

<Unto Caesar| hast thou appealed? |Unto Caesar| shalt thou go.

§ 43. King Agrippa, informed by Festus of Paul, wishes to hear him.

13 And |soul days having gone by| ||Agrippa the king| and Bernice| came down to Cesarea, to salute Festus. 14 |And <as they were spending more days there> |Festus| repeated |unto the king|, the things relating to Paul, saying—

<A certain man| hath been left behind by Felix |as a prisoner|; 16 concerning whom |when I happened to be in Jerusalem| the High-priests and the Elders of the Jews laid information, claiming against him a condemnation : 18 unto whom I made answer—

That it is not a custom with Romans, to grant as a favour any man, before the accused |face to face| should have his accusers, and |opportunity of defence| should receive, concerning the charge.

<When, therefore, they had come together here> |no delay whatever| making, ||on the next day> <taking my place upon the judgment-seat> I ordered the man to be brought.

18 Concerning whom, taking their stand, |his accusers| ||no accusation at all|| were bringing, of the evil things which |I|| had been suspecting ; 19 but |certain questions concerning their own| demon-worship| had they against him, and concerning one Jesus, who had died, whom Paul was affirming to be alive.

And ||I|| <being at a loss as to the inquiry

|into these things> was asking—Whether he might be minded to go unto Jerusalem, and |there| be judged concerning these things. 21 But ||Paul| <having appealed to be kept for the decision of the Emperor> I ordered him to be kept, until I could send him up unto Caesar.

22 And ||Agrippa| [said] unto Festus—

I could wish |myself also|| to hear |the man. 23 |To-morrow|| (saith he) thou shalt hear him.

§ 44. Paul before King Agrippa.

24 ||On the morrow, therefore| <when Agrippa had come>, and Bernice, with great display, and they had entered into the audience-chamber, with the captains of thousands and men of distinction of the city,—and Festus had given orders> Paul was brought. 24 And Festus saith—

King Agrippa | and all| ye men |here present with us|:

Ye observe this person, concerning whom |one and all| the throng of the Jews| have interceded with me, both in Jerusalem and here, crying aloud that he ought not to be living any longer.

But ||I| gathered, that |nothing worthy of death| had he committed ; and <this man himself|| having appealed unto the Emperor> I decided to send him :—

Concerning whom |anything certain| to write unto my lord, I have not ; wherefore, I have brought him forth before you,—and especially before thee, King Agrippa; in order that |after examination had| I might have something I could write ;—

For |unreasonable, unto me; it seemed|,

<when sending a prisoner| not also the accusations against| him| to signify.>

26 And ||Agrippa|| unto Paul| said—

It is permitted thee |on thine own behalf| to be speaking.

<Then Paul|| <stretching forth his hand went on to make his defence.>

2 <Concerning all| things of which I am accused by Jews, King| Agrippa|> I have been counting myself happy, that |before thee am I about| this day, to be making my defence ; 3 |especially|| as thou art wellversed| in all| the Jewish customs and questions. Wherefore, I beseech thee |patiently| to hear me.

4 <My manner of life, then, from my youth, which |from its commencement| was formed among my nation even in Jerusalem| know all| Jews, 5 insomuch as they were aforetime observing me, from the outset,—if they please to bear witness,—that <according to the strictest sect of our own religion| I lived |a Pharisee.>

And |now| <for the hope of the promise |unto our fathers| being brought to pass by God> am I standing to be judged,—unto which [hope] ||our twelve-tribed nation| <with intensity, night and day, rendering divine service is hoping to attain: concerning which hope I am being accused by Jews, O King!

9 What ! incredible is it judged with you, that God the dead doth raise!!!

10 I therefore imagined to myself, that against the name of Jesus the Nazarene it was needful many hostile things to bring about,—which also I did in Jerusalem, yes and many of the saints in prisons shut up,—the authority! from the High-priests having received ; and when they were to be put to death> I brought against them my vote ; and throughout all the synagogues of times' punishing them> I would fain have compelled them to defame ; and being excessively maddened against them> I went on to pursue them as far as even the outlying' cities.

12 Among which things> being on a journey unto Damascus,* with the authority and commission of the High-priests, at midday, on the road I saw, O King, from heaven, above the splendour of the sun, shining around me a light, and around them who with me were journeying ; and when we were all fallen to the ground> I heard a voice saying unto me, in the Hebrew' language—Saul ! Saul ! why me art thou persecuting ?

13 And I said— Who art thou, Lord ?

14 And the Lord said— I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting ; rise and stand upon thy feet ; for to this end have I appeared unto thee,—To appoint thee an attendant and a witness,

15 But rise and stand upon thy feet ; for to this end have I appeared unto thee,—To appoint thee an attendant and a witness,

16 Both of the things as to which thou hast seen me, And of those as to which I will appear unto thee :— Rescuing thee from among the people, and from among the nations. Unto whom I am sending thee— To open their eyes ;

17 That they turn from darkness unto light, And the authority of Satan unto God, That they may receive remission of sins, And an inheritance among them who have been made holy by the faith respecting me.

18 Wherefore, O King Agrippa,— I became not disobedient unto the heavenly' vision ;

19 But—<Both to them in Damascus, first, and in Jerusalem, Unto all the country of Judea also, and unto the nations> I carried tidings— That they should repent, and turn unto God, And works worthy of their repentance should practise.

20 Because of these things> Jews seized me in the temple, and were attempting to slay me with their own hands.

21 So then having met with the help that is from God> until this day do I stand, witnessing to both small and great, saying, than those things which both the prophets and Moses did say should certainly come to pass:—

22 If to suffer the Christ was destined, If the first of a resurrection of the dead he is about to carry tidings of both unto the people, and unto the nations.

23 Now as he was saying these things in his defence Festus with a loud voice saith— Thou art raving, Paul ! Thy great learning is turning thee round unto raving madness.

24 But Paul—I am not raving (saith he), most noble Festus,—but the declarations of truth and soberness am I sounding forth:

25 For well-knoweth the king concerning these things, unto whom with boldness of utterance am I speaking; for these things are not hidden from him I am well persuaded,—for not in a corner hath this thing been done.

26 Believeth thou, King Agrippa, in the prophets? I know that thou believest!

27 And Agrippa said unto Paul— Almost! art thou persuading me to become a Christian!

28 And Paul answered— I could pray unto God that both almost and altogether, not only thou but all they who are hearing me this day might become such,—as even I am, except these bonds.

29 And the king rose up, and the governor, Bernice also, and they who had been sitting with them ; and retiring they began conversing one with another, saying— Nothing worthy of death' or of bonds' doth this man practise.

30 And Agrippa unto Festus said— This man might have been released if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

§ 45. Paul's Voyage and Shipwreck.

27 Now when it was determined that we should sail for Italy> they proceeded to deliver Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto a centurion by name Julius, of an Augustan band. And <going on board a ship of Adramittium, about to sail unto the places along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, there being with us, Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica; and on the next day> we put into Zidon, and Julius, treating Paul kindly, gave him leave to go unto his friends and refresh himself; and from thence putting out to sea we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were contrary; and <sailing across the sea which is off Cilicia and Pamphylia> we came down to Myra, a city of Lycia. And the centurion finding a ship of Alexandria sailing for Italy put us therein. And <for a good many days sailing slowly, and getting with difficulty over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us to get on> we sailed under the lee of Crete over against Salamone; and <with difficulty coating it> we came to a certain place called Fair Havens, near to which was the city of Lasea.

And <when a considerable time had passed, and sailing was already dangerous, because even the Fast had already gone> Paul began to advise, saying to them—

Sirs! I perceive that with damage and great loss not only of the cargo and of the ship, but even of our persons shall the voyage certainly be attended. But the centurion, by the master, and by the shipowner was more persuaded than by the things which by Paul were spoken. And <the harbour being incommodious to winter in> the more part advised to put to sea from thence, if by any means they might be able to reach Phoenix, to winter, which was a harbour of Crete, looking north-east and south-east.

And <when a considerable time had passed, and sailing was already dangerous, because even the Fast had already gone> Paul began to advise, saying to them—

Sirs! I perceive that with damage and great loss not only of the cargo and of the ship, but even of our persons shall the voyage certainly be attended. But the centurion, by the master, and by the shipowner was more persuaded than by the things which by Paul were spoken. And <the harbour being incommodious to winter in> the more part advised to put to sea from thence, if by any means they might be able to reach Phoenix, to winter, which was a harbour of Crete, looking north-east and south-east.

And <when a south wind blowing softly supposing they had secured their purpose weighing anchor, they began to sail close in shore along Crete. But after no long time there beat down from it a tempestuous wind, called Euraquilo,— and <the ship being caught and we not being able to bring her head to the wind> we lether go, and were borne along. And <running under the lee of some small island called Cauda> we were able, with difficulty, to make ourselves masters of the boat, which hoisting up, they began to use [helps], under-girding the ship; and <fearing lest they should be shipwrecked> they threw cargo overboard, and made the tackling of the ship cast away. And <neither sun nor stars appearing for many days, and no small tempest lying upon us> in the end all hope that we should be saved began to be taken from us. But <when they had been long without food> [then] Paul, standing in the midst of them, said—

Ye ought, indeed, Sirs! [yielding to me] not to have sailed away from Crete, to get this damage and loss...

And now! I recommend you to be of good courage; for [loss of life] shall there be [none at all] from among you,—only of the ship.

For there stood by me this' night <belonging unto the God whose I am, unto whom also I am doing divine service> as a messenger, saying—

Be not afraid, Paul! for [before Caesar] must thou needs stand.

And lo! God hath granted to thee as a favour, all them who are sailing with thee.

Wherefore, be of good courage, Sirs; for I believe in God—that [so] it shall be, according as it hath been told me.

[Upon a certain island] however, must we needs be wrecked.

But <when [the sailors] were seeking to flee out of the ship, and had lowered the boat into the sea, by pretence, as though out of the prow they had been about to reach anchors> Paul said unto the centurion, and unto the soldiers—

<Except these abide in the ship> ye yourselves cannot be saved!

[Then] the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off. And <until day was about to dawn> Paul continued to beseech one and all to take some food, saying—

This day is [the fourteenth day] that [in suspense, fasting] ye are completing,— having helped yourselves [to nothing].

Wherefore, I beseech you to take some food, for [this] lays a foundation for your safety; for [of no one of you] shall a hair of the head perish.

And <having said these things, and taken a loaf> he gave thanks unto God before all, and [breaking it] began to eat. And <all becoming [of good cheer]> [they also] helped themselves to food.

Now were we, in the ship, in all, about seventy-six souls.

And <when they were satisfied with food> they began lightening the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea. And <when day came> they could not recognise [the land]; but perceived [a certain bay] having a beach,—upon which they were minded, if they could, safely to bring the ship. And [casting off the anchors] they let them go into the sea,—at the same...

* Or (WH): "in all two hundred and seventy-six."
time] loosening the lashings of the rudders, and [hoisting up the foresail to the wind] they made for the beach. 41 But <falling into a place where two seas met> they ran the ship aground; and [the foreship sticking fast] remained immovable, while [the stern] began to break up, from the violence [of the waves]. 42 Now [the soldiers’ counsel] turned out to be, that they should kill [the prisoners], lest any one should swim out and escape; 43 but [the centurion] <being minded to bring Paul safely through> hindered them of their purpose, and ordered such as were able to swim, to cast themselves overboard and [get first] to the land,—44 and [the rest] <[some] on planks, and [some] on other things from the ship>... and [so] it came to pass, that [all] were brought safely through, on to the land.

28 And [when we were safely through] then] we knew that the island was called [Melita].

And [the natives] began to show us no common' philanthropy; for [kindling a fire] they received us all, because of the rain that had set in, and because of the cold. 3 But <when Paul had gathered a certain lot [of firewood] into a bundle, and laid it on the fire> [a viper] by reason of the heat coming forth, fastened on his hand. 3 And [when the natives saw the brute, hanging out from his hand] they began to say [one to another]—

[DOBTLLESS] this man is [a murderer], whom <though brought safely through out of the sea> [Justice] hath not suffered [to live].

3 [He] however, <shaking off the brute into the fire> suffered no harm; 4 whereas [they] were expecting, that he was about to become inflamed, or to fall down suddenly dead;—but <when they had been long' expecting, and had observed [nothing unusual] happening unto him> they changed their minds, and began to say he was a god.

7 Now [in the neighbourhood of that place] were lands, belonging to the chief man of the island, by name Publius,—who [making us welcome] [for three days]: hospitably entertained us. 8 And it so hap]ened that [the father of Publius] [with feverish heats and dysentery diseased] was lying prostrate: unto whom Paul entering in and praying, laid his hands on him, and healed him. 9 And [when this happened] the rest also, even they in the island who were sick] were coming in and getting cured; 10 who also [with many' honours] honoured us, and [when we were about to sail] put on board such things as we might need.

11 And <after three' months> we sailed in a ship which had wintered in the island, [a ship] of Alexandria, whose ensign was—The Twin Brothers; 12 and [touching at Syracuse] we tarried three days; 13 whence [going round] we reached Rhegium; and [after one' day] in a south wind springing up; on the second day] we came to Puteoli; 14 where [finding brethren] we were entreated to tarry [with them] seven days;—and [thus, towards Rome] we came. 15 And <when from thence the brethren heard the tidings concerning us> they came to meet us, as far as The Market of Appius and the Three Taverns,—seeing whom] Paul thanked God, and took courage.

§ 47. Paul in Rome.

16 And [when we entered into Rome] Paul was suffered to abide by himself, with the soldier that guarded him.

17 And it came to pass, after three days, that he called together those who were the chief of the Jews; and [when they came together] he began to say unto them—

[All] brethren, <though I had done [nothing against] the people, or the customs of our fathers> [as a prisoner] out of Jerusalem] was delivered into the hands of the Romans;—18 who, indeed, [when they had examined me] were minded to set me at liberty, because there was [nothing worthy of death] in me.

19 But [as the Jews spoke against it] I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar,—not as though [against my nation] I had anything to bring by way of accusation.

20 [For this' cause] therefore, have I called for you, to see and to speak with you; for [on account of the hope of Israel] [this chain] have I about me!

21 And [they] said [unto him]—

[We] have neither received [letters concerning thee] from the Jews, nor hath anyone of the brethren [who hath arrived] reported or spoken concerning thee, anything ill.

22 But we do well it, that [from thee] we should hear what are thine opinions; for, indeed, [concerning this sect] it is [known to us] that [everywhere] is it spoken against.

23 And [having arranged with him a day] there came unto him, to the lodging, a larger number; unto whom he proceeded to expound, bearing full witness to the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus, both from the law of Moses, and from the prophets,—from morning till evening. 24 And [some] indeed, were persuaded by the things that were spoken, whereas [others] disbelieved; 25 and <not being [agreed] among themselves> they began to leave,—Paul having said one thing—

[Well] did [the Holy Spirit] speak through Isaiah the prophet, unto your fathers, saying—

Go thy way unto this people, and say—

Ye shall [surely hear] and yet will in nowise understand,

And [surely see] and yet will in nowise perceive;

21 For the heart of this people [hath become dense],

* Or: "were entreated by them."
Be it known unto you therefore, That unto the nations I hath been sent forth this salvation of God: they will also hear.

And he abode two whole years in his own hired house, and made welcome all who were coming in unto him, proclaiming the kingdom of God, and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ, with all' freedom of speech without hindrance.

1 Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, a called apostle,
   Separated unto the glad-message of God—
   Which he promised beforehand, through his prophets, in holy scriptures—
   Concerning his Son,—
   Who came to be of the seed of David, according to flesh,
   Who was distinguished as the Son of God—
   By power,
   According to a Holy Spirit,
   Through means of a resurrection of the dead,—
   Jesus Christ our Lord;
   Through whom we have received favour and apostleship,
   For obedience of faith among all the nations, in behalf of his name,
   Among whom are ye also called of Jesus Christ:

<Unto all that are in Rome, beloved of God, called saints>
   Favour unto you, and peace.
   From God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ.

If indeed, I give thanks unto my God, through Jesus Christ, concerning you all; Because your faith is being announced throughout the whole' world.

For God is my witness—
   Unto whom I am rendering divine service in my spirit, in the glad message of his Son>—

How incessantly I am making mention of you! at all times in my prayers,—

Making supplication—
   If by some means, even now, at any time;
   I may have a way opened, in the will of God, to come unto you;—

For I am longing to see you,
   That I may impart some spiritual gift unto you,
   To the end ye may be established,—

That there may be a mutual encouragement among you, Each by the other's faith, [Both yours and mine].

I do not wish, however that ye should be ignorant, brethren,
   That have I purposed to come unto you,
   But have been hindered, until the present,—

In order that some fruit I might have among you also, even as among the other nations.

<Both to Greeks and to Barbarians, Both to wise and to unwise> a debtor I am:
   Thus the eagerness on my part—
   Unto you also who are in Rome

To announce the joyful message.

For I am not ashamed of the joyful message;
   For it is God's power unto salvation, to every one that believeth,
   Both to Jew [first] and to Greek;

For a righteousness of God is therein revealed,—
   ![Chap. xxv. 23, 32](1 Co. i. 15).
But he that is righteous by faith shall live.

For there is being revealed an anger of God from heaven—
Against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men
Who do hold down;
Inasmuch as what may be known of God is manifest among them,
For unto them hath made it manifest,
For what may be known of God is manifest among them,
For even his eternal power and divinity is manifest:
To the end they should be without excuse;
Inasmuch as having come to know God,
Not as God did they glorify him, or give him thanks,
But were made fruitless in their reasonings,
And darkened was their undiscerning heart,
And exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God, for the likeness of a corruptible man, and of birds and fourfooted beasts and reptiles:
Wherefore God gave them up in the covetings of their hearts, unto impurity, so as to be dishonouring their bodies among them,—
Who, indeed, exchanged away the truth of God for the falsehood, and rendered worship and service unto the creature rather than unto the Creator,—Who is blessed unto the ages. Amen!
For this cause God gave them up unto dishonourable passions;
For even their females exchanged away the natural use into that which is against nature,—
In like manner also even the males,
Leaving the natural use of the female, Flamed out in their eager desire one for another; Males with males the indecency effecting,—And the necessary recompence of their error within themselves duly receiving—
And even as they did not approve to be holding God in acknowledgment,
God gave them up unto a disapproved mind.

To be doing the things that are not becoming,—
Filled with all unrighteousness, wickedness, greed, baseness,
Full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, evil disposition,
Whisperers, detractors, haters of God, insolent, arrogant, vain boasters, inventors of vices, unto parents unyielding,
Without discernment, regardless of covenants, without natural affection, unmerciful:

Wherefore indeed, having acknowledged the righteous sentence of God—
That they who such things as these do practise are worthy of death; Not only the same things are doing, But are even delighting together with them who are practising them.

Wherefore thou art, O man whoever judgest; For where thou judgest some one else thou dost condemn,— For the very things thou dost practise who art judging:
We know, however, that the sentence of God is according to truth, against them who such things as these do practise.
And reckonest thou this, O man—<Who dost judge them who such things do practise, and yet art doing the same> That thou shalt escape the sentence of God?
Or the riches of his kindness, and forbearance, and long-suffering dost thou despise,—Not knowing that the kindness of God is unto repentance? Art treading up for thyself anger, in a day of anger and revelation of the righteous judgment of God,—
Who will render unto each one according to his works:—
Unto them on the one hand, who by way of endurance in good work are seeking glory, honour and incorruption> life age-abiding; Unto them on the other hand, who are of contention, and are not yielding unto the truth, but are yielding unto unrighteousness> anger and wrath, tribulation and anguish against every soul of man who worketh what is base, Both of Jew first and of Greek;—
But glory and honour and peace— Unto every one who worketh what is good, Both unto Jew first and unto Greek;
For there is no respect of persons with God;—

Hab. ii. 4; cp. Gal. iii. 11, 16; He. x. 88; Jer. x. 14; 1 Co. ii. 20; Ps. civ. 20. "passions of dishonest honour." "aside from," "beyond." Or (WH): "For we know"; or, as occasion- ally rendered (Ac. viii. 36, n.): "We know, in fact." Ps. ixii. 12; Pr. xxiv. 12. "Age-abiding." Ap: "Age-abiding."
For if many as without law sinned, all shall perish;
and if many as within law sinned, all shall be judged;
for if not the hearers of law are righteous with God,
but the doers of law shall be declared righteous;
for whosoever the nations which have not law may be doing, the same not having law unto themselves; are a law, who indeed show the work of the law written in their hearts, Their conscience therewith bearing witness, and between one another their reasonings accusing or even excusing them;
the day on which God judgeth the secrets of men according to my glad-message, through Christ Jesus.
If however thou art taking the name of Jew, and resting thyself upon law, and boasting in God, and art taking note of his will, and testing the things that differ when receiving oral instruction out of the law, art persuaded, moreover, that thou thyself art—A guide of the blind. A light of them that are in darkness. A trainer of the simple. A teacher of babes, having the forming of knowledge and truth in the law—

| Thou, therefore, that art teaching someone else! Thou art not teaching? Thou that proclaims—Do not steal! Art thou stealing?
| That sayest—Do not commit adultery! Art thou committing adultery? That abhorrest sacrifices! Art thou robbing temples?
| That in law dost boast: Through the transgression of the law art thou dishonouring God?

For the name of God because of you is defamed among the nations,—Even as it is written:

But if our unrighteousness commendeth God's righteousness, what shall we say? Surely not unrighteous is God who visiteth with his anger;

Far be it! Else how shall God judge the world?

But if [the truth of God] by my falsehood hath the more abounded unto his glory: Why [any longer] am I even I as a sinner to be judged? And why not according as we are injuriously charged, and according as some affirm that we say—Let us do the bad things, that the good ones may come? Whose sentence is just? What then? Do we screen ourselves? Not at all! For we have before accused both Jews and Greeks of being all under sin:

Even as it is written—There is none righteous, [not even one], There is none that discerneth, There is none that seeketh out God:

All have turned aside, have become useless, There is none that doth kindness, Not so much as one:

A sepulchre, opened is their throat, With their tongues have they used deceit. The poison of asps is under their lips. Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness is full.

Serve are their feet to shed blood;

[Destruction and misery!] are in their ways.

And way of peace are they not known:

Alluding to "Jew" as a man of Judah; "Juda" = "one to be praised." Ps. xiv. 1 f. Ps. x. 7; Ps. xii. 2 f.; Ps. cxvi. 8.

25 For if not he who is one in appearance is a Jew,
Nor is that which is such in appearance, in flesh circumcision;
But he who is one in secret is a Jew,—And [that is] circumcision which is of the heart, in spirit, not in letter,—Whose praise is not of men, but of God.

What, then, is the preëminence of the Jew? Or what, the profit of his circumcision?

Much, every way:—

First, indeed, that they were entrusted with the oracles of God.

For what? If some distrusted shall their distrust make the trust of God void?

Far be it! But let [God] prove to be true, albeit every man be false!

Even as it is written—That thou mightest be declared righteous in thy words, and overcome when thou art in judgment.

But if our unrighteousness commendeth God's righteousness what shall we say? Surely not unrighteous is God who visiteth with his anger;

After the manner of men I am speaking—

Far be it! Elsehow shall God judge the world?

But if [the truth of God] by my falsehood hath the more abounded unto his glory: Why [any longer] am I even I as a sinner to be judged? And why not according as we are injuriously charged, and according as some affirm that we say—Let us do the bad things, that the good ones may come? Whose sentence is just? What then? Do we screen ourselves? Not at all! For we have before accused both Jews and Greeks of being all under sin:

Even as it is written—There is none righteous, [not even one], There is none that discerneth, There is none that seeketh out God:

All have turned aside, have become useless, There is none that doth kindness, Not so much as one:

A sepulchre, opened is their throat, With their tongues have they used deceit. The poison of asps is under their lips. Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness is full.

Serve are their feet to shed blood;

[Destruction and misery!] are in their ways.

And way of peace are they not known:
There is no fear of God before their eyes.\(^a\)

Now we know.
That whatsoever things the law saith:
To them who are within the law it speaketh,
In order that every mouth may be stopped.
And all the world come under penal sentence unto God.

Inasmuch as by works of law shall no flesh be declared righteous before him,—\(^c\)
Through law in fact, is discovery of sin.

But now, apart from law, is a righteousness of God hath been manifested,
Borne witness by to the law and the prophets,—
A righteousness of God, through faith in Jesus Christ, unto all that have faith;
For there is no distinction,—
For all have sinned, and fall short of the glory of God;
Being declared righteous freely by his favour, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:
Whom God hath set forth as a propitiatory covering, through faith in his blood,
For as showing forth of his righteousness by reason of the passing-by of the previously committed sins, in the forbearance of God,—
With a view to showing forth of his righteousness in the present season,
That he might be righteous even when declaring righteous him that hath faith in Jesus.

Where, then, the boasting! It is excluded.
Through what kind of law? Of works!!!
Nay but through a law of faith:
For we reckon that a man is to be declared righteous by faith, apart from works of law.

Or (is God) the God of Jews only, and not of the nations also?
Yea! of the nations also:—
If, at all events, God is one,
Who will declare righteous—
The circumcision, by faith,
And the uncircumcision, through their faith.

Do we then make law void, through means of our faith?
Far be it! On the contrary we do establish:

What, then, shall we say—as touching Abraham our forefather?\(^c\)
For if Abraham by works was declared righteous he hath whereof to boast;—
Nevertheless, not towards God,—
For what doth the Scripture say?

And Abraham believed in God, and it was reckoned unto him as righteousness.\(^b\)

Now unto him that worketh, is not reckoned by way of favour, but by way of obligation,
Whereas unto him that worketh not, but believeth on him that declareth righteousness to the ungodly— his faith is reckoned as righteousness.

Just as David also affirmeth the happiness of the man, unto whom [God] reckoneth righteousness, apart from works:

Happy they whose lawlessnesses have been forgiven,
And whose sins have been covered,
Happy the man whose sins the Lord will in no wise reckon.\(^b\)

This happiness then, is it for the circumcision, or for the uncircumcision?
For we say—
His faith was reckoned unto Abraham as righteousness:

How, then, was it reckoned? When he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision?
Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision;
And a sign he received [namely] of circumcision,
A seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while yet uncircumcised;
To the end he might be father of all that believe during uncircumcision,
To the end [the same] righteousness might be reckoned unto them,—
And father of circumcision—
Unto them who are not of circumcision only.
But who also walk in the steps of the faith while yet uncircumcised of our father Abraham.

For not through means of law doth the promise belong unto Abraham or unto his seed,—
That he should be heir of the world;
But through a righteousness by faith,
For if they who are of law are heirs Made void is faith,
And of no effect is the promise.\(^b\)

For the law worketh out anger, But where there is no law neither is there transgression.

For this cause it is by faith, in order that it may be by way of favour,
So that the promise is firm unto all the seed,—
Not unto that by the law only,
But unto that also [which is such] by the faith of Abraham;
Who is father of us all,—\(^b\)
17 Even as it is written—
||Father of many nations|| have I appointed thee*:

Before him whom he believed—||God||,
Who causeth the dead to live,
And calleth the things that are not as things that are—

Who ||past hope|| upon hope| believed,
So that he became ||father of many nations,—
According to what had been said—
So shall be thy seed—:

And <without becoming weak in his faith> he attentively considered his own' body, already deadened—He being a hundred years old, The deadening also of Sarah's womb; 20 <In respect, however, of the promise of God> he was not led to hesitate by unbelief, But received power by his faith, Giving glory unto God, 21 And being fully persuaded (that)—

||What he hath promised>
|Able| is he also to perform :

Wherefore [also], it was reckoned unto him as righteousness.*

Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was reckoned unto him,*

But for our sakes also—unto whom it is to be reckoned—

Even unto them that believe upon him who raised Jesus our Lord from among the dead:

Who was delivered up on account of our offences.4
And was raised on account of the declaring us righteous.

5 <Having, therefore, been declared righteous by faith>
Let us have peace|| towards God,
Through our Lord Jesus Christ,—

Through whom also we have had [our introduction] [by our faith] into this favor wherein we stand*;
And let us boast in hope of the glory of God.

And ||not only so|| But let us boast ||also in our tribulations;
Knowing that [our tribulation] worketh out [endurance].

And [our endurance] a testing, And [our testing] hope,
And [our hope] puttheth not to shame.6

Because [the love of God] hath been poured out in our hearts, Through the Holy Spirit that hath been given unto us:

Seeing that ||Christ||<
||We being weak as yet>
|Seasonably, in behalf of such as were ungodly| died.
7 For ||scarcely in behalf of a righteous man|| will one die,—

||In behalf of the good man, indeed|| per-

But God ||commended his own' love unto us||
In that—
||<We as yet being|sinners||>||
||Christ|| [in our behalf] died.

|| Much more|| then, <having now been declared righteous by his blood>||
Shall we be saved [through him] from the anger.*

10 For <if being|enemies||
We were reconciled unto God through the death of his Son>

||Much more|| <having been reconciled>
Shall we be saved by his life.

12 And ||not only|| so, But are even boasting in God,
Through our Lord Jesus ||Christ||,—
Through whom ||now|| [the reconciliation, we have received.

13 ||For this cause—:

<Just as [through one' man] [sin] into the world’ entered,
And [through sin] [death]|—

And ||so|| unto all' men' death passed through,
For that |all| had sinned;;—

For [until law] [sin was in the world,
Although [sin] is not reckoned, when there is no law,—

Yet still [death reigned’ from Adam until Moses, Even over them who had not sinned after the likeness of the transgression of Adam,—

||Who is a type* of the Coming One||s;—

15 But <not as the fault>
||So|| [also] the decree of favour,
For <if [by the fault of the one]| [the many]| died>

||Much more|| [the favour of God, and the free-gift in favour, by the one’ man Jesus Christ|| unto the many] superabounded4;

16 And <not as through one that sinned>
Is that which is freely given,—
For [the sentence of judgment] indeed was— [Out of one [fault]] into condemnation,
Whereas [the decree of favour] is—[Out of many' faults] into a recovery of righteousness.

For <if [by the fault of the one’] [death reigned through the one:>

||Much more|| <they who [the superabundance of the favour and of [the free-gift of] the righteousness] do receive> [In life:] shall reign through theene, ||Jesus Christ ;

18 Hence, then <as [through one’ fault] [the sentence was] unto all’ men unto condemnation>

||So|| also, <through one’ recovery of right-
10 For just as through the disobedience of one man sin entered into all mankind; so through the obedience of one man righteousness will be established.

11 And as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

12 For as through one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of one man shall the many be made righteous.

13 Now death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those whose faces were toward God; but from Moses and Christ, who is born of a woman, so also righteousness came from faith.

14 Now the law came in through Moses, that the justification by faith might be established through the law, for the sake of those who believe in Jesus Christ.

15 For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for the same Lord is Lord of all, who is rich to all who call upon Him.

16 For every one who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved.

17 But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe on His name:

18 For the word of God is not void of power. For through it all the world shall be judged, and also every secret thing, whether things done in light or in darkness, be revealed.

19 For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

20 For the salt of the earth loses its flavor, if its saltiness be the covered up and be no longer salt.

21 And it is not good, when a son is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

22 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

23 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

24 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

25 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

26 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

27 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

28 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

35 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

36 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

37 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

38 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

39 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

40 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

41 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

42 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

43 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

44 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

45 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

46 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

47 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

48 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

49 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

50 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

51 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

53 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

54 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

55 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

56 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

57 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

58 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

59 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.

60 And when a man is an apostate, and there is no turning of the father for the son, that the son's sins be prolonged.
But if her husband have died,
She hath received a full release from the law of her husband.

Hence then, if her husband being alive,
An adulteress shall she be called—If she becomes another man’s,
But if the husband have died, she is free from the law;
So that she is not an adulteress, though she become another man’s.

So, then, my brethren, ye also were made dead unto the law through the body of the Christ,
To the end ye might become another’s—
His who from among the dead was raised,
In order that we might bring forth fruit unto God.

For when we were in the flesh, the susceptibilities of sins which were through the law, used to be energized in our members, unto the bringing forth of fruit unto death;

But now we have received full release from the law, by dying in that wherein we used to be held fast,
So that we should be doing service—
In newness of spirit.

And not in obsequies of letter.

What, then, shall we say?
Is the law sin? For it was that thou mightest appear sin through that which was good unto me.

Howbeit sin, taking occasion—Through the commandment I wrought out in me all manner of coveting;
For apart from law, sin is dead;
And I was alive, apart from law, at one time,
But the commandment coming,
Sin sprang up to life, whereas I died,
And the commandment which was unto life was bound by me to be itself unto death;

For sin—taking occasion—Through the commandment completely deceived me,
And through it slew me;
So that the law, indeed, is holy, and the commandment, holy, and righteous and good.
Did then, that which is good unto me become death?
Far be it!

But (it was) sin <that it might appear sin> through that which was good unto me working out death,

In order that exceeding sinful might become through the commandment;

For we know, that the law is spiritual,—I however, am a creature of flesh,
Sold under sin;

For that which I am working out
I do not approve,—
For not what I wish <the same> I practise,
But what I hate <the same> I do:

Now if what I wish not <the same> I do
I consent unto the law, that it is right.

But the <sin> that dwelleth in me;
I know, in fact, that there dwelleth not in me <that is, in my flesh> anything <good>;
For the wishing lieth near me,
But the working out of what is right; not!
For not <the good that I wish> I do,
But <the evil that I do not wish> <the same> I practise.

Now if what I wish not <the same> I do
No longer am I working it out,
But the <sin> that dwelleth in me.

Hence, I find the law <To me who wish to be doing the right> That unto me <the wrong> lieth near:
I have, in fact, a sympathetic pleasure in the law of God; according to the inner man.
But I behold a diverse law in my members, Warring against the law of my mind
And taking me captive in <the law of sin> which existeth in my members:

Wretched man am I!
Who shall rescue me out of this body doomed to death?

But thanks be unto God!—Through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Hence, then,—
I myself, with the mind, indeed am in servitude unto a law of God;
But with the flesh unto a law of sin.

Hence, there is now no condemnation, unto them who are in Christ Jesus;
For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath set thee free from the law of sin and of death;

For <What was impossible by the law, in that it was weak through the flesh>
God, by sending <his own> Son, in the likeness of sinful flesh, and concerning sin>

Condemned sin in the flesh,
In order that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us—Who not according to flesh do walk, But according to spirit;

For they who according to flesh have their being,
The things of the flesh do prefer, But they according to the spirit.
For what is preferred by the flesh is death, Whereas what is preferred by the spirit is life and peace;
Inasmuch as what is preferred by the flesh is hostile towards God, For unto the law of God it doth not submit itself, neither in fact it,—
They, moreover, who in flesh have their being cannot please God.
But ye have not your being in flesh, but in spirit,—
If at least God's Spirit dwelleth in you;
And if anyone hath not Christ's Spirit, The same is not his;
But if [Christ] is in you, The body indeed is dead by reason of sin,
Whereas the spirit is life by reason of righteousness;
If moreover the Spirit of him that raised Jesus from among the dead dwelleth in you, He that raised, from among the dead, Christ Jesus Shall make alive [even] your death-doomed bodies, Through means of his indwelling Spirit within you.

Hence, then, brethren—[debtors we are, Not unto the flesh, that according to flesh we should live,—
For if [according to flesh ye live] ye are about to die, Whereas if [in spirit] the practices of the flesh ye are putting to death ye shall attain unto life;
For as many as [by God's Spirit are being led] the same are [God's sons],—
For ye have not received a spirit of servitude, leading back into fear, But ye have received a spirit of sonship, Whereby we are exclaiming—Abba! Oh Father!
The Spirit itself beareth witness together with our spirit, that we are children of God;
And if children [heirs also]—Heirs, indeed, of God, But co-heirs with Christ,—If, at least, we are suffering together, In order that we may also be glorified together.

10 For I reckon, that [unworthy] are the sufferings of the present season, To be compared with the glory about to be revealed towards us:
19 For the eager outlook of creation ardently awaiteth the revealing of the sons of God,—
20 For unto vanity hath creation been made subject—Not by choice, But by reason of him that made it subject>
In hope that creation itself also shall be freed—From the bondage of the decay, Into the freedom of the glory, of the sons of God;
22 For we know, that all creation is sighing together, and travelling-in-birth-throes together, [until the present],—
23 And [not only so>
But we ourselves also, who have [the first-fruit of the Spirit]
[We even ourselves] within our own selves do sigh,—Sonship ardently awaiting—The redeeming of our body;—
For by our hope have we been saved, But hope beheld is not' hope, For what one beholdeth why doth he hope for?
If, however, [what we do not behold] we hope for>
With endurance are we ardently awaiting [it];—
25 In the selfsame way moreover, [even the Spirit] helpeth together in our weakness,—
For [what we should pray for as we ought] we know not, But [the Spirit itself] maketh intercession, with sighings unutterable, And [he that searcheth the hearts] knoweth what is preferred by the Spirit—That according to God! he maketh intercession in behalf of saints;
26 We know, further, that [unto them who love God> God causeth all things to work together, for good,—
27 Unto them who according to purpose are such as he hath called;]
28 For whom he fore-approved, He also fore-appointed, to be conformed unto the image of his Son, That he might be firstborn among many brethren,—
29 And whom he fore-appointed, the same he also called, And whom he called, The same he also declared righteous, And whom he declared righteous he also made glorious:
What, then, shall we say to these things? If [God] is for us, who [shall be] against us!

Who, at least, who [his own] Son did not spare. But [in behalf of us all] delivered him up. How shall he not also [with him] all things [upon us] in favour bestow?

Who shall bring an accusation against the chosen ones of God? God, who declareth righteousness!

Who is he that condemneth Christ Jesus, who died?—Nay! rather was raised [from among the dead].—Who is on the right hand of God, Who also is making intercession in our behalf?

Who shall separate us from the love of the Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?—According as it is written—For thy sake are we being put to death all the day long, We have been reckoned as sheep [for slaughter].—Nay! [in all these things] we are more than conquering. Through [him that hath loved us].

For I am persuaded that—Neither death nor life, nor messengers nor principalities, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing—Shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Truth say I, in Christ, I utter no falsehood.—My conscience bearing witness with me in the Holy Spirit.

That I have [great grief and incessant' travail in my heart; For I could have wished to be [accursed!] * even myself from the Christ. In behalf of my brethren my kinsmen according to the flesh;—Who indeed are Israelites, [Whose] are the sonship, and the glory, and the covenants, and the legislation, and the divine service, and the promises, [Whose] are the fathers, And [of whom] is the Christ—according to the flesh.—He who is over all, God, blessed unto the ages. Amen.

It is not, however, as though the word of God [had failed]; For [not all] they who are of Israel [the same] are Israel,

Neither [because they are seed of Abraham are] all [children, —But [in Isaac] shall there be called unto the seed.]

That is—[Not the children of the flesh] [the same] are children of God; But [the children of the promise] are reckoned as a seed.

For [of promise] is this word—According to this season will I come, And Sarah shall have a son.

But <when [Rebekah also] was with child [of one]—Isaac our father,—They, in fact, not being yet born, nor having practised anything good or bad,—In order that the purpose of God [by way of election] might stand,—Not by works, But by him that was calling>

It was said unto her—The elder shall serve the younger;

Even as it is written—Jacob I have loved, but Esau I have hated.

What, then, shall we say? Is there injustice with God? Far be it!

For [unto Moses] he saith—I will have mercy upon whomsoever I can have mercy, And I will have compassion upon whomsoever I can have compassion.

Hence, then, it is not of him that wiseth, nor of him that runneth, But of the mercy'-shewing God.

For the Scripture saith unto Pharaoh—Unto this end have I raised thee up, That I may thus show in thee my power, And that I may declare my name in all the earth.

Hence, then,—On whom he pleaseth he hath mercy, And [whom he pleaseth] he doth harden.

Thou wilt say to me, then—Why longer' findeth he fault? For [his purpose] who hath withstood?

O man! Who, nevertheless, art thou that art answering again unto God? Shall [the thing formed] say [unto him that formed it]—1 Why didst thou make me thus?

Or hath not [the potter] a right [over the clay]—k

Out of the same lump,
To make some, indeed, into a vessel for honour,
And some for dishonour?

22 And <if God—
Wishing to shew his anger, and to make known his power—
Bare, in much patience, with vessels of anger* already fitted for destruction,
In order that it might make known the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy which he prepared beforehand for glory,—
|Whom| he also called, |even us|
Not only from among Jews, But also from among the nations> [What then?]

25 As also [in Hoses] he saith—
I will call the Not-my-people [My people],
And the Not-beloved [Beloved],

26 And it shall be—
<In the place where it was said [to them]<—
|Not my people| are |ye| >
|There;| shall they be called—
Sons of a Living God.

27 [Isaiah] moreover, exclaimeth over
Israel—
<Though the number of the sons of Israel be as the sand of the sea>
...The remnant shall be saved;

28 For [a complete and concise account] will the Lord make upon the earth."

29 And [even as Isaiah hath before said]—
<If the Lord of hosts] had not left us a seed>
As Sodom had we become,
And as Gomorrha had we been made like,

What, then, shall we say?
That they of the nations
<Who were not in pursuit of righteousness>
Have laid hold of righteousness,—
A righteousness, however, which is by faith;

31 Whereas [Israel]]
<Though in pursuit of a law of righteousness>
Unto a law have not attained.

32 Wherefore?
Because <not by faith,
But by works> [have they sought it]>
They have stumbled at the stone of stumbling,*
Even as it is written—
Lo! I lay in Zion,
A stone to strike against,
And a rock to stumble over,
And he that resteth faith thereupon shall not be put to shame.

10 Brethren! [the delight of my own heart, and my supplication God-ward, in their behalf] are for salvation;

3 For I bear them witness, that they have a zeal for God,—but not according to correct knowledge;

3 For <Not knowing |God's| righteousness,
And [their own] seeking to establish>
|Unto the righteousness of God| have they not submitted;

4 For Christ is [an end of law] [for righteousness], unto every one that believeth.

5 For [Moses] writeth, that—
<As touching the righteousness that is by law>
|The man that hath done' [it]| shall live thereby,*

6 Whereas [the righteousness by faith] [thus] speaketh—
Do not say in thy heart,
Who shall ascend into heaven?
That is, To bring [Christ] down,

Or,
Who shall descend into the abyss!*
That is, To bring up [Christ, from among the dead];

8 But what saith it?
|Near thee| is [the declaration],
|In thy mouth, and in thy heart;|—
That is, The declaration of the faith, which we proclaim:—

9 That <if thou shalt confess the declaration, with thy mouth>—
That Jesus is [Lord],
And shalt believe, with thy heart—
That [God] raised him from among the dead>
|Thou shalt be saved|;—

10 For [in heart; d it is to be believed unto righteousness,
And by mouth| d it is to be confessed unto salvation.

11 For the scripture saith—
|No one that resteth faith thereupon| shall be put to shame;*

12 For there is no distinction—of Jew or Greek,—
For : the same [Lord]] is Lord of all,
Being rich unto all’ who call upon him;

13 For |Whosoever| shall call upon the name of the Lord| shall be saved !:—

14 How, then, shall men call upon one in whom they have not believed?
And how shall they believe in one of whom they have not heard?
And how shall they hear, without one to proclaim?
And how shall they proclaim, except they be sent?

Even as it is written—
How beautiful the feet of them that bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But [not all] have become obedient unto the glad tidings;—

For Isaiah saith—

Lord! who believed what we have heard?

17 Hence our faith cometh by something heard.
And that which is heard through a declaration of Christ.

18 But I say: Have they not heard?

19 Yes indeed—

Into all the earth hath gone forth their sound;
And unto the ends of the inhabited world: their declarations.b

20 But I say: Hath Israel not come to know?
First Moses saith—

I will provoke you to jealousy on account of a no-nation;
On account of an undiscerning nation will I make you very angry.

21 Whereas regarding Israel he saith—

All day long have I stretched forth my hands unto a people unyielding; I contradict.*

22 I say then—Hath God cast off his people? Far be it!
For I also am an Israelite,— Of the seed of Abraham, Of the tribe of Benjamin:

23 God hath not cast off his people,* whom he foreapproved.

24 Or know ye not, in the account of Elijah, what, the scripture saith, when he intercedeth with God against Israel?

25 Lord! Thy prophets have they slain,

Thine altars have they overthrown,

And I am left alone,

And they are seeking my life.*

26 But what saith unto him the response?

I have left for myself seven thousand men,

[who], indeed, have not bowed a knee unto Baal. b

27 Thus then, in the present season also—

A remnant, by way of an election of favour, hath come into being.

28 If, however, by favour | no longer | of works; else | favour | no longer | proveth to be | favour | !

29 What then?

(That which Israel seeketh after) the same it hath not obtained:—

The election, however, have obtained it, and the rest have been hardened;—

Even as it is written—God hath given unto them a spirit of stupor,—eyes, not to see, and ears, not to hear,—until this very day!;

30 And David saith—

Let their table be turned into a waste, and into a gin, and into a trap, and into a recompense unto them,

Darkened be their eyes, not to see,

And their back do thou continually bow down.*

31 I say then—Did they stumble in order that they might fall? Far be it! But | their fall | salvation | hath come | unto the nations, to the end of provoking them to jealousy.

