Derek and Dark

"Kate is a very sick person, in the beginning, a consummating person." Phyllis Chesler reads, "But she also had periods in which she didn’t sleep, spent hours smoking and engaging in orgies and every other sort of thing that captured the imagination.

"It was 1969 and she took me to a meeting at her friend, Lila Karp’s place, in Greenwich Village," Mallory explains. "She had invited her friends and was quite excited, because she was quite young. She was a writer and an artist and involved in the occult, with a Marxist twist.

"Her husband, Fumio, ran away with another woman, but Kate was not ready to let him go. She locked him in the apartment and started the movement." Mallory adds, "Kate’s relationship and the years of heartache and regret it brought to both spouses proved hardly an isolated case. The movement destroyed relationship after relationship with the promise of free love and liberation. Bodies and lives were used for amusement and vows and promises were quickly tossed aside.

Pregnancy Is "Barbaric."

"By destroying monogamy!" they shouted. "How can we destroy monogamy?"

"By taking away his power!" "How do we do that?"

"And how do we destroy the American Patriarch?" she probed.

"By destroying the family!" they answered.

"How do we destroy the American family?" she came back.

"By destroying the family!" they answered.

"How do we destroy the family?"