32 <If, moreover, | their fall, is the riches of a world,
And their loss, the riches of nations>

How much rather | their fulness?

33 >Unto you | however, am I speaking,— |you of the nations;

Inasmuch, indeed, then, as | | my ministry I glorify,
If by any means I may provoke to jealousy my own flesh, And save some from among them;—

For | the casting away of them | hath become | the reconciling of a world:—

What shall | the taking of them in addition | be, but | life from among the dead!>

34 <If, moreover, | the first fruit | is | holy | the lump | shall be | also;
And | the root | is | holy | the branches | shall be | also.

35 >If, however, | some of the branches | have been broken out,
And | thou | being | a wild olive | hast been grafted in among them,

And hast become | a joint partaker of the root of the fatness of the olive;>

Be not boasting over the branches!

Howbeit | if thou boast | It is not | thou | that bearest | the root, But | the root | thereof!

36 Thou wilt say then—

Branches were broken out, in order that | I might be grafted in.

37 >Well | By their want of faith | they have been broken out,—
And | thou | by thy faith | dost stand!—

Regard not | lofty | things, But be afraid

For | God | hath not spared | the natural branches>

Neither | thee | will he spare!

38 See, then, the kindness and the severity of God:

Upon them who have fallen | severity,—
But | upon thee | the kindness of God,

If thou abide still in the kindness,—

Otherwise | thou also | shalt be cut out;

Whereas | they also | unless they abide still in their want of faith

Shall be grafted in,

For God is | able | again | to engraft them!

39 >If | thou | out of the naturally wild olive | wast cut out,

And it [beyond nature]! has been engrafted into the good olive.

How much rather shall these, the natural branches, be engrafted into their own olive tree?

For I wish not, yea should be ignorant, brethren, of this sacred secret,* lest within yourselves ye be presumptuous.

That a hardening in part hath befallen Israel, until the full measure of the nations shall come in;

And if all Israel shall be saved: even as it is written—

There shall have come out of Zion the Deliverer,—

He will turn away ungodliness from Jacob;* and this, for them, is the covenant [from me],

As soon as I take away their sins.6

<As touching the joyful-message, indeed> they are enemies for your sake, but <as touching the election> beloved for their fathers' sake;

For not to be regretted are the gifts and the calling of God:

For just as ye at one time had not yielded unto God, and yet now have received mercy by their refusal to yield;

So have these also have now refused to yield, by your own mercy, in order that themselves also should now become objects of mercy;

For God hath shut up all together, in a refusal to yield, in order that upon all he may bestow mercy.

Ah! the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable [his judgments]! And untraceable [his ways]!

For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord?

Or who hath become [his counsellor]?

Or who hath first given unto him, and it shall be recompensed to him again?*

Because of him, and through him, and unto him are all things:— Unto him be the glory, unto the ages. Amen!

I beseech you therefore, brethren, through the compassions of God,

To present your bodies a living, holy sacrifice, unto God; acceptable,—

Your rational' divine service;

And be not transforming yourselves by the renewing of your mind.

But be transforming yourselves by the renewing of your mind.

To the end ye may be proving what is the thing willed by God—the good and acceptable and perfect.

* For I say <Through the favour which hath been given me>

Unto every one who is among you,—

Not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but so to think as to think soberly—

As unto each one [God] hath dealt a measure of faith.

For just as in one body we have many members,

Yet all the members have not the same office.

So we, the many, are one body in Christ.

Yet severally members one of another.

Now having gifts of favour [according to the favour given unto us] differing—

<Whether prophesying> [let us use it] according to the proportion of our faith,

<Or ministering> [use it] in our ministering,

<Or he that teacheth> [let him use his gift] in his teaching,

<Or he that exhorteth> in his exhorting,

<He that impareth> [let it be] with liberality,

<He that taketh a lead> with diligence,

<He that sheweth mercy> with cheerfulness.

* Your love [be] without hypocrisy,—

Loathing that which is wicked, Cleaving to that which is good;

<In your brotherly love> [unto one another] being tenderly affectioned,

<In honour> [unto one another] giving preference;

<In business> not slothful,

<In spirit> fervent,

<To the Lord> doing service,

<In hope> rejoicing,

<In tribulation> enduring,

<In prayer> persevering,

<With the needs of the saints> having fellowship,—

Hospitality pursuing.

Bless them that persecute, Bless, and do not curse.

Rejoice with them that rejoice, Weep with them that weep:

The same thing [one to another] regarding,—

Not the lofty things [regarding], but by the lowly being led along.

Be not getting presumptuous in your own opinion;

<Unto no one [evil for evil] rendering:

Providing honourable things before all men;*

<If possible—so far as dependeth on you> with all men being at peace:

Not avenging [yourselves], beloved, but giving place unto their anger;

* Or 'WH': "But to be." P. iii. 9.

* Or 'WH': "not to be." P. iii. 9.

* Or 'WH': "But to be." P. iii. 7.

* Or 'WH': "not to be." P. iii. 7.

* Or 'WH': "But to be." P. iii. 7.

* Or 'WH': "But to be." P. iii. 7.

* Or 'WH': "not to be." P. iii. 7.
For it is written—

"Mine is avenging;
I will recompense;—saith the Lord*;"

But—

If thine enemy hunger> be feeding him,
If he thirst> be giving him drink;
For this doing> [coals of fire] shall thou heap upon his head.b

Be not overcome by evil,
But overcome evil with good.

Let every soul unto protecting authorities be in subject*;
For there is no authority, save by God,
And they that are in being have been arranged,—

So that he who rangeth himself against the authority
[Against the arrangement of God'] opposeth himself,
And they who oppose shall unto themselves a sentence of judgment receive.

For they who bear rule are not a terror unto the good work, but unto the evil.
Wouldst thou not be afraid of the authority? If that which is good be thou doing, and thou shalt have praise of the same;
For [God's minister] is he unto thee, for that which is good.

Wherefore it is necessary to be in subject,—
Not only because of the anger,
But also because of the conscience;
For because of this are ye paying [tribute] also,—
For [God's ministers of state] they are, Unto this very thing! giving constant attendance.

Rendert unto all their dues,—
U nto whom tribute> tribute.
U nto whom tax> tax,
U nto whom fear> fear,
U nto whom honour> honour.

Nothing, to any be owing—save to be loving one another;
For he that loveth his neighbour hath given to [law] its fulfilment.

For this—
Thou shalt not commit adultery,
Thou shalt not commit murder,
Thou shalt not steal,
Thou shalt not covet,—
And if there is any different' commandment>

||In this word|| is summed up, [namely]—
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.*

||Love|| unto one's neighbour| worketh not ill];
|Law's fulness| therefore, is ||Love||.

And <this besides>—

Knowing the season—
That it is an hour already for you out of sleep to be wakened;
For now is our salvation nearer, than when we believed:
The night is far spent,
And the day hath drawn near;
Let us then, cast off the works of darkness,
[And] let us put on the armour of light,—
As in daytime] becomingly let us walk:
Not in revellings, and in drunken bouts,
Not in chamberings, and in wanton deeds,
Not in strife, and envy *:

But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, And ||for the flesh| taketh not thought, to fulfil its covetings.

||Him that is weak in his faith|| receive ye,—
Not for disputing opinions:—
||One] indeed, hath faith to eat all things,
Whereas he that is weak|| eateth [herbs];
Let not him that eateth not desire him that eateth;
And let not him that eateth not judge him that eateth;
For [God] hath received him.

Who art thou, that judgest another's domestic? *
To his own master he standeth, or falleth: He shall, however, be made to stand,—
For his Master is able to make him stand.
[For] one] indeed, esteemeth one day beyond another,
Whereas another esteemeth every day:—
Let [each one] in his own' mind be fully persuaded.

<He that regardeth the day> Unto the Lord regardeth it,—
And <he that eateth> Unto the Lord doth eat,
For he giveth thanks unto God;
And <he that eateth not> Unto the Lord doth not eat, and give God thanks.
For none of us| unto himself| liveth, And ||none] unto himself| dieth;
For both <if we live> Unto the Lord we live,
And <if we die> Unto the Lord we die;
Whether therefore we live, ||The Lord's|| Or whether we die>

*Lev. xix. 18; cp. Mt. xix. 19 f; Gal. v. 14; Ja. ii. 8. *Or (WH): "strifes and envirings."

9 For <to this end> Christ died and lived,
In order that both of dead and living he might have lordship.
10 But why dost thou judge thy brother?
Aye! why dost thou despise thy brother?
For all of us shall present ourselves unto the judgment seat of God;
11 For it is written—
"Living am I, saith the Lord,
Unto me shall bow every knee,
And every tongue shall openly confess unto me.
12 Hence, [then], each one of us of himself shall give [account] unto God.
13 No longer then, upon one another let us be sitting in judgment,
But this judge ye, rather—
Not to be putting a cause of stumbling before your brother, or an occasion to fall.
14 I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus—
That nothing is profane of itself,—Save to him who reckoneth anything to be profane,
Unto that man it is profane.
15 If, in fact, because of food thy brother is being grieved—
No longer, by the rule of love art thou walking:
Do not by thy food that man be destroying, on whose behalf Christ died!
16 Therefore, suffer not to be defamed, your own good thing;
17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking,
But righteousness and peace and joy in Holy Spirit;
18 For he that in this doeth service unto the Christ is acceptable unto God,
And approved unto men.
19 Hence, then, the things pertaining to peace let us pursue,
And the things which belong to the upbuilding of one another:
20 Do not for the sake of food be throwing down the work of God!
All things indeed are pure;
But if it is for the man who with occasion of stumbling doth eat,
Well! it is not, to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor [to do aught] whereby thy brother is caused to stumble.
21 The faith which thou hast have I to thyself before God:
Happy he that bringeth not judgment upon himself by that which he approveth;
But he that is in doubt if he eat hath condemned himself,
Because [it was] not of faith,

9 For <to this end> Christ died and lived,
In order that both of dead and living he might have lordship.
10 But why dost thou judge thy brother?
Aye! why dost thou despise thy brother?
For all of us shall present ourselves unto the judgment seat of God;

21 The faith which thou hast have I to thyself before God:
Happy he that bringeth not judgment upon himself by that which he approveth;
But he that is in doubt if he eat hath condemned himself,
Because [it was] not of faith,
14 But I am persuaded, my brethren,—
   "Even my myself" concerning you:
That yourselves also, are Full of goodness,
Filled with all knowledge,
Able also unto one another to be ministering admonition:
13 Howbeit have I written unto you,—
   "In some measure, as bringing it back to your minds,—
By reason of the favour given unto me from God,—
14 That I should be a public minister of Christ Jesus unto the nations,
Doing priestly service with the glad-message of God,
In order that the offering up of the nations might prove to be acceptable,
Being hallowed in Holy Spirit:
15 "I have, therefore, my boasting in Christ Jesus, in the things pertaining to God,—
20 Although as ambitious to be announcing the glad-message,—
Not where Christ had been named,
But, even as it is written—

22 Wherefore, also, I have been hindered, these many times, from coming unto you;
But now no longer having place in these regions,
And having had a longing to come unto you, a good many years—

23 As soon as I am journeying to Spain—
I am hoping, in fact, when journeying through to get sight of you, And by you to be set forward thither,—If with your company I have first in some measure been satisfied.
24 But now I am journeying unto Jerusalem, ministering unto the saints;
For Macedonia and Achaia have been well-pleased to make a certain fellowship for the destitute of the saints who are in Jerusalem,—

25 But now I am journeying unto Jerusalem;
ministering unto the saints;
26 For Macedonia and Achaia have been well-pleased to make a certain fellowship for the destitute of the saints who are in Jerusalem,—

27 They have been well-pleased, indeed,—
And their debtors they are;
For with their spiritual things the nations have come into fellow-ship:
They are bound also with their own carnal things to minister publicly unto them.

28 If this then, having completed, and sealed unto them this fruit—
I will come back, by you, unto Spain:
And I know that when I come unto you
In the fulness of the blessing of Christ I shall come.

29 I beseech you, moreover, brethren,—
Through our Lord Jesus Christ,
And through the love of the Spirit
To strive together with me, in your prayers on my behalf unto God,—
In order that I may be delivered from them who do not yield in Judea,
And my ministry which is unto Jerusalem may prove to be acceptable unto the saints;
In order that, with joy, coming unto you through God's will I may together with you find rest.

30 Now the God of peace be with you all.
Amen.

16 And I commend to you Phoebe, our sister,—
Being a minister of the assembly which is in Cenchreae;
2 In order that ye may give her welcome, in the Lord, in a manner worthy of the saints,
And stand by her in any matter wherein she may have need of you;
For she also hath proved to be a defender of many, and of my own self.

3 Salute ye Prisca and Aquila, my fellow-workers in Christ Jesus,—
Who indeed, for my life, their own neck laid down,—
Unto whom—not only do I give thanks, but also all the assemblies of the nations;
[Salute] also the assembly at their house.
Salute ye Epenetus, my beloved,
Who is a first-fruit of Asia unto Christ.
4 Salute Mary—
Who indeed, hath toiled much for you.
7 Salute Andronicus and Junia, my kinsmen and my fellow-captives,
Who indeed, are of note among the Apostles, Who also before me had come to be in Christ.
8 Salute Ampliatus, my beloved in the Lord.
9 Salute Urbanus, our fellow-worker in Christ:
And Stachys, my beloved.
10 Salute Apelles, the approved in Christ.
11 Salute Herodion, my kinsman.
Salute them of the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord.
12 Ph. iv. 9; He. xiii. 20. 13 M.: "under."
18 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, [sisters] who have toiled in the Lord.
Salute Persia, the beloved [sister],
Who indeed hath toiled much in the Lord.
12 Salute Rufus, The chosen in the Lord;
Also his and my mother.
14 Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermes,
And the brethren that are with them.
15 Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas,
And all the saints that are with them.
16 Salute ye one another, with a holy kiss.
All the assemblies of the Christ [salute you].
17 But I beseech you, brethren,
To keep an eye upon them who are causing divisions and occasions of stumbling, aside from the teaching which ye have learned,—
And be turning away from them;
For they who are such, unto our Lord Christ are not doing service, but unto their own belly,—
And through their smooth and flattering speech deceive the hearts of the innocent.
19 For your obedience unto all hath reached,—
[Over you] therefore, I rejoice!
But I wish you—
To be [wise], [indeed], as to that which is good,
Yet pure, as to that which is evil.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE
C O R I N T H I A N S.

1 Paul, a called' apostle of Jesus Christ, through God's will,—
And Sothenees the brother,—
2 Unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth, Sanctified in Christ Jesus, Called' saints. With all [who call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ [in every place],—[their Lord and ours]:
3 Favour unto you, and peace,
From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.
4 I give thanks unto my God, at all times, concerning you,
By reason of the favour of God given unto you in Christ Jesus,—
That in everything ye have been enriched in him—
In all discourse and in all knowledge;
Even as [the witness of the Christ] hath been confirmed in you,
So that ye come short in no gift of favour,—

5 Howbeit the God of peace will crush Satan under your feet shortly.
[The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.
6 There salute you—Timothy, my fellow-worker, And Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen.
7 [I] Tertius, who have written the epistle, salute you in the Lord.
8 There salute you—Gaius, my host and [the host] of the whole assembly.
There salute you—Erastus, the steward of the city, and Quartus the brother. [M]
9 Now unto him who hath power to establish you,
According to my glad-message—Even the proclamation of Jesus Christ,
According to the revelation of a sacred secret,
[In age-past times kept silent, But now made manifest,]
And through means of prophetic scriptures,
According to the command of the age-abiding God.
[For obedience of faith unto all the nations made known> Unto a God, wise' alone',
Through Jesus Christ,
[Upto whom] be the glory, unto the ages. Amen.

Ardently awaiting the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ:

Who will also confirm you unto the end. Unaccusable in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ:

"Faithful" is God, through whom ye have been called into the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

But I beseech you, brethren,

Through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ—

That ye be fitly joined together—

In the same mind.

And in the same judgment.

For it hath been signified unto me, concerning you, my brethren,—

By them who are of [the household of] Chloe,—

That there are strifes among you.

Now I mean this,—

That each one of you is saying—

"Iam of Paul,"

"I of Apollos,

"I of Cephas,

"I of Christ":

Was Paul crucified for you? Or into the name of Paul were ye immersed?

I give thanks, that none of you did I immerse—

Save Crispus and Gaius,

Lest any should say—

"Into my own name I immersed;—

Yea! I immersed the house of Stephanas also,—

Besides I know not whether anyone else I immersed.

For Christ sent me not, to be immersing, But to be telling the good news,—

Not with wisdom of discourse.

Lest I void should be made the cross of the Christ:

For the discourse which concerneth the Cross:

Unto them, indeed, who are perishing is foolishness;

But unto them who are being saved—unto us it is God's power.

For it is written—

I will destroy the wisdom of the wise,

And the discernment of the discerning will I set aside.

Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputer of this age?

Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of the world?

For seeing that in the wisdom of God—

The world did not get to know God—

God was well-pleased—

Through the foolishness of the thing proclaimed—

Seeing that

Both [for signs do] seek,

And [for wisdom] do seek,

Whereas [proclaim a Christ who hath been crucified,—

Unto Jews] indeed, an occasion of stumbling,

And unto Gentiles foolishness;

But unto the called themselves—

Both Jews and Greeks—

Because [God's foolish thing, is wiser than men,]

And God's weak thing, mightier than men.

For be looking at the calling of you, brethren,—

That there were

Not many wise, according to flesh,

Not many powerful,

Not many high-born:

On the contrary—

The foolish things of the world, hath God chosen,

That he might put to shame them who are wise,

And the weak things of the world, hath God chosen,

That he might put to shame the things that are mighty,

And the low-born things of the world,

And the things that are despised hath God chosen,—

And the things that are not,—

That the things that are, he might bring to nought;

So that no flesh should boast before God.

But [of him] are ye in Christ Jesus,—

Who hath been made wise unto us, from God,—

Both righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:

In order that even as it is written—

He that boasteth will I set aside.

Therefore, brethren, when I came unto you,

Came not with excellency of discourse or wisdom:

Declaring unto you the mystery of God:

For I had not determined to know anything among you.

Save Jesus Christ, and him as one who had been crucified:

3 I therefore, in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling;

Came to be with you,

Or (WH): "witness."

Or: "intended."
4 And my discourse, and what I proclaimed! Were not in persuasive words [of wisdom], But in demonstration of Spirit and power:
In order that your faith might not be In men's wisdom, But in God's power.

5 Wisdom however, we do speak [among the full-grown],—
Not of this age, Not of the rulers of this age, who are to come nought;
But we speak [God's] wisdom, in a sacred secret,
That hidden [wisdom], Which God marked out beforehand, before the ages, for our glory,—
Which [none of the rulers of this age had come to know], For [had they known], not, in that case, [the Lord of the glory] would they have crucified!

9 But even as it is written,—
<The things which eye hath not seen, and ear hath not heard, And upon the heart of man have not come up,— Whatsoever things God hath prepared for them that love him.>

10 Unto us! in fact, hath God revealed through the Spirit;
For the Spirit [into all things] maketh search.
Yea! the deep things of God.

11 For who of men knoweth the things of a man,— Save the spirit of the man that is in him? [Thus] [even the things of God] hath no one come to know, Save the Spirit of God.

12 But [as for us]—
Not the spirit of the world have we received, But the Spirit which is of God,— That we might know the things which [by God] have been given in favour unto us:—

13 Which we also speak— Not in words [taught of human wisdom], But in such as are taught of [the] Spirit, [By spiritual words] [spiritual things] explaining.

14 But [a man of the soul] doth not welcome the things of the Spirit of God, For they are [foolishness unto him], and he cannot get to know them, Because [spiritually] are they examined;
But [the man of the spirit], on the one hand, examineth all things, But, on the other, [he himself] [by no one] is examined.

16 For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord, that shall instruct him?*  But we have the mind of Christ.

3 [I] therefore, brethren, have not been able to speak unto you,
As unto men of the Spirit, But as unto men of the flesh—
As unto babes in Christ:—
2 [With milk] have I fed you, Not [with meat]; For [not yet] have ye been able;— Nay! [not [yet] even now] are ye able,
For ye are [yet fleshly].
For <whereas there are, among you, jealousy and strife> Are ye not [fleshly], and [after the manner of men] walking?

4 For <as soon as one beginneth to say—
[I] indeed, am of Paul! And another—
[I] of Apollos!>
Are ye not [men]?

5 What then is Apollos? and, What is Paul? Ministers through whom ye believed, and [each] as the Lord [gave] to him.

So that, [neither is he that planteth] anything, Nor he that watereth,— But [God] who causeth to [grow].
Moreover [he that planteth and he that watereth] are [one]:—
Howbeit, [each one] [his own] reward shall receive,—according to his own' labour.
For we are [God's] fellow-workmen: Ye are [God's] farm, [God's] building.

10 <According to the favour of God which hath been given unto me>
[As a wise' master-builder] I laid [a foundation],
Whereas [another] is building thereon;
But [let each one] see, how he buildeth thereon;

11 For [other foundation] can' [no one] lay, than that which is lying, Which is [Jesus Christ].

12 But [if anyone is building, upon the foundation—
Gold, silver, precious stones, Wood, hay, straw>—
Each' one's work] shall be made [manifest]; For [the day] will make it plain, Because [by fire] is it to be revealed,— And [each' one's work] [of what sort it is] the fire itself' will prove:—
If anyone's work shall abide, which he built> [A reward] shall he receive,—
If anyone's work shall be burnt up>

Know ye not, that ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, and such as ye are the temple of God. If any man glory, let him glory in this, that he understandeth such things as he ought to know. Let no man deceive himself; if any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written; He shall vanquish the wise. And again; The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore let no one glory in men. All things are yours; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ’s; and Christ is God’s. Let a man so reckon of us, as of officers of Christ, and stewards of sacred secrets of God. Here furthermore, it is sought in stewards, that he be found faithful; but with me, however, it counteth for the very smallest thing, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ’s; and Christ is God’s. And such fornication as this—
Which |not among the nations| [is found],—
As that one should have |his father's| ||wife*;—
2 And |ye| have become puffed up,
And have not rather |mourned.
In order that he might be removed out of your midst, who |this deed | hath wrought.
3 For |indeed,—
<Being absent in the body, but present in the spirit>
Have |already| judged. |As present|,
Him who ||thus|| |this thing | hath perpetuated:—
4 |In the name of our Lord Jesus|,
<Ye being gathered together,
And my' spirit,
With the power of our Lord Jesus>
8 To deliver such a one as this, unto Satan;
For the destruction of the flesh,—
That the spirit llmay l)esaved in the day of the Lord.
7 Purge ye out the old' leaven.
That ye may be a new' lump; —
Even as ye are unleavened ;
For |our passover hath even been sacrificed to
|Christ::
8 So then, let us be keeping the feast,—
Not with old leaven,
Nor with leaven of baseness and wickedness,—
But with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.
9 I wrote* unto you in my letter--
Not to be mixing yourselves up with forni-cators;—
10 |Not at all| [meaning] the fornicators of this world, or the covetous and extortioners, or idolaters,—
Else ye had been obiged, in that case, to go out of the world.
11 But |now| I have written unto you not to be mixing yourselves up,—
<If anyone named |a brother
Be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extor-
tioner>
|With such a one as this|| not so much |as to be eating together>,
12 For what have |I| to do to be judging |them who are without?|
Do |yes| not judge |them who are within||
Whereas |them who are without|| |God|
judgeth?
Remove ye the wicked man from among ||yourselves":
6 Dare any of you <having |a matter| against his brother>

Sue for judgment before the unrighteous,
And not before the saints?
2 Or know ye not
That ||the saints| shall judge |the world|?
And |if |by you|| |the world| is to be judged >
[Unworthy] are ye of the smallest judgment-seats?
3 Know ye not
That we shall judge ||messengers||?
And not, then, matters of this life?
4 |If, then |for matters of this life| ye have judgment-seats>
<Then who are of no account in the assembly >
||these|| are ye seating thereupon ?
5 |With a view to shame you|| am I speaking.
|So| is it |possible| that there is among you not so much as one' wise man, who shall be able to judge between his brethren,—
6 But ||brother with brother| sueth for judgment,
And that' before unbelievers?
7 ||Already|| indeed, it is |an utter' defeat b for you|, that ye are having |law-suits| one with another.
Wherefore are ye not rather' taking wrong ?
Wherefore are ye not rather' suffering yourselves to be defrauded?
8 Nay! but |ye|, are doing wrong, and defraud-
ing,— and that |your| brethren.
9 Or know ye not
That |wrong-doers| shall not inherit |God's'
kingdom ??
Be not deceiving yourselves:—
Neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminates, nor sodomites, or thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, or revilers, nor extortioners—
Shall inherit |God's kingdom|.
10 And ||these things|| were some of you ;
But ye bathed them away,—
But ye were sanctified d
But ye were justified,
In the name of |our| Lord Jesus Chri-t.
And in the Spirit of our God.
11 ||All things|| |unto me| are allowable, e
But |not all things | are profitable: ||
All things|| |unto me| are allowable,
But |I|| will not be brought under authority
by any.
12 Fods for the belly, and the belly for foods ;
But ||God|| will set aside |both it and them|.
The body|| however, is not for fornication, but for the Lord,| and ||the Lord,| for |the body|.
14 ||God|| moreover, hath both raised up |the Lord |
And will raise |us| up from among |the dead| through his power.
15 Know ye not
That |your bodies| are |members of Christ|?
Shall I, then, take away the members of the Christ and make them members of a harlot?

Far be it!

17 Or know ye not
That he that joineth himself unto the harlot is [one] body?
For, saith he, [the two] shall become [one flesh];

18 Flee fornication!

Every sin, whatsoever a man shall commit is [outside his body],
But he that committeth fornication bringeth sin [into his own body].

19 Or know ye not
That [your body] is [a shrine of the Holy Spirit] that is within you, which ye have from God?
And ye are not your own:

20 For ye have been bought with a price! Therefore glorify God in your body.

Now <concerning the things whereof ye wrote>

It were [good] for a man, not to touch [a woman];

2 But <on account of fornications>
Let [each man] have [his own wife],
And [each woman] have [her own husband]:

3 Unto the wife [let] the husband [render what is her due],
And [in like manner] the wife also unto the husband,—

4 The wife [over her own body] hath not authority, [but the husband],
And [in like manner] the husband also [over his own body] hath not authority, [but the wife].

5 Be not depriving one another—
Unless perhaps by consent for a season,
That ye may have leisure for prayer,
And [again] may be [together],—
Lest Satan be tempting you by reason of your want of self-control.

6 This however I am saying, [by way of concession, not of injunction];
Besides, I desire all men to be [even as myself],—

But [each one] hath his [personal] gift from God,
[One] after this manner, and [another] after that.

8 But I say <to the unmarried, and to the widows>

[Good] were it for them, that they should abide [even as I];

9 But <if they have not self-control> let them marry,
For [better] is it, to marry than to burn.

10 <To the married, however> I give charge—
Not [I] but [the Lord],—
That [a wife] [from her husband] do not depart,—

11 But <if she should even depart>
Let her remain unmarried,
Or [to her husband] be reconciled;
And let not [a husband] leave [his wife].

12 But <unto the rest> say: [I]—

<If any brother] hath [a wife that believeth not],
And [she] is well pleased to dwell with him>
Let him not leave her;

And ,
And [he] is well pleased to dwell with her> Let her not leave her husband;—

14 For the husband that believeth not is hallowed in the wife,
And the wife that believeth not is hallowed in the brother:
Else were [your children] [impure],
But [now] are they [pure].

15 But <if the unbelieving husband departeth> let him depart:
The brother or the sister hath not come into bondage, in such cases,
But [in peace] hath God called us.

16 For how knowest thou, O woman, whether [thy husband] thou shalt save?
Or how knowest thou, O man, whether [thy wife] thou shalt save?

17 If not—

<As the Lord hath distributed [unto each one],>
As God hath called [each one]>

[So] let him be walking;—
And [so] [in all the assemblies] I ordain.

18 <After being circumcised> was any called?
Let him not become uncircumcised;
[In uncircumcision] hath any been called?
Let him not be circumcised:

19 [The circumcision] is [nothing],
And [the uncircumcision] is [nothing],—
But keeping the commandments of God.

20 [Each one] [in the calling wherein he was called]> [In the same] let him abide:

21 [A bond-servant] let him abide [in the Lord’s calling, being a bond-servant> Is [a freed-man of the Lord]>
In like manner [he that was called being a freeman>]
Is Christ’s [bond-servant]:—

22 With a price have ye been bought,—
Do not become bond-servants of men:

a Gen. ii. 24.
b Or: "within his own b. sinneth."
Chap. iii. 16: 2 Co. vi. 16.
Chap. vii. 23.
*[Or: "continue burning."]
20 But concerning them who are virgin>
|Injunction of the Lord|| have I none ;
Yet |a judgment | do I give, as one who hath obtained mercy from the Lord to be faithful:—b
20 I consider this, then, to be |good | in the circumstances, by reason of the existing' distress,—
That it is |good for a man | to be:
Hast thou become loosed to a wife?
Do not seek to be loosed;
Hast thou become loosed from a wife?
22But |this|I say
|The opportunity | is contracted for what remaineth—
In order that |they who have wives]|
May be |as though they had none),
And |they who weep|
As though they wept not,
And |they who rejoice|
As though they rejoiced not,
And |they who buy|
As though they possessed not,
And |they who use the world|
As though they used it not to the full,—
For the fashion of this world passeth away c;
And I desire you to be (without anxiety |:—
HThfl unmarried man]l is anxious for the things of the Lord,
How he may please the Lord ;
But ||he that hath married|| is anxious for
the things of the world,
How he may please his wife—
And |the unmarried woman, or the virgin|| is anxious for the things of the Lord,
That she may be holy [both] in her body
and in her spirit;
But |she that hath married || is anxious for
the things of the world,
How she may please her husband.
25 ||This|| however, |with a view to your own'
profit| am I saying,—
Not that [is marred] ||upon you| I may cast,
But with a view to what is comely, and devoted unto the Lord ||without distraction].
26 <If however anyone considereth it |behaving unceasingly towards his virginity,||—d
If he should be beyond the bloom of life,—
And |thus| it ought to come about>
|What he chooseth|| let him do,—he sinneth not :—
Let them marry !

27 But |he that standeth in his heart | steadfast],
|Having no necessity,
But hath |authority| concerning his own' will,
And |this| hath determined in his own' heart,—
To preserve his own' virginity>
|Well| shall he do.

30 So that |he that giveth in marriage his own' virginity||
Doeth |well| ;
And | he that giveth it not |
Shall do |better|.

31 ||A wife is bound for as long a time as her husband is living ;
But |if the husband have fallen asleep>
She is |free| to be married unto whom she pleaseth,—
|Only | in the Lord ;
30 But |happier| is she, if |so| she remain,—
In my' judgment ;
For | I think | I also| have the| Spirit of God.

Now < concerning the idol-sacrifices> we are aware—
Because we |all|| have |knowledge],—
|Knowledge| puffeth up,
But |love | buildeth up ;
3 If anyone thinketh that he knoweth anything—not yet knoweth he, as he must needs come to know,*
3 But | if anyone loveth God > [the same] is known of him—
4 |Concerning then, the eating of idol-sacrifices>
We are aware—
That an idol is |nothing | in the world,
And that |none| is God save |one|.
5 For |if indeed there are so-called gods,
whether in heaven or upon earth,—
As indeed there are gods many and lords many>
7 |Yet || to us| there is one' God the Father,
Of whom are all things, and |we| for
him ;
And one' Lord Jesus Christ,
Through whom are all things, and |we| through him.
8 |Howbeit ||not in all|| is the knowledge ;
But |some| <by their familiarity, until now even with the idol> |as an idol-
sacrifice| eat it,
And |their conscience| being |weak| is defiled.

9 ||Food|| indeed, will not commend us’ unto
God,—
Neither | if we eat not| do we lack,
Nor |if we eat| do we abound.
9 But be taking heed, lest |by any means||
|your right[| itself|| become | an occasion of stumbling| unto the weak |;
10 For |if anyone should see [thee] who hast * knowledge, |in an idol-temple| reclining>

* Or (WH) : "Moreover."
* Or (WH) : "him who hath."
Will not his conscience being weak be built up for the eating of the idol-sacrifices?

11 In fact, he that is weak is being destroyed by thy knowledge—

||The brother for whose sake Christ died,||

12 But in thus sinning against the brethren and wounding their conscience, [seeing it is weak]>

Against Christ are ye sinning.

13 Therefore <if [food] is an occasion of stumbling unto my brother>

In nowise will I eat flesh unto the age that abideth,—

That I may not occasion my brother to stumble.

9 Am I not free?
Am I not an apostle?
||Jesus our Lord have I not seen?||
Are not ||ye |||my work| in the Lord?

2 <If ||unto others|| I am not an apostle>

Certainly at least [unto you] I am;

For [the seal of my apostleship] ||ye|| are in the Lord.

3 ||My' defence, unto them who are examining me|| is [this]:—

4 Have we not a right to eat and drink?

5 Have we not a right to take round ||a sister wifel!—

||As even the rest of the apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or have ||only|| I and Barnabas not a right to forbear working?

7 Who serveth as a soldier, at his own charges, at any time?

Who planteth a vineyard,— and ||the fruit thereof doth not eat?

[Or] who shepherdeth a flock,— and ||of the milk of the flock doth not eat?

8 Is it ||after the manner of men|| that ||these things|| I am saying?

Or doth not ||even the law|| [the same things] say?

9 For ||in the law of Moses|| it is written—

Thou shalt not muzzle an ox when it is treading out the corn * ;—

Is it ||for the oxen" God is caring?*

10 Or ||for our sakes altogether|| is he saying it?

For our sakes" it was written;

Because ||he that ploweth| ought ||to plow| [in hope],—

And ||he that thresheth| [to thresh] in hope ||of partaking;|

11 <If ||we|| unto you| the things of the Spirit' have sown>

Is it ||a great matter, if ||we|| |of you| the things of the flesh' shall reap? b

12 <If ||others|| of this right, over you, are partaking>

[Should] not rather ||we||?

Nevertheless, we used not this right; but all [such] things| do we conceal,—lest we should cause any hindrance unto the glad message of the Christ.

13 Know ye not

That [they who labour in the holy rites] Do eat |the provisions out of the holy place|?

||They who at the altar' wait||

Do |with the altar| share||?

14 ||Thus|| also, hath |the Lord| appointed—

That [they who the glad-message tell]

Should |of the glad-message| live;

15 ||I|| however, have not used any of these things; and have not written these things, in order that |so|| it should be done [in my case];

For it were |[good for me|| rather to die than— —

||My boast|| shall ||no man| make void:

For |<if ||by choice|| this thing I am doing| I have ||a reward|; But <if not by choice> |with a stewardship have I been entrusted||?

16 What, then, is my reward? That |in telling the glad-message|| free of cost|| I should put the glad-message,—to the end I should not use to the full my right in the glad-message.

17 For <if ||unto others|| I am not an apostle> I have |a reward;

But <if not by choice> |with a stewardship have I been entrusted||?

18 ||To them who were without law|| as without law}

Not being ||myself|| under law, —

That ||them who were under law|| I might win;

19 ||To them who were under law|| as under law,

Not being without law to God,

But lawfully subject to Christ,—

That ||I might win them who were without law.

20 I became ||unto the weak| ||weak||,

That ||the weak|| I might win; —

||To all men|| have I become all things, That ||by all means|| [some] I might save.

21 But ||all things|| am I doing |for the sae of the glad-message;

That a joint-partaker thereof I may become.

22 Know ye not

That <they who ||in a racecourse|| run> ||All|| indeed, run,—

But ||one|| receiveth the prize?

||So|| be running, that ye may lay hold.

a Nu. xviii. 31; Deu. xviii. 1. b Or: "entrained."}}
1 CORINTHIANS IX. 25—30.

25 But every man who striveth in the games:—
   [In all things] useth self-control;—
   [They] indeed, then, that a corruptible crown they may receive;
   But we an incorruptible!

26 Therefore,
   [So] am running, as [not uncertainly],
   [So] am boxing, as [not thrashing air];
27 But am beating my body under, and leading it captive,
   Lest, by any means—
   [Unto others] having proclaimed [the contest],
   [I myself] should be rejected.

10 For I wish not ye should be ignorant, brethren,
That [all our fathers] were [under the cloud],
And [all] passed [through the sea].—
And [all] immersed themselves [into Moses],
   [In the cloud, and in the sea];
And [all] did eat [the same] spiritual food,
And [all] drank [the same] spiritual drink,—
For they continued to drink of the spiritual rock that followed them,
And [the rock] was the Christ:—
Nevertheless [with the most of them]: [God] was not well-pleased,
For they were strewed along in the desert.

6 But [in these things] they became [examples] for us;—
   To the end we should not be covetous of evil things.
   Even as [they] also coveted;—
7 Neither become ye [idolaters],
   As some of them,—As it is written—
The people sat down to eat and drink,
And rose up to be making sport;—
8 Neither let us commit fornication,
   As some of them! committed fornication,
   And there fell, in one day, three and twenty thousand;—
9 Neither let us be putting the Lord to the test,
   As some of them! put him to the test,
   And [by the serpents] were perishing;—
10 Neither be ye murmuring,
   Even [as some of them] murmured,
   And perished by the destroyer.
11 But [these things] by way of type were happening unto them,
   And were written with a view to our admonition,
   Unto whom [the ends of the ages] have reached along.
12 So that [he that thinketh he is standing] let him take heed lest he fall.
13 [Trial] hath not taken [you], save such as man can bear;
   [Faithful] moreover is God, who will not suffer you to be tried above what ye are able,
   But will make [with the trial] also the way of escape that ye may be able to hold out.

14 Wherefore, my beloved, flee from idolatry,—
   As [to prudent men] I speak,—
   Judge [yes] what I say:—
15 <The cup of blessing which we bless>
   Is it not [a sharing together] of the blood of the Christ?
   <The loaf which we break>
   Is it not [a sharing together of the body of the Christ]?—
16 Because [one loaf, one body]: we [the many] are,
   For we [all] of the one loaf partake.

17 Be looking at Israel after the flesh:—
   Are not [they who eat the sacrifices] joint partakers with the altar?
18 What, then, am I saying?—
   That [an idol-sacrifice] is anything?—
   Or that [an idol] is anything?—
19 On the contrary—
   That <the things which the nations sacrifice>—
   [Unto demons, and not unto God] they sacrifice;—
   And I wish not that ye should become sharers together with the demons!—
20 Ye cannot be drinking—a cup of the Lord, and a cup of demons;
   Ye cannot be partaking of [a table of the Lord] and a table of demons.
21 Or are we to provoke the Lord to jealousy?—
   Are we mightier than he?—
22 [All things] are allowable—but [not all things] are profitable,—
   [All things] are allowable—but [not all things] upbuild.
23 Let [no one] be seeking [what concerneth himself],
   But that which concerneth [some one else].—
24 <If one of them who believeth not [invite you] and ye are disposed to go>
   Whosoever is set before you eat,—
   Asking no question, for conscience sake.
25 But [if anyone should say] unto you—
   [This] is [a holy sacrifice]!—
   Do not eat, for that man's sake who disclosed it, and for conscience sake:—
26 But [conscience] I mean, not thine own, but the other's,—
   For why is [my freedom] to be judged by another conscience?
27 <If I> [with gratitude] partake>
   Why am I to be defamed [as to that for which] [I] give thanks?—

Or (WH) : "were immolated."  a Nu. xi. 34. 4.  b Nu. xiv. 16.  c Mi: "types of us."  d Nu. xxi. 6.
1 CORINTHIANS X. 31—33; XI. 1—29.

21 Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all things to the glory of God.

22 Give no occasion of stumbling,—
Whether to Jews, or to Greeks, or to the assembly of God:

23 Even as I also, in all things do please all, Not seeking my own profit, But that of the many, that they may be saved.

24 Become imitators of me, even as I also am of Christ.

25 Now I praise you, that (in all things) ye have me in remembrance, And (even as I delivered unto you the instructions) ye hold them fast.

26 But I wish you to know—
That (the head of every man) is (the Christ),
And (the head of a woman) is (the man);
And (the head of the Christ) is (God).

27 Every man praying, or prophesying, having (anything upon his head) puttheth to shame his head;

28 But (every woman) praying, or prophesying, with her head (unveiled) puttheth to shame her head,—for it is (one and the same) with her having been shaven.

29 For (if a woman doth not veil herself) let her also be shorn;
But (if it were) a shame in a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be veiled.

30 For (if a man, indeed, ought not to be veiling his head),
Being (the image and glory of God),—

31 But (the woman) is (the glory of man);
For (man) is not (of woman),
But (woman) is (of man);

32 But (if a woman, was not created) (for the sake of the man),
But (woman) (for the sake of the man).

33 For (this cause) ought the woman to have (permission) upon her head, (because of the messengers).

34 Howbeit, neither is (woman) apart from (man),
Nor (man) apart from (woman)—(in the Lord);

35 For (just as) (the woman) is (of the man),
(So also) (the man) is (through means) of the woman;—
But (all things) are of God.

36 Among your own selves judge ye,—
Is it (becoming) for a woman—(unveiled) to be praying—unto God?—

37 Do not (even nature herself) teach you—
That (if a man) have long hair it is (a dishonourable to him);

38 But (if a woman) have long hair it is (a glory to her),—

For (her long hair) instead of a veil hath been given to her.

39 But (if anyone thinketh to be (contentious))
(Won) have no (such custom),—
Nor yet the assemblies of God.

40 But (in giving you (the following) charge) I praise you not,—
In that (not for the better, but for the worse) ye come together.

41 For (first of all)—

When ye come together in assembly I hear that (divisions among you) exist,—
And (in part) I believe it;

42 For there must needs be (even parties among you),
That (the approved (himself) may become (manifest) among you.

43 When, therefore, ye come together into one place
It is not to eat (a supper unto the Lord);

44 For (each one) taketh beforehand (his own) supper, in your eating, And (one) indeed, is hungry;

45 Whereas (another) is drinking to excess.

46 What! have ye not (houses) for your eating and drinking?
Or (the assembly of God) do ye despise, and (put to shame them who have nothing)?

47 What am I to say to you?
Shall I praise you?
In this I praise you not.

48 For (if myself) received from the Lord—
That which I also delivered unto you,—
How that (the Lord Jesus),

(In the night in which he was being delivered up),

Took a loaf,

And, giving thanks, brake it, and said—
This is my body, which is for you,—
This do ye, (in remembrance of me);

(In the same manner) (the cup also),
After they had taken supper—

Saying—
This cup is the new covenant in my blood,—
This do ye, (as often soever as ye may be drinking it) in remembrance of me.

49 For (as often as ye may be eating this loaf),
And (the cup) may be drinking,
The death of the Lord, (do ye announce) (until he come).

50 So that (whosoever may be eating the loaf, or drinking the cup of the Lord, in an unworthy manner),
Shall be (responsible) for the body and blood of the Lord.

51 But let a man be proving himself,—
And (so) of the loaf (let him eat, and) of the cup (let him drink);

For (the he that is eating and drinking)
1 Corinthians XI. 30—34; XII. 1—26.

1. Judgment unto himself doth eat and drink,—

   If he be not setting apart the body.

   For this cause many among you are weak and sickly;

   And not a few are falling asleep.

   If, however, we had been setting ourselves apart.

   We had not, in that case, been coming under judgment;

   But being brought under judgment:

   By the Lord are we being disciplined,

   Lest with the world we should be condemned.

   So then, my brethren,—

   When ye come together for the eating.

   Unto one another be giving welcome:

   If anyone be hungry at home, let him eat,

   Lest unto judgment ye be coming to together.

   And the remaining things, whensoever I come I will set in order.

   But concerning the spiritually gifted brethren, I am not wishing you to be ignorant.

   Ye know that when ye were of the nations,

   Unto the dumb idols, howsoever ye were being led:

   Ye were seduced.

   Wherefore, I give you to know—

   That no one in God's Spirit speaking saith—

   Accursed Jesus!

   And no one can say—

   Lord Jesus!

   Save in [the] Holy Spirit.

   But distributions of gifts there are.

   Yet the same Spirit,

   And distributions of ministries there are.

   And the same Lord,

   And distributions of energies there are.

   And the same God—Who energiseth all things in all.

   But unto each one is given the manifesting of the Spirit.

   With a view to that which is profitable;

   For unto one indeed, through the Spirit is given a word of wisdom,

   But unto another a word of knowledge, according to the same Spirit;

   Unto a different one faith in the same Spirit,

   And unto another gifts of healings in the one Spirit.

   And unto another energies of mighty works.

2. [And] unto another discriminations of spirits,—

   Unto a different one kinds of tongues,

   And unto another translation of tongues;—

   But all these energiseth the one and the same Spirit,

   Distributing unto each one peculiarly.

3. For just as the body is [one], and yet hath many members,

   But all the members of the body though many are one body. —

   [So] also [the Christ]:—

   For even in [one] Spirit we all into one body have been immersed,

   Whether Jews or Greeks,

   Whether bond or free,

   And all of one Spirit have been caused to drink.

   For the body also is not one member, but many:

   Though the foot should say—Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body

   Is it therefore not of the body?

   And though the ear should say—Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body

   Is it therefore not of the body?

   If the whole were an eye,

   Where were the hearing?

   If the whole were hearing,

   Where were the smelling?

   But now hath God set the members, each one of them in the body even as he pleased.

   But if they all had been one member,

   Where had been the body?

   But if now hath God set the members, each one of them in the body, even as he pleased.

   But if they all had been one member,

   Where had been the body?

   And the eye cannot say unto the hand—

   I have no need of thee,—

   Nor again: the head, unto the feet—

   I have no need of you:—

   Nay! much more the members which seem to be weaker are necessary,

   And the parts of the body which we deem to be less honourable:

   On these more abundant honour do we bestow,

   And our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness,

   Whereas our comely parts have no need.

   But God hath tempered the body together,—

   Unto that which was lacking giving more abundant honour;—

   That there might be no division in the body,

   But that the members might have the same care one for another;

   And whether one member suffereth, All the members suffer with it,

   Or a member is glorified All the members rejoice together.

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members severally;

28 And God hath, indeed, set certain in the assembly,—

First apostles, second prophets, third teachers,

After that mighty works, then gifts of healings, helps, guidings, kinds of tongues.

29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers?

And though I have [the gift of] prophesying, and know all sacred secrets, and all knowledge,—

And though I have all faith, so as to be removing mountains,

And have not [love],

I am nothing;

And though I morsel out all my goods,—

And though I deliver up my body, that I may boast,

And have not [love],

I am profited nothing.

30 But if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, except I speak unto you either by revelation, or knowledge, or prophesying, or teaching?

31 Or: "know by inspection," "know at a glance" — to ginōskō.

4 Chap. xiv. 18.

10 But as soon as that which is complete is come—

11 That which is in part shall be done away.

12 For we see, as yet, through a dim window, obscurely;

But then face to face:

As yet I gain knowledge in part,

But then shall I fully know.

13 Even as I was also fully known.

14 But now abide—faith, hope, love,—

These Three;—

But the greatest of these is love.

15 But pursue love;

Nevertheless be envious of the spiritual gifts—

And rather that ye may be prophesying.

2 For he that speaketh with a tongue doth speak, but unto God,—

For no one understandeth,

Although in spirit he is speaking sacred secrets;

3 But he that prophesieth unto men doth speak—edification, and exhortation, and comfort.

4 For he that speaketh with a tongue buildeth up himself.

Whereas he that prophesieth buildeth up an assembly.

8 But now brethren—

If I come unto you speaking with tongues—

What shall I profit you, except I speak unto you either by way of revelation, or knowledge, or prophesying, or teaching?

7 If the things without giving sound, whether pipe or harp—

How shall it be known, what is being piped or harped?

8 For if also an uncertain sound I a trumpet should give—

Who shall prepare himself for battle?

9 If [so] also ye through means of the tongue—

How shall it be known what is being spoken?

For ye will be speaking to the air.

10 But as soon as that which is complete is come—

11 That which is in part shall be done away.

12 For we see, as yet, through a dim window, obscurely;

But then face to face:

As yet I gain knowledge in part,

But then shall I fully know.

13 Even as I was also fully known.

14 But now abide—faith, hope, love,—

These Three;—

But the greatest of these is love.
10 There may happen to be so many kinds of languages in the world, and not one unspoken:—
11 If, then, I do not know the meaning of the language *
I shall be unto him that is speaking, a foreigner, and he that is speaking shall be in my case a foreigner.
12 So ye also—
Since ye are envious of spirits,
Unto the upbuilding of the assembly seek to be pre-eminent.
13 Wherefore he that speaketh with a tongue—
Let him pray that he may translate;
14 For if I am praying in a tongue—
My spirit is praying, but my mind is unfruitful.
What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray also with the mind—
I will strike the strings with the spirit, but I will strike the strings also with the mind.
15 Else if thou be blessing in a spirit—
He that filleth up the place of the ungifted person—
How shall he say the Amen upon thy thanksgiving?
Since indeed what thou art saying he knoweth not;
17 For thou indeed excellently art giving thanks, but the other is not being built up.
18 I give thanks unto God!—
More than ye all, am I speaking with tongues;
19 But in assembly—
I desire to speak five words with my mind:—
That others also I may instruct than myriads' of words in a tongue.
20 Brethren! do not become children in your understandings; but in baseness become babes,
While in your understandings ye become full-grown.
21 In the law it is written—
With strange tongues,
And with lips of strangers>
Will I speak unto this people; and not even so will they hearken unto me,— Saith the Lord.
22 So that the tongues are [for a sign]—
Not unto them that believe, but unto them that believe not;
Whereas prophesying is [Not for them that believe not], but [for them that believe].
23 If, then, the whole assembly come together with one consent, and all are speaking with tongues,—
And there come in persons unskilled or unbelieving:
Will they not say that ye are raving?
24 But if all be prophesying—
And there come in one who is unbelieving or unskilled—
He is convicted by all,
He is searched by all,
[The secrets of his heart] become manifest;
And so falling down upon his face
he will do homage unto God, reporting that [in reality] God is among you.
25 What, then, is it, brethren?
Whensoever ye are coming together,
[Each one] hath a psalm, hath a teaching, hath a revelation, hath a tongue,
[But] I will put all things into order.
26 If with a tongue one is speaking—
Let it be by two, or at the most, three,—And by turns;
And let one be translating;
27 But if there be none to translate—
Let him keep silence in assembly, and unto himself be speaking, and unto God.
28 <Prophets, moreover>
Let [two or three] speak, and let [the others] judge.
29 If, however, unto another a revelation be made as he is sitting—
Let the first be silent;
30 For [one by one] ye can all be prophesying,—
That all may learn, and all be encouraged.
31 And [spirits of prophets] unto prophets do submit themselves;
32 For God is not [a God] of confusion but of peace:—
As in all the assemblies of the saints.
33 As for the women—
In the assemblies let them be silent, a For it is not permitted them to be speaking; but let them be in submission,—
Even as [the law] saith.
34 If, however, they are wishing to learn something—
At home their own husbands let them question;
For it is a shame for a woman to be speaking in assembly.
35 Or from you did the word of God come forth? Or unto you alone did it extend?
36 If anyone thinketh himself to be a prophet, or spiritually gifted—
Let him acknowledge the things which I am writing to you,—
That they are a commandment of the Lord.

* Or: "offering praise."
* Or: "one."

K. N. T.
29 But if anyone knoweth not, he is unknown!
30 So, then, my brethren,—Be zealous to prophesy,
And do not forbid [to be speaking with tongues];
But let [all things] with comeliness, and by ° arrangement be done.

15 Moreover, brethren, I make known unto you
The joyful message—
Which I myself announced to you,
Which also ye received,
In which also ye stand;
Through which also ye are being saved,—a
If ye hold fast
[With what discourse] I announced the joyful message unto you;—
Unless indeed [in vain] ye believed.

For I delivered unto you [among the first things]
What also I received;—
How that [Christ] died for our sins [according to the Scriptures],
And that he was buried,
And that he hath been raised, b on the third day, [according to the Scriptures],
And that he appeared unto Cephas,
[Then] to the twelve,
[After that] he appeared to above five hundred brethren [at once],—
Of whom [the greater number] remain until even now,
But [some] have fallen asleep,—
[After that] he appeared unto James,
[Then] unto all the apostles,
And [last of all]
Just as if unto the unseasonable birth >
He appeared [even unto me];
For [I] am the least of the apostles, f
Who am not worthy * to be called an apostle,
Because I persecuted the assembly of God.

10 But [by favour of God] I am what I am,
And [his favour, which was unto me] hath not been made [void],—
But [much more abundantly than they all] have I toiled,
Albeit not [I], but the favour of God with me.

11 Whether therefore [II] or [they II]
[Thus] do we proclaim,
And [thus] did ye believe.

Now if [Christ] is proclaimed,
That [from among the dead] he hath been raised:—
How say some [among you]—
Resurrection of the dead there is none?
But if [resurrection of the dead] there is none—
Not even Christ] hath been raised;

14 And if [Christ] hath not been raised>
[Void, after all] is our proclamation,
[Void, also] our ° faith,—
And we are found [even false-witnesses of God],
Because we have witnessed respecting God.
That he raised the Christ,—
Whom he did not raise,
[If indeed, after all] The dead are not raised!

16 For if [the dead] are not raised>
[Not even] Christ] hath been raised;
And if [Christ] hath not been raised>
To no purpose is your faith,
[Yet] are ye in your sins!
Hence also [they who are fallen asleep in Christ] are lost:
[If in this life] [in Christ] we have hoped’
[and that is all]
We are [of all men] most to be pitied.

But [now] hath [Christ] been raised from among the dead,—
A firstfruit of them who have fallen asleep;
For [since] indeed [through a man] came death>
[Through a man] also cometh the raising of the dead b;
For [just as] [in the Adam] all die>
[So] also [in the Christ] shall all be made alive.

13 But [each] in his own’ rank:—
A firstfruit [Christ],
[After that] they who are the Christ’s [in ° his Presence]—
Afterwards] the end—
Whensoever he delivereth up the kingdom unto his God and Father,
Whensoever he shall bring to nought all’ rule and all’ authority and power;
For he must needs reign, until he shall put all’ his enemies under his feet:
[As a last’ enemy] [death] is to be destroyed;
For—
He put °[all things] in subjection under his feet.'
But whenever it shall be said—°
[All things] are in subjection!—
It is evident that it means,—
Except him who did put into subjection unto him ° [the All things]—
But whenever have been put into subjection unto him ° [the All things]>
[Then] °[the Son himself] ° [also] shall be put in subjection unto him who put in subjection unto him ° [the All things]>—
That °[God] may be °[all things in all].

179

Else what will they do, who are being immersed in behalf of the dead?
If not at all are the dead to be raised>

Why are they even being immersed in their behalf?
Day by day am I dying—
Yea! by your own boasting, brethren,
Which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord.

2 If after the manner of men I have fought with wild-beasts at Ephesus>
What to me the profit?
If not at all are the dead to be raised>
Let us eat and drink,
For to-morrow we die.*

Be not deceiving yourselves,—
Evil communications corrupt gentle manner,
Wake up to sobriety [in righteousness],
And be not committing sin;
For some have [an ignorance of God] :
For shame, unto you! am I speaking!

But some one will say—
How are the dead raised?
And [with what kind of body] do they come?
Simple one!
What thou sowest is not quickened except it die; And what thou sowest
Not the body that shall come into existence dost thou sow,
But a naked kernel—
If it so happen of wheat, or of any of the rest,—
Howbeit God giveth it a body as he pleased,
And unto each of the seeds a body of its own.

Not all flesh is the same flesh;
But one indeed, is [the flesh] of men And another the flesh of beasts, And another the flesh of birds, And another of fishes; And there are heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies,—
But [of one kind] indeed, is the glory of the heavenly, And [of another kind] is the glory of the earthly;—
One is the glory of a sun, And another the glory of a moon, And another the glory of stars, Nay! [star from star] differeth in glory.

Thus also the resurrection of the dead:
It is sown in corruption,
It is raised in incorruption,
It is sown in dishonour,
It is raised in glory,
It is sown in weakness,
It is raised in power,

It is sown a body [of the soul],
It is raised a body [of the spirit];—
If there is a body [of the soul]>
There is also [of the spirit];—
Thus also, it is written—
The first man, Adam, became [a living soul];
The last Adam, Christ our Lord.

But what of the soul,—
The first man is of the ground [earthy];—
The second man is of [heaven];
As the man of earth> such also, the men of earth,
And as the man of heaven> such also, the men of heaven;
And even as we have borne the image of the man of heaven>
Let us also bear the image of the man of heaven.

And this I say, brethren,—
That flesh and blood cannot inherit God's kingdom.
Neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.
Lo! a sacred secret! unto you do I declare:—
We shall not all sleep',
But we shall [all] be changed',—
In a moment.
In the twinkling of an eye,
During the last trumpet;
For it shall sound,
And the dead shall be raised incorruptible,
And [we] shall be changed.

For this corruptible must needs clothe itself with incorruptibility, And this mortal, clothe itself with immortality.
But [whenever] this mortal shall clothe itself with immortality>
Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written—
Death hath been swallowed up [victoriously];
Where, O death, is thy victory?
Where, O death, is thy sting?
Now the sting of death is [sin],
And the power of sin is [the law];—
But unto God be thanks, who is giving unto us its victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

So, then, my beloved brethren,—
Become ye [steadfast], immovable,
Supersounding in the work of the Lord at all times;
180

1 CORINTHIANS XVI. 1—24.

Knowing that your toil is not in vain in the Lord.

16 Now concerning the collection which is for the saints,
Just as I directed the assemblies of Galatia,
So also do ye:—

Upon the first of the week let each one of you put, by himself, into store, as he may be prospering,
Lest as soon as I come, then collections should be in progress.

And as soon as I arrive, whosoever ye shall approve by letters, will I send, to bear away your favour unto Jerusalem:

And if it be meet, that I also be journeying, with you I may perhaps sojourn, or winter,
That ye may set me forward whithersoever I may be journeying.

For I do not wish to see you, just now, by the way;
I hope to remain some time with you,—
If the Lord permit.

But I remain in Ephesus, until the Pentecost,
For a door, unto me, hath opened great and effectual, and opposers are many.

But if Timothy should come,
See that without fear he be with you,
For in the work of the Lord doth he labour, even as I:

Let no one then despise him;*
And set ye him forward in peace, that he may come unto me,
For I expect him with the brethren.

* 1 Tim. iv. 12.

But concerning Apollo the brother,
Much did I beseech him, that he would come unto you with the brethren,
But there was by no means any will, that he should come now;—
He will come, however, as soon as he hath good opportunity.

Be on the watch.
Stand firm in the faith,
Be men,—
Be strong;

Let all your affairs in love be carried on.

Now I beseech you, brethren,—
Ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is a first-fruit of Achaia, and for the purpose of ministering they devoted themselves unto the saints,—
That ye also be submitting yourselves unto such as these,—and unto everyone helping in the work and toiling.

I rejoice, moreover, in the presence of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus:
Because your own' shortcoming these have filled up:—
They have given rest, in fact, unto my spirit and yours:
Hold in acknowledgment, therefore, such as these.

The assemblies of Asia salute you:
Aquila and Priscilla, with the assembly meeting at their house, salute you much in the Lord:
All the brethren salute you:—
Salute ye one another with a holy kiss.

The salutation of Paul— with my own hand:
If anyone doth not dearly love the Lord,
Let him be anathema [that is," accursed":
Maranatha [that is, "The Lord cometh," ]

The favour of the Lord Jesus be with you.
My love be with you all [in Christ Jesus].
1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God,
   And Timothy the brother,—
   Unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth,
   Together with all the saints who are in the whole of Achiaia:

2 Favour unto you, and peace,
   From God [our] Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

3 [Blessed] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,*
   The Father of compassions.
   And God of all encouragement,■* Who encouragethusinall'ourtribulation.
   To the end we may be able to encourage themwhoareinany'tribulation—
   Through means of the encouragement wherewithwe|ourselves|are encouraged by God.

5 Because <even as the sufferings of the Christ overflow unto us> |
|So| [through the Christ] overfloweth |our encouragement also|.

6 But <whether we are in tribulation>
It is for your’encouragement and salvation;
<Whether we are encouraged>
It is for your’encouragement, which work-eth inwardly b by the endurance of the same sufferings which |we also| suffer;—

7 And so |our hope| is sure in your behalf,—
   Knowing that—
   <As ye are |sharers| of the sufferings>.c
|So| also, of the encouragement.

8 For we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, as to our tribulation which happened in Asia,—
   That |exceedingly, beyond power| we were weighed down,
   So that we despaired |even of life|.
   But |we ourselves, within ourselves| have had
   [the sentence of death],
   That we might not rest our confidence upon ourselves,
   But upon God [who raiseth the dead],
   Who [out of so great’ a death], rescued us, and will’ rescue;—

11 Ye also labouring together on our behalf |by your supplication|,d

12 For [our boasting] is [this]——The witness of our conscience,
   That <in sanctity and sincerity of God,
   [And] not in fleshly wisdom, but in God’s favour>
   Have we behaved ourselves in the world,—
   [And more abundantly towards you].

13 For [no other things] are we writing unto you, than what ye are either reading or even acknowledging,—I hope, moreover, that |throughout| ye will’ acknowledge,

14 According as ye have also acknowledged us, in part,—
   That |your theme of boasting| we are,
   Even indeed as |ye| also [shall be] |ours|
in the day of our Lord Jesus.

15 And [in this’ confidence] I purposed, |before|
to come |unto you|,—
   In order that |a second’ joy|* ye might have,—

16 And [by your means] to pass into Macedonia,
   And [again ] |from Macedonia| b to come unto
   you,
   And [by you] be set forward unto Judaea:—

17 |This| then, being my purpose>
   Perhaps [after all] |with lightness| I dealt
   [with the matter] ?
   Or <the things that I purpose> |according to the flesh| I purpose,—
   That |with me| should be the Yes, yes, and the Nay, nay?

18 [Faithful] however, is God, in that |our discourse, which was [delivered] unto you| is not Yes and Nay;

19 For [the Son of God’, Christ Jesus”—
   <Who |among you, through us| was proclaimed,—
   Through me, and Silvanus, and
   Timothy >
   Became not Yes and Nay,—
   But [Yes, in him] hath it become;

20 For <how many soever be the promises of God>
   [In him] is the Yes,—

* Or (WH) : “benefit,”   b 1 Co. xvi. 5.
"favour."
Wherefore also through him shall the Amen, unto God, For glory, through us.

Now he that confirmeth us, together with you, for Christ, And hath anointed us. Is God: Who also hath sealed us, And given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

But I call upon God, as a witness, against my own soul, That I may spare you; nor yet have I come unto Corinth: Not that we have lordship over your faith, But are helpers of your joy, For by your faith ye stand.

For I have determined, unto myself, this— Not again in grief to come unto you.

And I wrote this very thing— Lost if I came! I should have grief from those over whom I had need to rejoice,— Having confidence in you all.

That my joy be the joy of you all.

For out of much tribulation and anguish of heart I wrote you through many tears,— Not that ye might be grieved. But that the love ye might know, which I have very abundantly unto you.

But if anyone hath caused grief I, Not unto me, hath he caused grief, But—that I may not bear too heavily— unto you all.

Sufficient unto such a one, the punishment itself which [was inflicted] by the many; So that ye should forgive and encourage, Such a one should be swallowed up.

Wherefore, I beseech you, assure him of love;

For |to this end I also wrote,— That I might know the proof of you, Whether in all things ye are obedient.

Now to whom ye forgive anything I, also; For |I also| what I have forgiven, If anything I have forgiven ||For your sake, in the person of Christ I have forgiven it.

Lest we should be overreached by Satan, For of his thoughts we are not ignorant.

Moreover although I came unto Troas for the glad-message of the Christ, and [a door for me] had been opened in the Lord> I had no relief in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother; not even been made glorious in this respect,—
By reason of the surpassing' glory.

11 For if that which was to be done away [was brought in] with* glory>

"Much more" (what which is to abide) is in glory.

12 Having, then, such hope as this'— Great' openness of speech do we use;—
And are not just like Moses, who kept putting a veil upon his face. b

So that the sons of Israel should not look steadily unto the end of that which was to be done away.

But their thoughts were turned into stone:
For [until this very day] the same' veil [upon the reading of the old' covenant] abideth, not to be removed, Because [in Christ] it is to be done away;
But [until this day] whenever Moses is read [a veil upon their heart] doth lie;

Howbeit whenever he turneth unto [the] Lord> he taketh off the veil b:
And [the Lord] is [the Spirit]:
Now <where the Spirit of one who is Lord e>[is] there is freedom e.
And [we all] [with unveiled' faces] receiving and reflecting [the glory of [the] Lord]>
Into the same' image are being transformed,
From glory into glory,—
Even as from a Spirit that is Lord.

4 Wherefore [having this ministry, even as we received mercy] we faint not;
But have renounced the hidden things of shame,
Not walking in craftiness,
Nor handling the word of God deceitfully,—
But [by the manifestation of the truth] commending ourselves unto every' conscience of men, in the sight of God.

And <even if our glad-message [is veiled]>
[In them who are perishing] it is veiled,
[In whom] [the god of this age] hath blinded the minds of the unbelieving.
To the end they may not discern the radiance* of the glad-message of the glory of the Christ—Who is the image of God.f

5 For [not ourselves] do we proclaim, but Christ Jesus [as Lord],
And [ourselves] as your servants for Jesus' sake.

Because <the God who said—
[Is he] who hath shone in our hearts,
In proportion to the radiance of the glorious knowledge* of God, in the face of Christ.

Howbeit we have this treasure in earthen' vessels,
That [the surpassing greatness of the power] may be of God, and not from ourselves:—

[On every side] pressed hard, but not hemmed in,
Without a way, but not without a by-way,
Pursued, but not abandoned,
Thrown down, but not destroyed;—

[At all times, the putting to death of Jesus] [in our body] bearing about,
In order that [the life also of Jesus] [in our body] may be made manifest;

For [evermore] we, the living] unto death' are being delivered for Jesus' sake,
In order that [the life also of Jesus] may be made manifest in our mortal' flesh:
So that [his death] [in us] doth energise,
But [his life] in you.

Howbeit <seeing that we have the same' spirit of faith,
According to that which is written—
I believed, therefore I spoke>b
We also believe, therefore also we speak:
Knowing that [he who raised up [the Lord] Jesus] will raise up [us also, together with Jesus] and will present [us] together with you. f

For [all things] are for your sakes,
In order that [the favour'abounding] may <through means of the greater number> cause [the thanksgiving] to superabound unto the glory of God.

Wherefore we faint not, a
But <even if our outer'man [is decaying> Nevertheless [our inner [man]] is renewing g day by day.

For [the momentary' lightness of the tribulation]
[In a manner yet more and more excel ling> Is working out for us [an age-abiding' weight of glory],—
So long as we are not looking out for the visible things,
But for the invisible;
For [the visible things] are temporary,
Whereas [the invisible] are age-abiding.

5 For we know that—
[If our earthly' tent'-dwelling should be taken down * We have [a building of God],
A dwelling not made by hand, Age-abiding in the heavens.

And verily [in this] b we sigh, i earnestly

Or: "through means of."
* MI: "the knowledge of the glory of God."
"Or: "To the end that the radiance . . . should not be upon them.]"
Col. I. 12
Gen. I. 8.
desiring to clothe ourselves over —with our habitation which is of heaven,—

Although, indeed <even clothing ourselves> we shall not be found naked; —

And verily <we who are in the tent> do sigh, being weighed down,
While yet we are not wishing to unclothe ourselves, but to clothe ourselves over,

In order that <what is mortal> may be swallowed up by life.

Now <he that hath wrought us for this very thing> is God,—

Who hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit,

Having good courage, therefore, at all times,

And knowing that —

Remaining at home in the body,

We are away from home from the Lord,—

By faith are we walking.

Not by sight; —

We have good courage, however, and are well pleased —

Rather to be away from home, out of the body,

And to come home, unto the Lord.

Wherefore also we are ambitious —

<Whether at home, or away from home> To be well-pleasing unto him,

For <we all> must needs be made manifest before the judgment seat of the Christ,

That each one may get back the things done by means of the body,
(According to the things which he practised)

Whether good or corrupt.

Knowing, then, the fear of the Lord>

We persuade men;
But <unto God> are manifest,—

I hope, moreover, <even in your consciences> that we are manifest:

Not again, ourselves do we commend unto you,

But as though an occasion we were giving unto you something to boast of, in our behalf;

That ye may have something suited unto them who in appearance are boasting, and not in heart.

For <whether we have been beside ourselves> it hath been for you,

Or <whether we are sober-minded> it is for you.

For <the love of the Christ> constraineth us;—

Having judged this,—

That <one> in behalf of all died,
Hence <they all> died; —

And in behalf of all died he,—

In order that <they who live> —

<No longer for themselves> should live,
But for him who <in their behalf> died and rose again.

So that <we> henceforth know <no one> after the flesh; —

<If we have even been gaining, after the flesh, a knowledge of Christ>—

On the contrary, now, no longer are we gaining it.

So that <if any one is in Christ> there is a new creation —

<The old things> have passed away,—

Lo! they have become new!

The all things moreover, are of God,—

Who hath reconciled us unto himself, through Christ,

And hath given unto us, the reconciling ministry:—

How that <God> was in Christ, Reconciling a world unto himself,
Not reckoning, unto them, their offenses,—

And hath put, in us, the reconciling discourse.

In behalf of Christ, therefore, are we ambassadors,—

As if God were beseeching through us:

We entreat, in behalf of Christ,—

Be reconciled unto God !

< Him who knew not sin> In our behalf, he made to be his,
That we might become God's righteousness in him.

<As co-workers, however> we also beseech,
That <not in vain> <the favour of God> ye welcome;

For he saith—

<In an approved season> have I heartened unto thee,
And <in a day of salvation> have I succoured thee: —

Lo! <now> a well-approved season,
Lo! <now> a day of salvation:—

Giving <no single> occasion of stumbling in anything,
That the ministry be not blamed;
But <in everything> commending ourselves as God's ministers,—

In much endurance, in tribulations, in necessities, in straits, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in watchings, in fastings, in knowledge, in long-suffering, in gracefulness, in Holy Spirit, in love unfeigned, in discourse of truth, in power of God;

Through the weapons of righteousness on the right hand and left, through glory and dishonour, through bad report and good report;

As deceivers, and yet true, as unknown.

* Ex., of origin—as twice in 1 Co. xiv. 47, 1 Cor. xiv. 56, 59. 9 Ph. i. 19.
* Or: " if we do but clothe ourselves " — the prefix for "over" being dropped.
Note the verb, middle, not passive; and aorist = act,
2 CORINTHIANS VI. 10—18; VII. 1—15.

18 and yet well-known, as dying, and lo! we live, as disciplined, and yet not put to death; as grieving, yet ever rejoicing, as desist, yet making rich, as holding, and yet firmly holding all things.

11 Our mouth is opened unto you, O Corinthians! Our heart hath become enlarged:

12 Ye are not straitened in us. But are straitened in your hearts' affections;

13 Howbeit by way of the like compense— as unto children I speak—

14 Be enlarged, even ye.

15 But IIineveryway we were in tribulation,— Without fightings!

16 Great is my freedom of speech towards you,

17 In every way were we in tribulation,—

18 But he who encourgeth them that are brought low encouraged us,

19 Even God,—by the presence of Titus,

20 Not, however, by his presence alone,

21 But also by the encouragement wherewith he had been encouraged over you:

22 Recounting unto us your earnest desire, your lamentation, your zeal in my behalf.

23 So that I the more rejoiced.

24 Because if I even grieved you by the letter I do not regret,—

25 Though I could even have regretted,—

26 I see that that letter if even for an hour did cause you grief.

27 [Now] am I rejoicing,—

28 Not that ye were grieved, But that ye were grieved unto repentance; For ye were grieved according to God, In order that in nothing should ye receive damage from us.

29 For grief according to God worketh repentance unto salvation, not to be regretted; Although the grieving of the world worketh death.

30 For lo! this very thing—the being caused to grieve according to God:—

31 What manner of diligence it wrought out in you,—nay! defence,—nay! sore displeasure,—nay! fear,—nay! earnest desire,—nay! jealousy,—nay! avenging.

32 In every way ye shewed yourselves to be chaste in the matter.

33 Hence if I even wrote unto you

34 It was not for the sake of him that did the wrong;

35 Nay not even for the sake of him that suffered the wrong; But for the sake of your earnestness, which was on our account, being made manifest unto you, before God:—

36 [For this cause we have received encouragement.]

37 In addition to our encouragement, however

38 Much more abundantly have we rejoiced over the joy of Titus,—

39 That his spirit hath received refreshment from you all,

40 That if in anything—unto him—in your behalf—I have boasted I have not been put to shame;

41 But as all things, in truth we told you,

42 [So even our boasting before Titus turned out to be truethrough.]

43 And his tender affections are much more abundantly towards you.

44 When he calleth to mind the obedience of you all:—

45 How with fear and trembling ye gave him welcome.

* The count is resumed lower down, ver. 11.
I rejoice that in everything I am of good courage respecting you.

Moreover we make known unto you, brethren, the favour of God which hath been given in the assemblies of Macedonia,—

That <in a great' testing of tribulation>
 || The superabounding of their joy and their deep' destitution;!

Superabounded unto the riches of their liberality;

That <according to power, I bear witness, and beyond power>
 || Of their own accord they gave, first, unto the Lord and unto us through God's will,

To the end we should exhort Titus, in order that
 || According as he before made a beginning>
 || So he should also complete unto you this favour also.

But <just as in everything ye superabound,—

In faith, and discourse, and knowledge, and all' earnestness, and in the love among you which proceedeth from us'>—

In order that <in this' favour also> ye would superabound.

[Not by way of injunction] a do I speak, But through others' earnestness, And [the genuineness of your own' love] putting to the test.

For ye are taking knowledge of the favour of our Lord Jesus Christ,—

How that [for yoursakes] he became destitute—although he was [rich], In order that [ye] by his destitution might be enriched.

And  do I give,—

For [this, unto you] is profitable,—

Who, indeed not only of the doing, but of the desiring made for yourselves a beginning a year ago;—

Howbeit [now] the doing also complete ye, In order that [even according to the forwardness of the desiring] [so] may be the completing—out of what ye have.

For <if the forwardness is set forth>
 || According to what one may have] he is well approved, Not according to what one hath not.

For <not that unto others' should be relief, and unto you' distress [do I speak].

But <by equality>
 || In the present' season] your surplus for their deficiency,—

In order that their surplus may come to be for your deficiency:

* 1 Co. vii. 8.
To exhort the brethren that they would go forward unto you,
And make up beforehand your previously-promised blessing.

The same to be ready—thus, as a blessing and not as of constraint.

But mighty, by God, unto a pulling down of strongholds,
When we pull down [calculations] and every' height that uplifteth itself against the knowledge of God,
And when we bring into captivity every' thought unto the obedience of the Christ,
And when we hold ourselves [in readiness] to avenge all' disobedience.

As soon as your' obedience shall be fulfilled:

For <though [in flesh] we walk> Not [according to flesh] do we war,—
For [the weapons of our warfare] are not fleshly.

As to this, however
He that soweth sparingly [Sparingly] shall reap,
And he that soweth with blessings [With blessings] also shall reap:

Each one according as he hath purposed in his heart
Not sorrowfully, nor of necessity,—
For [a cheerful giver] [God] loveth.

Moreover God is able to cause [every' gracious gift] to superabound unto you,
In order that <having in every' thing, at every' time', every kind of sufficiency of your own,>
Ye may be superabounding unto every' good work;

Even as it is written—
He hath scattered abroad,
He hath given to the needy,—
His righteousness obideth to futurity.

Now <he that supplieth seed to the sower, and bread for eating> Will supply and multiply your seed for sowing,
And cause to grow your fruits of righteousness:
In every thing being enriched, unto every kind' of liberality,—
Which, indeed, worketh out, through us, thanksgiving unto God;

Because [the ministry of this public service] is not only' towards filling up the deficiencies of the saints, but also superabounding through the thanksgiving of many' unto God,—
[Of many] who [through the proof of this ministry] are glorifying God for your acknowledged' submission unto the glad-message of the Christ, and for the liberality of the fellowship [unto them, and unto all],—
[Themselves also] <with supplication on your behalf> longing after you, by reason of the surpassing favour of God [resting] upon you:—

Thanks be unto God, for his unspeakable' bounty!

Moreover [I, Paul, myself] exhort you,
Through the meekness and considerateness of the Christ,—
I who [to look upon, indeed] am lowly among you,
But [absent] am bold towards you;—
188 16—18; XI. 1-27. 2 CORINTHIANS X.

|among you| to be enlarged |according to our limit for something beyond|—
16 |Unto the regions beyond you| to carry the glad-message:
Not <within another' man's limit, as to the things made ready > to boast ourselves.
17 |He that boasteth| however, |in the Lord| let him boast *;
18 For |not he that commendeth himself| he| is approved,
But he whom |the Lord| doth commend.

11 I could wish ye would bear with me as to some little' foolishness,— Nay! do even bear with me.
2 For I am jealous over you with a jealousy |of God|;
For I myself betrothed you unto one' husband.
To present |a chaste virgin| unto the Christ,—
3 But I fear lest, by any means,
<As |the serpent| completely deceived Eve, in his craftiness>
Your minds should be corrupted from the singleness |and the chasteness| which are |due| unto the Christ.

For<if, indeed.| he that cometh| is proclaiming another' Jesus|
<As the serpent| completely deceived Eve, in his craftiness> b
Your minds should be corrupted from the singleness |and the chasteness| which are |due| unto the Christ.

4 For <if, indeed.| he that cometh is proclaiming another' Jesus|*
Whom we have not proclaimed,
Or |a different Spirit| ye are receiving,
Which ye had not received,
Or a different glad-message,
Which ye have never welcomed >
Ye are |well| bearing.
5 For I reckon not to have come a whit' behind the exceeding overmuch' apostles;
And <if ununcultured in my discourse>
Certainly not in my knowledge,—
But |in every way| having made [it] manifest, in all things, unto you.
6 Or |a sin| did I commit—
Abusing |myself| that |ye| might be exalted,—
In that |free of charge| [God's] glad-message
I announced unto you?
5 Other' assemblies| I despoiled,
receiving supplies that I might minister |unto you|;
9 And <being present with you, and having come short> I was not burdensome to anyone,—
For |my deficiency| the brethren, coming from Macedonia, |helped to make up|;
And |in everything, without burden unto you| > I kept |myself| — and will' keep!
10 |Truth of Christ is in me| that |this boast|ing shall not be silenced unto me, in the regions of Achaia.

Wherefore? Because I love you not?
|God| knoweth!

But |what I am’ doing| I also will do,—
That |may cut off the occasion of them who are wishing an occasion,
That |wherein they are boasting themselves| they may be found even as also |we|.

13 For |such as these| are false apostles, deceitfull workers, transfiguring themselves into apostles of Christ.
And no marvel! For |Satan himself| doth transfigure himself into a messenger of light!
15 |No great thing, therefore| if |his ministers also| are transfiguring themselves as ministers of righteousness!—
||Whose end| shall be according to their works.

16 |Again| I say—
Let no one deem me to be |foolish|;
But |otherwise, at least| |as foolish| give me welcome,
That |I also| |some little| may boast myself.
17 |What I am saying| |Not according to the Lord| I am saying, but as in foolishness,—
||In this' my boastful' confidence!
<Since|many| are boasting after the flesh>
||I also| will boast;
For |gladly| do ye bear with the foolish,
Being |yourselves| discreet;—
20 For ye bear with it—
If anyone enslaveth you, if any devoureth,
if anyone taketh, if anyone lifteth himself up, if anyone |on the face| doth smite you!
21 |By way of disparagement| am I speaking,—
As though |we| had been weak!
Whereas |in whatsoever anyone darest| |in foolishness| I speak—
||I also| dare:—
22 |Hebrews| are they? |I also|,
|Israelites| are they? |I also|,
|Seed of Abraham| are they? |I also|,
23 |Ministers of Christ| are they? <As one deranged I am talking> ||I|| above measure!—
||In toils| superabundantly,
|In prisons| superabundantly,
|In stripes| to excess,
|In deaths| oft,—
24 |From Jews| |five times| |forty-save-one| have I received,
|Thrice| have I been beaten with rods,
|Once| have I been stoned,
|Thrice| have I been shipwrecked,
|A day and night| |in the deep| have I spent;
26 In journeyings oft,
|in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my own soul, in perils from Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the desert, in perils by the sea, in perils among false brethren, 77 in toil and hardship, |in watchings| oft, in hunger and thirst, in fasting oft, in cold and nakedness:—

25 <Apart from the things without> My daily care—my anxiety for all the assemblies;—

Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is caused to stumble, and [I] am not burning?

26 <If to boast> is needful> in the things that concern my weaknesses will I boast.

27 [The God and Father of our Lord Jesus] knoweth— He who is blessed unto the ages— That I am not speaking falsely:

28 In Damascus the governor under Aretas the king was guarding the city of Damascus, to apprehend me,—

29 And through a window was I let down by the wall,* and escaped his hands.

30 To be boasting is needful,—it is not, indeed, profitable. Yet will I come to visions and revelations of [the] Lord:—

I know a man in Christ, Who fourteen years ago, Whether in the body, I know not, Or out of the body, I know not, [God] knoweth. Such a one as this caught away as far as the third heaven; And I know such a man as this, Whether in the body or apart from the body, [I know not], [God] knoweth.

4 How that he was caught away into paradise, And heard unspeakable things. Which it is not allowable for a man to utter:

5 On behalf of such a one as this will I boast, But [on behalf of myself] will I not boast [save in my weaknesses]:—

6 Although in fact <if I should wish to boast> I shall not be fooliah for [the truth] would I speak; But I forbear, lest anyone unto me should reckon above what he beholdeth me [to be], or hearth from me,—

7 Even by the exceeding greatness of the revelations.

8 Wherefore lest I should be unduly lifted up> There was given to me a thorn 6 in the flesh, A messenger of Satan, that he might buffet me,—

Lest I should be unduly lifted up.

9 In this behalf I [thrice] besought I [the Lord], that it 4 might depart from me;

And at once he said unto me— Sufficient for thee is my favour, For my power] [in weakness] is made complete.

Most gladly therefore, will I rather boast in my weaknesses, That the power of Christ may spread a tent over me.

10 Wherefore, I take pleasure in weaknesses, in insults, in necessities, in persecutions and straits,* [In behalf of Christ];

For <as soon as I am weak> [then] am I powerful.

11 I have become foolish,—[ye] compelled me:— [I], in fact, ought [by you] to have been commended; For [not a whit] have I come behind the exceeding overmuch apostles,—

[Even if I am nothing]:

12 [The signs, indeed, of an apostle] were wrought out among you [in all' endurance],—

[Both] in signs, and wonders, and mighty works:

13 For what is there wherein ye were made inferior to the rest of the assemblies,— Save that [I myself] would not allow myself to be a burden unto you? Forgive me this wrong!

14 Lo! [this third time] I am holding myself [in readiness] to come unto you, And I will not allow myself to be a burden; For I seek not yours, but you;—

For [the children] ought not to lay up for your souls:—

15 And [I] most gladly will spend, and be fully spent, for your souls:—<If I exceedingly love you> am I [the less] loved?*

But let it be:—

I [myself] did not burden you,— Notwithstanding, [being crafty] with guile I caught you? 4

17 Was there anyone of those whom I have sent unto you through whom I have overreached you?

18 I exhorted Titus, and sent with him the brother,— Did [Titus] overreach you? Was it not [in the same' spirit] we walked? Was it not [in the same' steps]?

19 All this time think ye, that unto you we are making a defence!

Before God in Christ we speak;— But all these things, beloved, for your upbuilding.

20 For I fear—

Lest, by any means, when I come> Not such as I wish should I find you, And [I] should be found by you, such as ye do not wish;—

* Or (WH) : “in persecutions, in straits.”
4 As if: “Is not what you say?”—which he then indignantly denies.
5 Ac. ix. 25. 6 Or (WH) : “But to be boasting indeed is not profitable, Yet,” &c.
7 Or: “‘stake.”
8 Or: “he.”
9 Or (WH): “Though <the more I love you> the less I am loved.”
Lest, by any means, [I should find] strife, jealousy, outbursts of wrath, factions, railings, whisperings, puffed up pretensions, confusions;—

21 Lest <when I again' come> my God should humble me in regard to you,—
And I should grieve over many' who had before sinned, and not repented of the impurity, and fornication, and wanton-ness which they had committed.

13 ||This third time|| am I coming unto you :—
<At the mouth of two' witnesses, or three> shall every matter be established.||
I have said beforehand, and do say beforehand,—
<As present the second time, although now absent>
Unto them who before sinned, and unto all the rest,—
That <if I come again> I will not spare.
3 <Since [a test] ye are seeking, of the speaking in me of Christ ;—
Who |unto you| is not weak,
But is powerful in you,—

4 For |although he was crucified through weakness|,
Yet is he living through God's power,—
For |although [we] are weak in [him]|,
Yet shall we live with him, through God's power [unto us]>—

5 Be trying ||yourselves|| whether ye are in the faith,
Be putting ||yourselves|| to the test !
Or do ye not recognise yourselves.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE GALATIANS.

1 Paul, an apostle,—
Not from men, nor through man,
But through Jesus Christ, and God the Father who raised him from among the dead,—

2 And all the brethren with' me;—
Unto the assemblies of Galatia :
Favour unto you and peace,
From God our Father,
And Lord Jesus Christ,—

6 Who gave himself for* our sins,*
That he might deliver us out of the present' evil age,
According to the will of our God and Father,—

5 Unto whom be the glory unto the ages of ages ; Amen !

6 I marvel that ||these things, while absent|| am I writing,
That I may not ||when present! deal sharply'—
According to the authority which ||the Lord| hath given me, for building up and not for pulling down.

11 ||Finally|| brethren, farewell !
Be getting restored, be taking encouragement, be of one mind, live in peace,—
And [the God of love and peace] will be with you.

12 Salute ye one another with a holy' kiss.
All the saints| salute you.
13 ||The favour of our Lord Jesus [Christ],
And the love of God,
And the fellowship of the Holy' Spirit|*
Be with you all'.

* Or: "am I to come unto you?"
* Deu. xix. 15.
* Or: "with."

* Or: "From God [the] Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ."
Unto a different' glad-message,—
7 Which is not another,
Only there are some that are troubling you.*
And wishing to change the glad-message of the Christ.
8 But even if we or a messenger out of heaven announce a glad-message unto you aside from that which we announced unto you>
| Accursed | let him be!
9 As we have said before, even now' again I say:|<If anyone is announcing unto you' a glad-message aside from that which ye accepted>|
| Accursed | let him be!
10 For am I even now persuading [men] or God?|<If anyone is announcing unto you' a glad-message aside from that which ye accepted>|
11 For I make known unto you, brethren,
That it is not after man;
12 For neither from man did I accept it. Nor was taught [it],—
But through a revealing of Jesus Christ.
13 For ye have heard as to my' manner of life, at one time, in Judaism>
How that exceedingly was I persecuting the assembly of God, and laying it waste,<
14 And was making advancement, in Judaism, above many' contemporaries in my nation,—
Being surpassingly jealous of my paternal' instructions.4
15 But when God, who set me apart from my mother's womb and called me through his favour,
Was well-pleased to reveal his Son in me, That I might announce the glad-message regarding him among the nations>
[Straightway] I conferred not with flesh and blood,
17 Neither went I up unto Jerusalem unto them who [before me] were apostles,—
But I away into Arabia, and again returned unto Damascus.
18 Then, after three' years] went I up unto Jerusalem, to become acquainted with Cephas, and tarried with him fifteen days;
19 But [other of the apostles] saw I none, save James the brother of the Lord:—
Now <as touching the things which I am writing to you> lo! [before God] I am not guilty of falsehood:—
21 After that I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia,
And was still unknown, by face, unto the assemblies of Judæa which were in Christ,—
23 Only they were hearing—
| He that was persecuting us formerly]| Now ] is announcing the glad-message of the faith which he formerly laid waste;
And they were glorifying [God] [in me].
24 After that, fourteen' years later: I again went up unto Jerusalem, with Barnabas,
Taking with me Titus also;
And I went up by revelation,
And laid before them the glad-message which I proclaim among the nations;
Privately however, to them of repute,—
Lest, by any means, [in vain] I should be running, or had run.
25 But [not even Titus, who was with me, though he was a Greek] was compelled to be circumcised;—
But [this was] because of the false brethren secretly introduced,—
Who, indeed, came in secretly to spy out our freedom, which we have in Christ Jesus,
That they might bring us into bondage:—
26 Unto whom, not even for an hour] gave we place by the [required] submission,—
In order that the truth of the glad-message might still abide with you.
Moreover [from them who were reputed to be something]>—
Whatever at one time they were, maketh no difference to me,
God accepteth not a man's [person],—
Unto me in fact, they who were of repute added nothing further;
27 But [on the contrary]—
<When they saw that I had been trusted with the glad-message to the uncircumcision,
Even as Peter [with that] to the circumcision,—
For he that energised in Peter, into an apostleship to the circumcision> Energised also in me, for the nations,—
And when they perceived the favour which had been given unto me>
[James and Cephas and John, who were reputed to be pillars]> Gave [the right hand of fellowship] unto me and Barnabas,
In order that we [should go] unto the nations,
And [they] unto the circumcision:—
Only that we should remember [the destitute],—
As to which I had given diligence [this very thing] to do.
28 But when Cephas came unto Antioch>
[To the face] [even] [him] I resisted, Because he stood condemned;—
29 Or: “in my case”—as in v. 16.
13 For before that certain came from James—
With them of the nations; used he to eat;
Whereas <when they came>—
He used to withdraw, and keep himself separate.
Fearing them of the circumcision;
And the rest of the Jews [also] used hypocrisy with him,
So that [even Barnabas] was carried away by their hypocrisy.

14 But <when I saw that they were not walking with straightforwardness as regardeth the truth of the glad-message>—
I said unto Cephas, before all:—
<If thou although a Jew||like them of the nations, and not like the Jews| dost live>
How dost thou compel them of the nations to live like Jews?
||We, by nature Jews, and not sinners from among the nations||
<Knowing, however, that a man is not declared righteous by works of law,>
[Nor at all] save through faith in Christ Jesus>
||Even we|| on Christ Jesus b believed,
That we might be declared righteous—
By faith in Christ.
And not by works of law;
Because [by works of law] shall no flesh be declared righteous.a
Now <if in seeking to be declared righteous in Christ we ourselves also> were found sinners—
Is Christ | therefore | a minister [of sin]?
Far be it!
For <if the things that I pulled down,
these|| again| I build>>
A transgressor|| I prove | myself|| to be.
For ||I|| through means of law | unto law died,
That | unto God | I might live:—
||With Christ| have I been crucified;
And | living no longer| am ||I,||
But | living in me | is ||Christ|—
While <so far as I now| do live in flesh>
||By faith|| I live—
The faith in | the Son of God,
Who loved me, and gave himself up in my behalf.

15 I do not set aside the favour of God;
For <if through law| is righteousness>—
Then [Christ] ||without cause| died.

16 O thoughtless Galatians!
Who hath bewitchted you,—
[Before whose very eyes|| Jesus Christ ||was openly set forth as a crucified one?]

3 [So thoughtless are ye?]
<Having made a beginning in Spirit>
Are ye | now, in flesh| to be made complete?
||Such things| suffered ye | in vain,—
If at least [it is] even in vain?
<He then who was supplying unto you the Spirit, and energising mighty works among you>—
By works of law,
Or by a believed' report b[did he it]?

6 Even as Abraham—
Believed in God,
And it was reckoned unto him as righteousness.c

7 Be taking note | therefore|—
That | they who are of faith | the same] are [sons] of Abraham;
And ||the scripture||
<| Foreseeing | that || by faith || God would declare the nations righteous>
Fore-announced the good news unto Abraham,
saying—
All the nations shall be blessed in thee.d

So then || they who are of faith || are blessed with believing Abraham;
For || as many as are of works of law || are [under a curse]|—
For it is written—
|A cursed is everyone| that continueth not in all things that are written in the book| of the law to do them.|e

11 Moreover, <that | in law || no one | is declared righteous with God> [is] evident,—
Because || The righteous one || by faith shall live1;
And || the law | is not of faith, but—
|| He that hath done them || shall live in them,b

13 ||Christ | hath redeemed | us| out of the curse of the law,
Having become | in our behalf | a curse,—
Because it is written—
|Cursed is every one| that hangeth upon a tree !;—
In order that | unto the nations | [the blessing of Abraham] might come about in Jesus Christ, —
In order that || the promise of the Spirit || we might receive through means of the a faith.

14 Brethren ! ||in human fashion|| am I speaking:
Yet still || a man’s ‘confirmed’ covenant | no one setteth aside or addeth unto:
15 Now || unto Abraham | were spoken the promises | and unto his seed | —;
He saith not— And unto thy seeds, as of many,
But | as of one||— And unto thy seed,a which is Christ

And this I say—

A covenant previously confirmed by God,

the law which after four hundred and thirty years hath been brought into being doth not annul, so as to do away with the promise.

For if by law is the inheritance

It is no longer by promise; But unto Abraham through promise hath God favoured it.

Why, then, the law?

Because of the transgressions it was added.

Until such time as the seed should come, unto whom the promise had been made, and was given in charge through messengers, at the hand of a mediator;

Now a mediator is not [a mediator] of one, But God is one.

Is the law then, against the promises of God? Far be it!

For if a law had been given, which had been able to give life;

Verily in law would have been our righteousness;

But the Scripture did shut up all things under sin, That the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to them who have faith,

Before the coming of the faith however, under law were we being kept in ward, Being shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed.

So that the law hath proved our tutor, training us for Christ, In order that by faith we might be declared righteous;

But the faith having come no longer are we under a tutor;—

For ye are sons of God through the faith in Christ Jesus;

There cannot be Jew or Greek, There cannot be bond or free, There cannot be male and female, For all ye are one in Christ Jesus;

Now if ye are of Christ By consequence ye are Abraham's seed, (According to promise) heirs.

But I say—:

For as long a time as the heir is an infant;

He differeth nothing from a servant, though Lord of all;

But is under guardians and stewards, until the [day] fore-appointed of the father; So also we, when we were infants, Under the elementary principles of the world were held in servitude;

But when the fulness of the time came God sent forth his Son, Who came to be of a woman, Who came to be under law,— That them who were under law he might redeem, That the sonship we might duly receive;—

And because ye are sons God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, exclaiming, Abba! Oh Father! So that no longer art thou a servant but a son; And if a son an heir also, through God.

But at that time—

Not knowing God Ye were in servitude unto them who by nature are not Gods;

Whereas now—

Having acknowledged God, or rather, Having been acknowledged by God How turn ye back again unto the weak and beggarly' elementary principles, unto which ye are wishing to come into servitude?

Days ye do narrowly observe, and months, and seasons, and years:

I am afraid of you—Least by any means in vain I should have toiled for you!

Become ye as I, Because I also [was] as ye, brethren, I entreat you.

[Not at all] have ye wronged me.

Howbeit ye know that by reason of a weakness of the flesh I myself announced the glad-message unto you formerly;

And [your trial, in my flesh] ye despised not, neither spat ye [in disgust], But as a messenger of God ye welcomed me— As Christ Jesus.

Where, then, is the happiness ye accounted yours? For I bear you witness—That if possible, your eyes ye would have dug out, and given unto me.

So then have I become, by dealing truthfully with you?

They shew a zeal for you, not honourably, But wish to shut you out,

In order that ye may be zealous for them.

Howbeit it is honourable to shew zeal in what is honourable at all times, and not only when I am present with you—

My dear children! for whom I am in birth-pains, Until Christ be formed within you;—

I could wish, however, to be present with you, even now, and to change my voice,— Because I am perplexed regarding you.

NB: The weakness, his; the trial, in part, theirs.
Tell me, ye who under law are wishing to be:

The law do ye not hear?

For it is written, that Abraham had two sons—

One by the bondmaid,

And one by the free woman;

But he that was of the bondmaid

[After the flesh] had been born,

Whereas he that was of the free woman

Through means of a promise.

Which things, indeed, may bear another meaning;

For the same I are two covenants,—

One, indeed, from Mount Sinai, bringing forth,

Thewhichis Hagar,—

And the Hagar is Mount Sinai, in Arabia,—

She answereth however, unto the present Jerusalem,

Forsheisinbondagewithherchildren;

But the Jerusalem above is free,—

Thewhichis our mother;

Foritiswritten—

Be gladdened, O barren one! that wast not giving birth,

Break forth and shout, thou that wast not in birth-pains,

Because more are the children of the deserted one,

Than of her that had the husband.

And we brethren, after the manner of Isaac>

Are children of a promise.

But just as then did persecute him who had been born after the manner of the Spirit>

Thus also now. But, what saith the scripture?

Cast out the serving woman and her son;

For in nothing shall the son of the serving woman inherit with the son of the free.

Wherefore, brethren, we are not children of a serving woman, but of the free:

With her freedom Christ hath made you free.

Stand fast, therefore, and do not again with a yoke of servitude be held fast!

See! I, Paul say unto you—

If ye be getting circumcised [Christ] will profit you nothing.'

Yea, I bear solemn witness again, unto every man getting circumcised,—

That he is a debtor to do [the whole law].

Ye have been set aside from Christ, ye who by law are to be declared righteous,—

Out of his favour ye have fallen;

For [in] a faith, by faith, for a hope of righteousness are ardently waiting,—

For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision,

But faith, through love energising.

Ye were running well:

Who hath hindered you, that by truth ye are not to be persuaded?

[[The persuasion is not of him that calleth you:]]

[[A little] leave thou not the whole lump];

Iam persuaded regarding you, in the Lord—

That <for nothing else> you will have any regard;

But he that is troubling you shall bear the sentence,—

W hoseover he may be.

If however, brethren—

If ye on a footing of freedom were called brethren,—

Only turn not your freedom into an occasion to the flesh,

But by means of your love be serving one another;

For the whole law is summed up—[namely] in this,—

Thous shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

If, however, one another ye bite and devour,

Take heed lest by one another ye be consumed!

I say, moreover—

By Spirit be walking,

And fleshly coveting ye will in nowise fulfill;

For the flesh coveteth against the Spirit, But the Spirit against the flesh,—

For these are one another are opposed.

Lest whatsoever things ye chance to desire these ye should be doing!

And if by Spirit ye are being led

Ye are not under law.

Manifest however, are the works of the flesh, which, indeed, are—

Fornication, impurity, wantonness, idolatry, enchantment, enmities, strife, jealousy, outbursts of wrath, factions, divisions, parties, envyings, drunkenness, revellings;—

And such things as these:

As to which I forewarn you, even as I have forewarned you,

That they who such things as these do practise

Shall not inherit God’s kingdom.
But [the fruit of the Spirit] is ---

Love, joy, peace, long-suffering, graciousness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control; ---

Against such things as these [there is no law.

And [they who are of Christ Jesus] have crucified [the flesh], with its susceptibilities and covetings.

If we live by Spirit [By Spirit] let us also walk.

Brethren! [if a man should even be overtaken in any fault]

Ye, the spiritual [be restoring such a one, in a spirit of meekness,]

Looking to thyself, lest [even thou] be put to the test.

One another’s burdens [be ye bearing,]
And [also] fill up the law of the Christ.

For [if anyone thinketh he is something, when he is nothing] he deceiveth himself;

But [his own work] let each one [be putting to the proof,---
And [then, for himself alone] the matter of boasting, shall he have,
And not for some other,

For [each one] his own proper load shall bear:---

Howbeit, let him who is being orally instructed in the word, have fellowship with him that is so instructing him, [in all] good things.

Be not deceiving yourselves!
[God] is not to be mocked;
For [whosoever a man soweth] [the same] shall he also reap, ---

Because [he that soweth into his own flesh]

[Out of the flesh] shall reap corruption,---

Whereas [he that soweth into the Spirit]

And [in doing that which is honourable] let us not be fainthearted;
For [in due season] we shall reap, if we faint not.

Hence] then, [as we have opportunity] Let us be working what is good, towards all,---
But [especially] towards the family of the faith.

See! [with what large letters unto you] I have written, [with my own hand] ---

As many as are wishing to make a good show in flesh [The same] are compelling you to get circumcised,---

Only that [for the cross of Christ] they may not be suffering persecution!

For [not even they who are getting] circumscribed] are [themselves] observing [law], ---
But are wishing you’ to be circumcised, That [in your flesh] they may boast themselves.

With me] however,

Far be it! to be boasting,

Save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Whereby [unto me] a world hath been crucified,

And [I] unto a world; --

For neither [circumcision] is anything, nor uncircumcision, But a new’ creation b; ---

And [as many as] by this rule shall walk> Peace be upon them, and mercy,

And upon the Israel of God.4

For the rest>

Annoyances, unto me] let no one be offering; For [I] the brandmarks of Jesus, in my body] am bearing.

The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

EPHESIANS I. 1—23.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE

EPHESIANS.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through God’s will,
Unto the saints who are [in Ephesus] and faithful in Christ Jesus,—
2 Favour unto you, and peace,
From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.
3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,*
Who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing, in the heavenlies, in Christ,
4 According as he made choice of us, in him, before the founding of a world,
That we might be holy and blameless in his presence;
5 In love* marking us out beforehand unto sonship, through Jesus Christ, for himself,
According to the good pleasure of his will,
6 Unto the praise of the glory of his favour wherewith he favoured us in the Beloved One,—
7 In whom we have the redemption through his blood, the remission of our offences,*
According to the riches of his favour, which he made to superabound towards us;
8 In all wisdom and prudence* making known to us the sacred secret* of his will,*
According to his good pleasure which he purposed in him,—
9 For an administration of the fulness of the seasons> to reunite for himself (under one head) all things in the Christ, The things upon the heavens, And the things upon the earth, In him;
10 In whom also we were taken as an inheritance, According to the purpose of him who energiseth all things according to the counsel of his will,
11 That we should be for the praise of his glory—
12 We who had hoped beforehand in the Christ||,—
In whom ye also—
13 Hearing the word of the truth, the glad-message of your salvation,—
In whom also believing>—
Were sealed with the Spirit of the promise, the Holy [Spirit].*
14 Which* is an earnest of our inheritance,
Unto the redemption of the acquisition;—
15 Unto his glorious praise||.
16 [For this cause] I also—
Having heard of the faith on your part in the Lord Jesus, and that towards all the saints>;* 17 Cease not giving thanks in your behalf, Making mention in my prayers,*
That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory || would give you a Spirit of wisdom and understanding in gaining a personal knowledge of him,—
18 The eyes of your heart* having been enlightened', That ye may know—
What is the hope of his calling,
19 What the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints,*
And what the surpassing' greatness of his power unto us who believe,—
According to the energy of the grasp of his might| which he energised in the Christ, When he raised him from among the dead, And seated him at his right handk in the heavenlies, Over-above all principality, authority, and power, and lordship, and every name that is named, not only in this age, but also in the coming one, And did put [all things] in subjection beneath his feet. And gave him to be head over all things unto the assembly, Which indeed is his body The fulness of him who [the all things in all] is for himself filling up.

2 [Unto] you also—

Being dead, by your offences and sins, in which at one time ye walked. According to the age of the world, According to the prince of the authority of the air, of the spirit that now energiseth in the sons of disobedience, Among whom also we all had our behaviour, at one time, in the covetings of our flesh, doing the things desired by the flesh and the mind, And were children, by nature, of anger—even as the rest,—

4 But God, being rich in mercy,

By reason of the great love wherewith he loved us,

5 <Although we were dead by our offences> Gave us life together with the Christ,—

By favour ye have been saved,—

6 And raised us up together, And seated us together in the heavens,

In Christ:

7 That he might point out, in the oncoming ages, The surpassing riches of his favour in graciousness upon us,

In Christ Jesus;

8 For [by his favour] have ye been saved, through means of faith, And this [hath come to pass]—

Not from you, Of God the free-gift!

9 Not from works, lest anyone should boast.

10 His, in fact we are—his [workmanship],

Created in Christ Jesus upon a footing of good works,

Which God prepared beforehand, That therein we might walk.

11 Wherefore, keep in remembrance—

That at one time I, ye, the nations in flesh <Who are called Uncircumcision by the so-called Circumcision in flesh, made by hand>.

12 That ye were in that season,

Separate from Christ, Alienated from the citizenship of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, Having no hope And godless in the world;

13 But just now, in Christ Jesus,

Ye, who at one time were afar off

Were made nigh in the blood of the Christ;

14 He, in fact, is our peace—

Who made both one. And the enclosing middle-wall took down. The enmity, in his flesh—the law of commandments in decrees!—bringing to light;

That he might create in himself, into one man of new mould, Making peace.

And might fully reconcile them both, in one body, through means of the cross,—

Slaying the enmity thereby;—

And he announced the glad-message—

Of peace unto you, the far off. And peace unto them that were nigh;

Because through him we have our introduction—

In one Spirit, unto the Father.

19 Hence, then—

No longer are ye strangers and sojourners, But ye are fellow-citizens of the saints. And members of the household of God,—

Having been built up on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, There being the chief corner stone Jesus Christ himself—

In whom is an entire building, In process of being fitly joined together, Is growing into a holy shrine in the Lord; In whom ye also are being builded together Into a habitation of God in Spirit.

3 For this cause I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus in behalf of you the nations:—

If at least ye have heard of the administration of the favour of God which hath been given unto me for you,

[How that] by way of revelation was made known unto me the sacred secret,—

Even as I before wrote in brief,—

Respecting which ye can by reading perceive my discernment in the sacred secret of the Christ,—

Which in other generations had not been made known unto the sons of men, As it hath now been revealed by his holy apostles and prophets, in Spirit;—

That they who are of the nations should be joint heirs, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through means of the glad-message,— Of which I was made a minister, according to the free-gift of the favour of God which was given unto me, according to the energy of his power:

8 Unto me!—

The less than least of all saints

Was given this favour,

Unto the nations! to announce the glad-message of the untraceable riches of the Christ,

And to bring to light—What is the administration of the sacred secret, v. 9.

which had been hidden away from the ages in God, who did all things create:

10 In order that now, unto the principalities and the authorities in the heavens, might be made known, through means of the assembly, the manifold wisdom of God.—

11 According to a plan of the ages which he made in the anointed Jesus our Lord,—

12 In whom we have our freedom of speech and introduction* with assurance, through the faith of him:—

13 Wherefore I request, that there be no fainting in my tribulations in your behalf, The which is your glory:—

14 For [this] cause, I bow my knees unto the Father,—

15 From whom every' fatherhood in [the] heavens and upon the earth is named,—

16 In order that he may give unto you— According to his glorious riches:

17 That the Christ may dwell, through means of your faith, in your hearts, in love, Having become rooted and founded,

18 In order that ye may be mighty enough To grasp firmly, with all the saints,— What is the breadth and length and depth and height,

19 To get to know, also, the surpassing love of the Christ,— In whom we have our freedom of speech and introduction* with assurance, through the faith of him:—

20 Now <unto him who is able> to do [above all things], Exceeding abundantly above the things which we ask or conceive,— According to the power which doth energise itself within us,—

21 Unto him! be the glory, In the assembly And in Christ Jesus— Unto all the generations of the age of ages; Amen:——

4 I exhort you, therefore, <I, the prisoner in the Lord> To walk in a manner [worthy] of the calling wherewith ye were called;—

2 With all lowliness and meekness, With long suffering,

3 Giving diligence to keep— The oneness of the Spirit in the uniting-bond of peace,—

4 One' body, and one' spirit, even as ye were also called in one' hope of your calling,

5 One' Lord, one' faith, one' immersion,

6 One' God and Father of all— Who is over' all, and through' all, and in' all.

7 [To each one of you however, hath favour been given, According to the measure of the free-gift of the Christ;]

8 Wherefore he saith—

9 Now this. He ascended; what is it,— save— That he also descended* into the under parts of the earth?

10 Ho that descended || he || it is who also ascended over-above all the heavens, That he might fill all things;

11 And the earth gave— Some, indeed, to be apostles, And some, prophets, And some, evangelists, And some, shepherds and teachers,—

12 With a view to the fitting of the saints For the work of ministering, For an upbuilding of the body of the Christ;

13 Until we all advance— Into the oneness of the faith, and the personal knowledge of the Son of God, Into a man of full-growth, Into the measure of the stature of the fulness of the Christ;

14 That we may |no longer| be infants—Billow-tossed and shifted round with every wind of teaching,— In the craft of men, In knavery suited to the artifice of error;

15 But |pursuing truth:—

16 May |in love| grow into him in all things,— Who is the head,* Christ ↓;

17 Out of whom 4 all' the body— Fitly framing itself together, And connecting itself, Through means of every' joint of supply, By way of energising in the measure of each single part— Secureth the growing of the body, Unto an upbuilding of itself in love.*

18 This! therefore, am I saying and protesting in the Lord:—

19 That |no longer| ye walk even as |the nations| walk—

20 In the vanity of their minds, 18 Being darkened in their understanding, Alienated from the life of God— By reason of the ignorance that existeth within them, By reason of their hearts being turned into stone, 19 Who, indeed, having become past feeling| have delivered|| themse|lves| up, with wantonness, unto making a trade of all impurity with greed.

21 If, at least, it is ||him|| ye have heard, And in him! ye have been taught— Even as truth is' in Jesus,—

22 That ye were to strip off—as regardeth the

19 This! therefore, am I saying and protesting in the Lord:—

20 That |no longer| ye walk even as |the nations| walk—

21 If, at least, it is ||him|| ye have heard, And in him! ye have been taught— Even as truth is' in Jesus,—

22 That ye were to strip off—as regardeth the former behaviour—the old man, who corrupteth himself according to his deceitful covettings,
And were to be getting young again in the spirit of your mind,
And were to put on the man of new mould, Who after God hath been created in his truthful righteousness and lovingkindness.

Wherefore <stripping off what is false>
Be speaking truth each one with his neighbour,*
Because we are members one of another;
Be ye angry and not committing sin,d
Let not [the sun] be going down upon your angry mood,
Neither be giving place unto the adversary;
Let the stealer; no more steal, But rather let him be toiling,— Working with his * hands the thing that is good,
That he may have [wherewith] to be giving away to him that hath [need];
Let [no] putrid discourse; out of your mouth be going forth,
But if anything is good—suited to the needful upbuilding,—
That it may give benefit unto them that hear;
And be not grieving the Holy Spirit of God, Wherewith ye have been sealed unto a day of redemption #;
All bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and outcry, and profane speaking> let it be taken away from you, With all baselessness;
And be ye gracious one to another, tenderly affectionate, in favour forgiving one another—
Even as [God also, in Christ] hath in favour forgiven you Hàng
Become ye, therefore, imitators of God, as children beloved, And walk in love—
Let not the fruit of light be doing evil;
And be ye the children of light, walking in the light,
For this cause do not become foolish, but have discernment as to what is the will of the Lord;
And be not getting drunk with wine, in which is dissoluteness,
But be getting filled in Spirit:
Speaking to yourselves, with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs,* Singing, and striking the strings, with your heart unto the Lord;
Giving thanks, always, for all things, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ> Unto your God and Father*b;
Submitting yourselves one to another In reverence of Christ,—
Ye wives, unto your own husbands, [as unto the Lord], Because [a husband] is the head of his wife, As [the Christ also] is the head of the assembly, [He] being the saviour of the body,— Nevertheless <as [the assembly]] submitteh herself unto the Christ> [so] the wives, unto their husbands [in everything];
Ye husbands, be loving your wives, Even as [the Christ also] loved the

That [her] he might sanctify. Having purified [her] with the bath of water, in declaration,*

That [he] might present [unto himself] the assembly [all glorious], not having spot or wrinkle or any of such things, but that she should be holy and blameless;

Even as [the Christ] the assembly,
Because |members| are we of his body:—

||For this cause| will a man leave his father and his mother, and will cleave unto his wife, And they two| shall become| one flesh.\]

This sacred secret| is |great|,—

And ye fathers,* be not provoking your children to anger,
But be nourishing them up in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.\]

Ye servants,| be obedient unto them who |after the flesh| are your masters,
With fear and trembling,
In singleness of your heart, as unto the Christ;
Not by way of eye-service as manpleasers,
But as servants of Christ, doing the will of God,

||From the soul, \ with good will\ rendering service—
As unto the Lord, and not unto men;

Knowing that ||each one| <whatever he may do that is good> ||the same| shall he receive back from the Lord—Whether bond or free.

And ye masters,* |the same things| be doing towards them,
Forbearing your threat—
Knowing that ||both their' and your' Master| is in the heavens,
And [respect of persons] there is none |with him|.\]

<For the rest>
Be empowering yourselves in the Lord, and in the grasp of his might:

Put on the complete armour of God,
With a view to your having power to stand against the strategies of the adversary;

Because our * struggle is not against blood and flesh,
Against the principalities of this
Against the authorities darkness,
Against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavens.

||For this cause| take up the complete armour of God,
In order that ye may receive power to withstand in the evil day,
And <all things> having accomplished> to stand !

And shod your feet with the readiness of the glad-message of peace *;

||With all' prayer and supplication| praying in every season, in spirit,
And |thereunto| watching, with all perseverance and supplication,
For all the saints,—

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE PHILOPIANS.

1 Paul and Timothy,
Servants of Christ Jesus,—
Unto all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi,
With overseers and ministers:—
2 Favour unto you, and peace,
From God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ.
3 I am giving thanks unto my God, on occasion of all my remembrance of you,
At all times, in every supplication of mine, in behalfof you all!
With joy! my supplication! making,—
On account of your contribution unto the glad-message, from the first day until the present:
Being persuaded of this very thing—
That the who hath begun in you a good work will perfect it, until the day of Jesus Christ;
According as it is right in me to have this regard in behalf of you all,—
Because ye have had me in your hearts,
Both in my bonds and in the defence and confirmation of the glad-message,
All of you being joint partakers of my favour.
For God is my witness, how I long for you all, in the tender affections of Christ Jesus.
And this I pray,—
That your love may be yet more and more pre-eminent in personal knowledge and all perception,
To the end ye may be putting to the test the things that differ,
In order that ye may be incorrupt and may give no occasion of stumbling, unto the day of Christ,
Filled with that fruit of righteousness which is through Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

Howbeit, I am minded, brethren, that ye should be getting to know:
That the things which relate unto myself, rather, unto an advancement of the glad-message have fallen out,
So that my bonds have become manifest in Christ, in the whole palace, and unto all the rest,—
And so that the most of the brethren in the Lord, assured by my bonds, are becoming more abundantly bold to be fearlessly speaking the word of God:—
Some indeed, by reason of envy and strife—
Some however, by reason of good will—
Are proclaiming the Christ;—
These indeed, out of love, Knowing that for the defence of the glad-message I am set;
But those out of faction are declaring the Christ, Not purely—supposing to rouse up tribulation with my bonds.
What then?
That in any way <Whether in pretext, or in truth> Christ is declared
And in this I rejoice—Yea, and will rejoice!
For I know that this shall turn unto me for salvation—
Through your supplication, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ,—
According to my eager outlook and hope, that in nothing shall I be put to shame,
But ||with all' freedom of speech II| as always, now also|| shall Christ be magnified in my body, Whether through means of life, or of death.

21 For ||unto me||—
|Living| is Christ,
And ||dying| gain.
22 But ||if living [is Christ]||: This, unto me|| is a fruit of work, —
And <what I shall choose>| I make not known:
23 I am held in constraint, however, by reason of the two,—
Having [the coveting] |to be released,| and to be |with Christ,|
For it were far' better !
24 But ||to abide still in the flesh|| is more needful for your sake ;
25 And <of this| being assured| I know that I shall abide,— yea abide with you all', for your' advancement, and the joy of your faith ;
26 In order that ||your matter of boasting|| may be more abundant in Christ Jesus, regarding me, through my own' presence again' with you.
27 Only< in a manner worthy of the glad-message of the Christ> be using your citizenship;
In order that—
<Whether coming and seeing you, or being absent> —
I may hear of the things which concern you,—
That ye are standing fast in one' spirit, |With one' soul| joining for the combat along with the faith of the glad-message ;
28 And not being affrighted in anything by the opposers,—
||The which|| is ||unto them| a token of destruction, although of your' salvation, And this from God ;
29 Because ||unto you|| hath it been given as a favour, ||in behalf of Christ||
Not only, on him, to believe,
But also, in his behalf, to suffer:—
30 Having [the same' contest] which ye have seen in me, and now hear to be in me.
2 <If there be, therefore, any encouragement in Christ,
If any comfort of love,
If any fellowship of spirit,
If any tender affections and compassions>
3 Fill ye up my' joy—
That ||the same thing|| ye esteem,
||The same' love|| possessing,
<Joined in soul > ||the one* thing|| esteem-ing,—
2 Nothing by way of faction, Nothing by way of vain-glory,—

202 PHILIPPIANS I. 21—30; II. 1—18.

But <in lowliness of mind> accounting one another| superior to yourselves, —
4 Not ||to your own things|| severally looking,*
But ||to the things of others|| severally :—
5 ||The same thing|| esteem [in yourselves which also ||in Christ Jesus| ye esteem], —
6 Who <in form of God> ||subsisting> Not ||isa thing to be seized|| accounted the being equal with God, But ||himself|| emptied,
Taking ||in a servant's form,|
Coming to be ||in men's likeness||;
8 And <in fashion> being found |as a man> Humbled himself,
Becoming obedient as far as death,
Yes, ||death upon a cross |||
9 Wherefore also ||God|| uplifted him far on high,
And favoured him with the name which is above every' name,—
10 In order that in the name of Jesus every' knee might bow—
Of beings in heaven, and on earth, and underground,—
11 And ||every tongue|| might openly confess—
That Jesus Christ is ||Lord|| Unto the glory of God the Father.
12 So, then, my beloved—
<Even as ye have always' obeyed, Not ||in my presence only. But ||now|| much more|| in my absence> ||With fear and trembling|| your' salvation| be working out ;
13 For it is ||God|| who energiseth within you, both the desiring and the energising, is behalf of his good pleasure;
14 ||All things: be doing, apart from murmurings and disputings ;
15 In order that ye may become faultless and inviolate,*
Children of God, blameless amidst a crooked and perverted generation, |
Amongst whom ye appear as luminaries in the world,
16 ||A word of life|| holding forth,—
As a matter of boasting unto me, for the day of Christ,—
That ||not in vain|| I ran,
Nor ||in vain|| I toiled :—
17 Nay : if I am even to be poured out as a drink-offering, upon the sacrifice and public ministry of your faith>
I rejoice, yea rejoice together with you all',— also rejoice, yea rejoice together with me.

19 I am hoping, however, in the Lord Jesus—

Timothy, shortly to send unto you,

In order that I may be of cheerful soul, when I have ascertained the things that concern you.

For no one have I, of equal soul, Who

20 For they all their own things do seek,

Not the things of Christ Jesus;

But of the proof of him shall be taking note,—

That under child [with father]—

21 For they all theirown things do seek,

Not the things of Christ Jesus;

But of the proof of him shall be taking note,—

That under child [with father]—

22 But indeed, therefore, am I hoping to send—

As soon as I can look off from the things that concern myself—

23 Him; indeed, therefore, am I hoping to send—

As soon as I can look off from the things that concern myself—

24 I am assured, however, in the Lord,—

That I shall shortly come.

25 Nevertheless have I accountedit—

Kaphroditus, my brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier.

But your apostle and public minister to my need>

To send unto you;

Since he hath been longing to see you all,

And hath been in great distress, because ye had heard he was sick;—

And, in fact, he was sick, nigh unto death;

But God had mercy on him,—

And not on him only,

But [on me also] lest sorrow upon sorrow I should have.

The more promptly therefore, have I sent him,

That ye may rejoice, and I the less sorrowful may be.

Be giving him welcome, therefore, in the Lord, with all joy;

And such as he in honour be holding,—

Because for the sake of the work of the Lord unto death he drew nigh,

Running hazard with his life.

That he might fill up your lack of the public service towards me.

3 For the rest, my brethren—Rejoice in the Lord.

To be writing the same things unto you, To me is not irksome, while for you it is safe:—

2 Beware of the dogs,

Beware of mischievous' workers,

Beware of the mutilation;

3 For we are the circumcision, who [In the Spirit of God] are doing divine service,

And are boasting in Christ Jesus,

And [not in flesh] having confidence,—

Although, indeed, I might have confidence even in flesh.

<If any other thinketh to have confidence in flesh>

[ I more:--]

[Circumcised] the eighth day,

Of the race of Israel,

Of the tribe of Benjamin,

A Hebrew of Hebrews,—

[Regarding law] a Pharisee,

6 [Regarding zeal] persecuting the assembly,

[Regarding the righteousness that is in law having become blameless.

7 But the same I have accounted for the Christ's sake loss;

Because of the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord,

For the sake of whom the loss of all things I have suffered,

And do account them refuse

In order that Christ I may win, and be found in him— Not having a righteousness of my own, That which is by law, But that which is through faith in Christ, The righteousness which is [of God] upon my faith,—

To get to know him, And the power of his resurrection and fellowship of his sufferings, Becoming conformed unto his death,—

If by any means I may advance to the earlier resurrection, which is from among the dead:

12 Not that I have already received, Or have already reached perfection,

But I am pressing on—

If I may even lay hold of that for which I have also been laid hold of by Christ Jesus:

Brethren! [I] as to myself reckon that I have not yet laid hold;

One thing, however—

With the goal in view: I press on For the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus.

15 <As many, therefore, as are full-grown> Let this be our resolve;

And if somewhat differently ye are resolved;

This also shall God unto you reveal.

Even as ye have [us] for an example.¹

Of whom I have often been telling you, and [now], even weeping,—

The enemies of the cross of the Christ;

Whose [end] is destruction, Whose [God] is the belly, And [whose] [glory] is in their shame, Who [upon the earthly things] are resolved.

19 For [our] citizenship [in the heavens] hath its rise;—

Wherefore [a Saviour also] do we ardently await,—

'The Lord Jesus Christ,'—

Who will transfigure our humbled body, Into conformity with his glorified body, According to the energy wherewith he is able even to subdue unto himself all things.

20 For therefore my brethren, beloved and longed for. my joy and crown, —

Thus I stand fast in the Lord, beloved.

On the same thing to be resolved in the Lord:—

Yea! I request thee, true yokefellow, Be thou helping together with these women, — Who indeed. yet the joyful message have maintained the combat with me, Along with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow-workers, [Whose names] are in the book of life.¹

Thus I stand fast in the Lord, beloved.

² Rejoice in the Lord always: Again I will say— Rejoice!

6 Let [your consideration] be known unto all men.

7 The Lord is near:—

For nothing be anxious, But [in everything] [by your prayer and supplication with thanksgiving] Let [your petitions] be made known unto God;

And [the peace of God, which riseth above every mind] shall guard your hearts and your thoughts, in Christ Jesus.

If there be any virtue, and if any praise [The same] be taking into account;

9 [The things which ye have both learned as accepted, and heard, and seen in me] [The same] be practices:—

And [the God of peace] shall be with you.

10 Howbeit I have been made to rejoice in the Lord greatly—

That [now, at length] ye have flourished in your care for me,—

Although, indeed, ye were' caring, but lacked opportunity.

11 Not that [as to coming short] I am speaking,

For [I] have learned [In whatsoever circumstances I am] to be independent;²

12 I know [what it is] even to be kept low, And I know [what it is] to have more than enough,—

In every way, and in all things! have I been let into the secret—

Both to be well fed, And to be hungering. Both to have more than enough, And to be coming short:

13 I have might [for all things] in him that empowereth me.

14 Nevertheless nobly! have ye done, in taking fellowship with me in my tribulation.

15 Ye know, moreover, [even ye, Philippians,—

That [in the beginning of the glad-message, When I went forth from Macedonia] Not [as much as one assembly] with me, had fellowship—in the matter of giving and receiving—save ye alone;—

16 That [even in Thessalonica, both once and again] unto my need: ye sent:—

17 Not that I seek after the gift, But I seek after the fruit that is to abound unto your account.

18 But I have all things in full, and have more than enough, I am filled, having welcomed from Epaphroditus the things that came from you.—

A fragrance of sweet smell, An acceptable sacrifice, Well pleasing unto God.

19 And [my God] will fill up your every need. According to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus.

20 Now unto our God and Father! be the glory Unto the ages of ages. Amen!

21 Salute ye every saint in Christ Jesus.
The brethren who are with me [salute you].

22 All the saints salute you, but especially the who are of Caesar's household.

THE EPISODE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE

COLOSSIANS.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, And Timothy my brother, —

2 Unto the holy and faithful brethren in Christ that are in Colosse, Favour unto you, and peace, from our God and Father.

3 We are giving thanks unto God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 Having heard of your faith in Christ Jesus And of the love which ye have unto all the saints,—

5 Because of the hope that is lying by for you in the heavens. Of which ye heard before, in the word of the truth of the glad-message, when it presented itself unto you; Even as all the world also it is bearing fruit and growing, even as also among you, From the day when ye heard, and came personally to know the favour of God in truth, Even as ye learned from Ephphra, our beloved fellow-servant, Who is faithful in our behalf, as a minister of the Christ, Who also hath made evident unto us your love in spirit.

6 For this cause we also; From the day when we heard of you Cease not in your behalf praying and asking That ye may be filled unto the personal knowledge of his will. In all spiritual wisdom and discernment, So as to walk worthily of the Lord, unto all pleasing.

7 In every good work bearing fruit, And growing in the personal knowledge of God, With all power being empowered, According to the grasp of his glory. Unto all endurance and longsuffering with joy,

8 Giving thanks unto the Father that hath made you sufficient for your share in the inheritance of the saints in the light,

10 In whom we have our redemption — the remission of our sins,—

11 Who is an image of the unseen God,

12 Firstborn of all creation, —

13 Because in him were created all things in the heavens and upon the earth. The things seen and the things unseen, Whether thrones or lordships or principalities or authorities,—They all through him and for him have been created, And he is before all. And they all in him hold together;

14 And he is the head of the body, the assembly, Who is the beginning. Firstborn from among the dead. In order that he might become in all things pre-eminent;—

15 Because in him was all the fulness well pleased to dwell,

16 And through him fully to reconcile all things unto him, Making peace through the blood of his cross,—

17 Through him—Whether the things upon the earth or the things in the heavens;

18 And you <Who at one time were estranged and enemies in your mind in your wicked works> Yet hath he fully reconciled,

19 In his body of flesh, through means of his death,

20 To present you holy and blameless and unaccusable before him,—

21 If, at least, ye are abiding still in the faith, founded and firm, and not to be moved away from the hope of the glad-message which ye have heard, Which hath been proclaimed in all creation which is under heaven,—Of which I Paul have become minister.

22 Now I am rejoicing in the sufferings on your behalf,

23 Eph. i. 7. • Eph. iii. 7.

* Or (WH): "have had." • Or (WH): "have ye been."
And am filling up the things that lack of the tribulations of the Christ, in my flesh,
In behalf of his body, Which is the assembly,
Of which I have become minister,
According to the administration of God which hath been given unto me to you-ward,
To fill up the word of God,
The sacred secret which had been hidden away from the ages and from the generations.
But now hath been made manifest unto his saints— Unto whom God hath been pleased to make known what is the glorious’ wealth of this sacred secret among the nations, Which is Christ in you, the hope of the glory,—
Whom we are declaring,
Admonishing every man,
And teaching every man, in all wisdom,
In order that we may present every man complete in Christ;
Unto which I am even toiling.
Contending according to his energy which is energising itself in me with power.

For I desire you to know, how great a contest I am having—in behalf of you, And of those in Laodicca, And as many as have not seen my face in the flesh;
In order that their hearts may be encouraged, Being knit together in love.
Contending according to his energy which is energising itself in me with power.

This I say, in order that no one may be reasoning aside with plausible discourse;
For though, indeed, in the flesh I am absent,
Yet in the spirit with you I am—
Rejoicing, and beholding your order and the solid firmness of your Christ-ward faith.

As therefore ye have accepted the Anointed Jesus as your Lord—
In him be walking,—
Rooted, and being built up, in him,
And making yourselves sure in your faith,
Even as ye have been taught,—
Surpassing therein with thanksgiving.

Be taking heed, lest there shall be anyone leading you off as a spoil,
Through means of their philosophy, and an empty deceit,—

According to the instruction of men, According to the first principles of the world,—
And not according to Christ:
Because in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily,
And ye are filled full,—
[Who] is the head of all’ principality and authority,
[In whom] ye have also been circumcised with a circumcision not done by hand, In the despoothing of the body of flesh, In the circumcision of the Christ,—
Having been buried together with him is your immersion,
Wherein also ye have been raised together,
Through your faith in the energising of God—Who raised him from among the dead.

And as for you—
Who were dead by your offences and by the uncircumcision of your flesh>
He hath brought you to life together with him,—
Having in favour forgiven us all our offences,
Having blotted out the handwriting against us by the decrees,—
Which was hostile to us,—
And hath taken away the same out of the midst,
Nailing it up to the cross:

[spoiling the principalities and the authorities>
He made of them an open example,
Celebrating a triumph over them thereby.

Let no one, therefore, be judging you—
In eating and in drinking,
Or in respect of feast, or new moon, or sabbath,—
Which are a shadow of the things to come,
Whereas the body is of the Christ

Let no one against you be arbitrating however wishful,—
In respect of lowliness of mind, and of a religious observance of the messengers:
Upon what things he hath seen taking his stand,
In vain puffed up by his carnal mind,—
And not holding fast the head:
[From which all the body>
<Through means of its joints and unisint bands receiving supply, and connecting itself together>
Growth with the growth of God.

If ye have died, together with Christ, from the first principles of the world>
Why as though alive in the world, are ye submitting to decrees,—

* Or (WH): “who.”
* Or (WH): “Surpassing in thanksgiving.”
* Or: “Mystery.”
* Or: “Therein.”
* Or: “Out of (or from)” whom.

* Or: “Out of (or from)” whom.
21 Do not handle, nor taste, nor touch;—
According to the commandments and teachings of men?
22 Which things are all for decay in the using up:—
The which things, indeed, though they have an appearance of wisdom, in self-devised religious observance, and lowliness of mind, [and] ill-treatment of body>
Are in no honourable way; b unto a satisfying of the flesh.

3 <If, therefore, ye have been raised together with the Christ>
||The things on high will be seeking.
Where [the Christ] is— [On the right hand of God] sitting; 2
||The things on high hold in esteem. Not the things upon the earth:
For ye have died, and [your life] is hid, together with the Christ, in God,—
4 <As soon as [the Christ] shall be made manifest— [Our life]> 3
||Then] ye also, together with him, shall be made manifest in glory;
Make dead, therefore, your members that are on the earth—
As regardeth fornication, impurity, passion, base coveting, and greed,— which is idolatry,—
6 On account of which things cometh the anger of God,—
Wherein ye also walked, at one time, when ye were living in these things;
7 But now do ye also put them all away,—Anger, wrath, baseness, defamation, shameful out of your mouth;
Be not guilty of falsehood one to another:—
Having stripped off the old man, together with his practices,
And having put on the new—
Who is being moulded afresh unto personal knowledge, After the image of him that hath created him,—
8 Wherein there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, foreigner, Scythian, bond, free,—But [all things in all] [Christ]; 4
9 Put on, therefore, [as men chosen of God, holy and beloved> 5
Tender affections of compassion, graciousness, lowliness of mind, meekness, long-suffering,
10 Bearing one with another, and in favour forgiving one another—if any [against any] have a complaint,—
According as [the Lord] is in favour forgave you > [so] also [ye];

14 And [over*] all these things [||love],
Which is a uniting-bond of completeness;
15 And let [the peace of Christ] act as umpire in your hearts,—
Unto which ye have been called in [one] body 6
And be [thankful];
16 Let [the word of the Christ] dwell within you richly,—
In all wisdom teaching and admonishing one another, with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs,
With gratitude; raising song with your hearts unto God:
17 <And whatsoever ye may be doing, in word, or in work>—
[All things] [do] in the name of the Lord Jesus,
Giving thanks unto the Divine Father through him:—
18 Ye wives! be submitting yourselves unto your husbands, as is becoming in the Lord;
19 Ye husbands! be loving your wives, and be not embittered against them;
20 Ye children! be obedient unto your parents in all things, for [this] is [well pleasing] in the Lord;
21 Ye fathers! be not irritating your children, lest they be disheartened;
22 Ye servants! be obedient in all things unto them who [according to the flesh] are your masters,—
Not with eye-service, as man-pleasers. But with singleness of heart, revering the Lord,—
23 <Whatsoever ye may be doing>— [From the soul] will be working at it, As unto the Lord, and not unto men,—
Knowing that [from the Lord] ye shall duly receive the recompense of the inheritance,— [Unto the Lord Christ] are ye in service; 25 For [he that acteth unrighteously] shall get back what he had unrighteously done, and there is no respect of persons;
24 Ye masters! [that which is just and equitable] unto your servants be rendering,
Knowing that [ye also] have a Master in heaven.
25 ||Unto prayer|| be devoting yourselves,
Watching therein with thanking*; 3
3 Praying, at the same time, [for us also],—
That [God] would open unto us a door for the word, So that we may speak the sacred secret*.
THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE THESALONIANS.

1 Paul and Silvanus and Timothy,—
Unto the assembly of Thessalonians in God
our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,—
Favour unto you, and peace!

2 We are giving thanks* unto God continually, Concerning you all* making mention* in our prayers,

3 Unceasingly remembering—
Your work of faith
And labour of love
And endurance of hope |of our Lord Jesus
Christ|,
Before our God and Father:

4 Knowing, brethren beloved by God, |your election|,—

5 How that |our glad-message|| came not unto you |in word only|,
But also in power,
And in Holy Spirit,
And in much assurance,—
Even as ye know what manner of men we became unto you, for your sake;

6 And |ye|| became |imitators* of us| |and of the Lord||,
Giving welcome unto the word. In much tribulation, |With joy of Holy Spirit;
So that ye became an ensample* unto all who were coming to the faith, in Macedonia and in Achaia:

8 From you in fact, hath sounded forth the word of the Lord—
Not only' in Macedonia and in Achaia>
But in every place* your faith which is toward God hath gone forth,
So that no need have we to be saying anything;

9 For they themselves concerning us do tell—
What manner of entrance we had unto you,
And how ye turned unto God from the idols—
To be serving a living and true God,
And awaiting his Son out of the heavens—
Whom he raised from among the dead,—
Jesus:
Who is to rescue us out of the anger that is coming.

10 For yourselves we know, brethren, our entrance which was unto you—that it hath not proved void;
But though we had previously suffered, and been insulted, even as ye know, in Philippi>
We waxed bold in our God to speak unto you the glad-message of God with much conflict.

11 Even as ye know how unto each one of you we were as a father unto his own children,
Consoling you, and soothing, and calling to witness,—
To the end ye might be walking in a manner worthy* of God, who is calling you unto his own' kingdom and glory.b

12 And for this cause we are also giving thanks unto God unceasingly, That when ye received a spoken word from us—which was God’s> Ye welcomed it—
Not as a human word,
But even as it truly is a divine word,—
Which is also inwardly working itself in you who believe,

14 For ye became imitators, brethren, of the assemblies of God which are in Judaea, in Christ Jesus,
In that the same things ye also suffered by your own fellow-countrymen, even as they also by the Jews:—

15 Who have both slain the Lord Jesus—
And the prophets, And unto God are displeasing, And unto all men are contrary,—

16 Hindering us from speaking unto the nations that they might be saved;
To the filling up of their own sins* continually;
But anger hath overtaken them at length.

17 Now we brethren having been bereaved away from you, for the season of an hour,—[in presence, not in heart]>
Gave more abundant diligence [your face] to behold [with much' longing];

18 Wherefore we desired to come unto you—
Even I, Paul, both once and again—
And Satan thwarted us.
For what shall be our hope, or joy, or crown of boasting? Shall not even ye, before our Lord Jesus, in his Presence?*

19 Ye in fact, are our glory and joy.

3 Wherefore <having no longer concealing our anxiety> We were well-pleased to be left in Athens alone,
And sent Timothy—
Our brother, and God’s minister in the glad-message of the Christ—
That he might confirm and console you over your faith,
That no one might be shrinking back in these tribulations.
For ye yourselves know, that hereunto are we appointed;
For even when we were with you we told you beforehand—
We are destined to suffer tribulation!
Even as it also came to pass, and ye know.

Col. i. 10; Eph. iv. 1; 2 Th. i. 11. 2 Th. i. 11. Th. i. 11. 2 Th. i. 11. 2 Th. i. 11.
For this cause I also, no longer concealing my anxiety,
Sent, that I might get to know your faith,
Lest by any means he that tempteth should have tempted you,
And in vain should have been our toil.

But just now Timothy came unto us, from you,
And brought us good tidings of your faith and love,—
And that ye have good remembrance of us,
|Continually longing to see us— even as we also to see you.'

Therefore, indeed he that disregardeth—
It is not a man he disregardeth, but God—
Who giveth his Holy Spirit unto you.

But concerning brotherly love—
No need have ye, that we be writing unto you;
For ye yourselves are God-taught to the loving of one another;—
And, in essence, ye are doing it unto all the brethren who are in the whole of Macedonia;—
But we exhort you, brethren, to abound still more,
And to be ambitious to be quiet, b
And to be attending to your own affairs,
And to be working with your hands,—
Even as unto you we gave charge—
That ye should walk reputedly toward those without,
And of no one have need.

But we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren,
Concerning them who are falling asleep,—
Lest ye be sorrowing, even as the rest also, who are without hope a;

For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again—
So also will God bring forth with him, them who have fallen asleep through Jesus;

For this unto you do we say, by a word of the Lord,—
That we, the living who are left unto the Presence * of the Lord
Shall in nowise get before them who have fallen asleep;

Because the Lord himself—
With a word of command,
With a chief-messenger’s voice,
And with a trumpet of God>
Shall descend from heaven,—
And the dead in Christ shall rise first,
After that we, the living who are left
Together with them shall be caught away, in clouds, to meet the Lord in the air;—
And thus, evermore, with the Lord shall we be!

So then, be consoling one another with these words.

But concerning the times and the seasons, brethren,—ye have no need that anything be written;
For ye yourselves perfectly well know—
That the day of the Lord shall as a thief in the night | so cometh;
As soon as they begin to say—Peace! and safety!:

Even as we before told you, and solemnly called you to witness.

For God did not call us, with a permission of impurity, but in sanctification.£

1 Then|||suddenly, upon them| eometh destruction,—
Just as the birth-throe unto her that is with child,—
And in nowise shall they escape.
4 But ||ye, brethren|| are not in darkness, that
||the day|| upon you, as upon thieves| should lay hold ;
5 For ||all' ye|| are | sons of light |, and sons of day,—
We are not of night, nor of darkness:
6 Hence, then, let us not be sleeping |as the
rest|,
But let us watch and be sober :—
7 For ||they that sleep|| |by night| do
sleep,
And ||they that drink|| |by night| do
drink ;—
8 But ||we|| |being of the day'| let us be sober,—
Putting on a breastplate of faith and love,
And ||for helmet|| the hope of salvation.*
9 Because God did not appoint us unto anger,
But unto acquiring salvation through our Lord Jesus [Christ]:—
10 Who died for us, in order that <Whether we be watching or sleeping>
|Together with him | we should live.
11 Wherefore be consoling one another, and building up, each the other,—
||Even as ye are also doing|.
12 Now we request you, brethren,—
To know them who are toiling among you, and presiding over you, in the Lord, and admonishing you ;
13 And to hold them in very high esteem, in love,
||for their work's sake|.
* Is. lx. 17.

14 But we exhort you, brethren—
Admonish the disorderly,
Soothe them of little soul,
Help the weak,
Be longsuffering towards all :
15 See that none |evil for evil, unto any| do render ;
But ||evermore, what is good|| be pursuing,
|towards one another, and towards all|;
16 |Evermore| rejoice,
17 |Unceasingly| pray,
18 |In everything| give thanks,—
For ||this|| is a thing willed of God,
Christ Jesus, towards you :—
19 ||The Spirit|| do not quench,
20 ||Prophecyings|| do not despise,
21 ||But|| ||all things|| put to the proof—
||What is comely|| hold ye fast :—
22 ||From every' form of wickedness|| abstain.*
23 But ||the God of peace himself|| hallow you completely,
And ||entire|| might your' spirit, and soul,
and body,—
||So as to be|| unblameable in the Presenceb of our Lord Jesus Christ,—
Be preserved !
24 ||Faithful|| is he that is calling you,—
|Who |also will perform|.
25 Brethren! be praying for us [also].*b
26 Salute all the brethren with a holy kiss.
27 I adjure you, by the Lord, that the letter be read unto all' the brethren *!
28 ||The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ|| be with you.

1 Paul and Silvanus and Timothy—
Unto the assembly of Thessalonians, in God
our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,—
2 Favour unto you, and peace, from God [our] Father and Lord Jesus Christ.
3 We are bound |to be giving thanks|* unto God, continually, concerning you, brethren, even
as it is |meet| ;
* Chap. ii. 13; Eph. i. 16; Ph. i. 8; Col. i. 8; 1 Th. i. 2.

Because your faith growth exceedingly,
And the love of each one of you all' one to another abundeth,
4 So that ||we ourselves|| in you are boasting, in the assemblies of God,
Over your endurance and faith in all' your persecutions and tribulations which ye are sustaining :—
5 A proof of the righteous' judgment of God,
To the end ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, in behalf of which ye are also suffering:—

If, at least, it is a righteous thing with God
To recompense [affliction] unto them that afflict you,
And unto you that are afflicted | release, with us,—

By the revealing of the Lord Jesus from heaven,
With his messengers of power.

In a fiery flame;
Holding forth vengeance—
Against them that refuse to know God,
And them who decline to hearken unto the glad-message of our Lord Jesus,—

Who, indeed, a penalty shall pay—
Age-abiding destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might—

Whensoever he shall come,
To be made all-glorious in his saints,
And to be marvelled at in all who believed,—

Because our witness unto you was believed,—
In that day.

Unto which end, we are also praying continually for you,
That our God may count you worthy of your calling.
And fulfill every good-pleasure of goodness and work of faith [with power];

That the name of our Lord Jesus may be made all-glorious in you, and to be marvelling at in all who believed,—
Because our witness unto you was believed,—

In that day.

Remember ye not, that while I was yet with you I these very things I was telling you:

And what now restraineth ye know.
To the end he may be revealed in his own fitting time;

For the secret of lawlessness already is inwardly working itself,—
| Only | until | he that restraineth at present shall be gone | out of the midst ; |

And then shall be revealed the lawless one,—
Whom the Lord shall with all the Spirit of his mouth,
And paralyse with the forthshining of his Presence:

Whose presence shall be according to an inworking of Satan,
With all manner of mighty work and signs and wonders of falsehood,

And with all manner of deceit of unrighteousness [in them who are destroying themselves],
Because the love of the truth they did not welcome, that they might be saved:—

And for this cause: God sendeth them an inworking of error,
To the end they should believe in the falsehood,—

In order that all should be judged
Who would not believe in the truth,
But were well-pleased with the unrighteousness.

But we request you, brethren,—
In behalf of the Presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,
And our gathering together unto him,—

That ye be not quickly tossed from your mind, nor be put in alarm,—
Either by spirit, or by discourse, or by letter as by us,—

As that the day of the Lord hath set in:
That no one may cheat you in any one respect.
Because [that day will not set in]:—
Except the revolt come first.
And there be revealed
The man of lawlessness,
The son of destruction,
* The one who opposeth and exalteth himself on high
Against every one called God,
Or an object of worship;
So that he within the sanctuary of God shall take his seat:—

Showeth himself forth, that he is God:—

* Ps. lxxix. 7; Ixvili. 36 f; Eze. xxvii. 2.
* Dan. xi. 36 f; Eze. xxvii. 2.

For the rest: brethren, be praying for us,—
That the word of the Lord may be running, and gaining glory,
According as it did even with you:

* Is. ii. 10 f, 19, 21.
* Is. xlv. 5.

And that we may be rescued from the presuming and wicked men; For not all hold the faith.

Faithful is the Lord, who will confirm you, and guard you from the wicked one: But may the Lord guide your hearts into the love of God, and into the endurance of the Christ.

Howbeit, we charge you, brethren,—That in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ ye be withdrawing yourselves from every brother—Who in a disorderly way doth walk, and not according to the instruction which ye received from us.

For ye yourselves, know how needful it is to be imitating us, in that we were not disorderly among you. Nor as a free-gift did eat bread from anyone, But with toil and hardship, night and day, working.—That we might not burden any of you;—Not because we have not authority, But that ourselves, as an example we might hold forth unto you,—To the end ye might be imitating us.

For when we were with you we gave in charge unto you,—That if any will not work neither let him eat! We hear, in fact, of some who are walking among you in a disorderly way, working yet too busily working!

Now such as these we charge and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ,—That with quietness working—Their own bread they be eating. But ye brethren, Be not weary in well-doing;—And if anyone be not giving ear unto our word through means of this letter> On this one set a mark—Not to be mixing yourselves up with him,— That he may be reproved; And not as an enemy be esteeming him, But be admonishing him as a brother.

But the Lord of peace himself give you peace, Always in every way. The Lord be with you all.

The salutation of Paul—With my own hand, Thus I write.

The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus—By injunction of God our Saviour and Christ Jesus our hope,— Unto Timothy, my true child in faith: Favour, mercy, peace, From God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Even as I exhorted thee to remain in Ephesus, when I was journeying into Macedonia, That thou mightest charge some—Not to be teaching otherwise, Nor yet to be giving heed to stories and endless genealogies,—

The which bring arguings, rather than that stewardship of God which is with faith;—

Now the end of the charge is love—Out of a pure heart, And a good conscience, And faith unfeigned,—

Which some, missing have turned them aside unto idle talk, Desiring to be law-teachers,—Not understanding, either what they say or whereof they confidently affirm.

Now we know that excellent is the law, if one put it to a lawful use:
Knowing this—
That ||to a righteous man ||law doth not apply,
But to the lawless and insubordinate, un-godly and sinful, irreligious* and profane, smithers of fathers and smitters of mothers, murderers, 10 fornicators, sodomites, man-stainers, liars, false-swearers,—
And if anything else ||unto the healthtful teaching|| is opposed;—
According to the glad-message* of the glory of the happy’ God, with which entrusted am ||I||.c
||Grateful am I unto him that empowered me,
||Christ Jesus our Lord;
In that ||faithful he accounted me,
Putting me into ministry,— Though formerly a defamer, and persecutor, and insulter*;
Nevertheless mercy was shown me, because ||without knowledge|| I acted,
||in unbeliev||:
Yet exceeding abundant was the favour of our Lord, with faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.
||Faithful|| the saying! and ||of all’ acceptance|| worthy,—
That ||Christ Jesus; came into the world
||sinners|| to save:
Of whom ||the chief|| am ||I||—;
Nevertheless ||on this account|| was mercy shown me,—
That ||in me, the chief|| Christ Jesus t might shew forth his entire long-suffering,
For an ensample of them about' to believe on him unto life age-abiding.
Now ||unto the King of the ages,—
Incorruptible', invisible', alone' God> s
Be honour and glory, unto the ages of ages,h
Amen!
||This' charge|| I commit unto thee, child
Timothy,
According to the prophecies 1 ||running before
on thee||,
In order that thou mightest war, with them,
the noble warfare,
Holding faith and a good’ conscience,—
Which some ||thrusting from them|| ||Concerning their faith|| have made shipwreck;—
Of whom are Hymenaeus and Alexander;
Whom I have delivered unto Satan,†
That they may be taught by discipline* not to be defaming.

made—

givings,

ready to wound, But considerate, averse to contention, not fond of money, 45) Over his own house] presiding well. Having children in submission, with all dignity; 5 Whereas [if anyone] over his own house] cannot [preside]; How [of an assembly of God] shall he take care?
Not a new convert, Least [being belied: into the sentence of the adversary] he fall; 6 It is useful, moreover, to have [an honoured testimony also] from them who are without, Least [unto reproach] he fall, and the snare of the adversary. 7 Ministers] in the same way—Dignified, not double-tongued, not [too much wine] given, not greedy of base gain; Holding the sacred secret b of the faith in a pure conscience; 8 But let these also be proved first, Then let them be ministering, being [unaccusible]; 9 Wives] in the same way—Dignified, not given to intrigue, sober, faithful in all things; 10 Let [ministers] be husbands of [one wife], Over children] presiding well, and over their own houses; 11 For [they who have ministered well] a good degree for themselves are acquiring, and great freedom of speech in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

14 These things] unto thee] I am writing, Hoping to come [unto thee] shortly,— But [if I should tarry]— That thou mayest know— How it behoveth [in a house of God] to behave oneself,— The which] is an assembly d of a Living God, A pillar and basement of the truth;— And confessedly great, is the sacred secret b of godliness,— Who was made manifest in flesh, Was declared righteous in spirit, Was made visible unto messengers, Was proclaimed among nations, Was believed on in the world, Was taken up in glory. c

4 Howbeit [the Spirit] expressly saith— That [in later seasons] some will revolt from the faith, Giving heed unto seducing spirits, And unto teachings of demons—2 in hypocrisy] speaking falsehood, [Of demons] cautioned in their own conscience,— Forbidding to marry, [Commanding] to abstain from foods which [God] created to be received with thanksgiving by them who believe and personally know the truth; 4 Because [every] creature of God is good, And nothing to be cast away. If [with thanksgiving] it be received,— For it is hallowed by the word of God and intercession.

5 [These things] submitting to the brethren> Thou shalt be [a noble] minister of Christ Jesus, Nourishing thyself with the words of the faith, and of the noble teaching which thou hast closely studied.

8 But [from the profane and old-wives] stories] excuse thyself, And be training thyself unto godliness; For [the bodily training] [for little] is profitable, Whereas [godliness] [for all things] is profitable,— Having [promise] of life—The present and the coming; 9 Faithful] the saying! and [of all] acceptance] worthy; 10 For [to this end] we are we toiling b and contending, c Because we have set our hope on a Living God, Who is Saviour of all men—[Specially] of such as believe.

11 Be giving these things in charge, and be teaching:—

12 Let [no one] despise thy youth; d But [an ensample] become thou, of the faithful,— In discourse, in behaviour, in love, in faith, in chastity.

13 While I am coming] be giving heed— To the reading, to the exhorting, to the teaching:— Be not careless of the gift of favour, that is in thee, Which was given thee through means of prophesying, along with a laying on of the hands of the eldership.

15 These things] be thy care, [In these things] be thou,— That thine advancement may be manifest unto all: 16 Be giving heed to thyself, and to thy teaching,—Abide still in them; For [thou hearkest] Both thyself shalt thou save, And them that hearken to thee. 17 If an elderly man do not thou reprimand, But beareth him, as [though he were thy] father,— Younger men, as brothers, Elderly women, as mothers, Younger women, as sisters, in all' chastity. 3 Widows] honour thou—who indeed] are widows:—

 Ap: "Assembly." 4 Mk. xvi. 19; Ac. i. 2; [L LU. xxiv. 61]; ep. 'ol. ill. 4; 4 Or: "Assembly." 4 Or: "Messengers." 4 Or: "a." 4 Or (WH): "suffering re-
4 Howbeit any widow hath children or grandchildren;
Let them be learning—first unto their own house to be shewing reverence,
And returns to be making unto their progenitors;
For this is acceptable before God;
5 But she who is indeed a widow, and is left alone
Hath turned her hope towards God,
And is giving attendance unto the supplications and the prayers, night and day,—
Whereas she that runneth riot while living is dead:
6 And these things be giving in charge.
That without reproach they may be;
7 If, however, anyone for his own, and specially them of his household taketh not forethought
His faith hath he denied. And is worse than one without faith!
8 Let a widow be put on the list—
Having become not less than sixty years old,—
One man's wife, in noble works being well-attested;—
If she hath nourished children, If she hath shewn hospitality, If saints' feet she hath washed, If them who were in tribulation she hath succoured, If in every good work she hath followed on:
9 But younger widows decline thou;
For as soon as they wax wanton against the Christ,
To marry are they determined,—
Having as sentence,—
That their first faith they have set at nought;
10 And at the same time to be idlers are they learning,
Going about from house to house;
And not only idlers but gossips also, and busybodies,—
Saying the things they ought not.
11 I am minded, therefore, that younger ones marry, bear children, be mistress of the house,—
Giving no single occasion unto the opposer, as a cause of reviling;
For already some have turned aside after Satan:
12 <If any believing woman hath widows> Let her be giving them succour,
And not suffer the assembly to be burdened,—
That them who are indeed widows it may itself succour.
13 Let the well presiding elders of double honour be accounted worthy,
Especially they who toil in discourse and teaching;
For the scripture saith—
A threshing ox shall thou not muzzle,*
And—
Worthy is the workman of his hire,*
14 Against an elder entertain not an accusation, except at the mouth of two or three witnesses;* But them who are sinning before all do thou reprove,—
That the rest also may have fear:—
I adjure thee before God, and Christ Jesus,* and the chosen messengers
That these things thou observe, apart from prejudgment, doing nothing by partiality.
15 Hands, suddenly upon no one lay, Neither have fellowship with sins of strangers:—
Thyself keep;—
No longer be a water-drinker, But of a little wine make use,
Because of thy stomach and thy frequent sicknesses.
16 Some men's sins are openly evident, leading on into judgment,
With some; however, they even follow after;
In the same way the noble works also are openly evident,—
And they that are otherwise cannot be hid.
17 Let as many as are servants under a yoke be counting their own masters; worthy of all honour,*
Lest the name of God and the teaching be defamed.
He, however, that have believing masters let them not despise them, because they are brethren;
But the more be doing them service, because believing and beloved are they who from the good workmanship receive advantage.
These things be teaching, and exhorting:—
If anyone doth otherwise teach,
And doth not adhere to healthful discourses—those of our Lord Jesus Christ,
And to the teaching that is according to godliness;>
4 He is beclouded, knowing nothing rightly.
But is diseased about questionings and word-battles—
Out of which spring envy, strife, defamations, wicked surmisings, incessant quarrellings of men wholly corrupt in their mind and bereft of the truth,—Supposing godliness to be a means of gain!*
Now it is a great means of gain—godliness, with a sufficiency of one's own;
For nothing brought we into the world, Neither are we able;— And having sustenance and covering we shall be content;

But they who are determined to be rich fall into temptation, and a snare, and many foolish and hurtful covetings, The which sink men into ruin and destruction,— For a root of all the vices is the love of money, Which some, being eager for, have been seduced from the faith, and have pierced themselves about with many pangs.

But thou O man of God! From these things flee! And pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, meekness;

Be contesting the noble contest of the faith,— Lay hold of the age-abiding life— Unto which thou wast called, And didst make the noble confession before many witnesses.

I charge thee before God, who engendereth life in all things, And Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed the noble confession.

That thou keep the commandment without spot, free from reproach, Until the forthshining of our Lord Jesus Christ—

Which in its own fit times the happy and only Potentate will shew— The King of them that reign, And Lord of them that wield lordship,— Who alone hath immortality, Dwelling in light unapproachable,— Whom no man hath seen—nor can see: Unto whom be honour and might age-abiding. Amen.

<Upon them, who are rich in the present age> lay thou charge— Not to be high-minded, Nor to have set their hope on riches' uncertainty,— But on God, who offereth us all things richly for enjoying, To be doing good, To be rich in noble works, To be generous in giving, Ready for fellowship,— Treasuring up for themselves a good foundation for the future, That they may lay hold on the life [which is life] indeed.

O Timothy! that which hath been entrusted do thou guard, Avoiding the profane pratings and oppositions of falsely named knowledge,—

Which some professing concerning the faith have missed the mark!

Favour be with you.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY.

Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, Through the will of God,—

According to the promise of life in Christ Jesus;—

Unto Timothy, my beloved child:

Favour, mercy, peace, from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Grateful am I, unto God,— Unto whom I am rendering divine service from my progenitors in a pure conscience>

That incessant I hold I the remembrance concerning thee in my supplications; Day and night longing to see thee, Being mindful of thy tears,— In order that I may be filled:

A reminder having received, of the unfeigned faith that is in thee,—
2 Timothy I. 6—18; II. 1—18.

1. [Text continues with a detailed analysis of the passage, focusing on the various themes and teachings presented in the epistles of 2 Timothy.

2. [An outline and key points are highlighted, emphasizing the importance of faith, love, and the preservation of the original message.]

3. [Further details are provided, including the role of the Holy Spirit in guiding the faithful and the importance of remaining steadfast in the face of adversity.]
AFFIRMING RESURRECTION, ALREADY TO HAVE TAKEN PLACE, AND ARE OVERTHROWING THE FAITH OF SOME.

19 Howbeit the firm foundation of God standeth, having this seal — The Lord hath acknowledged them who are his, and let every one that nameth the name of the Lord stand aloof from unrighteousness.

20 But in a great house there are not only gold and silver vessels, but also wooden and earthen:

21 And some indeed, for honour, hallowed, meet for the Master’s use, for every good work prepared. But thou wilt flee from these:

22 And pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace, along with them who call upon the Lord out of a pure heart:

23 But knowing that they gender strifes, and from ungodly and unscrupulous questionings, abstain thyself, knowing that they be false teachers;

24 And (a servant of the Lord) ought not to strive,

But to be gentle towards all, apt in teaching, ready to endure malice,

25 In meekness bringing under discipline them that oppose themselves, lest at any time God should give them repentance unto a personal knowledge of truth. And they should wake up to sobriety out of the adversary’s snare, though they have been taken alive by him for that one’s will.

26 But of this I take note — That in last days there will set in perilous seasons;

For men will lie — fond of themselves, fond of money, ostentatious, arrogant, defamers, [to parents] unyielding, unhonourable, unkind, without natural affection, not accepting the truth, given to intrigue, without self-control, uncivilised, unfriendly to good men, traitors, reckless, [to parents] uncharitable, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but [the power thereof] denying,

And of these turn away;

For of these are they who enter into the houses, and captivate silly women, [women] laden with sins, led on by manifold covetings, ever learning and never [unto a personal knowledge of truth] able to come to

8 Moreover like as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses,

[So, these men also] withstand the truth —

Men utterly corrupted in their mind, disapproved concerning their faith;

9 But they shall not force their way further, for their folly shall be fully evident unto all —

As also that of those men became.

10 But (those) hast closely studied —

My teaching, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, love, endurance, persecutions, sufferings,

What manner of things befell me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra,

What manner of persecutions I endured —

And (out of all) the Lord rescued me;

12 Yea and all who are determined to live in a godly manner in Christ Jesus will be persecuted;

Whereas wicked men and howling imposters will force their way to the worse, deceiving and being deceived.

14 But (those) abide in the things which thou hast learned and been entrusted with, knowing from whom thou hast learned them:

And that (from a babe) those sacred letters thou hast known which are able to make the wise wise unto salvation.

15 And profitable unto teaching, unto conviction, unto correction, unto the discipline that is in righteousness —

In order that ready may be the man of God

16 I adjure [thee] before God, and Christ Jesus — Who is about to be judging living and dead —

Both as to his forthshining and his kingdom —

Proclaim the word. Take thy position — in season, out of season — Convince, rebuke, encourage —

3 For there will be a season —

When the healthful teaching they will not endure, but according to their own covetings will heap up teachers, because they have an itching ear,

And (from the truth) indeed, their ear will they turn away, While unto stories, they will turn themselves aside.

5 But (those) be sober in all things, suffer hardship, do the work of an evangelist, thy ministry; completely fulfil;

8 Or: "the." 9 Or: "both by.": 10 Or (WH): "to judge."

For I am already being poured out as a drink-offering, and the season of my release is at hand,—

Then noble contest I have contested, the race I have finished, the faith I have kept:

Henceforth lieth by for me—

The crown of righteousness, which the Lord will render unto me in that day,—

The righteous judge,—

Yet not alone unto me.

But unto all them also who have loved his forthshining.

Give diligence to come unto me speedily, for Demas hath forsaken me, having loved the present age; and journeyed unto Thessalonica; Crescens unto Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia: receiving Mark back bring him with yourself, for he is very useful to me for ministering; and Titus have I sent unto Ephesus.

The cloak that I left in Troas with Carpus when thou comest bring; and the scrolls, especially the parchments.

Alexander the coppersmith hath given proof,—

The Lord will render unto him according to his works.—

Of whom be thou also on thy guard, for he hath greatly withstood our words.

In my first defence no man came in to help me, but all forsook me,—unto them may it not be reckoned!—

But the Lord stood by me, and empowered me, in order that the proclamation might be fully made, and all the nations might hear;

And I was delivered out of the mouth of a lion:—

The Lord will rescue me from every wicked work, and will bring me safe into his heavenly kingdom:

Unto whom be the glory, unto the ages of ages. Amen.

Salute Prisca and Aquila and the house of Onesiphorus.

Erastus remained in Corinth; but Trophimus I left at Miletus sick. Give diligence to come before winter.

There salute thee—Eubulus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

The Lord be with thy spirit. Favour be with you.

Ph.xxi.21. Chap. iii.11.

The Epistle of Paul the Apostle

To Titus.

Paul, a servant of God—an apostle moreover of Jesus Christ,—

According to the faith of the chosen ones of God,

And the personal knowledge of the truth that is according to godliness,—

In hope of life age-abiding;

Which God, who cannot lie, promised before age-during times,

But hath manifested in its fitting seasons,

Even his word, in the proclamation with which entrusted am:

By injunction of our Saviour God:

Unto Titus, my true' child according to a common faith,—

Favour and peace.

From God [our] Father and Christ Jesus our Saviour.

For this cause left I thee in Crete,

That the things remaining undone thou mightest completely set in order,

And mightest establish in every city elders.

As with thee; arranged:—

If anyone is unaccusable, a husband of one' wife, having children that believe, who are not charged with riotous excess, nor insubordinate;

Ac.xiv.23.
For it is needful that the overseer* be—
Unaccusable as God’s steward, not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, not ready to wound, not seeking gain by base means,
But hospitable, a lover of what is good, sober-minded, just, kind, possessing self-control,
Holding fast in the matter of his teaching [the faithful word], That he may be able both to encourage with his healthful instruction, and the gainsayers to refute.
For there are many unruly men,
Vain talkers and deceivers,
Especially they of the circumcision,—
Whose mouths must needs be stopped, Men who are upsetting whole houses, Teaching the things which ought not to be taught, For the sake of base gain.
Said one from among them, a prophet of their own— Cretans! always false, mischievous wild-beasts, idle gluttons:
This witness is true,—
For which cause be reproving them sharply, That they may be healthy in their faith, Not giving heed to Judaical stories and commandments of men who are turning away from the truth;
All things are pure unto the pure, But polluted and faithless, Nothing is pure, But polluted are both their mind and conscience;
God they confess that they know, But by their works they deny him, Being abominable and obdurate.
In all things shewing thyself an ensample of noble works,—

1. For the favour of God, bringing salvation for all men, hath shone forth, Putting us under discipline—
In order that,—
<Denying ourselves of ungodliness and worldly covetings>
<In a soberminded and righteous and godly manner> we should live, in the present age,
Prepared to welcome the happy hope and forshining of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Christ Jesus,—
Who gave himself up in our behalf, That he might redeem us from all manner of licentiousness And purif{ for himself a people as his own treasure— Zealous of noble works.
As to these things be speaking and exhorting and reproving, with all manner of precept: Let no one disregard thee!
Be putting them in mind unto rulerships, unto authorities; to be in submission, To be defaming, no one, to be averse to strife, considerate, showing all meekness unto all men.
For even we used, at one time, to be—
Thoughtless, unyielding, deceived, In servitude unto manifold covetings and pleasures,
In malice and envy leading on, Detestable, Hating one another.
But <when the graciousness and affection for man of our Saviour God> shone forth>
Not by works which we had done in righteousness, But according to his mercy he saved us—
Through means of the bathing of a new birth,
And the moulding anew of Holy Spirit,—
Which he poured on us richly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour,
In order that <having been declared righteous by his favour> we should be made [inheritors], according to hope, of life age-abiding.
TITUS III. 8—15.

8 [Faithful] the saying! and [concerning these things] I am minded that thou be strongly affirming,

In order that they who have believed God may be careful to be forward [in noble works].

[These things] are honourable, and profitable unto men.

9 But [foolish] questionings, and genealogies, and strife, and contentions about matters of law avoid, For they are unprofitable and vain.

10 [From a party’man, after a first’ and second’ admonition] excuse thyself;

PHILEMON 1—16.

11 Knowing that such a one is perverted, and sinneth, being self-condemned.

12 [As soon as I shall send Artemus unto thee, or Tychicus] give diligence to come to me unto Nicopolis;

For [there] have I determined to winter.

13 [Zenas the lawyer, and Apollos] do thou diligently set forward on their way,

In order that [nothing, unto them] may be wanting.

14 Moreover, let our own’ learn to be forward [in honourable works] for the necessary uses, That they may not be unfruitful.

15 All they who are with me salute thee. Salute thou them who regard us with faithful affection. [Favour] be with you all.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO

PHILEMON.

1 Paul, prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy my brother,—

Unto Philemon the beloved, and a fellow-worker of ours,

And unto Apphia our sister.

And unto Archippus* our fellow-soldier, And unto the assembly which meeteth at thy house:

3 Favour unto you, and peace. From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

* 1 am giving thanks unto my God—

[Always] making [mention of thee] in my prayers,

Hearing of thy love, and of the faith which thou hast towards the Lord Jesus and towards all’ the saints,—

6 To the end that [the fellowship of thy faith] may become [energetic] by a personal knowledge of every' good thing that is in us* towards Christ;

7 For [much joy] have I had, and encouragement, by occasion of thy love, In that [the tender affections of the saints] have had rest given them by thee, brother.

8 Wherefore (though I have [much] freedom of speech [in Christ], to be enjoining upon thee that which is befitting)

* Col. iv. 17.

9 Yet [for love’s sake] I rather exhort,—

Being [such a one] as Paul the aged. [Now] also, even a prisoner of Christ Jesus,—

I exhort thee concerning [my own] child, Whom I have begotten in my bonds,—

Onesimus*:

11 Him who [at one time] was [unto thee] unserviceable, But [now] unto thee and unto me serviceable;

12 Whom I have sent back unto thee—Him! That is [my own] tender affections!—

Whom [I was minded] with myself to detain, That [in thy behalf] unto me be might be ministering in the bonds of the joyful message;

14 But [apart from thy mind] I wished to do [nothing], That [not as by necessity] thy goodness should be, but [by choice]—

For [peradventure] [for this cause] was be separated for an hour> That [as an age-abiding possession] thou mightest have him back,—

16 No longer’ as a servant. But above a servant—[A brother beloved]—

* Or (WH): "you."

a Col. iv. 17.

b Or (WH): "both unto thee."
PHILEMON 17—25. HEBREWS I. 1—12.

223

Very greatly to me'.
But how much rather to thee—Both in the flesh and in the Lord!

17 If, therefore, thou holdest me as one in thy fellowship>
Take him unto thee [as myself];
And <if he hath wronged thee at all or oweth thee aught>
I, Paul, have written [it] with [my own] hand,—
I will repay [it];
That I may not tell thee—That [thyself, unto me] thou still owest.

18 Yes! brother [I] would [from thee] have help, in the Lord:
Give rest unto my tender affections in Christ.

EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

1 Whereas [in many parts and in many ways of old] God spake unto the fathers [in the prophets]>
2 At the end of these days
He hath spoken unto us in [his Son],—
Whom he hath appointed heir of all things,
Through whom also he hath made the ages;—

3 Who [being an eradiated brightness of his glory,
And an exact representation of his very being,
Also bearing up all things by the utterance of his power,
Purification of sins having achieved, Sat down on the right hand of the majesty in high places;]

4 By [so] much becoming superior to the messengers, b By [as] much as, going beyond them, he hath inherited a more distinguished name, c

5 For unto which of the messengers b said he at any time— [My Son: art thou],
[This day have I begotten thee e ?
And again—
[I] will become [his father],
And [he] shall become [my Son] d

6 But <whenever he again introduceth the first-

21 Confident of thine obedience I have written unto thee,
Knowing that even beyond what I say thou wilt do :—

22 At the same time moreover, be also getting ready for me [a lodging];
For I am hoping that [through your prayers] I shall be granted as a favour unto you.

24 The favour of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

* Col. iv. 12.

b Or (WH): "our."
But to which of the messengers hath he said, at any time—

Sit thou at my right hand,
Until I make thy foes thy footstool?

Are they not [all] spirits doing public service,—for ministry sent forth for the sake of them who are about to inherit salvation?

For this cause it behoveth us with unwonted firmness to be holding fast unto the things that have been heard, lest, at any time, we drift away. For if the word through messengers spoken became firm, and [every] transgression and disobedience received a just' recompense—how shall we escape, if so great a salvation as this we have neglected,—which indeed, receiving a beginning of being spoken through the Lord> [by them who heard] unto us, was confirmed, 4 God jointly testifying also with signs and wonders and manifold' mighty works, and with distributions of Holy' Spirit [according to his own' will]?

For not unto messengers hath he subjected the coming habitable earth b of which we are speaking;

But one somewhere hath his new witness, saying—

What is man, that thou shouldest make mention of him?
Or the son of man, that thou shouldest put him in charge?

Thou hast made him less, some little, than messengers,

[With glory and honour] hast thou crowned him,—

[And hast set him over the works of thy hands]:

[All things] hast thou subjected beneath his feet,*

For do we see, to him, all things subject?:—

But by reason of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honour,

To the end that, by favour of God, [in behalf of everyone] he might taste of death.

For it was becoming in him—

For the sake of whom are the all things, And by means of whom are the all things,—

When many' sons unto glory he would lead, "The Princely Leader" of their salvation, through sufferings' to make perfect,

For both he that maketh holy, and they who are being made holy,

Are [all] of One' ;

For which cause he is not ashamed to be calling them [brethren], 12 saying—

I will declare thy name unto my brethren, [In the midst of an assembly] will I sing praise unto thee*;

and again—

[If] will be confident upon him; 13

and again—

Lo! [I] and the children which unto me, [God, hath given,*

<Seeing therefore the children have received a fellowship of blood and flesh>

He also [in like manner] took partnership in the same,—

In order that [through death—

He might paralyse him that held the dominion' of death,

That is, the Adversary,—

And might release these—

As many as by fear of death were all their lifetime liable [to bondage].

For not surely of messengers is he laying hold, But of Abraham's seed he is laying hold.

Whence he was obliged [in every way] unto the brethren, to be made like,

That he might become a merciful' and faithful high-priest,

[In the things pertaining unto God,]

For the making of propitiation for the sins of the people.

For <in that he] suffered [when tested] > He is able [unto them who are being tested] [to give succour].

Whence, holy brethren, [partners] in a heavenly calling',

Attentively consider the Apostle and High-priest of our confession—Jesus:

As one [faithful] to him who made him:

As [Moses also] in [his] house.*

For [of more' glory than Moses] hath this one been counted worthy—By as much more' honour than [the house] hath he that prepared it;

For [every' house] is prepared by some' one,—

But [he that hath prepared all' things] is [God].

Even Moses indeed, was faithful in all' his house,

[As an attendant] for a witness of the things which were to be spoken!:

But [Christ as a Son] over his house,—

Whose house are we— if [the freedom of speech and boast of the hope, throughout, firm] we hold fast.

Wherefore,—

According as saith the Holy Spirit—

To-day [if unto his voice] ye would hearken>
When your fathers tested by proving,
And saw my works forty years.

Wherefore I was sore vexed with this generation,
And said, Always err they in their heart;—
Howbeit they learned not my ways:
So I sware in mine anger—
They shall not enter into my rest* !—

But hearken, brethren.
Lest at any time, there shall be in any one of you.
A wicked heart of unbelief,
In revolting from a Living God.

But be exhorting one another, on each successive day;—
While the To-day* is being named !
Lest any from among you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

For partners of the Christ have we become,—
If at least the beginning of the confidence,
Throughout, firm we hold fast:
So long as it is said—
To-day* unto his voice ye would hearken—
Do not harden your hearts,—
As in the embitterment. b

For though they heard | caused embitterment?
Nay, indeed! did not all who came forth out of Egypt through Moses?

But with whom was he sore vexed forty years? Was it not with them who sinned, whose dead bodies fell in the desert? But unto whom he sware that they should not enter into his rest,—Save unto them who were obstinate?

And we see, that they were not able to enter because of unbelief!*

Let us therefore fear, lest at any time,
Although there is left behind a promise of entering into his rest,—
Any one from amongst you should be deemed to have come short;
For we have had delivered to us the joyful message, just as even they;
But the word which was heard did not profit them,
They not having been blended, by faith, with the things heard;

For we who have believed are to enter into the rest, According as he hath said—
<So I sware in mine anger>
They shall not enter into my rest*;
And yet the works from the foundation of the world [had been brought into existence],

For he hath spoken, somewhere, concerning the seventh [day], thus:
And God rested, on the seventh day, from all his works*;

And this again—
They shall not enter into my rest.

Seeing, therefore, that it is left over for [some] to enter into it,
And [they who formerly] had delivered to them the joyful message entered not in by reason of obstinacy,—

Again he marketh out a certain day,
[To-day] [in David] saying— after so long a time as this,— according as it hath been said before:—
To-day [if unto his voice ye would hearken>
Do not harden your hearts.

For [if unto them] Joshua' had given rest,
It had not in that case concerning another day been speaking [after] these things.

Hence there is left over
A Sabbath-keeping, for the people of God.

For [he that hath entered into his rest] [He too] hath rested from his works, just as [from his own] [God] [rested].

Let us, therefore, give diligence to enter into that rest,
Lest anyone fall into the same example of obstinacy.

For [living] is the word of God, and energetic,
And more cutting than any knife with two edges,
And penetrating as far as a dividing sword of soul and spirit.
Of joints also, and marrow,—
And able to judge the impulses and designs of the heart;

And there is [no created thing] can be secreted before him,
But [all things] are naked and exposed to his eyes:—
As to whom is our discourse!*

Having then a great high-priest who hath passed through the heavens, [Jesus the Son of God]>
Let us hold fast the confession;
For we have not a high-priest unable to have fellow-feeling with our weaknesses,
But one tested in all respects, by way of likeness, [apart from sin].

Let us, then, be approaching with freedom of speech, unto the throne of favour,
That we may receive mercy,
And [favour] may find [for seasonable succour].

For [every] high-priest who from among men' is taken]
[On behalf of men] is appointed, as to the things pertaining unto God,
That he may be offering [both] gifts and sacrifices for sins,—
Able [to have a measure of feeling] for the ignorant and erring,—
Since [he also] is compassed with weakness;—

* Cp. chap. v. 11.
And |for this cause| is he obliged—
  As for [the people],
  So also [for himself],—
  To be offering for sins;

And [not unto himself] doth one take the honour,
  But when called by God',
  Just as [even Aaron]:

[Thus] [also the Christ] glorified not himself to become a high-priest,
  But he that spake unto him—
  [My Son] art thou,
  [This day] have begotten thee*;

As also |in a different place| he saith—
  [Thou] art a priest [age-abidingly],
  [According to the rank of Melchizedek]*:

1. Who ||in the days of his flesh||
   <Having offered up |both supplications and entreaties
   Unto him that was able to save him out of death.
   With mighty outcries and tears|,
   And been hearkened to by reason of his devoutness>

2. |Even though he was' a son|
   Yet learned, from what things he suffered,
   ||obedience||;

3. And |being made perfect,|
   Became |to all' them that obey him|
   Author of salvation age-abiding 4;

4. Being addressed by God as high-priest—
   ||According to the rank of Melchizedek||.

5. Concerning whom ||great|| our discourse,'',
   And of difficult interpretation to express I,
   Seeing that |slothful| have ye become in
   the hearing;

6. For <even when ye ought to be teachers |
   [by reason of the time]>
   ||Again| have ye [need] that one be teaching |
   [you]
   What are the first principles f of the oracles of God,
   And have become such as [need] [of milk] [not] [of strong food];

7. For [every' one partaking of milk] is unskilled in discourse of righteousness,
   For he is [a babe];

8. But ||to such as are mature|| pertaineth |
   [the strong' food],
   [To them who [by reason of habit] have their organs of perception well trained | for discriminating both good and evil].

Wherefore <dismissing the elementary discourse concerning the Christ>
|Unto maturity| let us be tending,
Not [again, a foundation] laying down—
Of repentance from dead' works,
And of faith towards God,

And of the laying on of hands,
Of the resurrection of the dead,
And of judgment age-abiding;—

And |this| will we do [if at least |God| permit.*

For it is impossible—
<As to those who have been [once for all] illuminated,
  Who have tasted also of the heavenly free-
gift,
  And have been made [partners] in a Holy Spirit,

And have tasted God's utterance to be |
sweet|,
Mighty works also of a coming' age,
And who have fallen away>
|Again| to be remoulding them into repentance;
Seeing b they are again crucifying unto themselves the Son of God,
And holding him up as an example.

7 For [and] <which hath drunk in [the rain] thereupon oftentimes coming,
And which bringeth forth vegetation* fit for them for whom it is even cultivated>
Partaketh of a blessing from God;

But <should it be bringing forth thorns and briars>
It is disapproved, and, unto cursing, nigh,—
Whose [end] is for [burning].

9 But we are persuaded, concerning you, beloved,
The things which are better and which contain salvation,
Though [even thus' we speak];

10 For [not unrighteous| is God, to be forgetful of your work* and of the love which ye have shewn forth for his name,
In that ye have ministered unto the saints,
and are' ministering,—

11 But we covet
That [each one of you] be shewing forth the same' diligence, Unto the full assurance of the hope throughout;

12 In order that [not slothful] ye may become,
But imitators of them who, through faith and patience, were becoming heirs of the promises.|

For [whom to Abraham' God made promise]
|Seeing he had no one greater by whom to swear|
He swore |by himself|,—14 saying—
[Truly, if blessing] I will bless thee,
And [multiplying] I will multiply thee*;

13 And |thus| being patient| he attained unto the promise.

15 For [men]| by the greater one [sweart,
And |with them] an end of [all] gauysaying
by way of confirmation is [the oath];

17 Wherein God <being [more abundantly] disposed| to shew forth unto the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his counsel>
Mediated |with an oath|,—

In order that through means of two unchangeable things,
In which it was impossible for God to make himself false,
A mighty consolation we might have,
Who have fled along to grasp the foreseeing hope,
Which we have as an anchor of the soul,
Both secure and firm,
And entering into the interior of the veil:
Where a forerunner in our behalf hath entered (even Jesus),
Who according to the rank of Melchizedek become a high-priest unto times age-abiding,\b
For (this Melchizedek,\e king of Salem, priest of God Most High,
Who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him,—
To whom even a tenth of all Abraham apportioned
<First, indeed, when translated, King of Righteousness,
But after that, King of Salem also, which is King of Peace,—
Without father, without mother, without pedigree,
Having neither beginning of days, nor of life an end,
But made like unto the Son of God>
Abideth a priest evermore:
Now consider how great this man was, to whom a tenth Abraham gave out of the choicest spoils
[Yea Abraham] the Patriarch;\c
And they, indeed, from among the sons of Levi who the priesthood receive,
Have (commandment) to take tithes of the people; (according to the law),—\d
That is, of their brethren, although sprung from the loins of Abraham;
But he who deriveth not his pedigree from among them
Hath taken tithes of Abraham.
And (the holder of the promises) hath he blessed.
But (apart from all gainsaying)
The less by the greater is blessed.
And (here) indeed, dying men take tithes, But (there) one of whom it is witnessed (that he liveth);
And—so to say a word—
(Through Abraham) even Levi' who taketh tithes hath paid tithes;
For (even then) was he (in the loins of his father) when Melchizedek met him.

What further need according to the rank of Melchizedek for a different priest to be raised up,
And not according to the rank of Aaron to be designated?
For (seeing there is to be a change of the priesthood>
Of necessity, if of law too, a change cometh.
For (he as to whom these things are said]
With a different tribe hath taken partnership,
From which no one hath given attendance at the altar;
For it is very evident that out of Judah hath sprung our Lord,— Respecting which tribe nothing did Moses speak,
And yet more abundantly evident it is—That according to the likeness of Melchizedek there is to be raised up a different priest,
Who not according to a law of commandment dealing with the flesh hath arisen, But according to the power of an indissoluble life;
For it is witnessed—
[Thou] art a priest age-abidingly,
According to the rank of Melchizedek.\b
For (a setting aside doth, indeed, take place, of a foregoing commandment, By reason of its own weakness and unprofitableness,—
For (the law) perfected nothing; But there is the superinducing of a better hope,—
Through which we draw near unto God.
And (inasmuch as not apart from oath-taking—
For (they) indeed, apart from oath-taking, Have been made priests, But (he) with an oath-taking,— Through him that was saying unto him—
The Lord sware and will not regret—
[Thou] art a priest age-abidingly.\c
By as much as this hath Jesus become surety of a better covenant also.
And (they) indeed, in greater numbers have been made priests,
Because (by reason of death) are they hindered from remaining at hand; But (he), by reason of his remaining age-abidingly,\c
Untransmissible holdeth (the priesthood).
Whence he is able even to be saving unto the very end
Them who approach through him, unto God;
Since he evermore liveth to be interceding in their behalf.
For (such a high-priest as this) for us was (even) suited:
Loving, noble, undefiled,
11 Set apart from sinners, and become higher than the heavens; who hath no daily necessity, like the high-priests,

12 Whence it was necessary for this one also to have something which he might offer.

13 For if, indeed, therefore, he had been on earth, he had not, in that case, even been a priest, since there are those who are offering the gifts according to the law:

14 Even as Moses hath received intimation when about to complete the tent, —

15 But now hath he attained unto a more distinguished public minister.

16 By as much as of a better covenant also he is mediator, which indeed upon better promises hath been legislated.

17 For if that first had been faultless, there had been sought a place, for this one also had there been sought a place.

18 Finding fault with them he saith —

19 Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day when I took them by their hand, to lead them forth out of the land of Egypt,

20 Because they abode not in my covenant, and I disregarded them, saith the Lord.

21 Because this is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel,

22 Giving my laws into their understanding,

23 Upon their hearts also will I inscribe them:

24 And I will become their God, and they shall become my people;

25 And in nowise shall they teach —

26 Every one his fellow-citizen,

27 And every one his brother, saying, — Get to know the Lord!

28 Because all shall know me.

29 From the least unto the greatest of them;

30 Because profuse will I be to as their unrighteousnesses,

31 And of their sins in nowise will I be mindful any more.

32 In saying Of a new sort he hath made obsolete the first;

33 But the thing that is becoming obsolete and aged

34 Is near disappearing!

35 [Even] the first, indeed, therefore, used to have righteous appointments of divine service,

36 [Even the holy ritual well arranged].

37 For a tent was prepared, the first,

38 In which were both the lampstand and the table and the setting forth of the loaves,

39 The which is called the Holy place:

40 But after the second' veil a tent, that which is called Most Holy:

41 Having a golden altar of incense,

42 And the ark of the covenant covered around on every side with gold,

43 In which was a golden jar holding the manna,

44 And the rod of Aaron that sprouted,

45 And the tables of the covenant;

46 But over above it Cherubim of glory overshadowing the propitiatory:

47 Concerning which things it is not now needful to be speaking particularly.

48 Now these things having been thus prepared —

49 Into the first tent, indeed, continually do the priests enter,

50 The divine services completing;

51 But into the second once for all in the year,

52 Only the high-priest,

53 Not without blood which he offered for himself and the ignorances of the people:

54 The Holy Spirit making this evident —

55 That not yet hath been manifested, the way through the Holy place,

56 So long as the first' tent hath a standing.

57 The which is a similitude for the present season,

58 According to which both gifts and sacrifices are offered,

59 * Jer. xxxi. 31−34.
60 Ver. 8, above.
61 Exo. xxv. 8 ff.; xi. 2 ff.
62 It would seem to be the safer course to render the simple plural (hegion) uniformly, in harmony with the distinction here drawn between the Holy place and the Most Holy.
63 Whence the six occurrences: viii. 2; ix. 5, 12, 24, 25; x. 19.
Which cannot, as to the conscience, perfect him that rendereth the divine service:

Only as to eatings, and drinkings, and diversified immersions, Righteous-appointments of the flesh, Which until a season of rectifying are in force.

But when Christ approached, as high-priest of the coming good things, Through the greater and more perfect tent, not made by hand, That is, not of this creation,

Nor yet through blood of goats and calves, But through his own blood He entered once for all into the Holy place, Age-abiding redemption discovering.

For the blood of goats and bulls, And the ashes of a heifer sprinkling the profaned, Halloweth unto the purity of the flesh, How much rather shall the blood of the Christ, Who through an age-abiding spirit Offered himself unspotted unto God, Purify our conscience from dead works, To the rendering of divine-service unto a Living God?

And for this cause of a new covenant; is he mediator,— To the end that death coming to pass for the redemption of the transgressions against the first covenant The called might receive the promise of the age-abiding inheritance;

For where a covenant is, It is necessary for the death to be brought in, of him that hath covenanted ;

For a covenant over dead persons is firm,— Since it is not then of force when he is living, that hath covenanted.

Wherefore not even the first, apart from blood hath been consecrated ; For when every commandment according to the law had been spoken by Moses unto all the people, Taking the blood of the calves and the goats, With water and scarlet wool and hyssop, Both the scroll itself, and all the people he sprinkled ;

Saying—

[This] is the blood of the covenant which God hath sent in command unto you;—

Yes the tent also, and all the utensils of the public ministry, with blood in like manner he sprinkled ;

And nearly all things with blood are purified according to the law, And apart from blood-shedding, cometh no remission.}

For it was indeed therefore necessary for the glimpses of the things in the heavens with these'to be purified ; But the heavenly things themselves' with better sacrifices than these.

For not into a Holy place made by hand' entered Christ,— Counterpart of the real [Holy place]; But into the heaven itself, Now to be plainly manifested before the face of God in our behalf;—

Nor yet that oftentimes he should be offering himself,— Just as the high-priest entereth into the Holy place, year by year, with alien' blood;—

Else had it been needful for him oftentimes to suffer, from the foundation of the world; But now < once for all Upon a conjunction of the ages, A setting aside of sin through means of his sacrifice>

Hath he been made manifest;—

And inasmuch as it is in store for men— Once for all to die, But after this' judgment>

[Thus] || the Christ also||<Once for all' having been offered, For the bearing of the sins of many> c ||A second time, apart from sin, will appear, To them who for him are ardently waiting— || Unto salvation.>

For the law having a shadow of the destined' good things, Not the very image of the things:
They can never with the same' sacrifices which year by year they offer evermore Make them who approach perfect;

 Else would they not, in that case, have ceased being offered, By reason of those rendering the divine service having no further conscience at all of sins, Being once for all purposed?

But in them is a recalling to mind of sins year by year, For it is impossible for blood of bulls and goats* to be taking away sins.

Wherefore <coming into the world> be saith : Sacrifice and offering thou willest not, But [a body] hast thou fitted for me,—

In whole-burnt-offerings and sacrifices for sin thou didst not delight:

Then said I— Lo ! I am come,— In the heading of the scroll it is written concerning me,—

To do, O God, thy will!*

< |Higher up saying— ||Sacrifices, and offerings, and whole-burnt-offerings, and sacrifices for sins; thou willedst not, neither delightedst in, —
The which [according to the law] are offered,

9 Then hath he said —

Lo! I am come!
To do [thy will]:—
He taketh away the first, that [the second] he may [establish]:

10 By which will we have been made holy.

Through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ [once for all].

11 And [every] priest: * indeed, standeth daily publicly ministering,
And the same sacrifices oftimes offering,
The which never can clear away sins;

12 But this priest <having offered one sacrifice for sins evermore>
Sat down on the right hand * of God:

13 [As for the rest] waiting —

Until his foes be made his footstool;*

14 For [by one offering] hath he perfected for evermore, them who are being made holy.

15 But the Holy Spirit [beareth us witness]:
For <after having said —

16 [This] is the covenant which I will covenant unto them

After those days, saith the Lord,—
Giving my laws upon their hearts,
[Upon their understandings also] will I inscribe them*:

17 But wherever a remission of these is there is [no further] offering [for sins].

18 <Having therefore, brethren, freedom of speech for the entrance through the Holy place [by the blood of Jesus],
Which entrance he hath consecrated for us, as a way recent and living,
Through the veil, that is, his flesh,—

19 And having a great priest over the house of God;*

20 Let us approach with a genuine heart, in full assurance of faith,*
Having been sprinkled, as to our hearts, from an evil conscience,
And bathed, as to our bodies, with pure water;

21 Let us hold fast the confession of the hope without wavering,—
For [faithful] is he that hath promised;

22 And let us attentively consider one another, to provoke unto love and noble works,—
Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together,
According to the custom of some, But exhorting;
And by so much the more as this: By as much as ye behold [the day], drawing near.

23 But faith is [of things hoped for] a confession [when they are not seen];
24 For <if] by choice] we be sinning, after the receiving of the full-knowledge of the truth:
[No longer] for sins is there left over [a sacrifice],
25 But some [fearful] reception of judgment and fiery jealousy,
[About to devour the opposers].* a

26 || Any one having set aside a law of Moses,

27 [Apart from compassions, upon [the testimony of] two or three witnesses] dieth:*

28 Of [how much] sorcer [punishment], suppose ye, shall he be accounted worthy,
Who hath trampled underfoot [the Son of God],

29 And [the blood of the covenant] hath esteemed [a profane thing] [by which he had been made holy],
And unto the Spirit of favour hath offered wanton insult?

30 For we know him that hath said —

1 To me belongeth avenging,
[1 I will recompense];
and again —
The Lord will judge his people.* b

31 [A fearful thing] [it is] to fall into the hands [of a Living God],

32 But be calling to mind the former days,
In which [once ye were illuminated],

33 [A great combat of sufferings] ye endured;—

34 <Partly] indeed, because [both with reproaches and tribulations] ye were being made a spectacle,
But [partly] because [into fellowship with them who were so involved] ye were brought;—

35 For [even with them who were in bonds] ye sympathised,
And [unto the seizure of your goods] with joy ye bade welcome,—
Knowing that ye have yourselves, for a better possession and [an abiding],

36 Do not, then, cast away your freedom of speech,—
The which hath a great recompence:

37 For [of endurance] ye have need,
In order that [the will of God having done] Ye may bear away [the promise],

38 For <yet a little while, how short! how short!>
[The Coming One] will be here, and will not tarry;

39 But [my] righteous one by faith [shall live],
And [if he draw back] [my soul delighteth not in him].*

40 We however, are not of a drawing back unto destruction,
But of faith [unto an acquisition of life].

41 But faith is [of things hoped for] a confidence,
[Of facts] a conviction [when they are not seen];

For thereby well-attested were the ancients.

3 By faith we understand the ages to have been fitted together by declaration of God:

To the end that not out of things appearing should that which is seen have come into existence.

4 By faith a fuller's sacrifice did Abel offer unto God than Cain,—

Through which he received witness that he was righteous,

There being a witnessing upon his gifts by God;

And through it though he died he yet is speaking.

5 By faith Enoch was translated, so as not to see death,

And was not found, because that God had translated him;

For before the translation he had received witness that he had become well-pleasing unto God;—

But apart from faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing;

For he that approacheth unto God—

[Must needs have faith that he is],

And that to them who seek him out a rewarder he becometh.

6 By faith Noah, having received intimation concerning the things not yet seen,

Filled with reverence prepared an ark to the saving of his house—

Through which he condemned the world,

And of the righteousness by way of faith became Their heir.

7 By faith Abraham, being called, obeyed—

To come forth into a place he was destined to receive for an inheritance;

And he came forth, not well knowing whither he was coming;—

8 By faith he sojourned in the land of promise [as a foreign land],

[In tents dwelling,]

Along with Isaac and Jacob, the joint-heirs of the same promise;—

For he was awaiting the city having foundations,

Whose architect and builder is God;

9 By faith [even Sarah herself] received power for founding a seed,

[Even beyond the season of life's prime],—

Seeing that [faithful] she reckoned him that had promised;—

Rather choosing—

To be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God,

Than [for a season] to be having sin's enjoyment;

10 By faith [Moses, when born]—

Was hid three months by his parents,

Because they saw that goodly was the child,

And were not affrighted [at the decree of the king];—

11 By faith [Moses, when grown up]—

Refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh,

12 In faith all those died—

Not bearing away the promises,

But [from afar] beholding and saluting them,

And confessing that strangers and sojourners were they upon the land.

For they who such things as these are saying Make it clear that of a paternal home they are in quest;

And if indeed of that they had been mindful, from which they had come out

They might, in that case, have had an opportunity to return;

But now after a better one are they reaching,

That is, a heavenly;

Wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as their God,—

For he hath prepared for them a city.

13 By faith Abraham when tested offered up Isaac,

And [the only-begotten] would [he] have offered up who the promises had accepted,—

Even him of whom it had been said—

In Isaac shall there be called to thee a seed;

14 Accounting that even from among the dead [God] was able to raise [him],—

Whence [even in similitude] he bare him away.

15 By faith [even concerning things to come] did Isaac bless Jacob and Esau.

16 But [now] after a better one are they reaching,

That is, a heavenly;

Wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as their God,—

For he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith Abraham when tested offered up Isaac,

And [the only-begotten] would [he] have offered up who the promises had accepted,—

Even him of whom it had been said—

In Isaac shall there be called to thee a seed;

18 Accounting that [even from among the dead] [God] was able [to raise [him]],—

Whence [even in similitude] he bare him away.

19 By faith [even concerning things to come] did Isaac bless Jacob and Esau.

20 By faith [Moses, when grown up]—

Refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh,

Rather choosing—

To be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God,

Than [for a season] to be having sin's enjoyment;

21 By faith [Moses, when grown up]—

Refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh,

Rather choosing—

To be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God,

Than [for a season] to be having sin's enjoyment;

22 By faith [Joseph, when drawing to his end]—

Concerning the exodus of the sons of Israel called to remembrance,

And [concerning his bones] gave commandment.

23 By faith [Moses, when born]—

Was hid three months by his parents,

Because they saw that goodly was the child,

And were not affrighted [at the decree of the king];—

24 By faith [Moses, when grown up]—

Refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh,

Rather choosing—

To be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God,

Than [for a season] to be having sin's enjoyment;

25 Accounting—

<As greater riches than Egypt's treasures> The reproach of the Anointed One;

For he was looking away unto the recompense.

27 ||By faith|| he forsook Egypt—*
Not put in fear of the wrath of the king;
For |as seeing him who cannot' be seen| he persevered.

28 ||By faith|| he hath kept the passover and the beamearing of the blood,
Lest |he that was destroying the first-born|
|should be touching them|.

29 ||By faith|| they passed through the Red Sea,
as over dry land|—
Which the Egyptians |seeing an attempt' to do|
were swallowed up.*

30 ||By faith|| |the walls of Jericho| fell,
|Having been surrounded for seven days|.

31 ||By faith|| Rahab the harlot |perished not with them who refused to yield,
|She having welcomed the spies with peace|.

32 And what more' can I say?
For |time| will fail me while I go on telling—
Concerning Gideon,† Barak,‡ Sampson,* Jephthah,†
David* also, and Samuel,|and the prophets,—

33 Who |through faith||—
Prevailed in contest over kingdoms,
Wrought righteousness,
Attained unto promises.
Shut the mouths of lions,*
Quenched the power of fire,*
Escaped the mouths of the sword,
Were made powerful from weakness,
Became mighty in battle,
Overturned |camps of aliens|;
Women received |by resurrection| [their death];
But |others| were put to the rack,
Not accepting redemption,
That |unto a better' resurrection| they might attain?*

35 |Others| again, |of mockings and scourgings|
received trial,
|Nay! further| of bonds and imprison-
ments:
They were stoned, were pierced through,
|were sawn asunder,|
|By murder,| with a sword, |died;|
Went about in sheep-skins, in goat-hides,—
Being in want, suffering tribulation, enduring ill-treatment:

36 Of whom the world’ |was not worthy|—
|Upon deserts| wandering, and mountains,
|and in caves,—and in the caverns of the earth.

37 And |these all|| though they obtained witness through their faith>
Yet bare not away |the promise|:

38 ||God|| |for us| something better' providing,—
That |not apart from us| should they be made |perfect|.

12 Therefore, indeed,
<Seeing that |we also| have encircling us |so great' a cloud of witnesses|>
<Stripping off every |incumbrance| and the easily entangling sin>
|With endurance| let us be running |the race that is lying before us|,

1 Looking away unto our faith's Prince and perfecter, ||Jesus||—
Who |in consideration of the joy lying before
him>
Endured a cross, |shame| despising: And
|on the right hand of the throne of
God| |hath taken his seat|.

3 For take ye into consideration—
Him who hath endured |such' contradiction
by sinners against themselves;*
Lest ye be wearied, |in your souls| becoming exhausted.

4 ||Not yet' unto blood| have ye resisted, |against sin| waging a contest;
And ye have quite forgotten the exhortation
which, indeed, |with you' as with sons|
|doth reason|—:
My son |be not sightning the discipline of the Lord,
Neither be fainting, when by him' thou art
reproved|;

5 For |whom the Lord loveth| he doth |discipline|,
And scourgeth every' son whom he doth welcome home.|*

7 <For the sake of discipline| persevere! As towards sons| |God| beareth himself
|towards you|;
For who is |a son| whom |a father| doth not discipline?

8 |If however ye are without' discipline,
Whereof |all| have received a share|
|Then| are ye |bastards| and |not sons|.

9 ||Furthermore, indeed|| |the fathers of our flesh|
we used to have, |as administrators of discipline,
And we used to pay deference:
Shall we not |much rather| submit ourselves to
|the Father of our spirits| and |live|?

10 For |they| indeed, |for a few days, according to that which seemed good to them| were administering discipline;
But |he| unto that which is profitable, |with a view to our partaking of his holiness|:

11 But |no discipline| |for the present, indeed| see seemeth to be of joy', but of sorrow':
||Afterwards|| however—
>To whom thereby' have been well trained—
It yieldeth |peaceful fruit| |of righteousness|.

13 Wherefore |the slackened hands and paralyzed
knees| restore ye,*
And |straight tracks| be making for your feet,—’
That the lame member may not be dislocated,
but |be healed rather|.

Peace, be pursuing, with all, and the obtaining of holiness,—

Without which no one shall see the Lord:

Using oversight—

Lest any one be falling behind from the favour of God,—

Lest any root of bitterness springing up above be causing trouble;

And through it, the many shall be defiled:

For ye know that, afterwards—

When he even wished to inherit the blessing,

He was rejected;

For place of repentance found he none,

Even though with tears he diligently sought it.

For ye have not approached—

Unto a searching and scorching fire,

And gloom, and mist, and tempest,

And a sound of things spoken:—

From which they who heard excused themselves,

Lest there should be added to them a word;

For they could not bear that which was being enjoined,—

And should a beast be touching the mountain it shall be stoned;

And <so fearful was that which was showing itself> Moses said—

I am terrified, and do tremble!

But ye have approached—

Unto Zion's mountain, and unto the city of a Living God, a heavenly Jerusalem,—

And unto myriads of messengers in high festival,—

And unto an assembly of first born ones, enrolled in the heavens,—

And unto God, judge of all,—

And unto the spirits of righteous ones made perfect,—

And unto the mediator, of a new covenant, Jesus,—

And unto the blood of sprinkling, more excellently speaking than Abel.

Beware, lest ye excuse yourselves from him that speaketh;—

For if they escaped not, who excused themselves from him who on earth was warning—

How much less shall we, <who from him that warnth from the heavens> do turn ourselves away:

Whose voice shook the earth then,

But hath he promised, saying—

Yet once for all I will shake—

<Not only the earth;>

But also the heavens.

But the saying Yet once for all maketh clear the removal of the things which can be shaken,

As of things done with,—

That they may remain which cannot be shaken.

Wherefore <Seeing that of a kingdom not to be shaken we are receiving possession>

Let us have gratitude—

Whereby we may be rendering divine service well-pleasingly unto God, with reverence and awe;

For even our God is a consuming fire.

Let brotherly love continue.

Of the entertaining of strangers be not forgetful,

For hereby unawares have some entertained messengers.

Bear in mind them who are in bonds,

As having become jointly bound,—

Them who are suffering ill-treatment,

As being yourselves also in the body.

Let marriage be honourable in all, and the bed undefiled,

For fornicators and adulterers God will judge.

Without fondness for money be your way of life,—

Being content with the present things,—for he hath said:

In novisces thee will I leave,

No indeed in novisces thee will I forsake:

So that, taking courage, we may be saying—

The Lord hathesth to my cry,—I will not be put in fear:

What shall a man do unto me?

Be mindful of them who are guiding you,

Who, indeed, have spoken unto you the word of God;

The outgoing of whose behaviour reviewing,

Be imitating their faith.

Jesus Christ yesterday and to-day is the same,—

With teachings, manifold and strange be not carried aside;

For it is noble that with gratitude should the heart be getting confirmed,—

[Not with matters of food, in which they who are walking have not been profited.

We have an altar—

To eat out of which they have no right,

Who in the tent are doing divine service;
11 For in the case of those living creatures, whose blood for sins is carried into the holy place through means of the high-priest, the bodies of these are burned up outside the camp.

12 Wherefore, Jesus also, <That he might hallow the people through means of his own blood,> outside the gate, suffered:

13 Now, therefore, let us be going forth unto him, outside the camp, for we have not here an abiding city, but unto that which is to be, are we seeking our way.

14 Through him let us be offering up a sacrifice of praise continually unto God; That is, a fruit of lips confessing unto his name.

15 But of the doing good and of fellowship be not forgetful; For with such sacrifices as these is God well-pleased.

16 Be yielding unto them who are guiding you, and submit yourselves; For they are watching over your souls as having an account to render, That with joy the same they may be doing, and not with sighing,— For unprofitable unto you were this.

18 Be praying for us;

19 But if any of you is coming short of wisdom, Let him be asking of God, Who giveth unto all freely and upbraideth not, And it shall be given him; But let him be asking in faith, nothing doubting,

20 For he that doubteth is like a wave of the sea, wind-driven and storm-tossed,— For he that doubteth is like a wave of the sea, wind-driven and storm-tossed,—

21 Fit you, by every good work, for the doing of his will, Doing within us that which is well-pleasing before him through Jesus Christ, To whom be the glory, unto the ages of ages. Amen.

22 Now I exhort you, brethren, bear with the word of exhortation,— For even with brief words have I sent unto you.

23 Know ye that our brother Timothy hath been set at liberty,— With whom if more speedily he be coming! I will see you.

24 Salute all them who are guiding you, and all the saints:

25 Favour be with you all.

THE EPISTLE OF JAMES.

1 James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,— Unto the twelve tribes that are in dispersion, Wishes joy.

2 All joy account it, my brethren, whencesover ye fall in with manifold temptations,—

3 Taking note, that the proving of your faith worketh out endurance;

4 But let your endurance have mature work, That ye may be mature and complete.

5 But <if any of you is coming short of wisdom> Let him be asking of God, Who giveth unto all freely and upbraideth not, And it shall be given him;

6 But let him be asking in faith, nothing doubting,

7 For let not that man think that he shall receive anything from the Lord—

8 A two-souled man, unstable in all his ways.

9 But boasting be the lowly brother in his uplifting;
Whereas the rich, in his being brought low,—
Because as a flower of grass he will pass away;
For the sun hath sprung up, with its scorching heat,
And hath withered the grass.
And the flower thereof hath fallen out.
And the beauty of the face thereof hath perished,—
So also the rich, in his going, shall languish.

Happy the man who endureth temptation! b
Because becoming approved he shall receive the crown of life—which he hath promised unto them that love him.

Let no one, while tempted be saying—
"From God am I tempted,—
For God cannot be tempted by things evil, and himself tempteth no one;"
But each one is tempted when by his own coveting he is drawn out and enticed.
Then, the coveting having conceived giveth birth to sin, and the sin when full-grown bringeth forth death.

Be not deceived, my brethren beloved:—
Every good giving, and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom is no alteration, nor shadow cast by turning:
Because he was so minded he hath brought us forth with a word of truth, to the end we should be a sort of firstfruit of his creatures.

Ye know, my brethren beloved,—
But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger,
For man's anger worketh not God's righteousness.
Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflow of baseness in meekness welcome ye the word fitted for inward growth, which is able to save your souls:
Become ye doers of the word, and not hearers only—
Reasoning yourselves astray;
Because if any is a word-bearer, and not a doer>
(The same) is like unto a man observing his natural face in a mirror,—
For he observed himself, and is gone away, and straightway it hath escaped him—
What manner of man he was!
But he that hath obtained a nearer view into the perfect law of liberty, and hath taken up his abode by it, Becoming—not a forgetful hearer, but a work doer>
The same happy in his doing shall be.

If any thinketh he is observant of religion, not curbing his own tongue,
But deceiving his own heart,
This one's religious observance is vain:
To be visiting orphans and widows in their affliction, [Unspotted] to keep [himself] from the world.

My brethren, do not [with respect for persons] be holding the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ [the Lord] of glory.
For if there enter into your synagogue a man wearing gold rings in gay clothing, and there enter a destitute man also, in soiled clothing,—
And ye eye him that hath on the gay clothing, and say, Thou be sitting here, pleasantly,—
And unto the destitute man say—Thou stand, or sit there under my footstool—
Would ye not have been led to make distinctions among yourselves, and have become judges with wicked reasonings?

Hearken! my brethren beloved:—
Hath not God chosen the destitute in the world [To be] rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?
Whereas ye have dishonoured the destitute man!
Do not [the rich] oppress you?
And yourselves drag you into courts of justice?
Do not [they] defame the noble's name which hath been invoked upon you?
If ye are indeed fulfilling [a royal law] according to the scripture—Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself—
Nobly are ye doing;—
But if ye are shewing respect of persons—Sin are ye working. Being convicted by the law as transgressors!
For a man who shall keep the whole law
But shall stumble in one thing> Hath become for all things liable,—
For he that hath said—Do not commit adultery—
Hath also said—Do not commit murder,—
Now if thou dost not commit adultery, But dost commit murder>
Thou hast become a transgressor of law.
[So] be speaking, and [so] doing, As they who [through means of a law of freedom] are about to be judged;

For the judgment will be without mercy, unto him that hath shewed no mercy:

What profit, my brethren,—
[14] If one should be saying he hath faith, but hath not works:
Can his faith save him?

What profit, my brethren,—
If one should be saying he hath faith, but hath not works:
Can his faith save him?

But one will say—

Thou hast faith, but shew me thy faith apart from thy works.

Thou believest that God is one:
Thou doest well.

But art thou willing to learn, O empty man!
That faith apart from works is idle.

So also faith if it have not works is dead.

Not many teachers become ye, my brethren,
Knowing that we shall receive;

For are we stumbling, one and all:
If anyone in word doth not stumble:
The same is a mature’s man,
Able to curb even the whole body.

Now if the horses’ mouths into their mouths we thrust, to the end they may be yielding to us:
[Their whole body also] do we turn about.

Lo! the ships also do they are, and by rough winds driven along Are turned about by a very small helm, Whithersoever the impulse of the steersman inclineth.

So also, the tongue is a little member and yet of great things maketh boast.
Lo! how small a fire kindleth how great a forest;

And the tongue is a fire,—
As the world of unrighteousness the tongue becometh fixed among our members.
That which defileth the whole body And setteth on fire the wheel of our natural life, And is set on fire by Gehenna!

For every nature—
Both of wild beasts and of birds, Both of reptiles and of things in the sea> Is to be tamed, and hath been tamed, by the human nature;

But the tongue none of mankind can tame,
A restless mischief! Full of deadly poison!

For are we blessing our Lord and Father, And therewith are we cursing the men who after the likeness of God have been brought into being!

Out of the same mouth come forth blessing and cursing!
Not meet my brethren, for these things thus to be coming to pass!

Thus to be coming to pass!

Doth the fountain out of the same opening teem forth the sweet and the bitter?

Is it possible, my brethren, for a fig-tree to produce olives, or a vine figs?
Neither can salt water yield sweetness.

Who is wise and well-instructed among you!
Let him shew, out of his comely behaviour, his works, in meekness of wisdom.

But if bitter jealousy ye have, and rivalry, in your hearts> Be not boasting and shewing yourselves false against the truth!

This wisdom is not one from above coming down, But is earthly, born of the soul, demonical!

For where jealousy and rivalry are>
There are anarchy and every ignoble deed.

But the wisdom from above is—
First pure, then peaceable, reasonable, easy to be entreated, fraught with mercy and good fruits, without partiality, without hypocrisy.

18 And ||aharvest of righteousness, with peace is sown by them that make peace.

4 Whence wars and whence fightings among you? Are they not from hence—due to ||your pleasures which are taking the field in your members?

2 Ye covet—and have not,
Ye commit murder, and are jealous,—and cannot obtain,—
||Ye fight and war||

Ye have not—
Because ye do not really ask,

3 Ye ask and receive not—
Because that ||basely|| ye ask, In order that ||in your pleasures|| ye may spend [it].

4 Adulteresses!

Know ye not that ||the friendship of the world|| is ||enmity to God||?

<Whosoever, therefore, is minded to be ||a friend|| of the world> ||An enemy of God|| doth constitute himself.

5 Or think ye that ||the scripture speaketh? Is it ||forenvyingll that the spirit which hath taken an abode within us doth crave?

8 Howbeit he giveth ||greater|| favour.

Wherefore it saith—
||God|| against the haughty|| arrayeth himself, Whereas ||unto the lovely|| he giveth favour.

7 Range yourselves, therefore, under God, But withstand the adversary. And he will flee from you:

8 Draw near unto God, And he will draw near unto you. Cleanse hands, sinners! Chasten hearts, double souls!

9 Be miserable and lament and weep, Let ||your laughter|| into lamentation ||be turned; And ||your joy|| into |dejection|;

10 Be made low in presence of the Lord, And he will lift you up.

11 Be not speaking one against another, brethren! <He that speaketh against a brother,
Or judgeth his brother>
Speakest against law, And judgest law; Now ||if upon law|| thou art passing judgment:
Thou art not a doer of law, but a judge!

12 ||One|| is Lawgiver and Judge—He who hath power to save and to destroy; But who art ||thou|| that judgest thy neighbour?

13 Come now! ye that say—
||To-day or To-morrow|| we will journey unto this city here, And will spend there a year, And will trade and get gain,—

14 Men who are not versed in the morrow—Of what sort your life [will be]?
For ye are ||a vapour||—
[For a little] appearing,
||Then|| just disappearing!

15 Instead of your saying—
<If ||the Lord|| be pleased> b We shall both live, and do this or that;

16 Whereas [now] are ye boasting in your pretensions:—

||All' boasting like this|| is |wicked|,

17 <To him, therefore, who knoweth how to be doing ||a right thing||, And is not doing it>
It is ||sin|| unto him. c

5 Come now! ye wealthy! Weep ye, howling, for your hardships which are coming upon you:

2 ||Your wealth|| hath rotted, And ||your garments|| have become ||moth-eaten||,—

3 ||Your gold and silver|| have rusted away, And ||their rust|| shall be ||witness against you||,
And shall eat your flesh, d as fire!
Ye have laid up treasure in days of extremity':—

4 Lo <the wage of the workers who have cut down your fields— That which hath been kept back by you> is crying out; And ||the outeries of them who reaped|| ||Into the ears of the Lord of hosts|| have entered!

5 Ye have luxuriated upon the land, and run riot,
Ye have pampered your hearts in a day of slaughter e;

6 Ye sentenced—ye murdered the Righteous one! Is he not arraying himself against you? b

7 Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the Presence of the Lord:— ||Lo! the husbandman|| awaiteth the precious' fruit of the earth, Having patience for it, until it receive the early and the latter rain f:

8 Be ||ye also|| patient, Establish your hearts, Because ||the Presence of the Lord|| hath drawn near.

9 Be not sighing, brethren, one against another, lest ye be judged,—

Lo! ||the Judge|| before the doors is standing.

10 ||An example|| take ye, brethren, of distress and patience,—
The prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord.

And if he have committed sins, it shall be forgiven him.

Be openly confessing, therefore, one to another your sins,
And be praying in each other's behalf,—
That ye may be healed.

[Much' availeth] the supplication of a righteous man, when it is energised: a

Elijah was a man, affected like us; And he earnestly prayed that there might be no moisture,¢ And there was no moisture on the land for three years and six months,—

And again he prayed, And the heaven gave rain. And the land shot up her fruit.

My brethren! If one among you be led to err from the truth, and one turn him back:

Be ye taking note—That he that turneth back a sinner out of the error of his way—

Will save his soul out of death, And hide a multitude of sins.¢

Wherein ye exult, Though, for a little, just now, if needful, put to grief in manifold temptations,«

In order that the proving of your faith—b

Much more precious than of gold that perisheth even though by means of fire it is proved—

May be found unto praise and glory and honour in the revealing of Jesus Christ,—

Whom not having seen ye love, On whom though at present not looking, but believing ye exult with joy unspeakable and filled with glory.

Being about to bear away the end of your faith—a salvation of souls:

Concerning which salvation!

Christ which was in them was pointing to, when witnessing beforehand as to—
The sufferings for Christ, And the glories after these,—
Into which things messengers are coveting to obtain a nearer view.

Wherefore <girding up the loins of your mind>:

Perseveringly direct your hope unto the favour being born along to you in the revealing of Jesus Christ:

As obedient persons not configuring yourselves unto your former covetings in your ignorance:

But according as he that hath called you is holy do ye yourselves also become holy in all manner of behaviour,—

Inasmuch as it is written—

| Holy | shall ye be, Because | I I am holy.

And if you have tasted for yourselves that gracious is the Lord,

Unto whom coming near, as unto a living stone—

By men indeed rejected, But with God, chosen, held in honour:

Yourselves also, as living stones are being built up a spiritual house, for a holy priesthood,

To offer spiritual sacrifices, well-pleasing unto God through Jesus Christ;

Inasmuch as it is contained in scripture—

Lo! I lay in Zion an outmost corner stone, chosen, held in honour,

And he that resteth faith thereupon shall not be put to shame.

Unto you, then, is the honour—unto you who believe;

But unto such as disbelieve,

The stone which the builders rejected—The same, hath become head of the corner, And a stone to strike against. Who stumble because unto the word they do not yield,—

Unto which also they have been appointed;

But ye are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for a peculiar treasure,

That the excellences ye may tell forth of him who out of darkness hath called you into his marvellous light:

Who at one time were a No-people, But now are a people of God,—Who had not been enjoying mercy.

Beloved! I exhort you as sojourners and pilgrims:

To abstain from fleshly covetings.

Such as take the field against the soul;
Having your behaviour among the nations honourable,—In order that <if any are not yielding unto the word> Through their wives' behaviour they may |without the word| be won,

Having been permitted to behold your reverently 'chaste' |behaviour|,—

|Whose adorning| let it be—

|Not the outward| of plaiting the hair and wearing golden ornaments, or putting on of apparel>

But the hidden character |of the heart|—

In the incorruptible |ornaments| of the quiet'and meek' |spirit|, which is |in presence of God| of great price.

For |at one time| the holy' women also, who directed their hope towards God used to adorn themselves |being in submission unto their own' husbands|:

As |Sarah| was obedient unto Abraham, calling him |lord|,—

Whose children ye have become—so long as ye are doing good, and not bringing yourselves into fear of any single' cause of alarm.:

Ye husbands| in like manner| dwelling with them according to knowledge,—

As unto a weaker' vessel |unto the female |vessel| assigning honour,

As joint-inheritors also of life's favour,—

To the end that unhindered| may be |your| prayers|.

And |finally| |all| being of one mind, having fellow-feeling, attached to the brethren, of tender affection, of lowly mind:

Not returning evil for evil! Nor reviling for reviling,

But |on the contrary| bestowing a blessing,—Because |hereunto| have ye been called,

In order that |a blessing| ye might inherit.

For |he that desireth to love |life|,

And to see good days>

Let him cause his tongue' to cease from mischief, And lips' that they speak not deceit;

Let him turn away from mischief, and do good, Let him seek peace, and pursue it;

Because |the eyes of the Lord| are towards the righteous,

And his ears, unto their supplication,—

Whereas |the face of the Lord| is against them that are doing mischievous things.:

Who, then, is he that shall harm you, if |for that which is good| ye become zealous?

Nevertheless |even if| ye should suffer for righteousness' sake, happy [are ye]!

|Their fear| however, do not fear, neither be troubled;:

But |the Lord Christ| hallow ye in your hearts,

Ready always for a defence, unto every' one

In order that |if any are not yielding unto the word| they may |without the word| be won, that is asking you a reason concerning the hope within you, —
Nevertheless, with meekness and reverence:
Having a good conscience, —
In order that <Wherein they speak against you> they may be put to shame who cast wanton insult on <your good behaviour in Christ>.
For it is <better as well-doers> <if it should please the pleasure of God> to be suffering, than <as evil-doers>:
Because <Christ also> <once for all, concerning sins> died,—<Just in behalf of unjust,—
In order that he might introduce us unto God; —
Being put to death, indeed, in flesh,
But made alive in spirit, —
In which <even unto the spirits in prison> he went and proclaimed,— [Spirtus] unyielding at one time,
When the longsuffering of God was clearing for a welcome in the days of Noah,
There being in preparation an ark—
[Going] into which , souls were brought safely through by means of water,—
Which [water] in manner corresponding [it doth now] save <you also>— even immersion,—Not a putting away of the filth of the flesh, But the request unto God <for a good conscience>. Through the resurrection of Jesus Christ,—<Who is on the right hand of God;>
Having gone into heaven, <Messengers and authorities and powers> having been made subject unto him.

Do ye also with <the same purpose> arm yourselves, —
Because <he that hath suffered in flesh> hath done with sins,—
To the end that <no longer in men's covetings>, but in God's will, <ye may live> [the still remaining time].
For <sufficient is the by'gone time—to have wrought out> <the will of the nations>,
Having gone on in wanton ways, covetings, wine-drinkings, revellings, drinking-bouts, and impious idolatries: —
Wherein they are taken by surprise that ye run not with them into the same overflow of riotous excess,—uttering defamation; —
Who shall render <an account> unto him who is holding in readiness to judge living and dead;

For unto this end <even unto the dead> was the glad-message delivered,—
In order that they might be judged, indeed, according to men in flesh, But might live according to God in spirit.

But <the end of all things> hath drawn near: —
Be of sound mind, therefore, and be sober for prayers; —
Before all things keeping <fervent> your love among yourselves;
Because <love> covereth a multitude of sins; —
Shewing hospitality one to another without murmuring,—
Each one <according as he hath received a gift of favour> unto one another, ministering the same,
As careful stewards of the manifold favour of God: —
If any one speaketh > as oracles of God, <If any one ministereth> as of strength which [God] supplieth,—
That [in all things] God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, —
Unto whom are the glory and the dominion, unto the ages of ages. Amen !

Beloved! be not held in surprise by the burning amongst you, which [for putting you to the proof] is befalling you,
As though a surprising thing were happening unto you; —
But <in so far as ye are taking fellowship in the Christ's sufferings> rejoice !
In order that <in the revealing of his glory also> ye may rejoice with exultation; —
If ye are being reproached in the name of Christ; — happy [are ye] !
Because <the Spirit of the glory> and the [Spirit] of God <unto you it bringing rest.>*
For let <none of you> be suffering as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as one prying into other men's affairs; —
But <if as a Christian> let him not be ashamed, but be glorifying God in this name.
For it is the ripe time for the judgment to begin with *the house of God; —
But <if first with us> what shall be the end of them who yield not unto the glad-message of God? —
And <if the righteous man> is with difficulty saved> Where then shall <the ungodly and sinful man> appear? —
So then, let them who are even suffering, according to the will of God <unto a faithful Creator> be committing their souls, in well-doing. —
Elders therefore, among you I exhort—
[I who am their co-elder and a witness of the sufferings of the Christ; —

* Or: "account."
* Or (WH): "suffered."
* Or: "bring us near."
* Or (WH): "sin."
* Or: "quickened"; or * Or (WH): "sinned."

K. N. T.
1: Simon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, unto the aliens scattered throughout Pontus, Asia, Cappadocia, Pontus, Thracia, and the province of the Romans.

2: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you in the personal knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord, as all things suited for life and godliness have been given through the personal knowledge of him that hath called us through glory and excellence.

3: Through which his precious and very great promises have been given, in order that through these we might become sharers in a divine nature—

4: And [for this very reason also]—

5: Favour unto you, and peace, be multiplied, in the righteousness of our God, and Saviour Jesus Christ.

6: In like manner, ye younger men—submit yourselves unto elders;

7: All, however, one towards another, gird on humility;

8: Because God against the haughty arrayeth himself.

9: Whereat unto the lowly he giveth favour.

10: Be made lowly, therefore, under the strong hand of God, that he may lift you up in due time,

11: In like manner, ye young men, submit yourselves unto elders;

12: And when the Chief Shepherd is manifested, ye shall bear away the unfading crown of glory.

13: In like manner, ye young men, submit yourselves unto elders;

14: All, however, one towards another, gird on humility;

15: Because God against the haughty arrayeth himself.

16: Whereat unto the lowly he giveth favour.

17: Be made lowly, therefore, under the strong hand of God, that he may lift you up in due time,

18: In like manner, ye young men, submit yourselves unto elders;

19: All, however, one towards another, gird on humility;

20: Because God against the haughty arrayeth himself.

21: Whereat unto the lowly he giveth favour.

22: Be made lowly, therefore, under the strong hand of God, that he may lift you up in due time,

23: In like manner, ye young men, submit yourselves unto elders;

24: All, however, one towards another, gird on humility;

25: Because God against the haughty arrayeth himself.

26: Whereat unto the lowly he giveth favour.

27: Be made lowly, therefore, under the strong hand of God, that he may lift you up in due time,
Wherefore, all you brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if these things be done, in nowise shall ye stumble at any time,

For thus shall richly be further supplied unto you—the entrance into the age-abiding kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Wherefore, I shall be certain to always putting you in remembrance concerning these things,—

Although, indeed, ye know them, and have become confirmed in the present truth;

Knowing that speedy is the putting off of my tent—

Even as our Lord Jesus Christ also made clear to me :

Yea, I will give diligence also, that at every time ye may be able after my own departure to be keeping up the remembrance of these very things.

For <not as having followed cleverly devised stories> made we known unto you the power and presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,

But as having been made spectators of his majesty.

For when he received from God the Father honour and glory,

[A voice being Xrnetohim such as this, by the magnificent glory—

My Son, the beloved is; this, in whom I delight>

Even this voice> we heard, when [out of heaven] it was borne, We being [with him] in the holy mount.

And we have imore firm the prophetic word;—

Whereunto ye are doing [well] to take heed,—

As unto a lamp shining in a dusky place,—

Until [day] shall dawn, and [a day-star] shall arise in your hearts:—

Of this! first taking note—

That [no] prophecy of scripture becometh [self-solving];

For not [by will of man] was prophecy brought in [at any time],

But [by Holy Spirit!] they were borne along > spake [men] from God.

But there arose false-prophets also among the people,

As [among you also] there shall be [false-teachers],—

Men who will stealthily bring in destructive parties, with their stratagems, as they carouse together with you,

14 Having eyes full of an adulteress, and that cannot rest from sin,
Enticing unstable souls,
Having a heart trained in greed,—

Children of a curse,—

15 Forsaking a straight path, they have gone astray,
Following out the way of Balaam [son] of Beor,
Who loved a reward of wrong,

But had a reproof of his own transgression,

<A dumb beast of burden [in man’s voice] finding utterance> forbadetheprophet’s madness.

16 ||These|| are fountains without water.
And mists [by a tempest] driven along,—
For whom [the gloom of darkness] hath been reserved;

For [great swelling words of vanity] uttering, they entice with carnal covetings—in wanton ways—them who are [well-nigh] escaping from the men who [in error] have their behaviour;

Promising [freedom to them], [they themselves] being all the while [slaves of corruption],—

For <by whom one hath been defeated> [by the same] hath he become enslaved,—

20 For <if having escaped from the defilements of the world by a personal knowledge of the * Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ> but [by the same’ having again become entangled] they are defeated>

The [last] state have become, for them, worse than [the first];—

21 For [better] had it been for them—
Not to have obtained a personal knowledge of the way of righteousness,
Than [having obtained such knowledge] to turn back out of the holy’ commandment delivered unto them.

22 There hath befallen them the thing [spoken of] in the true’ proverb—
[A dog] turning back unto its own vomit, And—
[A sow, as soon as washed] unto wallowing in mire.

3 ||This already|| beloved, is the second’ letter I am writing unto you;
And in these letters, I am stirring up—by way of calling to remembrance—your uncorrupted’ mind.

To remember the fore-spoken’ declarations made by the holy’ prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Saviour [by your apostles].

Jude 12.
Jude 16.
viii. 21.]

[[Of this]] first’ taking note—
That there will come, in the last of the days, [with scoffing] [scoffers],—

[[After their own’ covetings]] going on, and saying—
Where is the promise of his presence?
For <since the fathers’ fell asleep >’all things’ thus’ remain, from the beginning of creation.

For this they [wilfully] forget—
That there were [heavens]: from of old, and [an earth]: on account of water and by means of water] compacted [by God’s word],—

By which means [the world that then’ was] [with water’ being flooded] perished;
While [the heavens and the earth that now’ are] [By the same’ word] have been stored with fire,
Being kept unto the day of judgment and destruction of the ungodly’ men.

But [this one’ thing] forget not, beloved,—
That [one day, with the Lord’], is as a thousand’ years,
And [a thousand years] as one day,

The Lord is [not slack] concerning his promise,
As some count’ [slackness];
But is long-suffering with regard to you,
Not being minded that any should perish,
But that, all repentance| should come.

10 Howbeit the day of the Lord will be here |as a thief|,—
In which [the heavens]: with a rushing noise| will pass away,
While [elements’] [becoming intensely hot] will be dissolved,
And [earth, and the works therein: will be discovered.

11 <Seeing that all these’ things are thus’ to be dissolved> [What manner of persons! ought [ye] all the while to be, [in holy ways of behaviour and acts of godliness],—

12 Expecting and hastening the presence of the day of God,
By reason of which, [heavens]: [being on fire] will be dissolved,
And [elements’] [becoming intensely hot] are to be melted:—

13 But [new heavens and a new earth]: [according to his promise] are we expecting,
Wherein righteousness] is to dwell.

14 Wherefore, beloved, [three things] expecting—
Give diligence [unspotted and unblemished]: by him’ to be found [in peace];
And account [our Lord’s long suffering [to be] salvation:—
Even as [our beloved’ brother Paul also]

<According to the wisdom given unto him>

Hath written unto you;
THE FIRST EPISTLE OF

JOHN.

1 <That which was from the beginning, a
Which we have heard,
Which we have seen with our eyes,
Which we for ourselves gazed upon, and our hands did handle.
Concerning the Word of Life,—
2 And the Life was made manifest, b and we have seen, and are bearing witness, and announcing unto you,
The Age-abiding Life, c
Which, indeed, was with the Father, and was made manifest unto us;
3 <That which we have seen and heard are we announcing even unto you, in order that ye too may have fellowship with us, and our own fellowship also may be with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ.
4 And these things are we writing, in order that our joy may be made full.
5 And this is the message which we have heard from him, and are reporting unto you,—
That God is light,
And in him is no darkness at all.
6 <If we say—
We have fellowship with him! and in darkness are walking> we are deceiving ourselves, and the truth is not in us.
7 Beloved! no new commandment am I writing unto you; but an old commandment, which ye have been holding from the beginning: The old commandment is the word which ye have heard.
8 Again a new commandment am I writing unto you,—which thing is true in him and in you, because the darkness is passing away, and the real light already is shining.
9 <He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother> is in the darkness, and there is none!
10 <He that loveth his brother> is abiding in the light, and cause of stumbling is there none!

a Jn. i. 1.  b Jn. i. 14.  c Ap: "Age-abiding."  d Or: "the which."  e Or: "as touching."  f Ap: "Age."  g Or: "as touching that which is true."  h Jn. iii. 34.
I write unto you, dear children, because your sins have been forgiven you, for the sake of his name:
I write unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning:
I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one.
I have written unto you, little children, because ye understand the Father:
I have written unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning:
I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God within you abideth, and ye have overcome the wicked one.

Be not loving the world.
Nor yet the things that are in the world:
The love of the Father is not in him.

And the word of God within you abideth, and the coveting thereof, but he that doeth the will of God endureth unto times age-abiding.

Little children! it is the last hour;
And just as ye have heard that an antichrist is coming—
Even now antichrists have become many,
Whence we perceive that it is the last hour:
From among us they went out.
But they were not of us:
For if of us they had been,
They would in that case have abode with us;
But it came to pass in order that they might be made manifest,
Because all are not of us.

And ye have [an anointing] from the Holy One,—Ye all know:
I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth.
But because ye know it,
And because no falsehood is of the truth,
Who is the False One;
Save he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?
[The same] is the Antichrist,—
He that denieth the Father and the Son.

Whosoever denieth the Son
Neither hath he the Father:
[He that confesseth the Son]
Hath [the Father also].

Or: “a.”
Ver. 22; chap. iv. 3; 2 Jn. 4 Or (WH.): “And know all things.”

24 <As for you>
What ye have heard from the beginning
In you shall abide, that which [from the beginning] ye have heard:
Ye also [in the Son and [In] the Father shall abide.
And [this] is the promise, which he hath promised unto us,—
The age-abiding life.
These things have I written unto you, concerning them who would lead you astray.
And <as for you>
The anointing which ye have received from him abideth in you, and ye have [no need that anyone be teaching you];
But <as his anointing] is teaching you,
And is true, and is no falsehood;—
Even just as it hath taught you:
Abide ye in him.
And [now], dear children, abide ye in him,
In order that <if he be made manifest> we may have boldness, and not be ashamed away from him by his presence.
If ye know that he is righteous:
Ye perceive that—
Whosoever doeth righteousness of him hath been born.
Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us—
That children of God we should be called,—And such we are!—
Therefore the world understandeth us not, because it understood not him.
Beloved! [now] are we children of God; And not yet hath it been made manifest what we shall be;—
We know that <if it should be made manifest>
Like unto him shall we be,
Because we shall see him just as he is.
And <whosoever hath this hope on him>
Is purifying himself, just as He is pure.
<Whosoever doeth righteousness also is committing sin>
[Lawlessness also] is committing,
And [sin] is [lawlessness];
And ye know, that [He was] made manifest—
In order that [our sins] he should take away,
And [sin] [in him] is there none.
<Whosoever is committing sin>
Is not sinning:
<Whosoever is sinning> Hath not seen him, and doth not understand him,

Dear children! let no one lead you astray!
<He that is doing righteousness is righteous;>
Just as He is righteous;:

* Or: “in.”
4 Or: “he.”
2 Or: “in.”
1 John 3:8-24; 4:1-9

8 <He that is committing sin> is of the adversary, Because [from the beginning] the adversary is sinning. [To this end] was the Son of God made manifest, In order that he might undo the works of the adversary.

9 <Whosoever hath been born of God> is not committing <sin>, Because [a seed of him] within him abideth; And he cannot be committing <sin>, Because [of God] hath he been born.

10 Herein are manifest the children of God, and the children of the adversary: <Whosoever is not doing righteousness> is not of God, Nor yet he that is not loving his brother.

11 Because [this] is the message which ye have heard from the beginning— That we should be loving one another,—

12 Not just as [Cain] was of the wicked one, and slew his brother! And [for what cause] slew he him? Because [his works] were wicked], Whereas [those of his brother] were righteous.

13 Be not marvelling, brethren, if [the world] is hating you:

14 We know, that we have passed over out of death into life, Because we love the brethren: [He that loveth not] abideth in death.

16 Hereby [*have we come to understand love: In that [*He] for us, his life laid down; And [*we] ought for the brethren our lives to lay down.

17 But <whoso hath this world's goods, And beholdeth his brother having need, And shutteth up his tender affections from him>:

18 How is the love of God abiding in him?

19 Beloved children! Let us not be loving in word, nor yet with the tongue, But in deed and truth.

20 Hereby shall we get to know, that [of the truth] we are, And [before him] shall persuade our heart;

21 Because [*if our own heart condemn us] [Greater] is God than our heart, and perceiveth all things.

22 Beloved! [*if our heart be not condemning us] [Boldness] have we, towards God:

23 And [whate’ver we are asking] we are receiving from him, Because [his commandments] are we keeping, And [the things that are pleasing before him] are we doing.

24 And [this is his commandment,— That we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ, And be loving one another— Just as he gave a commandment unto us'. And [*the he that keepeth his commandments; [*In him] abideth, And [he] in him. And [hereby] perceive we, That he abideth in us, By reason of the Spirit which [unto us] he hath given.

25 Beloved! [not in every’ spirit] believe ye, But test the spirits, whether they are [of God]; Because [many’ false prophets] have gone out into the world.

26 Hereby do ye perceive the Spirit of God: — <Every’ spirit that confesseth Jesus Christ as having come [in flesh] > Is [of God];

27 And <every’ spirit that doth not confess Jesus> [Of God] is not’.

28 And [this is the [spirit] of the Antichrist, Touching which ye have heard that it cometh:

29 Even now is it in the world | already:

30 They are [of the world]: [For this cause] of the world they speak, And the world [unto them] doth hearken.

31 We are [of God]: [He that is getting to understand God] hearkeneth unto us,— [Whose is not of God hearkeneth not unto us:

32 From this perceivew—we— The spirit of truth. And the spirit of error.

33 Beloved! let us be loving one another: Because [love] is [of God], And [whosoever loveth] [Of God] hath been born, And is getting to understand God:

34 [He that doth not love] Doth not understand God, Because [God is] [love].

35 Herein hath the love of God in us been made manifest, That [his only-begotten Son] God sent into the world,

In order that we might live through him.
10 Herein is love: Not that we have loved God, But that he loved us, And sent forth his Son, as a propitiation concerning our sins.

11 Beloved! if in this way God loved us, We also ought to love one another.

12 If we love one another, [God] in us, abideth, And [his love] hath been perfected within us.

13 Hereby perceive we— That in him are we abiding, And [he] in God.

14 And we, for ourselves have gazed, and are bearing witness— That the Father sent forth the Son, as Saviour of the world.

15 Whosoever shall confess, that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, God is in him, abideth. And he that abideth in God, abideth, And [God] in him’ [abideth].

16 Herein hath love with us [been made perfect],— In order that [boldness] we might have in the day of judging,— In that [he] hath sent forth the Son, as Saviour of the world.

17 We love, because [he] first loved us:—

18 If one should say I love God and should be hating [his brother]—[false] is he; For he that doth not love his brother whom he hath seen, [God, whom he hath not seen] he cannot love.

19 And [this’ commandment] have we from him,— That [he who loveth God] love [his brother also].

20 If Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, [God] hath been born; And Whosoever loveth him that begat, Loveth him that hath been begotten of him.

21 Hereby perceive we, that we love the children of God; As soon as [God] we love, And [his commandments] we are doing.

22 For [this] is the love of God—

That [his commandments] we be keeping;
And [his commandments] are not [burdensome];
Because whatsoever hath been born of God, overcometh the world;
And [this] is the victory that hath overcome the world—
Our faith:
And who is he that overcometh the world, Save he that believeth
That Jesus is the Son of God?

23 This is he that came through means of water and blood,
[Jesus Christ]:
Not by the water only, But by the water and by the blood;— And the Spirit it is, that is bearing witness, Because the Spirit is the truth.

24 Because three are they who are bearing witness—
The Spirit, and the Water, and the Blood;
And [the three] are [witnesses] unto one thing.

25 If [the witness of men] we receive, The witness of God is greater.
Because [this] is the witness of God—
In that he hath borne witness concerning his Son,— 26 If He that believeth on the Son of God, Hath the witness within himself:
He that doth not believe God, false hath made him,—
Because he hath not believed on the witness which [God] hath witnessed concerning his Son,—

27 And [this] is the witness:—
That life age-abiding:
Hath God given unto us,
And [this’ life] is [in his Son]:
28 He that hath the Son hath the life,—
He that hath not the Son of God hath not the life.

29 These things have I written unto you—
In order that ye may know that ye have [Life Age-abiding]—
Unto you who believe on the name of the Son of God.

30 And [this] is the boldness which we have towards him:
That [if] anything we ask according to his will;
He doth hearken unto us.
31 And [if we know that he doth hearken unto us, Whatever we ask] we know that we have the things asked, Which we have asked of him,

32 If one should see his brother committing a sin, Not unto death:
33 Chap. i. 1; Jn. i. 14.
34 NB: same word as in Mt. xxv. 46.
35 Or: ‘‘how can he love?’’
37 Or: WH: ‘‘in him.’’
38 Ap: ‘‘Age-abiding.’’
39 WH: ‘‘God,’’ probably
40 MI: ‘‘sinning a sin.’’
1 JOHN V. 17—21.
2 JOHN 1—13.

He shall ask, and He will grant unto him life,—
For them who are sinning, not unto death:
There is a sin unto death:
Not concerning that am I saying, that he should make request.
All unrighteousness is sin,
And there is a sin not unto death.
We know that whosoever hath been born of God is not committing sin,— Nay, he that hath been born of God He keepeth him,*
Or: "Nay! <as touching him that was ever bom of God> He keepeth him," &c.

And the wicked one doth not touch him.
We know that of God are we;
And in the wicked one is lying.
We know, moreover, that the Son of God hath come, And hath given us insight, So that we are getting to understand him that is Real,— And we are in him that is Real, In his Son Jesus Christ.||This is the Real God, and life age-abiding.*

Dear children! Guard yourselves from idols.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

The Elder unto an elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth; and not I alone, but all those also who understand the truth,— for the sake of the truth that abideth in us, and with us shall be unto times age-abiding.*

Favour, mercy, peace shall be with us, from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

I rejoiced exceedingly in that I had found from among thy children such as were walking in truth, even as a commandment we received from the Father. And now I request thee, lady, not as writing a new commandment* unto thee, but one which we were holding from the beginning—

That we should be loving one another.

And this is love, that we should be walking according to his commandments: This is the commandment, even as ye heard from the beginning, that therein ye should be walking.

Because many deceivers have gone out into the world,* they who do not confess Jesus Christ coming in flesh: ||This is the deceiver and the antichrist.

Be taking heed unto yourselves, lest ye lose what things we earned,—but ||a full reward ye may duly receive. <Every one that taketh a lead, and abideth not in the teaching of Christ> hath not |God|: <he that abideth in the teaching> the same hath both the Father and the Son. ||If anyone cometh unto you and this teaching doth not bring> be not receiving him home, and ||Joy to thee! do not say; 11 for ||he that biddeth him rejoice> hath fellowship with his wicked works.

Though I had many things unto you to write I was not minded ||to say them> with paper and ink, but I hope to come unto you, and ||mouth to mouth> to talk,—that your joy may be made full.*

The children of thy chosen sister salute thee.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN.

1: The elder unto Gaius the beloved, whom I love in truth. 2: Beloved! concerning all things I pray thou mayest be prospering, and be in health, even as thy soul is prospering. 3: For I rejoiced exceeding much at brethren coming and bearing witness unto thy truth, even as thou in truth art walking. 4: I have no greater favour than these things, that I should be hearing that my own children in the truth are walking. 5: Beloved! a faithful thing art thou doing, whatsoever thou shalt accomplish for them that are brethren and withal strangers, who have borne witness to thy love before the assembly: whom thou wilt do nobly to set forward worthily of God. 6: Therefore ought to be sustaining such as these, that we may become fellowworkers with the truth. 7: I wrote something unto the assembly; but he who is fond of taking the first place among them—Diotrephes—doth not make us welcome. 8: For this cause if I come I will bring to remembrance his works which he is doing,—with wicked words prating against us; and not content with these he neither himself maketh the brethren welcome, but them who are minded [to do it]: he forbiddeth, and [out of the assembly] doth cast [them]. 9: Beloved! be not thou imitating what is bad, but what is good. He that doeth good is of God: I that doeth whatis bad hath not seen God. 10: Unto Demetrius hath witness been borne by all and by the truth itself; howbeit we also bear witness, and thou knowest that our witness is true. 11: Many things had I to write unto thee,—but I am unwilling with ink and pen to be writing; I hope, however, straightway to see thee, and mouth to mouth will we talk. Peace be unto thee. The friends salute thee. Salute the friends by name.

THE EPISTLE OF J U D E.

1: Jude, Jesus Christ's servant, and brother of James unto the called by God the Father beloved, and by Jesus Christ preserved,—Mercy to you, and peace, and love, be multiplied! 2: Beloved! though I was using all diligence to writing unto you concerning our common salvation, yet have I had necessity to write at once unto you, exhorting you to be earnestly contending for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints. 4: For there have crept in unobserved certain men, who from of old, have been publicly notified for this sentence, ungodly; men, the favour of our God turning into wantonness, and [our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ] denying. 5: I am minded, therefore, to put you in remem-

That the Lord, when a people out of Egypt he had saved, in [the next place] them that believed not destroyed. 6 Messengers also, even them who had not kept their own [principalities], but had forsaken their proper dwelling> unto the judgment of the great day in perpetual bonds under thick gloom hath he reserved. 7 As Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them > having in like manner to these' given themselves over to fornication, and gone away after other kind of flesh> lie exposed as an example, a penalty of age-abiding fire undergoing.

In like manner, nevertheless, even these > In their dreamings flesh indeed defile, while lordship they set aside, and dignities they defame. Whereas Michael, the chief-messenger, when with the adversary disputing, he was reasoning about the body of Moses> durst not impose on him a defamatory sentence, but said—

The Lord rebuke thee!

But <whatsoever things, indeed, they know not> they defame; but <whatsoever things, naturally, like the irrational creatures, they well understand> by these are they bringing themselves to ruin. 11 Alas for them! because—

In the way of Cain have they gone, And in the error of Balaam's wage have they run riot, And in the gainsaying of Korah have they perished.

These are they—

Who <in your love-feasts> are hidden rocks, Fearlessly themaster shepherd,—

Clouds without water, by winds swept along,

Trees autumnal, fruitless, twice' dead, up-rooted,

Wild waves of sea, foaming out their own infamies,

Wandering stars, for whom the gloom of darkness age-abiding hath been reserved.

But the seventh from Adam, Enoch, prophesied, even of these, saying—

Lo! the Lord hath come with his holy myriads, To execute judgment against all, And to convict all' the ungodly—

Of all their works of ungodliness, which they committed in ungodliness,

And of all the hard things which they have spoken against him—sinners, ungodly!

These are murmurers, complainers, according to their covetings] going on,—and their mouth speaketh great swelling words,— holding persons in admiration for profit's sake.

But yeye beloved! remember the things which were foretold by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, how that they used to say to you—

In the last time there shall be mockers,— according to their own ungodly covetings going on.

These are they who make complete separation, mere men of soul, [Spirit] not possessing!

But yeye beloved! <Building yourselves up in your most holy faith, In Holy Spirit praying >

Awaiting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto age-abiding life.

And [on some] indeed, have mercy,—such as are in doubt be saving, out of the fire; snatchings them;

But [on others] have mercy with fear, hating even [the garment] spotted by the flesh.'

Now unto him who is able—

To guard you from stumbling,

And to set you in the presence of his glory, without blemish, with exultation,—

Unto God alone our Saviour, through Jesus Christ our Lord:&gt;

Be glory, greatness, dominion, and authority, Before all the [by-gone] age,

And now,

And unto all the [coming] ages. Amen!
THE REVELATION.

1 The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to point out unto his servants the things which must needs come to pass with speed,—

2 and he shewed them by signs, sending through his messenger, unto his servant John; who bare witness as to the word of God, and the witness of Jesus Christ,—whatsoever things he saw.

3 Happy! he that readeth, and they who hear, the words of the prophecy, and keep the things therein written; for the season is near.

4 John! unto the Seven Assemblies which are in Asia. Favour to you, and peace, from—

5 Him who Is, and who Was, and who is Coming, and from—The Seven Spirits which are before his throne, and from—Jesus Christ,—The Faithful Witness, The Firstborn of the Dead, and The Ruler of the Kings of the Earth.

6 Unto him that loveth us, and tossed us out of our sins with his blood,—and he hath made us (to be) a kingdom—priests unto his God and Father> Unto him! the glory, and the dominion, unto the ages. Amen.

7 Lo! he cometh with the clouds, and every eye shall see him; and upon his face shall be as if it were his glory, and upon his feet as if they were gold, and upon his head and his breast as if they were white, like snow.

8 And his head and hair—white, like white wool—like snow;—

9 And his eyes like a flame of fire, And his feet like unto glowing copper, as if in a furnace refined; And his voice like a sound of many waters, And having in his right hand seven stars, and out of his mouth a sharp, two-edged sword going forth; And his whole appearance as when the sun shineth in its strength.

10 And when I saw him, |fell at his feet as dead,| and he laid his right hand upon me, saying—

11 Do not fear! I am the First, and the Last, and the Living One,—And I became dead;—And lo! living am I, unto the ages of ages, 12 And have the key of death and of hades.

13 Write, therefore—What things thou hast seen, and what they are; And what things are about to come to pass after these things;:

14 The sacred secret of the seven stars, which thou sawest upon my right hand, and the seven lamps of gold :

15 'The seven stars are messengers of the seven assemblies,'
And the seven lamps are seven assemblies.

2 Unto the messenger of the assembly in Ephesus write:—

These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, and walketh in the midst of the seven lamps of gold:

2 I know thy works, and thy toil, and endurance, and that thou canst not bear bad men, and thou hast tried them who were affirming themselves to be apostles, and they were not, and hast found them false; and thou hast [endurance], and hast borne for the sake of my name, and hast not grown weary.

Nevertheless, I have against thee, that thy first love thou hast left.

5 Remember, therefore, when thou hast fallen, and repent, and do thy first works: otherwise I come unto thee, and will remove thy lamp out of its place, except thou repent.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hastest the works of the Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

7 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

Unto him that overcometh I will give of the hidden manna, and I will give unto him a white stone, and upon the stone a new name written, which no one knoweth, save he that receiveth it.

9 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Smyrna write:—

These things saith the first and the last, who became dead, and lived:

I know thy tribulation, and destitution, nevertheless thou art rich, and the profanespeech from among them who affirm that they themselves are Jews, and they are not, but a synagogue of Satan.

10 Do not fear the things which thou art about to suffer. Lo! the adversary is about to cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and may have tribulation ten days. Become thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

He that overcometh shall in nowise be injured by reason of the second death.

12 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Pergamum write:—

These things saith he that hath the sharp, two-edged sword:

I know where thou dwellest, where the throne of Satan is; and thou art holding fast my name, and didst not deny my faith, even in the days of Antipas, my witness, my faithful one, who was killed near you, where [Satan] dwelleth.

Nevertheless, I have against thee, a few things,—that thou hast there, such as hold fast the teaching of Balak,—who went on to teach Balak to throw a cause of stumbling before the sons of Israel, to eat idol-sacrifices and to commit lewdness:

14 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

Unto him that overcometh I will give unto him of the hidden manna, and I will give unto him a white stone, and upon the stone a new name written, which no one knoweth, save he that receiveth it.

16 Repent, therefore, otherwise I come unto thee speedily, and will fight against them, with the sword of my mouth.

17 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

Unto him that overcometh I will give unto him of the hidden manna, and I will give unto him a white stone, and upon the stone a new name written, which no one knoweth, save he that receiveth it.

18 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Thyatira write:—

These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like a flame of fire, and his feet like unto glowing copper:

I know thy works, and thy love, and faith, and ministry, and endurance,—and that thy last works are more than the first.

Nevertheless, I have against thee, that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel, she calleth herself a prophetess, and is teaching and leading astray my own servants to commit lewdness and to eat idol-sacrifices; and I gave her time, that she might repent, and she willeth not to repent out of her lewdness.

20 Lo! I cast her into a bed, and them who are committing adultery with her, into great tribulation,—except they repent out of her works; and her children will I slay with death;—and all the assemblies shall get to know, that I am he that searcheth reins and hearts, and will give unto you, each one, according to your works.

22 But unto you I say,—the rest who are in Thyatira as many as have not this teaching, such as have not come to know the deep things of Satan, as they say, I do not cast upon you any other burden; nevertheless, what ye have hold fast, till I shall have come.

23 And he that overcometh, and keepeth throughout my works I will give unto him authority over the nations; and he shall shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—as vessels of earthenware are dashed in pieces:—as I also have received from Or (WH): "the.

25 And the angel, who executeth the word of God, saith unto the assembly in Sardis: I know thy works, and them that have thy name, who are not, for they are dead; and I will give unto every one of them the right to the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.}
THE REVELATION II. 28, 29; III. 1—22; IV. 1—4.

my Father. 28 And I will give unto him the morning star.*

29 I He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

3 And <unto the messenger of the assembly in Sardis> write:—

[These things] saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars:* I know thy works,— that [a name] thou hast, that thou art living, and art [dead].

Become thou watchful, and strengthen the things that remain, that were about to die; for I have not found thy works fulfilled before my God. 3 Remember, therefore, how thou hast received, and didst hear, and keep it and repent. <If then thou shalt not watch> I will have come as a thief, and in nowise shalt thou get to know 'during what sort of hour' I will have come upon thee.

4 Nevertheless thou hast a few names in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with me in white, because they are 'worthy.'

5 He that overcometh shall thus array himself in white garments, and in nowise will I blot his name, from the book of life; and I will confess his name before my Father, and before his messengers.

* He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

7 And <unto the messenger of the assembly in Philadelphia> write:—

[These things] saith he that is holy, he that is true,* he that hath the killy of David, he that openeth and no one shutteth, and no one openeth:

I know thy works,— that neither hast thou, nor hast thou neither. ||Thus I because lukewarm thou art, and neither hot nor cold > I will cause thee to be hearken unto my voice, and open the door; I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and I will sell him with me.

10 <Because thou didst keep my word of endurance> III also; I will keep thee out of the hour of trial, which is about to come upon the whole habitable world, to try them that dwell upon the earth. I come quickly: hold fast that which thou hast, that no one taketh thy crown.

13 I He that overcometh! I will make him a pillar in the sanctuary of my God, and [outside] shall he in nowise go forth any more; and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem,* which cometh down out of heaven from my God, and [I will write upon him] my new name.*

12 I He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

14 And <unto the messenger of the assembly in Laodicea> write:—

[These things] saith the Amen, the faithful and true* witness,* the beginning of the creation of God:

I know thy works;—that neither cold art thou, nor hot: I would that [cold] thou hadst been, or hot.

16 Thus <because lukewarm thou art, and neither hot nor cold > I am about to vomit thee out of my mouth. 17 <Because thou sayest [Rich am I, and have become enriched,* and of nothing] have I need, and knowest not that thou art the wretched one, and pitiable, and destitute, and blind, and naked> I counsel thee to buy of me, gold refined by fire, that thou mayest become rich,—and white raiment, that thou mayest array thyself, and [the shame of thy nakedness] may not be made manifest,—and eye-salve, to anoint thine eyes, that thou mayest see. 18 — [as many as I tender him] I convict and put under discipline: be zealous, therefore, and repent.

20 Lo ! I am standing at the door, and knocking! <if anyone shall hearken unto my voice, and open the door> I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and I will sell him with me.

21 I He that overcometh! I will give unto him to take his seat with me in my throne, as I also overcame, and took my seat with my Father in his throne.

22 I He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

4 I After these things I saw, and lo! a door set open in heaven; and the first voice which I heard as of a trumpet speaking with me,* saying—

Come up hither! and I will point out to thee the things which must needs come to pass." 2 I After these things 2 I straightway I came to be in Spirit, and lo! I was in heaven, and upon the throne was one sitting;* and [the one that was sitting] was like in appearance to a jasper stone and a sardius, and [there was] a rainbow round about the throne,* like in appearance unto an emerald. 4 And [round about the throne] were four and twenty thrones;
The Revelation IV. 3—11; V. 1—14; VI. 1—4.

And upon the throne sat four and twenty elders, sitting, clothed in white garments, and upon their heads were crowns of gold.

And out of the throne are going forth lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and there are seven torches of fire, burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God; and before the throne there was a glassy sea, like unto crystal.

And under the throne there was a rainbow, and there were four living creatures; and they had each one of them six wings; and they had six heads and six wings; and they had no rest day or night, saying:

"Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was and who is and who is coming!"

And whensoever the living creatures shall give glory and honour and thanksgiving unto him that sitteth upon the throne, they shall fall down before him and do homage unto him, saying:

"Worthy art thou, O Lord, and our God, to receive the glory and the honour and the power; Because thou hast created all things, and by the will of thy power they were, and were created."

And I saw, upon the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne, a scroll written within, and on the back, sealed up with seven seals.

And I saw a mighty messenger, proclaiming with a loud voice:

"Who is worthy to open the scroll and to loosed the seals thereof?"

And no one was able in heaven, or on earth, or under the earth, to open the scroll, or to loosed the seals thereof.

And I saw, upon the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne, a white horse, and he that was sitting thereon held a bow; and there was given unto him a crown, and he went forth conquering, and that he might conquer.

And when he opened the second seal, I heard one of the living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder:

"Go!"

And there went forth another, a red horse; and he that was sitting thereon gave power unto men over the peace of the earth, to take peace away, and to cause men to kill one another; and there was given unto him a great sword.

And when he opened the third seal, I heard one of the living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder:

"Go!"

And I heard a voice of many messengers, round about the throne and the living creatures and the elders, and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands; and I heard the voice of many messengers saying, saying:

"Worthy art thou that wast slain, that art and art coming, to receive the power and riches and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and the blessing;"

To receive the power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and might, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

And every created thing which was in heaven, and upon the earth, and under the earth, and was in the sea, and all that was in them, heard I saying:

"Unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, be the blessing, and the honour, and the glory, and the dominion unto the ages of ages!"

And the four living creatures continued saying:

"Amen!"

And the elders fell down and did homage.

And I saw, when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals, I heard one of the living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder:

"Go!"

And I heard the second living creature saying:

"Raise up, and come, because the Lord God Almighty has come in to reign!"

And he that was seated on the white horse said to him that was holding the bow: "Rise, and come, for the kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever!"

And I saw, when the Lamb opened the sixth seal, I heard one of the living creatures, saying, as with a voice of thunder:

"Come, and see!"
and unto him that was sitting thereon! it was given [unto him] to take away peace from the earth, and that [one another] they should slay; and there was given unto him a great sword.

3 And <when he opened the third'seal> I heard the third' living creature, saying—

Go!

And I saw, and lo! a black horse, and he that was sitting thereon holding a pair of balances in his hand. 6 And I heard as a voice in the midst of the four' living creatures, saying—

A quart of wheat, for a denary, and three' quarts of barley, for a denary,—

And ||the oil and the wine|| do not wrong.

7 And <when he opened the fourth'seal> I heard the voice of the fourth' living creature, saying—

Go!

8 And I saw, and lo! a livid horse,— and he that was sitting thereupon had for a name ||Death||, and ||Hades|| was following with him; and there was given unto them authority over the fourth of the earth, to slay with sword, and with famine, and with death, and by the wild beasts of the earth.

9 And <when he opened the fifth'seal> I saw. beneath the altar, the souls of them who had been slain because of the word of God and because of the witness which they held. 10 And they cried out with a loud voice, saying—

How long, 0 Sovereign the Holy and True, dost thou not vindicate and avenge our blood from them that dwell upon the earth?

11 <After this> I saw four' messengers, standing at the four' corners of the earth, holding fast the four' winds of the earth, that no wind might blow upon the land, or upon the sea, or upon any'tree. 2 And I saw another' messenger, ascending from the rising of the sun, holding the seal of the Living God; and he cried out with a loud voice unto the four' messengers unto whom it had been given to injure the land and the sea, saying—

Do not injure the land, or the sea, or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of the sealed,— one hundred' and forty-four thousand,— sealed out of every' tribe of the sons of Israel:

5 |Of the tribe of Judah| twelve thousand, sealed, |Of the tribe of Reuben| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Gad| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Asher| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Naphtali| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Manasseh| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Simeon| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Levi| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Issachar| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Zebulun| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Benjamin| twelve thousand

6 |Of the tribe of Joseph| twelve thousand; h7 ||After these things|| I saw, and lo! a great multitude,— which, to number it! no one was able,— of every' nation, and of all' tribes, and peoples, and tongues'; standing before the throne, and before the Lamb; arrayed in white robes, and palm-branches in their hands;—

10 And they cry out with a loud voice, saying—

Salvation unto our God who sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb; m

11 And [all the messengers] were standing round about the throne and the elders and the four' living creatures; and they fell down before the throne upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God, 12 saying—

Amen!

Amen!

13 And one of the elders began, saying unto me—

And |unto him that was sitting thereon! it was given [unto him] to take away peace from the earth, and that [one another] they should slay; and there was given unto him a great sword.

17 Because the great day of their anger is come, and who is able to stand? o

7 ||After this|| I saw four' messengers, standing at the four' corners of the earth, holding fast the four' winds of the earth, that no wind might blow upon the land, or upon the sea, or upon any'tree. 2 And I saw another' messenger, ascending from the rising of the sun, holding the seal of the Living God; and he cried out with a loud voice unto the four' messengers unto whom it had been given to injure the land and the sea, saying—

Do not injure the land, or the sea, or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of the sealed,— one hundred' and forty-four thousand,— sealed out of every' tribe of the sons of Israel:

5 |Of the tribe of Judah| twelve thousand, sealed, |Of the tribe of Reuben| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Gad| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Asher| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Naphtali| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Manasseh| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Simeon| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Levi| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Issachar| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Zebulun| twelve thousand, |Of the tribe of Benjamin| twelve thousand

6 |Of the tribe of Joseph| twelve thousand; h7 ||After these things|| I saw, and lo! a great multitude,— which, to number it! no one was able,— of every' nation, and of all' tribes, and peoples, and tongues'; standing before the throne, and before the Lamb; arrayed in white robes, and palm-branches in their hands;—

10 And they cry out with a loud voice, saying—

Salvation unto our God who sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb; m

11 And [all the messengers] were standing round about the throne and the elders and the four' living creatures; and they fell down before the throne upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God, 12 saying—

Amen!

Amen!

13 And one of the elders began, saying unto me—
These who are arrayed in white robes, who are they? and whence came they?

14 And I at once said to him—

My lord! | thou knowest!
And he said unto me—

These are they who come out of the great tribulation, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb; for this cause are they before the throne of God, and are rendering divine service unto him day and night, in his sanctuary; and he that sitteth upon the throne shall spread his tent over them;

15 They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore; neither in any wise shall the sun fall upon them, nor any burning heat;

16 Because the Lamb that is in the midst of the throne shall shepherd them, and shall lead them unto life’s fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away every tear out of their eyes.

17 And <as soon as he opened the seventh seal> there came to be silence in heaven, as it were half an hour. And I saw the seven messengers which before God do stand; and there were given unto them seven trumpets.

18 And the first messenger sounded; and there came to be hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast unto the earth; and | the third of the earth | was burned up, and | the third of the trees | was burned up, and | all green herbage | was burned up. And | the second messenger | sounded: and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third of the sea became blood; and the third of the creatures which were in the sea, which had life, died; and | the third of the ships | was destroyed.

9 And | the fifth messenger | sounded; and I saw a star, | out of heaven | fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss. And he opened the shaft of the abyss; and there came up a smoke out of the shaft, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the shaft. And | out of the smoke | came forth | locusts | upon the earth; and there was given unto them license, as the scorpions of the earth have license. And it was bidden them that they should not injure the herbage of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but only the men who have not the seal of God upon their foreheads.

10 And <as soon as he opened the seventh seal> there came to be silence in heaven, as it were half an hour. And I saw the seven messengers which before God do stand; and there were given unto them seven trumpets.

And | the first | sounded; and there came to be hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast unto the earth; and | the third of the earth | was burned up, and | the third of the trees | was burned up, and | all green herbage | was burned up. And | the second messenger | sounded: and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third of the sea became blood; and the third of the creatures which were in the sea, which had life, died; and | the third of the ships | was destroyed.

11 And | the third messenger | sounded; and there fell out of heaven a great star, burning as a torch, and it fell upon the third of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters. And | the name of the star | is called Wormwood; and the third of the waters became wormwood, and many of the men died of the waters, because they were made bitter. And | the fourth messenger | sounded; and the third of the sun was smitten, and the third of the moon, and the third of the stars,—in order that the third of them might be darkened, and the day might not shine for the third of it, and the night, in like manner.

12 And I, and I heard one eagle, flying in mid-heaven, saying with a loud voice—

Woe! woe! woe! unto them that are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the remaining voices of the trumpet, of the three messengers who are about to sound.

13 And <as soon as he opened the seventh seal> there came to be silence in heaven, as it were half an hour. And I saw the seven messengers which before God do stand; and there were given unto them seven trumpets.

And | the first messenger | sounded; and I saw a star, | out of heaven | fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss. And he opened the shaft of the abyss; and there came up a smoke out of the shaft, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the shaft. And | out of the smoke | came forth | locusts | upon the earth; and there was given unto them license, as the scorpions of the earth have license. And it was bidden them that they should not injure the herbage of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but only the men who have not the seal of God upon their foreheads. And it was given unto them, that they should not slay them, but that they should be tormented five months; and | the torture of them | was as of a scorpion’s torture, whatsoever it smiteth a man. And | in those days | shall men seek death, and in nowise shall find it; and shall covet to die, and death fleeth from them. And | the likenessess of the locusts | were like unto horses prepared for battle; and | upon their heads | as it were crowns, like unto gold, and | their faces | were as the faces of men, and | they had hair | as the hair of women, and | their teeth | were as of lions, and they had breastplates as breastplates of iron, and | the sound of their wings | was as the sound of chariots of many horses, running into battle; and they have tails like unto scorpions, and stings, and in their tails is their licence to injure men five months. They have over them | as king | the messenger of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon (="Destroyer"), and | in the Greek | he hath for name | Destroyer. 12 The first Woe hath passed away, lo! there some yet two Woes, after these things.

14 And | the sixth messenger | sounded; and I saw a star, | out of heaven | fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon (="Destroyer"), and | in the Greek | he hath for name | Destroyer. | And | the sixth messenger | sounded; and I saw a star, | out of heaven | fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon (="Destroyer"), and | in the Greek | he hath for name | Destroyer. 12 The first Woe hath passed away, lo! there some yet two Woes, after these things.
heard one voice, from among the horns of the altar of gold which is before God, saying unto the sixth messenger, who was holding the trumpet—

Loose the four messengers, who are bound at the great river Euphrates.

And the four messengers were loosed, who had been prepared for the hour, and day, and month, and year, that they should slay the third of men. And thus saw I the horses in the vision,—and them who were sitting upon them, having breastplates of fire and hyacinth and brimstone; and the heads of the horses were as heads of lions, and out of their mouths came forth fire and smoke and brimstone: [by these three plagues] were alain, the third part of mankind, by reason of the fire and the smoke and the brimstone, that proceedeth out of their mouths; for the licence of the horses is in their mouth, and in their tails, for their tails are like unto serpents, having heads, and with them they injure.

And <the rest of mankind who were not slain by these plagues> repented not of the works of their hands; and <the court that is outside the Sanctuary> cast thou outside, and do not measure it, because it hath been given unto the nations, and [the holy city shall they tread under foot] forty and two months.

And I saw another, a mighty messenger, descending out of heaven,—arrayed with a cloud, and the rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as the sun, and his feet were as pillars of fire, and [he was] holding in his hand a little scroll, opened; and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the land, and cried out with a loud voice just as a lion roareth. And when he cried out the seven thunders uttered their own voices. And when the seven thunders had spoken I was about to write, and I heard a voice out of heaven, saying—

Seal up the things which the seven thunders have uttered, and do not write them.

And <the messenger, whom I saw standing upon the sea and upon the land> lifted up his right hand unto heaven, and spake <by him that liveth unto the ages of ages, who created heaven, and the things that are therein, and the earth, and the things that are therein, [and the sea, and the things that are therein]>

Delay! no longer shall there be; but in the days of the sounding of the seventh messenger, as soon as he is about to blow his trumpet> then shall have been completed the sacred secret of God as he told the good-news unto his own servants the prophets.

And <the voice which I had heard out of heaven> [I] again [heard] talking with me, and saying—

Go take the opened scroll, that is in the hand of the messenger who is standing upon the sea and upon the land.

And I went away unto the messenger, asking him to give me the little scroll; and he saith unto me—

Take it, and eat it up; and it shall embitter thy belly, but in thy mouth, shall be sweet as honey.

And I took the little scroll out of the hand of the messenger, and did eat it up; and it was in my mouth as honey sweet, and when I had eaten it, embittered was my belly. And they say unto me—

It behoveth thee again to prophesy against peoples and nations and tongues, and many kings.

And there was given unto me a reed like unto a staff, like unto a staff, like unto a rod, saying—

Rise, and measure the Sanctuary of God, and the altar, and them who are doing homage therein; and [the court that is outside the Sanctuary] cast thou outside, and do not measure it, because it hath been given unto the nations, and [the holy city shall they tread under foot] forty and two months.

And I will give unto my two witnesses, that they shall prophesy, a thousand two hundred and sixty days, arrayed in sackcloth.

These are the two olive-trees, and the two lamps, which [before the Lord of the earth do stand]. And if any one [upon them] chooseth to inflict injury> [fire] cometh forth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies; and if anyone shall choose [upon them] to inflict injury> [thus] must he be slain.

These have authority to shut heaven, in order that [no rain] be moistening in the days of their prophesying; and [authority] have they [over the waters], to be turning them into blood, and to smite the land, with any manner of plague [as often as they will].

And <as soon as they have completed their witnessing> [the wild-beast that is to come up out of the abyss will make war with them,} and overcome them,* and slay them. 8 And their dead bodies [lie] upon the broadway of the great city, the which is called, spiritually, |Sodom| and Egypt; where [their Lord also was crucified]. 9 And [some] of the peoples, and tribes, and tongues, and nations [see] their dead bodies three days and a half, and [their dead bodies] do they not suffer to be put into a tomb. 10 And [they who are dwelling upon the earth] rejoice over them, and make merry, and ||gifts|| will they send one to another,—1 because [these two' prophets] tormentcd them that were dwelling upon the earth.

11 And <after the three' days and a half> |a spirit of life from God| entered within them, and they stood upon their feet; and |great fear| fell upon them who were beholding them.*

12 And they heard a loud voice out of heaven, saying unto them—

Come up hither! And they went up into heaven} in the cloud, and 1 the enemies |beheld them.

13 And ||in that' hour|| there came to be a great earthquake*; and |the tenth of the city| fell, and there were slain, in the earthquake, names of men—seven thousand. And ||the rest|| became |greatly afraid|, and gave glory unto the God of heaven.b

14 ||The second Woe|| hath passed away,—lo! the third Woe cometh speedily.1

15 And [the seventh' messenger] sounded; and there came to be loud voices in heaven, saying—

The kingdom of the world hath become [the kingdom] of our Lord,* and of his Christ,* and he shall reign unto the ages of ages.m

16 And <the twenty-four elders who |before God| dot it upon their thrones> fell down upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God,17 saying—We give thanks unto thee, O Lord God, the Almighty,™ Who is,* and Who was; because thou hast takenthy great power, and hast become king.p

17 And [the nations] were angered*; and thine anger [came], and the fit time of the dead, to be vindicated,* and to give their reward unto thy servants the prophets,* and unto the saints, and unto them who revere thy name—the small and the great,* and to despoil them who were despoiling the earth.

18 And the sanctuary of God which is in heaven [was opened], and the ark of his covenant in his sanctuary* [appeared], and there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunderings,* and an earthquake, and great hail.b

12 And ||a great sign|| appeared in heaven; a woman arrayed with the sun, and |the moon| beneath her feet, and |upon her head| a crown of twelve stars; 1 and she was with child, and cried out, being in parvis and in anguish to bring forth. 3 And there appeared another sign in heaven; and lo! a great red dragon,—4 having seven heads and ten horns,* and [upon his heads] seven' diadems; 4 and [his tail] dreweth the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth.* And |the dragon| stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that <as soon as she should bring forth> he might devour her child. 5 And she brought forth a son, a manchild,* who was about b to shepherd all' the nations with a sceptre of iron;* and her child was caught away unto God and unto his throne. 6 And [the woman] fled into the desert, where she hath a place prepared of God, that ||there!|| they should nourish her a thousand, two hundred, and sixty days. 7 And there came to be war in heaven: Michael1 and his messengers [going forth] to war with the dragon; and |the dragon| fought, and his messengers; 8 and he prevailed not, neither was place found for them, any longer, in heaven. 9 And the great dragon was cast out,—the ancient serpent,* he that is called Adversary and the Satan,* that deceiveth the whole habitable world,—he was cast to the earth, and his messengers |with him| were cast. 10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying—

Now|| hath come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the authority* of his Christ; Because the accuser of our brethren hath been cast out, who was accusing them before our God day and night; 11 And [they] overcame him by reason of the blood of the Lamb, and by reason of their witnessing' word, and they loved not their life|even unto death|.

12 ||For this cause|| be joyful, O heavens,* and ye who |therein| are tabernacling. Woe! unto the earth, and thesea.becausethe Adversary hath come down unto you, having great wrath—knowing that |but a little' season| he hath.

13 And <when the dragon saw that he was cast to the earth> he pursued the woman who had brought forth the manchild. 14 And there were given unto the woman the two' wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the desert, into her place,—where she is nourished, a season and seasons and half a season, from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast out of his mouth, after the woman, water as a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the stream. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the river which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was angered against the woman, and went away to make war with the rest of her seed— with them who were keeping the commandments of God, and holding the witness of Jesus; and he stood upon the sand of the sea.

13 And I saw, out of the sea a wild-beast coming up; having ten horns and seven heads, and upon his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy. And I saw one of his heads, showing that it had been slain unto death, and the stroke of his death was healed. And the whole earth marvelled after the wild-beast, and did homage unto the dragon, because he gave his authority unto the wild-beast; and they did homage unto the wild-beast, saying—Who is like unto the wild-beast? and Who can make war with him?

And there was given unto him, a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and it was given unto him to act forty and two months. And he opened his mouth for blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tent,—them who in heaven were tabernacles.

And he causeth the earth, and them who therein are dwelling, that they shall do homage unto the first wild-beast, whose stroke of death was healed. And he doeth great signs, so that even fire he causeth to be coming down unto the earth before men; and he deceiveth them who are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the signs which it was given him to do before the wild-beast,—saying unto them who are dwelling upon the earth, that they should make an image unto the wild-beast who hath the stroke of the sword, and yet did live. And it was given unto it, to give spirit unto the image of the wild-beast, in order that the image of the wild-beast should both speak and should cause that as many as should not do homage unto the image of the wild-beast should be slain. And he causeth all— the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bond, that they should give unto them a mark, upon their right hand or upon their forehead; and that no one should be able to buy or to sell, save he that hath the mark, the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

15 And I saw another wild-beast, coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns, like unto a lamb, and began speaking as a dragon. And all the authority of the first wild-beast he useth before him; and causeth the earth, and them who therein are dwelling, that they shall do homage unto the first wild-beast, whose stroke of death was healed. And he doeth great signs, so that even fire he causeth to be coming down unto the earth before men; and he deceiveth them who are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the signs which it was given him to do before the wild-beast,—saying unto them who are dwelling upon the earth, that they should make an image unto the wild-beast who hath the stroke of the sword, and yet did live. And it was given unto it, to give spirit unto the image of the wild-beast, in order that the image of the wild-beast should both speak and should cause that as many as should not do homage unto the image of the wild-beast should be slain. And he causeth all—the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bond,—that they should give unto them a mark, upon their right hand or upon their forehead; and that no one should be able to buy or to sell, save he that hath the mark, the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

14 And I saw, and lo! the Lamb standing upon the mount Zion,—and with him a hundred and forty-four thousand, having his name and his Father's name written upon their foreheads. And I heard a sound out of heaven, as the sound of many waters and as the sound of loud thunders; and the sound which I heard was as of harp-singers harping with their harps. And they sing as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures and the elders. And no one was able to learn the song, save the hundred and forty-four thousand, who had been redeemed from the earth.

And I saw another messenger, flying in mid-heaven, having an age-alighting glad-message to announce unto them who are dwelling upon the earth, even unto every nation and tribe and tongue and people, saying with a loud voice—
Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judging is come; and do homage unto him that made heaven and the earth and sea and fountains of waters.

And another, a second [messenger] followed, saying—

Fallen! fallen! is Babylon the great, who <of the wine of the wrath of her lewdness> hath caused all the nations to drink.

And another, a third messenger followed them, saying with a loud voice—

If anyone doeth homage unto the beast and his image, or if anyone receiveth the mark of his name.

Who shall in anywise not be put in fear, one (saith the Spirit) that they may rest Write!

Happy! the dead who in the Lord do die Write!

Yea! (saith the Spirit) that they may rest Write!

And I saw, and lo! a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sitting like unto a son of man, having upon his head a crown of gold, and [in his hand] a sharp sickle.

And another messenger came forth out of the sanctuary, crying out with a loud voice, unto him that was sitting upon the cloud—

Thrust in thy sickle, and reap; because the harvest of the earth is ripe.

And he that was sitting upon the cloud [thrust in] his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast [it] into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. And the wine-press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine-press, even unto the bits of the horses, at a distance of a thousand six hundred furlongs.

And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous,—seven messengers having seven plagues [the last], because [in them] was ended the wrath of God.

And I saw as a glassy sea mingled with fire, and them who escape victorious from the beast, and from his image, and from the number of his name, standing upon the glassy sea, having harps of God; and they sing the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying—

Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord, God, the Almighty!

Righteous and true are thy ways, O King of the ages!

Who shall in anywise not be put in fear, Because [alone] full of lovingkindness; Because [all the nations] will have come, and will do homage before thee,

Because [thy righteous deeds] were made manifest?

And after these things I saw, and the sanctuary of The Tent of Witness in heaven was opened; and the seven' messengers who had the seven plagues [came forth] out of the sanctuary clothed with a [precious] stone, pure, bright, and girt about the breasts with girdles of gold.

And [one of the four] living creatures gave unto the seven' messengers, seven golden bowls, full of the wrath of God who liveth unto the ages of ages. And the sanctuary was filled with smoke by reason of the glory of God, and by reason of his power; and no one was able to enter into the sanctuary until the seven' plagues of the seven' messengers should be ended. And I heard a loud' voice, out of the sanctuary; saying unto the seven' messengers—

Go, and be pouring out the seven bowls of the wrath of God unto the earth.

And the messenger [thrust in] his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast [it] into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. And the wine-press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine-press, even unto the bits of the horses, at a distance of a thousand six hundred furlongs.

And I heard a loud' voice, out of the sanctuary; saying unto the seven' messengers—

Go, and be pouring out the seven bowls of the wrath of God unto the earth.
3 And the second poured out his bowl into the sea; and it became blood, as of a dead man, and every living soul died— as regardeth the things in the sea.

4 And the third poured out his bowl into the rivers, and the fountains of waters; and they became blood.

5 And I heard the messenger of the waters, saying—

Righteous art thou, Who art, and Who wast, Who art full of lovingkindness,—in that these things thou hast adjudged; because [blood of saints and prophets] poured they out, and [blood, unto them] hast thou given to drink:— Worthy they are!

6 Because [blood of saints and prophets] poured they out, and [blood] unto them hast thou given to drink:— Worthy they are!

7 And I heard the altar saying—

Yeas! Lord, God, the Almighty: True and righteous, are thy judgments!

8 And the fourth poured out his bowl upon the sun; and it was given unto it, to scorch mankind with fire; and mankind were scorched with a great scorching heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who had authority over these plagues, and repented not to give him glory.

9 And the fifth poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became darkened, and they began to gnaw their tongues by reason of the pain,— and they blasphemed the God of heavens by reason of their pain, and by reason of their ulcers, and repented not of their works.

10 And the sixth poured out his bowl upon the great river [the] Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way might lie prepared, of the kings who were rising of the sun.

12 And the sixth poured out his bowl upon the great river [the] Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way might lie prepared, of the kings who were rising of the sun.

13 And I saw <out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false-prophet> three impure spirits, as frogs; for they are spirits of demons, doing signs, which are to go forth unto the kings of the whole habitable earth, to gather them together unto the battle of the great day of God the Almighty. —

14 And there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and [a great earthquake] took place,— such as had never taken place since men came to be on the earth,— such a mighty earthquake, so great; and the great city became divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and [Babylon the Great!] was brought into remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the wrath of his anger; and [every inland] fled, and [mountains] were not found. And [great hail, as talents] cometh down out of heaven upon mankind; and men blasphemed God, by reason of the plague of hail,— because the plague thereof was exceeding great.

15 Lo! I come as a thief!

17 And of the seven' messengers who had the seven' bowls came, and spake with me, saying—

Hither! I will point out to thee the judgment of the great harlot, who sitteth upon many waters, with whom the kings of the earth committed lewdness,— and they who were dwelling upon the earth were made drunk with the wine of her lewdness.

18 And he carried me away into a desert in spirit. And I saw a woman, sitting upon a scarlet wild-beast full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And <the woman] was arrayed with purple and scarlet, and decked with gold and precious stones and pearls,— having a cup of gold in her hand, full of abominations and the impurities of her lewdness; and upon her forehead a name written, a secret:

Babylon the great, the Mother of the Harlots and of the Abominations of the Earth.

19 And I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And I was astonished, when I beheld her, with great astonishment. And the messenger said unto me—

Wherefore wast thou astonished? I will tell thee the secret of the woman, and of the wild-beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven' heads and the ten' horns.

20 The wild-beast which thou sawest was, and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss, and into destruction goeth away. And they who are dwelling upon the earth, whose name is not written upon the book of life* from the foundation of the world, will be astonished, when they see the wild-beast, because it was, and is not, and shall be present.
Here is the mind that hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains whereupon the woman sitteth; and they are seven kings: the five have fallen, and the other hath not yet come; and whatsoever he shall come a little while must he remain, and the wild-beast which was and is not. And he is an eighth, and is of the seven, and into destruction goeth away.

Waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth are peoples and multitudes and nations and tongues. And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, who, indeed, have not received sovereignty as yet, but authority, as kings, for one hour shall receive, with the wild-beast. These have one mind, and their power and authority unto the wild-beast they give. These, with the Lamb, will make war; and the Lamb will overcome them, because he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and they who are with him are called and chosen and faithful.

For God hath put into their hearts, to do his mind, and to do one mind, and to give their sovereignty unto the wild-beast, until the words of God shall be completed. And he saith unto me—Thewaters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth are peoples and multitudes and nations and tongues. And the ten horns which thou sawest, and the wild-beast these shall hate the harlot, and desolate shall make her, and naked, and her flesh shall they eat, and herself shall they burn up with fire. For God hath put into their hearts, to do his mind, and to do one mind, and to give their sovereignty unto the wild-beast, until the words of God shall be completed. And the woman whom thou sawest is the great city, which hath sovereignty over the kings of the earth. After these things I saw another messenger, coming down out of heaven, having great authority; and the earth was illuminated with his glory. And he cried out, with a mighty voice, saying—Fallen! fallen is Babylon the Great, and hath become a habitation of demons, and a prison of every impure spirit, and a prison of every impure and hated bird; because in her heart she saith—I am Queen, and widow am I not. And grief in nowise shall I see! Therefore in one day shall have come her plagues—death and grief and famine; and with fire shall she lie burned up;—because mighty is the Lord God who hath judged her. And they shall weep and wail over her—shall the kings of the earth who with her committed lewdness and waxed wanton, as soon as they see the smoke of her burning, afar off standing, because of their fear of her torment, saying—Alas! alas! the great city! Babylon, the mighty city!

When the fruit of the coveting of thy soul Hath departed from thee, And all things rich and bright Have perished from thee; And no more, in anywise, for them shall they seek. The merchants of these things, who were enriched by her, afar off shall stand, because of their fear of her torment, weeping and grieving. As she also rendered, And double the double, According to her works.

And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, who, indeed, have not yet received sovereignty as yet, but authority, as kings, for one hour shall receive, with the wild-beast. These have one mind, and their power and authority unto the wild-beast they give. These, with the Lamb, will make war; and the Lamb will overcome them, because he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and they who are with him are called and chosen and faithful.

Alas! alas! the great city!
She that was arrayed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet,
And decked with gold, and precious stone, and pearl,—

That in one hour hath been laid waste such great wealth as this!

And every pilot, and every passenger, and mariners, and as many as by the sea carry on traffic—afar off did stand, and they cried out, seeing the smoke of her burning,*
saying—

What city is like unto the great city?b

And they cast dust upon their heads, and cried out, weeping and grieving, saying—

Alas! alas! the great city!
Whereby were made rich all that had ships in the sea, by reason of her costliness,—

That in one hour she hath been laid waste!c

Be glad over her, thou heaven!d
And ye saints, and ye apostles, and ye prophets:
For that God hath exacted your vindication from her.*

And one mighty messenger lifted a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying—

Thus, with main force! shall she be cast down, Babylon the great' city,—
And in no wise be found any more!

And sound of harp-singers, and musicians, and flute-players, and trumpeters,—
In no wise be heard in thee any more!;
And any' artisan' [of any art],—
In no wise be found in thee any more;
And sound of millstone,—
In no wise be found in thee any more;

And light of lamp,—
In no wise shine in thee any more;
And voice of bridegroom and bride,—
In no wise be heard in thee any more;

Because [thy merchants] were the great ones of the earth,
Because [with thy sorcery] were all the nations deceived:

And in her [blood of prophets and saints] was found,—
And of all who had been slain upon the earth.

After these things I heard as it were, a loud voice of many multitudes in heaven, saying—

Hallelujah!e

The salvation and the glory and the power of our God!

Because [true* and righteous] are his judgments*b;
Because he hath judged the great harlot, who, indeed, corrupted the earth with her lewdness,—

And hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand.č

And [a second time]! have they said—

Hallelujah!

And [her smoke] ascended unto ages of ages.d

And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures [fell down], and did homage unto God, who sitteth upon the throne,* saying—

Amen! Hallelujah!

And [a voice] from the throne came forth, saying—

Be giving praise unto our God, all ye his servants, ye that revile him, the small and the great.f

And I heard as a voices of a great multitude, and as a voice* of many waters, and as a voice* of mighty thunders, saying—

Hallelujah!

Because the Lord, [our] God, the Almighty [hath become king].b

Let us rejoice and exult, and give glory unto him,
Because the marriage of the Lamb [is come], and [his wife] hath made herself ready;

And it hath been given unto her, that she should be arrayed in fine linen, bright, pure, for [the fine linen] is [the righteous acts of the saints].

And he saith unto me—

Write!

[Happy] they who unto the marriage supper of the Lamb! have been bidden:
And he saith unto me—

[These] words! are [true] [words] of God!

And I fell down at his feet, to do him homage; and he saith unto me—

See! [thou do it] not! [A fellow-servant] am I, of thee and of thy brethren who have the witness of Jesus: unto God do homage!

For [the witness of Jesus] is the spirit of the prophesies,

And I saw heaven, set open, and lo! a white horse, and [he that was sitting thereon] [called] Faithful, and True; and [in righteousness] doth he judge and make war; and [his eyes] are a flame of fire,* and [upon his head] are many diadems, having [a name] written, which [no one] knoweth, but [himself], and arrayed with a mantle sprinkled with blood,* and his name hath been called—

The Word of God.

And when the thousand years were past, then Satan was loosed from the prison, and Satan went out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, of the wild beast and of the false prophet, to gather them together into the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

And he gathered them together into the battle: the numbering of them was as the sand of the sea.

And they went up over the breadth of the earth, and surrounded the camp of the saints, and the beloved city. And there came down fire out of heaven, and devoured them. And not a living soul was found in the city.

And so the great city was divided into three parts by fire. And they burned the wild beast and the false prophet. And the power of Satan was thrown down to earth. And they knew not that it was the hour of their visitation.

And the smoke of their torment rose up forever and ever. And they had no rest day or night, until the thousand years were ended. Then God set his seal upon them, so that they might not deceive the nations any more, until the thousand years were ended. And after this the Accuser shall be loosed from his prison, and will go forth to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he will be called the Accuser, and the Adversary of the saints. And he will be loosed from his prison, and will go forth to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth. And he was loosed from his prison, and went out to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth.
And death shall be no more,
And grief and outcry and pain shall be no more:

Lo! I make all things new.

And he that was sitting upon the throne said—

Lo! I make all things new. And he said—

Write! because these words are faithful and true.

And he said unto me—

Accomplished.

I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End:

He that is thirsty will give of the fountain of life freely.

He that overcometh shall inherit these things,

And I will be to him a God, and he shall be to me a son;

But as for the timid, and disbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all the false, their part is in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

And there came one of the seven messengers which had the seven bowls, that were full of the seven last plagues, and spake with me, saying—

Hither! I will point out to thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb.

And he carried me away, in spirit, unto a mountain great and high, and pointed out to me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven, like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone, shining as crystal;

And I saw no river therein; for the Lord, God Almighty, is the sanctuary thereof, and the Lamb.

And the city hath no need of the sun, nor of the moon, that they should shine therein; for the glory of God illumineth it, and the lamp thereof was the Lamb.

And the nations shall walk through her light; and the kings of the earth do bring their glory into it, and the gates thereof shall in nowise be shut by day, neither by night; in fact, shall not be there; and they shall bring the glory and the honour of the nations into it.

And in nowise shall there enter into it, anything common, or he that doeth abomination and falsehood, but only they who are written in the Lamb's book of life.

And he pointed out to me a river of water of life, bright as crystal, issuing forth out of the throne of God and of the Lamb, in the midst of the broadway thereof. And on this side of the river and on that side was a tree of life, bearing twelve crops of fruit, every several month yielding its fruit; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

And no curse shall be any more; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be therein, and his servants will render divine service unto him, and they shall see his face, and his name shall be upon their foreheads.

And night shall be no more; and they have no need of the light of a lamp or the light of a sun, because the Lord, God will give them light, and they shall reign unto the ages of ages.

And he said unto me—

These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets hath sent his messenger, to point out unto his servants, the things which must needs come to pass with speed.

Lo! I come speedily!
8 And I, John, am he that was hearing and seeing these things; and when I had heard and seen, I fell down to do homage at the feet of the messenger who had been pointing out unto me these things, and he saith unto me—

9 See thou do it not! A fellow-servant am I, of thee, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them who keep the words of this scroll; unto God do homage.

10 And he saith unto me—

11 He that is doing unjustly let him do unjustly; and he that is filthy let him be made filthy; and he that is righteous let him do righteousness; and he that is holy let him be hallowed;—

12 Lo! I come speedily,

13 My reward is with me, to render unto each one as his work is.

14 I am the A and the Z, the Beginning and the End.

15 Happy are the ones washed in their robes, and by the gates they may enter into the city.

16 Outside are the dogs, and the sorcerers, and the unclean, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and every one loving and doing falsehood.

17 I, Jesus, have sent my messenger to bear witness unto you of these things, for the assemblies.

18 I am the Root and the Offspring of David, The bright and the morning Star.

19 And the Spirit and the Bride say—Come!

20 He that heareth let him come,—He that is athirst let him take of the water of life freely.

21 The favour of the Lord Jesus Christ be with the saints.
APPENDIX.

ABYSS. It is easy to say that this word, according to its derivation, signifies "bottomless"; and that it is sometimes employed, more generally, to denote the unfathomed, boundless, enormous; but its chief interest, as a N. T. word, lies in the question how far it is synonymous with "hades." SufFice it here to connect it with that larger subject, and to observe that in the Christian Writings it occurs only in the following places: Lu. viii. 31; Ro. x. 7; Rev. ix. 1, 2, 11; xi. 7; xvii. 8; xx, 1, 3.

AGE. To trace the Biblical development of the Ages is to gain a point from which many far-reaching observations may be made. The first thing to note is, that the idea of an "age" is one of comparatively slow growth. The biblical parent of the Greek kaios is the Hebrew olam, and the root conception of olam is concealed duration. Concealed duration is naturally unknown and unbound; and it should be carefully remembered that it is from the fundamental conception of the nouns olam and kaios that the force of the qualifying terms edem and aionios springs. (See below on Age-abiding.) The second thing to observe is, that duration does not fall into "ages" until it acquires character, and there is a transition of the times from one character into another. Only by degrees can a period round itself off into a "golden age," and then, by some observable transition, the time become so changed as to appear as only a "silver age" in comparison; or "an age of barbarism" undergo such an amelioration as to become gradually merged into "an age of civilization." Accordingly it is von tilz who gives "the Age of Mosaic" with oldenses in the plural. The third thing to notice is, that "ages" may be so modified by local conditions as to vary with country and sphere; so that the ages in different lands may be far from simultaneous. While one country is advancing in civilization or religion, another may be receding. A golden age may not be world-wide; a barbarous period may not affict all lands at once; and an age of activity in one direction may be an age of stagnation or reaction in another. In the ages may overlap and interface and interchange; and the result may be one of the utmost complexity, calling for the most thoughtful and guarded phraseology of "an age of transition." Nay, the Hebrews, changed into the "Mosaic," and yet for other nations remain patriarchal still. "The Mosaic age" may be the only experience which the Gentiles have to tell him; whereas, once assume the existence of an idiom, and then all periphery is at an end—"sodes, eucharis, and the ten aionios and the ten ages of the world," of which the Hebrews have no notion. Against this fundamental notion in the well known idiomatic phrase "dias aionia lima (lit. "into or unto the ages";) in the interpretation of which it is the more necessary that the old dispensations be ignored, and each word be pressed on its individual merits. The reader will be continually teased by feeling that he is being referred to some particular and pre-eminent age, which ought to be well-known, while all the time it is unknown. He may say: "Unto the age—unto what age?" and there will be nothing to continue it to tell him; whereas, once assume the existence of an idiom, and then all periphery is at an end—sodes, eucharis, and the ten aionios and the ten ages of the world; of which the Hebrews have no notion. The Age-abiding: that is, lasting for an indefinite or perpetual age; or abiding from age to age. The reasons for adopting this rendering of the Greek adjective aionios are: (1) to keep up a close connection with the word "age" as the translation, in this New Testament, of the cognate noun aion; (2) and to avoid, as too restricted, the confinement of the idea to any particular, limited age. It is true that aion does not of itself mean absolute eternity; otherwise it would not submit to be multiplied by itself, as in the familiar phrase "aions of aions," which would then be equivalent to "eternities of eternities."; and it is further true that, in the history of divine revelation, aionios puts a dispensational limit upon itself, so far as that the dawn of a new aion or "age" serves to close and exclude an old aion or "age," the end of which was of aforesaid concealed in the mist of an undefined futurity (cp. note on "Age," above). But with all this, it is most important to remember that "age" is not the primary meaning of aion; rather, "duration indefinitely extended." Moreover, it seems to be so clothed with this more primitive significance, that the qualifying word aionios comes to dilute and abridge its meaning to this fundamental notion in the well known idiomatic phrase "dias aionia lima (lit. "into or unto the ages";) in the interpretation of which it is the more necessary that the old dispensations be ignored, and each word be pressed on its individual merits. gather about it. The "call" of the glad-message can be read by everyone who cares to inform himself; the separation of the standing and living to which the summons is addressed can equally assuage and set, and so the lofty ideal set before the assembly of the Son of God may soon disclose itself to the humble and ardent inquirer. It must be the fate of few who have entered God's kingdom to attain to such a position that they can look out from the walls of Jerusalem and waken the dead to life. In the meantime it is a duty to all who love the Lord to gather about the place of assembly and to stand at the post assigned to them. May every Christian labor to become a ".vaunting boast," to become a "rally point," to become a "star," to become a "coast," to become a "testament," or a "covenant." According to Lu. xxii. 38 and 1 Co. xi. 25, the word "name" was prefixed to "diaskeuë" and this at once sends us to Jer. xxxii. 32 and xxxiii. 20, where old and new are brought into contrast (cp. He. viii. 18). This is the high way by which the word "diaskeuë" comes into our Christian language. It was in the presence of Jeremiah into the upper room at Jerusalem. Under these circumstances it is confidently submitted that the same meaning must hold good throughout: if it was a "testament" at the Last Supper, then it must have been a "testament" in Jeremiah, and a "covenant" in Exodus—which even the A. V. does not affirm; whereas working in the opposite direction, if it was a "covenant" in Exodus and a "covenant" in Jeremiah, as even the A. V. has it, then the word must have meant "covenant" and not "testament" on the lips of our Lord and in the letter of his Apostle. It is granted that "diaskeuë" in the classics sometim es means "will," changing trans to express contempt for the Philistine god, and perhaps alluding to the connection between flies and dung or putrid things.

BAPTISM. See immersion.

BEELZEBUL (Beelzeboul). This and not "Beelzebub" is the form ordinarily found in Greek New Testaments; but Westcott and Hort print the latter as the true form. Beelzeboul was the beelzeboule, the "Lord's heavenly dwelling." (App. to Introduction, p. 159.) "Baal-zebub," we may observe, however, is found in 2 K. i. 2, 5, 6, and signifies "Lord of Baalsheba," or, the temple of Baalsheba, which was here a kind of Baal. "Baal" and "Beelzeboul" are associated in the person of Belshazzar, who was the Persian Baalzebul, the god of Belshazzar, and the last king of the Jewish monarchy. (See esp. Ezek. xxiii. 36-38; 2 K. ii. 19-21.) The word is used in a simple appellative, or descriptive epithet, in which cases the meaning comes to the front, and the word should be translated more commonly, the word is an official title, or a personal name; hence, in the majority of its occurrences, it is here merely transferred. It is impossible to be accurately used in every clause, whether it should not be transferred or whether it should be transferred.

Or, "Anointed," a term to be understood by the types and prophecies found in the law and prophets. (1 Cor. iii. 16; 10. 11; 2 Co. iii. 13; 2 Jn. 1; 3 John 7; Izr. 2-5; Izr. 1-3; Dan. ix. 25, 26; and by the great fact stated in Mt. iii. 16; Acts iv. 31; Acts iv. 30; and the form 30.) Sometimes the word is used as a simple appellative, or descriptive epithet, in which case the meaning comes to the front, and the word should be translated more commonly, the word is an official title, or a personal name; hence, in the majority of its occurrences, it is here merely transferred. It is impossible to be accurately used in every clause, whether it should not be transferred or whether it should be transferred.

The N. T. word diastele signifies "covenant," because it is the Sep. rendering of the Heb. b'rith, which everywhere in the O. T. means covenant and covenant only. This argument from Septuagintal usage is immensely strengthened by observing along what a highway the word is used in the N. T. Let us look at these two points in succession. That "covenant" in the meaning of b'rith is sufficiently attested by the fact that the Oxford "Lexicon" assigns it to no other. If, however, we pass from lexical authority to actual usage, we discover the most abundant and varied evidence of "covenant" being the meaning of b'rith. It is a word in common use to denote all sorts of covenants between all sorts of persons; e.g., between Abraham and Isaac (Gen. xxiv. 22-27). It is used in such a sense as the word "covenant" is in the Heb. and Lat. (xxxiv. 44), Joshua and Hulom (Jos. ix. 16), Solomon and Hiram (1 K. v. 1-2) to instance only a few examples out of the many. It is used in such a sense as the word "covenant" is in the Heb. and Lat.; the word b'rith even being passed from the human to the divine, or from the divine to the human, as to fix the sense in the larger application by the force of the surrounding context. I will never break my covenant (b'rith, diastele) with you; and ye shall make no covenant (b'rith, distale) with the inhabitants of this land (Dg. ii. 1, 2). And it should be observed that never once, as between man and man, does b'rith mean a "tryst," a "meeting," to come into force when the testator is dead. Advancing now to the second point. The word diastele first appears in the N. T. over the Lord's table, from the lips of the Lord himself: "This is my blood of the covenant (b'rith, diastele)" (Mt. xxii. 20; Mk. xiv. 24); The words "blood of the diastele" are from Exo. xxiv. 8, from which passage we learn that there was a diastele entered into as a "testament," or a "covenant." According to Lu. xxii. 38 and 1 Co. xi. 25, the word "name" was prefixed to diastele; and this at once sends us to Jer. xxxii. 32 and xliv. 20, where old and new are brought into contrast (cp. He. viii. 18). This is the high way by which the word diastele comes into our Christian language. It was in the presence of Jeremiah into the upper room at Jerusalem. Under these circumstances it is confidently submitted that the same meaning must hold good throughout: if it was a "testament" at the Last Supper, then it must have been a "testament" in Jeremiah, and a "covenant" in Exodus—which even the A. COVENANT. The N. T. word diastele signifies "covenant," because it is the Sep. rendering of the Heb. b'rith which everywhere in the O. T. means covenant and covenant only. This argument from Septuagintal usage is immensely strengthened by observing along what a highway the word is used in the N. T. Let us look at these two points in succession. Scriptures (1 Co. x. 20; Rev. ix. 20); seventh that their knowledge of God causes them to "shudder" (Jas. ii. 19); and eighth that the Apostle Paul (in 1 Tim. iv. 1-5), makes a remarkable allusion to these seven; "Before dismissing this phase of the question, it should be observed in the following O. T. passages the word "demon" should appear: (xvii. 2); (xxii. 17; 2 Ch. xi. 15); Ps. civ. 57. At the same time it is right to remember the latitude with which the word was employed among heathen nations, among whom the "demons" were sometimes regarded as deities not necessarily evil; else we may fail to see that the Apostle Paul was far from needlessly offending the Athenians, whom, of course, he wished to conciliate (Ac. xvii. 29). In this version demons are never termed "devils."

EVIL ONE.
The Greek pantos may be either masculine or neuter: and therefore mean either "evil one" or "evil." But, says Trench (Parables, p. 469), "the analogy of Mat. xix. 19, 20; Ep. vi. 16; 2 Thess. iii. 3 would lead us to translate in the Lord's prayer pantos as a masculine. It was always so interpreted in the Greek Church."

GEHENNA.

This word occurs only in the following places in the New Testament: Mt. v. 22, 25, 30; x. 28; xviii. 9; xxii. 15, 33; Mk. iv. 45, 47; Lu. xi. 8; 2 Cor. iii. 6. The word itself is explained (by abbreviation from the Hebrew phrase for "the valley of the son or sons of Hinnom") gen eyes (or Hinnom); "the valley of Hinnom," or in some instances, gen eyes, (or Hinnom) gen eyes, (or Hinnom) gen, (or Hinnom)." This, according to the Oxford Greek-English, edited by Drs. Driver, Briggs and Brown, should be rendered "Hinnom" (or "Hinnom") (or "Hinnom"). Hence, it is probably the proper name masculine of the god of the Hinnites, who were the ancient inhabitants of Jerusalem, once belonging, where children were sacrificed to Moloch. Whether the N. T. use of the word does not point to some common life, must be left to the solemn consideration of the student. It would seem evident, in the N. T. at least, that a marked distinction exists between hades and gehenna; but whether the O. T. notion of "the lowest hades" did or did not approximate to the N. T. conception of gehenna, might perhaps be worthy of consideration.

GLAD-MESSAGE.

Or "good news," "joyful-tidings"; but no English word, single or compound, seems equal to the beautiful Greek word euangelion. "Glad-message" suits well the agreement of most messengers (Ac. viii. 15; Ro. x. 15); the notion of a trust (Gal. ii. 7; 1 Tim. i. 11); the purpose of a witness (Mt. xxiv. 14); and the claim for submission (Ro. i. 16). But in teaching and preaching, synonyms may be effectively interchanged. Evangellion in the N. T. deals with: (1) the kingdom (Mt. iv. 17; xii. 15); (2) the "glory of God" (2 Co. iv. 4; 1 Tim. i. 11); (3) "peace" (Ac. xix. 16; Eph. ii. 17; 1 Th. iii. 2; 2 Th. ii. 18); (4) "the grace of God" (Ro. i. 11; xv. 16; 2 Co. xi. 7); (5) the "glory of God" (Ac. xx. 24); (6) "soul" (Ac. xix. 16); (7) the "faith" (Gal. ii. 23). It is described as a "great joy" (Lu. ii. 10); and--either the general message, or a special one for a crisis--as "age-abiding" (Rev. xiv. 6). We also read of the "word" (Ac. xxvii. 7), the "hope" (Col. i. 23), the "truth" (Gal. ii. 14), the "redemption" (Eph. v. 15), and the "secret sacred" (Eph. iv. 19) of the glad-message, and the Apostle Paul speaks of "my glad-message" (Ro. ii. 16; xvii. 18; 2 Th. iii. 9); and of "our glad-message" (1 Th. i. 6; 2 Th. ii. 14). The word in the titles to the four evangelical narratives is understood to be traditional, the most ancient copies having simply "According to Matthew," etc.; at the same time there is much use in the variation of Westcott and Hort: who head each narrative in the manner just described--KATA MATTHAIW., etc. --but place the word EUANGELIION in the singular to the quartering of "Gospels," we have wished to supply the antecedent word, as that gives an adequate sense to the title in the Greek, and is the usual form of Septuagint rendering of the Hebrew shakol, which is found sixty-five times in the O. T. In order to form proper Biblical ideas of Hades it is plainly important that all the scriptures on the subject should bear upon each other. The reader will find that the Bible will materially assist in the prosecution of the enquiry; especially by its uniform rendering of shakol throughout the O. T. (Gen. xiii.), the reader can judge for himself: whether even the O. T. characterisation of hades or shakol is uniformly consistent with itself--of this also the student must form his own judgment. Let him only trace the word "hades" throughout, from Genesis to Revelation, and the whole matter will be before him; because, although there be other words (such as "soul," "death," "grave," etc.) which will have something to say on the subject, yet these other words will be sure to come well into view in the long line of contexts which will be found clustering about the one word "hades."

IMMERSION.

Early in life the translator became convinced that the meaning of the Greek verb bapxist(o)n is "to immerse." He accordingly, in the first and second editions of this work, so rendered the word. Having come to the conclusion that the duty of such Israelites as believe Jesus to be the promised Messiah is to be immersed into Him as their new leader, plainly what is true for Jew is true also for Gentile.

JESUS.

It may be worth knowing that the name of this is undoubtedly due to a combination of "Yehowah" with "salvation." "Yah is help," tersely says Dr. Davies, in explanation of the O. T. form of the same name (Yah = Yehowah = Yehovah). Alone, this proves nothing, since it cannot mean that Joshua was a divine person; but it is competent to the sacred story to invest the name with a profounder significance than it ever had before the advent of the Messiah (cp. Nu. xii. 8, 10; Exo. xxxii. 9; Lev. iv. 8; Mt. i. 11; Ph. ii. 9, 10).

JUDGE.

The biblical terms for "judge" and "judgment" become immensely more interesting when widened out to include the ideas, on the one hand, of vindicating the wronged, and on the other, of ruling in general.

KINGDOM.

The history of the King, to a large extent the history of the Kingdom: promised, presented, rejected, taken into heaven and reserved there to await a more glorious revelation (cp. Is. ix. 6, 7; Mt. iii. 2; iv. 17; xii. 33; Lu. xix. 11-27; 2 Tim. iv. 1; Rev. xvi. 14; xix. 16).

KNOW.

Important shades of meaning are: "get to know" (Jn. xvii. 7; 20), "understand" (2 Th. iii. 6; 11; 1 Cor. xi. 18; v. 20), and "approve," "acknowledge," (Ph. i. 6; Mt. xxvii. 28; Ro. viii. 20; 2 Tim. iii. 15).

MAMMON.

It is well-known that the word "mammon" denotes the Syrian god of riches. As that fact has, I believe, critically become fossilised, and its application to worldly wealth has become so blunted as to be scarcely felt, it has been deemed better to use, instead of the word Riches with a capital, so restoring to the Master's warning something of the force he intended it to wield. The word "mammon" occurs in the following places only: Mt. vi. 24; Lu. xvi. 9, 11, 13.

MARK, END OF THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO.

After a lengthened examination of the evidence, internal, intrinsic, and transcripational, Westcott and Hort conclude that there is... no difficulty in accepting (1) that the true intended continuation of vv. 1-6 either was very early lost by the detachment of a leaf or was never written down; and (2) that a scribe or editor, unwilling to change the words of the text before him or to add words of his own, was willing to furnish the Gospel with a wording incorporated in it, with it unchanged a narrative of Christ’s appearances after the Resurrection which he found in some secondary recording or from another generation. If these suppositions are made, the whole tenour of the evidence becomes clear and harmonious. Every other view is, we believe, untenable. It (the addition, vv. 9-20) manifestly cannot claim any apostolic authority; but is doubtless founded on some tradition of the apostolic age.” (Appendix to Introduction, p. 61.)

MESSENGER.

This is confessedly the meaning of the Greek word ἀγέλος, as it is also of the corresponding Hebrew term מָלָדָך. When it was that either word was applied to a heavenly messenger and when to an earthly, had always to be learned from context and circumstance, never from the mere word; although perhaps, here and there, a slight presumption may be inferred in favour of a heavenly errand-bearer. How slight that presumption is, may be inferred from a glance at the use of the words. ἀγέλος in the N. T. is applied indiscriminately to John the Immerser (Mt. xi. 10; Mk. i. 2; Lu. vii. 22), to John’s disciples (Lu. vii. 24), to Jesus’ disciples (Lu. iv. 52), to the thunder in the air (xii. 7), and to (as it is) Job (xli. 25).

In all these examples the original word is ἀγέλος. The like use of the Hebrew word מָלָדָך may be illustrated by another course. From Genesis i., we learn that at about the same time that God sent “messengers” to meet Jacob, Jacob sent “messengers” to meet Esau: the simplest and grand old hill of the device of applying a sacred term to God’s messengers and a common one to Jacob’s; it termed both alike מָלָדָך (as the superscription of Job, after the termed being altered), and fitted to impart, such as that “the word,” as now consti-tuted, includes “both messengers and men” (1 Co. iv. 9), and that the coming habitable earth will not be, as the earth now is, subject unto messengers, but unto man (He. ii. 5; 6 ff), as though man’s minority, during which he is subject to beings of a foreign race, were to be superseded by his majority, which is to be spent here, in this home, divinely given to him as his inheritance.

PRESENCE.

In this edition the word παρουσία is uniformly rendered “presence” (“coming,” as a representative of this word, being set in italic). The original and several times in the N. T., viz.: Mt. xxiv. 32, 37, 39; 1 Co. xv. 23; xvi. 17; 2 Co. vi. 7; 10; Ph. i. 12; 1 Th. ii. 19; i1. 18; 15; v. 23; 2 Th. ii. 1, 8, 9; 1a. v. 7, 8; 2 P. i. 18; i1. 4, 12 and 1 Jn. ii. 28. The sense of “presence” is so plainly shewn by the contrast with “absence” (implied in 2 Co. x. 10, and expressed in Ph. ii. 12) that the question naturally arises,—Why not always so render it? The more so, inasmuch as there is in 2 P. i. 18 also, a peculiar fitness in our English word “presence.” This passage, it will be remembered, relates to our Lord’s transaction upon the Mount. The wonderful manifestation there made was display and sampled “presence” rather than of “coming.” The Lord was already there; and, being there, he was transformed (cp. Mt. xvii. 2, n.) and this glorified person was then described. His bodily “presence” was one which included and exerted “power”; so that “power and presence” go exceedingly well together—the “power” beholding such a “presence”; and the three favoured disciples were at one and the same moment witnesses of both. The difficulty encountered in the second edition of this N. T., in the way of so yielding to this weight of evidence as to render παρουσία always by “presence,” lay in the seeming inconsistency of being “presence” as an event which would happen at a particular time and which would fall into rank as one of a series of events, as 1 Co. xv. 23, especially applied to resurrection. The translator still feels the force of this objection, but is withdrawn from taking his stand upon it any longer by the reflection that, after all, the discussion is imaginary. The presence, in any case, is still in the future, and may therefore be enshrouded in a measure of obscurity which only fulfilment can clear away: it may, in time, be both a period,—more or less extended, during which certain things shall happen,—and an event, coming on and passing away as one of a series of divine interpositions. That event stands as a mark of time, that is, one event: He returns and you have his “presence,” during which he raises his own—that is another event, however large and grand, so that certain acts in the cluster of events constituting “the end.” Hence, after all, “presence” may be the most widely and permanently satisfying translation of the looked-for παρουσία of the Son of Man.

REST. See Sabbath.

SABBATH.

Not to enter upon the larger questions which concern the Sabbath or the Lord’s Day, a few critical remarks on the word sabbath as it appears in the N. T. may be useful. First, this word seems to be sometimes an app-ealitive and sometimes a proper name (“day of rest,” Sabbath”). Second, the term sabbath is, in several texts, used in the plural in the Greek, where nevertheless it is evident that only one particular day is intended. Under this head, the following texts are worthy of note: Mt. xii. 11; Mk. i. 21; ii. 23; iii. 2; Lu. iv. 16; xili. 10; Ac. xiii. 14; xvi. 13. In all these passages the word in the original is in the plural, and yet itplainly that a particular, individual day is intended. Nor is there anything surprising in this; for there are many forms where other languages employ the singular.

For this, see Gesenius by Davies, p. 243. Third, the word sabbath is, in the singular, used to express an act of rest; and rest, as we know, has nothing to do with being so of a foreign race, where to be superseded by his majority, which is to be spent here, in this home, divinely given to him as his inheritance.

SHRINE. See Temple.
SOUL.

One cannot but regret the impossibility of making our English word "soul" express just as much as is conveyed by the Greek word psuchē and the Hebrew word nephesh. The translator may confess that, after a determined endeavour to render the latter term uniformly "soul" throughout the O. T., he was reluctantly constrained to give up the attempt. When, in the book of Esther, it came in at the climax that the Jews were permitted "to stand for their soul (nephesh)" (Est. viii. 11), this example proved to be the turning of the scale, and "life" was promptly substituted. It certainly may be worth enquiry, how it comes about that the sacred originals so freely use a concrete word where we sorely feel our need of employing our abstract term "life"; and that this is so, notwithstanding the existence of chayyāh in the Hebrew and zēnōn in the Greek, more exactly answering (as it might have seemed) to the English word "life." But the fact of stubborn diversity of usage above indicated remains, and it appears necessary to allow "life" to stand in a respectable minorit of instances for nephesh and psuchē. In this edition, therefore, "life" has been admitted into a certain class of passages, of which Mt. xvi. 25, 26 may be named as an example.

SOUL, MAN OF; BODY OF THE.

Notwithstanding what has been said above, "soul" of course remains our leading representative of psuchē; and we greatly need an adjective which holds the same relation to "soul" as "spiritual" holds to "spirit." "Natural" is evidently not the exact word. We might of course say "psychical man" and "psychical body," in I Co. ii. 14, and xv. 44, 46, if we were in the habit of using "psyche" everywhere instead of "soul." As that is not the case, and as "soulical" has no recognised place in the English language, it seems to the translator, after much thought upon the subject, that the simple circumlocutions placed at the head of this note may prove a not unhappy solution of the difficulty. The Greek adjective psuchikos, here discussed, occurs, in the N. T., only in I Co. ii. 14; xv. 44, 46; Ja. iii. 5 and Jude 19.

SPIRIT, PERSONALITY OF THE HOLY.

The reader is requested to observe that the very literal rendering, "Holy Spirit" (with no "the" prefixed—rather frequent in the "Acts") is in no sense due to any doubt of "the personality of the Holy Spirit." The translator simply declines to admit that the idea of personality is so dominating and exhaustive as to require, by a species of English forcing, to be kept ever to the front. Over and above those precious conceptions which by consent are couched under the word "person," there are others (scarcely less important!), of pervasive influence, of secret, subtle, interpenetrating and embracing energy, which by us in our weaknesses are sometimes more easily caught when the notion of personality is, for the time, in abeyance. Moreover, as the authors of The USSenUniverse well say (p. 173, third edition): "It ought to be remembered that here the word "person" does not mean the same thing as it does when applied to ourselves, but only denotes some distinction that may be regarded as best expressed by this word. Our idea of person or individual is derived solely from our experience of that position which we occupy in the universe."

SPIRIT versus "GHOST."

It is satisfactory to find The Revised English Bible (Eyre & Spottiswoode) substituting the word "Spirit" for the venerable but objectionable word "Ghost." Objectionable, certainly, the latter is; notwithstanding that, in many minds, it is clustered about with sacred associations, and by some strangely regarded as a very bulwark of orthodoxy. The primary objection to it ranges high above any question of taste; and is derived from the circumstance that it makes, in English, an artificial, unfounded distinction, which separates passages which ought to be closely linked together by uniformity of rendering. For example, we have, in the public Versions of 2 Co. xiii. 14 "the communion of the Holy Ghost;," but, in Phi. ii. 1, the "fellowship of the Spirit." a double break, it will be observed, jerking the reader from "communion" to "fellowship," and from "Ghost" to "Spirit," although in the Greek the one passage is the very echo of the other. And this brings us to a subordinate, though very weighty, objection to "Ghost," namely, the essential incongruity of the word at this time of day. For, mark: should anyone think to restore the broken link by a reverse movement, that is to say, by extending "Ghost" to both passages ("If there be, therefore, any fellowship of the Ghost,;"), he would not be instantly beaten back by a general cry of dismay. It remains to add this only: Given, devout persons who for years have intelligently preferred and word "Spirit," and in them a strong revulsion of feeling unites with a clear decision of judgment to decline, as bordering on profanity, any voluntary application of the term "Ghost" to the mighty and gracious Spirit of the Living God.

TEMPLE.

The attempt has here been made to distinguish between hērōn (temple, inclusive of courts, precincts) and masān, the inner building, marking the latter by a capital initial. There is neither need nor ground for further distinction.

TORCH.

"The true Hindu way of lighting up is by torches held by men, who feed the flame from a sort of bottle constructed for the purpose."—Elphinston (quoted by Trumpp. "Spiele*, quoted by Trumpp. Cp. Jdg. vii. 16, 20; xv. 4, 5; Job xli. 19.)

VIRGINITY.

The example of the translator of an excellent version published by Morrish (understood to have been the late J. N. Darby) has embarrassed the present translator to adopt "virginity" in I Co. vii. 36-39. The immense relief from difficulty thus obtained, and the fact that the word parthenia is sometimes masculine, an unmarried youth (Liddell and Scott) have been accepted as a justification of this rendering.
